WANTED—10,000 bushels of choice, picked potatoes at Fontaine & Anglim's. Delivery must be made between March, 18th to 24th.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal,

BY N. S. GORDON.

$1.50 Subscription $1.50 per year in advance.

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston

AN extra session of Congress is not likely to be called now that the army bill passed.

THE congress just closed was a $1,500,000,000 one. That is a large amount of money, but then we are large people.

UNCLE SAM now guards the life and property of Germans at Manila. The Anglo-Saxon races are getting closer together.

HEREAFTER the members of the railroad and warehouse commission will be elected directly by the people. The legislature has so decreed.

MUNICIPAL politics are beginning to wax warm in many cities throughout the state. Several elections will be held this month and next.

JUDGE M. L. HAYWARD, republican, was yesterday elected by the Nebraska legislature as United States senator to succeed William-V. Allen, populist.

HOBSON, the hero of the Merrimac, has been advanced from assistant naval constructor to naval constructor. By this promotion Hobson gains about twenty-six years in the ordinary course of promotion.

LORD HERSCHEL, an eminent Englishman, a member of the Venezuelan Arbitration committee and also of the Joint High commission between Canada and the United States, suddenly passed away in this country last week.

WILLIAM R. MERRIAM has been appointed by the president as superintendent of the next census. At last he has secured a public appointment. Newspaper readers will now miss an item that has appeared every week or two for many months to the effect that "Mr. Merriam is mentioned," etc.

QUAY'S forces in Pennsylvania are beginning to disintegrate. Three of his supporters have transferred their votes to other candidates and the anti-Quay men say that this is but the beginning of the end. Senator Quay undoubtedly has ability and if he has misused it it were a pity.

THE United court of Cassation will retry the Dreyfus case. This is a distinct victory for the supporters of Dreyfus, though it is by no means certain evidence that the unfortunate officer will be cleared. Such tampering with justice as the French have done in this case can hardly be understood by an Anglo-Saxon.

THE long winded solons at St. Paul had notice served on them last week that their time-killing —not to say nerve-killing—addresses would not be allowed any longer. The days of the session are numbered and any way the time that really belongs to the people ought not to be wasted. In the words of Ibsen "A thousand speeches brand less deeply than one dint of deed."

PREMIER SAGASTA of Spain has had a hard task, indeed, both during the war and while the Peace commission was in session. He did all he could; no blame ought to be attached to him because he could not hold the Philippines. Yet the representatives of the Spanish people in the national Cortes are trying as far as possible to humiliate him and his colleagues. He has been forced to resign and a new cabinet has been formed under the leadership of Silvela.

SPICH treatment as the Spanish officers, who were defeated in the late war, are receiving, is incomprehensible to us. They are most of them, if not all of them, now in prison awaiting their trial by courtmartial. Cervera left the harbor of Santiago under orders from his superiors and General Toral surrendered Santiago in compliance with commands from Madrid.

CONGRESS appropriated $1,000,000 which is to be used, under direction of the president, to examine all the possible routes for an interoceanic canal and the next congress will select a route and work will then begin. It is unfortunate that there could not have been more speedy action in the matter as after the work is begun it will be a long time before the canal can be used and there is now urgent need for such a water route.

CONCERNING the ghost that people claim to have seen quite frequently near Shelly, a correspondent from that place says that "it is a defeated demo-pop. On the evening Bryan spoke in St. Paul, a short time ago, it showed itself very plainly. The result of all this will be that in the future Shelly will not turn populist." If ghosts will only appear in several other places the populists won't stand a ghost of a show at the next election.

THE city elections will be held in a few weeks and already the question as to who will be our next city officials is being discussed. We would suggest to the citizens that they be very cautious in their selection and choose men who have business training, financial ability and knowledge of municipal affairs. The city's burdens are heavy and a high rate of taxation is being paid and those men should have control of the municipal government who will be careful, economical, and painstaking in looking after the best interests and welfare of the city.

THERE is no reason why the high schools should not be getting somewhere near as much as the normal schools of the state in the way of grants of money. Most of our country teachers are high school graduates and many teachers in the graded schools have a like standing. The normal schools, therefore, are not by any means turning out all our pedagogues. Moreover the high schools might fittingly be called the colleges of the common people. To increase the high school grant, then, from $400 to $1,000 would be to benefit a deserving institution.

SPEAKER REED last Saturday completed his third term as presiding officer of the national house of representatives. He was warmly thanked by his colleagues for the able manner in which he had performed the duties of his office. The nation's business has been performed more expeditiously since Mr. Reed became the chief man in the house, even though he has obtained the title of Czar. Next to the president no man in public life exerts such an influence or has such power as the speaker of the house. Whether for good or for ill he has the power of preventing bills from becoming law.

THE long contest, between Schley and Sampson over promotion is finally settled. They become admiral but. Schley is two points ahead of Sampson. For this difference Sampson may thank his too zealous friends. Had they not tried to have Sampson outrank Schley the former would have been at least as high up as the latter. Brigadier General Otis becomes major general and Dewey rear admiral. The latter now outranks all naval officers. In giving Admiral Dewey first place the president has not merely given him deserved promotion but the desire of the nation has thus been realized. The people consider Dewey the hero of the war and they are glad to see him where he now is. When Dewey raised his admiral's flag on the Olympia in Manila harbor last week she cannon boomed from all the ships in the vicinity, foreign as well as United States vessels.

A CAREFUL reading of the law that covers the case has convinced us that the county owes the city a considerable sum of money, which has accrued from the penalties and interest on delinquent city taxes. A mistake has been made but naturally the blame rests on those who were the officials years and years ago. All parties concerned will probably be better satisfied if the supreme court of the state gives its decision in the case and an attempt will therefore be made to get the question before that court at its spring session next month. Justice is always best though at first sight it may sometimes appear otherwise. If the money is the city's the county must pay it. Nor ought it to be thought that the city is trying to get something out of the county, for such is not the case. If the money does not lawfully belong to Crookston the city does not wish it. If the money is not the county's the latter ought to and without doubt will willingly pay it.

Notes From Exchanges.

Grand Forks Plaindealer: Work along this division of the Great Northern will be very light this coming summer. It is understood that practically all of the new improvements will be done in the western end of the line. The division carpenter at this point has received no instructions to go further than do the usual spring and summer work.

Roseau Times: The railroad extending from Winnipeg to Port Arthur via Warroad on the Lake of the Woods is contracted to be finished in 1900. This year the road will be finished from Winnipeg to Rainy river. This new outlet for Manitoba products promises to be of great commercial value to the province and incidentally will develop the Lake of the Woods and Rainy river country.

Hallock News: Mr. J. W. Shields is probably one of the most successful wolf hunters in the county. He came in Monday last with 17 wolves, as the result of a weeks hunt. Mr. Shields does most of his hunting with a pair of grey hounds which he has trained to "run down" and judging by the number he has presented to Auditor Gunnarson for bounty this winter, they must certainly be a valuable pair of dogs.

Brainerd Tribune: It is understood that Judge Collins is being carefully groomed for the republican gubernatorial nomination in 1900 by his political friends in Stearns county. If the genial judge were as strong with the politicians as he is with the people he would be the next governor of the state without a doubt. As it is, he's going to keep the boys busy guessing until after the nominating convention is held.

Thief River Falls Press: If there is not an immense amount of business done on this branch of the Jim Hill railroad it is not Conductor Murray's fault. Besides his being a kind and obliging gentleman, good looking, always looking faithfully after passengers and other freight it is rumored a band concert has been introduced as a pleasing attachment to the train, and all by the train boys. If he keeps on he'll have to take along a policeman to keep the passengers of the train.

Minneapolis Journal: The gross earnings tax bill is important and should be considered on its merits. The proposition is to increase the revenues of the state about $350,000 per year from property which thus far, figuring on the assessment, has been paying only about one-third of its proportionate share of the public burdens. If such a proposition is against public policy, the bill ought not to pass, but the people do not believe it is against public policy, and the reasoning in the senate, if the bill is to die, should be very clear and convincing if the senate is to escape censure.

Farm Stock and Home: A bill has been introduced in the Illinois legislature providing for teaching the fundamental principles of agriculture in the common schools of the state. Books are to be prepared with this object in view, and after July 1st 1900, no teacher will be regarded qualified to teach in any ungraded school who cannot pass a satisfactory examination in the basic principles of farm husbandry. The value of such education cannot be overestimated, while the country school will be made more interesting and enticing to the pupil by the introduction of such studies, illustrated by the object lessons of bud, leaf, plant and twig found growing adjacent to every country school house.

Aitkin Republican: County Auditor Campbell was approached a few evenings ago by an irate farmer, who held in his hand a copy of the Aitkin Age containing the delinquent tax list. "You been nice cousin auditor," Pointing to his section he read off the name of Jason Marston and several of his neighbors and demanded to know why his name was not in the paper. The auditor was nonplussed, as he was absolutely sure that the tax list was correct. In trying to think of some explanation that would mollify the old man he remembered having seen him in the court house about the first of the year, and asked if his taxes were delinquent. "Yaw I pays all mine tax and wants my name in the paper yoost the same as Yason Marston." The auditor fainted.

Farm Stock and Home: New Ulm, Brown county, Minn., writes: "How would it do to sow wheat and flax together on new grub land? Wheat alone generally lodges. Flax does sow and how much seed of each to the acre? Ans. It will answer to sow flax and wheat on newly grubbed land. But the flax will not wholly prevent the lodging of wheat in a growing season. Sow at the same time as wheat is usually sown. Use the usual amount of wheat and 4 to 8 quarts of flax per acre. If you had a flock of sheep, and pastured the wheat for a time after it was up, the crop would not lodge and the yield of grain would be increased. Why does not every farmer keep a flock of sheep even though it be only a small one.

Elsewhere.

Grand Forks may get a new Northern Pacific station this summer.

Barnesville is agitating the question of erecting a high school building.

Fifty-eight wolves in six weeks is the bounty record of Red Lake county.

Thousand of new settlers are coming to the northwest during the spring months.

Bob Dunn, state auditor, says he will not be a candidate for governor next year.

St. Cloud has successfully tried the scheme of thawing out frozen water pipes by electricity.

The Red Lake Falls milling company will increase the capacity of their flour mills at from 500 to 600 barrels a day.

The Leech Lake Indians, to the number of about 1200, all got drunk after they received their annual pay from the government.

An appropriation bill providing for a $10 fish mill tax for the support of the State University has passed the North Dakota University.

The rural free delivery system will be tried in two towns in the seventh district, Warren and Appleton. Mr. Eddy says that Fisher will be next.

Some of the lower academical studies in the normal schools are to be abolished as these studies are duplicated in the state high schools.

The firemen of Thief River Falls celebrated on March 8th the fifth anniversary of the formation of the fire department. It was a swell affair.

Ada has a new Methodist minister, Rev. Wm. Park, who comes from Hartford, Conn. Presiding Elder Dr. Forbes was instrumental in securing him.

Fergus Falls and St. Cloud both received a grant of money from congress with which to build federal buildings, the first named getting $37,500 and the latter $25,000.

Louis Liston, of Grand Forks, was brought home by his father last week from Walker, where he sustained a severe injury while working in the woods felling trees.

A reduction in freight rates, the Warren Sheaf thinks would be more beneficial to the people of the Red River Valley than an increase in the gross earnings tax on the railroads.

It is learned that Ole R. Bralkie, who left the vicinity of Fosston last summer to work in the Dakota harvest fields and who had not been heard of up to a short time ago, was drowned last August.

Some of the young men of East Grand Forks have formed an anti-marriage society, styled the "Manhattan Hearts." The young ladies reply that the men will be forced to remain single anyway.

There was the usual scramble for unanimous consent legislation at Washington during the last days of congress. Members wanted bills passed that dealt with local matters in their several districts.

Exchange of Probate O. B. Eckman, of Roseau has been appointed United States commissioner in and for Minnesota. He can now, therefore, make out homestead papers, take evidence in contests and make final proofs.

"Sugar beet pulp, fermented or unfermented, is a perfectly wholesome food for dairy cows or other stock," says Prof. T. L. Haecker, head of the department of dairy husbandry of the Minnesota state agricultural farm.

Ole Skatvold, a patient from Todd county at the Fergus Falls insane hospital, committed suicide last Thursday by hanging himself with strips of a sheet. He was a tragic whose duty it was to make the beds.

Farmers in Clay county are protesting against the rule of the Board of Private Managers with reference to the buying of binding twine. They think it is unfair for the farmers to have to give their orders before they know how much they want, and three months before they can use it.

P. & J. Meehan have a large box built on a pair of sleighs, with a sheet iron stove at the end, outside, the pipe running full length of the sleigh and up and out at the top, for the purpose of hauling potatoes to their lumber camps. It was loaded and fired up Wednesday morning and started for the woods. When about three miles out the rear end was discovered on fire and before it could be put out a large hole was burned in the box requiring a return to town for repairs. —Thief River Falls Press.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Much in Little

Is especially true of Hood's Pills, for no medicine ever contained so great curative power in so small space. They are a whole medicine chest, always ready, always efficient, always satisfactory; prevent a cold or fever, cure all liver ills, sick headache, jaundice, constipation, etc. etc. The only Pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all sure or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

IN THE

North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS, BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW consistantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

50 Cents a Number; $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N. Y.

United States Map

15c. a copy of our handsome map, 22 x 28 inches, printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money order. We prepay postage. GEO. P. LYMAN, General Passenger Agent C. St. P. M. & O. Ry. St. Paul, Minn.

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal,

Morrisey's Foundry.

Teachers' Examination.

The regular spring examinations for teachers of Polk county will be held on the following dates:

Fertile, March 7 and 8.
Crookston, March 10 and 11.
McIntosh and East Grand Forks, March 17 and 18.

Examinations for first grade certificates will be held in the Court House in Crookston, March 9, 10 and 11.

J. I. KAASA,
County Supt. of Schools.

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance, in order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. The two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the traveling public. Your nearest ticket agent will afford you complete information and furnish you folder of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
(16-tf) Milwaukee, Wis.

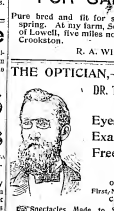
YOUNG SHORT HORN BULLS, FOR SALE.

Pure bred and fit for service this spring. At my farm, Sec. 15, town of Lowell, five miles north-west of Crookston.

R. A. WILKINSON.

THE OPTICIAN,

DR. T. J. SMITH,



Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

H. STEENERSON.

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,

Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Robert street, Crookston, Minn.

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fauvset Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

A. R. HOLSTON,

Attorney - at - Law

Practices in all the courts. Office, Wallace Block.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

TIME CARD —OF— TRAINS.

Crookston

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	7.00 p m	7.20 p m
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 for Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6.10 a m	6.35 a m
C. A. SHARREY, Act. Crookston, Minn.	CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

LEAVE	*Daily	Except Sunday	LEAVE
5.05 a m	Grand Forks, North and West	7.00 a m
5.05 p m	Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Sioux City and Omaha	9.05 p m
8.15 p m	Warren, Stephen, Hallock and Kittson Co.	10.15 a m
4.00 p m	St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls	8.30 a m
4.05 p m	Fisher, Grand Forks, Duluth and Superior	9.00 a m
5.45 p m	Climax, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo	7.30 a m

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
†Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Persons Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

WANTED—10,000 bushels of choice, picked potatoes at Fontaine & Anglim's. Delivery must be made between March 18th to 24th.

—Coke & Stone for coal and wood.

—A. D. Stephens spent Saturday and Sunday in St. Paul.

—S. Johnson, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city Saturday.

—H. N. Parker, of St. Hilaire, was in Crookston on Tuesday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith spent Sunday at Red Lake Falls.

—Kirk Davies was over from Grand Forks last Sunday.

—Attorney H. L. Gaylord was up from Fertile last Saturday.

—J. Q. Cronkhite, of Argyle, was in the city Monday morning.

—Miss Lillian Warninger returned to Fosston Saturday morning.

—W. A Case, of St. Hilaire, went out to Bemidji Saturday morning.

—Claus Goosen, wife and daughter were in from Euclid last Saturday.

—Cedar posts, 12c to 15 cents a piece, for sale at S. C. Johnson's feed store.

—Frank Jernie, of Warren, was registered at the Palace hotel Monday night.

—Dr. M. G. Legare was called to Fertile last Saturday on professional business.

—Warren Ives, of Hutchinson, a brother of Judge Ives, died last Thursday night.

—Miss Tina Hendy went to Milwaukee last Friday where she will reside in the future.

—Messrs. O. Simmons and Simon Johnson were in from their farms in Russia last Saturday.

—Banker S. H. Drew and Dr. McEachran came in from McIntosh last Monday afternoon.

—District court started at Halluck on Monday. Judge Watts left for that berg Saturday morning.

—Joe Parvis, of Northcote, was in the city Friday night, returning to his home Saturday morning.

—Dr. T. J. Smith, the eye specialist, is in the towns along the Fosston line this week.

Dr. G. A. Morley, specialist, eye, ear, nose and throat. Office, Hickert block, Crookston, Minn. 30-tf

—Prof. E. C. Mitchell died him to Fosston and McIntosh last Tuesday to see how his music pupils were progressing.

—Miss Addie Marin, one of the teachers in the Fisher public schools, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in this city.

—W. L. Vannet spent Sunday at his home in Fertile. Saturday evening his sisters entertained a large number of their friends.

Miss Orpha AnDyke came over from Grand Forks to see the hockey game and visit a short time with her cousin Mrs. Chas. Lattin.

—Mr. Harris, who has been visiting for several weeks with his sister Mrs. Everett Webster, returned Tuesday to his home in Winnipeg.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter and two children went out to McIntosh Monday morning for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter.

—Supt. Jenks' private car was attached to the St. Vincent train Monday morning. Charley Shingleigh was among those traveling with the superintendent.

—The Strawbridge Mercantile Co., of St. Hilaire expect to open up for business this spring at Cass Lake. These young men are hustlers and Cass Lake is without doubt a good business location.

—The county commissioners meet today. About the most important matter to come up before the board will be that of the demand of Crookston for certain money which the city claims is its by law.

—At the Crescent Literary society last Friday night O. K. Berget and Professors Sathre and Malm gave several readings and Miss Nellie Simmons favored the audience with two or three piano solos.

—On Monday Judge Hagen appointed Mrs. E. Spendley administratrix of the estate of her grandfather, Mr. Whipple, deceased, and Rebecca Nilson administratrix of the estate of Gerhard Nilson deceased, of the town of Northland.

—Chas. Carpenter, brother of Geo. Carpenter of this city, arrived last Wednesday from his home in Tennessee. He will go to McIntosh and assist his brother Paul Carpenter in the machinery and hardware business there.

—City Engineer Geo. A. Ralph left on Monday for the country around Warroad and the Lake of the Woods where he will be for a week doing some government surveying. The others in the surveying party were Messrs. Berthum, St. George, Benson and Alex Johnson.

—Will O'Brien was down from Red Lake Falls last Friday.

—County Attorney W. F. Street of Bemidji was in the city yesterday.

—George Vine has sold his residence in Jerome's addition to George McLean for $2,500.

—Mr. Hunne, banker of St. Hilaire, was an interested spectator at the palace rink Thursday night.

—Attorney Carr, of Stephen, was in the city Thursday and took in the hockey game.

—P. L. Reime is opened up in his new restaurant quarters on Robert street, opposite the Odd Fellows block.

—Iver Nordlad has moved his second-hand store to the building on Broadway just south of Crawford's bakery.

—Mrs. Marshall, postmistress at Red Lake Falls, returned Saturday morning from a trip to the Twin Cities and took the 8:30 train for her home.

—Martin Lally has bought from E. M. Walsh 80 acres of land that adjoined his already quite large farm on east of town. The price was $1,600

—Tomorrow night, March 10, Dr. Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district, lectures at Warren on "Abraham Lincoln, America's most illustrious son."

—Bruce Harris, a freshman at the State University, will spend the spring term at home. He will teach school where he did last year in the Houston district three miles east of town.

—Last Monday afternoon there was a friendly sparring match between George Vine and Fred Larsen in the gym rooms. It was a lively bout and clever work was done by both men.

—C. M. Tweitten, who lives a few miles out of town, gave a reception last Friday to his son Chris Tweitten who had just returned from Clay county with his bride. A number of Crookston friends drove out.

—Prof. La Sore has succeeded in forming a ladies' class in physical culture. Drill began last Saturday afternoon and will continue every afternoon between four and six o'clock and on Tuesday and Saturday evenings.

—District court opened at Halluck on Monday. Attorneys A. A. Miller, Halvor Steenerson, Judge Montague, H. W. Lee of Thief River Falls, and Court Reporter Strawbridge left on Monday morning's train for that place.

—Supt. P. A. Hoverstad and wife reached Crookston Friday morning. They will get everything arranged at the Experimental Farm for the spring work. Mr. Hoverstad went out to Halstad to attend a meeting of the farmers at that place.

—Fergus Falls had a bad fire Friday, and a business block and contents suffered damage to the amount of $15,000. The water in the river was so low that not enough water could be forced into the mains to give the needed fire protection.

—Miss Gertie Glenson, who has been studying music during the past six months at Boston Conservatory, was selected to sing a solo at a recital given by the students of the school last Saturday evening. This is strong evidence that Miss Gertie has an unusually fine voice.

—J. B. Whiteman, of Grand Forks, who attended the K. P. celebration here last week said, according to the Grand Forks Herald, that Crookston did herself proud at the K. P. banquet and the Grand Forks people left with a very different conception of Crookston than they had previously had.

—In the case of Peter Anderson vs. Rasmus Johnson, Judge Watts gave his decision last week in favor of the defendant. Anderson gave Johnson, who is from Fisher, some money to keep for him. Johnson gave the money to Anderson's wife and she says when it sent her husband to a Kelley Cure. When Anderson returned cured he sued Johnson for the money.

—In connection with the capture of the firebug the JOURNAL omitted to state last week that M. E. Kirsch, who is agent for the insurance companies which had insured several of the buildings set on fire, though not claiming to be a Pinkerton, nevertheless did some detective work in the case and was one of those through whose efforts young Schnagl was finally secured.

—Mrs. Helstrom, who is stopping at the Commercial hotel, dropped her black seal pocket book in the postoffice last Friday. She noticed the loss as soon as she got outside the building and immediately returned. No one had entered in the meantime. There were, however, two persons in the building, but they both told Mrs. Helstrom when she asked if they had seen the purse that they had not. She knows who the two people are and it is likely that things will be made disagreeable for them unless the purse is returned.

—Farm lands are selling very fast this spring.

—Dave McCleary was down from Northcote Tuesday.

—R. T. Webster, of Fisher, was a Crookston visitor last Tuesday.

—Clifford McLennan returned to Angus on yesterday morning's train.

—Mrs. Sam and Robert Sutor returned to Fosston yesterday morning.

—Miss Phrona Kirsch entertained a number of her friends last Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Ranch entertained their friends at cards last night.

—County Supt. Kraus held teachers examination at Fertile the first three days of the week.

—A masquerade ball on the evening of St. Patrick's Day will be held in the medical hall building.

—F. M. Lemmon, A. T. Compton and J. F. Montgomery of Angus spent Monday night in the city.

—Mrs. Carrie Cooke was on Monday last appointed administratrix of the estate of Mary E. Cooke, the first wife of H. E. Cooke.

—Landlord W. D. Seagt, of Hotel Crookston, and Mrs. Scott, returned yesterday morning from a trip of several weeks in more southern climes.

—A New England dinner will be served Friday evening beginning at 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. B. Clements on Houston Ave. by the ladies of the Congregational church.

—On Tuesday last the house of Thos. Smyth, in the town of Russia, caught fire but by the prompt action of those near at hand the fire was put out before much damage was done.

—Crookston ought to try the new method of thawing out frozen water pipes by electricity. Digging in the frozen earth as they have been at the Wallace corner is anything but easy work.

—A special meeting of the council will be held tonight at which a committee will probably be appointed to look over the records and make an estimate as to how much money is due the city from the county.

—The Shelby correspondent of the Normun County Herald says that another telephone line between Fergus and Crookston through the small stations on the Halstad extension is being vigorously pushed.

—Warren has several cases of Diphtheria and lest the dread disease might spread the public schools have been closed and other precautionary measures taken. Dr. Lee, of Crookston, is at Warren and many people are taking the antitoxine treatment.

—John Berry on Monday for being drunk was given $5 or five days. Later the judgment was suspended and he was given one hour in which to leave the city. He did not go, however, and hence was again arrested and given 30 days on bread and water or the alternative of getting out of town in three hours. He is gone.

—All the real estate of the estate of John B. Ruche, deceased, of East Grand Forks, was sold in the probate court in Crookston last Tuesday by the administrator, Ludgart Monda. The land was bought by Frank Jerome, for a farmer in the west of the county, the price paid being $4,000.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lytle, who spent the months of December, January and February in California, returned to Crookston last Friday morning. They have been in several of the cities on the coast but spent most of the time at Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. They report that the weather there is exceptionally delightful, strawberries and various kinds of fruit being in abundance throughout the winter months.

—A. R. Holston: You may say that the county will not pay into the city treasury any more money than the supreme court orders it to pay. The present custom with reference to the interest and penalties on back taxes has obtained so long that the present county officials will hardly undertake to turn down the acts of many of their predecessors. If the city does get this money it might be a good idea to buy with it a down town site for a new court house.

—In the issue of the JOURNAL of Feb. 16 the fact was noted that D. A. Stetler had disappeared from Crookston shortly after a telegram inquiring after him had been received by Chief Gouyea. No intelligence was drawn from this fact though the statement may have been a little misleading. Mr. Stetler returned to Crookston a few days after he went away and resumed his old position as operator at South Crookston. He says he went south to visit some sick relatives but that when he got to St. Paul he learned that they were getting better and he was on the point of returning to Crookston when the railway company sent him to Shevlin where he remained three days, thence coming back here.

WANTED—10,000 bushels of choice, picked potatoes at Fontaine & Anglim's. Delivery must be made between March, 18th to 24th.

—Mr. J. W. Wheeler will return on the 15th.

—Thos Erwin of Fisher was here on Monday.

—Fred Reynolds of Duluth was in the city Tuesday.

—Ed. Gilbertson went to Fosston yesterday morning.

—M. R. Rosenberg, of St. Hilaire, spent Tuesday night here.

—O. M. Sicevik, of Bemidji, spent Tuesday night in Crookston.

—George Roberts of Stephen was in the city over Monday night.

—H. H. Mumford of Warren was in the city the night before last.

—C. P. Sice and wife, of Warren, were in Crookston Tuesday night.

—Lawyer Nat Campbell took a business trip to Bagley yesterday.

—Rudy Rasmussen went to Bemidji on a business trip yesterday.

—Fred Hall was in the city Tuesday, shaking hands with old friends.

—Mrs. Finlayson went out to her farm at Angus yesterday morning.

—E. E. Lemmon, clerk of court, expects to put up a house this spring.

—J. O. Hilliard and P. S. Nelson of Argyle spent Monday evening in the city.

—Frank Grady, an attorney of Red Lake Falls, was in the city Monday night.

—The next band and orchestra concert comes on Tuesday evening, March 21.

—Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Stone entertained a number of their friends last Monday night.

—C. T. Lumman, editor of the McIntosh Times, spent yesterday at the county seat.

—Rev. E. H. Stickney, of Fargo, was the guest of Rev. H. P. Fisher Tuesday evening.

—Max Erickson was a passenger on the Fosston train east bound, yesterday morning.

—Marcus Johnson came up from below Tuesday morning and went out to Red Lake Falls.

—Fred Smith, during non-school hours and Saturdays, is keeping books for Dr. Robertson.

—Nels Lundvall, a bridge builder in the employ of the Great Northern, is very ill with pneumonia.

—The Crookston Hockey club will play at Stephen tomorrow night and at Halluck on Saturday afternoon.

—M. E. Harbin did some business for the New York Life yesterday in the towns along the St. Hilaire line.

—Olsen & Vanstrum are fitting up very handsomely their restaurant and billiard rooms on South Main street.

—Editor Butler, of the Climax Chronicle, and his wife went to Crookston Monday night to see the Red Cockade.

—Erickson & Vannet have re-leased for three years the building in Fertile in which they have been carrying on their hardware business.

—W. G. Calderwood, of Minneapolis, gave an address at the Methodist church the night before last on "The Failure of Prohibition."

—The teachers and pupils in the Crookston public schools are already beginning to look forward to the spring vacation which begins three weeks from tonight and lasts ten days.

—E. D. Childs, after spending a few days at home, returned again to St. Paul to work in the interest of certain changes in the poor laws. He feels quite satisfied over the progress the measure has thus far made.

—Monday night Ole H. Hoven, Jr., of the town of Wooddale, was committed by Judge Hagen to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls. In April last Hoven was sent to Fergus, but was discharged last month and is now recommitted.

—Mrs. W. L. Davies of this city is visiting in Grand Forks with the families of J. K. and W. P. Davies. She returns to Crookston tomorrow and will be accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Davies who will make an extended visit with friends and relatives here.

—Special Agent Griffin returned Saturday from out east in the woods. While away he sold at Fosston some timber that he had seized from trespassers and in the woods east of Fosston he came upon and took possession of some railway ties which some parties had cut from government land. Mr. Griffin is making life rather tiresome for the government timber purloiner.

—Chief Grafu Inspector Clausen was up before the grain investigation committee on two different days of this week. Sharp and rapid were the questions put to him and he discovered before Jacobson got through with his examination that the latter meant business. If Clausen and his deputies have not managed the grain inspection department as they should have, this committee proposes to find out why they have not.

HARDWARE...

We have just purchased the complete line of Heavy and Shelf Hardware formerly owned by Sorensen & Randkley, together with store building and warehouses, and will continue the business, carrying a full and complete line of everything that belongs to a First Class Hardware Store. We will also continue to handle the same complete line of which we have had heretofore, including the well known John Deere plows, Dowagiac Drills and Seeders, Rushford Wagons, Buggies, Cutters, Harness, Etc. We hope to see all of our old Customers at our new place of business, together with many new ones.

FARM IMPLEMENTS

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO.

FOSSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

"Merit Always Wins"

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Frank Lemon, long deputy warden of the Minnesota penitentiary, has resigned.

Last month, with one exception, was the coldest February in 29 years, according to weather bureau reports.

Adjutant General Corbin says the Thirteenth will be relieved as soon as individual discharges need not be considered.

General Lambert states that he expects daily the battery breech-loading gatling gun, which belonged to Battery A of Minneapolis would be returned by the war department.

Ex-Governor Merriam has been nominated and confirmed director of the census. The appointment occured but half an hour before adjournment and confirmation within 10 minutes of the close.

Ogg-to-be, is a prisoner in the county jail at Minneapolis, awaiting trial on the charge of murder. Ogg-to-be is a Mille Lacs Indian. He got drunk recently with several of his particular friends, and then when one of them was asleep, beat his head into a jelly.

Governor Lind has received a letter from Adjutant General Corbin saying that the Fifteenth regiment would be mustered out within a short time. The muster rolls were being prepared and the men would be given their discharges just as soon as the mustering work could be completed.

The administration building of Concordia college, on St. Anthony avenue, near Lexington, St. Paul, was almost completely destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. The property belonged to the Missouri synod of the German Lutherans, which maintains a fund for insurance risks on its numerous buildings throughout the country.

Adjutant General Lambert has issued an order to the effect that the indefinite leave of absence granted by the commander-in-chief to the Second and Third regiments of infantry, N. G. S. M., while engaged in the service of the United States during the Spanish war, is now revoked, and officers and enlisted men will immediately report for duty with their respective commands.

The executive committee of the State Republican League, consisting of one member from each congressional district, held a meeting in St. Paul to arrange for the convention to be held the first week in April. A committee was appointed to act with the citizens' committee of St. Paul to arrange for the entertainment of the delegates. Senators Davis and Nelson will be invited to address the meeting.

Private advices received from Manila by Governor Lind have caused the governor to take up the matter of the Thirteenth regiment's return from Manila with the war department. The information contained in letters and cablegrams, which have been directed to him of late by the officers of the regiment, has about decided the governor to go to Washington and personally use his influence with President McKinley to the end in view. It is considered quite certain that the regiment will be ordered home as soon as the Third United States infantry reaches its destination.

Deputy United States Marshal H. S. Tallman, of Mora, was in St. Paul during the week for the purpose of making his regular report to Marshal O'Connor. Mr. Tallman says that at the town of Lawrence on the Mille Lacs lake a few evenings since Wan-e-gah-bow, an Indian, was killed by other Indians. It seems that about a year ago Wan-e-gah-bow murdered an Indian named Mohsonce. He was arrested, but was released on bail. He became intoxicated and got into trouble with some of Mohsonce's relatives, who stabbed him to death. The murderer of Wan-e-gah-bow has not yet been apprehended.

Public Examiner Pope has discovered a law whereby counties are allowed only $150 a year for postage and express charges. He has sent out circulars to the county auditors calling their attention to this provision in section 1, chapter 1, of the General Laws of 1899. He also calls the attention of auditors to a decision of the attorney general made July 11, 1895, and Feb. 8, 1898, that the county commissioners are authorized to pass postage accounts not exceeding $10 a year for each county officer. Ramsey county commissioners in 1898 allowed $1,000 for stamped envelopes and postal cards and fully $1,000 more for stamps. The postage accounts in Hennepin and St. Louis counties exceeded this amount.

SOME NEW APPOINTMENTS

Governor Lind Names Members of the Game and Fish Commission.

Governor Lind has made the following appointments to the state game and fish commission:

A. T. Williams of Minneapolis to replace Colonel Von Baumbach of Alexandrin, William Ward of Fairmont to replace Captain William Bird, Jacob Danz of St. Paul to replace President Timberlake, Lon Cramb of St. Cloud, to replace C. S. Benson of St. Cloud, and John Bintner from Proctor Knott as executive agent to replace Samuel Fullerton, present incumbent.

Ninety Cents a Pupil.

ST. PAUL, March 8.—State Superintendent Lewis has completed the March apportionment of school funds among the counties of the state. Owing to the large attendance in the schools, the amount this year will be but 90 cents per pupil, or $292,663.18 for 325,407 children, who are entitled to share in the apportionment.

Recruiting Station at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, March 8.—St. Paul will probably become one of the recruiting centers for the new regiments authorized by the army bill. Washington dispatches say that Captain Edwin P. Andrus of the Fifth cavalry has been detailed to general recruiting service and has been ordered to come to this city to open an office. He is expected to arrive this week.

Barbers of Austria.

Austrians are very methodical in many things, and they take no chances with their barbers. The Barbers' and Wigmakers' union of Vienna sees to it that only competent persons are admitted to practice. Barbers must, of course, have a thorough knowledge of the practical side of the subject, and they are questioned as to keeping razors, brushes, etc., and the general idea of antiseptics must be well understood by them. When the barbers appear before the committee, they have their razors dulled on a pine plank, and they must then sharpen them and proceed to shave a subject.

These subjects are recruited from the poor and from among those who are fond of getting something for nothing. If the apprentice performs his work to the satisfaction of the judges, a certificate is issued to him, and he must serve as an apprentice for two years before he can open a shop of his own. Provision is also made for women barbers who desire to carry on the business of their husbands. To do this the women have to be enrolled as apprentices for three years, and they must exhibit a great proficiency before they are allowed to open an establishment of their own. The barber business in Austria is not particularly lucrative, as one can be shaved for 5 cents and have one's hair cut for about 8 cents.—Scientific American.

How Queen Bess Died.

The setting out of the dinner of Queen Elizabeth was a ceremonious function. First came a gentleman with a rod, followed by a gentleman carrying a tablecloth, which, after they had knelt reverently three times, was spread upon the table. Then came two others, one with a rod, the other with a saltcellar, a plate and bread. They knelt three times, placed the things on the table, knelt again and retired. Next came a lady in waiting, followed by a second. The first lady, dressed in white, after kneeling three times, approached the table and solemnly rubbed the plates with the salt.

Then entered 24 yeomen of the guard, clad in scarlet, and each carrying a dish of gold. These dishes were placed upon the table while the lady taster gave to each of the guards a taste from the dish he had brought in, for fear of possible poison. These guards were selected from the tallest and stoutest men in all England. At the close of this ceremony a number of unmarried ladies appeared and with great solemnity lifted the various dishes and carried them to the queen in her private apartments. The queen dined and supped alone, with the attendants, and it was seldom that any one was admitted at this time and then only at the intercession of some one in power.

She Got the Money.

In Berlin they tell a pretty story about Frau Blumenthal, the popular wife of the witty playwright and director of the Lessing theater. Herr Blumenthal, it appears, had great misgivings regarding the success of his new piece, "Zum Weissen Rossen." One day, when he was nearly ready to throw the manuscript aside, his wife, who did not share the view, said to him: "If I had only 20 marks ($5) for every 1,000 it will bring you I should be quite content." "All right, you shall have them," said Herr Blumenthal.

"Zum Weissen Rossen" (White Horse Inn) met with an immense success. Every night the fran director—for in Germany the wife shares in her husband's profits if not in his tin—went to the cashier and levied on her 20 marks per 1,000. On one occasion, after the piece had been running some months, had reached caused a falling off in the receipts there was but $1,000 marks, and consequently Frau Blumenthal was not entitled to her "tantieme" of 20 centre.

"How much have you taken?" she asked the cashier.

"Only 997 marks," was the reply.

"Well, give me a seat at 3 marks, then," said Frau Blumenthal, laying down the coin. "Now you have 1,000 marks, give me my 20." She got them.

Both Helped.

Zimmerman, the eminent physician, was sent from Hanover to attend Frederick the Great in his last illness. One day the king said to him. "You have, I presume, sir, helped many a man into another world?"

This was rather a bitter pill for the doctor, but the dose he gave the king in return was a delicious admixture of truth and flattery:

"Not so many as your majesty, nor will so much honor to myself."

Where the Czars Are Buried.

It is not generally known that the remains of all the czars of Russia since Peter the Great lie in a memorial chapel built on one of the islands of the Neva. All the cenotaphs are exactly alike, each being a block of white marble, without any decoration whatever. The only distinction by which one is marked is the name of the deceased emperor.

Men Who Wear Corsets.

More men wear corsets than is generally believed. A certain London corset maker states that he makes hundreds every year and recently had in hand one pair of pink satin decorated with flower-de-luce and another of nile green satin adorned with lotus flowers, one of these being for an officer in India.

Sorry He Asked.

Swell—Why is it that every clown has such a stupid face? Is he obliged to look stupid?

Clown—Certainly. If I had your face, my salary would be doubled at once.—Fun.

The tree known as the "grizzly giant" of California is 275 feet high and no less than 93 feet in circumference.

Tasmania has one of the most wonderful tin mines in the world, called the Mount Bischoff mine.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, March 9.

Senor Cuestas has been elected president of Uruguay.

Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford has sailed for Southampton on the American liner St. Louis.

The Maryland Steel company has announced a 10 per cent increase in the wages of all its employes.

Ex-Banker Schaner of Chicago, convicted of embezzlement, has been taken to the Joliet penitentiary to serve an indeterminate sentence.

The condition of Mrs. John A. Logan, who has been seriously ill from grippe and other complications, has improved considerably. She is now said to be out of danger, but is very weak.

The long-looked-for advance in the wages of the coal miners in the Birmingham (Ala.) district has been announced. The advance will be 25 cents for every ton of coal mined.

Friday, March 3.

Representative Crawford of the Fourth Texas district is dead.

The Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes, sunk in Santiago harbor, has been raised.

Senator Gray of Delaware has accepted the tender of an appointment as judge of the Third judicial circuit.

Cecil Rhodes predicts that the United States will eventually control all the Western hemisphere except Canada.

The American Tin Plate company has notified employes of the plant at Martins Ferry, O., of an increase in wages of from 5 to 10 per cent. Over 1,000 men are affected.

Saturday, March 4.

The Fourth Wisconsin has been mustered out.

The last of Spain's Cuban army has arrived at Valencia.

Lieutenant Hobson has been advanced ten numbers for extraordinary heroism.

Heat in the interior of Lookout mountain, in the Carlhou gold country, has melted all the snow on the sides of the mountain, thereby causing great floods.

The gunboat Vixen has been ordered to Manila in response to the urgent request of Admiral Dewey for more small craft. The Wheeling will also probably go.

Burglars blew open the safe in the East Syracuse (N. Y.) postoffice and obtained nearly $3,000 in postage stamps and money.

An apparent shortage of $10,000 has been found in the accounts of ex-County Treasurer John C. Emmerich of Lockport, N. Y. The grand jury is considering the matter.

Monday, March 6.

Rudyard Kipling, it is reported, will be elevated to the peerage on Jan. 1, 1900.

Senator Wolcott of Colorado has been sued for divorce, the alleged cause being incompatibility.

An agent of the United States will go to Cuba next week and pay the Cuban army the $3,000,000 appropriated.

A charter has been granted to the incorporators of the Seaboard and Gulf railroad to construct 447 miles through the eastern portion of Georgia.

A conspiracy among the convicts in the state prison at San Quentin, Cal., to murder their guards and effect a wholesale delivery of prisoners was revealed by Warden Hale through the heartedness of one of the conspirators.

General Toral, who commanded the Spanish troops at Santiago de Cuba, has been arrested and imprisoned, previous to being tried by courtmartial on the charge of capitulating to General Shafter at that place on July 14 last.

Tuesday, March 7.

The queen of Belgium is reported to be improving.

The condition of Mr. Kipling is reported as continuing favorable.

It is rumored that Quay will withdraw from the Pennsylvania senatorial contest.

General Alger is stated to be willing to leave the cabinet if he can name his successor.

Governor Smith of Montana has vetoed the bill removing restrictions from gambling.

The astounding discovery is made that just one-half of the Cuban army of 50,000 are officers.

Congressman Sulzer of New York is confident that he will succeed Bailey as Democratic leader in the house and will be nominated for vice president.

Professor Wasserman, one of Professor Koch's ablest pupils, believes he has discovered a serum for the cure of pneumonia. Experiments with animals have been successful and he is now operating upon human beings.

Wednesday, March 8.

A coal combine is planned, with $889,000,000 capital.

Governor Smith of Montana vetoed the bill permitting prize fights.

Austin Bidwell, the Bank of England forger, died at Butte, Mon.

Ernest Roeber defeated Hali Adali, the Turkish wrestler, in Boston.

Minnesota Indian reservation pine fraud charges are to be investigated.

The three new battleships building for the United States navy will be about perfect.

Monroe L. Hayward, Republican, has been elected United States senator in Nebraska.

England and France, it is expected, will effect a complete settlement of their disputs within two weeks.

Four hundred New York city Methodist ministers applauded a paper read by one of their number, denying the inerrancy of the Bible.

The Chinese are rejoiced because the United States will not join the other territory-grabbing nations. Our attitude strengthens the hands of the government of the empire.

Prevention of Disease.

Mr. Miles Menander Dawson, a consulting actuary and author of standard works on life insurance, says in an interview: "From one-fifth to one-half of the deaths that occur in youth and middle age could be prevented by a decent regard for sanitary conditions and by common action of society for the benefit of all. It is not enough that a man should take care of himself. Disease is communicable, and protecting ourselves against it is a social function.

"Fully one-fifth of the total number of deaths are caused by zymotic diseases which are as purely accidental as falling and breaking a leg. And one-fourth of the deaths in addition are from digestive and respiratory diseases. almost all of which are preventable. About 17 per cent of the deaths among insured lives is from consumption and 5 per cent from nervous diseases, all of which are now believed to be preventable.

"This means that fully one-half of the deaths among young and middle aged persons could be prevented and the proportion could no doubt be greatly increased if parents paid a proper respect to the laws of heredity. It would certainly be a most important achievement for the human race if united action could be taken to secure that a larger proportion of persons would attain old age than at present."—Ainslee's Magazine.

He Did Not Have It.

William Lightfoot Visscher in The Woman's Home Companion tells this characteristic story of the Hon. Isaac Parker, famous as the terrible judge at Fort Smith, Ark., who probably sentenced more men to be executed than any other judge that ever lived. This was not, however, because he was so unrelentingly severe, but because he had the hardest and most numerous lot of criminals to deal with that ever came within the jurisdiction of such an official. One day when there was an unusually large batch of culprits to be sentenced the judge looked compassionately over his spectacles at one young scamp and said:

"In consideration of the youth and inexperience of this prisoner I shall let him off with a fine of $50."

Before the judge had done speaking the very fresh young man coolly stretched his right leg and ran his hand into his trousers' pocket on the side, remarking nonchalantly as he did so:

"That's all handy, judge. I've got that much right here in my jeans."

"And one year in the penitentiary," continued the judge. Then, looking over at the convict in a quizzical sort of way, he added, "Do you happen to have that in your jeans?"

Queer Thing, Chance.

"I was at Monte Carlo last year," said a New York turfman, "and was amused watching the gamblers in the casino playing systems. If red would win, say, four times hand running everybody would double up on black. The more times one color showed in succession the bigger bets he laid on the other, which was mathematically an error, although you couldn't convince a number of them of it. Once while I was there red won 13 times, and over 40,000 francs were staked on black. One man played and had the nerve to put 60 francs on red. It won, and he let the bet lay, and it won again. Then everybody got a sudden idea the world was once more, and it was played to the limit. That stake of 60 francs broke."

"Did you ever hear about runs of color?" asked somebody.

"I did over there," replied the man who had been to Monte Carlo. "It is generally believed that when one color wins the odds are in favor of it winning twice more. There's no sense in it, but the records of the game do a good deal to confirm the superstition. Queer thing, chance."

Couldn't Chill His Wit.

Mme. Modjeska and her company were playing one winter in the extreme north, much to the discomfort of Count Bozenta, the Polish star's husband, who hates the chilly northern climate. But at that time the show business was at a very low ebb in the south. One particularly cold day Mme. Modjeska found the count shivering from head to foot in spite of the steam heat in the hotel.

"Oh, my dear, my dear!" he implored. "Let us go south for the rest of the season. This climate will kill us."

"But, my dear," replied madame, "the south is dead."

"Yes," said the count, "but she is such a be-autiful corpse."

Time to Wake.

Judge Wheaton A. Gray was hearing a criminal case in Fresno, and on a warm day, at the end of a long harangue by the prosecuting counsel, he noticed one of the jurymen asleep. As soon as the argument was completed, the judge directed the jury in this peculiar manner: "Gentlemen of the jury, the prosecuting attorney has concluded his argument. Wake up and listen to the instructions of the court."—Argonaut.

A New One or None.

Mrs. Proudfoot—Yes, Mrs. Malaprop, that's an heirloom. It's been in Mr. Proudfoot's family over 100 years.

Mrs. Malaprop—Do tell! I've been nagging at John Henry to get an heirloom ever since we moved, to the city, but he can't find any, except secondhand ones, and I won't have them.—Jewelers' Weekly.

The Chinese government does all in its power to check the opium habit, the punishments common in the Chinese army for this habit being extreme. For the first offense a man may have his upper lip cut; for the second he may be decapitated.

In regard to longevity the clergy stand at the head of the professions and physicians near the bottom, below coal merchants, milkmen and grocers.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., West side!

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

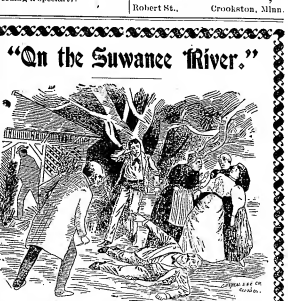
And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,

Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

"On the Suwanee River."



Grand Opera House for one Performance

Friday Eve., March 10,

Is in no sense of the word "a coon show," and has no connection with an attraction which was toured two years ago under a similiar title and which was composed almost entirely of colored people. The present play is a new comedy drama and was first produced in Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 17 last year and on Jan. 18, the Cleveland Plain Dealer said in its criticism of the attraction:

"The play is one of the cleanest and prettiest bits seen in Cleveland this season. It is strong in local coloring and the plot is interesting, well defined and devoid of coarseness. It is nicely staged and in the hands of a very compitent company.

The Prices all 25, 35, 50, 75 Cents

Seat sale opens to-day and from reports of those who have seen the show at Fargo and Grand Forks is should not be missed.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?

It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our

STERLING SEEDS

are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. Its mailed free on application. Our seeds are sold by leading merchants.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., SEED GROWERS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS 1872 Bonds of Grant and Wilson Small Arrears of Pensions obtained.

RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE ON LONG TIME AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE

E. M. WALSH,

Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Aug. Miller & Co., TANNERS.

FUR DRESSING AND DYEING A SPECIALTY.

We dress all kinds of Hides for coats, robes, harness and shoes. We spray good price for black cow, ox and colt hides suitable for coats and robes. We also take orders for coats and robes making, and cleaning and repairing of old furs.

FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED.

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT

WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE: Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CHARLTON LAMAR

AUTHOR OF

"FORT FRAYNE," "AN ARMY WIFE," "TRUMPETER FRED," "NOBLE BLOOD."

Copyright 1898 by T. Tennyson Neely.

CHAPTER XII.

Opportunities for theft in garrison are or were illimitable. People never thought of bolting their doors by day, and, as to money, silverware, jewelry and the like, women who possessed such property rarely placed it under lock and key. Once in a long while some servant was caught pocketing and was escorted beyond the limits of the military reservation and forbidden to return. But never before in the history of the army had the officers' quarters been entered by professional burglars, and there was no question that profes sionals only could have done the deed with the neatness and dispatch evident in this case.

Yet what was there to prevent it? The garrison proper was for shish. Once attempted company of infantry was all that was left to do duty at Russell. Only two sentries were posted on each relief. Seven prisoners constituted the daily guard, and even then the men were growling because they "only had three and sometimes two nights shed." One of these sentries was stationed at the guardhouse, where quite a number of prisoners were confined. The other paced the long east front of the post, trying to keep an eye on the cell gates, the ordnance, quartermaster's and commissary storehouses, the post generally, which he couldn't see, and the front gate. All the north side of the post back of the hospital and officers' quarters and all the northwest and southwest sides of the lozenge shaped inclosure lay open to marauders, for there were not two back gates 'along officers' row that would readily close or that being closed, could not steadily be forced. It was perfectly practicable for any parties intent on pillage to drive out from town and, looping well away over the level prairie, to make a wide circuit and approach the post from the north or northwest. They could then be beyond sight or hearing of any sentry, could run their wagons back of the quarters to be entered, load up with their booty and be off again with no fear of capture and little of interruption. Even should some of the women or children be aroused there were few houses on where mensevarie or "strikers" slept, and they knew, did these shrewd professionals, how to manage suddenly awakened women.

But how did they know just what houses to rob and just where to find the valuables in each case? The tracks showed that a two horse wagon had been used and that two men besides the driver were engaged in the work. Everybody in town was aware of the fact that the well to do or fairly wealthy officers at Russell were Colonel Atherton, Major Barry, Captains Greene, Gregg, Truscott and Ray, the latter having married an heiress. But the numerous never disturbed the sleep of honses. All the silver had gone to the bank in town and her ladyship to Chicago, and there, besides, Mrs. Atherton's coachman and two other servants slept, and, furthermore, the band quarters were but n short pistol shot away.

They steered clear of Truscott's, where Baby Jack was teething and keeping his anxious and devoted mother awake long hours each night and where by her bedside hung a ready little Smith & Wesson she knew well how to use. They steered clear of her devoted friends and next door neighbors, the Rays, for there slept a doughty ex-trooper, Hogan by name, now their coachman and man of all work, in his little arsenal of a room back of the kitchen. But they had dared to enter, through a rear window apparently, the quarters of Major Barry, where a night light burned dimly all through the hours of darkness, and had carried away the basket of household silver secreted under Mrs. Barry's bed and the jewelry from her toilet stand. They must have looked with covetous eyes on the beautiful rings that adorned her slender fingers, but thought best not to attempt that—or did they even dare make that essay? Mrs. Barry was aroused from unusually deep slumber by the sensation that some one had lifted her hand from the counterpane, found herself in darkness, her night lamp smoking as though recently extinguished, heard the hoarse creaking in the parlor or hall and had asked, "Is that you, Nathalie?" and receiving no response believed it all a nightmare and, wondering what made her so drowsy, had slept heavily until aroused by the servant in the morning with the startling announcement that the silver and her jewelry were gone. There Nathalie came rushing down the staire wids eyed and destbdy white, had glanced almost in horror at the empty basket which the cook had brought in from the back yard and had then thrown herself upon her knees at the foot of the bed and burst into an agony of tears.

And before visiting the Barrys' the professionals had called at Gregg's and Freeman's, carrying off a watch, some silver and many trinkets from each and never even disturbing the healthful slumbers of the occupants. Captain Gregg's loss was forced and about $100 in treasury notes had disappeared, but most of Mrs. Freeman's silver and money were safe in the bank. She never "entertained" when her lord was in the field, and this proved her salvation. But the gentle little woman was sorely grieved over the loss of her beautiful watch, which always lay at night on the little stand by the head of her bed. As for Mrs. Gregg, her grief was almost tragic. Two young ladies from town were her guests at the time. They were sleeping together in the room adjoining hers. Nothing of theirs was disturbed, while her watch, rings, brooches, locket, pins and heaven knows how much frumpery, together with every ounce of the household silver, had been spirited off. The foolish matron had not thought of such a possibility as this. She loved display, and even their recent reverses had taught no lesson of permanent value.

Hardly had Mrs. Barry been told of her loss when she was still in a half bewildered state, passing her hand over her every eyelids and striving to come herself from the stupor that seamed to overcome her—when there came a violent bang at the front door, and Mrs. Turner bounced into the hall. Catching sight of Nathalie at the foot of the bed, she plunged impetuously into the room. "Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Barry! Have you heard the news?" she cried. "Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Freeman have been robbed of every earthly thing they own. Why, what's the matter—you look sick! And Miss Baird? Oh, I'm so sorry! And you heard nothing—you suspect nobody?" And under cover of the volley of questions addressed to the lady of the house sang at the front door, and Mrs. Turner bounced into the hall. Catching sight of Nathalie at the foot of the bed, she plunged impetuously into the room. "Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Barry! Have you heard the news?" she cried. "Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Freeman have been robbed of every earthly thing they own. Why, what's the matter—you look sick! And Miss Baird? Oh, I'm so sorry! And you heard nothing—you suspect nobody?" And under cover of the volley of questions addressed to the lady of the house her self-invited visitor Nathalie stole. Even in the excitement and shock consequent upon the discovery of her own losses Mrs. Barry had noticed Nathalie's extreme agitation and her escape from the room. When, therefore, Mrs. Turner's questions ceased with eager curiosity and she began rapid queries as to the extent of Nathalie's loss Mrs. Barry the lady was quite prepared to parry. "Nathalie has only been able to leave her bed within the last couple days, Mrs. Turner. You know she's been wretched ly ill, and she is still so weak and nervous that Bridget's sudden and startling announcement shocked her greatly."

"Tho poor child!" cried Mrs. Turner. "Do let me go to her and see if I cannot do something for her."

"Never heed," answered Mrs. Barry. "I've found Nathalie always more rapidly recovers when left to herself. You can do something for me, though," she hurried on, anxious to silence further questioning and to rid herself of an importunate guest who was very much in the way. "Will you ask Captain Walters to come to see me this morning on regimental business, for me as soon as she can?"

"Why, of course, Mrs. Barry—anything you wish. But I haven't begun to tell you about the robbery yet. Just think of it! All that was left over by gone as well as all her lovely rings and things. It seems like a judgment on her for thinking so much of her jewelry. Mrs. Gregg has warned her n dozen times not to leave her valuables about. Don't you think so?"

"That it was a judgment on her, Mrs. Turner? Well, if upon her why not upon me?"

"Oh, but you didn't lose half what she did! Besides, you've very different. What did they take from you? Not those heavenly sapphires, I'm glad to see." And Mrs. Turner's pudgy hand was twisting in every direction in her eagerness to appraise the loss.

"No, not my rings, but a basket of silver that we valued for old times' sake and some loose trinkets of little account. I fear it's gone for good," said the kind hearted woman, with a sigh, "yet how much greater is Mrs. Gregg's loss! I'm so sorry for her!"

"Oh, so am I, and not a man here of our regiment to help in any way except Mr. Maynard, and he's half invalid yet and a mere boy!" Disparagement of Maynard in the form of faint praise drawn and followed speedily upon his defection. Finally, finding that Nathalie wouldn't come down so long as she remained and that Mrs. Barry would not unreasonably be to go up, Mrs. Turner hastened away in hopes of breaking the news elsewhere. She looked wistfully into Mrs. Gregg's open doorway as she hastened down the row and longed to enter and to ascertain what was really the extent of her loss and whether she had heard anybody and had any suspicions. One of the young lady visitors was at the window at the moment, chatting with Mr. Maynard, who, leaning on a stout cane and looking very white and solemn, had evidently just come out from a conference. To him Mrs. Turner bowed coquettishly and gave a forgiving glance at the girl, but the latter returned only an embarrassed nod and did not speak. Everybody knew that there'had been a dreadful row between the ladies within the week gone by. They had met at the Raymonds', where Mrs. Gregg flushed angrily at sight of her former friend and rival and refused the outstretched hand. Mrs. Turner had demanded, with a world of injured innocence in her tones, instant explanation of such unsisterly, not to say rude and unjustifiable, conduct, and nothing loath, Mrs. Gregg gave it to her. She had heard from excellent authority that Mrs. Turner had said and done what Mrs. Gregg was living most extravagantly and far beyond her husband's means; that all manner of trades men were bombarding her with bills, bills, bills, and nothing but Colonel Herbert's interposition had saved her husband, Captain Gregg, from being ordered before a court for nonpayment of debts that Mrs. Gregg had contracted.

Fanny Turner was promptly, properly and virtuously indignant in her denial of the story. Never had she said to a living soul what she was represented as having said. She had never presumed to criticise Mrs. Gregg. All she said was that she heard that Mrs. Gregg's means were greatly stretched since the failure of their bank, and she would be deeply grieved should she so inconsiderate as to send in their bills at such a time, even if they could only wait. Captain Gregg would see that they were all settled. Everybody knew he was as honest as he could be, and all she ever said about aunt court martial was that there had been cases where officers were brought to trial for not paying their bills, and she knew how dreadfully Mrs. Gregg would feel, etc. It was all very glib and plausible, and the moistened eyes and flushed cheeks of the fair speaker might have pleaded for her, too, but unluckily she and Mrs. Gregg had had their little day of devoted intimacy and unbounded confidence in the past. Mrs. Gregg knew how she could talk, had heard from one of her lady friends of Mrs. Turner's theories and statements regarding the receipted bills, and had been referred to others who also had heard, whereat, bristling with indignation, Mrs. Gregg investigated and dragged the truth to light. Under the scene of upbraiding, denials, recriminations and counter accusations that occurred at Mrs. Raymond's that afternoon let us draw a veil. All poor Turner's forebodings were amply justified. The ladies parted with the determination of never speaking to each other again, and, what really was serious, Mrs. Gregg wrote a long, long letter to her husband, setting forth all the hateful, abominable things Fanny Turner had said, and, just as Turner had predicted, another old comrade and friend with whom he had campaigned all over the country, marched and scouted, skirmished and starved, shared his last drop or crust or blanket many and many a time, was coldly avoided him, and Turner's sad, silent face grew more sad still as the two battalions came jogging homeward. There was no need to ask what was the matter, no use in trying to explain or condone. "It is all my fault," was the burden of his song. "I should have corrected that tendency years ago. It is too late now."

Accustomed as she was to spats of this character, however, Mrs. Turner still sorely missed the close companionship of some garrison friend and felt parents this electric day. Even Mrs. Raymond, slighted and snubbed for the new found friend, now refused to be quieted back to a semblance of the old relations. She was almost as icy as Mrs. Gregg had been volcanic. There was no longer for Mrs. Turner the rapture of the first bloom of her fellowship with Miss Maynard. That Mohawk maiden had failed to warmly champion her cause when she had fled to her in tears after the battle at the Raymonds' and told her side of the story. Mrs. Turner had sobbed out something to the effect that, being so much younger and less experienced than Mrs. Gregg, she had inconsistently confided certain statements to Mrs. Raymond and one or two ladies whom she supposed trustworthy, and they had betrayed her. Miss Maynard innocently remarked that she had always supposed Mrs. Turner was older than Mrs. Gregg, whereupon the flow of Mrs. Turner's tears and turned on a flood of rebuke, which Miss Maynard interrupted by saying, "You are surely as old as I am, Mrs. Turner; if not you must have been married before you were 12." Miss Maynard, it must be remembered, was herself engaged to be married in the spring, and could not be fooled on chronology.

"You are surely as old as I am, Mrs. Turner."

Take it altogether, Fanny Turner had no having least lines for which to weep. She was really glad to hear Miss Maynard was going home. There had sprung up a coolness, especially on the latter's part since as to their respective ages, but she even more to the consciousness that between her and Gregg very wrong things been done in that garrison, and each wished to lay the blame upon the other, even while conscience dinned "Thou art the woman" into her own unwilling ears.

In leading Nathalie Baird to believe that Maynard was virtually bound to Gertrude Rounse, Grace Maynard felt few qualms of conscience. She was a religious woman. She believed herself to be a model of truth and propriety and justice. She had persuaded herself that in course of time Ronald's eyes would be open to Gertrude's pure graces and domestic virtues and that then he would see his true love and propose marriage forthwith. She had always intended that they should marry, and, that being her intention, she had readily persuaded herself that it was also theirs, if not, it ought to be. Gertrude certainly would think it to the other man. Poor child, she had never seen anything of the world outside of her native county, and Ronald was by far the most delectable young man she ever dreamed of, but Ronald had seen many and many a girl far prettier and brighter, more attractive in every way than Gertrude, and his liking for her was due to that least complimentary of sentiments, where woman is concerned —old acquaintance's sake. This he had flatly told his sister when it was settled that she should return to the distant home and resume the care of their invalid father, and still her heart was set and determined. She had told Nathalie Baird in so many words that her brother was engaged to or in love with Gertrude Bonner, and she believed that in maintaining this statement and using every means in her power to bring that match about and wean her brother from the fascinations of this pink cheeked New England girl she was doing a praiseworthy and proper thing.

But, on the contrary, she was tormented by the thought that in speaking of Nathalie to her brother she had asserted that which she did not know and did not believe to be a fact—that the ruffianly stranger who had given them all so much trouble before finally vanishing was actually Nathalie Baird's lover. She strove to stifle the still, small voice by saying to herself that Mrs. Turner believed as she did, but Mrs. Turner did not believe it or think of it until Miss Maynard told her of the mysterious meetings on the prairie and the letters at the end of the year and Nathaly's clamorous call at reveille.

These had Mrs. Turner lost no time in peddling about the garrison, so that poor Nathalie, with her big, pleading eyes and pathetic, white face, was just beginning to move around again after her illness only to find herself shunned by more than the wounded Russells. She had almost determined to ask that Mrs. Stannard should advocate her being sent home when the happy event took place and drove her almost frantic with fear and grief and shame back to her room again.

There she was two days later kneeling by her little white bed, deaf to earthly sound, dumb with speechless misery, when Mrs. Stannard herself climbed the stairs and knelt and took her in her arms.

"Nathalie, child," she murmured, "you must not give way to such dread. I know whom you suspect of having had a hand in the robberies. Even if it were they can assess to do something."

"Mrs. Stannard — Mrs. Stannard," sobbed the girl as she threw herself upon her bosom, "what else can I believe? And to think that I should bring all this trouble and misery to those who have been so good to me!"

"Hush, Nathalie!" was the loving reply as the girl's sobbing checked for a afresh. "Mrs. Barry needs you sadly this morning. She knows the cause of your distress, and begs you to come to her. Let me help you dress now, and then you must go to sit something. Let me tell you. Hogan, Mrs. Ray's coachman, followed the trail into town and overheard a young man at the Railroad House last morning, and neither of them was one of the garrison."

But the girl seemed past comfort. Passively she allowed herself to be aided to dress, nothing her eyes upon it and doing what she could to banish the signs of her excessive grief. Humbly she yielded at last to the kind hands that latter lay upon the couch sipping her tea and nibbling at the dainty breakfast prepared for her by the solicitous occupation when Captain Walters, the infantry officer commanding the detachment of the fort, was announced, and was shown into the little parlor.

He was a man of about 40 years, grizzled, worn and somewhat scored in service. He had seen younger men plucking the plums of promotion over his head, and he could not forgive it in fate that he should still be only a captain. He was unmarried, and had a poor mauling for ten years longer, when most years his junior were his superiors in rank. His temper was fiery and, lez a dog's life of it. His wife was, happily for her, translated to the skies by a runaway coach not from the east nor from the west, nor is supposed to be a matter of concern to any one. Captain Walters had been aroused before sick call on the eventful morning by the whisper of the sentinel on post that he scandalized at such things occurring under his command. He had held brief communication with the noncommissioned officers of his guard, with the doctor and others, especially his adjutant, Mr. Maynard, and had then proceeded to make and footprints, had called on Mendanes and Hogan for their version of the story, statement, had questioned Mr. Maynard about the burly "tough" whom he had overheard in conversation with the latter, and had finally on the second morning after the robberies been closeted with Mrs. Barry and Nathalie. The evidence in that conversation can best be judged by what followed. Captain Walters stumped down the line, knocked at Mrs. Barry's door and disturbed that lamentant matron at breakfast, but begged a few words none the less. Then he strode back and asked for Miss Maynard at Stannard's door, and both Maynard and his sister came forth, and with considerable excitement the captain managed to say it was Miss Maynard with whom he desired a word in private. In a few white, scared faces which she confronted her brother when the brief interview was over, but wondering no question she hurriedly up the stairs.

Then the captain rang at Barry's and was shown into the pretty parlor where Mrs. Barry reclined, with Mrs Stannard and Miss Baird hovering about her, and here his embarrassment became something painful. He answered her polite greetings in most awkward fashion and refused the chair that was tendered him. At last he blurted forth what he had to say, and almost at his first words Mrs. Stannard threw her arm around Nathalie's waist and drew her tight to her side.

"Mrs. Barry, I have a most painful duty to perform, but I cannot shirk it. The police have positive proof of what they say, and they tell me that there is one person here at the post who not only can tell who the robbers are, but where they are, and that is—this unfortunate young lady—Miss—a—Miss Baird."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Humiliating Rival.

It is not a mooted question in Persia whether women dress for the eyes of men or those of women, as there only women see women, at parties. In her book, "Through Persia on a Sidesaddle," Miss Sykes, writing of the women of Teheran, the capital of Persia, confesses that even Mohammedan lechinar does not prevent women from being envious of other women, if they are dressed better than themselves. She writes:

I was told that many of the fine ladies would give large sums in the European shops of Teheran for any brocade of silk which struck their fancy and would wear it at the next party to which they were invited their friends, flaunting the new toilet ostentatiously before them to fire their jealousy.

Usually, however, one of the guests would buy her bolten out by buying some more of the same material and having it made up for one of her slave women. She then would invite a large company to tea, and the cups would be handed round by a negress adorned in the rich silks with which the former hostess is arrayed.

Later on the slave would dance before the guests. The great lady, who had been invited to be mortified, would be both disappointed and humiliated. The lady who had given the party would be pleased at vexing the rival.

Food in Siberia.

So hard is food frozen in Siberia during the winter that carcasses of sheep can only be divided by ax and saw. Fish caught through holes in the ice freeze while they jump Eggs are as hard as flints. I have carried them in a sack over my horse's back.

The rivers of Siberia abound with excellent fish, among these a beautiful kind of greyling and the incomparable sterlet quite the most delicious fish I know. While descending the Yenisei we caught a gigantic sturgeon, yielding many pools of coarse black caviare. A dainty delight even among Strasburg entlets, with wild cherry for flavoring, are delicious. Quails and dobchicks are also a sorts broil for second breakfast The bread I found dark, hard and sour, but sustaining. A great deal of vodka is drunk, but it is both peiless and nauseone on account of the fusel oil it contains. Kwass in summer time is refreshingly acid, and, drunk from a small oaken bowl, it is better than cider.

Tea is taken on occasion, but is very weak. Brick tea is detestable. The stamped bricks are used as money till they are worn and dirty. They are then made into a kind of broth. All sorts of abominations are flung into it. The Kibitzi have an insatiable appetite for brew "thick and slab," impossible to western palates.

Helen Irving's Tragic Death.

The tragic story of the beautiful and talented Scottish woman, Helen Irving, is not, perhaps, well known, although it has been acclaimed in song. She had been for some time courted by two gentlemen whose names were Bell and Fleming. Bell-tole the girl that if he ever found her in Fleeming's company he would kill him. She, however, had a strong regard for Fleeming, and one day, while walking along the romantic banks of the Kirtle, she observed his rival on the other side of the river among the bushes.

Conscious of the danger her lover was in, she passed between him and his enemy, who, firing, shot her dead. Fleeming crossed the river and killed the coward. A heap of stones was raised on the place where the brave woman fell, and she was buried in the ancient churchyard. Fleeming, overwhelmed with love and grief, went abroad, but returned and, stretching himself on her grave, expired. He was buried by her side.

A Lucky Hairdresser.

The old saying that a man may be a hero to every one but his valet is called to mind by an article by The Illustrated London News on "Famous Masters of the Tonsorial Art." in which stories are told of Dupins, the hairdresser to Napoleon. This astute man made himself so indispensable to the unfortunate Josephine and became so intimately acquainted with the emperor's affairs that he was retained in the service of the imperial family when Josephine was superseded by Marie Louise. He cared for the hair of both the emperor and empress, being paid 4,000 francs a year for service to the former and 6,000 for managing the coiffures of the latter. Ultimately he was the recipient of about 40,000 francs a year, his demands being limited only by the caprices of Napoleon's restriction in refusing to allow the tonsorial artist to treat the hair of any other customer.

Well dressed men and women wear

Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes

For Style, Comfort and wear they lead

Ask for them!

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often hatred of the Americans of Monday's to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can obtain patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in U. S. and foreign countries, sent free. Address,

E. G. SIGGERS & SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASH. D. C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.00 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,

361 Broadway, New York.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county.

RESULT OF THE WAR

CHAIRMAN CANNON EXPLAINS THE HEAVY EXPENDITURES

Authorized by the Recent Congress—Entire Appropriations Made Foot Up More Than a Billion and a Half—Mr. Dockery's Statement—Democratic Committeeman Declares the Extravagance Most Appalling—Should Have Been More Economical in Voting Regular Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The official statement of Representative Cannon of Illinois, the chairman of the house appropriations committee, summing up the appropriations for the Fifty-fifth congress, shows an aggregate appropriation by the entire congress of $1,560,-896,000 and for the session just closed a total of $673,058,400, with authority for contracts subject to future appropriations amounting to $76,000,000. Chairman Cannon says:

"The appropriations made at the session of congress just closed amount approximately to $673,058,400 and show an apparent reduction of $219,573,000 under the appropriations made at the preceding session. This is attributable to the large expenses that were provided for during the preceding session. The entire appropriations made by the Fifty-fifth congress aggregate $1,560,910,258. Of this $482,509,089.47 is directly chargeable to our late war or incident thereto. Deducting this sum from the whole amount of the appropriations the remainder, $1,081,397,632.81, represents the ordinary appropriations made by the Fifty-fifth congress.

Occasioned by the War With Spain

"The appropriations made by the preceding congress, the Fifty-fourth, amounted to $1,044,359,973.87. A comparison shows an increase in ordinary appropriations made by this congress over those made by that congress of $89,747,660."

Mr. Dockery's Comment.

Mr. Dockery, the ranking Democratic member of the house appropriations committee, in reviewing the work of the last congress, says:

"This congress easily surpasses all its predecessors in the stupendous aggregate of its appropriations. It was thought that the Fifty-first congress, commonly known as the 'billion dollar congress,' had, in point of extravagance of appropriations, touched a limit which would not be reached or, at least, surpassed by any of its successors.

"This congress, however, has far exceeded the appalling total of appropriations then made and it will be remembered that the 'billion dollar congress' was followed by overwhelming disaster to the Republican party at the ensuing election.

War Appropriations Cheerfully Made.

"Confronted with a war with Spain, requiring the expenditure of additional taxation, it is obvious that rigid economy should have been applied in all other directions to the expenditure of public money. The people were willing to meet all the demands upon the national treasury made necessary by the Spanish war, but it is fair to presume that they expected their representatives, in view of the cheerful disposition manifested to meet these added burdens, to limit the ordinary appropriations to the necessities of a wise and economical administration.

"These expectations have not been realized. The result is an actual deficiency in current revenues amounting on the first of this month to $89,510,-554.30."

All Appropriation Bills Passed.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Previous to the adjournment of congress shortly after noon on Saturday, all of the appropriation bills passed both houses and were signed by the president.

RAISED HIS NEW ENSIGN.

Ports and Vessels of Manila Salute Admiral Dewey.

MANILA, March 6.—4:30 p. m.—The United States cruiser Baltimore arrived here at 4 p. m. from Hong Kong, having on board the civil members of the United States Philippine commission.

Admiral George Dewey raised his flag as an admiral on board the Olympia and was saluted by the guns of the forts, of the foreign warships, the British cruiser Narcissus and the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta and by the American ships in port.

SPAIN'S NEW CABINET.

Polavieja Minister of War and Admiral Comara Minister of Marine.

MADRID, March 6.—The new cabinet has taken the oath of office. The ministry is composed as follows:

Senor Silvela, premier and minister of foreign affairs.

Senor Dato, minister of the interior.

Marquis Villa Verde, minister of finance.

Senor Duran, minister of justice.

General Polavieja, minister of war.

Marquis Pidal, minister of public affairs and of the colonies.

Admiral Camara, minister of marine.

It is expected that General Martinez de Campos will become president of the senate.

New Ministry Economical.

MADRID, March 6.—The cabinet council has decided to suppress the pensions of all former ministers. Senor Silvela, the new premier, says the government has begun at the top in setting an example of economy.

Little Hope for the Queen.

BRUSSELS, March 6.—Queen Marie Henriette, who has been suffering from bronchial-pneumonia, had a serious relapse at noon. Her physicians were in constant attendance throughout the afternoon and early in the evening the last sacrament was administered. At that hour there was no hope of recovery.

MORE AID FOR OTIS.

Six Regiments of Regulars to Reinforce Our Troops Now in the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The secretary of war has ordered the reinforcement of General Otis by six regiments. These are the Sixth infantry now at San Antonio, the Sixth artillery coasting along the Atlantic coast stations, the Ninth infantry at Madison Barracks, Thirteenth infantry in New York state, Twenty-first infantry at Plattsburg, N. Y., and the Sixteenth infantry at Fort Crook and neighboring points in the Middle West. These regiments have been ordered to make ready to proceed to San Francisco and thence to Manila.

In answer to the direct question as to whether or not these regular troops are intended to relieve a corresponding number of volunteer soldiers at Manila it was said at the war department that while this probably would be the case it was not possible yet to make a positive statement.

Depends on Existing Conditions.

This means that if when the reinforcements arrive at Manila the conditions are satisfactory, the volunteers will be brought home, but if Otis shall have need for all of the combined forces then they must wait.

The reinforcements are made up of troops who are not only regulars in the full sense of the term, but who have been through the Cuban or Porto Rican campaigns. They know what it is to be under fire, how to hunt Indians and also how to fight in tropical jungles. With them replacing the same number of volunteers General Otis will have a majority of regulars in his command, something the war department has earnestly desired to bring about as the earliest possible moment. The position of the American commander at Manila also will be safeguarded against the effect of a sudden and forced discharge of volunteers by the ratification of the peace treaty.

THE ENEMY ROUTED.

Male and Wheaton's Divisions Have a Two-Hour Engagement.

MANILA, March 8.—A detachment of General Hale's and General Wheaton's brigades was engaged for two hours during the morning clearing the country in front of their lines on both sides of the river, the enemy concentrating with the apparent purpose of cutting off the garrison at the waterworks. The rebels halted at the first sign of the advance, but they separated into small bodies whenever the covert afforded opportunities and kept up a running fire. By a series of rapid advances, followed by flank movements, the enemy was completely routed as far out as Guadalupe on the right of the waterworks dam on the left.

The casualties reported are Captain O'Brien of Company I, First Wyoming volunteers, and two men slightly wounded. The rebels loss has not been ascertained.

During the afternoon General Hale's brigade continued the work of driving out the rebels from the country between the reservoir and waterworks, a distance of about three miles. The country is now clear on the left of the river but the enemy is still in front of General Wheaton's line.

Filipino Sharpshooters Busy.

Near San Pedro Macati the enemy has been actively attempting to make the advance of the Sixth artillery on the hills untenable, their sharpshooters harassing every movement of the guns.

Private Lovejoy, Company C, Washington volunteers, was killed by a stray bullet.

During the morning the enemy in front of General Ovenshine's force sent out a flag of truce but retired when Lieutenant Koehler and two men advanced to meet it. In the afternoon they again showed a white flag and a general with two officers and an interpreter appeared. When the Americans were within about 200 yards of the rebel party the latter dragged rifles from behind their backs and opened fire upon them but fortunately without effect.

Hawthorne's battery fired two shells, killing several of the enemy.

At 5 p. m. the temperature was 84 degs. fahrenheit and the heat is intense, especially on the lines, where 25 men were temporarily prostrated during the day.

Josephine Kipling Dead.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Josephine Kipling, the six-year-old daughter of Rudyard Kipling, and the eldest of his three children, died shortly after 6 o'clock of pneumonia. The child's death took place at the home of Miss Jude De Forest in this city. Miss De Forest is a friend of the Kiplings and Josephine had been taken to her home so that she could be nursed apart from her father. The girl became ill the day after Mr. Kipling took to his bed.

Urgent Appeal for Food.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 6.—An urgent message for relief has been received from the Cheyenne and Northern train in the snow at Iron Mountain. The provisions are reduced to a few beans and a little coffee with 42 miles to go to be fed. They have been snowed in for six days and the conditions are desperate as the adjacent ranches are about out of provisions.

Notorious Allen Law Repealed.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 8.—Governor Tanner has signed the Alling street car bill. The Alling bill repeals the Allen law passed two years ago which provided for 50-year franchise extensions and re-enacts the old horse and dummy act with amendment making it applicable to electric and cable roads.

Atkinson Railway Bill Passes.

LANSING, Mich., March ....The Atkinson railway bill was passed the senate by a unanimous vote, one member being absent. The bill had passed the house, but had been amended in the senate in several particulars.

FIGHT IS IMMINENT

AMERICANS AROUND MANILA PREPARING FOR A CAMPAIGN.

Reinforcements Arriving on the Ohio and Senator Now Disembarking—Rebels on the Defensive—Anticipate an Early Attack and Are Now Hurriedly Throwing Up Defenses—Reported They Are Levying Men and Supplies in All the Provinces.

MANILA, March 7.—The troops which arrived on the transport Senator and those that arrived on the transport Ohio are disembarking and all the preparations are being made to proceed with an aggressive campaign before the wet season sets in.

The rebels, anticipating the American advance, are busy throwing up defenses in every direction and it is reported that they are levying men and supplies in every province. As a result great dissatisfaction prevails among tribes ordinarily friendly to the Tagals, particularly among the Bocanos, who assert their desire to take a conquering the Tagals if furnished with arms.

EXPECT IMPORTANT NEWS.

Said at Washington General Otis Will Soon Cross the Jungles.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—There is some reason to expect important news from Manila within the next fortnight. It has been reported that General Otis has practically completed his plans for a grand onslaught on the insurgents which is expected to deprive them of offensive power at least. It is probable that he will form a large part of his force into columns, as soon as reinforcements are all at hand, and will push these in parallel lines straight through the jungles, clearing out the insurgents and thus supplying sharpshooting of the Filipinos, and are so anxious to put a stop to this that General Otis has yielded to their desire.

Forces in the Philippines.

Forty-one thousand officers and men of the combined army and navy forces comprise the aggregate of our total American strength now at, en route and under orders for service at the Philippines. No further reinforcements are under contemplation. The forces of the two services already stationed in and about the archipelago consists of 30 regiments of infantry, 1 engineer battalion, 7 troops of cavalry and 11 batteries of artillery, an aggregate of about 15,000 police. Nineteen vessels with an aggregate of 207 officers, 2,000 men and 353 marines make up the naval armament. This is exclusive of the transport Solace with 105 officers and men all told, which is constantly passing back and forth from Manila. There are about 4,300 army reinforcements on the way to Manila, making as rapid progress as possible and there are, roughly 7,000 men in the force under orders to proceed to the Philippines.

KILLED 30 INSURGENTS.

Filipino Engage in a Brush With American Gunboats.

MANILA, March 7.—The rebels have been concentrating in the vicinity of the reservoir. Last night a boat's patrol of Company G, Second Oregon volunteers, was taken in ambush. Two men were wounded, but the Oregonians kept their ground until a heavy fire from the remainder of the company, assisted by two companies of the Fifty-first Iowa regiment flanked the enemy, killing 20 and wounding several more. Two battalions of the Twentieth regular infantry have reinforced General Hale's brigade.

All the native huts have been destroyed at Mariquina, and the country there is pretty well cleared, many of the rebels were returning in small bodies at sundown.

Apparently they have secured a new supply of smokeless ammunition recently as there has been a noticeable difference during the last few days.

AGREEABLY RECEIVED.

Arrival of Troops at the Island of Negros Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—A cablegram from General Otis at Manila, received in Washington during the day, indicates the satisfactory and agreeable reception accorded to the American troops which recently landed at the island of Negros. General Otis' dispatch is as follows:

"Following from Iloilo, 4th inst.: Governmental, congress and inhabitants of Negros to General Miller, U. S. A. We affectionately salute you and congratulate ourselves for the happy arrival of Colonel Smith and troops under his orders and beg you to send this salute and congratulations to General Otis, Manila, as representative of the government of the United States in the Philippines."

HAVE NO PRISONERS.

General Otis Doubts a Story of the Hong Kong Junta.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The following dispatch has been received by Secretary of War Alger from General Otis in answer to Secretary Alger's inquiry respecting the number of American prisoners held by the insurgents:

"Manila, March 8—Secretary of War, Washington: Insurgents have not taken nor do they hold a single prisoner of war. They have three soldiers in Mololoc, picked up in January, who with my own permission went among them near Cavite and Caloocan. I am looking after them and providing money. Have captured over 1,500 insurgent soldiers since Feb. 4, and hold the majority as prisoners of war. Detrimental report which reach the United States manufactured mostly in Hong Kong. Troops here in splendid condition."

BLAMES THE BEEF FOR IT.

Officer Testifies Regarding Sickness in the Ninth Infantry.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The war department court of inquiry held a very brief session, the last before their start for the West, where they will inspect the packing plants of Chicago, Omaha and Kansas City. There was but one witness examined, Lieutenant Frederick L. Munson, Ninth infantry. He said that during his service in Cuba, up to the surrender of Santiago, his command had rations of bacon and canned roast beef, in the proportion of about 10 days of the former to 15 days of the latter. Until the surrender he received no complaints of the canned roast beef, but after the surrender his commissary sergeant reported to him that something was making the men very sick. They did not know what it was, but there was something they had eaten. After eliminating every other factor they could think of, they concluded it must be the canned roast beef. He ordered the cooks to try fixing up the meat in stews with hard tack and to-matoes, but it seemed to make no difference. The men continued sick. The men then discontinued the use of the beef. On the voyage home they still had canned roast beef, but the men did not eat. He tried to turn it in to the commissary at Montauk but the commissary would not receive it.

REQUEST WAS REFUSED.

China Had Declared She Could Not Comply With Italy's Demand.

PEKIN, March 6.—The Chinese foreign office has returned to the Italian charge d'affaires, Marquis Salvio Ragoglo, his dispatch containing the demand of the Italian government for a lease of San Mun bay on the same conditions under which Germany holds Kiou Chau bay, accompanying it with a letter declaring that the Chinese government is unable to grant the request.

Rome, March 6.—Little attention is paid here to the refusal of the Chinese government to grant the requested lease of San Mun bay to be used as a naval base and coaling station. No doubt is entertained that the concession will be made after longer negotiations.

LONDON, March 6.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

The Italian warships have landed marines at San Mun bay, thus virtually taking possession.

Italy will pay nearly £80,000 for the concession. The tsung li yamen wishes to reduce the lease to 50 years.

SAVED BY COLD WEATHER.

Danger of a Dig Flood in the Ohio Valley Is Lessened.

CINCINNATI, March 6.—The end of the big flood here is in sight, thanks to the cold weather prevailing throughout the Ohio valley. At 9 o'clock the river was 50 feet, 8 inches, and rising at the rate of 1-4 inches hourly. At 12 o'clock above Marietta the river is falling. Between Marietta and Point Pleasant it is rising. Portsmouth the Cincinnati, Portsmouth and Virginia railway trains have been stopped by floods on the track and washouts. Suffering by the flood driven from their homes in that city continues. Several small dwellings in the water-soaked districts on East Front street have been lifted off their foundations by the winds.

Trained Show Dogs.

"Considering the investment, training and time there are one of the most profitable attractions in the vaudeville line," said an old time showman, here with one of the finest dog companies running. "I suppose there are at least 13 or 15 troupes of them scattered over the country," he continued, "and the good ones easily average a couple of hundred a week and expenses. As there are no salaries to pay for the actors and no bills for anybody except the proprietor and the keeper the returns are rather handsome. Nevertheless they have the nuisiness down to such a fine point that the sudden death of any of the animals can be readily remedied by telegraphing to New York, where several men make a specialty of keeping standard trick dogs in stock.

"A dog troupe usually consists of five performers, one of which is a cat. The star probably costs $150 and the others about $50 apiece. Mongrels of every description are generally selected for training purposes, because they learn as quickly as the thoroughbreds and if anything happens to them the loss is so much lighter. There is a standard series of tricks which they are taught to do, so that one can easily replace another, and a little ingenuity on the part of the showman supplies the variety to the programme."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ancient Chains.

In an interesting article on the subject of chains an English writer refers to the fact that notwithstanding the frequent mention of chain in the Bible the article is comparatively rare. The same author says:

"Some authorities give the Britons credit for originating the cable chain because Julius Cesar is recorded as having been unable to cut the cables of the Gaul's vessels, 'as they were made of iron.' This may have been a chain in the present acceptation of the term, but it is doubtful, because the first patent for chainmaking was obtained in England in 1634 by a blacksmith named Philip White. The patent was for 14 years, and in consideration of it White had to pay £5 in lawful money yearly 'at the Exchequer, Westminster, at the Feast of the Blessed Virgin and Saint Michael the Archangell by even and equal process.'

"His patent is described as follows 'A way for the wearing of shipps with iron chaynes by finding out the true leathe proporsening and tempering of Tyron for that (par)pose and that he hathe now attayned to the true vse of the said chaynes and that the same wilbe for the great saveing of cordage and safety of shippers and will redound to good of our Comon Wealth.'"

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. EDSTROM, President. WM. ANSLIN, Vice-President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
George B. Erstdne, A. A. Miller, Wm. Anslin, J. R. Robinson, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine, J. P. Foote, W. E. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $18,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON, ... PRESIDENT. H. STEENERSON, ... VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS, ... 2d VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON, ... CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 36 inch Minneapolis separator, two sets Howe's 60 tooth harrowing seeders, one Kinnese city hay press, ten harvesters and sell binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, each piece being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap to responsible purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FARM LOANS

NO DELAY. NO BOSS.

DO YOU Want to Renew, Want a new loan?

Without Delay?

Call at the First National Bank of Crookston and see

J. W. WHEELER.

CHRISTIANSON & STRANDER,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice Farm Lands for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchaser.

Office o Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

Cleveland Hotel,

Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor

Main and North Sts,

Office, City

This popular hotel is again re-opened to the public under a new management. The new proprietor will spare no pains nor expense in the effort to make it a first class hotel for the comfort of his guests. His effort will be to keep up the reputation the house has long enjoyed and invites the farmers to still consider the Cleveland their home when in the city.

PRINTING

Of Every Description done at the Lowest Prices.

Tribune Office. Styles at

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Historical Society
STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MARCH 16, 1899 NO 49

MARCH MEETING.

Of County Commissioners-Carman School District Divided.

COLUMBIA FALLS A BRIDGE.

Numerous Petitions for Abatement of Taxes Considered.

AUDITOR'S OFFICE,
Crookston, March 9, 1899.

Pursuant to call the board of county commissioners of Polk county met in special session at the auditor's office, March 9, 1899, with the following members present: Reml Portter, chairman, Hugh Thompson, G. W. Eastman, K. O. Bratvold and Charles McCarty.

A hearing was had on the petition of John Nevills, et. al, for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 and n½ of sections 16, 17 and 18, town 151, range 48, and on motion the prayer of the petitioners was rejected.

A hearing was had on the petition of Jorgen Gunderson asking to be set off with his land, lots 2, 3 and 6, section 21, town 150, range 48, from school district No. 13 and attached to and made a part of school district No. 161, and on motion the prayer of the petitioner was rejected.

The application of the Monarch Elevator Co., for correction of assessment on flat house in town of Tilden for the year 1898 was on motion granted, and said assessment having been shown erroneous, was on motion reduced in amount of $50.00 and the county auditor instructed to correct the assessment and issue a refunding order accordingly.

The application of H. B. Laughlin for reduction of assessment on goods and merchandise in village of Fisher for year 1898, was on motion granted and said assessment was reduced $910.00, and the county auditor was on motion instructed to issue a refunding order proportional with said reduction.

In compliance with request of P. J. Carey a rehearing was granted upon the petition of Peter McKinnon, et al, rejected at a former meeting, asking for formation of a school district to be composed of sections 24, 25, 36, 23 26, 35, and e½ of section 22, all of sections 27 and 34 in the town of Reis said rehearing to be held at auditor's office in City of Crookston on 19th of April 1899, at 2 p. m.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the bridge committee is hereby instructed and authorized to examine Broadway bridge in the City of Crookston and if found complete according to contract to instruct county auditor to issue his warrant to treasurer of City of Crookston for balance due said city, said amount being $2,250

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the county auditor be and he is hereby instructed to issue his warrant to Max Polle for $65.00 for service rendered as engineer on Broadway bridge in the City of Crookston, and he is also instructed to issue his warrant in favor of the City of Crookston for $35.00 the balance due said city for expense of engineering on said Broadway bridge.

The petition of Ingebert Larson, et al, for the survey and establishment of property line in township 147, range 41, was on motion laid over until next meeting of the county board on April 10, 1899.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the assessed valuation against Mrs. J. C. Mathews in the City of Crookston for the year 1895, be and the same is hereby reduced as follows: On piano, $50.00, on household goods, $80.00, item 27, 925, item 31, $5, total $170.00 and the county auditor is instructed to correct the tax list accordingly such adjustment having been recommended by the board of equalization of the City of Crookston.

Applications for auctioneer's license were presented by R. E. English, I. B. Welter and M. A. Walsh, each accompanied by the necessary bond approved by county treasurer, together with the fee of $10.00. On motion the applications were granted and the county auditor was instructed to issue the required license.

A petition was presented by A. A. Weekly, et al, asking for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 13, 24, 25, and lot 1, section 25, township 151, range 50 and section 30 in township 151, range 49, and on motion a hearing was granted on said petition for next meeting of the county board, April 19, 1899 at 2 o'clock p. m.

A certificate of the conviction of Gerhard Dedrickson for the sale of intoxicating liquors without a license was submitted by the clerk of court and the same ordered placed on file.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That hereafter all justice court bills shall state the names of the justice before whom the case was tried and the offenses with which the defendant was charged, and the bill shall be approved by the justice before whom the case was tried.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner McCarty was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the county auditor is hereby instructed to accept $43.60 in full payment of taxes on lots 11 and 12, block 20, City of Thief River Falls for the years 1893 to 1896 inclusive.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the county auditor be and he is hereby instructed to issue his warrant to James McIlraith for $39.25 being balance due him for building bridge in township of Sullivan.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the assessment of goods and merchandise of Ihlenbart and Argall in town of Columbia for the year 1898, be and the same is hereby reduced $175.00 to correct an erroneous assessment, and the county auditor is instructed to issue a refunding order proportionate with said reduction.

A petition was presented by T. A. Wood, et al, asking for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 35 and 36 and the n½ and se¼ of section 27 and the e½ of section 34, all in township 152, range 49, and on motion a hearing was granted upon said petition for the next meeting of the county board April 19, 1899.

On motion board adjourned until 9 o'clock a. m., March 11.

March 11, 1899 board reconvened pursuant to adjournment with Commissioners Porter, Eastman and Bratvold present.

The application of A. Kaiser for correction of his assessment in village of Fosston for 1898, under item 22, was on motion referred back for correction.

Applications for appropriations from the road and bridge fund were presented by the towns of Russia, Winger, Grove Park and unorganized town 153, range 46, and on motion action thereon was deferred until next meeting of the county board.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Eastman, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the action taken by this board at a former meeting adjusting the taxes on blocks 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Ives addition to the City of Crookston be and the same is hereby renewed, provided that payment of taxes is made immediately.

The application of Mrs. O. A. Stoygen for exemption of $100.00 on personal property assessed to her in town of Sletten, for the year 1898, was on motion rejected.

The petition of the supervisors of the town of Columbia, for an appropriation from the road and bridge fund was on motion, granted, and $100.00 was appropriated to said town to be expended in aid of the construction of a pile bridge in said town.

The application of C. C. Strander, O. O. Christianson, and Christianson & Strander for the cancellation of assessments on certain real estate mortgages in the City of Crookston for the year 1898, were on motion granted, it having been shown by affidavit that said mortgages had been sold or assigned prior to May, 1, 1898.

The application of A. C. Cowing for cancellation of assessment on personal property in City of Crookston for year 1898, was on motion referred to the city council for recommendation.

The application of Knute Juleon for the cancellation of assessment on a real estate mortgage in town of Winger for year 1898, was on motion referred back for further information.

The application of James B. Holmes through his attorney, John A. Young, for abatement of taxes on certain lots in railroad add to Red Lake Falls was on motion rejected.

The application of John E. Oppegaard for correction of assessment and abatement of personal property taxes in town of Knute for the year 1898, was on motion granted, it having been shown that said assessment was for a real estate mortgage listed as its face value. Said assessment was reduced from $230 to $126, and the county auditor was instructed to issue a refunding order accordingly.

The application of A. M. Sivertson for the cancellation of assessment on a real estate mortgage in the City of Crookston for the year 1898, it having been shown by affidavit that said mortgage had been satisfied in full prior to May, 1, 1898.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, That the county auditor be and he is hereby instructed to cancel all assessments for real estate mortgages owned by non-residents and listed by said auditor for taxation in 1898, as we find from an examination of the law, supplemented by the opinion of the county attorney that the taxes extended upon said assessments are uncollectible.

The application of A. K. Austin for correction of assessment on certain real estate mortgages in the City of Crookston for the year 1898, was on motion granted and said assessments were reduced from $869 to $250 and the county auditor was instructed to correct the tax list accordingly it having been shown by affidavit that a portion of said mortgages had been paid prior to May 1, 1898.

The proposal of Jacob Andrist for the purchase of certain lots in the original townsite of the City of Crookston, under application for an absolute deed, was on motion laid over until next meeting of the county board.

The application of Mrs. Christine Erdman for correction of assessment and abatement of taxes on lots, 7, 8, 9 and 10, block 9, Jerome's addition to City of Crookston, for the year 1898, was on motion granted and said assessment was reduced from $300 to $150 and the county auditor was instructed to correct the tax list in accordance with said reduction.

The proposal of Leonard Peterson for purchase of lot 13, block 10, Sampson's Woodland addition to City of Crookston, under application for absolute deed, was on motion rejected.

The application of Ole J. Vaule for the cancellation of assessment on a real estate mortgage in the City of Crookston for the year 1898, was on motion granted, it having been shown by affidavit that at the time of assessment his indebtedness exceeded the amount of said mortgage.

The application of C. E. Sawyer for the cancellation of assessment on certain real estate mortgages in the City of Crookston for 1898, was on motion referred back for correction.

The applications of C. H. Saake, M. Cornelius, Lena Sohler and E. J. Erickson, for correction of assessment and abatement of taxes, were on motion laid over until the next meeting of the county board.

The following bills were audited and allowed:

Crookston Telephone Co., rent of telephone, ...	3.00
C. Strander, services as juror, ...	2.50
" " " " petit
" " " " teachers' meeting, ...	1.50
Carroll Cook, juror, ...	2.50
Metcalf, Warner & Co., blanks, ...	3.05
Thomas A. Austin, Northcastle to jail, ...	19.00
Pioneer Press Co., merchandise to jail, ...	2.00
Pioneer Press Co., merchandise to jail, ...	21.00
C. C. Knappen, Sundry printing, two jobs, ...	4.50
C. T. Lamman, sundry printing, two bills, ...	233.75
Jos. Duffy, sundry printing, ...	233.15
W. E. McKenzie, sundry printing, ...	301.00
Jos. Duffy, sundry printing and mdse, 3 bills, ...	217.70
Pioneer Press Pub. Co., books and blanks 2 jobs, ...	152.31
G. H. Hart blanks, ...	5.00
W. W. Thomas, volunteers at county jail, ...	5.00
Crookston Plumbing Co., repairs in county jail, ...	14.60
Geo. Lawrence, sheriff fees, ...	10.00
Geo. Lawrence, boarding prisoners, ...	160.10
Jennie Lawrence, matron in county jail, ...	30.00
T. R. Brownlee, services as special deputy, ...	5.00
Ernst Wickstrom, hauling wood, ...	10.35
Crookston Telephone Co., rent of telephone, ...	3.00
Geo. Hoskenstad, merchandise to prisoners, ...	4.50
Geo. Hopkins, work in office of clerk of court, ...	96.83
A. Chabot, merchandise to jail, 3 bills, ...	27.87
Lewis A. Larson, inspecting boiler, ...	10.00
Crookston Lumber Co., lumber, ...	10.99
Geo. Hopkins, work in office of clerk of court, ...	12.00
Geo. Hopkins, insurance, ...	12.00
S. B. Dwyer, postage, two bills, ...	13.00
E. E. Lemmen "	26.42
Geo. Hopkins "	2.00
I. I. Kinzo "	11.42
John Gleason "	16.00
M. D. Pearson, postage and express, ...	22.12
Wm. Kelly, work on jail, ...	32.00
Geo. Hopkins, work on old records in probate office, ...	60.00
Crookston Telephone service Co., Com.	11.00
Chas. McCarty "	20.00
Reml Porter "	11.00
K. O. Bratvold "	25.00
G. W. Eastman "	20.00
John Hedman, justice fees, four bills	10.50
W. E. Hall " "	10.00
W. W. Hunt " "	11.00
Louis Gonyea, constable " three bills	29.35
G. E. Pratt "	4.35
R. S. West "	5.45
W. G. Hall "	6.75
Knute I. Bergen "	7.00
Thos. Stromquist, constable fees	1.00
C. E. Pratt "	7.00
G. E. Pratt "	8.15
C. E. Hinkley, jury fees	2.50
H. S. King "	1.15
P. B. Hall "	1.15
Andrew Narveson "	1.15
Chr. Erickson "	1.15
Leonard Youngren "	1.15
C. E. Hall "	1.15
Frank Wagner "	1.15
M. A. Converse "	1.15
C. E. Hall "	1.15
Chas. Stromquist "	1.15
M. Arnsbarg "	1.15

The following bills were laid over: J. J. Vastvick, Joseph Vorlicky, John A. Rothsten, D. G. Scobey, T. H. Aalsbers and A. R. Butler.

Following bills were referred back for correction: Village of Fisher, A. B. Johnson and Ada J. Nichols.

The bill of S. H. Johnson was disallowed.

On Motion board adjourned sine die.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Passed by the Crookston W. C. T. U. in Memory of Mrs. Houlgate.

At the regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. of Crookston, of which Mrs. J. E. Houlgate was formerly a member, the following resolutions of love and respect were made:

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from us by death our sister, Mrs. J. E. Houlgate, and whereas the society of the W. C. T. U. deeply mourn the loss sustained by the removal of our sister, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow in submission to him who doth all things well, we cannot but feel that the cause of temperance, and the cause of Christ has lost one of its ardent supporters, and most consecrated workers.

Resolved, That as a Unionwe desire to bear testimony to the faithful, cheerful and willing manner, in which our departed sister performed all duties devolving upon her, and we commend to her all wise providence in the sorrow stricken husband, father, mother, sister and friends who are so suddenly bereft of one so loved and respected.

Resolved, That we will devote ourselves anew to the work of our Union in which she took such an active part and that we may more fully realize that we have only one life, one, only one, eternity ever more.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the records of the Union, and furnished for publication in our local papers and that a copy be presented to the husband and relatives of the deceased.

Resolved, That we tenderness be revaed husband and relatives our heartfelt sympathy in their sad affliction.

MRS. OLDS.
Committee { MRS. HARRIS.
MRS. WALKER.

THOSE PENALTIES AND INTEREST

For Years 1888, 1890, 1893 and 1898 Amount is Found To Be $3,029.55.

The clerks in the county auditor's office have been for several days going over the county records with a view to finding out about how much the county owes the city in the matter of penalties and interest on delinquent city taxes. For the years 1888, 1890, 1893 and 1898 the amounts are respectively as follows: $336.70, $762.90, $542.00 and $2947.15, making a total for those four years of $3,029.55. Taking this as a ratio the grand total would be a little over $14,000. The penalty on the current tax for two of these years was not found, the amounts that the county has refunded were not detected, neither were the advertising clerk's fees on sales declared. These, however, will not reduce the total amount very much. In the years 1895, 1896 and 1897 it is not likely that much was paid in penalties and interest. The amount received in 1898 was unusually large, in fact the county received more money in taxes that year than in any other year in the history of the county. During 1893 and 1894 there was great financial depression, hence the delinquent tax list was large and in 1898 these delinquent taxes were paid.

Wishes to Remain in Polk County.

Tollaf J. Farden, one of the prominent and enterprising farmers out at Mentor was a caller at the JOURNAL office on Tuesday. Mr. Farden has been a sufferer from rheumatism for years, and he says that he has received more relief through Dr. Olson & Sadtler than he has ever received before.

He has just bought from Miller & Foote eighty acres of land, in the town of Grove Park for his youngest son. This eighty is situated within half a mile of the parental home. Mr. Farden is going to move his farm buildings, which are now in the town of Grove Park, into the town of Tilden, as he wishes to remain in Polk county in case the county ever chances to be divided, and he thinks if it is that the dividing line will be between Tilden and Grove Park.

Farm Wanted.

Send full particulars, price, etc., at once. A. H. RUSSELL,
Akron, Ohio
[47-tf]

MANSLAUGHTER.

George Bates, of Pembina, N. D., Killed in a Drunken Row in a Saloon in St. Vincent.

SALOONKEEPER SMITH INDICTED

By Hallock Grand Jury—Trial On March 29—Both Men Leave Wives and Families.

The result of a drunken brawl in a saloon at St. Vincent about midnight last Wednesday is that George Bates is dead, John Smith, the saloonkeeper, has been indicted for manslaughter in the second degree and the wives of the two men are frantic with grief.

On Wednesday, the 8th inst., Bates, who was a poor hotelkeeper and at the time of his death engaged in selling clothing for a large wholesale house, went over from his home in Pembina, N. D., to St. Vincent. Minn. He drank a good deal during the day and when John Smith, at whose establishment he had spent most of the day, wished to close up Bates did not wish to go. Smith used force and put Bates out. Bates smashed in the door. Smith then went outside and a contest took place between him and Bates. The others who were in the saloon seem to have disappeared about this time for no one seems to know just what took place between Smith and Bates. It appears, however, that at the summons of Bates a liveryman and another person came with a buggy and brought Bates home and put him in his house. They then went out and told Marshal Moorhead what they had done and he went up to see Bates. He found him seemingly sleeping off a drunk and left without notifying any of the family. When Mrs. Bates came down in the morning she found her husband lying on the floor dead. He had a hole in his skull near the right temple, and his whole face was much bruised. Bates' collar and a part of his shirt were found the next morning in front of Smith's saloon. Smith denied all knowledge of the matter but he is badly swollen head and he could not satisfactorily explain how he got it.

The saloonkeeper was arrested and brought before the grand jury in Kittson County. The grand jury returned an indictment against him for manslaughter in the second degree and his trial is set for the 29th of March. Bail was fixed at $3,000, which was secured, so that Mr. Smith is not now in prison. His lvor Stefansonian has been retained as attorney for the defendant.

Band Concert.

The next band and orchestra concert which is set for Tuesday evening March 21, promises to be a hummer. Besides some excellent band and orchestra music, the audience will be favored with a song by Mr. W. H. Walker, and one of Pinsuits cheerful songs entitled "Pretty Primrose" sung by the ladies' chorus of forty voices. The mandolin-guitar club will also add very much to the interest of the program and Mr. Riggs will render one of his choice cornet solos.

Councilmen Visit "Gym."

On Thursday evening last after the special meeting of the council was over the aldermen in a body went down to the gymnasium to see how matters were progressing there. The members of the "gym" were all through exercising but Fred LaSore gave a special exhibition of Indian club swinging and work on the rings. There were also several sparring matches of which the city fathers were interested spectators. They expressed themselves as well pleased with the work that has been done under the directorship of Mr. LaSore.

A Trunkless Head.

The result of the coroners' inquest over the body of George Bates murdered at St. Vincent was rather grewsome. The murdered man having been found in Pembina, N. D., the coroner of Pembina county claimed jurisdiction. The murder having been committed in St. Vincent, the Kittson county coroner said that he should make the examination. The outcome was that the head was taken to St. Vincent and the body left at Pembina. The head was afterwards boiled in a vat of hot water in which chemicals had been put and thus the flesh was removed from the skull the latter being preserved as evidence at the coming trial.

STATE LEGISLATURE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8.

Grondahl bill providing for the county system for care of insane was defeated in the house by an overwhelming vote. It had been anticipated the measure would be defeated, but the vote—15 ayes to 91 nays—was a surprise.

The Staples bill was made a special order for Wednesday. Bills were passed:

Fixing the salary of the supreme court reporter at $3,000 per annum; appropriating $30,000 annually for support of the soldiers' home; providing for the establishment of a board of inspectors to inspect steam vessels.

After a row of considerable proportions over a proposition to investigate reports of fees received by Supreme Court Clerk Reese, the senate adopted an amended resolution which provide that a committee of three be appointed by the president of the senate to investigate the reports of the clerk of the supreme court, the surveyor general of logs and lumber, oil inspectors, boiler inspectors and the governor's private secretary, with a view to their verification, and to report back within 10 days.

The Bate bill repealing sugar beet bounty laws was passed and then two sugar beet bounty bills were killed.

THURSDAY, MARCH 9.

The bill appropriating $80,000 to pay state volunteers at the rate provided by the military code for the time spent between mobilization and mustering in was recommended to pass in the house after a long debate.

At the afternoon session H. F. 550, which was made a special order, was discussed and the 29 sections of the bill agreed to. The bill relates to the encouragement of the public schools by the state, and carries with it and annual appropriation of $182,000, divided as follows:

Owing to the absence of the members of the committee on hospitals for the insane, who are visiting the hospitals at Rochester and St. Peter, the senate did not attempt to take up the calendar but passed over to general orders.

Senator McCarthy's bill, requiring that lumbermen shall be paid in cash instead of time checks was recommended to pass.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10.

The house defeated a motion to adjourn over until Tuesday. There were 80 bills on general orders and 41 of them were considered, 14 being recommended for passage.

The bill providing for the publishing and printing of 10,000 additional copies of the legislative manual this year and 20,000 biennially thereafter was recommended to pass, also the bill changing the law so that children only between the ages of 6 and 21 years can attend school.

The senate session was slimly attended and little interest was shown in proceedings. Senator Stockwell's bill providing that each county having patients in any of the state hospitals for the insane must pay $1.50 per week per capita for such patients was discussed at length and indefinitely postponed.

The Torson house bill, allowing towns and cities to purchase land and erect election booths thereon, was passed under suspension of rules.

SATURDAY, MARCH 11.

The house rejected the proposition contained in Mr. Staples' H. F. 261, the "anti-jinkering" bill, creating a legislative committee of five members to conduct an investigation during the recess into the conduct of the correctional and charitable institutions of this and other states, with a view to possible legislation in the direction of a state board of control and to do away with the visits of committees during the legislative session. The debate was perhaps the most acrimonious of the session. Fifteen bills of minor importance were passed.

MONDAY, MARCH 13.

The house was but slimly attended, but 72 members answering roll call. Several minor measures were passed at the morning session.

At the afternoon session there was a long debate on H. F. 707. The bill as introduced amended the law granting a bounty for the arrest and conviction of horse thieves by making the reward $30 instead of $200. The judiciary committee, to which it was referred, inserted the words bicycle or bicycles and then recommended it for passage.

In committee of the whole it was amended to read for $50 for horse thieves and $25 bicycle thieves and recommended for passage.

H. F. 834, allowing boards of county commissioners to grant licenses for saloons within 900 feet of a schoolhouse, was indefinitely postponed.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14.

The house put in an unusually busy day and disposed of a large amount of business. Among the measures passed was H. F. 421, the O'Neill anti-hog-cotting bill. The bill as passed absolutely prohibits the practice of the hogvott in any of its forms.

The bill providing for a bounty for bicycle thieves was defeated.

Elevator men and farmers had a hard fight in the senate during the afternoon consuming three hours over the bill introduced by Senator Grindeland and Representative Marshall compelling commission dealers in farm produce of any kind, whether grain, garden truck, eggs or honey, to give a bond to the state and secure licenses from the state.

The senate put in the most of the morning session on the calendar and passed a large number of bills, among them the following:

Requiring manufacturers to label process butter as such.

Increasing the number of state boiler inspection districts from five to seven.

Requiring graduates of law schools to serve a year's apprenticeship in law offices before they gain admission to the bar.

Scared Into Appendicitis.

"I had appendicitis the other day," said a St. Charles street business man; "that is to say, I had it to all intents and purposes. This is the way I contracted it: About a week ago I borrowed a medical work from a friend to look up a point about which I was curious. It was a work on diagnosis, and among other things it gave a minute description of the symptoms of appendicitis. I have always been much afraid of the malady, and that chapter had a hideous fascination for me. I read it and reread it, and as I did so it seemed to me that some of the premonitory signs coincided exactly with certain aches and pains I had felt for several days. I got alarmed at once, and that night was nearly stricken by a severe cramp a little northeast of my right hip bone. That I knew to be the fatal spot, and, needless to say, I didn't sleep a wink.

"By morning I had all the symptoms of a typical case and could scarcely get around to see the doctor. I began to tell him my story when he stopped me. 'How do you come to know so much about the disease?' he asked.

"I replied proudly that I had been reading up on it.

"'The dickens you have!' he replied. 'Well, you get right out of this office, confound you, and don't waste any more of my time!'

"Then he explained that every medical student always has all the diseases on record, in regular order, just as he studies 'em, and I began to feel better. I went home, returned the hinsted book, and am now entirely out of danger, thank you. It was the quickest recovery on record." — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Queer Examination.

Difficulties of the civil service examinations are multiplied tenfold in the requirements set down by law of applicants for positions in the mail service of China.

In the first place an applicant must have strength and courage. To acquire these he goes through a very queer method of training. He wanders through mountains and valleys, forests and caves. The exact time to be occupied in a trip is fixed by law, and a heavy fine imposed for unnecessary delay. He must repeat these trips at night, and if he listens to the sad spirits and there by fails to appear at the required time at a certain place he is sure to lose his rights to a position.

This is not all. He is obliged to carry an enormous weight for many miles and return with it within a given time. No allowance is made for his inability to defend himself against thieves and highwaymen, his road usually leading through a district thick with bandits.

In training the candidate eats very little—though he is said to thin—and he rises every straining exercise. Then comes his real examination under the direction of government officials. He is taken into a long room, where, suspended from a high beam with strong ropes, are very heavy sacks filled with rocks.

The candidate must give a swinging motion to all these sacks and then run to and fro between them, carefully guarding against a blow by one of the weights.

Curiosities of Journalism.

A paper in India recently published the following explanation: "This is only the beginning of our paper. We were not sure how much matter was required to fill it up, and, thinking we had sufficient, we did not exert ourselves much to get any more. We therefore beg that our readers will excuse us this time for the space left blank, and we promise to do better and get more in the future."

Still more curious was the announcement of a paper which came out for the first time with two columns blank, the editor stating the full announcement that "a large quantity of exceedingly interesting matter has been left out for want of space."

When the native editor wants a holiday, he suspends publication until it is convenient to resume, and, taking his readers into his confidence, informs them plainly why the paper was not issued on the expected dates: "With the consent of our readers, we now propose to take our annual holiday. We are sure none of them will begrudge us our relaxation."

Twenty Inches For Six Hairs.

A singular theft was tried by Mr. Beale, first class magistrate. Superstitious Burmans pull out the hairs of an elephant's tail for talismans, making rings out of them and other charms. One Nge Tun Lin went into an elephant's shed at Ahlone and pulled out hairs out of a bull elephant's tail, according to him in umbrella. The accused challenged him, and he promptly shook the hairs out of the umbrella. They fell on straw, were picked up and put forward in evidence of theft. The man was convicted and sentenced to receive 20 lashes.—Times of Burmah.

Mutual Dislike.

Brahms and Tschaikowsky, the famous musicians, met but twice. On the last occasion Brahms was sufficiently interested in Tschaikowsky's "Fifth Symphony" to travel expressly to Hamburg in order to make its acquaintance. After the performance the disgruntled composers dined together, and the conversation Brahms frankly admitted that he did not like the work at all; whereupon the usually meek Russian plucked up sufficient courage to inform his host that he disliked each of that's music was musical. They parted on excellent terms nevertheless.

Wanted Warmth.

"I think it would be well," said the decorator, "to have your dining room bordered by a frieze."

"No, no," remonstrated the man who had only recently struck it, "I want that room above all others, to have a warm, cozy appearance."—Philadelphia North American.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Duluth has a telephone war on hand.

The snow fall at St. Paul, the storm center, Saturday night, was 15 inches.

Macalester students have voted not to enter the intercollegiate oratorical contest.

St. Paul Cycle Path association expects to build 15 miles of new paths this summer.

Recruiting stations for the regular army have been established at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Washington officials have virtually decided not to remove the Leech Lake Indian agency to Bena.

Experts of the French government will visit St. Paul to examine Western railway locomotives.

William H. Grimshaw, of Minneapolis, has been appointed marshal of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

William H. Grimshaw of Minneapolis has been named for United States marshal and S. J. Pichi of St. Paul for chief deputy.

Chippewa and White Earth Indian delegations have finished their powwows at Washington and have started for Minnesota.

Minnesota will soon be partially reimbursed for expenses in raising and equipping troops. Twenty-five thousand dollars is the expected first allowance.

Representative McCleary has recommended the establishment of a postoffice in Blue Earth county to be called Perch, with Mrs. Esther Thurston postmistress.

The board of commissioners of Washington county has decided to build over the county jail at a cost of $10,000. It will be modern in every particular and have fifteen cells.

The First State bank of Detroit, of which Jeff H. Irish is president, E. G. Holmes, vice president, and A. G. Wedge, jr., late of St. Paul, cashier, has opened for business.

Colonel John T. West, well known in the Northwest as the proprietor of the West hotel, Minneapolis, died suddenly in the office of his hotel Monday evening. He was 84 years of age.

James Gilmore, the second of a trio of highwaymen wanted at Fergus Falls, Minn., for train robbery, has been convicted of highway robbery at St. Joseph, Mo., and sentenced to eight years.

At Duluth, Thomas Sutter and Henry White were convicted of larceny in the first degree. They were firemen on the tug Zenith and helped steal four irons from the wrecked Arthur Orr. They were recommended to the mercy of the court.

L. G. Powers has been appointed statistician of the agricultural division of the census bureau by Superintendent W. R. Merriam. Mr. Powers, who lives in Minneapolis, is widely known as commissioner of the state labor bureau from 1891 to 1899.

Clark E. Elliott, lieutenant Fifteenth Minnesota volunteers, A. A. Q. M., second army corps, and Reuben Cooley, second lieutenant Fourteenth Minnesota volunteer infantry, have been named to fill the two lieutenancies allotted to Minnesota under the army reorganization bill.

The programme for the second annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Educational Association, to be held in St. Cloud, March 29, 30 and 31, has been issued by the programme committee. The meetings will be held in the normal school building, and the first session begins at 4:30 p. m., the 29th inst.

The new fish and game commission has organized. The new commissioners chose A. T. Williams of Minneapolis president, Jacob Daun, jr., St. Paul, vice president; W. W. Ward, Duluth, secretary; A. L. Crumb, St. Cloud, treasurer; Ronald Bentley, Proctor, Knott, executive agent; Stan Donnelly, St. Paul, attorney.

Julius J. Reinrich, state oil inspector, has announced the appointment of two additional deputy oil inspectors, C. H. Sturdevant of Detroit was appointed to succeed himself. He is an old soldier, and Mr. Heinrich decided to make no change on this account. Jacob Cute of Austin was appointed for the Mower county district.

Mrs. Fred Kier has been murdered by her husband six miles north of Howard Lake. The deceased was a daughter of Thomas Rekoll, who, with his second wife, was murdered near that place a year ago. Kier is subject to insanity and has been in the asylum several times. It is supposed he was crazy when the crime was committed.

It has been decided that the new appointments of second lieutenants from Minnesota on the recommendations of Senators Davis and Nelson are: Fred C. Elliott of Minneapolis, of the Fifteenth Minnesota regiment, and Reuben Smith of Duluth, of the Fourteenth regiment. Clinton McCormick of Duluth, also of the Fourteenth regiment, has been designated as alternate.

The population of the state's institutions has come close to 6,000 by the figures returned to the state board of charities and corrections for Feb. 28. It shows an annual increase over one year ago, chiefly in the insane hospitals, also as usual, where there is an increase of more than 200 in the year and 50 to the month. The recent transfer from Rochester to Fergus Falls brings the number of patients in the latter above 1,200. The number cared for in all state institutions is 5,956, against 5,707 in 1898.

Burlington Limited Wrecked.

La Crosse, Wis., March 14.—The Chicago, Burlington and Northern limited was ditched near Victory; 20 miles south of this city. Three sleeping cars went down a steep embankment into the water and rolled over on their sides. One of the cars caught fire, but was promptly extinguished. Aside from a wetting and some slight bruises none of the passengers or crew were hurt.

A Verbal Melee.

Going up on a Cedar avenue car the other night the passengers were much entertained by a verbal spat between a small citizen of German parentage and a tall native. The trouble all originated from the fact that the car was very much crowded, so crowded that the two disputants were brought face to face in such close proximity that they couldn't make a gesture.

"Push up a little, can't you?" inquires the tall man in an irritable tone. Several people were pushing him, and his irritability was quite excusable.

"Well, no, I can't," replied the little man, "and, vat is more, I don't tief to."

"You're not much of a gentleman," said the tall man.

"Oh, I ton't know!" said the little man airily. "Ven I vant an opinion on gentlemen, I go to some fellow vat has got a leetle knowledge of der subject."

"You're a very funny boy," said the tall man in a tone of deep sarcasm.

"Vell," said the little man, "I may haf some senses of humor, but I'm not so hart hearted as to laugh at der foolishness of one idiot."

"Do you call me an idiot?" gasped the tall man.

"As long as I ton't know your name," said the little man, "I couldn't make der identification any more complete."

Pretty soon the car stopped to let off half a dozen passengers, and when things finally settled down the tall one and the short one were separated by a dozen seats.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Immortality Cranks.

Immortality of fame is something desired by many, but attained by few, says Dr. John Pirie in The Atlantic. Physical immortality is something which has hitherto been supposed to be inexorably denied to human beings. The phase "All men are mortal" figures in textbooks of logic as the truest of truisms. But we have lately been assured that this is a mistake. It is only an induction based upon simple enumeration, and the first man who escapes death will disprove it.

So at least I was told by a very downthe-Northeaster person who came to me years ago with a huge parcel of manuscript, for which he wanted me to find a first publisher. He had been cruelly scribbled and ill used, but truth would surely prevail over bigotry, as in Galileo's case. I took his address and let him leave his manuscript. Its recipe for physical immortality, diluted through 600 pages, was simply to learn how to go without food!

Twenty years a regimen will kill you by the fifth day, but if at that critical moment, while at the point of death, you make a heroic effort and survive, why, then you will have overcome the king of terrors once for all. I returned the gentleman's manuscript with a polite note, regretting that his line of research was so remote from those to which I was accustomed, that I could not give him intelligent aid.

A Curious Ashanti Custom.

When children are born in Ashanti, and only if once reached all over with a mixture of oil and red ocher, this being repeated every two days. Their mouths are washed with a fresh concoction in which red pepper is the main ingredient, and a crier goes through the town publicly announcing what before the end of the week is to be named. Some one else in a distant part of the village acknowledges the cry and promises, on the part of the people, that the name shall be the one which is put into the community. The townspeople then assemble in the streets, and the baby is brought out and exposed to view.

A basin of water is provided, and the person, or chief of the town, appointed lets water upon it, leaving it a name and invoking a blessing upon it, such as: "In instances that it may become old, grow up to manhood or womanhood, have a numerous progeny and possess riches. Most of those present follow the example of the headman, and the poor child is thoroughly drenched before the ceremony is ended. Every one who participates in the ceremony pledges himself to be a friend to the child.

Rice as a Detector of Thieves.

Not being able to trace anything in connection with the loss of the 3,000 rupees from the treasury of the Surati Bazaar company, the directors have resorted to astrology and finally sorcery. Every person employed in the bazaar was given a mouthful of rice to eat which had been previously put through some magic performance. He called "out that if the person who had taken the money ate the rice some very great misfortune would befall him. It is reported that any of the employees have yet met with a disaster.—Rangun Gazette.

A Slanderous Tale.

"Briggs is awfully hoarse this morning."

"Yes. You know how damp it was last night? Well, Briggs and his wife stood on the corner waiting for a street car, and Briggs' wife started in to say something, and Briggs stood there for fully a half hour with his mouth open trying to get in a word, edgewise. I dunno why he gets his hoarseness."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Children's Sense of Pity.

One of my granddaughters, said the Duke of Westminster, when about 6 or 7 years old, burst into tears on passing a blacksmith's shop, and on her mother inquiring the cause said, "Oh, mummy, I know we're selling the donkey's boots on!"

Congenial.

"Mike," said Plodding Pete, "did yer hear 'bout Alaska?"

"Lots. Are yer t'inkin of de trip?"

"I dunno. I'm told dat daylight lasts 24 hours at a stretch. If I could git a job in dat locality as night watchman, I dunno but I'd be willin to work."—Washington Star.

"DO YOU SEE THAT BOY?"

IF SO you are interested in the best Seeds that grow. Write now for our

STERLING CATALOGUE OF SEEDS

It is an Illustrated Treatise about Seeds and contains just what you want to know about Seeds. It tells when, how and where to sow Seeds to get the best results. It describes the best Seeds for Farm, Garden and Flower. It is mailed free to all who mention this paper and write for it. Address

NORTHRUP, KING & CO. SEED GROWERS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

A Magazine for a Penny

"GOOD HOUSE-KEEPING"

"Conducted in the Interests of the Higher Life of the Household."—Contains valuable recipes, timely suggestions, discussions of the Domestic Problems, Hygenic Housekeeping, Original Stories, Choice Bits of Verse, Etc. Sample copy sent on receipt of a postal if you mention the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. Agents wanted.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

THE Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED.

...Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake while draws the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,

AUSTIN, MINN.

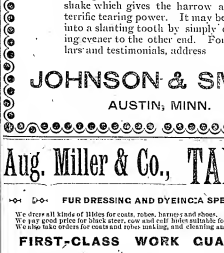
Aug. Miller & Co., TANNERS.

FUR DRESSING AND DYEING A SPECIALTY.

We draw all kinds of Hides for coats, robes, harness and shoes. We pay good price for black steer, cow and colt hides suitable for coats and robes. We also take orders for mats and robes making, and cleaning and repairing of old furs.

FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA



SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE: Send name on a postal for 156 page illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING

Author of "TORY FRAYNE," "AN ARMY WIFE," "TRUMPETER TREED," "NOBLE BLOOD," etc.

Copyrighted, 1895, by F. Tennyson Neely.

CHAPTER XIII.

The east bound train that day left without one of its promised passengers.

Miss Maynard. She was needed, said the civil authorities, as a possible witness in the robbery case. Wild, stirring, marvelous was the rumor that went from house to house before 11 o'clock that Mrs. Barry's companion and protegee, the lovely New England girl, had been accused by the police of guilty knowledge of, if not complicity in, the Burglaries and that, though not arrested and taken to town, she was under surveillance and confined to the house. One man when he heard it boiled over with wrath and misery. That was Ronald Maynard. Scorning his sister's arguments and entreaties, he had limped across the piazza, swung at the Barrys' door and begged to be admitted. He found Mrs. Stannard tearful, but calm and collected. Mrs. Barry reclining on her couch, her white hands gently toying with the glossy, wavy blond masses of hair that rippled all down over poor Nathalie's back and shoulders as she knelt there, her face buried in Mrs. Barry's bosom, abandoned to her grief. She did not even hear or heed the bell. did not know who had come or that anyone had come, until she heard these words:

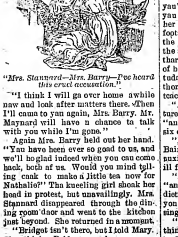
"Mrs. Stannard—Mrs. Barry—I've heard this most cruel accusation, and I've come to say I don't believe a word of it, and I won't rest until I've got at the truth."

The servant after admitting him still stood at the parlor door, looking doubtfully after the young officer and glancing inquiringly at Mrs. Stannard as though to ask if she had done right arrwong. Mrs. Barry, without turning or disturbing Nathalie, held out her free white hand, a smile of welcome and pleasure on her face, and as Maynard stepped forward and eagerly clasped the proffered hand he bowed low over it and over the beautiful, rippling tresses of the girl's humbled head. His eyes, clouded with distress and sympathy, gazed one moment into those of the cordial and then nought the kneeling form. No woman that ever lived, unbereft of the sacrifice God has given her, could have failed to rend the infinite yearning in the brave young face, the love and tenderness and longing that shone in his fine, truthful eyes. Mrs. Barry read and saw unerringly, and her heart went out to him as she drew the sobbing girl closer to her side. Nathalie, too, seemed conscious of his nearer presence. She was striving to cheek the violence of her emotion and had instinctively waited a little, as though to make room for him or possibly to draw a trifle away. His knee was almost at her shoulder.

Mrs. Stannard half turned. "Is it all right," she said in low tone to the still lingering servant. "You may go," and slowly and almost reluctantly the maid withdrew, only to appear again at the next moment in the dining room as though answering a question. "Lieutenant Maynard," she said, "to see Mrs. Barry," whereat Mrs. Stannard looked in some surprise into the room beyond, but no one then met her sight.

"It was the cook, I fancy," said Mrs. Barry. "She usually comes to me about this time each day to get her orders, and being a very particular, not to say superior, person, she did not wish to her kitchen duties to come into the presence of gentlemen. Bridget is quite a swell when she goes to town. Do sit down awhile, Mr. Maynard. We are all glad to see you," and again her arm seemed more closely to encircle Nathalie. "It is good to hear your voice again, especially when you say such good words."

Only too willingly Maynard found a chair and drew it toward the couch. Nathalie made an effort to rise, but Mrs. Barry held her firmly, answering some encouraging words in her ear. Then Mrs. Stannard came forward again.



"Mrs. Stannard—Mrs. Barry—I've heard this cruel accusation."

"I think I will go over home awhile now and look after matters there. Then I'll come to tea again, Mrs. Barry. Mr. Maynard will have a chance to talk with you while I'm gone."

Again Mrs. Barry held out her hand. "You have been very good to us, and we'll be glad indeed when you can come back, both of us. Would you mind telling cook to make a little tea now for Nathalie?" The kneeling girl shook her head in protest, but unavailingly. Mrs. Stannard disappeared through the dining room door and went to the kitchen just beyond. She returned in a moment.

"Bridget isn't there, but I told Mary. She thinks Bridget may have gone up stairs a moment. She left her in the dining room. Mary will make the tea."

"I didn't hear her go up," said Mrs. Barry, "but it may be. She's the quietest creature I ever had about the house despite her apparent weight. Thank you ever so much, Mrs. Stannard. I suppose there is no use in our writing to our respective magnates again. They reach Lemuria today, do they not, Mr. Maynard?"

"I think so," was the answer. "Isn't there a map of Nebraska in the major's den? I can show you just how they are marching in. The doctor and I figured it out on his map this morning before—before we heard of this." And again he glanced at Nathalie's bowed head.

"It's hanging on the east wall, between the windows," said Mrs. Barry, and rising and stepping quickly across the hall Maynard entered the narrow apartment in the "lean to" which Barry used as his study, office, library and general loafing place. It opened into Mrs. Barry's bedroom, as did also the little hall. A pair of heavy Navaja blankets hung in the connecting doorway, the floor was covered with a thick carpet, underneath which were several thicknesses of newspaper—the universal expedient of the old frontier days for keeping out the Wyoming gales. The windows still ware their winter tattoos of cotton, and the nurse den was as snug and secure from drafts as any house at Russell could be made, and yet something had occurred to disturb those Navaje curtains within five seconds, for one of them was swinging back as though it had just been blown in by a puff of wind. Maynard looked at it to some surprise, but the heavy folds quickly settled to rest. He did not consider it his province to search for the canes in Mrs. Barry's room. The rear window might be open, or the kitchen door which stood beyond the window, admitting to the dining room. Lifting the map from its hook, he turned to retrace his steps, and right at the foot of the chairs met Nathalie. With bowed head and averted eyes she brushed by him and hastened up to her room.

"She was so agitated and distressed, Mr. Maynard," explained the hostess, as the young fellow returned to the parlor, "that I had to let her go to bathe her face. She'll be down again before long."

To see the orderly, with the commanding officer's compliments.

But this proved delusive. Mrs. Stannard remained a few moments to look over the map which Maynard pointed out where the battalion had been engaged with the Cheyennes, the line of flight of the latter to the northern agencies and the probable homeward course of the regiment, and then she took her departure.

Mary, the maid, presently came in with tea and was told to take it up to Miss Baird, which she did, and on her return was asked if Bridget was up stairs as had been suggested, and Mary, with a puzzled face, said, "No; neither was she in her own room back of the kitchen." Then a message from after the maid had retired, Bridget's voice was heard in the kitchen, and speedily she herself approached the parlor door, but stood respectfully and modestly back in the dining room and inquired with great deference of manner was Mrs. Barry needing anything?

"Not Bridget," was the answer. "I needed pan a few moments ago to make some tea for Miss Baird."

"I've not seen her, sure," said the invisible domestic. "I had just stepped over to Mrs. Gregor's a moment after coming in to see if anything were wanted. Isn't there something I can do now, ma'am?"

"Nothing, thank you, Bridget, unless you'll step up to Miss Baird and see if you cannot suggest something to coax her appetite." Whereupon Bridget's footsteps were heard passing through the bedroom into the hall and so on up the stairs; the echoes of the kitchen door thereby cayly defeating the possibility of being seen in the garb of her servitude as well as avoiding the parlor as a thoroughfare—not so easy a matter to reach to frontier "help."

"A most excellent, faithful creature," said Mrs. Barry to her visitor, "and so good tempered! She's worth six of her predecessors."

"I hope she will prevail on Miss Baird to take something," said Maynard anxiously. "She seems to have been so ill for days and weeks."

"Poor child, yes," was the answer, "and she has had enough to drive a girl distracted! Of course, Mr. Maynard, you must have heard something of her singular adventures of late."

"I have both seen and heard something, Mrs. Barry," was the prompt reply, "and I'll stake my all it's—it's to her credit, not to her discredit, I saw him except that day in town"—

"Pardon me, captain, I said the only time I ever saw his face was that day in town."

"Then you admit having seen his form if not his face—admit having seen him all the time."

"No, sir, I do not even admit that. Once or twice I saw a form that resembled his very strongly. That's all I can say."

"Whose was it?"

Another painful pause. Maynard was plainly and inexperienced. He did not know how far he might be justified in refusing to answer a cross examination that must drag from him the whole truth that he had so religiously hope to himself rather than reveal what he had seen and heard and suffered and thereby probably surround her dear name with renewed shame and suspicion. From the spirit and letter of the truth he could not devise a justifiable. Neither an the slight of that strange adventure in front of Barry's quarters nor the miserable afternoon when he saw the huge bulk of this objectionable stranger bending over that slender form away down the row had he seen a single feature of the stranger's face. Now it seemed as though the commanding officer was bent on dragging from him everything he knew, and vaguely he felt that this was not that officer's prerogative and that so long as he held such sublime faith in Nathalie Baird's innocence of all complicity in or knowledge of the recent robbery it was not only a right but a duty to refuse to reveal anything that might involve her in deeper trouble.

Whether right or wrong in the belief, Maynard had made up his mind. Captain Walters should find out nothing new at her expense if a stubborn stand on his part could prevent it. Of the meeting between her and the big stranger down by the end set of quarters known as No. 1 everybody at the garrison had by this time heard, but so far as he knew not a soul in the garrison but himself had any knowledge of his meeting with that burly and unusual prowler under Nathalie's window the night of the hop. All this flashed through his mind and determined his action before he finally answered:

"I am sorry, sir, that my answer, describing one afternoon down by No. 1, but I was sitting on Major Stannard's piazza with the ladies of the row."

"Yes, sir, we know all about that. A dozen people saw him talking with Miss Baird. As they resembled the man called Bocton, did he?"

In figure and in general build, yes, sir."

"And now the other occasion, when, as reported to me, you met him face to face. How about that?"

Silence again for a moment, and again Maynard planned a further for any support, and again the deep brown eyes seemed to say, "Stand your ground."

"Captain Walters, I beg you not to press that question," said Maynard respectfully, but eagerly. "Many of the officers will be home in a very few days. I will answer to him—to no other. But there are reasons why I ought not to speak further on this subject until I can consult him and Major Barry."

"You may just, as well answer, Mr. Maynard," interrupted the post commander coldly. "Your conduct or hesitation is quite enough to stamp you as guilty of what I have been reluctantly forced to believe—of willfully concealing most important evidence in connection with this case. Moreover, you could not have believed it of you without the virtual admission on your part, corroborated by your own sister, that you had met Cook of the Rocky Mountain detective force from Denver, and he will tell you what you should have told me. Go ahead, Mr. Cook."

Painfully now Maynard was leading on his cause. He had never met the detective. Cook seemed perturbed. He evidently liked the young fellow better than he did his job.

"It's just this," he said. "We know he has fallen heir to a good deal of ill will the crowd were twitting him about the way you pitched him out of his saddle, and he swears that it didn't compare with the knockout he'd given you right here in the fort and right in front of the officers' quarters the night of a hop. The bartender gave it all to us later—before they had scattered. He was the night he got out there at the Empire. He dragged that he was out here to meet a friend of his, and when you had interfered and got knocked down as a result."

Maynard's face was still and cold and white. Without flinching he gazed straight into the detective's eyes and made no reply.

"Well, sir," said Captain Walters impatiently, "now what have you to say?"

"Nothing, sir."

"Do you refuse to confirm or deny the statement?"

"I decline to say anything until my counsel comes."

Captain Walters flushed angrily, but kept his temper well.

"You still occupy a room at Major Stannard's, I believe?"

"Yes, sir. Mrs. Stannard asked that my sister and I should remain under her roof until the regiment returned."

"Very good. Mr. Maynard, you may now return to your room and consider yourself in close arrest."

Without a word the young officer faced about and walked slowly and painfully home.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Remarkable Letter.

A young lady of very extraordinary capacity lately addressed the following letter to her cousin: "We is all well, and mother's got the Terrick, brother Tom bigot the Hopin Kaugh, and sister Ann has got a babee, and I hopa these few lines will find you the same. Rite sune. Your affectionate kusson."—London Fun.

Had Nerve as Well as Weight.

In one of the newspaper composing rooms in this city there is a typesetting machine operator who is a great lover of horse racing. A good share of his wages goes to the bookmakers at the local tracks during the racing season, although for some reason he never acquired the pedestrian habit and has always refused to put down a bet unless he was "there to see how the dogs ran." He is fully six feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds. He size suggested a joke to one of his friends during the racing season last summer.

"Going to Sheepshead Bay today?" the friend asked.

"I'd like to, but if I go I won't have much left to bet with."

"I can give you a jockey's badge," said the friend.

"Gimme it," replied the printer, eagerly, never realizing the ridiculous contrast between his size and that of even the heavyweight jockeys. Armed with the jockey's badge, he presented himself at the race track gate and showed his badge. The ticket taker looked at him in astonishment.

"Great Scott!" he finally blurted out, "wot do you ride—elephants?"

"There's one entered in the fifth race." was the reply. And his nerve so paralyzed the gatekeeper that he was admitted.—New York Sun.

Hot Times.

"I can remember a good many years back," said a Detroit veteran in politics, "and, whatever may be said as to the integrity of our present statesmen, the campaigns are conducted in a great deal more moderate tone than they used to be. Then it was the usual thing to indulge in the strongest possible abuse of men and parties.

"I once heard a joint debate between a couple of candidates for our legislature that will serve to illustrate. They taunted and berated each other till all other questions were lost sight of in the popular anxiety to see which excelled in this style of warfare.

"Finally the butter headed of the two burst out in an announcement that he could whip his rival or any of his friends.

"That reminds me," said the other coolly, 'of a dog my father used to have that could whip any dog in the neighborhood or any dog that came that way with the tenmeters.

"'What's the application, sir?' markedly demanded the indignant opponent, Sir. Make your application, if you dare.

"'It is simply this, my pugnacious friend—no one ever thought of sending father's flog to the legislature.'"

The fire cutter remained at home.—Detroit Free Press.

A Beetle That Cuts Metal.

There is an axe trying to keep in confinement a curious little creature known as the metal cutting beetle.

Not long ago an entomologist caught one of these beetles and, unaware of its peculiar ability for sawing through anything in its way, put it in a cardboard box. Soon tiring of solitary confinement, or probably thinking its captor had forgotten to provide it with a door, the beetle cut one for itself and crawled out.

It was captured and put in a wooden box and as soon as the novelty of its new home wore off again the persevering insect cut a hole in the box and escaped.

The next time the escaped prisoner was caught it was put in a small glass jar with a tight fitting pewter cover.

Within an hour the beetle had cut a hole through the pewter and gnawed a hole big enough to allow it to creep out into the big world again. And this time it was not caught.

Primitive Pipes.

The earliest Indian pipes were simply tubes. in one end of which the tobacco was placed. Some years ago there were found that the pipes used by the ancient Romans were made on the same plan. Many of the pipes used by generations of the Indians They made cigarettes just like those now in use. with wrappers of the tobacco plant.

There is a popular notion, by the way, that paper used for modern cigarettes is destructive to health and apt to be saturated with drugs. Facts do not warrant this idea. Almost the best cigarette paper is quite harmless, being made out of new linen rags. From the refuse left over in the manufacture of shirts and other linen garments.

There is no such thing as rice paper What is known as such is the pith of a plant cut in thin slices used by the Chinese for painting pictures.—Science Siftings.

The Largest Diamond In the World.

This is in possession of the king of Portugal. It has a weight of 1,680 karats 14 ounces and is as large as a hen's egg. It came from Brazil in the eighteenth century and was then valued at $1,000,000, whereas now it has a value of $2,000,000.

In the foreground of popularity!

The celebrated

Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes

Ask for them

Do not accept others

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of matters of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1893.

The announcements for 1895 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a specimen copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming years.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade Marks obtained and all Pat-ent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can obtain patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with descrip-tion. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. Letters, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,

361 Broadway, New York.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county.

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per [illegible] in advance.

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1899.

THE Twin Valley Times has been sold by E. H. Gunderson to Herman and P. E. Solomanson, of Ulen. J. E. Solomanson will act as manager editor. Mr. Gunderson will engage in the mercantile business. We welcome Brother Solomanson into the fraternity.

THE hundredth vote for United States senator has been taken by the joint session of the legislature of Delaware and Pennsylvania can very nearly match the record of her sister state. What a large amount of time has been wasted by the representatives of the people in these two states!

MR. BRYAN admitted in a speech delivered at Houston, Texas last week that the states he carried in the last presidential election he had never traveled through, and yet he keeps on talking. Evidently he is a man who does not profit by experience, for according to his own tell the more he talks the more votes he loses.

WILLIAM R. MERRIAM, director of the next census, is about the most popular if he is the most importuned man in the country today. He has something like 54,000 appointments at his disposal and applications for the position are pouring in in such numbers that Noah-like he is thinking of saving himself from the deluge by embarking in an ark.

How rapidly knowledge spreads nowadays and how rapidly also people put their knowledge to use. A professor at Madison discovered two or three weeks ago that electricity could be successfully used in thawing out frozen water mains, and hardly a day elapsed after the announcement of the discovery before cities, towns and villages all over the country were thawing out the frozen pipes by this means.

THE Cuban assembly has deprived General Gomez of the command of the Cuban army. They allege that he has failed in his military duties and been disobedient to the assembly. The old general does not seem to care anything about what the assembly does. The Spanish blood in the Cubans, however, is asserting itself. This act of the assembly's is a treacherous and ungrateful one. After all that Gomez has done and suffered for Cuban liberty it must he rather hard to be thus treated by his compatriots.

In foreign affairs the Chinese question seems to be the one of most intense interest. Foreign nations are getting a stronger hold on Chinese soil, and they are gradually securing more territory. If the partition of China is not to be a reality it looks very much as if the United States would have to join with Great Britain in telling Russia, Italy, France, et al. that the empire must be preserved in tact and that our trade must not be interfered with, which of course will be interfered with when any of these nations save Great Britain extends its jurisdiction.

THE beef investigating committee have been spending considerable time in the Chicago packing houses trying to find out how meat is packed, but really what the people wish to know is how the meat that was fed to the soldiers was packed. If any of the beef was chemically treated or if bad beef was used in the first place, they can't find that out by seeing how the thing is now done. The committee have also refused to receive certain evidence, which General Miles wished to present. This looks very much as if they were not striving to get at all the facts in the case.

The Thief River Falls News

states that if Congressman Eddy is nominated for governor two years hence, that there will be a lively scramble for his congressional shoes. We do not look at it in that way. The northern part of the district is entitled to the nomination and the most popular, deserving and available candidate is Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston. Whether Mr. Eddy is a candidate or not for governor it is tacitly understood that he will not seek a re-nomination for congress and in that event Halvor Steenerson is the man to carry the district for the republican party.—Roseau Times.

We agree with the Times that Halvor Steenerson is the man to succeed Congressman Eddy. Mr. Steenerson has for years been a prominent republican and a staunch supporter of republican principles, and would both with credit to himself and the people represent this district in congress.

CONSIDERABLE time was spent in the legislature last week in disessing the relative merits of the two ways of caring for the insane—the county asylum plan and the district hospital plan. The former plan is not likely to be adopted and there is considerable opposition to establishing the hospitals at Hastings and Anoka, for it is broadly hinted that on a number of different occasions this winter the Hastings partisans have used their votes to bring them strength in the hospital fight. It would only serve both these towns right if neither got a hospital for the insane, for ever since the beginning of the discussion as to where the next state asylum would be located, they have very frequently employed underhand means to secure the institution and by giving them the building or buildings, the state would appear to countenance those actions.

Notes From Exchanges.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The St. Hilaire Lumber Co., will extent their boom another mile up the river. The work commenced yesterday of driving piles under the supervision of Henry Norland. When this is completed the company will have a log storage of over ten million feet.

Brainerd Tribune: Sam VanSant isn't saying a word—for publication—but it is generally understood that he has already started on a still hunt for the Republican gubernatorial nomination next year. If the genial captain had been nominated last year, as he should have been, John Lind would not now be occupying the governor's office at the state capitol.

Norman County Herald: It is down at Halstad that christian fortitude of a high order is exhibited under trying circumstances. Recently a criminal case was tried there. The wronged man and complaining witness, the defendant, the prosecuting attorney and the constable sat down and played a friendly game of cards while the jury was deliberating upon a verdict.

St. Peter Tribune: The Anoka Union is pleased with Anoka's curfew law. The only curfew law needed when we were a boy was the stern command of our father—"don't go out tonight," and we knew that meant business. In this day and age it seems that the children command the parents, hence the need of a law to control both parents and children. What a commentary upon family government and parental discipline.

Norman County Index: Citizens of Red Lake county have forwarded to Senator Myran a petition asking that he secure the passage by the legislature of a memorial to congress for the opening up of that part of the Red Lake Indian reservation within the borders of Red Lake county. All the reservations should be opened up, after the allotments are made in severalty, and the work should be done at once. There has been far too long a delay now, and the progress of Northern Minnesota is retarded in consequence.

Fargo Argus: Screenings are in great demand in Minneapolis and Duluth, they are selling at six and seven dollars per ton. Who furnishes them? Did you ever hear of an elevator company raising screenings or buying them? Certainly not. Ask the farmer, he will tell you that they are taken from him without his consent, sold and no returns made in him of the proceeds. I want to ask what right an elevator company has to sell screenings taken from the wheat consigned to them, and sell them and not remit? It seems to me they would have the same right to keep proceeds from the wheat as of the screenings.

Grand Forks Herald: That the value of land in the Red River valley has always been underestimated is conceded by all who are familiar with its fertility, and judging from the steady advance in prices in the past, and from the value of real estate in older states where the soil is inferior to ours, land is good property to own, and the farmers have every reason to feel that in a very few years their holdings will equal if not exceed in value the land in older but less favored agricultural states, where real property now sells for from $60 to $100 per acre.

Warren Sheaf: The investigation of the legislature into the matter of grading wheat brought out the fact at least that screenings are an important and valuable by-product that is lost to the farmers by their persistence in selling grain in an uncleaned condition. At the mills and elevators in Minneapolis and Duluth the grain is cleaned and the screenings sold at good prices at the stock yards and elsewhere for the fattening of cattle and sheep. And the farmers not only give away these screenings for nothing but also pay the freight thereon to terminal points! We have always been of the opinion that it would pay farmers to run their wheat through a good fanning mill before sending it to market. The screenings ought to stay on the farm and be fed on the farm.

Elsewhere.

Bemidji will have a new $15,000 hotel.

Bounty has been paid in Marshall county for 100 wolves and in Kitson for 80.

B. F. Bivins & Co., of Argyle, contemplate moving their stock of hardware to Bemidji.

Matthew P. Wright, the first settler in Otter Tail county, died last week in Fergus Falls of old age.

President Kleeberger, of St. Cloud Normal school, who has been in the hospital in St. Paul for some time, is recovering.

W. W. Erwin, the celebrated criminal lawyer, politician and orator has removed from St. Paul to St. Louis, Mo.

Minnie, Ernest and William Pusch, of Grand Forks, all minors, have fallen heirs to an estate in Germany valued at $2,600.

All four state normal schools are likely to have sessions continuing throughout the year. At present only two have all-year courses.

About $1,000 has been raised at Moorhead for the orphan children of Policeman McLean, who was recently killed at a fire in the Moorhead.

Things are humming at the Fosston Woolen mills nowadays. Agents will soon be put on the road with samples of flannels and woolen blankets, etc.

Great Britai will spend $3,000,000 during the six years and next in fitting up Wei Hai Wei in Northern China as a naval port. She will also build five swift cruisers.

The State Grain Grower's association intend to build a farmers' terminal elevator at Duluth. It is thought that this will make more useful the farmers' country elevators.

Some horses, shipped into Fertile by a Red Lake Falls man, turned out to have the pink eye. Crookston's veterinary surgeon was called down there to examine the animals.

The annual expenditure for inland and foreign mail service by the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, was $83,129,259. The estimate for 1900 is $56,944,000.

The war department will publish a camera history of the late war. Photos taken by any officers or privates will be gladly received and credit will be given to all contributors.

Little Falls wishes to change its name to Grand Falls, but it is a question whether or not this can be done constitutionally. The matter has been referred to the attorney general.

It is reported that what was intended for a candy pull in the town of Swan River a few evenings since turned out to be a hair pulling contest with a number of prominent people involved.

Austin Bidwell, who with his brother George Bidwell, and two confederates become famous twenty-six years ago through the Bank of England forgeries, died last week in Battle, Mont. The brothers recently started an anti-treating crusade.

C. G. Gulerud, the Fosston marshal, has a relic which he received recently that he prizes very highly. It is only a common brass screw but it was taken from the wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor. It was sent to Mr. Gulerud by his brother, who is a soldier now stationed at Havana.

The White Man's Burden.

Take up the White Man's burden—
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go, bind your sons to exile
To serve your captives need;
To wait in heavy harness,
On fluttered folk and wild—
Your new caught, sullen peoples,
Half devil and half child.

Take up the White Man's burden—
In patience to abide,
To veil the threat of terror,
And check the show of pride;
By open speech and simple,
An hundred times made plain,
To seek another's profit
And work another's gain.

Take up the White Man's burden—
And reap the harvest sure—
Of weary wars of peace—
Fill full the month of famine,
And bid the sickness cease;
And when your goal is nearest
(The end for others sought)
Watch sloth and heathen folly
Bring all your hope to naught.

Take up the White Man's burden—
No iron rule of kings,
But toil of serf and sweeper—
The tale of common things;
The ports ye shall not enter,
The road ye shall not tread,
Go, make with them your living
And mark them with your dead.

Take up the White Man's burden—
And reap his old reward—
The blame of those ye better,
And hate of those ye guard—
The cry of hosts ye humor,
(Ah, slowly) towards the light:—
"Why brought ye us from bondage,
Our loved Egyptian night?

Take up the White Man's burden—
Ye dare not stoop to less—
Nor call too loud on freedom
To cloak your weariness,
By all ye will or whisper,
By all ye leave or do,
The silent, sullen peoples,
Shall weigh your God and you.

Take up the White Man's burden—
Have done with childish days—
The lightly proffered laurel
The easy ungrudged praise:
Comes now to search your manhood,
Through all the thankless years
Cold, edged with dear bought wisdom
The judgment of your peers.
—Rudyard Kipling in McClure's Magazine.

Before Judge Hagen.

In the probate court on Friday a license to mortgage real estate was granted to Mathilda Johnson, guardian of the Johnson minor children of Fisher; the estate of John Gudovsky was closed, the final account of the administrator John W. Dren being allowed and the final decree issued, and in the matter of the estate of Ingrid Person, Christian Andreason was appointed guardian. Person lived alone in an unorganized town in the north western part of Polk county and becoming insane was about three weeks ago sent to the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls.

Baby Wardrobe Patterns.

Twenty-seven patterns for different articles in long clothes with full and complete directions for making same, showing necessary materials, sent postpaid for 25c in stamps. Fifteen patterns of short clothes 25c or both for 35c. "Information to Mothers" sent free with each order. Address Downey Pattern Co., Butler, Indiana.

Of Interest to Odd Fellows.

The contract for erecting the Minnesota Odd Fellows' home has been awarded. The cost of construction will be $21,951. The agitation for a state home for orphans of the Odd Fellows and for aged and indigent members of the order began more than eight years ago. In 1891 was organized the Minnesota Odd Fellows' Home and Orphan Asylum. But it was only last fall that the needed fund of $25,000 was subscribed and the site selected. Several towns competed for the profitable honor of sheltering the orphans. Attractive grounds were at last selected in the attractive town of Northfield. There will be built, of brick and stone, a two-story-and-a-half structure, large enough to accommodate at least 150 inmates. The building will have the most approved conveniences.

"What, no Bible?" said Commissioner Bowler "How could they run the office without one?" And the major bought and presented to the county and food department a copy of the King James version, which now has a place on the shelf between the county directory and the pure food laws. It is believed to be the first copy of the Scriptures ever assigned to a place on the main floor of the capitol.

During his recent visit west, W. J. Hill of the Great Northern, selected a site for a pile-pickling plant at Kalispel, Mont., which he proposes to erect during the spring, and where all the ties of the Great Northern will, in the future, undergo a chemical bath, known in railroad circles as "pickling," which adds materially to the life of the ties. The plant will necessitate the employment of a large force of men.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Accidental Shooting.

On Sunday afternoon Peter Stranger and Alex Bartelette, two young men who were personal friends and well known in St. Vincent, having been brought up there, were visiting at the home of John Bush, who lives a short distance south of the village. While there they were having a general discussion on the question of firearms and Bartelette went to hand over to Stranger his pistol. The muzzle of the weapon was pointed toward Bartelette and as Stranger took it his finger accidentally touched the trigger and the pistol went off, the ball passing through Bartelette's lung and lodging in his back. Dr. Harris is attending the case which is a quite serious one.

New Grocery House.

John Carlson, who was formerly in partnership with E. S. Peterson, has opened up a grocery store of his own on Fletcher street on the Journal corner just east of this office. He has just put in a stock of fresh groceries and is prepared to furnish anything in this line. He will be glad to meet all his old customers at his new establishment, and new customers will find him reliable and obliging.

Liver Ills

Like biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, constipation, sour stomach, indigestion are promptly cured by Hood's Pills. They do their work easily and thoroughly. Best after dinner pills. 25 cents. All druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. The only Pill to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

IN THE

North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

$5 Cents a Number: $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N Y

United States Map.

15c A copy of our handsome map, clearly printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address, postpaid, on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money orders or well unpostmarked stamps. GEO. E. LYMAN, Gen'l Passenger Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal,

(Morrisey's Foundry.

IVES AND STRAWBRIDGE.

Are the Projectors of a Newspaper To Be Started Soon at Cass Lake.

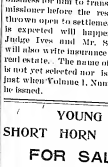
Judge Frank Ives started last Monday morning for Cass Lake where he will engage in the newspaper business. With him in the enterprise will be associated Ben Strawbridge, late court reporter for this judicial district. The judge will arrange at once for the putting up of a suitable building, and as soon as possible the newspaper plant will be in running order. The judge has been appointed United States commissioner for that section of the country, though there will be no business for him to transact as commissioner before the reservation is thrown open to settlement, which it is expected will happen in June. Judge Ives and Mr. Strawbridge will also write insurance and handle real estate. The name of the paper is not yet selected nor is it certain just when Volume 1, Number 1, will be issued.

YOUNG SHORT HORN BULLS. FOR SALE.

Pure bred and fit for service this spring. At my farm, Sec. 15, town of Lowell, five miles north-west of Crookston.

R. A. WILKINSON.

THE OPTICIAN,



DR. T. J. SMITH,

Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

H. STEENERSON.

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,

Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Robert street, Crookston, Minn.

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fourset Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE——

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

A. R. HOLSTON,

Attorney - at - Law

Practices in all the courts.

Offices, Wallace Block.

CROOKSTON, - - MINN.

TIME CARD —OF— TRAINS. Crookston

ARRIVE	*Daily †Except Sunday.	LEAVE
6.55 am	Grand Forks, Red Lake and West	7.00 am
2.00 pm	Mpls., St. Paul and points east	2.10 pm
5.05 pm	Warren, Kittson Co. and West	5.10 am
6.00 pm	St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls	8.30 am
1.05 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and points East	9.00 am
1.45 pm	Grand Forks, Moorhead and Fargo	7.30 am

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Persons Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

Vance & Stons for coal and wood.

—L. Rood is one of the new post-office clerks.

—M. J. Lolly is moving ont on to his farm this week.

—Dr. Watson, of Red Lake Falls, Sundayed in Crookston.

—C. Teel, of Euclid, went east to the woods Friday morning.

—Andrew Anderson has started a new saw mill ont at Mentor.

—James O'Brien transacted business at Red Lake Falls last Monday.

—Attorney Buckley was away at St. Paul on legal business last Monday.

—Ed Gilbertson took a business trip to Thief River Falls last Monday.

—Col. R. A. Wilkinson was up from St. Paul the latter part of last week.

—Cedar posts, 12½ to 15 cents a piece, for sale at S. C. Johnson's feed store.

—Marshall Geo. Barlow, of East Grand Forks, was in Crookston on Friday.

—Senator Grindelmnd ' spent the short Sunday recess at his home in Warren.

—W. E. Kelsey was a railway passenger Friday morning bound for Fosston.

—C. E. Sawyer went out on the St. Vincent line on business Monday morning.

—Adolph Rauch left last Saturday night for a three months trip along the Pacific coast.

—Will Bloom was a Great Northern passenger Friday morning bound for Fosston.

—Attorney F. C. Massey, of East Grand Forks was transacting business in the city Saturday.

—Mr. Erikson, of the firm of Erikson & Vannet, hardware dealers, spent Sunday in Crookston.

—Prof. E. C. Mitchell went out on Friday morning to Red Lake Falls to instruct his class in music.

Dr. G. A. Morley, specialist, eye, ear, nose and throat. Office, Rickett block, Crookston, Minn. 39-tf

—Judge Leonhardy, of Mr. George Purvis' town of Williston, was a Crookston visitor last Saturday.

—Mrs. O. J. Barnes, of Grand Forks spent the latter part of last week in visiting friends in this city.

—Myron Collins, father of S. L. Collins, after a brief visit here, set out for his home in Iowa last Friday night.

—Wm. Augus, superintendent of the Warren public schools, spent last Thursday in Crookston visiting the city schools.

—Red Lake Falls will have a new bicycle shop with Messrs. Russell Bullen and Fred Tousley as proprietors.

—Mr. Rood, of the firm of Rood & Holmboe, returned Monday morning from a three weeks' visit at his old home in Wisconsin.

—Mayor Brown was home for a few days the latter part of last week but he returned Monday morning to the woods ont east.

—Miss Tillie M. Nelson returned Monday morning from a two weeks combined business and pleasure trip to the Twin Cities.

—H. B. Finch was transacting business in the wholesale fruit line in Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire the first part of the week.

—Look out for A. N. Hixop's great auction sale of farm, horses, Jersey cattle and farm machinery. Great sale for years, soon.

—Mayor Brown intends putting on a new boat on Cass Lake this summer. It will be used as a pleasure craft and a tow boat.

—The Hay Mercantile company are making large shipments these days to retail grocers in the towns in the northern part of the state.

—Several Crookstonites, among them Dr. Speuce and Ed Martin, took in the Comic Opera company at Grand Forks last Thursday night.

—Dr. T. J. Smith, the optican, returned Monday morning from a trip in the towns on the Northern Pacific between here and Winnipeg Junction.

—Mrs. Ella H. Mantor, of Wilmar, Minn., Grand Chief of Honor for the state, was in the city last Friday night and spoke at a special meeting of the Degree of Honor.

—A. M. Silverson went out to Bagley, Solway and other towns along the Fosston line last Friday to look after the matter of contracts for putting up new buildings ont there.

—"On the Suwanee River" at the opera house last Friday night was a first class play in every respect. The star part of the aged auntie was especially pleasing and the male quartet singing exceptionally fine.

—Fertile voted no license.

Columbia Club dance tomorrow night.

—Big celebration of Odd Fellows on March 22.

—Court at Warren was adjourned this week.

—W. H. Bell, of St. Hilaire, was in the city Tuesday night.

—Attorney A. C. Wilkinson went to Hillock on legal business yesterday morning.

—Editor C. T. Lannnan, of the Mc. Intosh Times, spent Tuesday night at the county seat.

—It is reported that Conductor P. Baker of the Great Northern will put two steam launches on Cass Lake this spring.

—The Lady Maccabees received twelve new members into their lodge last Monday night. Refreshments were served after the work of initiation was completed.

—Several of the firemen are now sleeping in the firemen's quarters in the city hall and will thus be enabled to respond to a fire alarm at night the more quickly.

—Prof. LaSore says that the young ladies' physical culture class is already up to the young men though the latter have been working more than a month longer.

—The New England dinner given by the ladies of the Congregational church last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. R. Clements was very well attended notwithstanding the storm.

—S. L. Collins and J. F. Crenmer, who have been together in the agricultural machine business have dissolved partnership. Mr. Crenmer will open up for business by himself in the Greenleigh building on Main street next to the Germania.

—M. A. Meyerdorff, of Duluth, special agent of the Interior department, was in Crookston on Monday, conferring with W. I. Griffin with reference to the conditions of affairs here. Mr. Griffin has been appointed to a similar position in Ashland, Wis., to the one he has been holding here.

—Mr. Rosenberg, who has been a manager at St. Hilaire for a Minneapolis clothing firm which has several branch stores in different parts of the state will tomorrow open up a new clothing store, to be called the Great Western, in H. F. Byrne's building, on Second street, which has just been vacated by Will Hoch.

—About fifty-five teachers took the examinations in Crookston the latter part of last week. Most of these examinees tried for third grade certificates, only three trying for first grade. The number taking the examinations was not as large as usual. Commonly many write to whom they can do, even when they do not intend to teach.

—A Crookston trio of male voices, C. E. Misner, W. J. Bivins and Harry Walker made their first appearance before a Crookston audience last Friday night, at the meeting of the Crescent Literary society held in College Hall. They made a decided hit and will doubtless in the future frequently favor Crookston with their songs.

—Walter Stone has been looking up the history of the game of hockey and finds that a game similar to it was played away back in the 13th century. The game, however, because so rough that a law was passed making it a crime to play it. Walter is inclined to believe that the Stephen players have adopted the game played six centuries ago.

—At the Palace rink last Thursday night Albert Halvorson, the local champion, defeated by one lap Server Jelino the Fergus Falls expert skater. As Halvorson won in the race with Jelino the night before, the former is now the champion skater of the northern part of the state. In the race for the sixteen-year-old championship of Crookston, Romeo Morin was defeated by Carpenter.

—The improvements that have been under way at the Northwestern Marble Works are about completed. An addition has been built in which will be located the office and the workshop. The old main building will be thrown into one room and used as a display room. The proprietors, Messrs. Sandet, Ringdal & Hamel, already have on hand a large assortment of marble works and a carload of fine monuments has just been shipped in.

—Word has been received from W. S. Haven, who with Chas. Cahoon started about a month ago for the gold fields on the Pacific coast. The party were all well when they reached Juneau, Alaska, where the letter referred to was written. They were on the point of starting for Pyramid Harbor near where are some of their claims. Reports which have reached them from other miners already at work near where they expect to dig convince them that there is gold in that region.

—Sousa's Band on Tuesday afternoon March 28, at Grand opera house.

—The Royal Neighbors took in more than 20 new members Monday night.

—The Young Men's Political club adopted a constitution and by-laws and elected officers last Monday night.

—The musicale given by the Choral club at the Methodist church last Tuesday evening was very entertaining.

—The Plaindealer says that "the champion club swinger of the northwest" is now training the Crookston Athletic club.

—The seat sale for the band and orchestral concert, March 21, will open Monday morning March 20 at Tom Morris' at ten o'clock. Admission 25c, reserved seats 35c.

—The Ministerial and Lay Semi-annual Conference of the Synod church of that part of the Red River valley most of the Red river has been in session in Crookston during the latter two days and will close tonight.

—Mr. Riggs was requested at the last band concert by a number of his friends to play a cornet solo and similar requests have been sent in for this coming entertainment March 21 and we are informed that Mr. Riggs has consented and will play one of his favorite pieces.

—Like some actors, whose names have been identified with one part, Lewis Morrison has had a hard task to shake "Faust" from his repertoire, for his masterly rendition of "Mephisto" has become synonymous with Morrison. He will appear here for the last time in this weirdly fascinating character in the near future.

—The hockey game last night between Stephen and Crookston resulted in a score of two to one in favor of Stephen. The Crookston boys put up a strong game and kept the puck most of the time in front of their opponents goal and had it not been for the playing of Joe Botany, Stephen's star hockey man, Crookston would have won.

—To give an idea of the magnitude of the production of "Faust" as presented by Lewis Morrison this season, and which is one of the attractions booked here in the near future, two cars are required to transport the scenery and effects, three electricians and four musicians in addition to the local theatre staff to manipulate the stage and a large company to interpret the play, making in all the most colossal organization in America playing a classical drama.

—Mr. John Griffith is announced to appear at the Grand on Wednesday, March 22, in M. Audet Bourgobis and Petzl's play "The Avenger." As a drama "The Avenger" has been accorded a high place in stage literature. The management of Mr. Griffith and his company has been most lavish in providing magnificent scenery, and this in itself will prove a great attraction. To support Mr. Griffith an excellent company of New York artists has been engaged. They are headed by Miss Kathryn Pernell, an actress of beauty and ability, who is enabled in the play to wear some remarkable costumes, especially built for her. The engagement is for one night only, and the chances are that a crowded house will greet Mr. Griffith's portrayal of the swash-buckling cavalier, Henri DeLagardere. The advance sale for seats begins on Tuesday morning at Tom Morris'.

Thimble Be and Two Surprise Parties

Miss Lusian entertained the young lady teachers of the public schools at a thimble bee last Saturday afternoon. In addition to the fancy needle work that was done, the guests guessed the names of famous authors and prominent statesmen from their pictures. Miss Evelyn Hall received a box of candy as a reward for having guessed the most names. Delicious refreshments were served.

On the evening of the same day the young friends of Miss Grace Lusian surprised that young lady by calling at her home and spending the evening there. Games were played and a generally jolly and pleasant time was spent.

About twenty young men and young women friends of Miss Josephine Lally, unexpectedly to Miss Lally, entered Mrs. Lally's home on Houston avenue last Saturday night, and took possession of the place remaining till the hands of the clock showed that the hour of midnight was close at hand. Dances and cake-walks were the principal amusements. All on leaving felt that they had had an unusually pleasant time and regretted that it would be some time before the affair could be repeated as at Mr. Lally and his family will spend the summer at their country home.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, March 16.

WHEAT—Cash No. 1 hard, 69½c; No. 1 Northern, 67½c; No. 2 Northern, 64½c; No. 3, 60½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 70½c; No. 1 Northern, 68½c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 69½c; No. 1 Northern, 67½c; No. 2 Northern, 65½c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 15.

WHEAT—March closed at 68¾c; May, 68¾c; July, 69¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 68¾c; No. 1 Northern, 67¾c; No. 2 Northern, 65¾c.

Sioux City Livestock.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 15.

HOGS—Market strong. Range of prices, $3.85@.70.

CATTLE—Market active, steady to strong.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.10 for beeves; $2.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $4.00@4.50 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @5.00 for yearlings and calves.

Receipts: Cattle, 2,50; hogs, 1,700.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, March, 15.

HOGS—Market steady, active; quality fair. Range of prices, $3.05@$3.70¼.

CATTLE—Good demand for good cattle; stockers and feeders strong and active.

Sales ranged at $3.65@4.60 for choice; $3.00@3.50 for cows; $2.00@3.00 for heifers; $3.85@4.00 for steers; $4.00@5.00 for calves; $4.75@5.20 for bulls.

SHEEP—Good sheep and lambs firm; commons dull.

Sales ranged $4.00@4.80 for lambs; $3.75 for muttons.

Receipts: Cattle, 400; hogs, 3,000; sheep 500; calves, 50.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, March 15.

HOGS—Market 5@10c lower.

Sales ranged at $3.60@3.85¼ for mixed and butchers; $3.70@3.85 for good heavy; $3.60@3.65 for rough heavy; $3.00@ 3.80¼ for light.

CATTLE—Market for best steady; others weaker.

Sales ranged at $3.85@5.75 for beeves; $2.00@4.75 for cows and heifers; $3.10@ 4.65 for Texas steers; $3.40@4.65 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@4.75 for sheep; $4.35@5.25 for lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 35,000; cattle, 13,000 sheep, 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, March 15.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 70½c; July, 69½@69¾c

CORN—March, 37½c; May, 38½c; July, 38½c; September, 39½c.

OATS—March, 28½c; May, 28½c; July, 24½c.

PORK—March, $8.05; May, $8.17½; July, $8.35.

POULTRY—Dressed turkeys, 11@11½c; ducks, 8@9½c; chickens, 10@10½c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@19½c dairies, 11@13½c.

EGGS—Fresh, 12c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the priceof wheat reported in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....66c
No. 1 northern.....65c
No. 2 northern.....62c

Grain Growers' Association.

About 65 of the farmers of Polk county assembled at the court house this morning for the purpose of organizing a Grain Growers' association. J. B. Merrill, of Fisher, was chosen chairman and E. A. Sweet, of Fisher, secretary. Eric Olson, state organizer of the Grain Growers' association of Minnesota addressed the meeting.

An opening in the Street.

As L. D. Landahl, a farmer living about five miles south of town, was driving along the street between Broadway and Main street, about eight o'clock Monday night, one of his horses stepped with his hind feet into a large opening in the street and almost had the animals body suddenly disappeared. Some people who happened to be passing by helped Mr. Landahl get the horse out of the hole but it is a great wonder that the animal did not break its legs. The sewer was recently put in on this street and evidently the ground had caved in. In view of this accident it might be a good thing if the streets on which sewers have been dug were examined.

PASSED AWAY.

Mrs. John Cromb Died Last Monday At Los Angeles, Cal.,—Remains To Be Buried Here.

Word was received by wire from California last Monday that Mrs. John Cromb had died there early that morning. Mr. Cromb is now at his way home in the Pullman and he is expected to reach Crookston next Monday. Mrs. Cromb has been a resident of this city for many years and her host of friends will deeply mourn her loss.

Births.

CARLTON.

To Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carlton on March 9, a boy.

GOSSMAN.

To Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gossman on Friday March 10, a girl.

THOMPSON.

To Mr. and Mrs. R. Thompson on Friday March 10, a boy.

BEHLMER.

To Mr. and Mrs. Fred Behlmer on Tuesday March 14, a boy.

TRANDEN.

To Mr. and Mrs. S. Tranden on Monday March 13, a boy.

Deaths.

BIEVER.

On March 8 at Euclid, Mathias Biever. The funeral services were conducted on Friday by Father Murphy.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED
FARMS
FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
AND EASY PAYMENTS.
REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE
E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give on the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

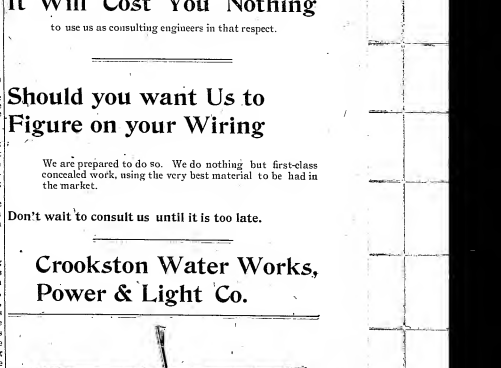
to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.



Our line comprises the Superior Double Disk Drills, Dowagiac Shoe Drills, Kentucky Single Disk Drills and our usual line of Harrows, Wagons, Harness and other spring goods. At our Stores in Fosston and McIntosh we also carry a full line of heavy and shelf Hardware suited to your requirements. We solicit your trade at the point nearest you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

KARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or McIntosh.
LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....
Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.
....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Ald. Kirsch, Sawyer and Rauch Appointed to Look Up Matter of Money Due City.

REGULAR M[illegible] MARCH 14.

Bills Allowed—Broadway Bridge to be Accepted—Council Accepts Invitation to Go to Fargo.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in Commercial rooms in the city hall building, on the 14th day of March, 1899.

Meeting called to order by President Vance.

Roll-call, aldermen present: Walsh, Childs, Anderson, Sawyer, McGregor, Kirsch, Harris, McKinnon, Davis, Rauch, Vance.

Alderman absent: None.

The minutes of meetings held February 14 and 28, and March 9, 1899, were read and approved.

Following bills were allowed at the amounts named, and ordered paid:

V. L. McGregor, type-writing	$ 1.50
Crookston Telephone Co., chief of police residence	2.50
A. O. Busterud, hardware	3.45
D. F. Reese, clerk supreme court fees	10.00
Wm. Creighton, dray	3.50
Chsistianson & Strander, insurance	15.00
Mrs. J. A. Bob, boarding prisoners	6.60
L. Sargent, freight	.59
Crookston Lumber Co., lumber	8.84
Vance & Stone, coal	123.88
E. D. Childs, expenses to St. Paul	20.36
Geo. A. Ralph, drawing maps for city	60.00
Crookston Plumbing Co., rent of building, registration	2.00
New Jersey Car Spring & Rubber Co., 500 feet hose	390.00
T. A. Harris, expenses to St. Paul	29.51
E. D. Childs, expenses to St. Paul	31.75
Frank Mageau, lock and chair strips in justice rooms	6.50

Following bills were allowed on poor fund:

Mrs. C. M. Benson, board and lodging Pat Conners	$ 6.50
Western Telegraph Union Co., special delivery telegram to Thief River Falls	6.26
Larson & Carpenter, oak wood to Shepard	4.50
A. G. Anderson, cash to William Walworth	40.00
Larson & Carpenter, wood to Mrs. Van-Tuyl & Mrs. Seymor	13.50
Mrs. J. M. Bob, board Dave King	7.00
Vance & Stone, wood delivered to city charges	10.25

Bill No. 6,651, Frank Mageau, for Pat Conner's hire as fireman, was on motion disallowed.

Bill No. 6,650, Frank Mageau $17.70, for extra heating in city hall election day, was referred to the judges of election.

Bill No. 6,653, Frank Mageau for $133.75, for work done in pest house, &c., was referred to the board of health.

Pay-roll for February amounting to $64.85, was allowed and ordered paid in usual manner, except that the charge of $12.37 charged to the improvement fund for cleaning street at the Peaks block corner be charged to adjacent property, on which account same was made.

It was moved and seconded that the special bridge committee be authorized to approve the new Broadway bridge, and that an order be issued to the contractor for such sum as may be found due from the city, after making such allowance for the painting and defects in the planking, as the committee may deem proper.

Motion carried.

Insurance policies on city hall building, amounting to $13,500, referred to Alderman Kirsch for his inspection, were reported all in proper form, and report duly accepted by council.

On motion the city hall committee were instructed to have placed $1,500 insurance, or so much thereof as may be found to be necessary, on contents of city hall, furniture, &c., same to be placed with some local board agency, not yet represented on the insurance on building.

On motion the committee having in charge the matter of providing a proper fire alarm, were authorized to consult with Architect Wolcott, with power to engage his services, if deemed by them advisable to do so.

It was moved and seconded that the janitor be placed on the city pay-roll, and be paid in same manner as other city officials.

Motion carried.

On motion Aldermen Walsh, Vance and Davis were appointed a special committee to investigate the 1898 assessment, as returned by Assessor Harris, for the city, and report what changes, if any, should be made in the assessed valuation of the real estate, so as to bring the same on a more uniform and equitable basis, according to its real value.

On motion liquor license was granted Bertha M. Koelmel, as per application made for same, and her bond with W. E. McKenzie and W. D. Scott, as sureties, approved.

Invitation was read from Mayor Johnson of Fargo to have Crookston represented there on the occasion of the meeting of the Grain Growers' association. On motion invitation was accepted, and all members of council and other city officials who can make it convenient were requested to attend the said meeting.

On motion city clerk was instructed to collect for light for February from the band organization and gymnasium.

On motion council adjourned.

W. A. LANCTOT, Clerk.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in Commercial rooms in city hall building on March 9, 1899.

Meeting called to order by President Vance.

Roll-call, aldermen present: Vance, Walsh, Childs, Anderson, Sawyer, McGregor, Kirsch, Harris, Rauch, Davis, McKinnon.

Aldermen absent: None.

The call for special meeting was read, as follows:

Special Meeting.

CITY OF CROOKSTON,
OFFICE OF ACTING MAYOR.

A special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston is hereby called to meet at the council chamber in the city hall in said city at 8:00 o'clock p. m., this Thursday March 9, 1899, to take such action as may be necessary to determine what moneys may be due the city from Polk county, and to take such action as may be deemed advisable to secure the payment of such moneys as may be due the city from said county, to be paid into the city treasury.

SHELDON W VANCE,
Acting MAYOR.

The matter at hand having been fully discussed by the members of the council, it was moved and seconded that the chair appoint a committee of three to investigate this matter thoroughly, and that the committee so appointed be authorized to employ such clerks or experts as they may deem necessary, at such compensation as they see fit.

Motion carried.

The chair appointed as such committee Aldermen Kirsch, Sawyer and Rauch.

On motion council adjourned.

W. A. LANCTOT, Clerk.

Township Officers.

Below is given a partial list of the township officers elected last Tuesday at the annual election. The JOURNAL would greatly appreciate the favor if the town clerks of the different towns would send to this office a complete list of the town officers.

TOWN OF CROOKSTON.

Supervisors, J. A. Wyand chairman, W. M. Helnrich and W. M. Young.

A. J. Kelley, clerk.

Jos. Sauve, treasurer.

S. S. Kolden, assessor.

William Young and J. E. Harris, justices of the peace.

T. B. McMannus, constable.

TOWN OF ROOME.

Chairman of supervisors, J. J. Ide.

F. L. Davis, assessor.

Andrew Ellby, clerk.

TOWN OF HUBBARD.

Chairman of supervisors, Frank Hanson.

Andrew J. Gelseth, assessor.

Andrew Monson, clerk.

Painfully Polite.

The people of Dresden are very polite, so overpolite that they not infrequently bring down ridicule upon themselves. It used to be told in that city that a stranger was one day crossing the great bridge that spans the Elbe and asked a native to direct him to a certain church which he wished to find.

"Really, my dear sir," said the Dresdener, bowing low, "I grieve greatly to say it, but I cannot tell you."

The stranger passed on, a little surprised at this voluble answer to a simple question. He had proceeded but a short distance when he heard hurried footsteps behind him, and, turning round, saw the same man running to catch up with him.

In a moment his pursuer was by his side, his breath nearly gone, but enough left to say hurriedly: "My dear sir, you asked me how you could find the church, and it pained me to have to say that I did not know. Just now I met my brother, but I grieve to say that he did not know, either."

Her Opinion In Full.

The car turned sharply around a curve and the tall man who was holding on to a strap somewhat loosely was suddenly thrown from his upright position with a force that landed him in the lap of a dignified dowager sitting near him, while his high silk hat flew from his head and rolled down the aisle of the car.

"Sir," she said as he rose to his feet again with profuse apologies, "I am compelled to say that in my judgment you were lacking in that complete grasp of the strap which was essential to the highest efficiency in maintaining an upright attitude when turning a curve."

That was all. But it crushed him.—Chicago Tribune.

As He Understands It.

"As I understand it," remarked the intelligent foreigner, "you Americans regard George Washington's hatchet as the emblem of truth."

"Yes, sir, that's right," replied the American proudly.

"Then, when statesmen or other individuals who have quarreled, bury the hatchet, I suppose they cease to speak the truth?"—Detroit Free Press.

HOCKEY GAMES.

Crookston Plays Stephen and Hallock—Our Boys Though Defeated Score Three Goals Each Game.

The Hockey players up the St. Vincent line have been anxious for some time to meet the Crookston boys on the ice and last week their wish was gratified. They expected to have a snap but they reckoned without their host, for Halvorson and his men made their opponents work hard for everything gained. Crookston was defeated as was rather anticipated, for their rivals have been practicing and playing match games all winter while the Queen City players have had little practice and only one match game. Under these circumstances, therefore, our boys did well, in each case getting three goals. The game with Stephen was played Friday evening. The Stephen team was the heavier and this was a point decidedly in their favor. At Hallock, where the game came off Saturday afternoon Crookston had the better of the play during the first half, the score, when time was called being three to one in their favor but before the second half had come to an end Hallock had scored six times.

Crookston was somewhat handicapped owing to the fact that two of their best players, Frank and Will Vine, were unable to accompany the team.

The following boys made up the aggregation: Ed Walsh, Herb Hunt, Walter Stone, Albert Halvorson, Andy Larson, Bert Moore, Walter Walker, Doc. Rutledge and Roy Low.

Pink Tea Social.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church will hold a Pink Tea social at the College hall this evening at 8:00 p. m. A particularly interesting and varied program has been arranged. Among other parts Mr. Vance and Mr. Crawford will give the scene between Brutus and Cassius from Shakespeare, and Mrs. Knappen will read "The Rescue of Lucknow." Piano and mandolin music and singing will make up the rest of the program. Elegant refreshments will be served after the rendition of the program.

Fourteen Trains Each Day.

This is what it means. On and after March 12th, 1899, the Northern Pacific Railway will start two trains each day flying westward from its eastern terminals. At the same time—not at exactly the same hours—two trains will also leave its western terminals for the east. There will then be, each day, moving over the 2000 miles of main track between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth at the east, and Seattle, Tacoma and Portland on the Pacific Coast, fourteen of these trains—in both directions—going at the same time and this in a country where 20 years ago the buffalo were roaming. These trains will be known as No. 1 the Puget Sound Limited, No. 3 the Oregon Limited going west, and No. 2 the Twin City Mail, No. 4 the Twin City Express, going east, and will contain in the aggregate more than 100 cars of various sorts. Each train will have a mail car, a baggage and express car, first and second class coaches, a Free Colonist Sleeping car, a Dining car and one or more Pullman First Class Sleeping cars, so that everybody and everybody's pocketbook can be accommodated. The Dining cars are a part of the solid through trains and no one need therefore go hungry.

Train No. 1 will leave St. Paul at 8:55 am.; train No. 3 at 10:45 pm.; after all trains have arrived from the east and south, morning and evening. Train No. 2 will leave Portland at 11:30 am., and train No. 4 at 11:00 pm., arriving at St. Paul 2:00 pm., and 7:30 am., respectively, in time for all departing trains eastward. One train goes via Helena, Mont., and one via Butte, in each direction. These trains run through the most important cities of the northwest and are hauled by new and enormous Schenectady locomotives, making, when necessary, 75 or 80 miles an hour.

These diurnal trains will amply accommodate the large immigration and tourist travel that seems probable this year.

During the Yellowstone Park season one train in each direction will carry a Pullman First Class Sleeping Car, especially for Park travel.

Inquires regarding this new train service may be addressed to any Northern Pacific Agent, or to CHAS. S. FEE, Gen'l Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn. 49-50.

One Qualification.

Mrs. Mann—You can't wash and iron nor make the fire (satirically)? Perhaps you might be able to sit in the parlor and read the morning paper after my husband has got through with it.

The Worklady—I think I could do that, mem, if the paper had stories in it.—Boston Transcript.

Literary Notes.

To the "North American Review" for March Demetrius C. Boulger contributes an interesting article on "The Dissolution of the Chinese Empire," maintaining that however slow or intermittent the process may prove, there is no longer any reason for doubting that dissolution is inevitable, and that, in the least changeful land of "the changeless East," a new constitution and a new method of maintaining political life has to be devised or discovered.

Despite his dislike to be photographed, Pope Leo XIII has permitted himself to be pictured by the Biograph, and a number of the most interesting portraits will be found in the March Ladies' Home Journal. They show the venerable Pontiff in the grounds of the Vatican, passing along his favorite walks and drives, attended by his secretary, guards, or members of his household. The pictures are exceedingly interesting in showing the Pope as he lives at the Vatican, and his surroundings, and are doubly valuable because they are the first pictures that have been made of the Pope in a great many years.

John Burroughs and Bradford Torry in the March number of the Atlantic Monthly for once forsake the book of nature for the books of man, and discuss respectively "The Vital Touch in Literature," and "Writers that are Quotable," handling these themes with their accustomed skill, and bringing to them a power of penetration and criticism not lessened at least by the habits of acute observation acquired in the study of nature.

Grant Squires in his Confession of a Government Censor reveals a striking chapter of the secret history of the war, and gives an interesting account of the methods of supervision, and oftentimes suppression, of cable messages.

Balance-sheets are unhappily scarce among farmers; the few that are taken are hard to get at; for these reasons the one presented by Mr. Frank H. Spearman in the Review of Reviews for March is of especial interest. As Mr. Spearman says, "It is not from a paper farm; it is not a paper balance; nor is it a paper farmer who makes the showing. It is what no American review has ever before presented to its readers—an actual glimpse at the books and workings of a model American farm. This farm, located in the State of Iowa, contains 6,000 acres, and its business is to produce corn." Not only does Mr. Spearman disclose the business workings of this great corn farm, but his article also gives an insight into the business of wheat-growing on a large scale in the Red River Valley of North Dakota.

Mark Twain contributes to the March Forum an article full of his old-time humor. Taking for his text "Diplomatic Pay and Clothes," he discourses, in terms of withering satire, on the meagreness of the stipends which we pay to our diplomatic representatives abroad. He also ridicules, in his unique style of pleasantry, the absence of an official court dress, which, unless our minister happen to have been in the army or the navy, compels him to attend court and public functions, "even at seven in the morning, in that same old funny swallow-tail.

It is a night-dress and a night-dress only,—a night-shirt is not more so. Yet when our representative makes an official visit in the morning, he is obliged to go in that night-dress. It makes the very cab horses laugh."

True Greatness.

The fellow who dwells within his little eight by ten creed can see the whole thing at a glance, but the man on the high hill of truth realizes there is much that lies beyond the range of his vision and the power of his comprehension.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Easy.

Sea Captain—Now, Pat, what would you do if you were left on a barren rock in the middle of the ocean?

Pat—I'd pull out me teeth an live on their roots.—Harlem Life.

French judges and judicial officials are prohibited by the etiquette of their profession from riding in an omnibus.

About 400,000,000 pounds of soap are used in Britain yearly.

The Minneapolis Times,

The leading daily newspaper of the Northwest. It is independent in politics; its editorial columns discuss fearlessly all the great issues of the day. It prints all the news all the time. Its telegraphic, cable, and northwest news service is unrivaled. The price is only $3.00 per year. The JOURNAL is $1.50 per year. Readers of the JOURNAL will receive both papers for $3.50 per year.

The Sunday Times is a weekly magazine of sports, science, fashions, labor news, amusements and literature. Finely illustrated. Only $1.00 per year. With the JOURNAL only $2.02 per year.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O. WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Final Proof.

United Land Office, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 28, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that Judson E. Flemming has filed notice of intention to make final proof before Register and Receiver at his office in Crookston, Minnesota, on Thursday the 6th day of April, 1899 on timber culture application No. 3841 for the s½ ne¼ and lots 1, 2, section No. 6 in township No. 151 n., range No. 47 w.

He names as witnesses:

John Love and Thomas Rutherford, of Key West, Minnesota, Almer N Hixson and John O'Brecht, of Crookston, Minnesota.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

Notice of Expiration of Time of Redemption.

To P. Robert.

You are hereby notified that on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1895, in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to that certain real estate tax judgment which was entered in the District Court in and for the county of Polk, in the 14th Judicial District of the state of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March, A. D. 1895, the following described piece and parcel of land which is situated in Polk county, in the state of Minnesota, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) in section thirty two (32) township one hundred and fifty (150) range forty-five (45) was sold to the state to satisfy the amount for which it was adjudged liable in said judgment, interests and costs for the sum of thirty-four dollars and forty-four cents, that on the 7th day of February, 1899, the above described property was sold under direction of the state auditor for the sum of seventy dollars and sixty-nine cents; that the amount required to redeem said piece and parcel of land from such sale (exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice) is seventy dollars and sixty-nine cents and interest on said amount at the rate of 12 per cent per annum from said 7th day of February, A. D. 1899, until such redemption is made, and that the time for redemption of such piece and parcel of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the county auditor.

Witness my hand and official seal this 23d day of February, A. D. 1899.

[Seal] JOHN GLEASON,
County Auditor of Polk county, Minnesota,
By N. A. HOFFARD, Deputy.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, county of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the common council of said City of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on March 16th, 1899, and terminating on March 18th 1900, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit:

Bertha M. Koelmel at the one story frame building and additions thereby, situate in lot 2, block 2, original townsite of Crookston. Said application will be heard and determined by said common council of the city of Crookston at the regular meeting in the City Hall in said City of Crookston, in Polk county and state of Minnesota.

Tuesday the 14th day of March, A. D. 1899, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 1st day of March, A. D. 1899.

(Seal) 47-50 W. A. LANCTOT, City Clerk.

Application for License to Sell Land.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.
In Probate court, special term, March 1st, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of H. E. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie B. Cooke setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained: the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof: the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to her granted to sell a portion of the real estate of said estate. And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administratrix, Carrie B. Cooke, to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell a part of said real estate:

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Friday the 24th day of March, 1899 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Carrie B. Cooke to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 1st day of March, A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE F. HAGEN.
47-50 Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Sixteen Hundred ($1,600.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Jouline Omang his wife, mortgagors, to C. E. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of August, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 19 of mortgages, on page 151, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of section thirty-four in township one hundred and forty-eight, north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth Principal Meredian in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the heriditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Sixteen Hundred Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorny for Mortgagee. 48-53

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance, in order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. The two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the travelling public. Your nearest ticket agent will give you complete information and furnish you folder of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
[16-tf] Milwaukee, Wis.

Mortgage Forclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four hundred twenty-three and fifty-five One Hundredths Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henrietta Lee Hart and John G. Hart her husband, mortgagors, to Clara A. Reynolds, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of October 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 26th day of October 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m., in book 59 of mortgages on page 254, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The undivided one half of lot number eight (8) in section thirteen (13) in township one hundred fifty (150) north of range forty-seven (47) west, containing seventeen and one-fifth acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, excepting the shore rights along the Red Lake River, in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances: which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 7th day of April 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees as provided by law and as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 17, A. D. 1899.

CLARA A. REYNOLDS,
A. A. MILLER, Mortgagee.
Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 46-52

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one hundred and fifty-three and 94-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Bernt P. Berg and Marie P. Berg, his wife, mortgagors, to J. H. Dewart, mortgagee, bearing date of the 16th day of November, 1895, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 17th day of December, 1895, at 2:20 o'clock p. m., in book 77 of mortgages, on page 62. Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said J. H. Dewart, mortgagee, to George F. Stone, by written assignment dated the 21st day of January 1896, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 21th day of January, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 75, of mortgages on page 467.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section eight (8) of township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of range forty-two (42) west, containing forty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. The said premises consisting of one tract or parcel of land in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances: which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of one hundred and fifty-three and ninety-four one hundredths dollars, and interest, and $6.23 taxes paid by mortgagee on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

The 27th day of March, 1899,

Dated, Feb 7th, A. D. 1899.

GEORGE F. STONE,
Assignee of mortgage.
Martin O'Brien attorney for assignee of mortgage, Crookston, Minn.

Order for Hearing Proof of Will.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk—ss.
In Probate Court, Special term, Feb. 21, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of Anna Alleyne Beck, deceased.

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the Last Will and Testament of Anna Alleyne Beck, late of Middlesex county, Massachusetts, deceased, and the probate thereof in Middlesex county Massachusetts, have been delivered to this Court:

And whereas, Joseph E. Harris has filed therewith his petition representing among other things that said Anna Alleyne Beck lately died in said County of Middlesex, Massachusetts, testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said county of Polk, and that said petitioner is interested in said estate and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to Sarah Philip Beck issued thereon:

It is Ordered, That the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this Court, at the probate court, in said county on Friday, the 17th day of March,

A. D. 1899, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument:

And it is Further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to the said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 21st day of February, A. D. 1899. By the Court,

OLE F. HAGAN,
46-49 Judge of Probate

Summons.

State of Minnesota, county of Polk—ss.
District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District.
Elle Smith, plaintiff, vs
Edward A. Smith, defendant

The state of Minnesota to the above named defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which is filed in the office of clerk of the district court in and for Polk county and state of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer upon the subscriber at his office in the Fournet block, in the city of Crookston, Minnesota, within thirty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated this Jan. 23, 1899.

R. J. MONTAGUE,
Attorney for plaintiff, Crookston, Minnesota.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight ($478.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Jouline Omang, his wife, mortgagors, to C. E. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of August, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 19 of mortgages, on page 152, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-west quarter of the north-east quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter, all in section thirty-four township one hundred and forty-eight of range forty-three west, containing eighty (80) acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances: which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston in said county and State, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 1, A. D. 1898.

O. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee,
48-53 Elbow Lake, Minn.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

DOOM OF FORT SAN JUAN

Deluge of Bullets, Then a Charging Line.

HEROES TELL HOW HEROES FELL.

A Crisis and a Crash When Wikoff's Brigade Went In—Hawkins' Gritty Line and the Cavalry to the Bloody Run—Another Boy Hero, the Son of a Gallant Veteran.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

X.

WIKOFF'S brigade, once it got deep swing in the pathway to the front, resumed the hurricane of battle up to the crowning point. If ever soldiers plunged unblanched through a storm of fire to close with the enemy, those men did. Led by Wikoff's regular and field officers, the Ninth, Thirteenth and Twenty-fourth pushed their way along the trail blocked with halting volunteers. First an aid, running full speed and swinging his hat, signalled the column to hurry forward; next a staff officer galloped up with Kent's second message to Wikoff to rush his command to the field. Eager to do something, even at the risk of disobeying orders, part of the battalion of the volunteers and Rafferty, with F company of another battalion, fell into line, anywhere, anywhere, touching elbows with blacks and whites, so long as they could be "in the swim." Individual volunteers also broke loose from the stationary ranks and elbowed to the front among regulars. One of these independents was Austin Pardee, a boy of 17, son of a former officer of the Thirteenth, who had cried to take his father's place and fight for the flag until his widowed mother yielded.

Fording the creek and giving their burning heads a cooling dip as they passed, the men of the brigade lined up on the bank, leaving Wikoff dead and Worth lying in his blood, the last and most shining sacrifices to the Moloch of "Hell's Crossing." In the broad field on the left of Hawkins' two regiments Wikoff's colonel struck a zone of pitiless fire, and there the third commander of the brigade, grey haired Liscum of the Twenty-fourth, went down. Staff Officer Tayman of the Twenty-fourth told me that his eyes were riveted on the noble leader, whose form could be seen cutting its way through the tall grass with giant strides. Like a flash of lightning he was seen, then disappeared.

In the van of the column the Thirteenth regiment, led by Colonel Worth—as far as "Hell's Crossing," climbed up the bank and went through the wire fence, where gaps had already been made. Major Ellis was at its head, but was soon shot down. There was an open field stretching away up to the blockhouses. This regiment had lost heavily at the crossing, particularly by Spanish shrapnel, but moved resistlessly on until a galling volley fire compelled it to seek shelter under a bank some hundred yards from the fort.

The Ninth regiment, on the left of the Thirteenth, passed the ordeal at the crossing with but little loss. In climbing the bank it was struck by a heavy Mauser fire from the block houses and from the trees, left, right and in front. Pressing on in line with the Thirteenth, the regiment halted at the bank and delivered its fire upon the Spaniards in the trenches at the blockhouse

When the Twenty-fourth regiment of blacks appeared in view above the crest of the river bank, the Spaniards apparently rumed all their fire upon them, hoping, as they said afterward, to demoralize them and precipitate a panic. The blacks didn't store, however.

Just how long these men halted at the bank is uncertain, for there was no cessation of fighting, and lapse of time was not noted. It was Krag-Jorgensen against Mauser in the attempt to subdue the Spanish fire for a charge. This stage of the infantry fight was almost coincidental with the capture of "Kettle" hill by the cavalry, which has already been described, and took place probably between 12:30 and 1 o'clock. Meanwhile Grimes' battery, no longer hampered by the balloon, was vigorously shelling the blockhouse and trenches, as was also Parker's battery. Second artillery, which had taken position to the left and front of Grimes, near El Pozo. The success of the cavalry in clearing "Kettle" hill, really an advanced position of the Spanish line, had allowed the Hotchkiss guns and Parker's Gatlings to cross San Juan river at the ford of the main road and get to high ground on the southern slope of the hill. Parker's advent upon the scene marked a crisis in the attack. He had three guns with him and began shelling upon the blockhouse which Captain Boughton of the Rough Riders pointed out to him. Grimes and Parkhurst, as it remembered, were pouring in their shells, but the Spanish fire was still hot.

Starting with a low rate of speed, Parker gradually turned his guns up to their highest capacity, and in the space of ten minutes, the muzzles of the guns sweeping gradually along the Spanish trenches, sifted 20,000 bullets into the crowded works. Before the enemy realized what the horrid hail meant the ominous sound of its smoking gone had already terrified them, and they began to leave their pits, preferring possible death outside to certain slaughter within. Then silence fell upon the blockhouse, upon its loopholed chambers, upon its batteries, upon its trenches filled with dead.

But all this time neither the cavalry nor the infantry had stood idle waiting for the artillery to do their work. The cavalrymen, who had not been ordered by Summer to remain on "Kettle" hill, formed lines of troops and battalions and plunged down the slope, across the valley and up the farthest slope toward the Spanish second position. When this movement began, San Juan blockhouse was still belching fire, and part of the Third cavalry, together with the Sixth, under Major Lenz, struck out to the left against line for the stubborn fortress Hawkins' men, nearest the cavalry at that time and separated from Wikoff's regiments by shrubbery and trees and the elevation of ground between, marched forward, the Sixteenth apparently leading and deflecting somewhat to the left. At the very head of the Sixteenth regiment ran that stalwart negro, whose powerful muscles had cut through the half dozen strands of barbed wire with one blow. Frenzied with his hatred of the Spaniards and overjoyed that the American army was at his back, he plunged forward, howling like a demon.

As the line neared the crest an officer of the cavalry warned Parker that he was in danger of shooting his own men. "Not yet," said Parker. "The range is too high. I'll stop when they are well up." Some one in Parker's own regiment, the Thirteenth, signaled him with a white handkerchief when to stop. Likewise Grimes and Parkhurst, over 2,000 yards in the rear, trained their glasses on the blockhouse, watched the advancing infantry lines, and just in the nick of time ceased firing, for the concussion of one of Grimes' shells, which fell short, stunned and knocked down Captain McFarland of the Sixteenth regiment. The Hotchkiss battery, from the same range as Parker—that is, the slope of "Kettle" hill—poured 2 inch shell into the blockhouse over the heads of the charging infantry.

The men of the Sixth and Sixteenth aimed for the trenches on the Spanish right and left of the blockhouse, pulling themselves up where the ground was abrupt by grasping the thick, strong grass. Under the very crest they were safe from Spanish fire, but at the top they encountered four strand barbed wire fences, which the men of the Sixteenth cut through, using their nippers. The survivors say that the trenches were filled with dead and wounded Spaniards, whom they had killed by Krag-Jorgensen fire, while halted at the embankment farther down the field. They say also that Parker's guns did good work, especially in their moral effect upon the advancing infantry.

One of the artillery shells had cut down the Spanish flag, which, the men of the Sixteenth say, was lying on the crest when they passed by the blockhouse, or through it, for Lieutenant Carey of Company E did pass through. Two minutes later he saw the Thirteenth men taking the flag from the roof. The men of the Sixteenth say that when they opened fire upon the Spaniards retreating from the blockhouses and trenches some one cried out, "They're Cubans!" The fire was stopped, for the Spanish uniform and that worn by some Cubans was similar; otherwise more Spaniards could have been captured.

When the Spaniards began running, Major Auman of the Thirteenth started ahead shouting: "The Spaniards are running, boys! Forward Thirteenth!" The cheering sweep up to the blockhouse by officers in the brigade, was a general bracer for them all. Auman was a veteran. In the firing line of the Thirteenth was a gallant boy soldier, the son and namesake of General T. M. Anderson, who "with the army in the Philippines. Young Anderson had won his way from the ranks to a lieutenancy.

As the line of the Thirteenth started forward for that last spurt Anderson called out to the men nearest him, "Advance rapidly!" and with about a dozen others broke loose from the line and reached the Spanish ditch which lay farthest down the slope. This ditch had been one of the targets of the Krag-Jorgensens of the Thirteenth. Clamber-

LIEUTENANT T. M. ANDERSON, JR.
(Leader of a brave handful.)

ing up Anderson and his little band moved on around the blockhouse to get within range of the retreating Spaniards. As they passed the blockhouse they saw a Spaniard in the door, who quickly vanished, and supposing there were others also beating retreat, hoped to capture them by going around the fort. At this point Anderson's men were shooting, and one of Anderson's men, Private Agnew of Company B, climbed upon the roof and took the flag down. When the Thirteenth men were showing the flag to the gunners two of Anderson's band were hit, Anderson says that fire came from Spaniards who were under the Red Cross flag in some buildings on the outskirts of Santiago. The Thirteenth men thought that the captured flag was a Cuban one, as it fell into and distributed the pieces. The gallant Major Auman was wounded before he reached the blockhouse, and the senior officer of the hill, Captain Forsmon, was cut down at the blockhouse with a wound which caused his death next day.

The Twenty-fourth regiment was led up the hill by Captain Wolcott, who took command after Liscum fell. The charge of this regiment of negroes is lauded by all who witnessed it.

GEORGE L. KIBBEE.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, March 8.

The Russian minister to Servia has been recalled on the complaint that he was not invited to a recent court banquet.

Miss Caroline Hazard of Peacedale, R. I., has been elected president of the Wellesley college to succeed Mrs. Julia J. Irvine.

The navy department is informed that the cruiser Baltimore and the monitor Monterey, which have been in dock at Hong Kong, have arrived at Manila.

July asked the United States to support her in seizing Chinese territory, but the United States declined. Italy's action is regarded a formal recognition of our new position in international affairs.

Thomas Donaldson of Bath Beach, L. I., known the world over as a champion high diver, dove from the roof of Madison Square Garden, New York, a distance of 85 feet, with probably fatal results.

Friday, March 10.

Rumor again makes Archbishop Ireland a cardinal.

Mgr. Clari, the papal nuncio at Paris, who was stricken with apoplexy a few days since, is dead.

Edward F. Bogert, postmaster of Wilkesbarre, has been arrested charged with tampering with the United States mails. He was detected opening letters.

The governor of Oklahoma has vetoed the bill regulating the practice of medicine on the ground that it interfered with religious liberty. The measure aimed at Christian Science.

It is reported from Boston that the Isle Royale Copper Mining company, capital $2,500,000, and the Miners Copper company, capital $2,000,000, have been consolidated. The latter is a Standard Oil company.

Saturday, March 11.

The czar's peace congress will meet at The Hague May 18.

Mrs. Cody has been convicted of trying to blackmail George and Helen Gould.

Spain is reported to have sold the Caroline, Pelew and Marianne islands to Germany.

Great Britain repeats that she will defend China against the aggression of other powers in certain events.

Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage has resigned his Washington pastorship, to devote all his time to religious journalism.

The United States' attitude regarding the dismemberment of China will be one of "disinterested neutrality."

The Shanghai correspondent of the London Daily Mail says that Japan is supporting China in her attitude toward the Italian demands for a concession in San Mun bay.

Monday, March 6.

Queen Victoria has arrived at Nice. Ex-Congressman Carl C. Rhoads of Virginia is dead.

Congressman Green of the Sixth Nebraska district died suddenly at Omaha. He was a Populist in politics.

The engagement is reported of General Joseph Wheeler and Miss Annie W. Childs, widow of the Philadelphia publisher.

Captain Morton Levy Phillips, commander of the United States revenue cutter Boutwell, is dead at Newbern, N. C., of the grip, aged 61.

The total appropriations of the late South Dakota legislative session were $1,260,945, of which $699,932 were included in special bills and $887,000 in general appropriations.

The Japanese government intends to engage in the iron and steel business on a large scale and at once, and is making liberal appropriations and generous expenditures to establish a plant. About $9,000,000 has been appropriated for that purpose.

Tuesday, March 15.

Willie" Wilde, brother of Oscar Wilde, is dead.

The Delaware legislature adjourned without electing a senator.

Herbert Putnam of Boston has been appointed librarian of congress.

The conflict over the military bill in Germany may cause a dissolution of the reichstag.

The United States, Great Britain and Germany have reached an agreement on Samoa.

Excepting the volunteer engineers and humanes, all the volunteer troops in Cuba will be brought home before May.

The steamers Nelson and Cleveland, which will be used mainly for the transportation of freight for the Pacific, have been chartered by the war department.

The navy department has been reinforced by Admiral Dewey that the supply ship Glacier has left Manila with supplies for the new naval station at Guam.

Wednesday, March 16.

Richard H. Leech, chief engineer United States navy, retired, is dead at his home in Brooklyn.

The Spanish cabinet has approved the queen regent to ratify the peace treaty without waiting for the cortes.

Sanagamanke Beebee of Chicago has confessed he boiled the body of his wife in a large kettle and then buried the remnants.

General Otis will not allow Spain to famous the prisoners held by Aguinaldo, as the rebel position is said to be greatly strengthened by so much money.

Alfred Daniels, weight 480 pounds, is dead at Lehigh, Ia. At one time he weighed 604 pounds and amassed a fortune, traveling with circuses and other like shows.

According to the Berlin Tageblatt an agreement for the building by Cecil Rhodes of a railroad across German territory in Africa has practically been completed. The road is contemplated will cross Africa north and south.

Dangers of Filters.

Filters for purifying water are of many kinds in their mechanical structure, but, according to the report of the Maryland state board of health, it would appear that such filters may steadily lose, efficiency until they become first class culture beds for bacteria. In evidence of this position an example cited is that of a man in Baltimore who used the whole water supply of his house through a large filter and subsequently pate his drinking water through one of the small domestic filters common in the market.

A test of this arrangement showed that on a day when the city taps were running 810 bacteria to the cubic centimeter the large filter was delivering some 0,900 bacteria in the same water. When the large filter was repacked, only 6 bacteria per centimeter got through it, though the same water when passed through the small filter came out with 12 bacteria per centimeter.

This aspect of the matter is still further strengthened by another example, in case where a filter supposed to be the best in the market was in use. The effectiveness of this filter was so short lived that the precaution was observed of boiling the water after it was filtered.

What He Didn't Know.

"They say that ex-Mayor Latrobe went to some sort of a celebration given by the Ebenezer colored church down on Montgomery street," said a man about town. "He was asked to speak and of course complied in his usual style. You have passed this church after a great man, he said, 'and I hope you will try to emulate his example. He was a man who couldn't be led astray by any one and believed his first duty was to God and then to his fellow man. He was a'— Well, I don't know what all he didn't say about that fellow Ebenezer, but anyhow he noticed after coming out or other his address wasn't as unanimously received as usual, and he drove away after the meeting behind Old Lib he was humming the old hymn 'Here I Raise My Ebenezer' and trying to figure the matter out. When he got home he asked a good Christian lady, who happened to be there on a visit, who Ebenezer was.

"'Why, you goose,' said she, 'Ebenezer won't a name. Ebenezer means a stone. Didn't you know that?'

"Now when General Latrobe addresses a church audience he carries a pocket Bible dictionary with him."—Baltimore News.

For the Shah.

During the time that he remains the little colony of 60 or 70 English people at Teheran organize concerts for one another's amusement. There is a dance now and then at the legation, and when the weather is cold of course there is skating. Skating is the most popular amusement of all to the Persians. Some years ago the late shah, Naser-i-Din, saw 20 skaters twirling and curling and jumping gracefully on the ice. He was amazed. He thought it wonderful. The next day he sent to the legation and borrowed a dozen pairs of the skates. These he made his ministers put on and attempt to skate on the lake in the royal grounds. The poor ministers were terrified. Around they went in their fur coats as much as their heads were worth to refuse. His majesty was more amused than ever, and he nearly had an apoplectic fit from laughing.

Hamam Heaters.

In considering the problem of heating the large department stores which are now to be found in nearly every big city it is very well worth taking into consideration the ground covered by the many customers who come into such establishments. That this is conducive to health in no small degree is also of at least one engineer, who, in one such case, found that after 9:30 a. m. on a day in question, with the thermometer at the freezing point, no other heat was needed to keep the place warm. The fact, however, emphasizes as well the great need of a good system of ventilation in such buildings, as without it the air would soon become vitiated much beyond any reasonably permissible degree. — Chanter's Magazine.

Icehouse Fires.

Curiously, an icehouse is the most dangerous place in the world for a fire. Insurance rates are so high on ice sheds as to be almost prohibitive of any policies being taken out. Spontaneous combustion is responsible for the fires in ice sheds, according to some authorities. When a layer of ice is sawed from the top and sides in summer, an immense amount of heat is set free. The conditions are exactly favorable, spontaneous combustion takes place. Others believe that a new ice surrounded and moisture is created by the melting ice and that this attracts lightning. In any case an icehouse is a beautiful place for a fire.

Rather Close.

"The straightest man I ever knew was a fellow who lived in going up stairs always skipped a step in order to save his shoe leather."

"That's nothing! I once knew a man who was so stingy that he wouldn't eat his own dinner when he was home but would borrow a jackknife, because he didn't want to wear out his own."—Chicago News.

Nothing Liberal About It.

Wilkins—I understand you are giving your son a liberal education.

Simkins—Liberal, indeed! All of it. They don't give anything away at the college where he is. I have to pay for every playing thing he gets.—Boston Transcript.

Fatal.

That plants when injured suffer from fever is a new discovery by a British botanist. Plants suffer in a similar manner as animals, under like conditions. The rate of respiration increases, and the temperature rises, reaching a maximum in within 24 hours.

BABY'S SMOOTH, FAIR SKIN

A Grateful Mother Writes this Letter—Tells all about Her Troubles when Baby Broke out with Scrofula Sores.

"At the age of two months, my baby began to have sores break out on his right cheek. We used all the external applications that we could think or hear of, to no avail. The sores spread all over one side of his face. We consulted a physician and tried his medicine, and in a week the sore was gone. But to my surprise in two weeks more another scrofulous looking sore appeared on baby's arm. It grew worse and worse, and when he was three months old, I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before the first bottle was finished, the sores were well and have never returned. He is now four years old, but he has never had any sign of those scrofulous sores since he was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I feel very grateful. My boy owes his good health and smooth, fair skin to this great medicine." Mrs. S. S. Whoyen, Farmington, Delaware. Get only Hood's.

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient and easy to effect. 25 cents.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

Can't Twiddle Their Thumbs.

The gorilla and chimpanzee, which belong to the highest order of apes, have many points of resemblance to man, but there is one thing they cannot do—that is, twiddle their thumbs.

In the gorilla the thumb is short and does not reach much beyond the bottom of the first joint of the forefinger, so it is very much restricted in its movements, and the animal can neither twiddle his thumbs nor "chase them round" so that the tips describe a circle.

There are the same number of bones in the hand of a gorilla as in the hand of man, but the thumbs of the monkey have no separate flexor or bending muscle. This is why a monkey always keeps the thumb on the same side as the fingers and never bends it round any object that may be grasped.

In the gorilla the web between the fingers extends to the second joint, and the fingers taper to the tips, and there is a subsidiary nail on the outside of the thumbnail at the freezing point, no other heat was needed to keep the place warm. The fact, however, emphasizes as well the great need of a good system of ventilation in such buildings, as without it the air would soon become vitiated much beyond any reasonably permissible degree. — Chanter's Magazine.

EXCURSION RATES
—TO—
WESTERN CANADA

AND particulars how to secure 160 acres of the best wheat-growing land on the Continent can be secured on application to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or the undersigned.

Specially Conduced ExcurSions

For Manitoba, Assiniboia,

Alberta and Saskatchewan will leave St. Paul, Minn., on the first and third Wednesdays in each month, and specially low rates on all lines of railway are being booked for the monmouth excursion leaving St. Paul on April 5th.

N. Campbell, Crookston, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villard, Minn., local agents.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from

St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

FARM PROFITS

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the FARMER, STOCKMAN, DAIRYMAN, GARDENER, POULTRYMAN, APIARIST, FRUITIST, AND HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year.

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.

Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial 15 cts.

With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Jessie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

DEFECTIVE PAGE

WITH HEAVY LOSS

FILIPINOS TO THE NUMBER OF THREE THOUSAND

Came Down Upon the Americans at Pasig and, Were Driven Back With Heavy Loss—General Wheaton's Brigade Was Engaged—Their Loss Slight—About Four Hundred Filipinos Taken Prisoners.

MANILA, March 15.—4:45 p. m.—General Lloyd Wheaton, commanding the United States flying column, attacked and defeated a force of 3,000 Filipinos at Pasig during the afternoon, inflicting a heavy loss upon them. The American loss was slight. The Americans captured 350 Filipinos. Many bodies of rebels killed in the engagement are floating down the river.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The following dispatch from General Otis has been received by the war department:

"Manila, March 15.—Adjutant General, Washington. Three thousand insurgents moved down at night to towns of Pasig and Porteros, on shores Laguanda bay, fronting Wheaton's troops on Pasig river line. By heavy fighting Wheaton has dislodged and driven them back, taking 400 prisoners and inflicting heavy loss in killed and wounded. His reports his loss as very moderate; he now occupies these towns, with sufficient force to hold them.

CITY OF PASIG TAKEN.

General Wheaton's Division Has a Lively Engagement.

MANILA, March 14.—General Wheaton attacked and captured the city of Pasig, east of Manila, during the afternoon. The enemy made a stand for an hour, but at the end of that time were forced to retreat. The loss of the Filipinos was 30 killed and 16 wounded. Of the United States forces three were killed and six wounded.

At daylight Brigadier General Wheaton's divisional brigade, consisting of the Twentieth United States infantry, the Twenty-second infantry, eight companies of the Washington volunteers, seven companies of the Oregon volunteers, three troops of the Fourth United States cavalry, and a mounted battery of the Sixth artillery, was drawn up on a ridge behind San Pedro Macati, a mile south of the town.

The advance was sounded at 6:30 a. m., the cavalry leading the column at a smart trot, across the open, to the right, eventually reaching a clump commanding the rear of Guadalupe.

Supported by the Oregon volunteers, the advance force opened a heavy fire on the rebels. The response was feeble and desultory, apparently coming from handfuls of men in every covert. While the right column was swinging toward the town of Pasig, they advanced, pouring volleys into the bush.

A small body of rebels made a determined stand at Guadalupe church, but the enemy was unable to withstand the assault.

Gunboat Shells the Banks.

At 7:30 a. m. a river gunboat started towards Pasig. The rebels were first encountered by the vessel in the jungle near Guadalupe. Steaming slowly, the gunboat shelled the banks and threw her Gatling guns into the brush. For all of an hour the whizzing of the rapid fire guns alternated with the booming of the heavier guns on board.

In the meantime Scott's battery adores was shelling the trenches and driving the enemy back. The artillery then advanced to the ridge of bamboo and drove a few of the enemy's sharpshooters away with volleys from their carbines. The artillery then advanced and met with little opposition. In the meantime the column moved forward in extended order, the Washington regiment resting on the bank of the river, each regiment deploying on reaching its station and furnishing its own supports.

The entire column then wheeled towards the river, driving the enemy toward his supports and then advanced on Guadalupe. The artillery moved to a ridge commanding Pasig and Porteros. By this time the enemy was in full flight along a line over a mile long, and the firing was discontinued temporarily in order to give the troops a rest before making the attack on Pasig. The enemy's loss was believed to be severe, but only eight Americans were wounded.

Attack on Pasig Resumed.

After a short rest, General Wheaton resumed the attack on Pasig. Scott's battery, supported by two companies of the Twentieth regiment, advanced on Guadalupe by the road along the river bank, the remainder of the Twentieth regiment and the Twenty-second following with the reserve of the Oregon volunteers.

At 11:30 a. m. the column came in contact with the enemy and a gunboat steamed to the front and poured shells into the jungle on both sides while the battery took a position on a bluff at the right. The first shot from the American field pieces at 1,200 yards range dislodged a gun of the enemy at Pasig.

After the town had been shelled, the Twentieth regiment lined up on the bluff, and the Twenty-second took a position on the left of the place, with the cavalry in the centre, whereupon the enemy retreated to the town. The gunboat then moved down a bend opposite, and a hot fire on the rebel position was maintained along the whole American line until 2:20 p. m., when preparations were made for the attack.

The whole American line bivouacked at 5 o'clock.

San Juan Hill as a Park.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 13.—A movement is on foot here to persuade the United States government to purchase San Juan hill to be used as a public park. The idea is that a certain portion could be set apart to be used as an American cemetery and the site of a mortuary church.

ANXIOUS TO FIGHT.

Said at Washington That Volunteers at Manila Do Not Want to Return.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—One of the paragraphs of the reorganization army act contains authority for the re-enlistment of the volunteer troops now in the Philippines. It was stipulated that these troops should be so re-enlisted only for a period of time necessary to transport them by regular troops—in no case longer than six months. The question has been presented to the war department whether or not it was also under this provision, to avail itself of the services of the officers of the volunteer regiments as well as of the enlisted men until the troops can be replaced by regulars.

The law officers of the department have concluded that the word "enlist" employed in the act was used in a broad sense and that, therefore, the president has authority to Take Over All the Volunteer Regiments now at Manila, and other points in the Philippines, into the service of the United States, in organizations, with their full complements of officers and men.

It has been represented that the volunteers there are longing to return to the United States and to private life. The officials say that this is a mistake. General Otis has reported that the volunteers, as well as regulars, do not want to come home, but are anxious to fight and "crush the insurgents." Nearly every company has suffered through the wounding of some of its members at the hands of the sharpshooters and they are anxious to make the account even.

GENERALS MUSTERED OUT.

Number of Volunteer Officers No Longer Needed in the Service.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—By direction of the president the following named general officers are honorably discharged from the volunteer army of the United States, their services being no longer required. Major General Wesley Merritt, Brigadier Generals Abraham K. Arnold, Alexander C. M. Pennington, Simon Snyder, George M. Randall, Michael V. Sheridan, Henry T. Douglas, Henry V. Boynton, Chamber McKibbin, Gilbert S. Carpenter, Charles P. Hougland. The above named will relieve their aides and order them to join their regiments. Brigadier General McKibbin will proceed to Columbus Barracks, O., and assume command of that post. The other officers exclusively of the volunteer army will proceed to their homes, while those of the permanent establishment will join their regiments.

It should be explained that the reduction in the list of general officers made by the order is not sufficient in itself to meet the demands of existing law. There must be a further cut, in fact the list of major generals and brigadier generals will be reduced by reduction by 10 altogether in order to bring the list down to the 15 permitted by the strength of the regular army.

ANGLO-GERMAN ENTENTE.

Recent Events Said to Mark the End of Their Enmity.

LONDON, March 13.—Emperor William, it is announced, will arrive at Cowes on June 29 for yachting week. The Daily Graphic, in commenting on the announcement, says: "Coming immediately after the emperor's reception of Cecil Rhodes, it marks the complete reconciliation of Great Britain and Germany."

The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "I am informed that Emperor William displayed great interest in the conference with Cecil Rhodes, asking many questions as to the latter's success, without going into details or revealing his own views."

WINES DAMPENS HOPES.

Acting Census Director Makes a Disconcerting Statement to Applicants.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Acting Director of the Census Wines has given out a statement designed to offset the belief that a large number of census appointments will be made at once. It says that under the census act not more than 90 places are provided for above the grade of class 1, with a maximum compensation of $1,200 per year, and that one-fourth of these are staff positions, for which none but experts need apply. Applicants for clerkships of higher grade than class 1 are expected to enter lower classes and be promoted on merit.

SUBSTITUTES A DEMAND.

Italy Withdraws Her "Request" for Cession of San Mun Bay.

PEKIN, March 12.—The Italian minister, Signor Martino, has addressed a note to the foreign office, making a request to take back the Italian dispatch asking for a concession and notifying the foreign office to accept it as a demand, adding that he was willing to enter into friendly negotiations as to the details, but insisting upon an answer within four days.

This note was couched in courteous terms, but the Chinese regard it in the nature of an ultimatum, to which they will probably yield.

MOSTLY DUE TO DISEASE.

Nearly Six Thousand Deaths in the Army Since May 1, 1898.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The following statement has been issued showing the total number of deaths reported to the adjutant general's office between May 1, 1898, and Feb. 28, 1899. Killed in action, 329; died of wounds, 132; died of disease, 5,277; total, 5,761.

President Goes South.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—President and Mrs. McKinley and a party of friends left this city Tuesday evening for a vacation of ten days or two weeks at Thomasville, Ga. The trip is made via the Atlantic Coast line and the Plant system aboard a splendid train of Pullman cars; perfect in equipment, with every provision for the comfort and safety of the party.

NONE BUT UNCLE SAM

GOMEZ SAYS THERE IS ONLY ONE POWER IN CUBA AT PRESENT.

Natives Can Do Nothing Only by Permission of American Authorities—Assembly still at Work—Passes a Resolution Declaring That the $3,000,000 Is Far From Sufficient—Rumor Is in Circulation That General Brooke Will Dissolve That Body.

HAVANA, March 15.—General Gomez says he recognizes only one power in the island—that of the United States. All that the Cubans can do, he declares, is by permission of the American authorities, and therefore the military assembly can only talk. In his opinion the assembly is acting as it does because it wants to get more money out of the United States. In this connection he points out that the assembly first proposed to ask for $60,000,000. As for himself he avers that he is not a beggar. The United States government offered the $3,000,000 and he has never asked an increase in the gift. Indeed, he says, to ask more would be undignified and improper. To all callers General Gomez speaks lightly of the assembly, declaring that it was his creation as he did not wish to appear a dictator, and that the real military members who took no part in the vote to depose him will now reign. He calls the assembly "a collection of black clouds with much thunder but little rain."

ASSEMBLY STILL AT IT.

Attempts to Justify Its Action Expelling Gomez.

HAVANA, March 15.—The military assembly met during the afternoon with the ordinary guard. Most of the time was occupied in discussing the pronouncement which is to be issued with a view of justifying last Saturday's action in the eyes of the people.

General Sanguilly introduced a motion protesting against the acceptance of the $3,000,000, preceding it with a long preamble declaring the assembly was ready to co-operate with the United States in maintaining order in Cuba. The motion called for the adoption of resolutions "in the name of the armed people of Cuba." The first extended the thanks of the assembly to the United States for aid during the recent war. The second thanked the United States for but went on to assert "that owing to the assembly's exact knowledge of the needs of the Cuban soldiers, its members consider it their duty to declare the amount insufficient."

The Offer of $3,000,000;

The "document of justification" was then read. It is very long and enters cases to show the disobedience of General Gomez to the assembly, declaring that those familiar with the inner history of the war, know that strained relations always existed between him and the Cuban civil authority.

A rumor is in circulation that the Washington government will dissolve the assembly. It is published in an extra edition of La Discusion. The suggestion has frequently been made to General Brooke to take such a course, but up to this time he has formed no such intention.

PEOPLE UPHOLD GOMEZ.

Cuban General Receiving Support From All Over the Island.

HAVANA, March 15.—11 a. m.—The action of Civil Governor Adna Chaffee's police department in attempting to prevent the popular manifestations in favor of General Maximo Gomez is strongly censured, and the ill feeling against the police runs high. The people consider that their rights and freedom have been attacked and the action of Governor General Brooke in restraining the Cuban authorities from interfering has pleased the people and is favorably commented upon.

General Gomez is receiving hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the island, expressing the people's allegiance and loyalty to him, and to Cuba. General Cespedes, who defended General Gomez at Saturday's session of the military assembly, has resigned his membership of that body.

THE POWERS ACQUIESCED.

Had Been Notified of Italy's Intention to Demand San Mun.

ROME, March 15.—In the chamber of deputies, Admiral Canevaro, minister of foreign affairs, made a comprehensive statement regarding Italy's action in China. He confirmed the reported recall of Signor Martino, Italian minister at Pekin, and announced that Italy had obtained the approval of Great Britain and Japan before demanding the concession at San Mun. Great Britain, however, had requested, he said, that force should not be employed and had promised in return to give her diplomatic support to Italy at the court of Pekin.

Other friendly powers, the minister continued, were also notified and indicated their acquiescence.

BY ORDER OF EAGAN.

All Canned Beef Purchased Was by His Direction.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Colonel O. M. Smith, purchasing agent of the government at Chicago since 1895, testified before the government court of inquiry that the canned roast beef bought by him during the Spanish war was upon the direct order of General Eagan, commissary general. He also stated some purchases of canned beef were made without his knowledge by the commissary general.

One of the day's important witnesses was Gustav Swift, head of the packing house of Swift & Co. Good progress was made by the court, but the end of the list of witnesses to be examined in Chicago is not yet in sight.

TO A CERTAIN EXTENT.

Military Rule in Cuba to Give Way to Civil Government.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The administration is contemplating a change in some features of the government of Cuba. It is probable that the military government will, to a certain extent be reduced by civil government. The head of the government must, of course, remain military, but the change in the contemplation is to have civil officers in place of military men in the cabinet and subordinate positions. It is believed that experts in different lines, such as finance and revenue, and the management of much of the general business of the island and of the different municipalities, will get along more smoothly than the army officers. It is said that the officers, being brought up under strict military discipline, hold not only the statutes, but the army rules and regulations as the guide in all things while the civilian officers would hold the statutes as the supreme guide, and endeavor to get along under them in the best manner possible, and with more diplomacy than is possessed by the army men. It is not known whether the contemplated change has reached a point further than discussion in the war department and with the president, but the advantages have been pointed out, and the authority of the government to establish such a civil government under control of the military government has been determined.

WOULD STOP THE WAR.

Prominent Peace Men Issue an Appeal to the People.

BOSTON, March 15.—An appeal to the people of the United States urging "all lovers of freedom" to co-operate with them in an endeavor to persuade the government to suspend hostilities in the Philippines and confer with the Filipino leaders, with a view of preventing further bloodshed, by recognizing their independence upon the guarantee of protection to property by the natives, has been issued over the signature of more than a score of prominent men.

Among the signers are: Ex-Governor George S. Boutwell of Massachusetts, ex-Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont, ex-Secretary of State John Sherman, Senator Jonathan Dolliver of Iowa, W. Bourke Cockran of New York, Benjamin G. Lamme of Indiana, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts, Edward Atkinson of Massachusetts, Carl Schurz of New York, Herman von Holst of Chicago university, Patrick A. Collins of Massachusetts, Andrew Carnegie of New York, Rev. Dr. Charles Parkhurst of New York.

Jack Chinn Declared a Nuisance.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 15.—As a result of the assault made by Colonel Jack Chinn upon Hon. C. J. Bronston in the Phoenix hotel last Wednesday, the grand jury has returned an indictment against Chinn for common nuisance "by using insulting, abusive, indecent and profane language for the purpose of provoking an assault."

Relief at Gibraltar.

GIBRALTAR, March 14.—The United States hospital ship Relief, from New York for Manila, has arrived here.

A Slater Lost.

At one time Cheyennes got to gambling, one lost, and luck seemed to be against him. After he had lost every piece of property he had, in desperation he put up his sister and lost her. This aroused great indignation through the tribe, so one night it is reported that the unfortunate girl should not go and live as the wife of the man who had won her in a game of cards.

Over 20 years ago the writer was superintendent of the Arapahoe Indian school at Darlington during a period of five years. During this time not less than four young Indian women came to the school, seeking admittance and protection from marriage that was about to be forced upon them. The protection was given, and the young women afterward married according to the white man's custom. Since then these tribes have been gradually breaking away from their original customs until now they are rapidly taking on the lawful marriage rites.—Southern Workman and Hampton School Record.

Wanted—A Playfellow.

The Two—Mrs. Reagan, can your little Jamesie come an play wid us?

Mrs. Reagan—Yis. Yez are good byes ter let little Jamsie play wid yez. But are yez going to play?

One of the Two—William Toll. We want Jamesie ter stand on a barrel on his head. Sinney is William Toll. He hain't a very good shot, an I was afeard to stand myself.—Harlem Life.

Declining Love.

Lottie—I'm afraid Fred doesn't care for me as much as he did.

Edith—Nonsense! What makes you think so?

Lottie—I got a letter from him today, and there were at least three places where he might have put in a "dear" or a "darling" and didn't.—Boston Transcript.

His Object.

Mr. Bunsby—If that young man's coming here to see you every day in the week you had better give him a hint to stay away.

Miss Bunsby—I don't think it's necessary, ps. That's what he comes after.—Tit-Bits.

It Does Help.

It takes off a good deal of the suffering attending illness and adds greatly to the pleasures of existence for the doctor to tell you that yours was one of the worst cases he ever attended.—Boston Transcript.

Deserved.

Bill—Why do you call your friend a popular song writer?

Jill—Because he never sings his own songs.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. ERSKINE President, J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. WM. ANGUS, Vice-President H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits. Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

George R. Erskine. A. A. Millen. Wm. Angus. J. R. Erskine. E. M. Walsh. L. Fontaine J. P. Foote. W. R. Crosby. J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON.....PRESIDENT. H. STENERSON.....VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS.....VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON.....CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe Havana cross drills, eight Broadcast wheel seeders, ten gang plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 36 inch Minneapolis separator, two sets Howe's 6-foot self-rakers, one, one Kansas city hay press, ten harvesters and self binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, each piece being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap to responsible purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FARM LOANS

NO DELAY. NO BONUS.

DO YOU Want to Renew, Want a new loan? Without Delay?

Call at the First National Bank of Crookston and see

J. W. WHEELER.

CHRISTIANSON & STRANDER,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞CHOICE FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchaser.☜

Office o Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

Cleveland Hotel, Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor

Main and Fourth Sts.

This popular hotel is again re-opened to the public under new management. The new proprietor will spare no pains nor expense in the effort to provide for the comfort of his guests. His effort will be to keep up the reputation its guests have won and he invites the farmers to still consider this a leveled their headquarters when in the city.

PRINTING Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

Historical SOCIETY.

VOL. XXII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MARCH 23, 1899 NO 50

Township Officers.

TOWN OF CROOKSTON.

Supervisors, J. A. Wynad chairman, W. M. Heinrich and W. M. Young.
A. J. Kelley, clerk.
Jos. Sauve, treasurer.
S. S. Kolden, assessor.
William Young and J. E. Harris, justices of the peace.
T. B. McMannus, constable.

TOWN OF ROOME.

Chairman of supervisors, J. J. Ide.
F. L. Davis, assessor.
Andrew Ellby, clerk.

TOWN OF HUBBARD.

Chairman of supervisors, Frank Hanson.
Andrew J. Grisetb, assessor.
Andrew Monson, clerk.

MCINTOSH.

Th. S. Berg, president of council.
Hans Bolstad, Nils Zitterberg, C. T. Laaman, trustees.
C. L. Cosger, treasurer.
John Peterson, recorder.
S. H. Drew, M. W. Jensen, justices.
Kaute Jacobson, constable.
M. W. Jensss, assessor.
Liceases carried by sinsteen majority.

ERSKINE.

Thos. Torgerson, pres. of council.
C. Dillon. G. Stenerson, P. Rolsum, trustees.
H. J. Narvesos, recorder.
G. Odegaard, treasurer.
Thos. Torgersos and C. Finsend, justices.
C. Osby, constable.
Llcense carried by 12 majority.

KING TOWNSHIP.

Jsna J. Alrick, chairman,
Ommal Olson, Osov Frolrak, supervisors.
Chas. McCarty, clerk.
K. P. Iggen, treasurer.
J. D. Knutsos and J. J. Vaatveit, justices.
B. L. Bjugstad, constable.

ELM CREEK TOWNSHIP.

L. P. Strom, chairman,
B. O. Narvesos, Ole Landsverk, supervisors.
Nils Lofthus, clerk.
Knute Horvik, treasurer.
Andrew Trovsten, assessor.
Dreag Grundysen, justice.
A. Norby, constable.

HILL RIVER TOWNSHIP.

L. J. Dahl, chairman,
N. Swanson, Ole Lilleave, supervisors.
Fred. S. Syversos, clerk.
A. W. Torgersos, treasurer.
Th. Thorkelsos, assessor.
Chas. Thomas, justice.
Louis Thompson and N. Sortedahl, constables.

KNUTE TOWNSHIP.

Lard N. Nilsos, chairman,
Martin Gallison, C. C. Ness, supervisors.
J. B. Oppegaard, clerk.
John O. Meston, assessor.
O. H. Dale and J. E. Oppegaard, justices.
Erick Aaderson, constable.

LESSOR TOWNSHIP.

P. A. Brandt, chairman,
P. O. Johnson, A. Bilden, supervisors.
Martin Bergsven, clerk.
Christ Lerum, treasurer.
Christ Matteson, assessor.
H. Helgeson and O. Easby, justices.
Jorgen Sannes and Iver Bilden, constables.

CHESTER TOWNSHIP.

L. J. O'Neil, chairman,
T. N. Grover, Ole Flatland, supervisors.
O. J. Matson, clerk.
Anton Teigen, treasurer.
H. C. Berg, assessor..
L. J. O'Neil, justice.
H. C. Berg and J. H. Johnson, constables.

WINGER TOWNSHIP.

Peter Erikson, chairman,
Thomas J. Haugen, H. J. Soll, supervisors.
L. A. Wik, clerk.
Sanders J. Slettes, treasurer.
Herman E. Wold, assessor.
Albert Johnson, justice.
Stener Tvetten and Bess Eriksen, constables.

COLUMBIA TOWNSHIP.

Ole K. Ringstad, chairman,
Ole J. Borud, Chas. H. Kampstad, supervisors.
O. M. Olson, clerk.
Andrew Jensen, treasurer.
Hans G. Rohoil, assessor.
Ole. K. Bindgtad, justice.

ROSEBUD TOWNSHIP.

Gust Ecklund, chairman.
Andrew E. Johnson, Martin Tangen, supervisors.
John E. Juverud, clerk.
C. F. Hasselton, treasurer.
Hans G. Rohoil, assessor.
John Vig, justice.
John Stewart, constable.

FOSSTON.

L. W. Larsos, pres. of council,
M. E. Randkler, J. E. Campbell, E. D. Barness, trustees.
W. E. Black, recorder.
O. R. Vaallar, treasurer.
K. Movold, justics.
W. H. Cowing and A. W. Smith, constables.

Additional boads for $4,000 carried.

TOWN OF BRANDSVOLD.

R. E. Flaskerud chairman, Andrew Volden, A. J. Nyestvold, supervisors.
K. O. Bratvold, clerk.
F. E. Sather, treasurer.
Ole Thorgerson, justice.
Chris Thorsson, assessor.
Will Halvorsos, constable.

VILLAGE OF FERTILE.

Judge Holton president, J. A. Gregerson, T. H. Nesseth and Lars Knutson, councilmen.
E. L. Johnson, recordar.
Martin Erickson, treasurer.
F. J. Cusningham, assessor.
F. J. Cunningham, Peter Matsos, justices of the peace.
Kaute I. Haugsa, constable.
For license 30, against license 74.

TOWN OF ANDOVER.

Supervisors, J. C. Knudsos, chairman, Chas. Matsos and Ole Volland.
Clerk, E. M. Bivins.
Treasurer, Lonis Lockea.
Assessor, H. C. Peterson.
Justice of Peace, Erick Samuelson.
Constable C. C. Thygesos.

TOWN OF PARNELL.

Supervisors, C. Casavan, chairman, M. Casey, E. O'Neill.
Clerk, H. A. Wynad.
Treasurer, Tim Donahue.
Assessor, Pat Filbin.
Justice of Peace, Owen Filbin.
Constable, Dan O'Neill.

TOWN OF GARFIELD.

Supervisors, Knute Nelson, chairman, H. A. Gullickson, Knute Opheim,
Clerk, Brown A Harvik.
Treasurer, Andrew O Morvig.
Assessor, Knute Bolstad.
Justice of Peace, Andrew I Haugen.
Constable, Erick M. Dale.

TOWN OF GROVE PARK.

Supervisors A. D. Tice, chairman, H. Elliott, John Benoy.
Clerk, E. E. Abbott.
Treasurer, John E. Tice.
Assessor, Rufus Barker.
Justice of Peace, E. E. Abbott, L. W. Borchert.
Constable, Boyd P. Vas Gordos.

TOWN OF ROOME.

Supervisors, J. J. Ide, chairman, Albert Araess, J. Sangstad.
Clerk, A. Ellby.
Treasurer, H. H. Thoreson.
Assessor, F. L. Davis.
Justice of Peace, A. Ellby.
Constable, T. M. Boyer.

TOWN OF EUCLID.

Supervisors, Thos. Myers, chairmas, Casper Tiedeman, Fred Goosen,
Clerk, P. C. Keeley.
Treasurer, Peter Stuhr.
Assessor, Robt. Teal.
Constable, Thos. Kesley.

TOWN OF WYLIE.

Supervisors, Chas. Linquist, chairman, Peter Saver and Z. Bray.
Clerk, O. T. Romsos.
Treasurer, P. E. Smidesang.
Assessor, Chas. Sibel.
Justice of Peace, O. T. Romsos.

TOWN OF BRAY.

Supervisors, C. C. Eklund, chairman, A. E. Anderson and Ed. Crown.
Clerk, John E. Peterson.
Treasurer, Ole Tornon.
Assessor, John E. Larson.
Justices of Peace, C. C. Eklund and C. P. Swanson.
Constable, Ernest Akerlund.

TOWN OF TABOR.

Supervisors, John Brandl, chairman, Mat Vanek and Frank Kobecky.
Clerk, F. J. Cernousek.
Treasurer, Frank Kluzak.
Assessor, John Kunel.
Justices of Peace, F. J. Cernousek and Albert Waura.
Constables, J. B. Bren, and James Wavra.

VILLAGE OF FISHER

Councilmen, Gunder Krostue, president, H. B. Laughlin, Ole Larson, Adam Thompson.
Clerk, C. U. Webster Sr.
Treasurer, Evan Olson.
Justice of Peace, Andrew Truesdahl.
Constable, C. U. Webster, Jr.

VILLAGE OF CLIMAX.

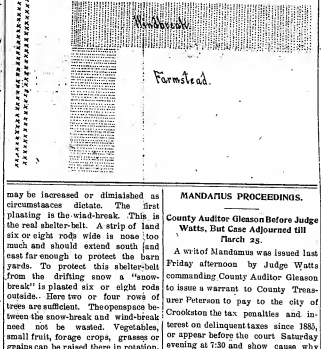
President of Council, John Steemerson.
Trustees, S. A. Locken, J. B. Messer, John Braseth.
Treasurer, John Lochen.
Recorder, H. B. Lanager.
Justice of Peace, Christ Steemerson.
68 votes were cast, the largest vote since incorporation.

TREE PLANTING ON THE PRAIRIE

Valuable Suggestions From Prof. Hoverstad About Protecting Country Homes From Northwest Winds.

Persons who have lived on a Minnesota prairie for some time will know the necessity of a shelter-belt around the home. Trees planted in numbers large enough to furnish considerable shelter need not cost very much in money, labor, or in land to be occupied by them. The comfort they would furnish would more than repay all expenditures. Tree planting on the prairie is done, first for protection and second, for ornament. The ornamental side of the question will be omitted in this article.

The winter of 1896-97 furnished an object lesson of great value to the tree planter. An unusual amount of snow fell that winter. Where there was a grove on the prairie the snow drifted in mainly from the north and west. Gradually the snow accumulated and the drifts became deeper and deeper. As the snow settled, from drifts often 10 feet or more deep, the branches were stripped off the trees and where the trunk was not strong the whole tree was crushed. Many groves very beautiful in the fall of '96, came out in spring '97 very much damaged. The accompanying sketch is arranged with a view of meeting this difficulty. In locating the farmstead sufficient space should be allowed between the house and the north and west boundaries of the farm to plant trees, and space for the snow to accumulate. As the diagram, about twenty rods is allowed, but this may be increased or diminished as circumstances dictate. The first planting is the wind-break. This is the real shelter-belt. A strip of land six or eight rods wide is none too much and should extend south and east far enough to protect the barn yards. To protect this shelter-belt from the drifting snow a "snow-break" is planted six or eight rods outside. Here two or four rows of trees are sufficient. The openspace between the snow-break and wind-break need not be wasted. Vegetables, small fruit, forage crops, grasses or grains can be raised there in rotation. This place would be very favorable to many kinds of crop. The rows of trees should be about eight feet apart and the trees about one foot apart in the rows. Trees can be thinned out later if desired. For cultivating close to the trees the common cultivator is good. A two horse spring tooth harrow will be found to work well between the rows. The ornamental part of the plantation is put about the buildings. The arrangement here is intended merely as a suggestion of one feature and not as a complete plan.



Odd Fellows Meet.

The Valley Encampment, of the order of Odd Fellows, held a special meeting last night in the lodge rooms in this city. A team of 25 with five extra Odd Fellows came over from Sinal lodge at Grand Forks to assist in the work of initiating 25 new members. The work was done in a very creditable manner. All told there were more than 100 visiting Odd Fellows. After the 25 had learned of the mysteries of Oddfellowship, a big banquet was spread in the lodge rooms, and Odd-Fellows to the number of over 200 partook of the feast. The gathering was a notable one in the annals of the Encampment.

For Sale.

Twelve good heavy work horses and mares, and one large pair mules. Will sell for cash or good bankable paper.

TOM YOUNG.

Polk County Land Sells Well.

Polk county land is in great demand this spring. Thousands upon thousands of acres are being bought and sold and at fancy prices too. To cite one instance, within the last 60 days A. N. Hixon has sold 1000 acres at prices ranging from $21 to $24 per acre. This land lies within from four to fifteen miles of Crookston. It has all been bought by men who already have farms adjoining. These farmers are old settlers here and know the value of land and the fact that men of this class have purchased this property is evidence that the land is well worth all they are paying for it. Mr. Hixon's personal property he will sell at auction on Thursday, March 30. To learn what articles will be auctioned at this time see Mr. Hixon advertisament in another column of this paper.

Lecture In South Crookston.

Rev. H. F. Fisher, last Friday evening in South Crookston, delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on "The Locomotive Chase." The chase took place during the late Civil war and in the lecturer's narrative of it many thrilling incidents were brought out. Mr. Fisher had drawn a map of the country where the chase took place and this was loabled to impress the historical facts more vividly upon his hearers. After the lecture the young people remained for a time and enjoyed themselves playing social games. Uncle McGregor materially assisted in the evening's entertainment by furnishing some excellent music. The evening was indeed spent pleasantly and profitably.

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS.

County Auditor Gleason Before Judge Watts, But Case Adjourned till March 25.

A writ of Mandamus was issued last Friday afternoon by Judge Watts commanding County Auditor Gleason to issue a warrant to County Treasurer Peterson to pay to the city of Crookston the tax penalties and interest on delinquent taxes since 1885, or appear before the court Saturday evening at 7:30 and show cause why he should not issue such order. Mr. Gleason came before Judge Watts and asked for a stay of proceedings as he had not been given time enough in which to prepare an answer. The case was accordingly adjourned for one week.

Farmers Graduate.

The graduating class of the State School of Agriculture this year consists of thirty-four members, three of whom are young women. This is the first time women have graduated from the school of agriculture, and it is characteristic of the good work they are doing and the place they are taking in the school that one of them, Miss Andrews, is the salutatorian, and another, Miss Denison, has an oration. The members of the class came from all over Minnesota, only three of them being from outside the state.

Grand Forks Plaindealer: Conductor McCormick, of the Great Northern, recently received a very valuable trophy direct from Cuba. It is a genuine Cuban machette, sent to him by a friend who is now soldiering in that country. The weapon is a wicked looking one, is over three feet long, quite sharp, the blade being of the very best steel. The handle is fashioned to fit the hand nicely, and is made of polished bone, being divided into halves and riveted securely on each side of the blade.

BIG HOCKEY GAME.

Crookston Defeats Grand Forks by a Score of 5 to 4 on Tuesday Evening.

Cheers rent the air yesterday morning as the train from Grand Forks pulled into the Great Northern station. The cheers came from the Crookston hockey team who were returning victorious from a game played with the Ontario store team at Grand Forks the night before. The final score stood 5 to 4 in favor of the Queen City.

It was a closely contested game, each team was bound to win. At the end of the first half Crookston had four goals to Grand Forks one, but in the second half the Forks, by hard play, supplemented by the decisions of the referee and one goal keeper tied the score a moment or two before time was called. This made our boys desperate, and with a mighty rush they seat the puck through the goal, thus winning the game.

After play was over a reception was tendered the hockey players at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, where refreshments were served and a very pleasant social time spent. The Crookston boys have nothing but words of praise for the entertainment that they received.

Band Concert.

The largs audience that assembled at the Opera House last Tuesday night to listen to Prof. Riggs and his musicians, were well pleased with the entertainment furnished. Notwithstanding the dagree of excellease that the baad and orchestra had attained before, it was noticeable that much improvemsat had been made during the past month, continued practice under skilled instruction is having its effect on the players, and Crookston's citizens enjoy the fruit of this labor. Mr. W. H. Walker sang a tenor solo, the first vocal solo at the baad concerts, and though he was recalled he did not favor the audience with an encore. The ladies' chorus sang two very pretty choruses, the encore being "Comin' through the Rye." The Mandolin Guitar club, always a favorite, won fresh laurels for themselves. Prof. Riggs assisted the club with his violin. His corns solo added not a little to the enjoyment of the evening. Prof. Riggs certainly plays the cornet in an artistic manner, and no hand concert is complete without one selection from him on this instrument.

Souia's Band.

John Philip Sousa and his celebrated concert band will give a veritable feast of music at the Grand Opera house in this city on Tuesday afternoon, March 28. Sousa's repertoire is so extensive that each concert he gives is a model of excellence in every respect and is bound to suit the most fastidious and exacting auditor, for he has a large field upon which to build his programmes. He knows better than any conductor before the American people to-day just what class of music causes the most genuine pleasure, and he always aims to cater to the whims of the great public that flock to his concerts. He is not unmindful of the fact, either, that his own compositions are in popular demand with the masses and he gives of them freely at his concerts.

It is in these many efforts to please the people that Sousa has made himself popular wherever he has appeared. He knows just what they like and gives it to them without solicitation. It is his encore that catch the popular spirit for he is the soul of liberality and no demand within reason is overlooked or slighted. The great band was never in such superb condition as at present, some few changes in the personal having materially improved the ensemble.

The young lady artists with the band, Miss Maud Reese Davies, soprano, and Miss Dorothy Hoyle, violinist, are exceptionally talented and are certain to please local audiences.

That Wolf Hunt.

The people of Fosston and surrounding country planned for a big wolf hunt last Sunday. The beasts were to be rounded-up in the town of Brandsvold and were to be dispatched with spears, clubs or pitchforks. The project was all right as these animals have become altogether too numerous, but Sunday was a very cold, blustery day and hence few turned out. A few of the prime movers in the slaughtering scheme went forth at the appointed time and succeeded in bringing low one wolf.

VETERAN ENGINEER SCALDED

Geo. W. Winsey "Father of Engineer of Lake Shore Railroad Meets With his First Accident.

Mr. Geo. W. Wissey, the popular engineer on the St. Viscent line, received word Tuesday that his father had met with a very painful accident last week. The Daily Citizen of Jackson, Michigan, says: James E. Winsey, one of the oldest and most efficient engineers in the employ of the Lake Shore railroad lies at his home suffering from the effects of a very severe scalding received this morning. The train pulled out from Jackson without incident and everything was running satisfactorily. About three miles out, and as the fireman was in the act of putting in a fire, the fire-box being open, one of the arch flues exploded, the steam rushing through the open door into the cab, filling it completely with scalding hot vapor. Both engineer and fireman were fearfully scalded about the face, hands and arms, though serious consequences are not feared.

Mr. Winsey is 84 years old, has been running as engine for 43 years, and this was his first accident.

Farms Change Hands.

Peter O. Krokaa, of the town of Kirtsaville, has sold his farm of 160 acres to Levis Anderson for $2,000: D. H. Bates sold a quarter section of land in the town of Hammood to Peter J. Ede and Asker Gulverson, the price being $1,100; Ole Hovea sold eighty acres in the town of Lowell to Chas. Hardrath for $2,200; and J. D. McPhee paid $2,200 to Louis Wedland for 160 acres in the town of Andover.

Married.

Within the last two weeks the following named persons were given permits to wed: Josef Cerhy and Anna Bauer, of Crookston, Nis P. Stenborg and Reinhiald Lonnes, of Columbia, Edward Barnuth and Adelhie Helwick, of Andover, O. S. Haset, of Beltrami, and Asjer G. Mol, of McIntosh, Arthur Fyffe and Ida Jay, of Fosston.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Red Lake County Through Senator Myran Tries to get Polk County Funds.

A bill was introduced in the senate last Saturday by Senator Myran that deals with the division of funds in case a county is divided. When Red Lake was cut off from Polk a commission was appointed by law to appraise the property, but strange to say Red Lake county has never claimed her share. If, however, this bill became law Red Lake would get much more money from Polk county than she would have under the provisions of the law under which the county was divided, but now that the scheme has been laid open it is hardly likely that our neighbors will succeed in this somewhat questionable undertaking.

Morrison's Faust.

A good play needs no eulogistic introduction. To announce the return of "Faust" with the only Lewis Morrison in the original role of "Mephisto" is sufficient. The story of "Faust" is as well known as Rip Van Winkle or Robinson Cruso. A resume therefore is superfluous. Suffice it to say, the production from a theatrical standpoint, is this season, absolutely new. With it comes the positive assurance that the entire production this year is the grandest and most expensive ever given this classical gem.

A historic record of more than ordinary merit is guaranteed. While many have tried "Faust" Morrison is the only one who has made it famous and a profitable financial investment. "By merit he has won success, by merit he retains it," is his motto, and it can be truthfully said he has adhered rigidly to that doctrine.

This is Mr. Morrison's farewell tour in "Faust," as next season he is under contract to appear in a character new to the stage, and in which he expects to duplicate his success as "Mephisto." The supporting company is one of exceptional merit, and includes an augmented chorus superior to anything of the kind heard here outside of grand opera. The date of Mr. Morrison's appearance here is March 29.

SEED WHEAT

A few hundred bushels of good clean seed wheat for sale.

49-50 VANCE & STONE.

Farm Wanted.

Send full particulars, price, etc., at once. A. H. RUSSELL,
[47-tf] Akron, Ohio

POTPOURRI.

Round my jar of white and blue
Paint delicious odors play;
Roses, once of gorgeous hue,
Blooms of a forgotten day.
In the warm and golden air
Breathed as now their perfume fate.

Did my lady pick them all?
Flitting, radiant as a flower,
While the satin petals fall
In her scarf, a scented shower—
See, they lightly rain and fly,
Jewels 'gainst an azure sky!

Lady fairy lies long dead,
But her roses still recall
Days when fairy wear inspirance used
Clustering o'er the rosy stool; well,
And their spirits dip to me
From my jar of potpourri.
—Lillian Eleanor Bertier in Madame.

COPLEY'S GLASSES.

We had been talking over a lively incidence in our life or one of our friends—his name was Thwaites—which had led to a peculiarly strong development of that individual's nose. Three of us knew Thwaites quite well, and one of the three had told the story to the others. The fourth man did not know Thwaites personally, but he did know a story of another man, of which, he said, the story about Thwaites reminded him.

"You know that eyeglasses make a great difference in the looks of a man, don't they? Well, this is how Copley came to wear eyeglasses:

"His eyes first? They may have suffered from the artificial help they have been getting from those glasses all these years, though I believe he has had the good sense all along to wear simple lenses that make the least difference to his vision. But he certainly never took up with those eyeglasses for the good of his eyes. It began as a matter of policy with Copley.

"When I knew him he was over both students in a big London hospital, trying to become doctors.

"Copley was very much in earnest, you see. He may have been naturally disposed to have his larks in one way or another; but he always had a certain shrewdness which kept him from playing tricks calculated to bring the professors down on him. In particular he knew how good a thing it was to stand well with the dean of the faculty.

"I ought to explain, in case you do not know, that there the dean of the faculty is the professor who has held office longest, and at that particular hospital the statutes made him very much of an autocrat. For instance, there were three big 'exams' to pass in the five years, and no student could present himself at any one of these three without a certificate from the hospital he belonged to that he had attended lectures and demonstrations 'duly and faithfully' for a certain number of terms. These certificates were signed at our hospital by the dean of the faculty alone. He took the reports of the other professors, but in the last resort his signing or not signing might be very much a matter of his own personal estimate of the individual student. See? The dean could practically stop a man from getting his degree, even if that man knew as much about medicine as Galen.

"Fortunately our dean was a good old fellow, and he used his power not only with justice, but with mercy. Perhaps his botanical studies made him mild. I have noticed that people who have much to do with plants and flowers are mostly of a genuine disposition. He was professor of 'materia medica.'

"One day he seemed fidgety and distracted when he took his place to begin the lecture. He seemed to be looking over the class in search of some one. Presently his eyes fell on Copley. The old man puckered up his brow and stared at Copley through his spectacles.

"Then he began in a nervous, irritable way: 'Yes, sir, yes. I don't know your name, sir. Yon, sir. What is your name, if you please?

"Copley made no pretense of not seeing that he was the person in question. He frankly answered, 'My name is Copley, sir.'

"'Copley! Ah, very well, Mr. Copley,' says the old man. 'Mr. Copley, I have to tell you in the presence of this class that unless your character undergoes a change you will never be fit to practice the healing art. You have no humanity, sir. You are cruel, sir; cruel.'

"Copley had no idea what the dean was talking about, and none of his friends could enlighten him. Some of the class could guess, but they did not happen to know Copley well enough to volunteer a hint. The truth was that some student had been sitting on ass of himself that morning with the schoolboy trick of fastening walnut shells on the feet of a cat and then turning the beast loose in the lecture room corridor. The janitor had at last been obliged to kill the cat with a shotgun. The dean thought he had found the perpetrator of this outrage. but he was wrong. Poor Copley had not even been in the college and knew nothing about it.

"As Copley had no idea what the dean was driving at, he could only remain mit to a harangue, while the students tittered, and then after lecture go and ask the dean what it all meant. But the dean only stared at Copley as a particularly impudent specimen of a normally impudent genus—the London medical student.

"'Go away, sir! Go away, Mr. Copley, and remember that I have an eye on you!'

"But after that the dean seemed to have it in for Copley. Twice again in that same term Copley was reprimanded for outrageous behavior of which he had no sort of knowledge. The second time he was threatened with expulsion for having willfully and deliberately intoxicated a little street Arab and then put him to sleep in the dissecting room, where he afterward came to himself in a terrible fright, and very nearly had a fit.

"Whoever was the perpetrator of this villainy, the dean had, as he thought, the evidence of his own senses as to the perpetrator's identity.

"'I saw you, sir, when you brought that unfortunate child into the inner sanctum,' said the dean. 'I saw you and wondered what you were doing with him.'

"Copley kept his head this time. It was a very serious affair, and he saw the necessity of using all his wits.

"'The faculty never did find out who was guilty. It was a most unsatisfactory investigation. The circumstances were clearly established, but a disagreeable suspicion of several first year and second year men also grew up. Copley I ought to say, was in his fourth year.

"The story of the street Arab who had been frightened nearly to death got into the newspapers and made a sensation. There was no doubt that it would injure the reputation of the hospital. The board of directors debated over the matter as a special meeting, and all the 700 students debated over it on all occasions.

"It was a nurse—if all possible people—who gave us the first hint of a way to put a stop to the persecution of poor Copley. He was chatting with him, myself and a senior student, all of us on an night duty in her ward.

"'The thing is quite plain to me,' she said, 'in fact, I believe I could put my hand on the guilty party before tomorrow morning if I wanted to. But the scandal has nearly blown over now, and the young man has been badly frightened. So we might as well let well enough alone.'

"'And how about me?' says Copley.

"'Well, then,' she said, 'Mr. Copley has a double—yes, a double. Mr. Copley's double is a young fellow in the same in his first year. I have noticed the likeness over and over again, but as you gentlemen never see anything of the first year students—'

"Of course, now that she had mentioned it, we all saw just how it was. The nurse did not tell us the name of this young man, but we found a double of Copley in a youth by the name of Wixem. We all three pitched upon the same man. There was no room for the least doubt. The only difference between Copley and Wixem was that Wixem was always serious and even grave in his demeanor, and Copley had a gay, devil may come we may care air of his troubles. Any one would have taken Wixem for a sober, earnest, ambitious student, which is just what he was not, and Copley was.

"Copley was so exasperated that he attacked Wixem at the street door, just outside the principal gate of the hospital, and gave him a terrible black eye. Copley was arrested by a passing policeman, but Wixem was too cunning to appear in court. He knew that people were still talking about the disturbing room scandal.

"'I say, sir,' anyhow,' said Copley's friends to him, 'that black eye will help she dean to distinguish between you and Wixem for some time to come.'

"But for several weeks Wixem did nothing that could get Copley into trouble. The dean looked at Copley very hard from time to time, and Copley bravely returned the stare.

"Then came Wixem's eyeglasses.

"You see, we all, including the friendly nurse, agreed that Copley could not go on blackening Wixem's eyes periodically to keep from being mistaken for that young miscreant, and the nurse suggested that Copley would look very well and immensely professional in gold trimmed eyeglasses. And after that there was no possibility of mistake.

"'And so,'" one of the three asked, "your friend Copley stuck to the identifying glasses for life?'

"The dean was silent minute. The funny thing was that the first day Copley appeared in hospital with his new glasses—I was with him at the time—he also wore a dark frock coat and a high hat, and it happened that he had never before appeared there in such a sober get up. Just as we entered the inner courtyard, which happened to be deserted, Mr. Wixem, looking very solemn, which meant that he had been up to some knavish trick, met us and he was coming from the museum wing. Copley glared at him, as if he would like to black his eye just once more.

"Wixem stopped short and said, 'Why, sir, I had no idea you were in town!'

"'Hedn't you, sir?' says Copley. 'Then, sir, let us recommend you to bear in mind that I am in town.'

"Wixem only stared for a moment, said 'Oh!' in a surprised way, and showed both astonishment and relief, and passed on.

"'Copley,' I said, 'that young man took you for his father.'

"'I'll father him if he doesn't mind what he's about,' says Copley.

"The general effect of the eyeglasses was wonderfully effective for good in Copley's career. In the first place, the dean discovered that he had made a disastrous victim of his own mistaken. He wented to reopen the inquiry about the dissecting room, only the board wouldn't let him. But he became a fast friend to Copley, and that fact helped him on considerably long after he had begun practice.

"No; it isn't merely as a souvenir that Copley continues to wear his glasses. The fact is that friendly nurses wouldn't hear of his taking them off. She is Mrs. Copley now."—Exchange.

Didn't Like Medicine.

Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatist, was intended at first for a doctor, and at the age of 16 he had to don a druggist's apron. His ambition carried him a little beyond that, and he decided to become a doctor and read up for examination at Christiania. In the course of his study he was reading Sallust, and the character of Catiline so took his fancy that he wrote a little play introducing him. This was Ibsen's first dramatic work.

A Plucky Girl...

There are many of them in the world, but few have the opportunity to display the quality as the attractive heroine of John Mackie's great story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never, spiced with excitement and adventure. It is just the kind of tale to keep the reader on pins and needles from beginning to end.

We have purchased the story for use in this paper. The first chapters will appear soon. Do not miss them.

EXCURSION RATES TO WESTERN CANADA

AND particulars how to secure 160 acres of the best wheat-growing land on the Continent can be secured on application to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or the undersigned.

Specially Conducted Excursions For Manitoba, Assiniboia,

Alberta and Saskatchewan will leave Sault Ste. Marie, on the first and third Wednesdays in each month; and specially low rates on all lines of railway are being quoted for the mammoth excursion leaving St. Paul on April 5th.

N. Caughell, Crookston, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Viliand, Minn., local agents.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

BABY'S SMOOTH, FAIR SKIN

A Grateful Mother Writes this Letter—

Tells all about Her Troubles when Baby Broke out with Scrofula Sores.

"At the age of two months, my baby began to have sores break on on bright cheek. We used all the external applications that we could think or hear of, to no avail. The sores spread all over one side of her face. We consulted a physician and tried his medicine, and he treated the sore was gone. But to my surprise, in a few weeks more another scrofulous sore or boil appeared on baby's arm. It grew worse and worse, and when he was three months old, I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before the first bottle was finished, the sores were vertual and have never returned. He is now four years old, but he has never had any sign of those scrofulous sores since he was nursed by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I feel very grateful. My boy owns his good health and smooth, fair skin to the great medicine." MRS. S. S. WROTEN, Farming-ton, Delaware. Get only Hood's

Hood's Pills easy in effect. 25 cents.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the Common Council of said city of Crookston by Polk county peoples' and license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of May, 1899, and terminating on the 30th day of April, 1900, by the following person, and at the following place, to-wit: Application for license to sell intoxicating liquors will be heard by said common council of the city of Crookston, in said city of Crookston, in Polk county and State of Minnesota,

Tuesday the 18th day of March, A. D. 1899, at 7 o'clock p. m. of said day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 2nd day of March A. D. 1899.

[SEAL] W. A. LANCTOT, City Clerk.

(3-9-4t) 49-00

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the common council of said City of Crookston by Polk county peoples' and license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of May, 1899, and terminating on the 30th day of April, 1900, by the following person, and at the following place, to-wit:

Bertha M. Koelmel at the one story frame building and additions thereto, situate in lot five (5) in block one hundred (100) in Crookston's Second Addition to the City of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof.

Application for license to sell liquor will be heard by said common council at the regular meeting in the city hall building in said city of Crookston in Polk county and state of Minnesota, on Tuesday the 4th day of April, A. D. 1899, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 22nd day of March A. D. 1899.

[SEAL] W. A. LANCTOT, City Clerk.

(3-23-4t) 47-00

Application for License to Sell Land.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.

In Probate court, special term, March 1st, 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Ulrich deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie Ulrich praying forth the amount of personal estate that came to the hands of the executor of said deceased and that the remains undisposed of, the amount of such remains and the appraised value thereof, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate of the aforesaid the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, the condition, quality and value of the several parts thereof, the interest therein of the persons interested in said estate, and whether the same can be divided without injury thereto, and praying that license may be granted to sell a portion of the real estate of said estate, and it appearing to said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate to pay the debts, legacies and charges of said estate, do pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell a part of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before the court on Friday the 24th day of March, 1899 at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the probate office, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Carrie B. Ulrich to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay said debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 1st day of March, A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE E. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.

(3-9-3w) 48-00

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents ($476.75) which is due at the date of this notice upon a mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Sorenson and Jonine Omsaa, his wife, mortgagors, to Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, in the state of Texas, mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of August, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m. and duly recorded in book 35 of mortgages, on page 181, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred fifty (150) north of range forty-seven (47) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred seventy-nine and one-fifth acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, situated in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the benefits of homestead exemption waived, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state, on the 6th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption from the sale within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 7, A. D. 1899.

CLARA A. REYNOLDS,
Mortgagee.
A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 46-07

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of One hundred and Seventy-five dollars and Seventy-five cents ($175.75) which is due at the date of this notice upon a mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Sorenson and Jonine Omsaa, his wife, mortgagors, to Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, in the state of Texas, mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of August, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m. and duly recorded in book 35 of mortgages, on page 182, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred and fifty-seven (157) north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred sixty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, situated in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the benefits of homestead exemption waived, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 6th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Hundred and Seventy-five dollars and Seventy-five cents, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption from the sale within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 7, A. D. 1899.

CLARA A. REYNOLDS,
Mortgagee.
A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 46-07

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of One hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents ($176.75) which is due at the date of this notice upon a mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Sorenson and Jonine Omsaa, his wife, mortgagors, to Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, in the state of Texas, mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of August, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m. and duly recorded in book 35 of mortgages, on page 182, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred sixty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, situated in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the benefits of homestead exemption waived, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 6th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of One Hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption from the sale within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 7, A. D. 1899.

CLARA A. REYNOLDS,
Mortgagee.
A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 46-07

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of four hundred and seventy-six dollars and seventy-five cents ($476.75) which is due at the date of this notice upon a mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Sorenson and Jonine Omsaa, his wife, mortgagors, to Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, in the state of Texas, mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of August, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m. and duly recorded in book 35 of mortgages, on page 182 and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north of range forty-three west and northeast quarter of section thirty-one (31) in township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north of range forty-two (42) west, containing one hundred sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof. The said premises consisting of seventy-nine and one-fifth acres in section thirty-six (36) and eighty acres in section thirty-one (31) with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 6th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred and seventy-six dollars and seventy-five cents, and interest, taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption from the sale within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 7, A. D. 1899.

C. S. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Elbow Lake, Minn.
48-53

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Final Proof.

United Land Office: Crookston, Minn., Feb 1st, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that Judson E. Hemming has filed notice of intention to make final proof before Register and Receiver at this office in Crookston, Minnesota, on Thursday the 6th day of April, 1899 on timber culture application No. 581 for the s½, and fractional section No. 6 in township No. 151 n., range No. 45 w.

He names as witnesses:

John Love and Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, Texas, Simon Omsaa and John O'Brecht, of Crookston, Minnesota.

SYLVESTER PEYRASON,
Register.

Notice of Expiration of Time of Redemption.

Sheriff's Sale.

You are hereby notified that on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1899, the premises sold for the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to judgment of the district court of the county of Polk, in the 9th judicial district in the county of Polk, in the 9th judicial District of the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March, A. D. 1895, the following described lands and parcel of land which is situated in Polk county in the state of Minnesota, to-wit: The south west quarter (sw¼) of section thirty-six (36) township one hundred and fifty (150) range forty-five (45) was sold to the state for taxes for the year which it was adjudged liable in said judgment, interests and costs for the sum of Thirty-one and 50-100 forty-four cents, that on the 5th day of February, A. D. 1896, the said premises were duly sold under direction of the state auditor for the sum of seventy dollars and sixty-nine cents that the undersigned is now redeeming said piece and parcel of land from such sale irrespective of the costs to accrue upon the notice. Dated this 25th day of January, 1899.

Witness my hand and official seal this 25th day of February, A. D. 1899.

[Seal] JOHN GLEASON,
County Auditor of Polk county, Minnesota.
By N. A. HOFFARD, Deputy.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the common council of said City of Crookston by Polk county peoples' and license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of May, 1899, and terminating on the 30th day of April, 1900, by the following person, and at the following place, to-wit:

Bertha M. Koelmel at the one story frame building and additions thereto, situate in lot five (5) in block one hundred (100) in Crookston's Second Addition to the City of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof.

Application for license to sell liquor will be heard by said common council at the regular meeting in the city hall building in said city of Crookston in Polk county and state of Minnesota, on Tuesday the 4th day of April, A. D. 1899, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 22nd day of March A. D. 1899.

[SEAL] W. A. LANCTOT, City Clerk.

(3-23-4t) 47-00

Application for License to Sell Land.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.

In Probate court, special term, March 1st, 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob Ulrich deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie Ulrich praying forth the amount of personal estate that came to the hands of the executor of said deceased and that the remains undisposed of, the amount of such remains and the appraised value thereof, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate of the aforesaid the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, the condition, quality and value of the several parts thereof, the interest therein of the persons interested in said estate, and whether the same can be divided without injury thereto, and praying that license may be granted to sell a portion of the real estate of said estate, and it appearing to said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate to pay the debts, legacies and charges of said estate, do pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell a part of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before the court on Friday the 24th day of March, 1899 at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the probate office, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Carrie B. Ulrich to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay said debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 1st day of March, A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE E. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.

(3-9-3w) 48-00

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents ($476.75) which is due at the date of this notice upon a mortgage, executed and delivered by Ole Sorenson and Jonine Omsaa, his wife, mortgagors, to Thomas Richerford, of Kerr county, in the state of Texas, mortgagee, bearing date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of August, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m. and duly recorded in book 35 of mortgages, on page 181, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred and fifty-seven (157) north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred sixty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, situated in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the benefits of homestead exemption waived, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 6th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-six dollars and Seventy-five cents, and interest, taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption from the sale within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 7, A. D. 1899.

C. S. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Elbow Lake, Minn.
48-53

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, up-to-date, Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated. By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
Latest Edition—Enlarged—Seventy Prettie, with over 74 illustrations; a standard work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; contains a valuable profile illustration of each of the leading varieties and no other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; the best Poultry Book in existence; 175 pages telling it all; with many illustrations of all the principal breeds; with no other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and Cow Business; having a great sale; contains 8 colored lifelike reproductions of cows and no other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Pigs; Breeding, Feeding, Butchery, Diseases, etc. Contains over 80 beautiful halftones and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

The BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original, useful—you never saw anything like them—practical, economical. They are having an enormous sale—East, West, North and South. Every one who buys a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for BIGGLE BOOKS. Don't delay.

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for you and not a misfit. It is 34 years old; it is the great "mind-down, his-own-affairs-the-best—quit-after-you-have-said-it, Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL A YEAR (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901 and 1902) will be sent by mail to any address for A DOLLAR BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON, Clear P. JESSUP. Address, FARM JOURNAL, PHILADELPHIA

A FREE PATTERN
(Your own selection) to every subscriber. Only 50 cents a year.

McCALL'S 50¢ MAGAZINE A YEAR

A LADIES' MAGAZINE.

A gem; beautiful colored plates; latest fashions; numerous illustrations; fancy work; stories by leading writers; every number to-day, so, send 5c. for latest copy (back numbers cannot be had). Sold everywhere.

Stylish, Reliable, Simple, Up-to-Date, Perfect-Fitting and Absolutely Perfect-Fitting Paper Patterns.

McCALL BAZAR PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢

(No-Seam-Allowance Patterns.)
Only 10 and 15 cents each. Ask for McCall's. If not to be had in your town, send 10c. or 15c. to any one of our offices and we will send you one by mail.

THE McCALL CO.,
138-146 West 14th St., New York.

ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

CITY TREASURER

From March 31, 1898, to March 14, 1899.

GENERAL FUND RECEIPTS.

By Balance March 31 1898 ... $ 6 261 50
" Improvm't fund (charged by error) 60
" Liquor license 12,000 00
" Justice fines 624 50
" Sale of city charter 2 00
" Medicine license to B H Westfall 20 00
" Show license to Wallace's circus 50 00
" June settlement from county 3,719 20
" Sale of city hall lot to K D Chase 2,500 00
" Sale of city hall building to L Rivard 350 00
" License for selling silverware to H A Curtis 5 00
" License dog and pony show 10 00
" " shooting gallary, T H Feild 20 00
" " Merry-go-round, Hunt & Murry 45 00
" License bear and Monkey show 2 50
" Sale of sewer pipes by L Gonyea 1 50
" Pedler license to C F Wilson 20 00
" License pony show 10 00
" Alex McKinnon for sidewalk in front of residence 14 67
" Frank Jerome street commissioner for repairs 8 25
" License for pool and billiard tables by Daniel Kotz 30 00
" License for pool and billiard tables by W W Hoeh 20 00
" License shooting gallary by C Leeson 20 00
" November settlement from county 2,080 48
" County on account Carman bridge 2,250 00
" Premium on sale of city bonds 3,340 00
" 2 dog licenses 2 00
" Auction license by C J Baldwin & Co 50 00
" Nomination fees for 1898 110 00
" Interest on bank deposits 95 49
" Freight by Great Northern R R Co on intake pipe, account C W W P & L Co 1,036 64
" Freight by Great Northern R R Co for sewer pipes, account Carman sewer 1,426 42
Total $36 125 25

GENERAL FUND. Disbursements

Orders
5482 S N Bringman clerk of election $ 2 50
5995 Red River Lumber Co, lumber 51 92
5996 Red River Lumber Co, lumber 18 95
6034 A O Twedten, meals for prisoners 3 00
6038 Geo. O. Buhn, shop work 1 75
6042 A O Twedton, meals 3 20
6051 Mrs E Carlson, refunding sidewalk tax 5 50
6052 Crookston W W P & L Co water 6 months to Dec. 31 '97 2,060 00
6053 Crookston W W P & L Co, light 6 months to Dec 31 '97 1,662 95
6054 Louis Gonyea, livery from April 9 '97 to April '98 72 00
6055 B F Zarracher, meals for prisoners 8 95
6056 Wm Creighton, drayage 2 00
6057 Carl Uhert, labor 1 25
6061 W H Norrie, March 1898 salary 45 00
6062 Geo Young " " 20 00
6063 Geo A Ralph " " 30 00
6064 Andrew Lariviere " " 40 00
6065 Aaron Eck " " 40 00
6066 Louis Gonyea " " 60 00
6067 Carl Reidesel " " 16 74
6068 O O Christianson " " 16 74
6069 R J Montague " " 16 74
6070 W A Lanctot " " 29 24
6071 Carl Reidesel, comptroller March pay roll 26 18
6082 Crookston Tribune, printing 77 61
6084 Geo H Holt, justice fees 6 50
6085 John McLean " " 14 50
6086 R J Montague, stationery etc 7 50
6089 S H Bennes judge of election 8 30
6090 R Lehmann rental 5 00
6091 R Geise clerk of election 2 75
6092 Frank Theno constable at election 2 20
6093 Crookston Telephone Co chief of police residence 2 50
6094 Stanislas Beauchamps labor 1 50
6095 Geo McLean Jr clerk of election 2 75
6096 Martin O'Brien judge of " 2 50
6097 W L Davies clerk of " 2 50
6098 J L Lusian judge of " 8 00
6099 Geo O Buhn judge of " 5 50
6100 C W Motz judge of " 8 00
6101 M C Malone clerk of " 2 75
6102 N B Moron judge of " 8 00
6103 P L Renne clerk of " 2 50
6104 C H Mix judge of " 5 30
6105 J E Montague clerk of " 2 30
6106 E D Childs judge of election and rental 11 80
6107 S N Drengman, judge of election 8 30
6108 Elias Phillips clerk of " 2 25
6109 V L McGregor judge of " 8 30
6110 Chas E Sawyer, judge of " 8 60
6111 Ole Hanson, clerk of " 2 75
6112 John Monroe judge of " 8 00
6113 F G Rauch judge of " 8 00
6114 A St George, clerk of " 2 25
6115 B F Zaracher judge of " 8 90
6116 Geo L Young wood 6 00
6117 Frank Montague clerk of election 2 50
6118 Harris & Geise putting up booths, etc 6 00
6119 A McGregor strip of land for road 100 00
6120 Wm A Lanctot alderman per diem 126 00
6121 W L McLaughlin rent 5 00
6122 W H Norrie salary for April 25 50
6123 Frank Jerome salary for April 16 50
6124 Geo A Ralph " " 30 00
6125 Andrew Lariviere " " 45 00
6126 Aaron Eck " " 15 00
6127 Louis Conyea " " 60 00
6128 Carl Reidesel " " 16 66
6129 O O Christianson " " 16 00
6130 R J Montague " " 25 00
6131 Wm A Lanctot " " 29 16
6132 A R Holston bills incurred for soldiers 45 87
6133 D McKinnon bills incurred for soldiers 13 75
6138 Red River Lumber Co. lumber 8 37
6139 Crookston Telephone Co. police station 2 50
6142 E D Childs 2 acres crop taken for road 10 00
6144 Lue F Low typewriting 2 08
6146 Henry Simon labor 7 00
6147 Anthony St George labor 7 00
6150 Carl Reidesel pay roll April 45 46
6087 Crookston Fire Dept elevator fire 71 00
6088 A G Anderson judge of election 3 00
6134 S L Collins back hire 6 00
6136 D F Reese fees supreme court case Wilkinson 6 50
6137 Hutchie Stuart labor 2 25
6141 Henry Lachance burying dead horses and cows 12 00
6143 E O Estenson, clerk of election 2 50
6146 H L Wheeler order book 7 50
6149 Crookston Fire Dept. Twenten fire 71 00
6160 John Darkow burying dead horse 2 00
6161 Geo L Young April salary 20 00
6162 Crookston Fire Dept. Snake fire 61 00
6163 Crookston Tribune printing 8 65
6164 Jacob Syverson drayage 50
6165 Mrs C M Benson boarding 34 00
6168 A G Anderson flag for city 12 00
6167 Henry Matton labor 1 50
6172 Crookston Tribune printing 16 76
6173 Henry Lachance burying dead horses 6 00
6174 Frank Jerome May salary 45 00
6148 Fred Berthaiume team work 7 50
6176 Geo A Ralph May salary 30 00
6177 Andrew Lariviere May salary 45 00
6178 Aaron Eck " " 45 00
6179 Louis Gonyea " " 60 00
6180 Carl Reidesel " " 16 66
6181 O O Christianson " " 16 66
6182 R J Montague " " 25 00
6183 W A Lanctot " " 29 16
6184 E M Walsh freight charges paid on lumber 16 80
6185 J R Poupore lumber 121 25
6186 Crookston Telephone Co. rent 'phone 2 50
6187 Henry Shepard special police 1 50
6188 Richard Lehman sundries for flag pole 0 15
6189 John Floring iron and e. erecting flag pole 12 00
6190 Carl Reidesel pay roll May 61 62
6195 E M Walsh freight charges on lumber 10 80
6202 P and J Meehan lumber 14 18
6205 Carl Rediesel share of city grading boulevard 133 54
6171 Crookston Fire Dept. mittens 6 00
6164 Geo. Young May salary 20 00
6194 Geo S Chesterman burial expenses Henry Brosseau 14 00
6200 Crookston Fire Dept loan $250, donation $50 300 00
6203 F D Bell freight 4 52
6206 W A Lanctot alderman per diem 226 00
6207 Andrew Olson, extension Main street sewer 280 00
6208 Frank Jerome, June salary 45 00
6210 Geo A Ralph " 30 00
6211 Andrew Lariviere " 45 00
6212 Aaron Eck " 45 00
6213 Louis Gonyea " 50 00
6214 Carl Reidesel " 16 66
6215 O O Christianson " 16 66
6216 R J Montague " 25 00
6217 W A Lanctot " 29 16
6216 A D Stephens, J Patnode, bal grading contract Main street 971 27
6238 O H Holt, justice fees 20 00
6140 A J Couverette team for Red Lake Falls soldiers 3 50
6242 E C Davis service appraising Gom Houston avenue 6 00
6245 Anthony St George labor 9 00
6255 W A Lanctot, blank and recording 2 20
6261 A D Stephens sat. judg. lot 19 block 5, Fletcher & H. add 75 00
6263 E M Walsh deed lot 1, block 11, Flecher & Houston add for city hall 2000 00
6221 Carl Reidesel June pay roll 35 37
6050 J W Wheeler et all public improvement 3000 00
6209 Geo Young salary for June, 1898 20 00
6210 Jacob Andrist salary special police 13 50
6220 Ed Monson, salary special police 13 50
6232 A Twedten meals for prisoners 7 70
6233 Crookston W W P & L Co., light services to June 30, 1898 1631 42
6234 Henry Sienord, labor 0 00
6241 C H Mix, labor as appraising commissioner 6 00
6213 C H Mix, labor as appraising commissioner 3 00
6240 Peire Delude labor 3 37
6250 E Verville labor 2 25
6254 M Reannbuhler straps 6 00
6258 Geo L Young wood 2 75
6260 Geo L Young special police 8 00
6266 W H Norrie putting up bell tower 16 50
6100 O Vlau janitor 35 00
6235 Red River Lumber Co. lumber 6 62
6236 Polk Co. meals to prisoners 3 65
6237 John McLean, justice fees 40 50
6259 Polk County Journal printing 28 65
6244 V L McGregor typewriting 91
6247 Crookston W W P & L Co. Water service to June 30, '98 2060 00
6248 A M Sivertson 6 barrels lime 8 40
6256 Erikson & Vannet, mdse 6 65
6255 V L McGregor, typewriting 8 12
6260 I U Jennings, lumber for sidewalk 2 16
6262 Purchasing agent, aid for sidewalk to cemetery 100 00
6267 Jas E Harris, salary as assessor for 1898 250 00
6268 W Anglim & Chas E Sawyer, return tax paid parties Broadway sewer extension 22 50
6269 Frank Jerome July 1898 salary 45 00
6270 Geo Young " " 20 00
6071 Geo A Ralph " " 30 00
6272 Andrew Lariviere " " 45 00
6273 Aaron Eck " " 45 00
6274 Louis Conyea " " 50 00
6275 Carl Reidesel " " 16 50
6276 O O Christianson " " 16 66
6277 R J Montague " " 25 00
6278 W A Lanctot " " 29 16
6279 Jacob Andrist " " 45 00
6280 Ed Monson " " 45 00
6283 H E Cooke printing 85 90
6285 C A Meyers special police 16 05
6286 W A Lanctot, recording deed Walsh to city 1 00
6267 A I Solberg, mdse 15
6281 Carl Reidesel July pay roll 82 67
6288 Fred G Rauch, board of equalization 14 days 42 00
6289 E D Childs, board of equalization, 14 days 42 00
6313 Red River Lumber Co. lumber 39 18
6314 Red River Lumber Co. lumber 174 96
6291 Thomas Milette, witness fees 1 12
6292 Crookston Telephone Co., police Dept 5 00
6293 B A Strawbridge, transcripts case, Wilkinson vs City 18 36
6295 Andrew Michaelson, burying one horse 2 00
6296 Henry Shepard, special police 1 50
6297 Minnesota Tribune Co, notice to sewer contract 10 00
6298 Pioneer Press Co, notice to sewer contract 11 80
6300 A Twedten, meals to prisoners 16 55
6302 J F Creamer, road grader 235 00
6309 W Creighton, drayage 9 75
6311 Chas E Sawyer, expense trip to St. Paul, etc 22 92
6312 I N Simmons, drayage 3 75
6316 " " " 3 50
6319 B O Anderson, damages for horse 28 50
6329 O Vlau, balance of bill previously cut down 20 00
6329 J E O'Brien & Co, mdse 14 00
6200 Allen McKinnon, board of equalization, 14 days 42 00
6296 Polk Co., boarding prisoners 4 97
6307 A O Dusterad, mdse 4 10
6381 E D Childs & Co, roads and right of way for city 700 00
6331 Arris & McMahon, grading Houston avenue and Hunter street 154 55
6201 Heirs of W O Wilson, return fee for app'n license 10 00
6336 J W Wheeler, for road purposes 750 00
6333 E D. Childs, expenses to St Paul 7 60
6335 Arris & McMahon, bal. grading Hunter & Houston ave 12 87
6338 Louis Gonyea, August salary 60 00
6339 Aaron Eck " " 45 00
6340 Andrew Lariviere " " 45 00
6341 Jacob Andrist " " 45 00
6342 Ed Munson " " 45 00
6343 O O Christianson " " 16 66
6344 Carl Reidesel " " 16 66
6345 R J Montague " " 25 00
6346 Frank Jerome " " 45 00
6347 Geo L Young " " 20 00
6348 Geo A Ralph " " 30 00
6349 W A Lanctot " " 29 16
6351 Jas E Greenhalgh, special police 2 25
6355 Mrs J A Boh, meals for prisoners 6 00
6356 Mrs J A Boh meals for prisoners 3 76
6356 C H Mix, services 6 00
6360 E D Davis, " 9 00
6362 Carl Baumgartel, labor 2 25
6363 V L McGregor, typewriting 5 66
6365 W A Lanctot, dog tags 8 25
6366 Wm Creighton, drayage 4 75
6368 W A Lanctot, notice bids city 3 46
6373 Hans Morberg, services board health 63 75
6375 Louis Boisvert, labor 31 87
6376 I U Simmons, drayage 5 25
6377 Hans Morberg, repairing city lockup 42 50
6382 O Vlau, janitor at Carman 35 00
6383 Carl Reidesel, August pay roll 195 54
6294 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 6 27
6310 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 1 88
6352 Orvis Hinds, asst city engineer 63 00
6353 S L Collins, buck hire 13 00
6354 E M Walsh, rent for hose carts July and August 20 00
6358 Polk County, board 1 42
6361 Crookston Furniture Co, burial Ed Olson 10 00
6364 Crookston Telephone Co, police station 2 50
6374 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 11 25
6386 Frank Jerome, September salary 45 00
6389 Louis Gonyea, " " 60 00
6390 Aaron Eck, " " 45 00
6391 Andrew Lariviere, " " 45 00
6393 Jacob Andrist, " " 45 00
6394 Carl Reidesel, " " 16 66
6396 R J Montague, " " 25 00
6397 W A Lanctot, " " 29 10
6401 Carl Riedesel, pay roll for Sept 61 24
6405 C H Mix, judge of election 8 30
6406 W L McGregor, judge of election 8 36
6409 Dick O'Brien, special police 6 00
6416 Al Gates, special police 9 00
6411 Wm Vandermark, special police 6 00
6412 John Leach, " " 4 50
6415 Brown, Tracy & Co, justice docket 14 50
6417 C A Meyers, special police 16 35
6118 W A Lanctot, recording fees, etc 4 20
6419 Walter S Booth & Son, blanks 80
6421 T A Harris, appraising com'r 6 00
6422 Andrew Mikkelson, burying dead horses 5 00
6427 M E Kirsch, judge of election 8 30
6430 Henry Shepard, clerk of election 5 25
6432 T A Harris, judge of " 8 60
6434 John Paterson, clerk of " 2 30
6447 O M Thorsen, special police 7 50
6448 John McLean, justice fees 113 50
6449 Geo H Holt " " 118 00
6450 O H Bjoin, livery 4 25
6451 W A Lanctot, alderman, per diem 232 00
6456 Geise & Harris, putting up booths for election 6 00
6453 Richard Geise, special police 7 50
6469 O H Bjoin, livery 4 00
6462 Frank Jerome, October salary 45 00
6465 Andrew Lariviere " 45 00
6466 Aaron Eck " 45 00
6468 Carl Reidesel " 18 60
6467 Louis Gonyea " 60 00
6476 R J Montague " 25 00
6471 Wm A Lanctot " 29 16
6472 Ed Monson " 45 00
6473 Jacob Andrist " 45 00
5177 Pioneer Press Co, printing bond sale notice 16 00
6481 E Sempre, labor 4 50
6480 Wm Creighton, drayage 3 25
6483 P L Renne, clerk of election 2 25
6484 Elias Phillips, " " 2 25
6485 L C Stewart, labor 4 50
6486 C A Meyers, special police 13 50
6497 C A Meyers, " " 16 80
6499 W H Norrie, clerk of election 5 00
6496 M E Kirsch, judge of " 13 70
6502 V L McGregor, " " 9 50
6503 Henry Funk, clerk of " 4 70
6504 C H Mix, judge of " 10 70
6507 E D Childs, " " 9 50
6509 Carl Riedesel, October pay roll 62 62
6522 Geo A Ralph, November salary 30 00
6523 Andrew Lariviere, " 45 00
6524 Aaron Eck, " 45 00
6525 Louis Gonyea, " 50 00
6526 Carl Reidesel, " 16 66
6527 O O Christianson, " 16 66
6528 R J Montague, " 25 00
6529 Ed Monson, " 45 00
6389 Geo L Young, September salary 20 00
6395 O O Christianson, " 16 66
6403 I U Jennings, judge of election 14 85
6408 Henry Shepard, special police 9 00
6404 Martin Ronne, judge of election 6 50
6407 O E Fuller, special police 6 00
6413 Levi LeDuc, " " 4 50
6414 Henry Lachance, special police 7 50
6426 N K Olson, rent election purposes 5 00
6428 N B Moron, judge of election 8 60
6420 Crookston Telephone Co, police station 2 50
6423 E M Walsh, express charges 2 45
6429 Geo McLean, jr. clerk of election 2 50
6457 A McGregor, com'r and clerk of election 8 25
6451 N J Demis, rent for election 5 00
6452 John Floria, special police 6 00
6455 Geo Castle, " " 6 00
6454 E C Davis, judge of election 5 60
6463 Geo Young, October salary 20 00
6464 Geo A Ralph, " " 30 00
6469 O O Christianson " " 16 66
6479 Crookston Telephone Co. police station 2 50
6476 Fred G Rauch, judge of election 11 00
6475 Fred G Rauch, special police 2 60
6478 Stewart Lumber Co, lumber 21 79
6482 A O Bergene, burying dead horse 3 00
6487 Henry Jerome, special police 9 00
6500 J E Morrisey, judge of election 11 00
6501 E C Davis, judge of " 11 00
6505 Orvins Hinds, asst city engineer 141 00
6506 A J Couverette, livery 3 00
6521 Geo Young, November salary 20 00
6539 Geo McLean, jr, clerk of election 7 10
6537 M C Malone, judge of " 15 90
6534 Carl Riedesel, November pay roll 116 61
6533 Frank Jerome, November salary 31 50
6531 W A Lanctot, " " 29 16
6538 O O Buhn, judge of election 11 30
6535 G O Buhn, " " 8 50
6536 A G Anderson " " 20 65
6530 Jacob Andrist, November salary 45 00
6540 Jas Smith, clerk of election 7 40
6548 B A Strawbridge, clerk of election 7 30
6539 J E Greenhalgh judge of election 5 30
6541 N J Bemis, rent for election and lunches 6 25
6547 A McGregor, judge of election 9 50
6543 D A Darbey, clerk of election 8 25
6542 I U Jennings, judge of " 11 30
6546 Chas W Latta, clerk of " 4 70
6552 M Rauenbuehler, rent of room for election 5 00
6458 Mrs J A Boh, meals to persons 40 05
6388 Geo A Ralph, September salary 30 00
6392 Ed Monson, " " 45 00
6402 Crookston Plumbing Co, shop work and material 24 80
6416 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 7 00
6433 D E Gorton, clerk of election 2 30
6550 Richard Geise, clerk of election 5 00
6553 George Young, hauling booths for election, etc 10 00
6551 N K Olson, rent room for election 6 00
6566 Louis Rivard, work and material 8 00
6569 E M Walsh, 3 months' rent for hose carts 30 00
6561 W A Lanctot, Ad bond American banker 4 00
6563 Bjoin Hardware Co, hardware 4 75
6562 Geo L Young, special police 60 77
6570 Crookston Telephone Co, police station 6 00
6571 Orvis Hinds, Asst city engineer 48 00
6572 Pioneer Press Co, Add sale of bonds 15 60
6574 Vance & Stone, coal, etc 42 30
6575 Financial record, Ad for sale of bonds 11 00
6579 O H Bjoin, livery 8 50
6584 A J McKinnon, judge of election 10 70
6583 C A Meyers, special police 7 50
6588 Geo L Young, drayage 3 50
6581 Wm Munch, Jr, special police 102 00
6582 Mrs J A Boh, boarding prisoners 21 75
6587 A J & A McKinnon, labor and material 87 50
6589 A J & A McKinnon, shop work and material 30 40
6593 C E Dampier, medical attendance, L Quist 5 00
6594 C E Dampier, medical attendance, L Hauka 2 00
6590 Louis Boisvert, labor 51 02
6591 T A Harris, judge of election 10 40
6597 Vance & Stone, wood to Mrs Van Tayle 2 75
6616 Elias Philips, clerk of election 3 25
6619 Levi LeDuc, special police 75
6621 John Monroe, judge of election 5 30
6622 O Vlau, janitor at Carman 30 00
6614 O Vlau, repairs, etc, windmill, Carman 2 85
6544 Wm Arnold, judge of election 6 00
6519 Welsh & Kennedy, catch basins, corner 6th St 10 50
6431 M B Moren, judge of election 2 30
6560 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 187 26
6568 N P Ry Co, waterpipe freight 181 78
6615 M R Brown, use of street scrapers 1 50
6618 M Ericssen, plank sold city 3 60
6626 L Sargent, drayage 6 25
6629 Geo A Ralph, Dec salary 30 00
6630 Andrew Lariviere, Dec salary 45 00
6631 Aaron Eck, Dec salary 45 00
6632 Ed Monson, " 45 00
6633 Jacob Andrist, " 45 00
6634 Louis Gonyea, " 60 00
6635 Carl Riedesel, " 16 66
6636 O O Christianson, " 16 00
6637 R J Montague, " 25 00
6638 Wm A Lanctot, " 29 16
6639 Frank Jerome, " 40 50
6557 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 4 50
6558 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 4 80
6641 Frank Delude, labor 5 00
6642 Carl Riedesel, interest 3 16
6643 Scandia American bank, interest 191 00
6644 First National bank, interest 26 66
6645 Merchants Nat'l bank, interest 19 86
6646 G H Holt, justice fees 44 00
6647 John McLean, justice fees 76 50
6648 Frank D O'Brien, special police 6 00
6667 W A Lanctot, aldermen's per diem 144 00
6666 Frank Jerome, Dec salary 18 00
6664 State Saving Bank, Minneapolis, 6 days interest on bonds 20 00
6663 Crookston W W P & L Co, lighting city July 1, to Dec 1, 1898 1683 51
6658 Carl Riedesel, Dec pay roll 25 43
6656 A Bancroft, judge of election 8 30
6653 Crookston Tel Co, police station 2 50
6652 August Munn, shop work and material 15 75
6651 Stanis Beauchamp, labor 75
6650 E M Walsh, gravel 3 00
6649 E D Childs, expenses trip to St Paul 9 30
6678 Geo A Ralph, Jan salary 30 00
6676 Andrew Lariviere, Jan salary 45 00
6680 Aaron Eck, " 45 00
6681 Ed Monson, " 45 00
6682 Jacob Andrist, " 45 06
6683 Louis Gonyea, " 60 00
6684 Carl Riedesel, " 16 66
6685 O O Christianson, " 16 66
6686 R J Montague, " 25 00
6687 Frank Jerome, " 45 00
6688 Wm A Lanctot, " 29 16
6702 M E Kirsch, insurance 16 00
6705 Alex McKinnon, insurance 15 00
6707 W A Lanctot, " 15 00
6716 Alex McKinnon, rent 12 00
6711 John Morin, labor 4 50
6712 Vance & Stone, coal 100 25
6726 Max Toltz, inspection bridge material at shops 95 00
6685 O O Christianson, Jan salary 16 66
6654 Christianson & Strander, abstract 6 50
6655 Christianson & Stronder, searching records 5 00
6760 R J Montague, February salary 25 00
6756 Andrew Lariviere, " " 45 00
6761 Jacob Andrist, " " 45 00
6762 W A Lanctot, " " 29 16
Freight paid on account of Carman sewer contract 1426 42
Freight paid on account of contract to Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co, for intake pipe 1036 04
Balance 4672 18
Total $36125 25

SINKING FUND—RECEIPTS.

By balance, March 31, 1898 $ 1137 98
" June settlement from county 413 92
" November " " " 214 06
Total $ 1 765 00

DISBURSEMENTS

April 11, 1898 paid Sinking Fund Commissioners $ 1137 08
July 15, 1898 paid Sinking Fund Commissioners 413 02
To balance 214 00
Total $ 765 06

CITY HALL FUND—RECEIPTS

By sale of city bond $ 16000 00

DISBURSEMENTS.

6379 Castle Bros, city hall excavation contract $ 113 25
6337 Castle Bros., city hall excavation contract 100 00
6161 E Strassberger, plan and city hall 250 00
6514 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 7610 00
6517 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 2056 00
5011 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 975 00
6640 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 525 00
6671 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 2395 80
6672 Frank Mageau, account city hall contract 1400 00
6674 E Strassberger, bal city hall services 215 82
To balance 359 13
Total $ 16000 00

FIREMEN'S RELIEF FUND

By balance, March 21, 1898 $ 147 20
" State apportionment for 1896 161 68
$ 308 88
To balance March 14, 1899 $ 308 88

SPECIAL SINKING FUND.

By Nov 1898 settlement from county $ 9 86
To balance March 14, 1899 $ 9 86

INTEREST FUND.

RECEIPTS

By balance March 31, 1898 $ 2298 56
" June settlement from county 1601 14
" Nov settlement from county 1539 16
Total $ 6528 86

DISBURSEMENTS

May 17, 1898, paid interest on bonds $ 1120 00
" " exchange 1 65
June 1, " interest on bonds 4410 00
" " ex. on remittance 6 59
" " collection fees 13 83
To balance 975 91
Total $ 6528 86

PARK FUND.

By balance March 31, 1898 $ 121 91
" June, 1898, settlement from county 6 93
" Nov. settlement from county 10 13
Total $ 138 97
To balance $ 138 97

IMPROVEMENT FUND.

RECEIPTS

By balance March 31, 1898 $ 89 21
" cash by O. L. Hamery for sidewalk tax, lots 10, 11 and 12, blk 8 Sampson's addition 12 26
" June settlement from county 937 51
" Nov., settlement from county 412 50
Total $ 1451 48

DISBURSEMENTS

5995 Red River Lumber Co. lumber $ 6 85
6690 Carl Riedesel, June pay-roll 1897 (charged to general fund by error) 3 60
5996 Red River Lumber Co., lumber 16 18
6071 Carl Riedesel, comptroler, March pay-roll 5 20
6150 Carl Riedesel, comptroller, April pay-roll 20 67
6185 Red River Lumber Co., lumber 8 68
6138 " " " " 31 20
6100 Carl Riedesel, May pay roll 27 24
6221 " June " 36 27
6281 " July " 19 87
6301 F. D. Bell, freight on oak lumber 43 20
6304 J. R. Poupore, Cross-planks—oak 134 75
6305 Foley Bros., oak planks 90 0.
6383 Carl Riedesel, Aug. pay-roll 4 75
6303 John Cromb, 71 yards gravel 3 65
6308 Crookston Lumber Co., lumber 30 24
6350 " " " " 13 60
6384 " " " " 33 36
6401 Carl Riedesel, Sept., pay-roll 85 86
6424 Crookston Lumber Co., lumber 16 50
6509 Carl Riedesel, Oct., pay-roll 53 00
6534 " " Nov. " 25 50
6558 Crookston Lumber Co., lumber 9 60
To balance 782 41
Total $ 1451 48

SEWER FUND.

RECEIPTS

By June, 1898 settlement from county $ 68 50
" Nov. settlement from county 34 75
" cash (error in 5555) 1 00
" balance 1613 2.
Total $ 1717 51

DISBURSEMENTS

To balance March 31, 1898 $ 1369 82
6071 Carl Riedesel, compt Mch pay-roll 2 85
6150 " " April " 8 0.
6221 " " May " 13 95
6381 " " June " 41 37
6281 " " July " 7 50
6383 " " Aug. " 3 50
6401 " " Sept. " 90 87
6474 Erskine Brick Co., brick 12 00
6509 Carl Riedesel, compt Oct. pay-roll 48 99
6534 " " Nov. " 1 5.
6564 A. M. Sivertson, cement 4 5
6566 Louis Rivard, work and material 6 00
6574 Vance & Stone, coal etc 1 00
6658 Carl Riedesel, compt Dec. pay-roll 1 87
6627 W. Anglim and Chas. E. Sawyer, advance on sewer assessment 101 25
Total $ 1717 54

STREET AND BRIDGE FUND.

RECEIPTS

By sale of city bonds $ 2500 00
" balance 1150 08

DISBURSEMENTS

6380 Castle Bros., pt Wash ave con $ 125 00
6400 " " " " 82 58
6512 " " Br'dw'y grdg 150 00
6520 " " " " 40 00
6532 " " " " 195 00
6065 Kings Bridge Co., pt con Carman Bridge 3057 50
Total $ 6650 08

SEWER BOND FUND

RECEIPTS

By sale of city bonds $ 5500 00
" balance 3267 80

DISBURSEMENTS

6518 A M Sivertson acc. 5th wd sew con 1834 00
6511 " " " " 1471 00
6399 Andrew Olson " " 905 00
6398 " " " " 905 00
6381 " " " " 1530 00
6513 Welsh & Kennedy, Houston ave sewer contract 1622 80
6515 Welsh & Kennedy, Houston ave sewer contract 500 00
Total $ 8767 80

SPECIAL SEWER FUND

By Nov settlement from county $ 278 08

FIRST WARD FUND.

RECEIPTS

By balance March 31, 1898 $ 276 29
" June, settlement with county 150 92
" November settlement from county 88 42
$ 615 63

DISBURSEMENTS.

6071 Carl Reidesel comptroller, March 1898 pay roll 8 17
6150 Carl Reidesel comptroller April pay roll 21 75
6190 Carl Reidesel May pay roll 22 21
6221 Carl Reidesel June pay roll 10 85
6240 O Berthiaume gravel 8 25
6251 O Berthiaume gravel 5 77
6252 Henry Brosseau gravel 10 72
6281 Carl Reidesel July pay roll 9 75
6284 O Berthiaume gravel 5 50
6315 Frank Delude gravel 5 50
6383 Carl Reidesel August pay roll 22 87
6401 Carl Reidesel Sept pay roll 29 34
6509 Carl Reidesel Oct pay roll 4 50
6534 Carl Reidesel Nov pay roll 10 00
6555 Crookston Lumber Co lumber 12 80
6557 Crookston Lumber Co lumber 3 84
6658 Carl Reidesel Dec pay roll 1 25
6559 Crookston Lumber Co. lumber 8 32
6576 O Berthiaume gravel 2 75
6577 G C Berthiaume gravel 7 76
6578 Henry Brosseau gravel 22 65
6580 E M Walsh gravel 3 00
6586 Castle Bros gravel 3 02
6610 Crookston Lumber Co lumber 16 16
To balance 250 03
Total $ 515 73

SECOND WARD FUND

RECEIPTS.

By balance March 31 1898 $ 80 46
" June 1898 settlement from county 142 18
" November " " " 88 73
$ 311 37

DISBURSEMENTS

5995 Red River Lumber Co lumber 4 14
6071 Carl Reidesel comptroller March pay roll 7 42
6150 Carl Reidesel, comptroller April pay roll 22 61
6190 Carl Reidesel do May pay roll 8 25
6221 Carl Reidesel June pay roll 80 74
6246 H Brosseau gravel 1 37
6251 O Berthiaume gravel 1 65
6252 H Brosseau gravel 4 95
6281 Carl Reidesel July pay roll 25 10
6306 Frank Arries earth for washout 46 25
6383 Carl Reidesel August pay roll 71 99
6401 Carl Reidesel Sept pay roll 10 00
6509 Carl Reidesel Oct pay roll 3 50
6534 Carl Reidesel Nov pay roll 18 50
6556 Crookston Lumber Co lumber 8 32
6586 Castle Bros gravel 1 32
6658 Carl Reidesel Dec pay roll 1 25
6669 Wm Sampson stone 35 48
To balance 63
Total $ 311 37

THIRD WARD FUND.

RECEIPTS

By Balance March 31 1898 50 02
" June 1898 settlement from county 119 33
" November 1898 settlement from county 65 74
Total $ 245 09

DISBURSEMENTS

6071 Carl Reidesel comptroller March pay roll 6 42
6150 Carl Reidesel comptroller April pay roll 9 74
6164 Jacob Syverson drayage 50
6190 Carl Carl Reidesel May pay roll 11 12
6221 Carl Reidesel June pay roll 6 50
6281 Carl Reidesel July pay roll 16 50
6383 Carl Reidesel August pay roll 29 96
6384 Crookston Lumber Co lumber 18 44
6401 Carl Reidesel Sept pay roll 8 80
6534 Carl Reidesel Nov pay roll 4 00
To Balance 143 51
Total $ 245 09

FOURTH WARD FUND

RECEIPTS

By Balance March 31 1898 $ 422 27
By June settlement from county 258 11
By November settlement from county 129 72
Total $ 810 10

DISBURSEMENTS

6071 Carl Reidesel comptroller March pay roll 11 23
6150 Carl Reidesel comptroller April pay roll 18 67
6190 Carl Reidesel May pay roll 7 67
6221 Carl Reidesel June pay roll 24 75
6246 H Brosseau gravel 3 03
6251 O Berthiaume gravel 3 80
6281 Carl Riedesel, July pay roll 79 19
6306 Frank Arris, earth for washout 18 0.
6383 Carl Riedesel, August pay roll 72 00
6378 Peake & Adams, 238 loads earth 23 80
6401 Carl Riedesal, Sept pay roll 18 70
6509 Carl Riedesel, Oct pay roll 9 75
6534 Carl Riedesel, Nov pay roll 24 50
6555 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 12 80
6556 Crookston Lumber Co, lumber 16 16
6585 Castle Bros. clay 5 00
6586 Castle Bros. gravel 3 45
To Balance 458 00
$ 816 10

FIFTH WARD FUND.

RECEIPTS.

By balance, March 31st, 1898 $187 37
By June settlement from county 78 45
By November settlement from county 52 46
$316 28

DISBURSEMENTS.

5996 Red River Lumber Co, lumber $ 24 50
6150 Carl Riedesel, comptroller, April pay roll 75
6221 Carl Riedesel, June pay roll 6 37
6281 Carl Riedesel, July pay roll 4 60
6253 J E O'Brien & Co, mdse 1 60
6383 Carl Riedesel, August pay roll 25 00
6534 Carl Riedesel, Nov pay roll 6 50
6718 E D Childs, water tank 45 20
To Balance $201 86
$316 28

POOR FUND.

DISBURSEMENTS

6058 Vance & Stone, wood $ 21 80
6060 Mrs E Schroder, mds 6 00
6072 Carl Reidesel, Durkee & Suprenault allowance 24 00
6073 St Gabriel Hospital Ed Jonson and Cora Brown, two months Feb 7 to April 7, 1898 40 00
6074 Albert Hanson, boarding Ana Erikson, 2 month 12 00
6075 T E Clyesdale, brd for Mrs Jones 3 04
6076 F G Rauch, rr fare to Barnesville 2 45
6077 F G Rauch, mdse 24 70
6078 Mrs E Schroeder, mdse 3 90
6080 S C Peterson, mdse 15 00
6081 Mailloux & Sylvestre, mdse 15 93
6083 Mrs J A Boh, boarding 45 00
6151 Carl Riedesel, Durkey & Suprenault, monthly allowance 21 00
6153 Geo A Ralph, Louis Boisvert eye treatment 81 50
6154 Mailloux & Sylvestre, mdse 4 10
6156 F G Rauch, mdse 15 25
6157 F X Farley, medical attendance 6 00
6159 Albert Hanson, boarding 12 00
6059 John Cromb, graves 10 25
6079 C H Denniston, med attendance 2 00
6184 S L Collins, hack hire 3 00
6152 C D Billings, laundry 1 47
6155 Rosenthal & Falk, mdse 6 0.
6158 A A Just, medical attendance 5 00
6167 E Dampier, medical attendance 10 00
6170 A G Anderson, rr fare for Chambers 12 00
6191 Joseph Winfield, meat 6 55
6192 John Heidstab, wood 9 30
6193 Ruth Rosser, services rendered at hospital 11 00
6196 I Mailloux, mdse 10.
6198 Albert Hanson, boarding Annie Erickson 13 20
6199 Kate Deniston, nursing and mdse to Mrs Becker 9 75
6204 Carl Riedesel, monthly allowance Durkee, Suprenault and Annie Erikson 36 00
6251 I Mailloux, mdse 8 00
6228 Otto Burkhardt, boarding Mrs Decker 4 00
6231 St Gabriel Hospital, board and burial expenses Ed Olson 38 96
6222 Mrs J A Boh, boarding Pat O'Connor 4 mos, Feb 6 to June 6, 1898 40 00
6223 Mrs Isabel Sanden, monthly allowance 10 00
6224 Annie Errickson, monthly allowance 12 00
6226 Mrs G H Denniston, milk and rr fare 4 60
6227 Fred G Rauch, mdse 19 80
6229 C B Denniston, medical treatment to Mrs Becker 18 00
6230 T E Clysdale, bread 2 08
6264 Carl Riedesel Darkey and Supernault allowance 21 00
6197 Larson & Carpenter, wood for Mrs Becker 50
6282 Carl Riedsel monthly allowance, Supernault, Durkee and Anale Erickson 36 00
6317 A G Anderson, rr fare to poor 16 03
6318 Mrs C M Benson, board Shea and Lundgreen 4 00
6321 Mrs J A Bob, board for poor 33 60
6322 E M Peterson, board Pat O'Connor 7 25
6323 W Watts, rr fare for Joe Nagen 12 50
6324 A G Anderson, medicine 4 75
6325 A I Solberg, mdse for Ole Bope 4 00
6326 A I Solberg, mdse 3 50
6327 Albert Hanson, bd for Lindgreen 6 00
6328 Mrs E D Schraeder, mdse 5 71
6320 H Holte, medical attendance 17 00
6357 E M Peterson, bd Pat O'Connor 10 00
6371 F H Hillard, medicine 4 25
6355 Carl Riedesel, poor orders Durkee Erickson and Suprenault 36 00
6369 A O Loe, medical attendance 5 50
6446 Carl Riedesel, allowance Durkee, Suprenault and Erickson 36 00
6440 E M Peterson, board 10 00
6442 A G Anderson, railroad fare and merchandise 13 95
6439 A G Anderson Ry fare 9 69
6443 St Gabriels Hospital board J Lindgreen 2 months 20 00
6444 St Gabriel Hospital, board 5 months Cora Brown 50 00
6438 Riverside Hospital, serv's 29 00
6436 Rood & Holmboe, mds 7 65
6437 Mrs C M Benson, meals 2 10
6508 Carl Riedesel, mon. alln'c 36 00
6494 C H Dennison, med. atten. 5 00
6493 Knut Swanson, board 3 50
6445 E S Peterson, mds 6 76
6435 Ingeborg Larson, labor 26 00
6441 Mrs J A Bob, board 20 00
6488 T E Clydesdale, bread 3 03
6489 C S Chesterman, burial ex 14 00
6490 A I Solberg, mds 9 00
6492 Bethesda Hospital, for poor 83 00
6496 Fred G Rauch, mds 5 55
6495 Fred G Rauch, mds 20 80
6592 Geo Q Erskine, rent for Mrs VanTuyl 10 00
6595 Geo Q Erskine, rent for Mrs Becker 12 00
6596 Geo Q Erskine, rent for Mrs Becker 24 00
6598 Riverside Hospital, service redered city charges 168 00
6601 A I Soleberg mds for poor 3 00
6602 E M Peterson board 6 33
6604 Mrs C M Benson meals for poor 1 75
6605 Mrs C M Benson meals for poor 10 00
6606 E D Childs nurse for Mrs Benta 6 00
6607 Mrs J A Boh, board 20 00
6609 Carl Riedsel, Durkee, Suprenault & Erkson allowance 36 00
6623 Riverside Hospital, service 78 00
6624 A G Anderson, R R fare 7 70
6625 I Mailoux mdse 6 75
6370 A A Just Medical attendance W B Chambers 15 00
6599 F E Slocum mdse 32 00
6608 Mrs E Schreader mdse 7 36
6626 F G Rauch R R fare 8 78
6660 St Gabriels Hospital, care etc Cora Brown 3 months 30 00
6661 St Gabriels Hospital care J L Lindgren 6 month 30 00
6673 Mrs C M Benson, board 18 75
6670 N Brosseau 9 60
6659 Carl Riedsel, allowance Durkee, Suprenault Erkson 36 00
6597 Vance & stone, wood for Mrs VanTuyl 6 00
6745 Vance & Stone, wood 23 25
Total $1905 74

RECEIPTS.

By balance March 31st 1898 $870 92
" June settlement from county 305 06
" November " " " 219 00
" Balance 510 76
Total $1905 74

RECAPITULATION.

By general fund $ 4672 18
By city hall fund 359 13
By improvement fund 782 41
By sinking fund 214 06
By interest fund 975 91
By special sewer fund 278 08
By special sinking fund 9 36
By park fund 138 97
By Firemen's Relief fund 308 88
By First ward fund 250 03
By Second ward fund 63
By Third ward fund 143 51
By Fourth ward fund 458 00
By Fifth ward fund 201 86
By cash received from county on account March settlement 3000 00
Total $11794 01
To street and bridge fund $ 1150 08
To sewer bond fund 3267 80
To sewer fund 1613 23
To poor fund 610 76
To cash on hand 5252 14
Total $11794 14

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from
St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.
And all Southern Cities.
Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

FARM PROFITS

Are Made by reading
FARM, STOCK & HOME,
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the
FARMER, STOCKMAN, DAIRYMAN, GARDENER, POULTRYMAN, APIARIST, FRUITIST, AND HOUSEWIFE.
Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year
ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.
With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25
The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .
MONARCH CHAINLESS $75
MONARCH ROADSTERS $50
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35
MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg
Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Jessie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.
Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.
Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance.

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1899.

THE almost universal interest manifested in Rudyard Kipling during the past few weeks means much. How often it is said that this age is materialistic. Yet millions watched at the bedside of this poet dreading lest he might be called away and he stands for beauty.

JOS. H. CHOATE, the United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, at his first public appearance in London last week, captivated his audience by his eloquence and wit. The United States has been most fortunate in selecting a cultured, tactful, statesman-like man to represent her in England.

WE have received an invitation from the Winona Normal school to attend the graduating exercises of the Third Quarterly Division of the class of 1899, Friday, March 24. The commencement address will be given by L. C. Lord, president of the Moorhead Normal school.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY went to Thomasville, Georgia, last week to take a much needed rest. For more than a year he has been under a tremendous strain and it is small wonder that he wishes for a short time to lay aside the cares of state. Few of us realize the arduous duties attached to the office of president yet how prone we are to adverse criticism!

IT is now svident that large quantities of beef, unfit to eat, to say the least, were furnished our soldiers during the late war. The War Department will be held accountable for this and Mr. Alger and some of his subordinates already feel the weight of adverse public opinion. But what shall we say of the beef packers! They must have known the quality of the stuff they were shipping to our soldiers, but they saw a chance of make some money and consequently stifled all the humanity they had left.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN would not answer the invitation of the Democratic club of New York, to attend the banquet to be given by the club in honor of Thomas Jefferson, until he learned whether the president of the club had publicly announced his conversion to the principles set forth in the Chicago platform. Which being interpreted means that Mr. Bryan refuses to honor the great Thomas Jefferson until he, Mr. Bryan, is honored. He shows his narrow non-expansion views in all his acts.

AN appeal to the people of the United States urging all lovers of freedom to co-operate with them in an endeavor to persuade the government to suspend hostilities in the Philipines and confer with the Filipino leaders with a view to preventing further bloodshed, by recognizing their independence upon the guarantee of protection to property by the natives, has been issued over the signatures of more than a score of prominent men. This appeal is unselfish for and will have no practical effect. It must be evident that President McKinley is as anxious as any one to avoid bloodshed and as soon as possible war will cease. The Filipino insurgents forced us to fight after we had promised to treat the natives most humanely and liberally. It is useless to confer with them for their refusal to co-operate with us in seeking to realize the policy outlined by the president, shows that they are incapable of administering the affairs of the islands and that a retrograde movement would follow our withdrawal.

IF Crookston is entitled to the interest and penalties on delinquent taxes assessed against its property, why is not every village and town in the county entitled to theirs? What has Crookston ever done that entitles her to this special privilege?—Fertile Journal.

The question at issue in the matter of the penalties and interest on delinquent taxes is one of law. It would appear from the special law and the general law that bear upon the case that the county owes the city a certain amount of money. Both parties are agreed to abide by the decision of the courts and we feel sure that the people of Polk county will willingly pay back to the city of Crookston any money that may have illegally got into their treasury. Crookston bases her claim to this money upon a certain provision in the city charter, and the villages of the county would have equal privileges with Crookston if like provisions were in their articles of incorporation.

We see no occasion to try and stir up opposition to the county seat. Crookston is as much a part of the county as is Fertile or Gentilly, or any other place in the county and is just as much interested in the county's welfare as those towns.

"WANT TO GO HOME."

Under the shade of a tree hung a hammock; in the hammock a man, perched on the rope a big green parrot. Now and then the bird raised its head and croaked:

"I want to go home! I want to go home!"

Then parrot used to belong to a fellow that took sick of typhoid and went to the hospital," said a soldier standing by. "His took the bird with him, and it used to sit on the window sill while he tossed and moaned with the fever. The chap was horribly homesick, and he was always moaning: 'I want to go home! I want to go home!' And the parrot picked it up. Ever since the fellow died and the parrot came back here to live it's been croaking 'I want to go home!' until it makes us homesick. Sometimes in the night, when everything is still, that parrot will croak out 'I want to go home! I want to go home!' just the way the boy did when he was dying, and it's enough to make one's blood run cold to hear him."

The parrot slowly flattered down to the open window, spread its wings and balanced itself on the window sill. It looked around the room and in a sobbing tone repeated again and again: "I want to go home! I want to go home!"

"Now you must be sure and say we want to come home," said a private from his window in a soft whisper, so the officers could not hear him. "We have been in this accursed spot four months, and we want to go home. We didn't enlist for regular army work. We enlisted to fight and not for garrison duty. Most of us fellows had good jobs back in the States, and we want to go home.

"You think Manzanillo is a pretty nice place? You wait until you stay here four months and have learned to count the days by cutting notches on a stick. You may have four months and see nothing but these yellow hillidges and the blazing sun and always the same faces and hear nothing from your friends in the States, and you'll be hollering like that parrot over in D company. 'I want to go home, I want to go home!'"

The soldier walked out of his quarters and stood leaning against the side of the barracks, looking out across the range of hills to the north.

"Away over those hills and across the water there's the States, I guess, though it's so long since I was there that I almost doubt it. It seems as though I hadn't done anything all my life but lounge around a miserable little town on the side of a hill and wait for a steamer to come once every 1,000 years and let off a few Americans and put ashore some beef that we can't eat and a few papers and now and then a letter. You Americans go away as soon as the steamer is loaded, and then there is the old monotony again.

"Some of the fellows go away to the hills and sit there by the hour thinking of the States. But I don't. I'd be afraid some time that if I did I might take my gun out of the rack and try to swallow the muzzle while I pressed the trigger with my toe.

"But I wish I could get back to West Virginia again. I've got a girl back there—or I did have. I haven't heard from her for a long time. I heard she was sick, and then I heard she was married. I don't know. I suppose I am about the same as dead to her anyhow. You can't expect a girl to wait for you forever. But I want to go home. I don't care whether the Cubans get annexation or not. I don't care if Spain comes back and gobbles up the island again. I just want to go home. That's all. I want to go home."

He drew his hands across his eyes, walked back into the barracks and began putting his accoutrements in order for the dress parade that evening.

"It's Sunday," said the sergeant lounging outside the quarters, "but we have dress parade. All ceremonies on Sunday in the army were abolished by congress, but we have them just the same. The colonel wants to keep us busy. It doesn't do to let men have nothing to do. They get to brooding, and a soldier that gets the blue devils is worse than a sick horse."

The bugles blew first call for dress parade, and the Americans went out to the common in front of the barracks. It was a poor sort of ground for dress parade. It was only a couple of hundred yards wide at most and shelved down in a manner that made it seem wonderful that the band could keep from slipping, down into Manzanillo when it marched across the parade to take position at the right of the line.

A narrow road ran along the top of the parade ground, and on it the regiment formed in line of companies. There were the usual reports and the publishing of the orders by the adjutant; then a flourish of trumpets and the regiment, headed by the band, swung into columns of fours and passed into review.

It was a strange place for a review of American troops. The town of Manzanillo lay in front with its red tiled and thatched roofs, and in the distance was the bay, with steam launches along the shore. Back of the troops were the low barracks and the distant blockhouses.

The band struck up "Dixie" and the regiment wheeled past, the men as erect and soldierly and every movement executed with as much precision as if it was marching down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington instead of balancing on the side of a hill in a forgotten place that a great many people in the United States didn't even know was on the map.

"Oh, I wish I was in the land of cotton!" played the band as the regiment came marching by.

A convalescent soldier leaning on his cane near our party drew in his breath with a sharp, whistling sound.

"I wish to God I was!" he murmured.

Then he stiffened up and took off his hat, for the colors were passing.

The regiment countermarched at the end of the parade and marched back on the road to the barracks and disappeared through the gate.

I wish I was in the land of cotton;
Olden times are not forgotten—
Look away, look away, look away to Dixie land!

The music of the band died away. The sun slowly sank and darkness gathered. The Americans walked silently down the hill. The convalescent soldier joined them.

"What did you think of it?" he asked. "Fine," said we. "It was the best appearing regiment I have seen in Cuba," said the army captain.

"Say," said the soldier suddenly, "you are not going back to the States and say that, are you?"

"Certainly," replied the captain. "It's true, isn't it?" He turned to me.

"Why, yes," I replied. "I wouldn't hesitate to say that dress parade was a magnificent thing and that regiment as soldierly a lot of men as I ever saw."

"Look here! You are not going to print that in the paper, are you?" asked the soldier.

"Why, yes! Why not?"

"Why not? Why, because the people at Washington will read it, and they will make us stay in this God forsaken land another thousand years. Look here," he went on appealingly, "I want to go home. We all want to go home—except the officers. Don't say we are good. Don't say that the regiment is the best you ever saw. Say it's a bad. Won't you, please? Say it's the worst looking gang you ever came up with in your life. It won't hurt you. Nobody will know the difference. What we and most people have forgot there ever was such a thing as the Fourth Immune regiment. Say we are an ill tempered lot of mutiny and ought to be sent home in disgrace. Won't you? That will help us out."

He seemed to like the idea. for he went on rapidly: "That's the stuff. Tell 'em we're so rotten that the insurgent soldiers don't have any respect for us and that if we are not taken home the insurgents are liable to attack us and drive us off the island. Say we don't look able to fight a detachment of the Salvation Army. Give us a holy roast, and it'll make the department mad, and they'll say 'What's all this about? The Fourth Immunes. What are the Fourth Immunes? Oh, yes, that's a regiment, ain't it? Well, where are they? Let's bring 'em back home and send a decent regiment there that reflects some credit on the United States.' That's what they'll say. Do that for us, won't you?"

He stopped at the beginning of the town.

"I can't go any farther. But do that for us, won't you? You don't know how tired we are of being Robinson Crusoes. Say we've got a mother at home and I want to go back."

We walked away and left him. But that night as the passengers sat on the deck of the Antinojenes Hernandez and watched the water widening between the steamer and the pier there was a shout from the shore. In the moonlight we could see the figure of the soldier we had met at parade. He formed his hands into a speaking trumpet and shouted after us:

"Do that, won't you? Say we are going to mutiny and join the insurgents. Say anything. We want to go home! We want to go home!" The steamer came about and stood straight out to sea. But as far as we could discern objects on the lonely coast of Manzanillo we saw dimly a forlorn figure leaning on a cane, and once or twice the night wind carried his voice to us again. "I want to go home, go home!"—R. H. Little in Chicago Tribune.

When Insects Sleep.

There is no doubt that all insects, except those, like the May fly, which die very soon after they are born, take rest. Some of them take from 10 to 20 hours rest at a time—as, for instance, butterflies, which remain fixed to certain spots for days together. Some caterpillars and moths like rest during the day, appearing only at night, while insects of the bee and wasp tribe do their work by day and slumber at night.

Besides may often be found during the daytime with their legs drawn up under their bodies in a condition suggesting repose, while it is well known that they make their depredations principally by night.

Some insects, again, take a long period of rest during the winter months, and it is certain that insects, like any other family of animals, enjoy periods of repose, though, as they cannot close their eyes, it seems hardly right to call this sleep.

The Effective Appeal.

Man is so selfish that no sermon can be expected to reach him unless it encourages him to lay up treasures for himself somewhere.—Galveston News.

LOVE SONG.

If all the laurel wreaths of fame
Were twined for my unsightly head,
What were they worth unless they came
To see your lover garlanded?

If all the sovereignty of earth
In one sole scepter stooped my grasp,
What would its heavy gold be worth
Unless your hand were mine to clasp?

If all the roses summer knows
By pleasure's hand were plucked and strown,
Should I relax up one single rose
If I must drink its scent alone?

There is no kingdom but your heart,
There is no laurel but your praise,
The rose is but your counterpart,
You dear delight of all my days!

Yet would I find the scepter gold,
The laurel fine, the roses strown,
The scepter for your hands to hold,
The rose and laurel for your brow!

—E. Nesbit in Black and White.

Births.

HOCH.

To Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hoch on Monday, March 20, a girl.

LINDBERG.

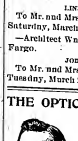
To Mr. and Mrs. J. Lindberg, on Saturday, March, 18, a girl.

—Architect Walcott has located at Fargo.

JOHNSON.

To Mr. and Mrs. Erick Johnson on Tuesday, March 21, a girl.

THE OPTICIAN,



DR. T. J. SMITH,

Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

Liver Ills

Like biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, constipation, sour stomach, indigestion are promptly cured by Hood's Pills. They do their work easily and thoroughly. Best after dinner pills. 25 cents. All druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. The only Pill to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law,

No. 2 Fournet Block CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

A. R. HOLSTON,

Attorney - at - Law

Practices in all the courts. Office, Wallace Block.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

TIME CARD

—OF—

TRAINS.

Crookston

SOUTH BOUND.	Ar.	Dep't
No. 199 for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Nor.	6.27 pm	6.37 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6.30 am	6.20 am

C. A. SHARRET, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

TRAINS	*Daily	Except Sunday.	TRAINS
6.55 am	Grand Forks, Neche and Winnipeg	7.00 am
8.40 pm	Hope, St. Thomas and points east	6.05 pm
6.00 pm	Fisher's Landing, Hatton and Larimore	9.10 am
6.00 pm	Hillsboro, Fargo and Wahpeton and Red Lake Falls	9.10 am
4.08 pm	Wyndom, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior	8.00 am
5.45 pm	Chicago, Halsted, Moorhead and Fargo	7.30 am

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

IN THE

North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS, BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

50 Cents a Number! $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N. Y

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

NOTIFIED TO CLOSE UP.

Anti-Saloon League After Des Moines Dealers in Wet Goods.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22.—All the saloons of Des Moines have been notified to cease business by April 15 or suffer prosecution. The notice was served by Rev. H. H. Abrams of Marshalltown, agent of the Anti-Saloon league. He makes the point that the saloonkeepers have not complied with the provisions of the new code adopted by the last legislature, which provides that a petition of consent must be signed by 65 per cent of all the voters at the last general election and permission granted by the board of supervisors before a saloon can be opened. Most of the saloons were in operation prior to the adoption of the new code and have not thought it necessary to obtain a new petition of consent.

Probably Struck by a Bridge.

ORTONVA, Ia., March 20.—J. J. Healey, fireman on the Burlington fast mail between Chicago and Burlington, was found dead by Engineer Potts, on the cab seat, hanging out of the window. Healey's head was nearly cut off. It is thought he was struck by a bridge near Gladstone.

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

United States Map.

15c. A copy of our handsome map, size 20x24 inches, printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal notes or stamps. Also a 32 page book containing a complete list of all post-offices in the United States, with county and State, and the name of the nearest Money Order and Express Agent to each. Address, GEO. H. HEAFFORD, General Passenger Agent, C. St. P. M. & O. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal,

Morrisey's Foundry.

YOUNG SHORT HORN BULLS. FOR SALE.

Pure bred and fit for service this spring. At my farm, Sec. 15, town of Lowell, five miles north-west of Crookston.

R. A. WILKINSON.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

H. STEENERSON.

Attorney-at-Law

Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,

Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Persons Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

Vance & Stone for coal and wood.

—W. L. Vannet spent Sunday at Fertile.

—Register Peterson was in St Paul Monday.

—Leo S. Bayrell was down from Argyle Monday night.

—Mrs. J. E. Hunter, of Warren, was in the city Tuesday.

—Louis Guyatt, of Argyle, spent Monday night in Crookston.

—Engineer Ed. Cowan, is back at work on the Great Northern.

—Rev. S. Currie, of Euclid, held services at Mentor last Sunday.

—J. R. Carey, of Northcote, was a Crookston visitor Monday night.

—Attorney H. W. Lee returned to Thief River Falls Tuesday morning.

—Warren was represented in the city Monday night by E. A. Whitney.

—Cedar posts, 12½ to 15 cents a piece, for sale at S. C. Johnson's feed store.

—Last Tuesday was registration day. There will be two more before election.

—George Stone took a business trip along the Fosston line last Tuesday.

—Attorneys Miller and Steenerson went up to Warren Tuesday to attend court.

—Messrs Kaiser and Stadsvold, of Fosston, went to the Twin Cities Monday night.

—Attorney G. E. Carr was here Monday night, returning to Stephen Tuesday morning.

—Court opened at Warren on Monday. Several Crookston lawyers were in attendance.

—W. E. Sloane has returned from Michigan, where he has been for several weeks past.

—Eli Steenerson left Tuesday morning for his new town Phoenix, out north of Bemidji.

Dr. G. A. Morley, specialist, eye, ear, nose and throat. Office, Eckert block, Crookston, Minn. 30tf

—Mrs. Geo. Q. Erskine left Sunday evening for Chicago, where she will visit with her daughter.

—Marcus Johnson came up from below Tuesday morning and went on out to Red Lake Falls.

—C. A. Moody, the enthusiastic boomer of the townsite of Warroad spent Tuesday last in the city.

—T. H. Bradshaw and family left Monday afternoon for Idaho where they will make their future home.

—Attorney E. M. Stanton, of Argyle, was in the city Friday, returning home Saturday morning.

—Warren J. Kingsland, of Beltrami, has had his pension increased $2 a month. He now receives $12 a month.

—Mr. and Mrs. Bolsser were in the city to attend the funeral of Mrs. John Cromb, Mrs. Bolsser's mother.

—Tams Bixby and Harris Richmond, of St. Paul, and J. W. Wheeler went out to Bemidji on business last Monday.

—A freight wreck at Alexandria delayed the Great Northern passenger from the southeast Saturday for three hours.

—E. A. Webster has bought the Baldwin house on Ash street just north of the Norwegian Methodist church, and is already settled in his new home.

—Mrs. J. O. Sargent has returned from Denver. Her daughter, Maude, with whom she has been for several weeks, is better in health than when she went south.

—Louis Payment and family, who have been living a few miles south of Crookston for several years, left last Saturday for Butte, Montana, where they will make their future home.

—George Hanson and Ralph Childs, Juniors at the high school, gave the members of their class a sleigh drive last Saturday night. Refreshments were served at George's home about ten o'clock.

—Representative Morin was up from the State Capitol last Monday, and spent the day in Crookston. Measures in which Polk county is interested, particularly the drainage bill, he thinks will pass.

Three members of the board of county commissioners met in Crookston last Saturday to consider further the demand of the city upon the county for certain money. A. A. Miller has been retained by the county to assist A. R. Holston, the county attorney, in the defense.

—City Engineer Geo. A. Ralph and his surveying party returned Monday night from Warroad and vicinity, where they have been for some time doing government surveying. Mr. Ralph says that about 150,000 ties have been cut there for the new railroad which it is expected will reach Warroad sometime this summer.

—This is Self Denial week in Salvation Army circles the world over.

—Ed. Martin is now numbered among the members of the Antlered lodge.

—John Cromb Jr., who has been studying dentistry at Chicago, is home.

—Anton Jensen, of McIntosh, has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., for a few months.

—A. R. Holston, county attorney, made a business trip to Bemidji last Friday.

—Attorney W. E. Rowe went to St. Paul last Friday night on legal business.

—George Strawbridge, of St. Hilaire, spent Sunday in Crookston with Ben Strawbridge.

—A small party spent a very enjoyable evening at the Columbia Club rooms last Friday night.

—Mrs. J. D McPhee, of Lockhart, was visiting the latter part of last week at the home of M. R. Brown.

—Will Bloom will hereafter have complete charge of the business of the Northwestern Collection Agency.

—Ben Strawbridge last Friday sold the sw¼ of sec. 33 in the town of Fenney to M. C. Gunderson for $16.00 an acre.

—Landlords Scott and Lycan have issued handsome invitations for a dance to be given at Hotel Crookston on Friday evening.

—The Royal Neighbors will hold a dance in the Woodmen's Hall in the Fourcet block on the evening of Easter Monday April 2.

—The chief of one of the bands of the White Earth Indians, was in Crookston last Friday on his way back from Washington.

—Mrs. Tollof J. Farden, of Mentor, received as a birthday present from her husband last week a fine horse and carriage. The latter was bought from N. P. Stone, of this city.

—L. A. Gooler, assistant county superintendant, has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to hold the spring examinations for teachers at East Grand Forks last week.

—M. O. Sortedahl has resigned his position as deputy clerk of court and will engage in the abstract business in Red Lake Falls. O. K. Bergst will take Mr. Sortedahl's place.

—Halvor Steenerson, says the St. Vincent Era, is the greatest criminal lawyer in the state, and according to the same paper Judge Watts, at the recent term of court at Hallock, "showed himself well worthy of the high position which he holds."

—Peterson Bros., of the Waterwork, Power and Light company, will complete this week the laying of the mains in the river below Fletcher street just back of the Baptist church. To protect the pipes they will be laid in a trench several feet deep which will be laid at the bottom of the river by means of a dredge worked by an engine.

—The Pink Tea Social given at the College Hall last Thursday evening by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church was well attended and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent in listening to an entertaining program and in partaking of the delicious viands which the ladies had prepared.

—The firemen of the city held a meeting last Thursday evening in their assembly room in the city hall. Final arrangements were made with reference to some of the boys sleeping in the hall so as to be on hand in case of fires at night. Archie McKinnon was elected captain of the running teams and James Montague assistant.

—Last fall I bought a small thresher and a gasoline engine from the Kinnard Press Company and did my own threshing. With an average yield of grain from 350 to 400 acres I can save enough in two years to pay for an outfit. I also grind my own grain and feed, and some for neighbors, and saw wood. I think the larger thresher is doomed.—Henry Seely, Polk Co., Minn.

—The Farm Journal is 22 years old, prints 40 tons of paper a month, and is out of debt. It is out to it every progressive farmer and wife longer. Don't you want this fine little paper? Very well, pay all arrears and a year ahead for the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and we will have the Farm Journal sent in your address for five years—and it will get to you if alive and anywhere on this planet.

—Director LaSore's ladies' and men's physical culture classes gave an exhibition in club swinging at the gymnasium rooms last Saturday evening in the presence of quite a number of visitors. Both classes have progressed wonderfully and all members are manifesting a great deal of interest in the work. After the class work was through Mr. LaSore did some clever work on the rings, Maurice Malone punched the bag in an artistic manner, and several of the boys punished each other for the amusement of the audience.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

North half of section 12, town of Andover. No buildings. Will rent in tracts to suit. VANCE & STONE.

—A. F. Campion spent Tuesday in Crookston.

—The new Broadway bridge is open for traffic.

—Harry Ives was down from St. Hilaire yesterday.

Mrs. A. C. Misner, of Euclid, is visiting with friends in the city.

—Col. and Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson came up from St. Paul Tuesday.

—The 15th Reg. of Minnesota Volunteers will leave the service March 27.

—Miss Ermine Fontaine has been visiting with Mrs. E. C. Carrath at Grand Forks.

—Oscar Youngren and J. Westerson, of Hallock were in the city Tuesday night.

—Miss Helen Halvorson, who has long been in the millinery business in this city, removed to Ashland, Wis.

—E. J. Russell, one of Stephens' hardward dealers, came up from below yesterday morning and went on out home.

—C. M. Nelson returned to his home at Fertile last Saturday, after after remaining in Crookston for an operation upon his eye by Dr. Morley.

—The primary elections for delegates to the republican city convention at the city hall on Friday evening, March 24, will be held today.

—J. C. Sletten was in from Gary Tuesday to transact some business and to visit with his son Charly Sletten, who is head bookkeeper in the New York store.

—Despite the fact that winter is still with us the Scandia Mutual Hail Insurance company is doing a good deal of business. Over $100,000 insurance has already been written.

—There were three runaways in town on Tuesday—the Jim Crookston's new team, E. C. Shevlins spirited horses and a pulfrey that John Kirsch was driving. No one was hurt.

—For Easter Sunday the Sunday school of the Congregation church is preparing a concert which will be given at the usual hour of the morning service. The subject is "The Risen and Present Redeemer."

—The cheap rates to the coast on the Great Northern are causing travel to set in that direction. Yesterday morning passenger westbound had several extra coaches and a special with about a dozen cars went through at 10 a. m.

—J. V. Miller, night operator in the Great Northern offices in this city, has accepted a position with the Northern Pacific in Montana and leaves for the west today. Operator Stires, of West St. Paul, takes Mr. Miller's place.

—John Kirsch's genial countenance was seen among the band boys last Tuesday night. This is the first time that his off week came at the right time so as to enable him to assist Prof Biggs.

—County Supt. Kanaa and his assistant, Mr. Gooler, have been busy for the past week in holding over examination papers. About half of those who wrote at Crookston failed. The certificates were issued last night.

—E. J. Hazelton returned yesterday morning from Wisconsin, and went out to Euclid. His farm here he has sold, certain machinery, etc., will be auctioned off next Wednesday, and he expects to make his home in future on the large Hazelton estate near Madison, Wis.

—At the meeting of the Grain Growers of Polk county at Crookston last week, these men were elected permanent officers: Jas. B. Merrill, of Fisher, president; J. S. Nichols, of Liberty, vice president; A. N. Sweet, of Fisher, secretary; J. B. Marquis, of Crookston, treasurer, and J. S. Nichols as county organizer. Almost 100 farmers were present and these decided that they would stand shoulder to shoulder with the soil rising from the rest of the state in an endeavor to get higher grades and better prices for their grain.

Mrs. Cromb's Funeral.

The train bearing the body of Mrs. John Cromb reached Crookston Monday morning. Many friends were waiting at the station and the remains were taken thence to her late home. Tuesday afternoon occurred the funeral. Services were held at the church and at the grave. The casket was covered with beautiful floral offerings, the kind remembrances of friends. A large concourse of people witnessed the solemn rites performed at the body was lowered into its last resting place. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in this their great sorrow.

$75.00

Buys a team of horses—sound, well matched, in good condition and ready for business. VANCE & STONE.

AUCTION

Thursday, March 30.

The Greatest Sale of Years.

Having sold my large farm in Lowell township I hereby offer all the personal property for sale.

THE PROPERTY:

Consists of about thirty-five very fine work horses, all acclimated, in good condition, all tested and ready to work; Jersey cattle, thoroughbred; Poultry; eight gang plows, very best of John Deere, Moline, Solid Comfort, Weir, Case and other brands; about a dozen walking stubble plows; several prairie breakers; a lot of steel beam and wood harrows; two Dwagiac shoe drills, two Havana press drills; Mowers; horse rakes; several binders of McCormick, Champion and Deering makes; three 12-foot cut Craver steel binders; about a dozen farm wagons; about twenty sets work harness, light driving harness, single harness; Democrat two seat buggy; road carts, etc. 1200 pound platform scale; double feed mill, several Fanning mills. Household goods: stoves, chairs, tables, bed steads, bedding, crockery, etc. A large quantity of other property too numerous to mention

Sale to begin at ten o'clock a. m.

TERMS OF SALE: All sums under ten dollars cash. All sums in excess of ten dollars, approved notes bearing ten per cent interest, due October 15, 1899.

A. N. Hixson.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, March 23.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 1 hard, 68¾c; No. 1 Northern, 67¾c; No. 2 Northern, 61¾c; No. 1 Nor. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 68¾c; No. 1 Northern, 69¼c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 68¾c; No. 1 Northern, 68¾c; May, 67¾c. July, 69¾c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 23.

WHEAT—March closed at 67¾c; May, 67¾c; July, 67¾c. On Track No. 1 hard, 68¾c; No. 1 Northern, 67¾c; No. 2 Northern, 65¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, IA., March 23.

HOGS—Market weak; lower. Range prices, $3.45@3.60.

CATTLE—Market about steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for beaves; $2.00@3.75 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.50@4.60 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @5.00 for yearlings and calves.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,000; hogs, 1,200.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, March 23.

HOGS — Market is lower. Range of prices, $3.60@3.70.

CATTLE—Market steady and active. Stockers and feeders lower.

Sales ranged at $2.75@4.60 for stockers; $3.45@4.40 for steers; $2.00@3.60 for heifers; $2.75@3.35 for cows; $4.75@5.75 for calves.

SHEEP—Good sheep and lambs in demand; not many here.

Sales ranged at $4.00@4.10 for ewes, $4.20@5.00 for lambs.

Receipts: Cattle, 900; hogs, 3,600; sheep 400; calves, 600.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, March 23.

HOGS—Market averaged steady, closed weak.

Sales ranged at $3.80@3.85 for mixed and butchers. $3.75@3.90 for good heavy $3.50@3.65 for rough heavy. $3.80@4.00 for light.

CATTLE—Market generally 10c lower.

Sales ranged at $4.50@5.75 for beaves, $1.75@4.80 for cows and heifers; $3.30@ 4.50 for Texas steers; $3.35@4.70 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market strong

Sales ranged at $3.00@4.75 for sheep; $4.25@5.60 for lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 30,000; cattle, 18,000; sheep, 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, March 22

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May 68¾@; July, 67¾c.

CORN—March, 38¾c; May, 84¾@34¾c; July, 35¾@35¾c.

OATS—March, 26¾c; May, 26¾c July, 24¾@24¾c.

PORK—March, $8.75; May, $8.95; July, $9.12½.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 10½@13c; ducks, 9½@10c; chickens, 10½c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 16@20; dairies, 11½@17.

EGGS—Fresh, 12c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard	66c
No. 1 northern	65c
No. 2 northern	62c

Fisher Bulletin: Thomas McCleary came up from Crookston Monday to take charge of his brother's farm recently purchased of L. Freeman. Thomas has been foreman of the Kelso farm for a number of years.

RED RIVER VALLEY

IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE ON LONG TIME

AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS AND INSURANCE

E. M. WALSH,

Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Our line comprises the Superior Double Disk Drills, Dowagiac Shoe Drills, Keystone Single Disk Drills and our small line of all Harrows, Wagons, Harness and other spring goods. At our Stores in Fosston and McIntosh we also carry a full line of heavy and shelf Hardware suited to your requirements. We solicit your trade at the point nearest you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or McIntosh.

LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

.....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

STATE LEGISLATURE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15.

The entire afternoon session in the house was devoted to the insane hospital fight and the question was still unsettled whenthat body adjourned.

The Argebinger bill, H. F. 500, which increases the state appropriations for rural, graded, semi-graded and state high schools, and which creates a state high school board, as well as bringing about other reforms and improvements in the public school system of Minnesota, passed the house by a vote of 82 to 30. The bill came up as a special order and, as passed, increases the annual appropriation for state aid of schools from $80,000, the present sum, to $102,000, or a total increase of $74,000.

Nearly the entire morning session of the senate was devoted to a discussion of Mr. Daugherty's bill licensing peddlers. As introduced the bill provided that all peddlers must pay a license of $3 a day, $30 a month or $100 a year in every township where they operate. Many amendments were offered and defeated, but one by Senator Everett, which fixes the license at $1 per day, $10 per month and $50 per year, was adopted without opposition. The bill was then recommended to pass by a vote of 33 to 17.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16.

The house has settled the insane hospital question, so far as that body is concerned, by passing the Staples compromise bill establishing a district asylum at Anoka and appropriating $16,000 for the purchase of a site at Hastings.

The Grundeland bill regulating the business of commission men passed the senate at the morning session by a vote of 34 to 22. The fight on this bill, even to the finish, was a struggle between the country and cities.

The special order for the afternoon, the insane hospital bills, was postponed until Tuesday next on motion of Senator Schaller.

The friends of the bill which has for its object the parole of the Younger brothers brought it to the front at the afternoon session of the senate and devoted several hours to its discussion. Senator Wilson, its author, spoke at length on the measure and related incidents showing the "manly conduct of the Youngers." Senator Wilson still occupied the floor when the senate adjourned.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17.

The senate transacted very little business, a long row over the fee system occupying most of the time. The Wilson bill, placing the office of oil inspector on a salary of $2,400, was finally placed on general orders.

Upon motion of Senator Underlack the vote on the Chilton meat inspection bill, which, adopting the recommendation of the committee, was killed, was reconsidered, and the bill has a place on general orders.

The senate judiciary committee killed S. F. 431, by Stockwell proposing an amendment to the constitution allowing the initiative and referendum.

A long fight was caused over a motion to adjourn in order to visit the agricultural station at St. Anthony Park. It was first voted down but on reconsideration carried by a bare margin.

H. F. 837, by Dwinnell of Hennepin, caused a prolonged debate in the house at the morning session. The bill provided that the state board of equalization consist of three members from the seven congressional districts, or 21 in all, instead of one from each judicial district as now.

The four senate bills by Senator Brower, relating to the state reformatory, were placed on the calendar in the house.

MONDAY, MARCH 20.

The senate has recommended for passage the Wilson parole bill, which will, if it gets through both houses, release the Younger brothers from the Stillwater penitentiary. The vote was 33 to 10, with 12 members absent or not voting.

Senator Stockwell made a final plea for the initiative and referendum, but the report of the judiciary committee killing the bill was adopted.

Bills passed allowing incorporation of the grand lodge of United Workmen, authorizing bicycle insurance companies and providing for purchase of municipal bonds for permanent school and university funds.

The house cleared the calendar of house bills and then went to work on general orders, but only succeeded in disposing of three measures. Wheaton's five-sixths jury bill was favorably recommended.

Among the measures passed was one submitting to a vote of the people an amendment to the constitution providing for loaning state school funds on nnencum bered farm lands.

TUESDAY, MARCH 21.

The Horton bill relating to the new capitol building, received a setback by a refusal of the house in committee of the whole to favorably report it. The opposition, however, consented to a report of progress.

The house attendance was very small, only a few senators getting through by unanimous consent.

At the morning session of the senate 18 bills were passed among them the following:

To establish a drainage commission and to provide for the drainage of the swamp and marshy lands of the state.

Establishing a probation system for juvenile delinquents.

Two senators occupied the entire afternoon discussing a plan for caring for the state insane in the future.

Senator Barker appeared in behalf of a new hospital at Anoka and the purchase of a site at Hastings. Senator Knatvold advocated the county system which is in vogue in Wisconsin, and both gentlemen agreed that the present hospitals were sadly overcrowded. From that point, however, they took divergent junctes.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, March 16.

Rapid progress is being made in forming the nut and bolt combination.

Carter H. Harrison has been renominated by the Democrats for mayor of Chicago.

Joseph Medill, for years editor of the Chicago Tribune, died at San Antonio, Tex., at the age of 70.

Ohio operators have signed the Pittsburg agreement under protest and the threatened strike of miners has been averted.

The Milwaukee Daily News is authority for the statement that the Milwaukee Railroad company will build a line from St. Paul to Duluth.

The principal English railway companies have resolved to dispatch agents to the United States to institute a private inquiry into the working of automatic couplings.

Friday, March 17.

Four negroes were shot to death and five badly wounded by a mob at Palmetto, Ga. They were under arrest charged with burning the town.

The cruiser Chicago has been ordered to Kingston, Jamaica, there to meet the steamer Paris and take on board ex-Secretary John Sherman, who is suffering from pneumonia.

Benjamin P. Hutchinson, the former board of trade operator, died of heart failure at the Lakeside Sanitarium, Lake Geneva, Wis. He was 70 years old. The remains were taken to Chicago for interment.

An order has been issued by the United States military authorities to the effect that all rations distributed to the Cuban poor after the supply now on hand is exhausted shall be charged against the customs receipt of the province in which they are distributed.

Saturday, March 18.

The German reichstag adopted the army bill, ending the crisis.

Mrs. Harold Frederic, widow of the well known American correspondent who died in London in October last, is dead.

Rev. Dr. M. Strelby, for 34 years secretary of the American Home Missionary association, died in a sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y.

Edward C. Becker, a St. Louis capitalist, has purchased the St. Louis Browns. The price paid is not stated, but is in excess of $97,000.

John Healey, who 10 years ago was known as a great baseball pitcher and familiarly designated as "Long John" Healy, is dead in Cincinnati of consumption.

The United States transport Sherman, from New York, on Feb. 5, for Manila, with the Third infantry and four companies of the Seventeenth infantry on board, was at Singapore Friday.

Monday, March 20.

The California legislature adjourned without electing a senator.

Herbert Putnam has accepted the post of congressional librarian.

The British cruiser Talbot, with the body of Baron Herschell on board, has arrived at Portsmouth, Eng.

A discovery of old Russian boundaries may result in showing the Klondike to be wholly within the United States.

Ten persons were killed and more than that number injured, some of them fatally, in a cyclone near Edwardsville, Ala.

Patrick Walsh, former United States senator and mayor of Augusta, Ga., is dead, after three months illness of nervous prostration.

The American force in the Philippines has been reorganized. It consists of two divisions, with Generals Lawton and MacArthur in command. Two regiments of regulars will do provost duty at Manila, relieving the Thirteenth Minnesota.

Tuesday, March 21.

A new satellite of Saturn has been discovered by a Harvard astronomer.

Mrs. Place was electrocuted at Sing Sing Monday for the murder of her daughter.

Gus Rohlin has signed articles of agreement to meet Peter Maher in a 20-round bout before the Lenox Athletic club, New York, April 16.

A temporary arrangement is stated to have been made by the United States and Great Britain to prevent collisions on the boundary of Alaska.

General Wheeler has issued a statement contradicting testimony on the part of Gen. Dunsmuir before the war investigating commission.

A Philippine general has been beheaded by order of Aguinaldo for advising surrender. Many others are condemned to death for the same offense.

Secretary Alger has returned to Washington from Montreal. He expects to leave Savannah Thursday for a trip to Cuba on the regular trip of the transport Ingalls.

Wednesday, March 22.

Salt Lake City is to have a salt palace.

A crusade against fire-trap hotels has begun in New York.

The United States has taken formal possession of Wake island.

Northwestern soft coal dealers have combined and will advance prices.

Cuba army is found to have shrunk from 42,000 to 18,319 men.

A Chicago boy who was abducted nearly a year ago has been found in Canada.

A convention delimiting the frontiers of England and France in Africa has been signed.

Ramor transfers General Horace Porter from Paris to the cabinet as secretary of war.

The Stillwater city council has granted Thomas Lowry and C. G. Goodnow a street railway franchise to build a local line and an interurban line to St. Paul.

BULLETS SANG "DEATH"

Though San Juan Fort Had Fallen, the Battle Went On.

"HERE WE ARE! HERE WE STAY!"

How the Victors Faced Spanish Reserve—Short Range For the Cavalry on San Juan Crest—Perason's Infantry Carried the Line Forward Beyond All Others.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

XI.

SAN JUAN blockhouse had fallen, but the killing of American dead did not stop. Less than 600 yards beyond its ruins, upon high elevations, to the right and to the left of the road, Spaniards still held on. At this time that part of the Ninth and Tenth cavalry in the rough ridges were on the ridge line north of the blockhouse, where there was a house with outbuildings and trenches, all used by the Spaniards for cover. The cavalrymen must at some time after they reached this point, which was known to them as San Juan House, they heard heavy firing at the blockhouse. This led them to suppose that the blockhouse had not yet fallen when they reached the crest of the ridge. However, the infantry said that they fired from the captured blockhouse and vicinity upon the retreating Spaniards and at their second line. Many gallant fellows of Wikoff's and Hawkins' brigades fell after the blockhouse was in the possession of the Americans. Among these was Lieutenant Orde of Hawkins' staff, who broke away from his leader in order to go in with the men of his own regiment. His statement Orde's conduct that day was heroic, his death most tragic. When the brigade was at the creek, deploying for the attack, he had said by way of encouragement: "You can take it in 30 minutes." Major Forse of the First cavalry, who went forward with his battalion after the capture of "Kettle" hill, was also killed.

The infantry reformed lines at the blockhouse and took position to make a counter attack, which a little later was threatened from the Spaniards in front. The blockhouse was a brick building, loopholed, with trenches on each flank and in front. West of it, toward Santiago, the ground falls into a deep depression. Six hundred yards westward, on both sides of the main road to Santiago, the Spanish had strong works. On the American right and left of this depression the heights are abrupt, and possession of those was essential to the holding of the blockhouse as well as of "Kettle" hill, because the height on the American right of the blockhouse itself are higher than "Kettle" hill.

As soon as the cavalry took possession of "Kettle" hill, as already described, many of the soldiers had rushed forward to the west crest and opened with their carbines upon the Spaniards around the heights in front. Wikoff and captains got their battalions and troops together and with a cheer charged forward. Two troops of the Third cavalry, led by Major Wessels, Captains Morton, Hunter and Morgan, dashed straight for the building known as the San Juan House. The Ninth and Tenth cavalry, with part of the rough riders, seemed to strike for the house, but owing to obstructions the line became mixed. On this charge there were severe casualties. Captain Bigelow and Lieutenant Roberts of the Tenth were wounded in charging down from "Kettle" hill into the swale, and Captain McCoy was wounded in ascending the ridge. Captain O'Neil, of the rough riders, was killed. Soon after reaching the house Major Wessels and Captain Hunter of the Third were hit. The fall of Major Wessels left the command of the regiment in the hands of Captain Morton. Troops I and B, under Brogdon and Dugan, coming up from San Juan blockhouse, joined, and Morton pushed forward 300 yards to the crest of the ridge. The Ninth and part of the rough riders were off to the right of this line, where Captain Galbraith, with Lieutenant Berkeley and two troops of the First cavalry, was also there.

The Sixth cavalry had kept in touch with the infantry all the way up the hill to San Juan blockhouse, and, reaching the crest, was on the left of the Tenth. Thus the cavalry had a strong line upon the highest point of the ridge, extending from the Santiago road northward toward the El Caney road, ready to form connection with Lawton's left according to plan. These troops immediately began intrenching, some using tin plates and fingers, and others, especially the Tenth cavalry, tools brought along on their backs. The right of this line was under fire from a blockhouse off toward the El Caney road. Parker took his guns up the hill, and, under the direction of cavalry officers, used them with good effect. It was believed at the time that the Spaniards were ready for a counter attack. The Ninth cavalry on the right of the line, being only one battalion strong, asked for help from the infantry, and finally Kent sent to its assistance some of the blockhouse victors—namely, the Thirteenth infantry.

As San Juan blockhouse was situated on the crest of the bridge no advance was made by Wikoff's and Hawkins' troops. They intrenched the line from the San Juan road, the Sixth cavalry position, southward, using for this work the Krag-Jorgensen bayonet, which is simply a very heavy knife with a blade about an inch and a half wide. Hawkins' brigade, which had lost the heaviest of any in climbing the hill and was also weakened by the defection of some hundreds of volunteers, had been withdrawn early in the day for the Twenty-first infantry from Pearson's Second brigade. This regiment had been detached by General Kent to assist Hawkins, but owing to the crowded lines had not got into action in time to charge with the Sixth and Sixteenth. However, it lost under the fire at the blockhouse. It lay down after the fight close upon the heels of the other regiments.

Meanwhile what of the crest southwest of the blockhouse, the region which seems to have been most easy for attack by the Spaniards? Kent's Second brigade, under Pearson, as before stated, had orders to rest its left upon a great knoll on the same ridge with a blockhouse 600 yards south. With that Pearson's orders stopped. When this brigade, consisting of the Second and Tenth, crossed the creek, the fire had somewhat abated. Still the battle was roaring on the right and men were dropping all around. Wikoff was lying dead in the bed of the stream. In order to advance it was necessary to break the line into columns of fours. The water was two to three feet deep and the banks lined with thick brush. Entering the field, the column was struck by a heavy fire, but it swept on, passing San Juan blockhouse on the left of Wikoff's and Hawkins' troops, driving the Spaniards from hill to hill to their trenches over the crest. Taking position on the crest at a distance varying from 400 to 1,000 yards from the advanced Spanish trenches and batteries, the brigade did not agianst a terrible fire. The men lay down under the shelter of the crest and fired steadily, not having time to intrench.

The experience of Pearson is an example of the complications that may impel a subordinate to anticipate his chief. After the brigade had established itself on the front line, on the left of the captured blockhouse, one of Kent's aids came up with an order to Pearson to make the very move he had already carried out. During the day Kent had modified his original orders to Pearson.

It is of course impossible to depict the condition of the troops in the line that night closed in. Words fail to express it. The heat was awful; the men were soaked through and through; they had had no food since morning and no prepared meal then and had none that night, excepting in a few cases where packs were brought up from the bed of the creek on the shoulders of already worn-out soldiers. The ground was very hard, being composed in some places of calcareous rock. There was no grumbling, no depression of spirits, only determination to hold on, and a wish for support, although, while they did not know it, there was none to give them. The Spanish infantry was in front of the front line and the only help to be looked for was the coming of Lawton down the El Caney road to threaten the Spaniards on the unprotected side of Santiago.

Lawton moved up, it's true, but not until after midnight and then unseen by the Spaniards, and he reached their pickets, about 600 yards from the right of the cavalry line on the crest, as before stated. There he halted, and sent back to Shafter for renewal of orders Calls for support for the troops in front of Santiago had been made and, of course, reached Shafter at various times during the afternoon and evening of the 1st, and he told Lawton that as things stood the quickest way to get in position in rear of Wheeler's line was to continue march to the crossroads southwest of El Caney and come back to El Poso, thence to San Juan ridge.

Nothing definite has yet been made known as to the strength of the Spanish force on San Juan ridge. The garrison of Santiago is placed at 10,000 before the much talked of Pando's column reached there. It would have been possible to have sent half the garrison or more from the main trenches to San Juan ridge after it was apparent that the Americans were to attack there in force. Why it was not done only the Spanish generals can tell us. A French officer in the Spanish service told one of his countrymen in the Third cavalry that the Spaniards were amazed at the persistency of the Americans in pushing forward against San Juan ridge in the face of the pitiless fire which was poured at them at the crossing and while ascending the slopes. He also said that when the Spanish troops were driven over the crest of the ridge the men in their second line had to hold their fire for fear of killing friends, and that that resulted in demoralizing them until as much as those driven out of the front trenches were demoralized by being compelled to beat a retreat; hence there could be no attempt at a counter charge, just at the time when it would be more effective—that is, at the very moment of American success. It is well known to fighting men that the very moment of success and full realization is the most dangerous for the assaulting column. Strength is exhausted in the effort to take a position, but once the victors have time to get breath and come to a full realization that the position is theirs they will die in their tracks before giving it up. Every moment that the Spaniards delayed counter attack on San Juan ridge made the Americans so much stronger.

GEORGE L. KILMER.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?

It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our

STERLING GRADES OF SEEDS

are unconditionally the best that can be had. Write now for our 1898 Catalogue. It describes IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. Its information is free on application. Our seeds are sold by leading marchants.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., SEED GROWERS. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

A Magazine for a Penny

"GOOD HOUSE-KEEPING" "Conducted in the Interests of the Higher Life of the Household."—Contains: valuable recipes, timely suggestions, discussions of the Domestic Problems, Hygenic Housekeeping, Original Stories, Choice Bits of Verse, Etc. Sample copy sent on receipt of a postal if you mention the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. Agents wanted.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

THE

Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED

SAN JUAN BATTLEFIELD.

...Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our foursection harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow.

You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,

AUSTIN, MINN.

Aug. Miller & Co., TANNERS.

FUR DRESSING AND DYEING A SPECIALTY.

We clean all kinds of Hides for coats, robes, harness and shoes. We pay good price for black sheep, cow and calf hides suitable for coats and robes. We also take orders for coats and robes making, and cleaning and repairing of old furs.

FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED.

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT

WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE: Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING

U.S. ARMY, AUTHOR OF "LAW AND THE BLADE," ETC.

"FORT TRAYNE," AN ARMY WIFE," "TRUMPETER FRED," "NOBLE BLOOD."

Copyright, 1898, by F. Tennyson Neely.

CHAPTER XIV.

Mrs. Turner forgot even that Mrs. Gregg and she were not on speaking terms that afternoon. She was calling at the Barrys' ostensibly to bless the inmates with her sympathy, but actually in the hope of seeing Nathalie and being able to tell how she looked and what she said. In this, however, she was disappointed, for Nathalie kept her room, and when Mrs. Turner would have gone aloft to visit her there Mrs. Barry, far from assenting, declared she believed it best for Nathalie not to see any one until she had slept. But, while the luxury of a personal interview with the suspected girl was denied her and the hoped for cessation was loss, Mrs. Turner was treated to one even greater and most unexpected.

Mrs. Stannard had hastily entered without either knocking or ringing, as had become her custom of late, and at sight of Mrs. Turner had as suddenly retired, closing the door behind her and hastening back along the piazza. Only a half second's glance had Mrs. Turner of her face, but she could swear that Mrs. Stannard had been crying.

Then Mrs. Turner was suddenly reminded that she had not seen Grace Maynard for at least two hours, and she lost no time in hastening in Mrs. Stannard's footsteps. Miss Maynard herself opened the Stannards' door and let her in, and Grace's face was the picture of woe and consternation.

"Something dreadful has happened, I feel sure of it," said Mrs. Turner the moment she caught sight of her friend. "Oh, what is it?"

It was no time to think of recent differences. "My mother has been arrested," said Miss Maynard in solemn tones, and knowing no distinction between that method of expression and the conventional form in use in the army.

"Who—why—I can't understand. You don't mean he's suspected of the robbery? Who arrested him? Where is he—gone?"

"He hasn't gone. He's here in his room," said Miss Maynard with breaking voice. "It's Captain Walters who did it."

"Oh," said Mrs. Turner, disappointed in spite of her better nature. "Been placed under arrest, you mean. Oh, that's so different, but what for—why?" And she scanned in the fair lady's face and tone was unmistakable.

"He will not tell," answered Miss Maynard, "and that is why I'm certain it is—as that girl's account. She has let him from one trouble into another. Do come in awhile, I'm so—so distracted I don't know what to do, and Ronald says like a crazy man. He doesn't want even me in his room."

But Mrs. Turner's ministrations were all too brief and unsatisfying. They consisted in a sharp and rapid fire of cross questions which evoked none of the looked for information as to cause, or even as to the allegations, and Mrs. Turner lost her accustomed equipoise in finding she was losing time. Startling more sensational had occurred at Russell for nearly two years, and the bliss of being the first to break the news to half a dozen households might be lost to her entirely if she did not act at once. She longed for Mrs. Stannard's ready repearance, but her room door remained obstinately closed.

When it became apparent that Miss Maynard really knew nothing about the matter and that she was useless to conduction further, the energetic and now thoroughly aroused lady decided that she must go, and go at once. So, despite her cherished friend's remonstrances, she bade her adieu, declaring she had faithfully promised to be at Mrs. Kay's 20 minutes ago, and so hastened to the door, only to be there confronted by a sight that gave her pause. Mr. Warner, the acting adjutant, accompanied by a scant party in gray business suit, had just entered the gate and met her face to face.

Warner politely raised his cap and smilingly asked if they could see Mrs. Stannard a moment. Mrs. Turner didn't know, but would inquire. So she returned and asked Miss Maynard, and Miss Maynard went into the dining room and tapped at Mrs. Stannard's door. No answer. She peeped in. No one was there. An appeal to the servants resulted in the information that Mrs. Stannard had stepped out through the kitchen and gone around to Mrs. Barry's, thereby, as was at once apparent, dodging Mrs. Turner and her inevitable questionings, and a flush that extended beyond the cosmetary limits was on that injured lady's face as she communicated to Mr. Warner the information that they would probably find Mrs. Stannard at Mrs. Barry's, next door. Should she go and call her? Warner said no, thanks, they had also to see Mr. Maynard, and they would go right up to his room. And go they did, leaving her and Miss Maynard gazing after them up the narrow stairway and listening for the colloquy that would follow the knock at the upper room door. They heard him say almost heartily: "Oh, come right in, Warner! I'm so glad you're here," and then with certain coldness and hesitation: "Why, certainly, if you say so! Come in, Mr. Cook." Then the door closed and the sound of voices became an inaudible murmur.

Miss Maynard herself opened the Stannards' door to let her in.

But Mrs. Turner forgot that engagement with Mrs. Ray for full ten minutes more, and then the visitors came clattering down, and Warner bowed most courteously to she lady as he passed the parlor door and asked Mrs. Turner if she would be so very kind as to see if Mrs. Barry would receive him with a gentleman from Lewis for just five minutes. This Mrs. Barry proved not only willing but glad to do, but poor Mrs. Turner had to return to wonder with Miss Maynard full five minutes more what it all could possibly mean before she again betbought herself of lost opportunities, and so finally bethought herself of other and more cordial dings. It was force of habit that led her straight to Mrs. Gregg's and launched her, impetuous and unannounced, into that astonished and indignant presence.

The fine feminine scorn in the visage of her old time friend and enemy recalled Mrs. Turner to herself.

"Oh, I forgot," she exclaimed, "but now that I am here I might just as well ask you if you've heard the news." And even in her haste and perturbation Mrs. Turner showed the soul of the diplomatist. Had she simply burst out with the announcement Mrs. Gregg could then have crushingly asked, as she had on a former occasion, "And did you consider that an acceptable excuse for this intrusion?" Now wisely anxiety and womanly curiosity overmastered pride and resentment. She had to gasp, "You, what?" for her husband and she neglected him from one trouble into another, and so having spoken the veil was lifted, the ice was broken. She heard the announcement of Maynard's arrest and the existence of "such strange looking men, sheriff's officers probably," without much attention to the fact she meant to cut Mrs. Turner dead and never speak to her again, but now she was trapped. At least it opened a door for her to get back into her neighbor and give her the piece of information for which her soul had been longing for days. Mrs. Turner sniffed the coming battle and was up and away triumphant.

"I can't stop. I've got an engagement at Mrs. Ray's, but I was so excited by what I had happened that I just had to drop in the first house I came to." Then away she went, and Mrs. Gregg had not so much as a chance for a crushing word. Verily Mrs. Turner was a tactician.

It was not long, of course, before the garrison had the news. The band came not to play or did the children, while their mothers gathered on the front piazzas and engaged in earnest talk, even while keeping an eye out for Warner and the stranger from Denver. They had remained at the Barrys' nearly 20 minutes and had gone on next door, presumably up stairs to Maynard's room. Then, having Mr. Cook there at Stannard's, Warner had come briskly over to the office. When he was finally seen returning, many fair faces, some of them sad and sweet and full of painful interest, others eager with curiosity, were turned toward him, and had he been many another fellow Warner might have had his head turned by such display of interest. He acknowledged and correctly estimated it all, however. It wasn't the first time, poor fellow, he had had to run the gauntlet of the —th, and a regimental favorite, too, when in arrest, and now, though many of the number were known to him he could trust and to whom he would be glad to tell how blameless he considered Maynard, he feared it would be difficult to discriminate where so many were evidently on the alert. He came into Stannard's, therefore, and when he reappeared and walked gravely down the long line Mrs. Stannard friend slowly pacing at his side and listening with evident equipment to the music of the band, the young adjutant raised his cap as he passed group after group, but made no stop whatever. At the old east gate a buggy was waiting, and into this he assisted Mr. Cook, saw him started down to Claymore and then, as the scandal of many an expectant eye impatient fair one, marched back across the open parade, saluting right and left, spoke a word to the band leader to cover his otherwise inaccountable deviation from the path of rectitude and officers' row, then dove into his office and disappeared.

"Well, I never know," said Mrs. Turner, "that Mr. Warner could be so mean."

It had been blowing fitfully during the early afternoon, but by 5 o'clock the wind was sprung from the northwest, and instead of the customary lull at sundown there came a steady gale. Women gathered their children to roost at an earlier hour than usual, and there was an fruitlessme band chasing and shouting about the parade in the long spring twilight. There was less lingering to and fro, and only near neighbors dropped in to chat about the latest news in the garrison sensation and to wish it wouldn't blow so hard at Russell. Many would have liked to spend an hour at Mrs. Barry's, but were deterred from attempting it because it was early given out that she was much fatigued and depressed by the events of the last few days. Mrs. Stannard was with her, and Marion Ray and Mrs. Freeman for a time had been admitted. Others called with polite inquiries for both the ladies, and Mary, the housemaid, had her answer pat. Mrs. Barry was not very well and begged to be excused, and Miss Baird was lying down. It was Bridget's evening out, for even on the far frontier did our domestic tyrants hold their employers to the weekly allowance of social freedom. It had been that cleary and good natured godess' practice to drive to town in a carryall, owned by the old retired soldier hitherto mentioned, who ran a sort of hoo line for the benefit avowedly of the men on pass and the donegiten on pleasure bent, but quite as much for that of his own plethoric old pocketbook. He was forbidden the road within one post because of certain contraband traffic in his past. But all that was necessary to secure his services was, as he announced, for the ladies and gentlemen of the post to leave their order at the land quarters, and abigail at he would begin the rounds of the back gates and with a crowded vehicle go spinning away to town.

Mrs. Barry had imagined that Bridget would forego her visit on account of the gale, but Mrs. Barry was mistaken. In gala attire her valued cook appeared to ask, as she always did, could she do anything for Mrs. Barry in town, and that lady thanked her, said no, but expressed some anxiety to Bridget's going.

"Oh, sr'Iget them all right, mum!" said she briskly. "The wind's with us every inch of the way. But would Mrs. Barry mind very much if I staid with friends in town and came out tomorrow if it blews harder? It's the coming back that'll try the old man's horses."

"Well, how can you get out in the morning?" was the question. "The stage doesn't come until nearly noon."

"Oh, I'll get my— I have friends who can bring me out, ma'am," was Bridget's confident answer. So the requisite permission was given and the cook departed in state. When the carryall came a few minutes later, she was ready at the gate, a big satchel in her hand.

That night when "taps" was sounded few people heard it at all because, of course, Nathalie lay awake, listening, stairs, white and wan, and was kneeling by Mrs. Barry's couch, while Mrs. Stannard read aloud. Not a whisper had been permitted to reach the girl of Maynard's arrest. She knew of the visit of Warner and the man from Denver, and was told that they had come for an accurate description of the missing property, and so they had, despite the fact that Mr. Cook already knew almost all that could be told. He had not, however, called on Mrs. Gregg or Mrs. Freeman. He was greatly interested in Mrs. Barry's case, in clearly establishing the window through which the professionals had entered the house and in her description of the symptoms by which she had been assailed—the uncanny stupor and drowsiness that oppressed her so long. Mrs. Barry answered all questions fully, yet wondered at their tenor. She had even asked if he might look about the kitchen and servants' quarters, and Mrs. Barry assured him that their every nook and cranny had been searched by Captain Walters' order and nothing been found that so far from resenting it Bridget was the first to urge that it might be done so that she and Mary could be cleared of all suspicion of complicity. They were both such faithful and highly voted creatures. Mary had been with the for years, and Bridget came with the best of recommendations from her former employers.

Mr. Cook protested that his purpose was not to search for anything but traces of the burglars, yet he glanced more than once at Mary and looked about as though in search of Bridget, who had just stepped over to a neighbor's a moment, so Mary told Mrs. Barry. Then he went back and again closely examined the rear window of the dining room, the one which the burglars had so thoughtlessly left open on their departure. The iron snap catch which held the lower sash down had been forced off and was found next morning of the discovery of the robbery lying on the floor under the window. Mr. Cook had raised the sash, studying it within and without, all the time whistling softly and saying nothing, and his proceedings had affected Mary to the extent of having to declare to Mrs. Stannard at teatime she was getting nervous she didn't know how to stand.

And with Bridget now gone and the gale growing and no one to talk to after 10 o'clock Mary had become more and more nervous. Mrs. Stannard had her sitting in the kitchen a little later, looking white and miserable, and asked her why she didn't go to bed instead of the poor girl began to weep. She could not explain it, she said, but she felt all creepy and queer. She was afraid to stay alone. She was sure something was going to happen, and Mrs. Barry, always kind and sympathetic, bade that girl make a bed for herself on the couch. She would be glad to have her near her this night anyway in case she desired to communicate with Nathalie.

It must have been after 11 o'clock when Mrs. Barry succeeded in sending Nathalie to her room. By that time she was comfortably stowed away for the night in her own white bed. She had Mary close at hand and needed no further attention. Mrs. Stannard had been stationed at Russell long before and was well accustomed to the violence of the Wyoming gales and to the rocking and creaking of the old wooden quarters, but it seemed to her as though the spite and fury of the wind had quickened at the sound of the 10 o'clock bugle, and before leaving her friend for the night she took a look into the kitchen to see that all was safe and snug.

The fire had been carefully banked over with ashes in the big cooking stove. The bracket lamp was extinguished, but the door leading into the girls' room swung uneasily on its hinges and banged against its frame, driven by the draft that would leak in through invisible chink or cranny. Setting her own head lamp on the table, she finally closed the door to prevent its further slamming, and then, leaving the kitchen in total darkness, except for a dull red glimmer through a crack in the stove, she returned to the front of the house, bade her friend an affectionate good night and, buffeted by the storm, scurried along the front piazza and let herself in at her own door. A light was burning on the landing above, and Miss Maynard had evidently gone aloft, for the police lamp was turned low. Yes, her voice was audible. She was in her brother's room. Carefully, as she had done next door, Mrs. Stannard inspected her own kitchen and, finding everything safe there, called aloft to know if Mr. or Miss Maynard needed anything and then bade them a cheery goodnight.

"Don't mind the wind. It is swinging round now and blowing from the northeast—a most unusual thing—and I can't help thinking it will stop before morning."

But she fancied from Miss Maynard's somewhat choky tone that she had been crying, and, thinking over this and other matters, it was quite awhile before Mrs. Stannard got fairly asleep.

Midnight had long gone by. Old Frits and his ghostly team and carryall had returned and been safely housed, and still one light, and only one, seemed to burn brightly along officers' row. It shone through the shade of the corner window of the front room in the Stannards' hall of the big domble house assigned to the two majors, the room now occupied by Maynard. The sentry on No. 1 noted it as he called off half past 12. The corporal of the guard noted it as he made his midnight round. Even since the robbery old Walters had his guard patrol the post.

Nathalie was kneeling by Mrs. Barry's side.

But that lighted shone at the guardhouse were all the corporal could see until just about half past 1, when a fearful scream was heard to issue from the gale and a sudden glare burst from the rear of the Barrys' quarters. A shout of flame leaped from the house and tore under the eaves and lepped and lashed about the dormer window at the north, the tongues of fire darting and glass and shingles instantly responding. They went the sentry's piece as he yelled the alarm of fire. Rush went the corporal across the parade, reaching the roadway in time to meet Lieutenant Maynard staggering out through blinding smoke with Mrs. Barry in his arms, and then diving in again the instant he had laid her down, to be lost to view an entire minute; then to reappear, following by a man in his arms, carefully, blistered, blinded and half suffocated, to come stumbling into the narrow yard in front, and to fall reeling over the blanket sweetbed burden he bore clasped to his breast.

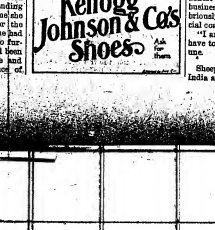
[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Torpedo Boats.

The average distance of discovery of a torpedo boat by a battleship from that a battleship has been calculated to be 781 yards and the greatest distance 2,000 yards. Thus, taking the distance at which the torpedo can be fired with effect at 800 yards it will be generally seen that a torpedo boat will have a free shoot 360 yards under fire from the ship she is attacking, and it will be the little craft about half a minute to do this.

Gallant.

"A man is as old as he feels," said the gentleman of the old school, "and a woman as old as she says she is."—Indianapolis Journal.



One Way to Kill a Snake

Just how this beautiful young woman killed the venomous snake forms an interesting description in John Macdee's charming story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never. It is full of exciting incidents and at the same time supplies a great deal of information about the romantic life of the adventurous people who sought fortunes in tropical Australia. John Macdee wrote "The Devil's Playground" and "Sinners Twain," both interesting stories. ...uis is another.

"They That Sit in Darkness" will appear in installments in this paper.

Look Out for the First Chapters

Names of Litigants.

In an old Indiana case a man named Shallcross undertook to live up to his name by running an unlawful ferry, but the decision of the court said to him, "You shall not cross."

The name of an adopted citizen of the Chickasaw Nation, whose adoption was canceled and who was thereupon expelled, was Rue Hannah.

A California woman who died in her will, "I have no fear of the hereafter. O my Lord, teach me to live right, then in living there is no sting," bore the prophetic Christian names of Euthanasia.

The name Dr. Physick, which might be looked for in some allegory, appears as the name of a real person in a recent law report.

Some peculiarly suggestive combinations of names in the titles of cases are these: Peaks versus Kaiser, Priest versus Lackey, Kick versus Merry, Protected Home Circle versus Winter, Grant versus Lockout Mountain Company.

In reminiscences of the early Minnesota bar Judge Charles E. Flandrau tells in the Minnesota Law Journal of an argument before the supreme court in 1860 by ex-Chief Justice Goodhue on behalf of an Indian convicted of murder. The Indian's name was Ta-ziwa, but as the counsel could not pronounce it he always referred to him in his argument as "my client, Ahsenurus."—Case and Comment.

The Irrepressible Small Boy.

This is a true story, and it really happened in a New York family. It looks as if it might be an old story brought up to date or renovated for the occasion, but it is exactly as the small boy arranged it and not to the edification of his family. The small boy was very fond of ice cream. It never cloyed his palate. It was with the greatest joy that he saw it each time brought on the table, and upon each of these times he heard the exhortence of his brother sister by crying in raptrons tones: "Oho-oi Ice cream! Ice cream!" ...much to his mamma's annoyance.

"People will think we never have ice cream or anything else to eat," she said to her son one day. "Now, we are going to have company to dinner tonight, and I don't want you to say a word when the ice cream is brought on." The small boy promised. He really was a good little boy, and he intended to mind. But when the cream was brought on the old feeling of rapture was so strong that he forgot entirely and cried out as usual. Then he remembered and stopped short, looking very repentant. He had not intended to call out, and his mother was mortified. He changed his tune entirely.

"We have ice cream almost every night," he remarked carelessly.—New York Times.

Ireland Called Many Names.

Few countries have suffered so many changes of names as Ireland. In the time of Ptolemy the island was known as Scotia. Diodorus Siculus calls the island Ys, or Irisi; in the "De Mundo," credited by some scholars to Aristotle, it is called Ierene: in the "Argonautica of Orpheus" it appears as Iriuus: Strabo calls it Ierne; Cæsar, Hibernia; and Pliny mention it as Hibernia; Mela called it Ierna. Ptolemy, the native names in Celtic are Ir, Eri, or Erin. Plutarch mentions it under the name of Ogygia. The name Ireland is no doubt derived from the native Ir or Eri, but when it came into general use is a question concerning which scholars are much at variance.

Judicial Levity.

The police justice, who had the reputation of being a strictly upright and honest officer of the law and had little patience in consequence, looked ingredibriously at the frayed edges of the judicial coat.

"I am sorry," he said, "but I shall have to bind you over."—Chicago Tribune.

Sheep are used as beasts of burden in India and Persia.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

...oc. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of the events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. It will be found now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—New York Post Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The annoncements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4 00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.
4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same, sent free. Address, C. A. SNOW & CO., OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASH., D. C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3 a year; four months, $1. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county.

FILIPINOS REPULSED

ATTACKED THE AMERICAN LINE SOUTH OF PASIG

But Were Driven Back—Became Entrapped Between Two Fires and Resisted Desperately—Their Loss Very Heavy—According to Official Reports Two Hundred Dead Were Left Behind. Wheaton's Division Then Advanced, Driving Filipinos Before It.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The war department has received the following dispatch from Major General Otis regarding operations against the insurgents:

"Our improvised gunboats under Captain Grant, Utah artillery, have full possession of Laguna de Bay; troops, inhabitants and property on shore at our mercy. Wheaton brigade on Pasig river line drove enemy northeast into province of Morong. Enemy attacked portion of his force south of Pasig, killing two men and wounding twenty of the Twenty-second infantry. Wheaton later moved against this insurgent force, driving it to the south 17 miles, experiencing very slight loss. Enemy left 200 dead on field."

DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

Filipinos Fought Desperately at Tuguig but Were Repulsed.

MANILA, March 20.—Some of the rebels recently expelled from Cavite and the small towns in the vicinity of Pasig combined forces and attacked a company of the Washington volunteers at a detached post at Tagiuig, about a mile and a half southeast of Pasig.

General Wheaton immediately reinforced the Americans with two companies each of the Washington and the Oregon regiments. The post had held the enemy in check and the fire of the reinforcing companies repulsed them, driving them across to an island formed by the estuary. They were thus in front of the Twenty-second regulars.

On discovering that they were entrapped the rebels fought desperately, aided materially by the jungle and the darkness, but they were completely routed with heavy loss after two hours' fighting.

The Americans lost two killed and twenty wounded, among the latter Lieutenant Frank Jones.

Rebels Pursued for Miles.

General Wheaton determined to punish the natives and at daybreak his brigade started in the following order:

The Sixth artillery holding the extreme right, the Oregon volunteers holding the center, the Washington regiment keeping to the edge of the lake and the Twenty-second regulars occupying the right of the line which swept the whole country along the lake in a southeasterly direction towards General Cronkhite's position. The line thus extending over two miles of country, rough and covered with thick jungle, advanced 11 miles. The enemy fled, the last of them being seen about 3:30 o'clock. At scarcely any time did the Americans get within 1,200 yards of them.

The troops are returning to Pasig exhausted by the hard work under a hot sun. The Oregon regiment had one man killed and four wounded and the Twenty-second regulars one wounded. According to the official reports no fewer than 200 Filipinos were killed.

Filipino Soldiers Weakening.

General Otis says the American army and gunboats now command the lake. He estimated that property of insurgents valued at $500,000 has been destroyed, while quantities of rice and sugar and 400 tons of coal, which is very valuable here, has been captured. Many prisoners represent that the Filipino soldiers are weakening. In the opinion of Americans, however, the Filipino leaders will continue to provoke fighting just as long as they can retain their hold on their followers, because they have everything to gain and nothing to lose.

The armed tugs La Guna de Bay and Oceto have returned to San Pedro Macati and reported the results of their tour of the lake. On Friday morning last they shelled the town of Morong, the rebels fleeing without making any response to the fire. The expedition then proceeded to Majayjay, where a sugar mill and saw mill were destroyed. On arriving at Santa Cruz it was found that the enemy was strongly entrenched. A few shells caused an exodus of the citizens, but not of the enemy's troops. The Americans did not attempt a landing.

MANY NATIVES KILLED.

Bodies of Filipinos Seen Floating Down the River.

MANILA, March 16.—4:05 p. m.—General Lloyd Wheaton, commanding the United States flying column, attacked and defeated a force of 3,000 Filipinos at Pasig during the afternoon, inflicting a heavy loss upon them. The American loss was slight. The Americans captured 350 Filipinos. Many bodies of rebels killed in the engagement were floating down the river.

About 850 Filipinos surrendered at the town of Taguig to the Washington regiment, and 175 Filipinos were captured at Pasig by the Twentieth regiment.

Our troops found 106 dead Filipinos and 100 new graves near Pasig.

The prisoners were unarmed and therefore it is presumed they executed their threat of throwing their arms into the river.

Two Regiments Leave Cuba.

HAVANA, March 20.—The transport Thomas sailed during the morning for the United States with the Two Hundred and Second New York volunteers. The Ward liner Havana also sailed with the Second Louisiana volunteers.

CANNOT SPARE THEM NOW.

Otis Says, However, He Hopes to Send Volunteers Home Soon.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The war department has received the following from General Otis:

"Transports Ohio and Senator left 20th. Grant delayed for necessary repairs; starts 25th. Carries all sick and wounded necessary to ship. Shortage expected tonight. Cannot commence shipment of volunteers at present. Hope to do so soon. Ship additional battalion California to Negros this afternoon."

This dispatch of General Otis is very gratifying to the war department officials, as it means that all the sick and wounded soldiers in the Philippines will be sent home at once. The transport Grant, which will have last, is admirably equipped for the service. It has been decided by the department to have the transports not at San Francisco by officers who will pay off the soldiers, give them their discharges and send them to their homes with transportation paid.

DEFEATED BY MILLER.

Bandiliti of Panay Island Make an Attack on the American Camp.

MANILA, March 21.—4:40 p. m.—The mountain bandiliti of Panay island recently threatened a serious attack upon Iloilo, but they were repulsed by General Miller with a loss of 300 men.

MacNeill's battalion of the California regiment, under Lieutenant Colonel Dalton, has been ordered to embark on the Indiana, in order to reinforce the garrisons of the towns of Iloilo and Bagaran, on the east coast of the island of Negros, where Colonel Smith is in command. This is only a measure of precaution, as Major General Otis says he does not anticipate trouble there.

SHARP FIGHT AT TAGUIG.

Filipinos Attack American Troops but Are Repulsed.

MANILA, March 20.—The Filipinos in force attacked a company of the Washington volunteers at Tuguig. Two companies of the Washington and Oregon regiments were sent to the assistance of their comrades and drove the rebels back in front front of the Twenty-second regulars, who also engaged the enemy.

Two American soldiers were killed and an officer and 18 privates were wounded. The enemy's loss was severe.

JOSEPH MEDILL DEAD.

Noted Chicago Newspaper Man Passes Away at San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 18.—Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune, died here at 10:30 a. m. of heart failure. He was conscious up to the moment of death, which he met with calm placidity. Mr. Medill came here three months ago for his health and had been confined to his bed only three days.

Mr. Medill was born in New Brunswick in 1823, but his early years were spent in Ohio. He moved to Chicago and in 1855 became one of the owners of The Tribune. He was elected mayor of Chicago in 1870 and later spent some time in Europe. On his return he purchased a controlling interest in The Tribune and has since been its editor-in-chief.

SHERMAN IS ALIVE.

Reported Death of the Ex-Secretary Absolutely Without Foundation.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 22.—There is no truth in the statements published in the United States and called back here representing that John Sherman is dead. It is incomprehensible how these reports originated. The American line steamer Paris arrived port before dark and it was immediately reported that Mr. Sherman was not only alive but better, resting easily and expected to recover. He will be transferred, if all goes favorably, to the United States cruiser Chicago in a day or two.

GRAIN GROWERS MEET.

First Interstate Convention Now in Session at Fargo.

FARGO, N. D., March 22.—The first interstate grain growers convention held in the Northwest is in session here, continuing three days, under the auspices of the Minnesota and North Dakota agricultural colleges. Representatives from South Dakota and Manitoba experiment stations are also present. About 600 farmers are in the city from all parts of state. Mayor Johnson of Fargo was elected president of the convention, Superintendent Griggs of Minnesota vice president, President J. A. Worst of the North Dakota college secretary. Budd Reeve was introduced as the originator, promoter and father of the movement and on invitation of Professor Hays outlined the work for the convention to do, indicating the benefits to result to the agricultural and business interests of the Northwestern states. By a vote of the convention an invitation was extended to President Hill of the Great Northern to attend the convention and to give an address.

Not in the Trust.

NEW YORK, March 18.—When shown the reports from Chicago, regarding a great combination of all the ready print paper plate houses, about to be formed in that city, Major O. J. Smith, president of the American Press Association, with headquarters in this city and branches in all the principal cities of the United States, said: "The report is utterly void, in any sense of the word, and in so far as this Association is concerned, nothing of the kind has ever been talked of, or thought of."

Insists It Is Villamil.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, March 20.—After careful investigation Major General Wood, military governor, was convinced that the skeleton found a few days ago buried in an arm chair amid the rocks on the shore about four miles west of El Morro is the remains of the Spanish admiral, Villamil.

WAS A HOLOCAUST

FIRE IN THE WINDSOR HOTEL AT NEW YORK

Caused the Death of at Least Fifteen Persons—Half a Hundred Injured and Nearly as Many More Are Missing—Little Progress Made in the Work of Searching the Ruins—Fire Possibly the Work of Robbers.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The most complete list of casualties at the Windsor hotel fire shows that fifteen persons were killed, without attempting to speculate on the bodies in the ruins. Forty persons are missing. Fifty-two names are in the list of injured, whose whereabouts are known. The dead are:

MRS. ELIZABETH LELAND, wife of Warren Leland, proprietor of the hotel; burned as body; died at Flower hospital.

HELEN LELAND, daughter of Warren Leland; jumped from window; body identified at East Fifty-first street station.

MRS. AMELIA PADDOCK, Irvington, N.Y.; jumped from window; body at East Fifty-first street station.

NANCY ANN KIRK (Mrs. James S. Kirk), Chicago; died in Bellevue.

MISS LACELLES GRANDY, Elizabeth, N. C.; body at East Fifty-first street station.

In R.S. ADDIE GIBSON, aged 35; shock; died at Murray Hill hotel.

ELENOR LOUISE GOODMAN, aged 17; fractured skull; died in Bellevue.

JOHN CONNOLLY, hotel employe; burns and internal injuries; died at Flower hospital.

MRS. MAURICE, of this city, who died at Roosevelt hospital at 9 a.m. from burns and injuries.

MARY SULLIVAN, died at Bellevue hospital.

UNKNOWN WOMAN, jumped from window, died at 19 East Forty-sixth street.

UNKNOWN WOMAN, middle-aged; jumped from window; died at Miss Helen Gould's residence.

UNKNOWN WOMAN, body at East Fifty-first street station.

UNKNOWN MAN, 50; seen to jump from roof at rear of hotel; body not recovered.

UNKNOWN CHILD, thrown from window by mother; body not recovered.

UNKNOWN WOMAN, mother of child, jumped from window; body not recovered.

Possible Origin of the Fire.

Regarding the origin of the fire the Herald publishes the following:

"John Foy, a waiter in the hotel, was passing through the hall on the parlor floor, the first above the street. He was making his way to a place where he could catch a moments sight of the parade. In front of him walked a man, patron of the hotel. The waiter did not know him. Passing close on behind the other, they had nearly gained the angle of the passage of Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street, when the patron drew a match and lighted a cigar or cigarette. He tossed the match aside. It was still blazing and fell into the folds of a lace curtain. In an instant the flimsy fabric was ablaze and the flames shot to surrounding draperies. This, from all accounts, was the origin of the holocaust in which many human beings perished and others were nearly roasted. The white helpless thousands looked on in wild horror."

PROGRESS SLOW.

But Two Bodies Recovered So Far From the Ruins of the Windsor Hotel.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Two bodies, charred beyond recognition, were found in the ruins of the Windsor hotel during the day. One was the body of a man, the other that of a young woman, probably a servant of the hotel. The number of known dead is now 13. Several hundred men, working in 6-hour shifts, are delving in the debris. They have brought to light many of the personal effects of the guests. It is thought the day's work would reveal many bodies and the disappointing result has led to a revision of estimates of the number of dead still entombed by the piles of debris. Most of the guests of the hotel have been accounted for. In the "missing" list now published are the names of a number of servants of the hotel and of people who have not been seen since the fire with the result that their friends have reported their disappearance to the police.

THREE BODIES RECOVERED.

Work of Searching the Ruins of the Windsor Hotel Continues.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Three bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Windsor hotel during the day. They were badly charred and great difficulty is being experienced in their identification. Three are now five bodies at the morgue, each tagged with a number, which, with the known dead, brings the list to 15. The list of missing is still very large. The injured at hospitals are all recovering.

MAY HAVE BEEN INCENDIARY

Presence of Robbers in the Hotel a Cause for Suspicion.

NEW YORK, March 21.—The Herald says: A mass of testimony is accumulating tending to show that the Windsor hotel fire horror was of incendiary origin, that the motive was robbery, and that, in some cases, at least, the thieves were accomplices of the flames. To come corroborative evidence of the presence of thieves in the building at the very beginning of the fire.

Miss Gould Gets a Fireman's Badge.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Fire Commissioner Scannell has sent to Miss Helen M. Gould a letter in which he informed her that in view of the services rendered by her on the occasion of the Windsor hotel fire he intended to present to her a gold badge which would entitle her to enter the fire lines at any fire that may occur in Greater New York.

QUEEN REGENT SIGNS IT.

The Treaty of Peace Finally Ratified at Madrid.

MADRID, March 23.—The queen regent has signed the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States.

DR. SENN CONDEMNS IT.

Considers Canned Roast Beef Unfit for an Army Ration.

CHICAGO, March 23.—The government court of inquiry examined two witnesses with reference to the beef question—Dr. Nicholas Senn and Lieutenant Colonel A. W. Corliss. Dr. Senn, who served in Cuba and Porto Rico, testified that the troops in Cuba lived largely on canned roast beef and bacon. He had every reason to believe that the canned beef was not roasted but boiled. It was tasteless and certainly appeared to lack nutritious qualities, as was apparent from the condition of the men who returned from Cuba to Montauk—men who had never been ill but were greatly emaciated. He thought one of the most supplies of the future for the army should be dried beef. Men could be fed once or twice a week on canned roast beef without ill effect on their health, but as a daily ration for any length of time he would not consider it a safe or advisable ration. Lieutenant Colonel Corliss, the other witness examined, told of the soldiers' dislike of the canned beef while in Cuba.

CHEMICALS WERE USED.

Commissary Sergeant Mason Before the Army Board.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., March 20.—The army beef court of inquiry concluded the taking of testimony at Fort Leavenworth at noon and at 4:15 departed for Chicago. The sole witness examined was Sergeant Edward Mason, Troop A, First United States cavalry, who served as regimental commissary sergeant at Lakeland, Fla., and during the Cuban campaign.

Sergeant Mason's testimony was probably the most direct that has been adduced since the court left Chicago, the witness declaring that meat received at Lakeland for use in his regiment was "undoubtedly unwholesomely treated." An agent of Armour & Co.," he further testified, "told me at the time that this meat had been treated with what was called preservaline."

Witness had refused to accept the meat.

Sergeant Mason was interrogated impartially by each member of the court and could not be shaken in his testimony.

UNFIT FOR AN ARMY RATION

Chicago Witnesses Tell What They Know About the Canned Beef.

CHICAGO, March 21.—During its short session the beef court of inquiry received the evidence of four witnesses who had been called upon the request of Major Lee, the representative of Major General Miles. According to the testimony the canned beef was always unwholesome and distasteful. From their judgment, it was a contributory cause of sickness among the soldiers and milk punch was generally served in addition to the refrigereted beef was also made by the witnesses.

THE ISSUES FOR 1900.

Jerry Simpson Says Anti-Expansion and Anti-Trust Will Predominate.

WICHITA, Kan., March 24.—Jerry Simpson, who is in town, expresses the opinion that the Democratic campaign in 1900 will be anti-expansion and anti-trust, with the money question a subordinate third.

Promising Pupil.

Some years ago a well known American pianist gave a concert at which he played a duet for two pianos with a pupil. The pupil, a young man of great talent, had come from a small town, and one of the men in the audience of the town went to the city for the sole purpose of attending the concert. On his return he was asked what he thought of the young man's musical achievements.

"He's doing as well as anybody could wish, and he'll do better yet," replied the prosperous townsman, with decision.

"He played a piece with his teacher that was 20 pages long. He gave the teacher the start by five minutes and then he clipped in, and they came out at the end nip and tuck, if you'll believe me. Well, sir, when I heard that, I made up my mind we needn't worry about our suite about how George would succeed.

"His teacher's considered the best piano player in this part of the country, and if George could do what he did at that concert it won't be many years before he'll beat him out and out, you can jest rely on that.

"I'd be willing to bet, if it was a betting man, that in two years' time that teacher won't dare to undertake one of those two piano pieces with George under George gives him a good ten minutes' start of him!"—Youth's Companion.

Willow Baskets.

The question is sometimes asked why some willow baskets soon become brown and discolored while others keep white so much longer. Those that discolor are made from willow from which the bark has been removed by steaming. The imported baskets, made where labor is not such a big factor in cost, are woven from willows that have been peeled with knives, and these hold their clean white color to the close of their existence, which is a much longer period than that of the domestic product. If one only knew how to distinguish "f'other from which."—Leslie's Weekly.

He Was Low.

"An so Arabella has gone an' engaged herself to a low churchman!" indeed I am astonished! Why, she even believes in the confessional!"

"Oh, as to that, perhaps he does too! But I should judge that he isn't as much over five feet in his socks."—Cleveland Leader.

If two tanning forks of the same pitch are placed facing each other, the one sounding, the other silent, in a few seconds the one which was silent will be giving out a distinctly audible sound.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. ERSKINE, President. WM. ANGLIN, Vice-President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Anglin, J. R. Erskinon, E. M. Welsh, L. Fontaine J. F. Foote, W. H. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON, ... PRESIDENT. B. STENERSON, ... VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS, ... 2d VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON, ... CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe Havana press drills, eight Broadcast wheel seeders, ten gang plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 32 inch Minneapolis separator, two sets Howe's 60 bunch wireborne scales, one Kansas city hay press, ten harvesters and self binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, each piece being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap to responsible purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FARM LOANS

NO DELAY. NO BONUS.

DO YOU Want to Renew, Want a new loan? Without Delay?

Call at the First National Bank of Crookston and see

J. W. WHEELER.

CHRISTIANSON & STRANDER,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty, Terms three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Corner Farm Lands for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchaser. Office over Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

Cleveland Hotel, Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor

Main and Fourth Sts.

This popular hotelle again re-opened to the public under new management. The new proprietor will spare no pains or expense in his effort to provide for the comfort of his guests. The table will be supplied with the best the market have to offer, and he invites the farmers to still make the Cleveland their headquarters when in the city.

PRINTING

Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MARCH 30, 1899 NO 51

STEENERSON, MAYOR

He is the Unanimous Choice of the City Republican Convention.

BROWN ALDERMAN-AT-LARGE.

Business Welfare of City Is What The Republicans Have in View.

Halvor Steenerson, for mayor, F. M. Brown, alderman-at-large, Geo. O. Bahn, alderman 1st Ward, T. G. Thompson, alderman 2d Ward, G. S. Chesterman, alderman 3d Ward, L. S. Ellington, alderman 4th Ward, Chas. A. Meyers, alderman 5th Ward, W. A. Lanctot, city clerk, O. O. Christianson, city treasurer, C. W. Mott, city assessor, John McLeod and G. H. Holt, justice of the peace, Constables, James E. Greenhalgh and A. A. Glenn —these candidates were nominated for the respective city offices by the republican party of the city in convention assembled at the city hall last Friday night.

Geo. A. Ralph, chairman of the city republican committee, called the meeting to order and read the call. M. E. Kirsch was elected temporary chairman, and N. S. Gordon, secretary. The chair appointed as committee on credentials, L. Ellington, W. E. Kelsey, John Monroe, C. C. Strander and W. Arnold; as committee on resolutions, Geo. A. Ralph, Hugh R. Robertson and T. S. Gervais; committee on permanent organization, Robert Ray, Felix Fournet and Carl Reidesel. A recess of fifteen minutes was taken at this point to give the committees time to report.

The committee on credentials reported the following men as entitled to seats as delegates: 1st Ward, Felix Fournet, M. Lefevre, A. G. Anderson, N. S. Gordon, O. O. Sundet, Jas. E. Greenhalgh, Andrew Carlson, Geo. O. Baha; 2d Ward, Julius Schwartz, T. G. Thompson, John Monroe, Carl Reidesel, G. A. Ralph, George Young, Wm. Bloom, Mark Raumhuebler; 3d Ward, M. S. Kirsch, W. E. Kelsey, W. L. Davies; 4th Ward, N. S. Gervais, Joe Berthiaume, J. Lusian, John McLean, H. R. Robertson, Rob. Ray, Gus. Johnson, L. Ellington, C. C. Stander, A. K. Austin, J. C. Sathre, A. M. Sivertson; 5th Ward, Wm. Arnold and Almer Johnson. The committee on permanent organization recommended that the temporary organization be made permanent and the report was adopted. The committee on resolutions submitted the following which was adopted:

The republican party of the City of Crookston by its delegates in convention assembled makes the following declaration of principles:

We sincerely declare our fidelity to the principles of the republican party as enunciated in our state and national platforms, and cheerfully endorse the patriotic and statesmanlike administration of President McKinley.

We believe that the first and paramount consideration in the selection of officers for this city is fitness and ability to perform the duties devolving on the officer so selected and that he shall have given evidence in the past of his fidelity to the city and the best interests of its citizens.

That no person should accept a nomination or appointment to any office unless he intends in good faith to devote his time and best efforts to the performance of the duties of the office to which he may be selected.

That we heartily endorse the administration of Mayor Brown and believe that his actions as mayor have resulted in great benefit to the city, as the City of Crookston is more extensively and favorably known now than at any other period in its history.

That our present efficient police force have done much to improve the city's standing as one of the most orderly and law abiding communities of the state.

That there should be a more general extension of the side walks of the city and that immediate steps be taken in wards paving the principal business streets of our city. That city assessment and equalization of the property of the city required the most careful consideration and best efforts of our assessor and city council. That all work done by the city should be performed by residents of the city.

We pledge ourselves to use our best efforts to secure the election of each and all the nominees of this convention and cordially invite the co-operation with us of all citizens who earnestly desire to promote the city's best interests.

Nominations for mayor being now in order Mr. Ralph in a few well chosen words placed in nomination the name of Halvor Steenerson. He called attention to the fact that since party lines had been drawn there had been less hard feeling arising from municipal elections. With Halvor Steenerson, head of the legal profession in the northwest, as mayor, the city would, he said, have the best business administration it had ever had. There being no other nomination Mr. Steenerson was declared the unanimous choice of the convention. Judge Montague, being called upon, made a short address, emphasizing the eminent fitness of Mr. Steenerson for the position.

Four ballots were taken before the candidate for alderman-at-large was selected, Messrs. Sathre, Hugh Robertson, Kirsch, Walsh and MacCornelius were voted for, but finally Mr. Kirsch receiving a large majority of the votes cast was declared duly chosen. Mr. Kirsch subsequently withdrew and F. M. Brown was appointed in his place. The other candidates mentioned above were chosen unanimously, and the nominations for aldermen made by the ward caucuses were ratified. The chair was instructed to appoint a city central committee.

The convention was representative of the best business interests of the city, and the harmony that prevailed bodes well for the future as it will be revealed on April 4.

EDDY AND NELSON.

A Summary of What Was Done in Last Congress For Seventh District.

The Fergus Falls Journal sums up the work done in the last congress by Congressman Eddy and Senator Nelson for the Seventh District as follows:

"An act authorizing a public building at Fergus Falls, Minn., to cost $75,000.

"An appropriation of $37,500 in the sundry civil bill towards the erection of the same so that work can be immediately commenced."

The following items in the Indian appropriation bill for Morris, Minn.:

For the support and education of 150 Indian pupils at the Indian schools at Morris, Minn., at $197 each per annum $25,000; for pay of superintendent, $1,000; for repairs and improvements, $1,000; for the erection of a dormitory and school building, $21,000; in all, $46,000.

Additional schools on reservations: For additional amount for buildings for additional schools at points on the Chippewa reservations in Minnesota, to be selected by the commissioner of Indian affairs, $20,000, to be immediately available and to be reimbursable.

For making a survey of Red Lake river, Minnesota, with a view to the construction of a dam with locks at the outlet of said lake, for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Red River of the North and said Red Lake river, Minnesota, the remaining cost of said improvement, $5,000.

For making a survey of Otter Tail lake and Otter Tail river, Minnesota, with a view to the construction of a dam at the outlet of said lake, for the purpose of improving the navigation on the Red River of the North, Minnesota, and estimating the cost of said improvement, $3,000.

For making further survey of Big Stone Lake and Lake Traverse, Minnesota and North Dakota, with a view to construct reservoirs therein for the improvement of the navigation of the Minnesota river, and an estimate of the cost of such improvement, $5,000.

For removing a sand bar at the mouth of Warroad river, Minnesota, $3,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Improving Red River of the North, Minnesota, and its tributaries: Continued improvement, $25,000, of which sum $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be used in improving the navigation of the Red Lake river.

A survey of the Red River of the North, Minnesota and North Dakota, with a view of ascertaining what improvements, if any, should be made to govern and repress the floods of the river, and to prevent the undue erosion of the banks.

A survey of Long Prairies river and lakes Carlos, Darling, La Homme, Dieu and Geneva, Minnesota, with a view to the construction of reservoirs for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi river.

We have received a copy of the seventh biennial report of the Minnesota State Dairy and Food Commissioner. It is an exhaustive report covering almost 200 pages. Every farmer will find therein much that will be of great use to him.

PRAIRIE FARM TREES

Every Farm Ought to have a Large Grove—Expense is Small, Benefits Great.

MINUTE INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

As to When, What and How to Plant—Increases Value of Farm.

One of the most practical and interesting features of the meeting of the State Forestry Association which was held in Minneapolis last January was a paper by C. L. Smith on "Tree Planting on the Prairie Farm." We publish the greater part of the article:

Every prairie farm ought to have a grove of from five to ten acres in extent, the trees to be so arranged as to shelter the farm buildings from drifting winds and drifting snow. Experience has demonstrated that such groves can be successfully grown on any prairie farm in the state, that the expense is small and the benefits are great, and that there is no other investment which will add so much to the beauty, comfort and value of the farm.

The grove should contain a variety of both deciduous and evergreen trees. The planting should begin with willows and other quick-growing, hardy, easily propagated and cheap varieties, to be followed, during succeeding years, with oak, walnut, ash and the evergreens.

The first planting should be very close—from one to two feet apart, in rows four feet apart, leaving occasional open places for future planting of more desirable timber trees.

The ground should be deeply plowed and thoroughly harrowed before planting; the cultivation should be constant and clean, keeping the surface soil always loose and free from grass and weeds.

Plant two rows of willows around the entire plantation, then leave an open space from fifty to one hundred feet. Next plant rows of deciduous trees and evergreens. The two inside rows, to the north and west of the garden and buildings should be evergreens. Two-thirds at least of all the trees should be to the northwest of the buildings, whether they face north, east, south or west. When the road runs north or west of the buildings there is no reason why the location of the buildings some distance from the road. Where the buildings are already located, so that this arrangement cannot be carried out in full the nearer it can be done the more satisfactory will be the results.

A double row of willows for a snow fence around the tree plantation should be planted with trees one foot apart in the row, the rows being four to six feet apart. Cuttings of young growth, ten inches long and from one-quarter to three-quarters of an inch in diameter can be made at any time when not frozen, from November 1st until the leaves start in the spring. They should be planted deeply, leaving not over two inches above the ground, the earth being firmly pressed against the entire length. Cultivate every week all summer and mulch with six or eight inches of straw or slough hay in November.

For making further survey of Big Stone Lake and Lake Traverse, Minnesota and North Dakota, with a view to construct reservoirs therein for the improvement of the navigation of the Minnesota river, and an estimate of the cost of such improvement, $5,000.

For removing a sand bar at the mouth of Warroad river, Minnesota, $3,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

Improving Red River of the North, Minnesota, and its tributaries: Continued improvement, $25,000, of which sum $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be used in improving the navigation of the Red Lake river.

A survey of the Red River of the North, Minnesota and North Dakota, with a view of ascertaining what improvements, if any, should be made to govern and repress the floods of the river, and to prevent the undue erosion of the banks.

A survey of Long Prairies river and lakes Carlos, Darling, La Homme, Dieu and Geneva, Minnesota, with a view to the construction of reservoirs for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi river.

We have received a copy of the seventh biennial report of the Minnesota State Dairy and Food Commissioner. It is an exhaustive report covering almost 200 pages. Every farmer will find therein much that will be of great use to him.

GRAIN GROWERS MEET

Crop Rotation, Diversified Farming, Stock Growing Put Land in Condition for Hard Wheat.

HIGH GRADE OF SEED WHEAT.

Farmers Learn Value of Scientific Work Done by Experiment Stations.

The interstate grain growers' convention held at Fargo last week is pronounced the most enthusiastic and successful assemblage in the interests of agriculture ever convened in the northwest. Interest increased rather than abated from the opening session until the close. Grain growers from the two Dakotas, Minnesota and Manitoba were brought together in the common purpose to promote the cultivation of the staple cereal, No. 1 hard wheat. The workers in attendance were thoroughly representative of all branches of the agricultural industry. The college professor and experiment station director, the bonanza farmer and the tiller of the quarter section, worked together for the common end, the study of approved methods to increase the yield and improve the quality of the staple product. There were the lumbering barometer and unity of interest in the statement of theory and principles, and in the comparison of observations, experience and results. The work was eminently practical, instructive and enjoyable. The one idea made prominent in all instruction and discussion was that crop rotation, diversified farming, stock growing and the cultivation of forage plants all have the same purpose, to put the land in condition and keep it in condition for the highest stage of productiveness in the culture of hard wheat. There was utter absence of any dogmatic theorizing. All methods and principles were subjected to the test of practical results. The lesson that the best seed and the best methods are prime necessities for success were thoroughly taught and thoroughly learned, so far as membership in the convention and educational work so auspiciously inaugurated is to be extended indefinitely through the free distribution of printed proceedings of the convention, including full reports of all papers, addresses and discussions.

The convention did effective work in popularizing the agricultural colleges and experimental stations. The work of these educational institutions was brought to the attention of the rank and file of the farmers more directly and more favorably than ever before. A general insight into the scientific work of the experiment station was afforded the average farmer, and a strong impression created that these institutions are maintained expressly and solely for the common benefit of all farmers, and that all, that the officials in charge of these institutions earnestly desire to make them as practical as possible, and to assist the farmers to freely avail themselves of all the information and all the help that scientific research, painstaking experimentation and faithful, conscientious work can afford. An admirable beginning was made in this direction to bring the wide-awake, intelligent, progressive farmer into touch and sympathy with the farmers' college and the farmers' experiment station.

The preponderance of sentiment in the convention was decidedly in favor of growing corn, millet, Hungarian clover, timothy, etc., with cattle, sheep and hogs, as expedients to keep land in the highest condition of productiveness for wheat, rather than by losing its capital by leaving land in summer fallow. It has also been taught that there is little if any advantage in exchange of seed wheat from a distance. The best seed obtainable, wherever obtainable, is the lesson inculcated.

Prof. W. M. Hays of the Minnesota state agricultural school, is speaking of the convention said: "It was the best, and at the same time, the most significant meeting ever held in the Northwest in the interest of the agricultural class."

"It was an unusual meeting in that it brought together a host of farmers from the Northwest who have hitherto been content to remain at home and struggle along with the great problems of agriculture in the poor benighted way that farmers have so long been accustomed to. They had no knowledge of the work their experiment station was doing for them and, worse still, no respect for it. This convention brought them for the first time into touch with the really progressive men at their agricultural school and the discussion that followed gave them quite a new idea of these men and the work they are doing for the development of the agricultural profession. And they went home with an awakening in their hearts, of the tremendous value of scientific agricultural instruction and a desire to know more of it.

Too Late to Skate.

I hereby challenge Albert Halverson of Crookston to skate with me a race, any distance he chooses for any amount that he wants to put up, on a rink with a hundred foot turn or more. It was not the man that beat me in Crookston. It was the rink which was only fifty feet wide that beat me. Let me hear from you, if not before next winter. Severt Jelmo.—Fergus Falls Journal.

Mr. Halverson when shown the above challenge said he regretted that the season was so far advanced that he would be unable to accept it this spring. Skating on the rink here has ceased and consequently he has hardly had his skates on since he raced with the Fergus Falls champion. He will, he says, be pleased to accommodate Mr. Jelmo next winter.

FUSION PARTY CONVENTION.

Meets Saturday Morning—Candidates For Various City Offices Placed In Nomination.

A convention was held in the city Hall last Saturday morning at which candidates for the various office of the city were placed in nomination. The party holding this convention styles itself the "Citizens Party" but the JOURNAL notes that the delegates that here assembled were without exception men who are not affiliated with the republican party. The meeting was called to order by Chas. Westerberg, who read the call. J. F. Creamer was selected as temporary chairman and H. L. Falk, secretary. These officers were afterwards made permanent. The usual preliminary proceedings having been gone through the committee on resolutions reported.

After some glittering generalities about keeping expenses down and employing business methods in the city's administration the report also states that "the city should extend its functions in the direction of controlling all public utilities within the corporate limits," and that "the enforcement of the laws, regulating order and decency in the city should receive the earnest attention of the mayor and the police department."

When nominations for mayor were in order L. E. Gossman presented the name of A. D. Stephens and Ole Vaule in seconding the nomination stated that he thought with Mr. Stephens at its head that the ticket would be greatly strengthened. Mr. W. E. Rowe placed in nomination the name of Archie McKinnon. He said that he thought the principles laid down in the party platform were being prostituted by the nomination of Mr. Stephens.

An informal ballot resulted in Stephens 17, Archie McKinnon 14 and Steeserson 1. The first formal ballot gave Stephens 18 and McKinnon 16. Mr. Stephens was therefore declared duly elected as candidate for mayor. Several names were placed in nomination for alderman-at-large but almost every man withdrew his name. The choice finally fell upon Sam Rosendhal.

Mr. Stephens, at this point in the proceedings, was escorted into the hall by Messrs. Vannet and Eck. He made a short speech thanking the convention for the honor they had conferred on him. What he would do if elected, he said, might be judged from what he had done when mayor several years ago.

The first ballot for city clerk resulted in a tie between C. W. Lutts and P. L. Renne. On the second ballot Renne led by 6 votes. Capt. Converse was nominated assessor, and W. L. Vannet as city treasurer. For Justices of the Peace, John McLean and G. H. Holt were selected, and for Constables, Messrs Greenhalgh and Glenn. The ward caucus nominations for aldermen were ratified, and Chairman Creamer was authorized to appoint a city central committee.

Business Men's Association.

About ten days ago a temporary organization of the business men of the city was formed, with Robert Ray, president, R. G. Woodham, secretary, and Louis Fontaine, treasurer. Yesterday a meeting was held in the city hall and the organization was made permanent. This is not a local union but is a branch of the Minnesota business men's association whose aim is to look after the business interests of the state.

Republican Committee.

CITY CENTRAL COMMITTEE

R. J. Montague. G. A. Ralph.
W. A. Lanctot. N. S. Gervais.
C. A. Meyers. T. G. Thompson.
C. C. Strander.

SECOND WARD COMMITTEE

George Ralph, chairman.
Alfred Rosberg.
John Monroe.

FOURTH WARD COMMITTEE

J. C. Sathre. [T. A. Harris.
John McLean. H. R. Robertson.
Frank Jerome.

The JOURNAL was unable to secure the other ward committees.

Weddings.

ODEGAARDEN-BRANDEN

On Thursday, March 23, in this city, Mr. Arne G. Odegaarden of Traill County N. D. to Miss Thora Branden. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Amdahrud.

LINGHOLM-HIGHSON

On Tuesday, March 28, at the home of the brother of the bride in Crookston, Henry Lingholm to Miss Annie Erickson.

LYSENG-BRAATEN

On Tuesday evening, March 28, Erick Lyseng to Carrie Braaten.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TOWN AND COUNTY

Items of Interest Gathering From All Parts of the County

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—Mrs. Finlayson went to Angus on Monday.

—E. W. Johnson was up from Beltrami on Monday.

—W. M. Bowden, of Hallock, was in the city Tuesday.

—Albert Anderson, of Hallock, spent Monday night in Crookston.

—Owen Nelson of McIntosh came in on the 4 o'clock train Monday.

—The Northwest Teachers Association will meet at Moorhead April 7 and 8.

—The family of H. R. Meisch of Argyle came in from the west Monday and were met by Mr. Meisch.

—The Royal Neighbors are preparing for a big time at their dance to be held next Monday night, April 3rd.

—Mrs. H. C. Misner, of Euclid, left Tuesday night for Antonio, Texas where she will join her husband and remain a few weeks.

—Mrs. J. M. Palmer came down from Angus Monday night to meet Mr. Palmer who returned from lfornia Tuesday morning.

—One of the doors of the postoffice is somewhat shattered so that all coming and going to get mail today had to be by one door.

—E. D. Childs, of Crookston, was made a member of the executive committee of the Grain Growers Association that met at Fargo last week.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. Creamer took the train Sunday night for St. Paul where Mrs. Creamer will attend a meeting of the various state lodges of the Degree of Honor.

—W. E. Davis, one of the brightest newspaper men of Grand Forks, was in Crookston Tuesday. He has left the field of Journalism and is on the road for the Mercantile company of the Forks.

—A farmers' meeting will be held at Climax today at which Prof. Hoverstad, of the Crookston Experiment Farm will give an address. The chief object which the farmers have in calling this meeting is to form a co-operative Creamery at Climax.

—Mrs. N. S. Bemis has received word from one of the head officers of the Lady Maccabees in Chicago that at a recent meeting of the order in that city there were received into membership 650 ladies. Few if any lodges can boast of such a large increase at one time.

—Four drunks were reported at the police station yesterday. This is the first item of this nature that the police department have had a chance to give out for some time. Things in the city have been rather quiet as far as Chief Gonyea's business was concerned.

—E. D. Childs is a candidate for alderman in the fifth ward. He is really the only independent candidate in the present city campaign. He has been a member of the Council for several years and hence is thoroughly conversant with the duties pertaining to the office for which he is running.

—Next Saturday there will be in Crookston a meeting of the farmers of Polk county for the purpose of discussing the question as to when and how they will order their binding twine. By ordering the twine in carloads they can secure better terms, hence it will pay the farmers either to attend this meeting in person or send representatives.

—Mr. Wm. Bugg has bought some property in Jerome's addition and expects to move over into that part of town in a short time. Here he will go quite extensively into the raising of poultry. Mr. Bugg has for several years carried off the prizes for Hamburgs at almost all poultry shows in the state.

—Dr. A. A. Just, Crookston's homeopathic physician, leaves this week for Chicago, for a month or six weeks, where he expects to make a special study of the nose, throat and ear. It is his intention at sometime in the near future to confine his practice exclusively to the treatment of one or two of these organs. Dr. Rutledge, of Grand Forks, accompanies Dr. Just.

—Mr. E. D. Childs, of Crookston, spoke at the grain growers' meeting in Fargo on "Fodder Corn." He handled this matter, says the Fargo Forum, in a most thorough manner. He explained building a silo, and gave figures as to the benefit of his experience in feeding dry fodder and the ensilage. His experience had been confined principally to dairy stock. The audience asked many pertinent questions on the subject, which were readily explained by the speaker.

—The Women Relief Corps will serve a ten cent supper at the G. A. R. hall tomorrow evening, beginning at 5:30.

—Conductor Withey has a new watch the case of which is made from metal taken from ill-fated battleship Maine.

—Prof. LaSore is giving special drill to his ladies' and men's physical culture classes with a view to giving a public exhibition in a few weeks.

—Geo. A. Ralph went to Red Lake Falls Tuesday morning to appear before the board of County Commissioners and present plats of the county which he has been making.

—F. W. Fritsche, of Grand Forks, who last fall had charge of the Chas. E. Lewis commission business here, was married yesterday at Minneapolis to a young lady of that city.

—The public schools close tonight for the spring vacation. Work will be resumed Monday morning April 10th. Several of the teachers whose homes are not in Crookston will spend their holidays at their homes.

—The Lady Maccabees received seven new members into their lodge last Monday night. After the initiation was over the Sir Knight Maccabees surprised the ladies by calling upon them and the rest of the evening was spent very pleasantly in a social way.

—The delegation from Crookston who have been at St. Paul working to defeat the scheme of Red Lake county to secure more money from Polk county than the law under which the separation took place entitles them to have been successful. Action in the senate committee has been postponed a week and then even if the senate should consider the matter favorably the house must act upon the bill. These facts taken in connection with the fact that the session is almost over are good evidence that Red Lake county's little game will not succeed.

Amusements.

Within the last ten days Crookston has been treated to four entertainments of the very highest order—Crookston band and orchestra concert, Griffith in "The Avenger," Sousa's Band, and "Faust" by Morrison. It seems a pity that this linked sweetness, so as to speak, could not have been longer drawn out, but then 'tis said "it never rains but it pours." The Journal has already called attention to the excellence of the music furnished by Prof. Riggs and the band boys. The romantic play, "The Avenger," presented by Griffith and his company was a high class drama and Mr. Griffith's acting was such that he was repeatedly recalled. He did not, however, in this new play reach the standard he set for himself in Mephisto.

Sousa has come and gone but the impression created by the complex, rich and varied music which he furnished Tuesday afternoon will be lasting. "Harmonious madness," as the poet says, flowed for two hours. As one listened he seemed to be borne away to a region of rest where the struggle of life was forgotten.

It was indeed a large audience that faced this band of musicians, people being in from all the surrounding towns. Thus did Crookston and vicinity render homage to the March King. Almost every number on the program was encored and responses were very cheerfully given, these being chiefly popular airs of Sousa's own composing.

The audience was captivated from the start but when three trombone players and fine cornetists stepped to the front of the stage and played, with the rest of the band accompanying, the enthusiasm and applause knew no bounds.

When one considers that the harmony here expressed must first exist within the individual, it is borne in upon him in what a land of delight Sousa must dwell. His control over himself appears perfect and his slightest movement affects the music, so completely are the players at his command. The soprano soloist sang with exceeding ease, the tones being as clear as a bird's, the young lady who was down for a violin solo played in such a charming manner that she was encored. A cornet solo was played by special request and the audience was glad that this number was added to the program, and the music furnished by the trombone soloist was indeed smooth and liquid "bringing all heaven before one's eyes."

The public are greatly indebted to the opera house managers, Messrs. Kirsch and Montague for securing this musical aggregation. Probably no town in the state of the size of Crookston will have the pleasure of listening to Sousa and his wonderful musicians.

Morrison played Faust last night to a good sized audience. Crookston theatre goers expected much from this company and they were not disappointed. The drama is an unusually grand one and was in the hands of a group of artists. Humorous, pathetic, thrilling, tragical scenes, followed one another rapidly. There is here presented a page from the book of life and admire Mephisto as one may for his skill and power, one is made to rejoice in the final triumph of the good over the evil.

—Brown Bro's have a car load of fine farm horse just shipped in from central Iowa. Call and see them at M. R. Brown's barn.

Easy to Take
Easy to Operate

Are features peculiar to Hood's Pills. Small in size, tasteless, efficient, thorough. As one man said: "You never know you have taken a pill till it is all over." 25c. C. I. Hood & Co., Proprietors, Lowell, Mass. The only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills

Farm Wanted.

Send full particulars, price, etc., at once. A. H. Russell,
[47-tf] Akron, Ohio

A Woman's Bank.

The Fifth Avenue National bank of New York has 5,000 women depositors. It is situated at the corner of Forty-fifth street and Fifth avenue, in the midst of the residences of wealthy classes, and is almost exclusively patronized by rich women, who keep their household accounts and pin money there. The receiving tellers are very busy during the first few days of every month, when the patrons of the bank bring in the allowances they have received from their husbands or fathers, but the rest of the time they have comparatively few depositors to take care of, and have plenty of time to assist the paying tellers in cashing checks that have been drawn to meet grocery or dressmakers' bills.

Gazelle Hunting.

Gazelles in Nubia are hunted by a powerful breed of hounds, in build somewhat heavier than a greyhound. In spite of being far swifter than the hound, the gazelle falls a victim from the nervous habit of constantly stopping to look back to see if it is pursued. It also expends its strength by taking great bounds in an almost vertical direction, thereby not only losing time, but exhausting itself, so that it is overtaken without difficulty.—Harper's Weekly.

Inspiring Hope.

The Doctor—Bear up. I must tell you the worst—you can't possibly recover.

The Client—That's a pity, for if I'd lived a bit longer I should have come into a fortune; as it is, I haven't a penny to pay you with, doctor.

The Doctor—Well, now, don't give up hope. We'll try to mend you. We'll try.—Illustrated Bits.

Iowa Bank Loses $1,000 Cash.

Clarion, Ia., March 22.—The state bank of Galt was robbed during the morning. The loss is $1,000 in cash and $100 in stamps. There is but a slight clue to the identity of the robbers, who escaped on a handcar.

Fourteen Trains Each Day.

This is what it means. On and after March 12th, 1899, the Northern Pacific Railway will start two trains each day flying westward from its eastern terminals. At the same time—not at exactly the same hours—two trains will also leave its western terminals for the east. There will then be, each day, moving over the 2000 miles of main track between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth at the east, and Seattle, Tacoma and Portland on the Pacific Coast, fourteen of these trains—in both directions—going at the same time and this in a country where 20 years ago the buffalo were roaming. These trains will be known as No. 1 the Puget Sound Limited, No. 3 the Oregon Limited going west, and No. 2 the Twin City Mail, No. 4 the Twin City Express, going east, and will contain in the aggregate more than 100 cars of various sorts. Each train will have a mail car, a baggage and express car, first and second class coaches, a Free Colonist Sleeping car, a Dining car and one or more Pullman First Class Sleeping cars, so that everybody and everybody's pocketbook can be accommodated. The Dining cars are a part of the solid through trains and no one need therefore go hungry.

Train No. 1 will leave St. Paul at 8:55 am.; train No. 3 at 10:45 pm.; after all trains have arrived from the east and south, morning and evening. Train No. 2 will leave Portland at 11:30 am., and train No. 4 at 11:00 pm., arriving at St. Paul 2:00 pm., and 7:30 am., respectively, in time for all departing trains eastward. One train goes via Helena, Mont., and one via Butte, in each direction. These trains run through the most important cities of the northwest and are hauled by new and enormous Schenectady locomotives, making, when necessary, 75 or 80 miles an hour.

These diurnal trains will amply accommodate the large immigration and tourist travel that seems probable this year.

During the Yellowstone Park season one train in each direction will carry a Pullman First Class Sleeping Car, especially for Park travel.

Inquires regarding this new train service may be addressed to any Northern Pacific Agent, or to Chas. S. Fee, Gen'l Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn. 49-50

A Plucky Girl...

There are many of them in the world, but few have the opportunity to display the quality as the attractive heroine of John Mackie's great story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never, spiced with excitement and adventure. It is just the kind of tale to keep the reader on pins and needles from beginning to end.

We have purchased the story for use in this paper. The first chapters will appear soon. Do not miss them.

EXCURSION RATES —TO— WESTERN CANADA

AND particulars how to secure 160 acres of the best wheat-growing land on the Continent can be secured on application to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or the undersigned.

Specially Conducted Excursions For Manitoba, Assiniboia,

Alberta and Saskatchewan will leave St. Paul, Minn., on the first and third Wednesdays in each month; and specially low rates on all lines of railway are being quoted for the mammoth excursion leaving St. Paul on April 5th.

N. Campbell, Crookston, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villard, Minn., local agents.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 74 illustrations; a standard work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; contains 43 colored life-like reproductions of all leading varieties and 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; the best Poultry Book in existence; tells everything; with 23 colored life-like reproductions of all the principal breeds; with 103 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great sale; contains 8 colored life-like reproductions of each breed, with 132 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchery, Diseases, etc. Contains over 80 beautiful half-tones and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

The BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original, useful—you never saw anything like them—so practical, so sensible. They are having an enormous sale—East, West, North and South. Every one who keeps a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for you and not a misfit. It is 22 years old; it is the great boiled-down hit-the-nail-on-the-head,—quit-after-you-have-said-it, Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a-half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL
5 YEARS (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for A DOLLAR BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON. CHAS. F. JENKINS. Address, FARM JOURNAL, PHILADELPHIA

BABY'S SMOOTH, FAIR SKIN

A Grateful Mother Writes this Letter—Tells all about Her Troubles when Baby Broke out with Scrofula Sores.

"At the age of two months, my baby began to have sores break out on his right cheek. We used all the external applications that we could think or hear of, to no avail. The sores spread all over one side of his face. We consulted a physician and tried his medicine, and in a week the sore was gone. But to my surprise in two weeks more another scrofulous looking sore appeared on baby's arm. It grew worse and worse, and when he was three months old, I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before the first bottle was finished, the sores were well and have never returned. He is now four years old, but he has never had any sign of those scrofulous sores since he was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I feel very grateful. My boy owes his good health and smooth, fair skin to this great medicine." Mrs. S. S. Wroten, Farmington, Delaware. Get only Hood's.

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient and easy in effect. 25 cents.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

Crookston, - - Minnesota.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the Common Council of said city of Crookston and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on April 15th 1899, and terminating on April 14th 1900, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit: John B. Oliver, front room on ground floor, facing Broadway, of the two-story, frame building known as the Rauenbuehler corner, situate in lot 13, block 16, original townsite of city of Crookston, in said county and state.

Said application will be heard and determined by said Common Council of the city of Crookston at the regular meeting in the city hall in said city of Crookston in Polk county and state of Minnesota, on Tuesday the 11th day of April A. D. 1899, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 22nd day of March A. D. 1899.

[SEAL] W. A. Lanctot, City Clerk.

A FREE PATTERN
(your own selection) to every subscriber. Only 50 cents a year.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR

A LADIES' MAGAZINE.

A gem; beautiful colored plates; latest fashions; dressmaking economies; fancy work; household hints; fiction, etc. Subscribe to-day, or, send 5c for latest copy. Lady agents wanted. Send for terms.

Stylish, Reliable, Simple, Up-to-date, Economical and Absolutely Perfect-Fitting Paper Patterns.

McCALL BAZAR PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢

(No-Seam-Allowance Patterns.)
Only 10 and 15 cts. each—none higher. Ask for them. Sold in nearly every city and town, or by mail from

THE McCALL CO.,
138-148 West 14th St., New York.

For Sale.

—Twelve good heavy work horses and mares, and one large pair mules. Will sell for cash or good bankable paper. Tom Young.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four hundred twenty-three and fifty-five One Hundredths Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henrietta Lee Hart and John G. Hart her husband, mortgagors, to Clara A. Reynolds, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of October 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 26th day of October 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m., in book 59 of mortgages on page 254, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The undivided one half of lot number eight (8) in section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred fifty (150) north of range forty-seven (47) west, containing seventeen and one-fifth acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, excepting the shore rights along the Red Lake River, in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 7th day of April 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees as provided by law and as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 17, A. D. 1899.

Clara A. Reynolds, Mortgagee.
A. A. Miller, Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 16-52

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight ($478.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Jonine Omang, his wife, mortgagors, to C. E. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of August, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 152, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-west quarter of the north-east quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter, all in section thirty-four township one hundred and forty-eight of range forty-three west, containing eighty (80) acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston in said county and State, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. Thorson, Mortgagee.
E. J. Scofield, Attorney for Mortgagee. 48-53 Elbow Lake, Minn.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O. Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Final Proof.

United Land Office, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 28, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that Judson E. Flemming has filed notice of intention to make final proof before Register and Receiver at his office in Crookston, Minnesota, on Thursday the 6th day of April, 1899 on timber culture application No. 3341 for the s½, ne¼ and lots 1, 2, section No. 6 in township No. 151 n., range No. 47 w.

He names as witnesses:

John Love and Thomas Rutherford, of Key West, Minnesota, Almer N. Hixson and John O'Brecht, of Crookston, Minnesota.

Sylvester Peterson, Register.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Sixteen Hundred ($1,600.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Jonine Omang his wife, mortgagors, to C. E. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of August, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 151, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of section thirty-four in township one hundred and forty-eight, north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth Principal Meridian in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Sixteen Hundred Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. Thorson, Mortgagee.
E. J. Scofield, Attorney for Mortgagee. 48-53

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance, in order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. The two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the travelling public. Your nearest ticket agent will give you complete information and furnish you folder of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

Jas. C. Pond,
General Passenger Agent.
[16-tf] Milwaukee, Wis.

THE MAGNANIMITY OF JESSE PLUNKETT FORD.

BY EDITH BROWER.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

The young women who sat on the top step of the verands was nothing less than an object of adoration to the youth who sprawled on the lowest step, watching her while she mended his hat.

"You're awful good to me, Miss Lyddon. You're the only one that's been real good to me since I came. I don't see why my father wanted me to come here. I think he might have taken me to Europe with him."

"It seems to me a very nice place of the kind," said Mary Lyddon. "There are certainly nice people here."

"Oh, I suppose they're all right, but I hate to. They treat me as if they thought I hadn't ought to live. But I'm as good as they are. I'm"—the boy set holt upright—"I'm a Plunkett! Did you know that? Jesse Plunkett Ford—that's my name. Ford's a good name, but Plunkett's better. That was my father's mother's name, and he says there never lived a Plunkett that was mean minded. Why, do you know my cousin Sam Ford is so proud of having that name that he puts it last—signs himself Samuel Ford-Plunkett, with a coupling rod between 'em!"

ON HE WENT.

Mary found smother rip and was beginning to sew again. "Say," he murmured, gazing dreamily at her, "if you don't stop making your hand go so, you'll put me to sleep." He went on, mumbling his words: "I'm most off now; feel as if I was dying; awful jolly way to die—to have you sew me; sew me, sew me to death. What lovely eyes you've got!"

Mary put the hat down in her lap. "Jesse," said she, "you are a little goose."

A strong breeze from the sea swept around the house corner and lifted her heavy yellow "fuzz," causing it to stand up around her head like a nimbus.

"Say, do you know, Miss Lyddon, you ought to be called Queen Mary! You look exactly like a queen now. I'm going to call you Queen Mary. May I?"

"Call me what you like, only don't be silly. There's your hat. You ought to have a new one. It's a shameful hat for a high minded Plunkett to wear."

"I know it," said Jesse, pulling the shapeless thing down upon his ears. "When my father comes, I'll have a new one."

"Do you have to wait until then?"

"Yes—I"—blushing—"I haven't any money."

"You told me Mrs. Rigg kept your money for you."

"So she did—till I spent it."

"Why, how did you manage to spend it all?"

"Well"—he jerked out a small package and threw it into her lap—"I bought that."

"What is this?" she asked, lifting the cover. Upon a bed of pale green cotton lay a ring—a hand of gold fully half an inch wide, with three enormous rhinestones set at right angles to the circlet.

"Jesse Ford, why did you buy such a thing, and what are you going to do with it?"

"It's for you." His eyes glistened.

"For me!"

"Yes. What's the matter with it? Don't you like it? Ain't it pretty enough? It's the prettiest one I could find and the biggest. I had it marked —see, 'J. P. F. to M. L.' I wanted to have 'Queen Mary' put in, but I didn't quite like to."

Mary looked aghast. "Jesse, what am I to do with such a ring?"

"Wh-why couldn't you wear it? Please, Miss Lyddon, say you'll wear it. Why can't you?"

"Well, to begin with, it's rather large for a woman's hand, you know." She spoke with exceeding gentleness, for the boy's eyes were growing liquid and quivering painfully. "It was very sweet in you. I will always keep it to remember you by, but I couldn't wear it."

"Then you shan't have it at all unless you'll promise to wear it." He snatched the ring from her and thrust it back into his pocket. Then he flung himself toward her and clasped her knees.

"Miss Lyddon, won't you wait' for me? Won't you? Won't you?"

He looked ridiculously pathetic, with his large eare bent forward by his hat were no other reason. It means that somebody is waiting for me, and I promised when I put it on not to keep him waiting long."

He remained so long silent that at last she leaned forward to look into his face. His features were working fearfully. A conflict to the death was going on between tears and Plunkett pride. The agony was tremendous. It seemed to Mary that she could feel it vibrating along the tense cords of the boy's slender body.

"Jesse, dear," she whispered, "do you really care so much?"

The vibrations redoubled in speed and intensity. Then with a sudden convulsive movement that nearly knocked her over Jesse shot out of the boat. He landed on his head in the deep sand, whirling about considerably in the effort to get his legs, and started off down the beach. Mary watched, thinking to see him turn, but on he went, dwindling into a speck upon the white shore line.

Sitting in her room that evening, Miss Lyddon became conscious of a slight sound in the passage outside. A paper was gently shoved under the door, after which fast retreating footsteps could be heard. The letter began, "Dear Miss Lyddon." It went on thus:

"I'm sorry I acted as I did. I had to. If I hadn't, I'd insisted. That ain't a nice word, but I don't know any other, so I've got to use it. I went down to the quicksands. I thought I'd throw myself in there, but then I sat down to think, and I thought my father wouldn't like it if he came back and found me dead and gone. So I threw to the ring instead. It was no good, you know. They wouldn't take it back after it had been marked, and I'd never, never give it to any other girl. I can't talk about that other man tonight. It makes me all hot and cold when I think about him. Maybe I can tomorrow. Yours truly,

JESSE PLUNKETT FORD.

All this in very large script, but down in one corner in the tiniest printed text, "God bless you!"

It was several days before Jesse could bring himself to the point of talking about "that other man," and then it was Mary who started the subject.

"I think you ought to know," she began, "that I am expecting the one I spoke to you about the other day. He is coming next week."

"Did you suppose I didn't remember?" he said. "I've tried not to, but it's no use. I remember it all the time." Then abruptly: "Tell me all about him. What's he like? Is he good looking?"

"I dare say you would think so."

"Do you think so?"

"Of course." Sea and wind together had never succeeded in bringing such a flush as that to her face.

"Say, you think me awful lot of him, don't you? I wish I could make you get all red like that."

"Then you have had your wish, Jesse, dear, for it was surely your words that made me blush."

"Yes—," he said, half scornfully, half dejectedly, "but it wasn't for me. It was for thinking of him."

Presently he bent over and put his ball of a head in her lap.

"Tell me some more about him. I hate him. No, I don't. I love him because you do. If he had two lives I'd kill one and save the other."

"Oh, Jess, Jess, what a dear, funny fellow you are!"

"Am I funny? Am I dear too? Say," straightening himself, "if you hadn't known that other man, would you have been willing to wait for me then? Say, would you? Don't you think I'll be a pretty nice fellow some day—maybe good looking, too, when I get a beard? Do you think you ever could have waited for me? Just say yes to that, and I'll try to be satisfied."

He was looking up into her eyes with a sweet boyish ardor that Mary found irresistible. She took his face between her hands and kissed his brow. "Yes, she said, "you are a dear boy. I think perhaps I could have waited for you."

He glowed with pleasure. "Who knows but 'll have a chance yet!"; He dropped his head again into her lap and lay there silently content.

On the day the "other man" was expected Jesse kept himself pretty well out of the way, though occasionally Mary caught distant glimpses of a woebegone, tear stained boy eyeing her face to face after dinner, when he told her that he was going fishing and that there was a possibility of his never returning, adding in a perfunctory tone, as nerved to the utmost, "If I don't get back safe, I hope you'll be happy anyway," with worlds of meaning in the last word. He did get back safe, and sorry, too—not long after training. As he neared the house a porter walked before him carrying a valise. The porter set the valise by the front entrance. Three white initials stared from its narrow end, and Jesse stared at the initials. Suddenly he threw down his fishing lines and rushed to the parlor. It was empty, but he heard voices in a small adjoining room.

A curtain hung between the two apartments. He pulled it aside. In the middle of the floor stood his father, holding Mary, Queen Mary, in his arms.

They looked at Jesse and smiled. "Come here, my son," said Mr. Ford. "This lady is to be your mother. Won't you welcome her and congratulate me?"

Mary held out her hand. "Come," she said, but Jesse moved quickly toward the window, where he remained for some minutes. When he turned, a look of having lived through something and come out into a new place was upon every feature. He walked straight over to his father and took his hand.

"Dad," said he, and he spoke without shamefacedness, as a Plunkett should, "you've come out ahead. I asked Miss Lyddon to wait for me, but she said she couldn't, and I don't blame her when she could get you. You're a fine fellow, dad, all through, and you're better looking than I'll ever be."

Jesse turned to Mary. In his glowing countenance admiration, noble pride and renunciation contended together.

"I never would have given you up willingly," said he, "to any other man but my father."

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Cass Lake is enjoying a building boom.

A special postoffice has been established at Ann, Hubbard county.

Ex-City Recorder Wartner of Graceville is under arrest for alleged shortage in accounts.

The Fifteenth regiment was mustered out at Augusta, Ga., Monday. Most of the men at once left for the North.

The eighth annual meeting of the Northwestern Teachers' association will be held at Mankato April 7 and 8.

Schroder Brothers will erect a brick flouring mill at St. Joseph this spring. It will have a capacity of 75 barrels a day. Cost $40,000.

Governor Lind has designated C. H. Pfeit of Minneapolis as president of the board of managers of the state training school at Red Wing.

Minneapolis will have no exposition or fall carnival this year. At the same time efforts will be made to make the state fair a greater success than ever before.

Director Merriam has appointed L. G. Powers, formerly chief of the Minnesota labor bureau, chief statistician of the census in charge of agricultural statistics.

All the schools at Lakeville have been closed owing to an epidemic of scarlet fever. Six families are effected and a strict quarantine has been inaugurated. The schools will remain closed for two weeks.

Street cars have commenced running between West Superior and Duluth. The court has granted the right for electric cars to cross the new steel bridge, and and a 10-minute service will be inaugurated between the two cities.

At Warren James Peterson and George Wahstrom were indicted by the grand jury for selling intoxicating liquors illegally. Peterson was fined $200, having pleaded guilty to two indictments. Wahstrom pleaded not guilty and will fight the charge. Both are drug clerks.

Colonel Leonhauser of the Fifteenth Minnesota has demanded a court of inquiry to investigate the action of officers of the regiment on the occasion of the rioting in camp at Augusta. The demand is made because of the severe strictures of General Young in his review of the courtmartial proceedings.

Herman Loomis of Birch Lake, near Sauk Center, with his wife and two children and Miss Walters, in a wagon, attempted crossing ahead of a passenger train. Miss Walters was instantly killed and Loomis and his wife seriously injured. Their death is feared. The children were not hurt. One horse was killed.

Herman Telch came into Pine City with three black bears—mother and two half grown cubs—which he had killed with an ax six miles northeast of Pine City. He came upon them suddenly while looking for logs and the temper of the old she bear left no alternative but to fight. Mr. Telch soon disabled her and lives to tell the tale.

The secretary of the interior has called on the Northern Pacific Railroad company to relinquish certain lands in Minnesota. In a recent examination of lands selected by the company it was found that a large quantity had been selected within the second indemnity belt to which the company was not entitled under the resolution passed in 1870. The amount of land in said to be large and the relinquishment by the company will restore some valuable land to the public domain.

The elevators at the head of the lakes are full of grain, for the first time in their history. The grain in store amounts to 19,630,000 bushels, of which 10,105,000 bushels are of wheat, 5,516,000 bushels of corn, 890,000 rye, 471,000 barley and 1,107,00 flax. The consolidated system may accommodate 30,000,000 bushels more, but notices of coming grain enough are in to fill this space. Indications at present are to store every bushel that can be put in before May 1 or possible May 10. Therefore, elevator room must lay off from four to six weeks.

AFFECTS MUCH PROPERTY.

Decision Relating to Dower Rights in Partnership Transactions.

Sioux City, Ia., March 29.—A decision affecting several million dollars' worth of real estate has been rendered in the district court here today. The right original owners of the townsite of Sioux City sold their land without providing proper releases of dower, and the wives of dower interest. The tract disposed of comprises 90 to 100 blocks in the present heart of the city. About a year ago, heirs of the original owners sand to eject property holders, but then interested parties of coming grain enough are in to fill this space. Indications at present are to store every bushel that can be put in before May 1 or possible May 10. Therefore, elevator room must lay off from four to six weeks.

AFFECTS MUCH PROPERTY.

Decision Relating to Dower Rights in Partnership Transactions.

Sioux City, Ia., March 29.—A decision affecting several million dollars' worth of real estate has been rendered in the district court here today. The right original owners of the townsite of Sioux City sold their land without providing proper releases of dower, and the wives of dower interest. The tract disposed of comprises 90 to 100 blocks in the present heart of the city. About a year ago, heirs of the original owners sand to eject property holders, but then interested parties of coming grain enough are in to fill this space. Indications at present are to store every bushel that can be put in before May 1 or possible May 10. Therefore, elevator room must lay off from four to six weeks.

AFFECTS MUCH PROPERTY.

Decision Relating to Dower Rights in Partnership Transactions.

Sioux City, Ia., March 29.—A decision affecting several million dollars' worth of real estate has been rendered in the district court here today. The right original owners of the townsite of Sioux City sold their land without providing proper releases of dower, and the wives of dower interest. The tract disposed of comprises 90 to 100 blocks in the present heart of the city. About a year ago, heirs of the original owners sand to eject property holders, but then interested parties of coming grain enough are in to fill this space. Indications at present are to store every bushel that can be put in before May 1 or possible May 10. Therefore, elevator room must lay off from four to six weeks.

AFFECTS MUCH PROPERTY.

Decision Relating to Dower Rights in Partnership Transactions.

Sioux City, Ia., March 29.—A decision affecting several million dollars' worth of real estate has been rendered in the district court here today. The right original owners of the townsite of Sioux City sold their land without providing proper releases of dower, and the wives of dower interest. The tract disposed of comprises 90 to 100 blocks in the present heart of the city. About a year ago, heirs of the original owners sand to eject property holders, but then interested parties of coming grain enough are in to fill this space. Indications at present are to store every bushel that can be put in before May 1 or possible May 10. Therefore, elevator room must lay off from four to six weeks.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, March 29.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 1 hard, 70¼c; No. 1 Northern, 68½c; No. 2 Northern, 67½c; No. 3, 64½c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 71½c; No. 1 Northern, 69¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 71½c; No. 1 Northern, 69¾c; May, 70¾c; July, 71¼c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 29.

WHEAT—March closed at 70c; May, 69¾c; July, 70¼c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 70¾c, No. 1 northern, 69¾c; No. 2 Northern, 68¼c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, March 29.

HOGS—Market 5c higher. Range of prices, $3.65@3.70.

CATTLE—Market fairly active, steady to strong.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.10 for beeves; $3.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.65@4.50 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @3.90 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts: Hogs 1,000; cattle, 2,000.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, March 29.

HOGS — Market steady. Range of prices, $3.50 $3 70.

CATTLE—Markets for butcher cattle steady; good stockers steady; stock heifers higher; common stockers and feeders dull.

Sales ranged at $3.00@4.90 for cows; $3.60@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $4.00@4.40 for steers; $3.50@4.50 for stockers.

SHEEP—Good sheep and lambs strong; common weak.

Sales ranged at $3.15@3.35 for lambs; $4.40@4.75 for yearlings.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, March 29.

HOGS—Market steady to 5c lower. Sales ranged at $3.55@3.85 for mixed and butchers; $4.70@3.87½ for good heavy; $3.55@3.65 for rough heavy; $3.50@3.80@ for light.

CATTLE—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.75 for beeves; $2.00@4.75 for cows and heifers; $3.50@ 5.00 for Texas steers; $3.00@4.75 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $3.00@5.00 for sheep; $4.00@5.90 for lambs.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, March 29.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 70¾c; July, 70¾c.

CORN—March, 36c; May, 35¼c; July, 33@35¾c; September 35¼c.

OATS—March, 30@30¼c; May, 29¾ @29½c; July, 24¾c.

PORK—March, $8.95; May, $9.12½; July, $9.27½.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkey, 11@13c; chickens, 6c; ducks, 10@11c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@21c; dairies, 11½@18c

EGGS—Fresh, 11¼@12

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....60c
No. 1 northern.....Conservation
No. 2 northern.....54c

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul has a curfew ordinance.

Minneapolis is preparing for a big cycle meet the coming summer.

Private Bruce of Company C, Thirteenth Minnesota, was wounded in action near Manila Sunday.

Private Timothy Enright, Company B, Thirteenth Minnesota, died at Manila March 20 from an electric discharge.

Reports from the three companies of the Second regiment indicate that the organization will be kept nearly intact.

St. Paul's real estate transfers in February show an increase of 30 per cent over last year, building permits 81 per cent.

Thirty-five acres of state land adjoining the townsite of Semilly sold for $110 per acre at the recent sale in that county. Another lot the same size brought $90 per acre. Otherwise about 2,000 acres were sold at fair prices, bringing an average better than $6 per acre. That one fractional section came to $9,000, and the proceede of the whole sale, $15,000, account to more than $20,000. The initial payments were from the minimum of 15 per cent up to 80 per cent.

Executive Agent Beutner will immediately institute a crusade against pot hunters in Cleveland, Minnesota, who have been supplying the lumber camps with venison and moose meat during the winter. Mr. Beutner stated that he was personally in possession of information which, if turned to evidence against the contractors operating the camps, would make them liable for heavy fines. He says he will at once institute such proceedings and cause the arrest of all who have been violating the law during the winter. It is his intention not only to arrest the pot hunters, but those who have encouraged them to kill the game by buying it for consumption in the camps.

Animals That Know Roads.

The Welsh mountain sheep have obtained legal recognition of their ability to distinguish boundaries and their byeroads through their pastures. One flock of sheep fought a trespassing flock and the court decided that the sheep were worth a half crown more than others because they knew their roads and boundaries

Explosive.

An ambitious young writer having asked, "What magazine will give me the highest position quickest?" was told, "A powder magazine, if you contribute a fiery article."

The oldest medical recipe is said by a French medical journal to be that of a hair tonic for an Egyptian queen. It is dated 400 B. C., and directs that dogs' paws and asses' hoofs be boiled with dates in oil.

Vegetarians assert that one acre of land will comfortably support four persons on a vegetable diet.

RECEIPTS.

By balance March 31st 1898.....	$870 02
" June settlement from county	305 06
" November " "	29 00
" Balance.....	510 76
Total.....	$1905 74

RECAPITULATION.

By general fund.....	$ 421 18
By city hall fund.....	392 13
By improvements fund.....	242 81
By sinking fund.....	314 06
By interest fund.....	273 31
By special sewer fund.....	209 05
By special sinking fund.....	52 40
By park fund.....	138 97
By Firemen's Relief fund.....	309 88
By First ward fund.....	250 01
By Second ward fund.....	83
By Third ward fund.....	163 14
By Fourth ward fund.....	458 00
By Fifth ward fund.....	391 96
By cash received from county on account March settlement.....	3000 00
Total.....	$1729 01
To street and bridge fund.....	$ 1280 86
To sewer bond fund.....	247 80
To sewer fund.....	1412 27
To poor fund.....	109 78
To park fd. fund.....	1227 14
Total.....	$1791 34

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the FARMERS, STOCKMAN, DAIRYMAN, GARDENER, POULTRYMAN, APIARIST, FRUITIST, AND HOUSEWIFE

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Pages a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.

Six months, 30 cents.

3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25

the best pair of bicycles on earth for the money

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75

MONARCH ROADSTERS $60

DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.

Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago

Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Louis Barbiori Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lon Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

Commercial Appointments.

Washington, March 28.—Professor Walter F. Wilcox of Cornell university has been appointed chief statistician of the census bureau, and William D. Powell of the city will conduct the examination of applicants for positions under the bureau.

Vessels at Chicago Already Loaded.

Chicago, March 29.—With the opening of navigation still three or four weeks off, practically every vessel at this end of Lake Michigan has been chartered and loaded with grain. The loaded vessels at Chicago and South Chicago now hold about 9,000,000 bushels.

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance.

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1899.

Republican City Ticket.

For Mayor,
HALVOR STEENERSON.

For Alderman-at-large,
F. M. BROWN.

For City Clerk,
W. A. LANCTOT.

For City Treasurer,
O. O. CHRISTIANSEN.

For City Assessor,
C. W. MOTZ.

For Justices of the Peace,
JOHN McLEAN.
G. H. HOLT.

For Constables,
JAMES E. GREENHALGH,
A. A. GLENN.

For Alderman of the First Ward,
GEORGE O. BUHN.

For Alderman of the Second Ward,
T. G. THOMPSON.

For Alderman of the Third Ward,
G. S. CHESTERMAN.

For Alderman of the Fourth Ward,
L. ELLINGTON.

For Alderman of the Fifth Ward,
CHARLES O. MYERS.

MAY 1, has been officially designated as "Dewey Day" by the lawmakers of Pennsylvania. Doubtless the citizens of the Quaker State will have an Admira(b)l(e) time on that day.

A bill has been introduced into the legislature to repeal the anti-pool bill passed four years ago and provide for the selling of pools and the making of books on races on the Fair grounds of the state. A retrogressive step would be taken were this bill to become law.

DURING the last twenty days before the close of the session of the legislature no bills can be introduced save by request of the governor. This period began yesterday. Though the legislators have kept up well with their work, still there will doubtless be many bills that will not come up for a final vote.

THE city of Crookston is republican by a safe majority. The only hope, then, that the fusion party has of being successful is in creating dissension in republican ranks. Republicans will do well to bear this fact in mind and not do anything that will in any way strengthen the populists and democrats.

JACOBSON'S GROSS EARNINGS bill is practically dead. The Judiciary Committee of the Senate recommended that the bill he indefinitely postponed. This action was chiefly based upon the fact that a return to the direct system of taxation, as allowed by the passage of the act, would greatly reduce the amount of taxes received by the state from the railroads.

THE city elections will take place next Tuesday, April, 4. Every man who has the legal right to vote ought to see to it that his ballot is deposited in the ballot box on this day. This is a duty that every citizen owes to himself and to the city to perform. In case he neglects to vote and the administration is not to his liking he then has no right to criticise.

THE taxes in the city are high and economy must be the watchword of the next city administration. A mayor and aldermen, then, who will be conservative and careful in the matter of finances ought to be elected. Business methods must obtain in the management of the city's affairs and we feel sure that it will be perfectly safe to entrust the welfare of the city into the hands of the nominees of the republican party.

IT is by united action that a party wins. A house divided against itself cannot stand. When fusion party candidates, assisted by republican votes are elected, the republican party is thereby to a certain extent demoralized. Citizens wavering between the two parties naturally go with the victors. In the present city election no good reason can be assigned why any republican should not vote the straight republican ticket.

THE Municipal Council of Greater New York has by a unanimous vote passed a resolution declaring that Queen Victoria's birthday, the 24th of May, will be officially recognized in New York. The national, state and city flag will be flung to the breeze from all public buildings in the city in honor of the Queen. Such an act is unprecedented and is evidence that the Anglo-Saxon races are getting closer together every day, and there is no surer way to preserve the peace of the world.

We feel that the republican party has made no mistake in nominating L. Ellington for alderman of the Fourth Ward. We know of Mr. Ellington's record at Owatonna and Blooming Prairie in the southern part of the state,—a man of integrity and business ability—and judging the other republican candidates from him we can most heartily recommend them to the voters of Crookston. The city's affairs will be well managed if the republican nominees are place in office.

THE bill to provide for uniform state certificates in public schools has been recommended for passage in the Senate. If this bill passes, the granting of certificates to country school teachers will be taken out of the hands of the county superintendents and all certificates will issue from the office of the state superintendent. This change will, we think, be hailed with delight by the county superintendents, for a great deal of opposition and trouble comes to them through their refusing to grant certificates to incompetent teachers. The standard of the teaching force in the rural schools will thus be raised and hence the bill ought to become law.

THE Younger parole bill passed the Senate almost unanimously. It was amended, however, at the last moment, so as to read that "no prisoner shall be paroled under the provisions of this act without the unanimous consent, in writing, of the pardoning board. Even if the house despases the bill it really amounts to nothing more than the granting of the power to parole to the pardoning board, though of course there would go with this an implied recommendation from the legislature that this power be exercised in the case of the Younger brothers. There is, therefore, a possibility, though not a probability, of these men being relensed.

THE Anoka Hastings Insane hospital matter is practically ended. A building is to be erected at Anoka and a site for a fifth hospital is to be purchased at Hastings. A larger appropriation for the site was made in the Senate than in the house, still this matter is sure to be amicably settled. It is well that this dispute is over. We are heartily tired of the whole matter and are of the opinion that these two towns have received more than they deserve. Owing to the long strain under which they have been we should not wonder if they could now themselves furnish a large enough number of patients to fill the new hospitals. It has indeed been an insane (without the hospital) war, still there was method in their madness.

We believe that party politics ought not to enter into the consideration of municipal affairs to the detriment of the city. There may be times when it is best to vote against one's party candidates, but we do not think that time is now. For the sake of argument we may grant that the candidates of both parties are competent men, still it is the duty of all republicans to vote the republican ticket because, all statements to the contrary, the present city campaign is a party one. There is really no issue save that of party success. There is no citizens, non-partisan movement. There was no mass convention called. The republican committee called fusion party caucuses and these caucuses elected delegates to a fusion party convention and this convention nominated the so-called citizens ticket. Republican defeat—were such a thing even possible—would mean the triumph of the populists and democrats.

We publish elsewhere something of a summary of appropriation bills affecting the seventh district whose passage through Congress Senator Nelson and Congressman Eddy secured. We do not thereby say that this is their only or even their greatest work. They supported the McKinley administration during the crisis through which the nation has passed and they have helped to express in laws republican principles. For these and other national acts they deserve the commendation of the people even more than for what they have secured in the way of appropriations for the northwest. We do not by any means consider the ability to secure large appropriations the real test of the law maker" particularly of the men at Washington, nor do we think that a representative ought to entirely forget his own district in his anxiety to look after national affairs. Both national and local matters deserve the attention of our representatives at Washington and we think that Senator Nelson and Mr Eddy have kept in mind the nation, the state and the district.

We print at head of editorial column the republican city ticket. These men are the regular nominees of the republican city convention and as far as we can learn are able and competent men who will guard well the interests of the people and as such are deserving of the suffrage of the citizens of Crookston. Mayor Steenerson, who will lead the republican hosts to victory is well and favorably known not merely in the city but throughout the state. As a member of the bar he is among the most eminent. He has large property interests in Crookston, knows what the city needs and as mayor will see to it that nothing is left undone that will promote her general welfare. He is a staunch republican ever found in the republican ranks, supporting republican principles. It is claimed that the so-called "citizens party" is a non-partisan and that party lines ought not to be drawn in municipal affairs, but upon careful inquiry we have learned that the delegates to the convention which nominated the citizens party ticket were every one of them either populists or democrats. This fact invalidates the claim that the movement is not a pirty movement. "Beware of Greekseven when they are bearing gifts" was said of old, and we say now beware of the populists and democrats even when they endorse several republican nominees. We have not been in the city long enough to become personally acquainted with the candidates on either side but our experience teaches us that the republican party is usually very careful in selecting good men for office and that in general it is safe to follow the leadership of the grand old party. We, therefore, advise all citizens to vote the republican ticket and we particularly urge all loyal republicans to support their party's candidates.

Notes From Exchanges.

Litchfield Review: C G Topping has added to his barber shop equipment a movable seat, which is a novelty in its way. While working the professor can occupy the seat, traveling from one side of the chair to the other, moving forward an backward, and raising and lowering himself at will. The c hair is Mr. Topping's own invention.

Dun's Review: Very rarely has there been such a general increase in the wages of workers as has been announced during the past week, covering many cotton mills, iron and steel works, and coal mines, and in number probably more than 100,000 hands, the erage advance being apparently over 10 per cent. This involves a large increase in purchasing power of the people, with encouragement for all branches of business

Stephen Leader: During the day's drive to Rosean, we met 72 teams loaded with lumber, each load containing from 2, 500 to 3, 000 feet. It is safe to say that 150, 000 feet of lumber was taken from Roseau county in one day. Is this right? At the rate lumber is being cut in that country, the time will soon come when Roseau will have to import her own building material. As it is now, most of the lumber being cut is at the north end of the county near the Warroad river.

Farm Stock and Home: Advices direct from the Minnesota state prison indicate that the entire output of the binding twine plant will be taken by farmers by May 1, the estimate being based on the rate lorders now coming in. The bulk of the orders now being placed is for car lots by farmers' clubs, organized for the purpose. Th. is secures the bottom price, and also credit until Nov. 1. It certainly seems practicable to organize enough car-lot clubs to take the entire product, and it would be advisable to organize such clubs at once where it is not already.

Hutchinson Leader: A former of McLeod county gives the following experience in raising wheat and flax together in the same field: The mixture was one bushel wheat and one peck of flax to the acre. The yield was 28 bushels to the acre. A partial drowning out on one-half acre cut down the yield, Ithink, about 2 bushels per acre. The mixture as sown was one-fifth flax, and as threshed I find it is one-third flax, about 9 bushals flax and 18 bushels wheat to the acre. My experience is that it is about right to sow one and one-half bushels of the mixture to the acre. At that rate I should have had 11 bushels of flax and 21 bushels of wheat per acre. It was very evident that my crop came up too thin. Sown with blue stem or some late wheat as flax must be fully ripe when cut.

Minneapolis Journal: It happens frequently that farmers complain that they are at a disadvantage when compared with other lines of business. They talk of combines, exorbitant rates and apparently imagine the world is against them. It is unfortunate that large numbers of the agricultural community take this view because whether true or not, in part or in whole, the effect of such reasoning is unquestionably to prevent the securing of good results from farm work. The farmer is pessimistic rather than energetic and scientific. Investigation in any neighborhood will show greatly varying results from lands equal in productive power, but worked by different men. One farmer complains because results are unfavorable and he talks of oppression from railroad and grain buyers. The other farmer ships his produce, receives his money and places a good amount to profit account. His mind is on the improved methods of farming rather than on oppression, hence he raises a much larger produce with the same effort that the neighbor puts forth.

Elsewhere.

Climax is likely to have a creamery in the near future.

The new Cathedral at Fargo will be dedicated early in May.

Williston and Devils Lake N. D. have a small bone scare.

Ninety-nine new hills were introduced into the house last Tuesday.

A new satellite of the planet Saturn has been discovered by Prof. W. H. Pickering of Harvard Observatory.

The Great Northern is planning to build a 3,000,000 bushel steel elevator at West Superior. The cost will be over a $1,000,000.

Duluth has succeeded so well as owner of its water works plant that the Mayor suggests that the city get hold of the electric light plant.

A tramp tailor rather the worse for liquor amused himself over at Grand Forks by kicking in the plate glass windows of one of the stores.

State Superintendent Lewis has discovered that there can be no summer schools this year unless the legislature passes a deficiency appropriation.

The enterprising village of Bagley cut east of Fosston will issue $1200 bonds for the purpose of getting money with which to build a school house.

Citizens of Thief River Falls asked the State Senate for assistance in securing the opening of the Indian lands near that place. It was referred to the committee on public lands.

Bemidji had become the resort of many gamblers and grafters but under the vigorous policy inaugurated by the county attorney the town is in a fair way to be cleared of this unwelcome element.

Phoenix is the name of Eli Steenerson's new town located 26 miles north of Bemidji. Application has been made for the establishment of a post-office there, as the sawmill will employ many hands.

The members of the 15th Regiment, Minn., who mutinied a few weeks ago received sentences ranging from one to five years. The officers present at the time of the mutiny have been severely censured by General Young, the commanding officer.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature providing that a homesteader loses his claim when he leaves his claim for twelve months and failing to two years the period during which he can remain away but retain his claim by duly filed notice of possession.

L. E. Booker, ex-state treasurer of Lyon county, and president of the defunct Grand Forks National bank, who about two years ago was indicted for fraud in connection with the management of the bank and who forfeited the bonds under which he was held, has returned to stand his trial. In his absence he has been in Mexico.

The 15th Minnesota Regiment of volunteers is mustered out. There is considerable dissatisfaction over the fact that the War Department refused to appoint a special court to inquire into the conduct of some of the officers against whom severa charges were made by the commanding officer, General Young. Now that those officers are civilians they will never be able to clear themselves.

Interesting was the experience of Conductor Lou Flint and his Northern Pacific train yesterday, he having three wrecks within twenty-four hours. On his north run, while going into Gilby a journal burned off and one car went into the ditch. The wreckage was cleared away and he proceeded, but as the train was entering Kelley's station, another car went into the ditch. This was also cleared away and everything went well until near Hitterdal when a broken rail threw eight loaded cars into the ditch. This is a record hard to beat.

The Minneapolis Times.

The leading daily newspaper of the Northwest. It is independent in politics; its editorial columns discuss fearlessly all the great issues of the day. It prints all the news all the time. Its telegraphic, cable, and northwest news service is unrivaled. The price is only $3.00 per year. The JOURNAL is $1.50 per year. Readers of the JOURNAL will receive both papers for $3.50 per year.

The Sunday Times is a weekly magazine of sports, science, fashions, labor news, amusements and literature. Finely illustrated. Only $1.00 per year. With the JOURNAL, only $2.03 per year.

SEED WHEAT

A few hundred bushels of good clean seed wheat for sale.

49-50 VANCE & STONE.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

NOTIFIED TO CLOSE UP.

Anti-Saloon League After Des Moines Dealers in Wet Goods.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22.—All the saloons of Des Moines have been notified to cease business by April 15 or suffer prosecution. The notice was served by Rev. H. H. Abrams of Marshalltown, agent of the Anti-Saloon league. He makes the point that the saloonkeepers have not complied with the provisions of the new code adopted by the last legislature, which provides that a petition of consent must be signed by 65 per cent of all the voters at the last general election and permission granted by the board of supervisors before a saloon can be opened. Most of the saloons were in operation prior to the adoption of the new code and have not thought it necessary to obtain a new petition of consent.

Probably Struck by a Bridge.

ORTONVILLE, Ia., March 20.—J. J. Healey, fireman on the Burlington fast mail between Chicago and Burlington, was found dead by Engineer Potts, on the cab seat, hanging out of the window. Healey's head was nearly cut off. It is thought he was struck by a bridge near Gladstone.

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

United States Map. 15c. A copy of our handsome map, 48x32 inches, printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money order. We cannot sell uncoppage stamps. GEO. P. LYMAN, General Passenger Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal, Morrisey's Foundry.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

YOUNG SHORT HORN BULLS. FOR SALE.

Pure bred and fit for service this spring. At my farm, Sec. 15, town of Lowell, five miles north-west of Crookston.

R. A. WILKINSON.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

H. STEENERSON.
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW.
Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Roberts street, Crookston, Minn.

Gregory Greenler, an old resident of Cloquet, has been arrested on a charge of forgery preferred by B. J. Summerfield.

Anokn county has a young giant who may tackle Hali Adali, the Turk. The young man is 6 feet 8 inches high and weighs 388 pounds.

Captain C. C. Tears of Company G, Fourteenth Minnesota regiment, of Duluth, has forwarded his resignation to the adjutant general.

Rev. James D. Paxton of Philadelphia has been called to the House of Hope church, St. Paul, in place of Rev. John P. Egbert, resigned.

Dr. Weltzenberg, the agency physician at Pine Point, is dead of congestion of the brain. His remains will he taken to Cincinnati for interment.

The county attorney attacked the gamblers of Bemidji last week because of their boldness in defying the law and caused several gambling outfits to be confiscated. His life has been threatened.

General Young, in announcing and approving the sentences of the mutinous members of the Fifteenth Minnesota regiment, severely roasted the officers, whom he holds largely responsible for the outbreak. The rioters got from

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest.—Persons Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

Vance & Stone for coal and wood.

—Court at Warren closed Monday night.

—Sylvester Peterson spent Sunday at Ada.

—J. D. McPhee and wife spent last Saturday in the city.

—A dance will be held at Medical hall tomorrow night.

—J. P. Foote made a business trip to McIntosh on Monday.

—Attorney L. H. Bailey was in from Beuldji last Saturday.

—Sam Wallace is making still further improvements in the inside of his drug store.

—Mrs. F. M. Calkins, of Ada, was the guest of Mrs. Sylvester Peterson the first part of the week.

—Father Murphy went out last Monday to Beuldji and Cass Lake to do some pastoral work.

—H. S. Tollman, United States Marshal, came up from Brainerd last Saturday and went on out to White Earth.

—The Epworth League of the M. E. church will hold a charade social in the church parlors tomorrow evening, March 31.

—In probate court last week the estate of the late Dr. Stebbins, of Fertile, was closed and the final account made by his brother.

—Special Agent Griffin, now located at Ashland, Wis., left Crookston Monday morning to spend a few days in the woods out near the Red Lake Reservation.

—Rev. H. Logan, Methodist pastor at St. Hilaire, and Rev. A. E. Rawson, exchanged pulpits last Sunday. Mrs. Logan and child accompanied Mr. Logan to Crookston.

—T. S. Stires, of St. Paul, who took night operator Miller's place in the Great Northern office here, fell ill shortly after his arrival and was forced to resign. C. A. Tallor takes his place.

—There passed through the city the latter part of last week on the Great Northern a passenger train with about a dozen coaches filled with Dankards from the east who intend settling in North Dakota. Thus doth the stream of emigration flow toward the northwest.

—Next Sunday morning at the Congregational church in place of the regular preaching service an Easter Concert will be given by the Sunday School. The concert is entitled "Easter Lillies," and will consist of hymns, recitations, carols, responsive readings and a short address.

—C. W. Latta last Thursday resigned his position as city reporter for the Crookston Tribune. C. W. Motz has been assisting Editor McColl during the past week until the new reporter, Mr. Rayford, from Winona, arrived and got a little acquainted with his new field of work.

—Sam Wallace is making still further improvements in his block. He has had A. J. & A. McKinnon put up a new awning in front of Tom Morris' jewelry store on Broadway, and some finishing touches in the way of papering and painting are being put on in the interior of his drug store.

—The school board granted the teachers and pupils of the public schools a half holiday last Tuesday afternoon that those who wished might hear Sousa's band. True education is not by any means confined within the four walls of a school room. Music is recognized as one of the means by which latent powers are aroused.

—While Prof. H. C. Crippen, superintendent of the East Grand Forks public schools, was chastising one of his unruly pupils one day last week, in some unaccountable way the boy was quite severely hurt. Mr. Crippen procured a carriage and drove home with him. The same day the board of education re-elected Mr. Crippen as Supt. of the schools for the coming year.

—The trial of John Smith charged with the murder of Geo. Bates which was to begin at Hallock yesterday has been postponed till May 24. It will be remembered that one of Smith's hands was swollen considerably the day after the murder, and it was conjectured that this hand had been injured in the scuffle with Bates. As a result of this wound blood poisoning has set in, and hence Smith is unable to stand his trial just now.

—Charley Giroux, who has been for a long time one of the clerks in the Crookston post office, started last Monday for a thirty days' run between Grand Forks and Duluth. It will be his business to weigh the United States mail on this route, and upon the figures furnished by him the government will base its contract with the railroad for carrying the mail. Charley is one among many government employees who are doing similar work along different runs through the state.

—J. J. Carey was up from Beltrami yesterday.

—Miss Blanche Carey of Northcote spent Friday night in the city.

—Rev. H. J. Fisher delivered a lecture at Fertile last Friday night.

—Frank M. Brown is the republican candidate for alderman at large.

—E. C. Shevlin and family returned Monday morning from Minneapolis.

—Mrs. A. O. Rolfe, of Ada, has been visiting with Mrs. Shelley, of this city.

—Cedar posts, 12½ cents each, delivered in any place, for sale at S. C. Johnson's feed store.

—Mrs. G. L. Bonney, of St. Paul, has been visiting with Mrs. W. D. Scott.

—L. C. Simons was down from Red Lake Falls to hear Sousa and his musicians.

Dr. G. A. Morley, specialist, eye, ear, nose and throat. Office, Rickett block, Crookston, Minn. 30tf

—The steps preparatory to the building of the new county bridge at Mallory have been made by County Surveyor Hamery.

—Percy Luckhart, a member of the 1st Montana Regiment, and one of the soldiers killed in the recent fighting with the Filipinos, was formerly a Crookstonite.

—Rev. Clark, of Warren, preached in the Presbyterian church in Crookston last Sunday the Crookston pastor, Rev. F. W. Fraser, holding services at Warren.

—E. M. Sathre, of Austin, Minn., a brother of Prof Sathre, of the Business College, arrived in Crookston last Tuesday. He intends teaching in one of our rural schools.

—The new brass sliding pole down which the firemen who sleep in the second story of the city hall will swiftly glide into the apparatus room, has been put in place.

—Peterson Bros., managers of the Water Works and Electric Light plant, are always up with the times. Last week they thawed out some frozen water mains by means of electricity.

—G. L. Mattson, an employee of the Great Northern at this place, who went to the gold fields in Alaska a year ago, has returned but unfortunately for him he did not strike it out there.

—Constantine Commandery No. 21, Sir Knights Templar, will hold a special Easter service next Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church. Rev. H. M. Green, rector of the Episcopal church will deliver the address.

—The Duluth train one day last week out near Solway, ran down a section hand and one of his mates who were riding on a hand car. They failed to heed the locomotive's warning whistle and were in consequence quite severely hurt.

—On Sunday evenings at the Congregational church Rev. H. P. Fleiter, the pastor, has been giving a series of biographical sermons on the great characters of history. Last Sunday night the subject was, "Samson, the popular clown."

—Special Agent N. I. Griffin, of the Interior Department, has returned to Crookston for a short time from Ashland, Wis., where he is now located. There were a few matters that they were not finally settled when he left here two weeks ago.

—The dancing party given by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lycan and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Scott at Hotel Crookston last Friday night, was a most brilliant affair. The reception and dining rooms were very tastily decorated and Riggs' orchestra furnished the music.

The legal case that is on between the city and the county has again been postponed. The answer to the writ of mandamus was to have been given last Saturday night but the defense insist on their right to a jury trial so the case will not be tried till the spring term of court the latter part of May.

—The People's Press, a weekly newspaper edited by C. C. Knappen, has branched out and started a daily, the first issue of which appeared last Tuesday night. It is not stated whether or not the Daily will be permanent. Chas. Latta will act as city editor for the new sheet.

—The financial condition of the Bethesda Hospital Association, as shown at the annual meeting last week, was much better than was anticipated. The hospital was only started within the year yet all expenses were paid and some funds left over. Drs. Loe and Holte are the physicians in charge.

—J. N. Fulton, publisher of the Clay county Herald at Hawley, Minn., was a caller at the JOURNAL office last Monday. Mr. Fulton seven years ago was an employe of the JOURNAL. Crookston, however, has grown so that it took him some time before he could get his bearings. He expects to leave the newspaper business at Hawley about June 1, and may locate in Crookston.

—The Young Men's Political club met Tuesday night.

—Attorney H. L. Gaylord was up from Fertile Tuesday.

—The spring term at the business College began Tuesday.

—Archie McKinnon went out to Meator yesterday morning.

—Mayor Brown left for St. Paul last night on a business trip.

—A. C. Wilkinson went out to McIntosh on legal business yesterday.

—C. F. Peterson and wife of Hallock were registered at the Crookston yesterday.

—Messrs Hoch and Vanstrum have a fine handsome sign for their "Wabasha Cafe" on Main street.

—Mrs. Vunnet and Dave Vunnet were among those from Fertile who listened to Sousa's band.

—Mrs. E. C. Carruth, of Grand Forks, has been the guest of Mrs. W. E. McKenzie during the week.

—Dr. Just and Cashier Ellington were passengers on the Great Northern yesterday bound for Euclid.

—Tom Malone, one of the pedagogues of Red Lake Falls, visited the Crookston public schools last Tuesday.

—Mrs. J. F. Montgomery, of Angus, was one of those who heard Sousa. She returned home this morning.

—Chas. E. Bongthon, F. A. Grady and J. Jerome of Red Lake Falls, went down below last Tuesday night.

—Mr. Aggie Reiland, after a short visit with her sister Mrs. O. O. Christinson has returned to Thief River Falls.

—Miss Maria O'Brien who has been visiting with relatives in Crookston during the winter left Tuesday night for Belvidere, Ill.

—N. J. Nelson has bought one of J. W. Wheeler's house in Jerome's addition and will move into his home in a short time.

—Fertile was well represented at the Sousa band concert. Seventy people came up from that town on the morning train.

—Sam and James Crookshanks have returned from the hunter camps out near Deer River where they have spent the greater part of the winter.

—Jessie Childs thought that he was to hasten the coming of spring by buying a new Victor bicycle from Hawkins and Olds, but the vernal weather has not struck us yet.

—Miss Ruth Childs, a pupil in the Crookston high school, has presented to the school a picture which she received from the Minneapolis Journal for an essay written for that paper.

—Mrs. Walstad received word from Christiana, Norway, a few days ago, that a wealthy brother of hers in that country had died and that her share of the property left would amount to about $7,000.

—George W. Whitney, who has long been an engineer on the St. Vincent line, has been promoted and now has charge of the Great Northern trains, Nos 7 and 8, which run between Grand Forks and Minot. Joseph Selberts takes Mr. Winney's old run.

—Ben Strawbridge and Judge Ives start for Cass Lake, the scene of their new labors, next Mon day morning. The new building they are putting up will be finished this week, and the first edition of the new Cass Lake paper will be published within a very short time. The JOURNAL extends its best wishes to Ben and the Judge in their new enterprise.

—A delegation from Crookston, among whom are County Auditor Gleason and René Fortier, chairman of county board, have been in St. Paul this week showing themselves to the injustice of the bill introduced by Senator Myran under the provisions of which Red Lake county hoped to secure from Polk county several thousand dollars more than she is entitled to in accordance with the law under which that county was set apart from Polk county. It was a sharp and underhand scheme on the part of our northeastern neighbor but fortunately their nefarious plan was detected by County Auditor Gleason.

—The eighth semi-annual meeting of the Northwestern Teachers' association will be held at Moorhead on April 7 and 8. Among the subjects discussed will be, "Methods in Arithmetic," "Essentials in language work," "Possibilities for culture in the common branches," "What the people expect," "Relation of home and school," "Preparation for high school," "The teacher and the law maker" and "What shall our children read." All the prominent educators in the northwestern part of the state will be present. The meeting cannot help but be helpful to any and all teachers who are there.

$75.00

Buys a team of horses—sound, well matched, in good condition and ready for business. VANCE & STONE.

—A. J. Lammers, of Solway, is in the city.

—Wm. Fleming, of Mallory, was here yesterday.

—D. Parrell of Warren spent Tuesday in the city.

—A. Bergh, of Fosston, is spending the day in Crookston.

—M. A. Harbin went east on the Duluth line yesterday.

—A telephone line is to connect Ada with Twin Valley.

—H. Duckstad of Fertile was at the county seat Tuesday.

—E. A. Engebretson came in from Fosston yesterday afternoon.

—D. B. Ferguson, of Mallory, spent Tuesday night in Crookston.

—Herman Osterloh and wife were in from Key West yesterday.

—Miss Hattie Myran of Ada came up to hear Sousa's Band play.

—Colonel and Mrs. R. A. Wilkinson came up from St. Paul yesterday.

—The banks will close tomorrow as Good Friday is a legal holiday.

—F. C. Wheeler and wife, of Stephen, were in the city last night.

—James A. Mead, of Red Lake Falls, spent Tuesday night in the city.

—James E. Morrissey went to Red Lake this morning to inspect some boilers.

—J. P. Foute was a passenger on the Duluth train going east this morning.

—I. S. McIlraith, the contractor for the new bridge at Mallory, was here yesterday.

—Judge Watts was at Hallock yesterday and adjourned court till the 24th of May.

—Mrs. Rose is planning to increase the capacity of her restaurant rooms near the Great Northern depot.

—Purchase to the value of $1,000 was sold at the U. S. land office yesterday to a man from Anoka.

Deaths.

SKINNER.

At Fisher on Monday, March 27th, Mrs. William Skinner.

CHARBONNEAU.

At Crookston on Tuesday, March 28, Mrs. Charbonneau. The funeral occured yesterday from St. Ann's church.

LARSEN.

On Thursday March 23, at the home of John Carlson in this city Nels Larsen, of typhoid fever. Deceased has been an employee of the Great Northern railway as bridge carpenter for several years. All his relatives live in Norway. He was buried on Sunday with Masonic honors.

PROVENCHER.

At Crookston, on Tuesday, March 28, John Provencher, aged 55 years. Pneumonia was the cause of death. The remains were taken in t night to St. Paul, Mrs. Provencher's home, where they were met by the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers, an association of which the deceased was a member.

APPLEQUIST.

On Tuesday, March 28, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Applequist.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice, for the week ending March 30, 1899.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

M. H. Ashley, Job, Arbold, Edward Fry, Mike Irlsten, Joseph A. Moore, John Riley, J. O. Shuland, Pet Skoglund, Anton Skarry, I. W. Wetes, Ole Benson, W. Wilson.

LADIES' LIST.

Mrs. D. Ellis, Mrs. Delia Johnson, Mrs. John Hughes.

Persons calling for the above say advertised. ANDREW ERKEN, Postmaster.

Voting Places.

1st Ward, G. A. R. Hall.
2nd Ward, James Williams' blnshop on Main street, north of Merchants National bank.
3rd Ward, Commercial hotel.
4th Ward, City Hall.
5th Ward, Pumping station.

HORSES FOR SALE.

About 100 head of well-bred mares and geldings, weight averaging about 1150 pounds, good, solid colors, fifteen yearlings in the bunch. Will have them at Billings on N. P. and B. & M. railroads on or about May 1st. Will sell for $25 per head, cash. Address,

ROBT. LEAVENS,
51-52 Billings, Mont.

—W. L. Vannet spent Sunday at his home in Fertile.

RED RIVER VALLEY
IMPROVED
AND UNIMPROVED

FARMS

FOR SALE
ON LONG TIME
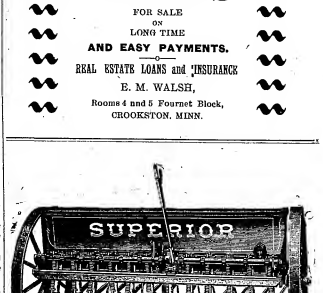
AND EASY PAYMENTS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS and INSURANCE

E. M. WALSH,
Rooms 4 and 5 Fournet Block,
CROOKSTON, MINN.



Our line comprises the Superior Double Disk Drills, Dowagiac Shoe Drills, Kentucky Single Disk Drills, and our usual line of Harrows, Wagons, Harness and other spring goods. At our Stores in Fosston and McIntosh we also carry a full line of heavy and shelf Hardware suited to your requirements. We solicit your trade at the point nearest you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or McIntosh.

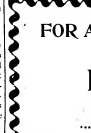
LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

THE OPTICIAN,



DR. T. J. SMITH,

Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

IN THE

North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS, BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

50 Cents a Number: $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N. Y

TIME CARD
OF TRAINS.
Crookston

NORTHERN PACIFIC

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:37 pm	8:37 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	8:20 a m	8:20 a m

C. A. SHARKEY, Agt. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A.
Crookston, Minn. St. Paul, Minn.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	Daily	Except Sunday.	LEAVE
8.55 am	Grand Forks, North and West		7.00 am
9.00 pm	Mpls., St. Paul and points east		9.05 pm
8.00 pm	Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg		9.15 am
2.00 pm	W. Higgins' Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls		8.30 am
4.05 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior		9.00 am
5.45 pm	Wilkinson, Halsted, Moorhead and Fargo		7.30 am

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law.
No. 2 Fournet Block CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.
GRADUATE
McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.
Office in McKinnon Block.

A. R. HOLSTON,
Attorney - at - Law
Practices in all the courts.
Office, Wallace Block.
CROOKSTON, - MINN

FOR SALE OR RENT.
North half of section 12, town of Andover. No buildings. Will rent in tracts to suit. VANCE & STONE.

STATE LEGISLATURE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22.

Senator Wilson's prison parole bill, designed to liberate the Youngers, was killed in the senate, but may be reconsidered.

The fight on hospital bills was continued. It is to be resumed to-morrow.

Among the bills passed was one preventing railroad companies from raising rates without the consent of the railroad and warehouse commission.

The bill reported by the committee on education, H. F. 274, authorizing the state high school board to publish and print, at the expense of the state, free text books and charts and appropriating $40,000 for the work, was defeated in the house.

Bills were passed providing for traveling libraries; allowing five-sixths of a jury to return a verdict in civil cases, and providing for trust companies giving bonds when appointed administrators or guardians, the same as individuals.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23.

The senate discussed the insane hospital bills all the afternoon, the third day of the argument, and adjourned without taking action.

Senator Wilson's bill for the parole of the Younger brothers was reconsidered by the senate and passed by a vote of 40 ayes and 5 nays. It is amended to read that "no prisoner shall be paroled under the provisions of this act without the unanimous consent, in writing, of the pardoning board."

The Jacobson gross earnings bill was made a special order for Wednesday.

The house, by a vote of 82 to 0, passed the Lydiard amendments to the present law relating to the tax on inheritances. The amendments are intended to prevent the escape of any of the estates and inheritances from taxation.

The Dunn bill, relating to the liability of stockholders and opening up a new way of getting at them through the United States courts, was passed.

FRIDAY, MARCH 25.

The state senate has passed the bill for a new insane hospital at Anoka and appropriating $15,000 for a site at Hastings. As practically the same bill has passed the house it is thought the lower body will approve the senate bill.

The house, after introducing 20 new bills, passed over the calendar and put in the rest of the day on general orders, advancing 19 bills to where all that is needed is a roll call.

An effort was made to indefinitely postpone the McNeil bill, H. F. 645. This is the measure which raises the ages of children attending the public schools from 5 to 6 years. It was finally referred to the judiciary committee.

The Gutterson bill increasing the gross premium tax to be paid by insurance companies from 2 to 2½ per cent was again recommended for passage in the house.

The bill to create a state drainage commission was recommended to pass and was referred to the committee on appropriations. The bill contemplates a comprehensive scheme for the drainage of lands in the Red river valley.

SATURDAY, MARCH 24.

The last day for the introduction of bills was a busy one. The senate was ahead on the count in the morning, but the house kept at it an hour longer. 79 measures being introduced, and finished the bills ahead. The grand total in the senate was 600 and in the house 004. Among the measures sent in were the following: To limit the rental prices of telephones; for a commission to revise the statutes; to give sheriffs 4-year terms.

MONDAY, MARCH 27.

The house put in the day on the calendar and when an adjournment was taken 33 bills had been passed. The average time consumed in reading a bill and calling the roll was a trifle over six minutes. Among the measures passed were the four bills of Senator Hoyer of Stearns relating to the management of the state reformatory at St. Cloud. None of the measures were of great importance.

A narrow majority of two committed the bonns to the Stillwater junket on Wednesday, notwithstanding the statement of Mr. Kelly that the resolution "was in the interest of the most villainous gang that ever infested the fair state of Minnesota."

In its half-day session the senate did practically nothing. The bill providing for 20,000 copies of the state blue book was recommended to pass. The 8-hour bill was defeated in committee of the whole, but on rising it was excepted from the report and a motion made that it be placed on the calendar. Senator Greer moved an adjournment and the bill was left hanging in the air.

TUESDAY, MARCH 22.

The senate, by a vote of 31 to 30, adopted the report of a majority of the judiciary committee, indefinitely postponing the Jacobson bill to increase the gross earnings tax of railroads from 3 to 4 per cent.

The 8-hour bill was placed on the calendar with a favorable recommendation.

Most of the afternoon was spent by the house in committee of the whole on the discussion of the sugar bounty question, as presented by H. F. 323, Roberts, limiting the bounty to $50,000 a year for three years, and the Batz bill, S. F. 51, repealing the bounty law altogether. A number of amendments were voted down and the Roberts bill was then recommended for passage.

The house defeated by a vote of 50 ayes to 60 nays the Fosnes bill permitting the deduction of credits from the list of returnable property made out for the tax assessors.

The house finally disposed of the Gutterson bill increasing the tax on the premiums of insurance companies on business done in Minnesota from 2 to 2½ per cent. The bill was passed under a call of the house by the vote of 61 to 51.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, March 16.

Rev. James A. Spurgeon, brother of the late Rev. Charles Haddon Spurgeon, is dead in London.

Denver capitalists and an Eastern syndicate are incubating a scheme to connect Denver and Deadwood by rail.

Secretary Alger and a party of friends have left Washington for Savannah, Ga., on their way to Cuba.

The Chicago, Burlington and Northern is to be purchased outright by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy company.

The death is announced of Countess Dzelyaski, nee Princess Czartoriski, who once refused the hand of Napoleon III.

A Rome dispatch says it is understood there that the Chinese minister has informed the Italian government that China absolutely refuses the demand of Italy for a concession at San Mun bay.

Friday, March 24.

The influenza is raging at Berlin and the death list is heavy.

The Tenth Ohio regiment was mustered out at Augusta, Ga.

John L. Sullivan has been chosen referee the McCoy-Choynski fight at the Mechanics Pavilion. The advance sale of seats already amounts to $10,000.

John Gilbert, charged with the murder of his wife and four children, when arraigned in court at Clay Center, Kan., pleaded not guilty, but later weakened and entered a plea of guilty.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state at Trenton, N. J., for the New England Electrical Vehicle and Transportation company, with a capital of $25,000,000.

Saturday, March 18.

The batting on the annual Oxford and Cambridge boat race is 11 to 4 on Cambridge.

The wages of the Twin City railway conductors and motormen will be raised June 1.

Trolley cars are expected to connect St. Paul and Stillwater in 50 minutes by July 1.

Professor Gustav Weidermann, professor of physics and chemistry at Leipsig, is dead.

Hon. Francis Harrison Pierpont, the first governor of West Virginia, is dead at Pittsburg, Pa.

Rates from Dawson City have been cut in two by the formation of a transportation combination.

Mrs. Rachel Esterbrook, widow of the celebrated pen maker, is dead at her home in Plainfield, N. J., aged 87 years.

Albert Griffith, the Australian pugilist known as "Young Griffo," has been declared insane by a jury of Chicago physicians. He was sent to Jefferson asylum. Little hope for his recovery is entertained.

Monday, March 27.

The condition of Rudyard Kipling is again improving.

At McKeesport, Pa., Frederick Clark shot and wounded his wife and then killed himself.

The Hamburg-American line steamer Pretoria, just arrived at New York from Hamburg, brought 1,204 steerage passengers.

George Bidwell, one of the Bank of England forgers, died at Nice, Mon., where his brother Austin died three weeks ago.

The secretary of the navy has invited Miss Marion Cockrell, daughter of Senator Cockrell of Missouri, to christen the battleship Missouri now in course of construction at Newport News.

Prof. Charles Augustus Briggs, D. D., of the faculty of the Union Theological Seminary in New York city, will soon be ordained to the priesthood in the Protestant Episcopal church by Bishop Potter, having been accepted by that body.

Tuesday, March 28.

General MacArthur is to be promoted for his work in the Philippine campaign.

The Missouri legislature has voted to reduce passenger fares from 3 to 2½ cents per mile.

Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador to England, is confined to his room with a severe cold.

Dr. James O. Murray, dean of Princeton university, is dead. He passed away quietly after an illness of several weeks.

The Call says that Governor Bradley of Kentucky has decided to settle permanently in San Francisco and take up the practice of law.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company of New York has certified to an increase of its capital stock from $35,000,000 to $75,000,000.

Professor J. B. Bully, an employe of the Toledo (O.) postoffice, was caught in the act of stealing money from the mails and placed under arrest.

Wednesday, March 29.

President McKinley has returned to Washington.

A wireless telegraphic message has been sent across the British channel, a distance of 32 miles.

Several Pennsylvania legislators admit having been "approached" by friends of Senator Quay.

J. Sterling Morton will launch his new political party July 4. He says conservatism will be the key note.

The naval board of promotion has reported favorably upon all those named for rear admiralships under the naval personnel bill. There were 14 of them.

Ex-Secretary Sherman has arrived in Washington. He was taken from the Fargo at Santiago and brought to Norfolk on the cruiser Chicago. He stood the trip well.

Representatives of the Cuban assembly have arrived in Washington to attempt to secure another loan for the Cuban army. They will not be officially received.

IN A MUSIC SHOP.

In a dim corner of the shop,
With none but notes to mark,
The weary old toy zither hung,
Forgotten by the dark.

The cobweb hid the outworn care,
Dimmed with the ancient years;
The strings that little hands had picked
To laughter utes then tears.

And fitter than the hope, a sweet toy,
For slumber? Nay, awaken!
The heart of music has no rest
Until its cords must break.)

Without, among the visitors,
That master heads had wrought,
It heard the master music voice
Its own sweetened thoughts.

Like some poor bird of battling song
Wayworn, with broken wing,
Wielding its lyre by trembling hands,
Ever to fly—and sing.

To tittle old toy instruments
Nor rest nor sleep belongs;
Only to feel with helpless strings
Eternal stress of song.

And even there, adazo with dust,
The old sad woes to sing,
The message of the viola set
Its voice a-quivering.

Then weary title zither,
Long days and years shall come
Before thy beats of song may break,
Thy weary strings be dumb.
—Josephine Peabody in Youth's Companion.

THE CONSPIRATORS.

Captain Hanson, having returned from a long voyage to find himself a widower, had sacrificed his fondness for a seafaring life to the needs of his only daughter, Lucy, and had settled in a thriving coast city, where he could live comfortably upon the modest fortune he had accumulated.

A good man was the captain, rough in his ways, but tender hearted, irascible, but forgiving, and deeply devoted to his "little girl," as he continued to call Lucy even after she took to long gowns and began to receive calls from eligible young men.

It was rather slow in dawning upon the captain's mind that Lucy might some day like to marry. He never took her "company" seriously, for most of the young men who called and whom he admitted, for he habitually answered the doorbell, were of a type with which to put it mildly, he was not familiar. That Lucy should cherish a genuine interest in a young man who knew anything of the sea never occurred to him until a score of one of his former shipmates proposed for Lucy's hand. Then there was a rude awakening.

The suitor, Jack Darrow, was himself a sailor, and the old captain had found great comfort in his calls. In fact, the ancient mariner had entertained the notion that Jack called to see him, and it was quite a shock when Jack, finding the captain alone one evening, made his purpose clear.

"Have ye signaled her, Jack?" he asked.

"Haven't hoisted a rag," replied the young sailor sheepishly. "If it's all right, cap, yon speak to her. She'll do anything you say."

"Drown me, then," retorted the captain dubiously, "but I'll brave the lead, Jack, and let you know if the channel's clear."

That satisfied Jack, and, true to his word, the captain "heaved the lead" that very night.

"Lucy," he said, "Jack Darrow wants to splice with ye."

"Oh!" he does, papa," she answered at once. "Jack's a good fellow, but I don't love him."

The captain knew not whether to rejoice or regret. He was sorry for Jack, but glad for himself.

"All's well," he said after a moment. "I'm not asking ya to love him, Lucy. You shan't marry anyboy ye don't love."

"I knew you'd say so, papa, just as I knew you won't object to my marrying the man I do love."

"Eh! Steady there! Do ye mean ya've got somebody in mind?"

Lucy blushed and looked at the floor.

"Who is he?" asked the captain anxiously.

"It's Henry Whitman, papa. He asked me this evening."

"What! That dude?"

"Papa!"

Lucy's eyes blazed as she addressed her father in sharper tones than she had ever used. She looked at him steadily for a moment and then went to her room.

The captain drew a long breath, sank into a chair and fumbled for his pipe. Under its soothing influence he became comforted. Whitman dressed stylishly, but that might not be against him. He could afford his apparent extravagance, for he was clerk in a bank. Everybody spoke well of him too. Poor Jack Darrow!

After a time the captain knocked the ashes from his pipe and, going to Lucy's room, spoke to her through the closed door.

"It's all right, little girl," he said in a shaking voice. "If ye want young Whitman, ye shall have him, and God bless ye both."

Whereupon Lucy arose, went to the door, opened it and threw her arms around her father's neck.

Next day Captain Hanson reported his soundings to Jack and told him plainly that he'd have to sheer off. Perhaps the captain failed to couch his information in terms that suggested his disappointment and kindly feelings.

Jack did not manifest his ill will then, but a little later he devised a way to wreak vengeance on his successful rival. He chanced to learn that Whitman was to take Lucy to a theater on a certain evening. It began to rain that afternoon, a depressing, cheerless drizzle. This was Jack's opportunity, and he arranged his plot with great care. There was nothing he could do himself except supervise operations, but he found three loyal friends to whom he confided the situation and his purpose, and they agreed to look after details.

The curtain rises upon their little drama at exactly 7:15 in the evening. Scene, the front steps of Captain Hanson's house. A cold drizzle continues throughout. The first conspirator, tern, trips up the steps and pulls the bell. After a slight pause the captain and the old captain appears, lighting out into the wet.

"Is Miss Hanson at home?" inquires the conspirator.

"Yes," replies the captain, trying to recognize the visitor. "Will ye leave a—"

"Thanks, no," is the reply as he is called to say that it is a very unfortnite night, cold and wet, and she really ought not to think of going out. Good evening."

And the conspirator trots down the steps, leaving the captain in open mouthed amazement.

Offended, but too surprised to say anything, he slams the door and returns.

Five or six minutes pass, and the conspirator No. 2 comes striding confidently along, mounts the high steps and rings the bell.

"Is Miss Hanson at home?" asks the visitor of the old gentleman.

"Yes, she is," responds the captain. "What do ye want?"

"It's a very dirty night," remarks the conspirator with engaging frankness, "and she really ought not to venture out."

"Big seas and great gales!" roars the captain in a tremendous rage. "Ye get out of here!" And he makes a dash at the self appointed adviser, but the latter is on his guard and skips down the steps unharmed.

Ten minutes are then allowed to lapse before the third conspirator appears on the scene. He, too, trots up the high steps and rings the bell, but, having been prudently forewarned, half way down again and waits. Almost immediately the door swings open and the irate captain bawls:

"Well? How is it?"

"Is Miss"—begins the third conspirator; but the captain waits for no more. He makes a mad rush down the steps, roaring his impressions and as evidently hent upon violence, but the third conspirator, anticipating just this attack, nimbly jumps out of the way and flees. The captain, choking with unappeased rage, returns to his home and the three conspirators and the discarded lover gather under a convenient tree to survey across the street.

They had not long to wait. Henry Whitman, with commendable promptness, pattered up the steps at 7:45 and rang the bell. The captain was in waiting, for the accepted lover's hand had not left the bell pull when the door opened, the captain emerged like an ocean greyhound out of a fog bank and fell upon the caller before he could enter a word. It was hammer and tongs for about a second, and then such was the force of the captain's onslaught that both men rolled down the steps and came to a stop in a heap.

Whitman yelled, the captain bellowed, and Lucy, coming to the door, screamed. The conspirators across the way sneaked off in great delight at their success, and it was well they did so, for had they remained they would have witnessed an anticlimax that would have been unpleasant for them. Lucy, recognizing her lover's voice, promptly went to his relief and caressed his bruised face in a way that Jack Darrow would not have liked to see. The captain, too, though still mystified and hurtly, apologized handsomely, and when later the truth about the conspiracy became known to him he made such amends to Whitman for being all he could to hasten the wedding.—Chicago News.

A Compliment For the Scots.

An old Scotch lady in Detroit is a little bit prouder of her nationality than of anything else to which she can lay claim and never misses a chance to boast of what her countrymen have accomplished. She never tires of telling what they have done, dwelling particularly upon Scott, Burns, Wallace, Bruce and Ian Maclaren.

"Mother," said her son, after she had been discoursing upon her favorite theme the other day, "you honestly seem to think that no good can come except out of Scotland. I fear it's becoming a sort of mania with you. You'll be claiming yet, mother, that Gladstone, Washington, Lincoln, Dewey and all the host of our greatest men in modern times were born in Scotland."

"Weel, I'm nae so sure o' that, Jamie, but there he ane thing I do ken o' the grade men ye name, laddie, a 'most a' of them had intellect much to be Scotchmen."—Detroit Free Press.

The First Smokers.

Unquestionably smoking had already been practiced by the Indians for centuries when Columbus first reached these shores. It was with them to a great extent a form of religious ceremonial. Dr. Daniel G. Brinton, the famous ethnologist, thinks that it had its beginning in the blowing of the pipe of medicine man. Ignorant savages are disposed to regard the human breath as possessing magical properties, and it may be supposed that burning leaves were introduced into the tube for the purpose of making the breathing visible. The Indians smoked many kinds of plants, such as sumac and willow bark and the leaves of the kinnikinic or bearberry, and tobacco doubtless was a discovery resulting from a selection of the fittest.—Science Sittings.

Paine and Washington.

At the close of the American Revolution it became apparent that independence had been achieved equally by the sword of Washington and the pen of Paine, writes Monroe D. Conway in The Arena. Up to January, 1776, Washington had protested his loyalty to the crown. On the 10th of that month Paine's "Common Sense" appeared; on the 31st of that month Washington wrote from Cambridge to Joseph Reed of the "sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning contained in the pamphlet 'Common Sense.'" The die was cast.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?
It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our STERLING GRADES SEEDS
are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. It's mailing free on application. Our seeds are sold by leading merchants.
NORTHRUP, KING & CO., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
N.K.&C. STERLING CLOVERS Seeds
Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act. Each bag bears a tag stating the number of pounds it contains. Red Clover Seed shall represent not less than 98 per cent pure seed, and not more than 2 per cent of foreign seeds, and shall contain not more than 1 per cent of Alsike, Timothy, Rape, Lucerne, Crimson Clover, Alfalfa, Japan Clover, Bur Clover, Dodder, Weed Seeds, Chaff, Dirt, and other impurities. Alsike Seed shall represent not less than 98 per cent pure seed, and not more than 2 per cent of foreign seeds, and shall contain not more than 1 per cent of Red Clover, Timothy, Rape, Lucerne, Crimson Clover, Alfalfa, Japan Clover, Bur Clover, Dodder, Weed Seeds, Chaff, Dirt, and other impurities. Timothy Seed shall represent not less than 98 per cent pure seed, and not more than 2 per cent of foreign seeds, and shall contain not more than 1 per cent of Red Clover, Alsike, Rape, Lucerne, Crimson Clover, Alfalfa, Japan Clover, Bur Clover, Dodder, Weed Seeds, Chaff, Dirt, and other impurities.

A Magazine for a Penny
"GOOD HOUSE-KEEPING"
"Conducted in the Interests of the Higher Life of the Household."—Contains: valuable recipes, timely suggestions, discussions of the Domestic Problems, Hygenic Housekeeping, Original Stories, Choice Bits of Verse, Etc. Sample copy sent on receipt of a postal if you mention the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. Agents wanted.
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

THE Everlasting
Steel Harrow
The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.
FULLY WARRANTED

....Will Last for a Life Time....
The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing effect. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address
JOHNSON & SMITH,
AUSTIN, MINN.

Aug. Miller & Co., TANNERS,
FUR DRESSING AND DYEING A SPECIALTY.
We dress all kinds of Hides for coats, robes, harness and shoes.
We pay good price for black sheep, cow and calf hides suitable for coats and robes.
We make best colors for coats and robes making, and cleaning and repairing of old furs.
FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT
WINCHESTER
Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost-any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.
FREE! Send name on a postal for 156 page illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the
WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CLIFTON JONG
AUTHOR OF
"FORT FRAYNE," "AN ARMY WIFE," "THE SPECIER FAMILY," "NOBLE BLOOD."

Copyright, 1898, by E. Thompson Heath

CHAPTER XV.

The wild excitement and dread of that blustering night lived long in the memory of every family at the post. But for the most unusual though fortunate change in the direction of the blast all officers' row on the northeast front must have been swept away, as on another well remembered night the quarters of the infantry—all of officers' row on the north west side—had melted away in a flood of flame some years before. With the garrison gone there was no fire department, and even had there been one of metropolitan proportions it could have accomplished next to nothing. The big timber bell recently erected by Majors Barry and Stannard was swept away as though in the twinkling of an eye. In less than ten minutes of the alarm a broad sheet of fire swept across the roadway and far out upon the parade, licking up the fence like a row of matches and distancing the hopeful young cottonwoods, just budding along the bordering acequia, while in less than 20 only a mass of glowing embers lay glowing in the fiercely fanning gale, and every vestige of the goods and chattels had gone to feed the flames. The marvel was that the inmates got out at all.

First to discover the fire was Mrs. Barry, aroused by dense and suffocating smoke, and a sound of snapping and crackling in the kitchen. She called Mary, who sprang from her couch, rushed to the kitchen door, and, with an awful shriek, recoiled before the instant rush of the flames into the dining room. Mary's bedding, like hers, and done so, and so had two prominent instrumentalists—the bass drummer and piccolo of the band, who had escorted these domestics to a show in town, and this quartered Privates Brin in his statements. There wasn't a sign of fire, nor were any of his passengers smoking as they passed along back of the row.

But Warner kept up his investigations after his commander had gone and the dog had come, and despite the fact that many soldiers' feet had trampled the ground there, in the dust of the old parade ravaged beyond the rear fence, he found overlying the well known trail of Private Dunn and wagon the unmistakable prints of a horse's fore feet and a buggy's wheels. Even before scraping his weary eyelids with this important information he had dispatched a mounted messenger to town with a note to Captain Cook.

"Majors Stannard and Barry's quarters destroyed by fire about 1:30 a. m.," he wrote. "Fortunately safe—everything else consumed. Bridget O'M. went to town at 7 p. m. and is still absent. Have a single buggy stopped at Barry's rear gate and there turned and drove back. It may have been Bridget's and may not. Better come out quick as possible."

And within the hour Cook was on his way.

Meanwhile the gale had worn itself out, as had the fire, and comparative calm settled down on the garrison. The little doctor looked well nigh used up when he ceased his self appointed task at the hospital at sick call, but he had still much to do and could not give up. Telegrams had been sent to Laramie notifying the two majors of the destruction of their quarters and the safety of the occupants, and in a marvelously short time their answer was received. The two destitution commenders were coming by the first stage, while Atherton and the regiment returned by the usual easy marches. The majors should reach Russell with the morrow's sun. To Barry the loss was far heavier in books and trivial souvenirs and treasures left to his brother campaigner. Stannard and his devoted wife had long made it their practice to live in the simplest way, and years in Arizona had taught them how comfortable they could be with very little in the line of household goods. What they had lost—Mrs. Stannard's gowns and laces being the only very valuable items—was fully covered by insurance, and Barry had taken similar precautions. But his was a lover of books and pictures and little objects of art gathered in their foreign travel, and no wonder sorrow kept him the loss of such treasures. All this was fruit for the breakfast table chat about the post, and of course Mrs. Barry was more pitied than the shock to Mrs. Barry, the almost desperately heroic rescue of Miss Baird and the now painful plight of her rescuer. Nursed by his sister and an attendant from the hospital, Maynard lay under Walters' roof, bandaged, blinded and suffering torment from the burns on his hands and head, yet thinking less of this than of the fact that his enforced confinement came at a time when every faculty he possessed should have been brought to bear for Maynard believed he had found the clew to the burglary and a means of revenging upon the blood that hung over the name of Nathalie Baird, and he begged the doctor and Warner to let him have full words with Mr. Cook as soon as possible.

It was barely 8 when that official drove into the garrison and joined Mr. Webber. A second half an hour later and another buggy arrived and deposited Miss O'Meara and her big bag at the back gate, opening on Mrs. Gregg's quarters, and the kitchen of which she instantly disappeared. The buggy already had rattled around to turn about, but scrambling aboard from up the row assisted the driver's aura, and he reined in his horse and waited. The occupants were Warner and Mr. Cook, who lounged other fire sufferers combined. Mrs. Stannard and Miss Maynard, aroused by her shrieks and Maynard's dash down stairs, had instantly donned their wrappers and slippers and made their way to the open air, where, forgetful of everything else, they had devoted themselves to their next door neighbors. Mrs. Stannard's servants, sleeping in the annex beyond the point where the flames started in the Barrys' quarters, had escaped without trouble, saving most of their belongings. Mary, but for her utter collapse, might have done as well, for the smoke and flame blew through the house and away from the rear of the annex, but, as it was, every stitch she owned other than what she had on went up in smoke, and, what was presumably of much greater consequence, Bridget's fancy was reduced to ashes, and, as a sympathizing sister cook remarked, "She was not even there to see."

Dashed up the stairs and burst into Nathalie's blazing room.

Only then when the fire was all over and had fairly burned itself out and the pale dawn came creeping into the eastern sky Walters, Warner and the doctor were still poking about the ruins, wondering how on earth the thing could have started. There was not a suggestion of a clew. All was safe and snug when Mrs. Stannard visited the kitchen; all was dark and quiet, not for the wind, when the corporal made his rounds; all was dark and quiet, said old Fritz, when he drove by the back gate toward midnight. No, Miss O'Meara—which was garrison for Bridget—had not returned with him. "Mrs. Catherton's folks," she knew, had done so, and so had two prominent instrumentalists—the bass drummer and piccolo of the band, who had escorted these domestics to a show in town, and this quartered Privates Brin in his statements. There wasn't a sign of fire, nor were any of his passengers smoking as they passed along back of the row.

"Then how on the fire was all over and had fairly burned itself out and the pale dawn came creeping into the eastern sky Walters, Warner and the doctor were still poking about the ruins, wondering how on earth the thing could have started. There was not a suggestion of a clew. All was safe and snug when Mrs. Stannard visited the kitchen; all was dark and quiet, not for the wind, when the corporal made his rounds; all was dark and quiet, said old Fritz, when he drove by the back gate toward midnight. No, Miss O'Meara—which was garrison for Bridget—had not returned with him. "Mrs. Catherton's folks," she knew, had done so, and so had two prominent instrumentalists—the bass drummer and piccolo of the band, who had escorted these domestics to a show in town, and this quartered Privates Brin in his statements. There wasn't a sign of fire, nor were any of his passengers smoking as they passed along back of the row.

But Warner kept up his investigations after his commander had gone and the dog had come, and despite the fact that many soldiers' feet had trampled the ground there, in the dust of the old parade ravaged beyond the rear fence, he found overlying the well known trail of Private Dunn and wagon the unmistakable prints of a horse's fore feet and a buggy's wheels. Even before scraping his weary eyelids with this important information he had dispatched a mounted messenger to town with a note to Captain Cook.

"Majors Stannard and Barry's quarters destroyed by fire about 1:30 a. m.," he wrote. "Fortunately safe—everything else consumed. Bridget O'M. went to town at 7 p. m. and is still absent. Have a single buggy stopped at Barry's rear gate and there turned and drove back. It may have been Bridget's and may not. Better come out quick as possible."

And within the hour Cook was on his way.

Meanwhile the gale had worn itself out, as had the fire, and comparative calm settled down on the garrison. The little doctor looked well nigh used up when he ceased his self appointed task at the hospital at sick call, but he had still much to do and could not give up. Telegrams had been sent to Laramie notifying the two majors of the destruction of their quarters and the safety of the occupants, and in a marvelously short time their answer was received. The two destitution commenders were coming by the first stage, while Atherton and the regiment returned by the usual easy marches. The majors should reach Russell with the morrow's sun. To Barry the loss was far heavier in books and trivial souvenirs and treasures left to his brother campaigner. Stannard and his devoted wife had long made it their practice to live in the simplest way, and years in Arizona had taught them how comfortable they could be with very little in the line of household goods. What they had lost—Mrs. Stannard's gowns and laces being the only very valuable items—was fully covered by insurance, and Barry had taken similar precautions. But his was a lover of books and pictures and little objects of art gathered in their foreign travel, and no wonder sorrow kept him the loss of such treasures. All this was fruit for the breakfast table chat about the post, and of course Mrs. Barry was more pitied than the shock to Mrs. Barry, the almost desperately heroic rescue of Miss Baird and the now painful plight of her rescuer. Nursed by his sister and an attendant from the hospital, Maynard lay under Walters' roof, bandaged, blinded and suffering torment from the burns on his hands and head, yet thinking less of this than of the fact that his enforced confinement came at a time when every faculty he possessed should have been brought to bear for Maynard believed he had found the clew to the burglary and a means of revenging upon the blood that hung over the name of Nathalie Baird, and he begged the doctor and Warner to let him have full words with Mr. Cook as soon as possible.

It was barely 8 when that official drove into the garrison and joined Mr. Webber. A second half an hour later and another buggy arrived and deposited Miss O'Meara and her big bag at the back gate, opening on Mrs. Gregg's quarters, and the kitchen of which she instantly disappeared. The buggy already had rattled around to turn about, but scrambling aboard from up the row assisted the driver's aura, and he reined in his horse and waited. The occupants were Warner and Mr. Cook, who lounged from the rear gate opening on the still smoking ruins and came running down to the much surprised occupant of the "rig." Cook's face took on a shade of disappointment at sight of him.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Jimmy?" he said in almost aggrieved tone, for he recognized in the man an employee at the very stable at which he hired his own "outfit." "What brings you here so early?"

"Orders," said Jimmy briefly, he being a discharged soldier. "Boss told me to hitch up Billy and drive that lady out to the fort. She said there'd been a fire and she was afraid her property was destroyed."

"Well, how'd she know? The paper has no mention of it."

"I dunno. First I heard of it was what she told."

"Well, why didn't you drive on up to where the fire was then?"

"She told me where to stop; said she wanted to see some friends first thing. She settled with the boss for the rig, so I had nothing to say. Boss said to get back quick as I could. What was the fire?"

"Oh, a couple of houses—upper end of the row! Ever you just hold on where you are or drive down and hitch at the store. I'll be responsible to the proprietor. I may want your buggy—and, Jimmy, no talk." In so saying Mr. Cook was impressive. Then he turned to Warner, who had stood a silent listener. "Where'd she go to?"

"Into Mrs. Gregg's, I fancy. This is Gregg's house in here. She'll want to see Mrs. Barry, I suppose, first thing."

But in this remark Mr. Cook surely replied by the double question, "Who's her friend in here and what time does that big stage go in?" He referred to an old red stagecoach that had somehow become the property of the United States for which the quartermaster at Fort Russell was accountable," and which, behind a spanking four horse team, was driven in those days to town every morning with the mail and market baskets and orders of the various messholds of the garrison. In addition it carried such enlisted men or domestics as might have permission to go to town in the morning.

"Don't know who her friend is—the cook probably. As for the stage, that goes away about 10 or half past 10," said Warner. "Through the—"

"Well, I want to know if Miss O'Meara attempts to go with it." And Mr. Cook spoke as though the name of the lady was sweet to his tongue. "Now, let's go back to the shed."

The shed referred to was the rear portion of the annex, which, thanks partially to the efforts of the soldiers in one direction, but mainly to those of the wind in another, still stood, charred, blackened, but only partially consumed. The fire seemed to have broken out in the kitchen, possibly about the stove. The interior of this timber box was a mass of flame when Mary opened the dining room door, and a way for the flames to flash in and lay hold of everything inflammable there. Already they seemed to have eaten their way through the roof to the eaves of the main building and had attacked the projecting "dormer" of Natalie's room. Thus, driven by the fury of the gale, they had poured through the house, destroying all before them, but leaving this main block very much behind. Only the inner end of the rear wing, adjoined the kitchen, had been burned, but against that partition hung the wardrobes of the two domiciles. Under the various outbuildings stood their boxes—Mary's a modest, old fashioned little trunk, Bridget's a brace of saratogas—and of these was left little beyond charred and water soaked fragments.

And yet so valuable did Mr. Cook consider these relics that one of the first things he did was to order that a sentry be posted there with orders to permit no one to disturb anything about what was left of the premises, and it was done forthwith.

Meanwhile Mrs. Barry, kind soul, though very weary and distressed, had been informed by Mrs. Ray that Bridget was in the kitchen and begging to be allowed to see her mistress. And it wasn't to weep over her own losses that she came, but to deplore the dreadful danger and shock to Mrs. Barry, mum, and Miss Baird, too, mum," had been expressed. All these ladies were greatly impressed with Miss O'Meara's expressions of sorrow and sympathy. She even seemed to think of her own losses," said Mrs. Ray later.

"She was sure she had packed the first and taken every precaution before starting for town," added Nathalie.

"She could go down on her knees to Mr. Maynard," smiled Mrs. Barry, "for the brave, big, splendid young man that he is, had wasn't it God's mercy he was there? And was he so awfully harmed as they said in town?"

At this recital Nathalie smiled not at all. She listened with trembling hands and averted face. Then the news had got to town, said Mrs. Ray after the faithful cook had been led away for a mouthful of breakfast in the kitchen. Why, surely, yes! Mrs. Ray forgot the telegraph office at the post and the fact that the place of the cook's friend had been seen from Cheyenne and that those and truck companies from the great quartermaster's depot at Cantonment Carlin, half way to the town, had started with their heavy apparatus, only to see the flames die away before they had made the first half mile over the gale swept prairie.

And then by 10 o'clock the ladies of the post began flocking to the Rays' to inquire after Mrs. Barry, and of course Miss Baird could not be omitted long, and after the first few clangs on the bell had made her patient start through nervousness Mrs. Ray had posted a lieutenant on the door. "Please do not ring, Mrs. Barry and Miss Baird are doing very well and trying to sleep."

The little doctor was starting to get Maynard up, a chore, but with so much pain, Maynard protested, and so he waited. He insisted upon seeing Cook immediately on Warner's arrival, and at last they were sent for, came, Miss Maynard retired below stairs with jealous pangs gnawing at her heart, and there was a five minutes conference, from which Warner issued all of a sudden, with visible excitement in his face. Cook following, imperturbable as usual, and both went directly back to the ruins, and there, re-enforced by two ordnanced associates from kitchens down the row, was Bridget calmly pleading with the sentry for permission to drag out what was left of one of her trunks, and she seemed desperately in earnest, so much so that not until Cook and Warner were actually at the spot did she discover their coming. Then she suddenly ceased and would have dropped away, but Cook most politely bade her remain.

"It's all right that this lady should be allowed to touch her own property, Mr. Warner," said he. "What I asked of the sentry was that no one else should disturb her things. Pray don't attempt to pull that box out yourself, Miss—I mean Miss O'Meara. You'll ruin your fine gloves. Let some of the men, or let me. I'm used to rough work and have to dirty my hands sometimes."

He laid firm hold of the strap handle nearest him, but carefully inspected the bottom of the trunk to assure himself that the bottom and the iron bands were sound. But when he pulled, though ever so gently, the sides seemed ready to come away.

"If I'm no use, Miss O'Meara," he said. "What you should have done was to take all your valuables when you drove out last night. You had plenty of room in the buggy for the trays of both trunks by the bottom, and you only took the one. It's too bad."

The woman stood staring at him with a look of fear in her eyes, and her face turned sickly gray. The two with her gazed first at her, then in stupefaction at the detective.

"What does the man mean?" asked of them, suddenly finding voice. "Sure you heard us you'd never come back last night, Bridget." It was Mrs. Gregg's Kate who spoke, the widow of an old trooper who had served and died in the regiment and left her as a legacy to his company family. "Sure, Mr. Warner, the gentleman's joking?"

"Ask Miss O'Meara," said Mr. Cook blandly.

"Joking?" she stammered. "It's lying he's mouthed lying! Sure I never came near the post till this blessed day."

"The gale blew away your memory with some of your hair, Miss O'Meara," said Cook blandly as ever, producing from the trunk a pair of long, curled switches, and a mass of hair pins that oddly resembled those which tossed about her brow. "Let me refresh it by clinging to mind a portion of your conversation with Michael after you found Mary wasn't in your room and you generously guessed that she was asleep on the couch in Mrs. Barry's. Therefore you thought it best when you should n't come and carry these things out for her. Oh, it was excellently planned, Bridget and Michael—Mike—I'll not answer this, it's said the two horse rig we'd 's' hitched with us, Mike. It's them that drove the best and that ever rolled away from this post.'"

Bridget vainly pleading with the sentry.

But there was no need to say more. Bridget O'Meara, with horror in her eyes, was staring into his face, gasping, clutching at her throat, and then blindly reaching for support, fell—fainted, as

Well dressed men and women wear
Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes
For Style Comfort and wear the lead

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

One Way to Kill a Snake

Just how this beautiful young women killed the venomous reptile will form an interesting description in John Mackie's charming story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never. It is full of exciting incident and at the same time supplies a great deal of information about the romantic life of the adventurous people who sought fortunes in tropical Australia. John Mackie wrote "The Devil's Playground" and "Sunset Trails," both interesting stories. ...ole is another.

"They That Sit in Darkness" will appear in instalments in this paper.

Look Out for the First Chapters

The Sun's Motion.

An astronomical fact now as formerly causing no little perplexity to some is that the sun's motion is absolutely and indispensably in extremely quick—does not change the relative position of the solar system to the fixed stars and the constellations more than it actually does, and there are some who on this account are inclined to doubt the actual motion of the sun in space.

The investigations of astronomers have nevertheless established one thing as certain—namely, that the sun moves through space at a great speed—estimated by some scientists at 16 miles a second—carrying all the planets, satellites and other comical bodies along with it, but this motion of the vast luminary, while affecting, of course, the real motion of the planets in space, does not in even the slightest degree affect the relative motion of sun and planets.

Even under the supposition of so great a rate as 16 miles in one second, this relative position of the sun to the fixed stars would, astronomers declare, be hardly perceptible in a century, on account of the almost inconceivable distance of the latter—the conclusion being, therefore, that many thousands of years must pass before the sun's proper motion in space can change the configuration of the star groups.

The Machete.

As a defensive weapon the value of the machete is small. Even its offensive effect depends less on the weapon itself than on the nerve and temperament of the man who wields it. The machete is a peculiar training to the muscles of the wrist and arm of the operator. The characteristic of this skill is that whenever a quarrel occurs between two "gaujiros" or "monetros" they settle the matter with their machetes at once regularly and tenaciously as two gamecocks, and generally both parties are seriously injured for life or are killed on the spot.

Owing to this fact and to the natural kindly disposition of the Cuban peasants, they are not a quarrelsome people and respect everybody, to be equally respected. With the machete a few curious accessories are used. The principal one is a thin strip of leather closely tied to the right wrist, a small round piece of grinding stone to sharpen the edge of the tool, and whenever the machete is employed to cut down the thorny heath of tropical vegetation a small branch of peculiar shape called the "garabato," is used to hold the heath and do rapid work without being injured by thorns.—Island of Cuba Magazine.

The Resemblance.

He was the son of a wooley citizen and had just returned from college. His father was a brusque, matter of fact person, who had no liking for anything pronounced, and he noticed with sorrow that his son returned with the latest thing in clothes and various other insignia of fashion. The old gentleman surveyed him critically when he appeared in his office and then blurted out:

"Young man, you look like an idiot!"

Just at that moment, and before the young man had time to make a fitting reply, a friend entered.

"Why, hello, Billy! Have you returned?" he asked. "Dear me, how much you resemble your father!"

"Sh-h-h han been telling me," replied Billy.

And from that day to this the old gentleman has had no fault to find with his son.

On Manliness.

"Everybody seemed to have been mentioned for the office except you," observed the sympathizing friend.

"Yes," replied the disappointed politician. "My name is Pante."

"Then, of course," soothingly replied the other, "you might expect to be voicing the administration."

And silence like a poultice fell.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are afflicted with consumption you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political power of the highest, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America those parts of work in serious political reviews always 'have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium. — From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office and we can obtain patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send us a model, drawing or photo., with descrip... We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, "C. A. SNOW & CO., Opp. Patent Office, Washington, D. C." Refer to your postmaster, to the Supt. of Money Order Div., to officials of the U. S. Courts, or to our clients in your own State or County. For special notice and full directions, address C. A. SNOW & CO., Opp. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county.

FALL OF MALINTA

AMERICAN TROOPS UNDER GENERAL WHEATON

Drive the Insurgents Out—Latter's Force Inferior in Number but Their Position Was Very Strong—Our Losses Quite Heavy—Practically Two Hundred Killed and Wounded During the Engagement. Colonel Egbert of the Twenty-second Infantry Included in the List.

MANILA, March 27.—The United States troops under Brigadier General Lloyd Wheaton captured the town of Malinta, beyond the Tuliban river, after a sharp fight. Colonel Harry C. Egbert of the Twenty-second infantry was killed. Prince Leowenstein, formerly aide-de-camp on the staff of Brigadier General Miller at Iloilo, somehow got in front of the firing line and was shot in the side, dying almost instantly.

The American casualties were much lighter than those of Saturday, the total loss thus far reached since the engagement commenced being 45 killed and 146 wounded.

General Wheaton entered Malinta, which is a small village of hute, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Commands Shelling Malabon.

The United States gunboat Helena and other gunboats have been shelling Malabon, about a mile northwest of Caloocan, for several hours.

The insurgents made a fierce resistance to the American advance up the railway at Malinta.

Evidently anticipating an attack 1,000 insurgents vacated Malabon during the night and attempted to burn the town. General Wheaton's brigade composed of the Second Oregon regiment and the Twenty-second and Twenty-third infantry, stretched out along the railroad from Caloocan to the Tuliban river, was powerless to prevent the withdrawal on account of the natural obstacles. A column of smoke showed the enemy's intentions, and there were other columns at various points and then flames. There were mills and houses burned at various points.

Rebels Driven Inland.

Many of the rebels sought refuge in the suburbs of Navotas and Casig, or were driven inland by the shells of the Helena, Callao, Ningobapan and Laguna de Bay.

In the meantime General Wheaton's brigade held the road to the river, but was unable to either repair the bridge, which had been destroyed by the enemy, or to advance, owing to the opposition and the hills on the other side.

The calculations of both General Hall and General H. G. Otis, whose brigades constituted the Malinta-Macarthur's division, were much interfered with by the character of the country in front of both, and the enemy was able to take advantage of this, so that the operations against Novaliches and Polo were delayed, though the right wing of the division swung ont, sweeping the enemy in a northwesterly direction.

WAS A GALLANT ATTACK.

Work of South Dakotans Praised by General Otis.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The following dispatch has been received from General Otis by the war department:

"Severe fighting yesterday afternoon beyond Marilao. Brilliant charge by South Dakota, led by Frost against famed troops of Aguinaldo, brought from Malolos. Repulsed enemy with slaughter. Adjutant Lien and Lieutenante Adams and Morrison, and four enlisted men of the regiment killed. Lieutenant McClelland and 22 enlisted wounded. Losses yesterday mostly confined to this regiment."

Partial destruction of railroads, not repaired, impedes MacArthur's progress. Supply railway trains have now reached Marilao, and MacArthur is pushing on. Our small gunboats are in Bulacon river, where great excention was done yesterday. They will relieve pressure on MacArthur's front materially. Troops in excellent condition and spirits: Proclamation signed Luna, general-in-chief insurgent forces, directs that all lowns abandoned be burned. In consequence thereof, mnch country north in flames."

AGUINALDO IN COMMAND.

General Otis Says the Rebel Leader Is at the Head of His Men.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The following dispatch was received from General Otis, dated Monday evening:

"MacArthur holds Marilao. Severe fighting today and our casualties about forty. The insurgents have destroyed bridges, which impede progress of troops and artillery. Our troops met the concentrated insurgent force on northern line, commanded by Aguinaldo in person, and drove with considerable slaughter. They left nearly 100 dead on the field, and many prisoners and small arms were captured. The column will press on in the morning."

DEFEATED AT MARILOA.

MacArthur's Division Again Victorious Over the Filipinos.

MANILA, March 28.—7:40 p. m.—A thousand Filipinos, composing the rear guard of the rebel army, which is reforming on Malolos, Aguinaldo's headquarters, made a stand today in some strong entrenchments about Marilao, across the Marilao river. In the engagement six Americans were killed, including three officers, and forty were wounded.

OUR LOSS SINCE FEB. 4.

Thousand Americans Killed and Wounded Fighting Filipinos.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—A list prepared in the office of the adjutant general shows the casualties in Manila since Feb. 4 to be 197 killed and 864 wounded.

THE CASUALTIES.

Official List of Killed and Wounded Given Out.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The following list of casualties has just been given ont at the war departmegt:

The Killed.

TWENTIETH KANSAS — Company E, Private H. S. Plumer, Curran C. Craig; M, A. S. Anabel.

THIRD ARTILLERY—Battery H, Privates William Patton, James O'Neill, Sergeant Fogarthy; G, Privates Herbert Ross; K, Thompson, Clarence Watts.

SECOND OREGON—Company B, Privates H. B. Adams; D, William W. Cook; L, Charles Herbert, Guy Millard.

FIRST NEBRASKA—Company L, Private Joseph Bickman; G, Percy Lockhart, Steve Stevens; M, William Mitschke.

THIRD INFANTRY—Company M, Private Morrill, Corporal Cumming.

TENTH PENNSYLVANIA—Private Alis Nowall.

FIRST NEBRASKA—Company A, Sergeant Walter Poor.

FIRST COLORADO—Company E, Captain John Hart a deserter.

TWENTY-SECOND INFANTRY — Colonel H. C. Egbert.

The Wounded.

TENTH PENNSYLVANIA—One corporal, thirteen privates.

THIRD INFANTRY—Two corporals, six privates.

SEVENTH INFANTRY—Captain Clay. HOSPITAL CORPS—Three privates.

FOURTH INFANTRY—Two privates.

TWENTY-SECOND INFANTRY—One lieutenant, one sergeant, twelve privates.

TWENTIETH KANSAS—One captain, one corporal, nine privates.

FIRST NEBRASKA — Two captains, twelve privates.

SECOND OREGON—One lieutenant, one sergeant, five corporals, thirty-one privates.

THIRD ARTILLERY—One lieutenant, three sergeants, two corporals, twenty privates.

FOURTH CAVALRY—Two sergeants, seven privates.

FIRST WASHINGTON—One captain, one sergeant, five privates.

UTAH ARTILLERY—One corporal, one private.

FIRST COLORADO—Four privates.

FIRST MONTANA—Major F. J. Adams, surgeon; Private Edward Morrisey.

FIRST NORTH DAKOTA—Company H, Private Harry W. Donovan.

FIRST SOUTH DAKOTA—Company C, Private George Benson, Artificer Arno Hughes; I, Private Fred Barbert; L, Private Meyers Allison, Fred Lorenzen; F, Eyren Hastings; G, Private Walter E. Brown.

THIRTEENTH MINNESOTA — Company A, Private Andrew Mortenson; I, Fred Eckman, Leonard Porter, Sergeant Edward Meiness; K, Privates John T. Wheeler, James C. McGee, Corporal John Connelly; L, Privates Harry M. Glazier, Avery Grinnell; M, Paulness Hahn; E, Private Jack Hamilton; F, Private Robert Geis.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—General Otis has forwarded to Adjutant General Corbin the following casualty list for March 27.

Killed:

FIRST SOUTH DAKOTA—First Lieutenant and Adjutant Jonas H. Lien; Company H, First Lieutenant Frank Adams; E, Second Lieutenant Sidney Morrison; D, Private James Nelson, Matthew Ryan; E, Harry Keogh, Lewis Chase, Peter Ryan, Frank A. Shuster.

TWENTIETH KANSAS—Company G, Corporal Alva Shear and Privates Carrol, Williams I. William Kinney.

TENTH PENNSYLVANIA—Company H, Private J. O. Kline.

Wounded.

FIRST SOUTH DAKOTA—Company I, First Lieutenant Paul D. McClelland; C, Sergeant Sidney C. Cordis, Private George A. Moore; D, Ray Washburn, Isaac Johnson, First Sergeant Ernest Madden; E, Sergeant Arthur A. Northrup, Corporal Frank E. Wheeler, Private Julius Bruns, William G. Fankboy; I, Warren Crosier; F, Benjamin Strolle, Peter J. Tierney, Guy P. Squires; G, Corporal Alexander Hardy; I, William Amon, Privates Homer Stockmeyer, Will May; K, Ray S. Nichols; L, A. Meyers, Fred Brangers; M, Matt Schneebel, Charles H. Wackeon, First Sergeant Charles H. Preacher, Musician David Elmo.

FIRST MONTANA—Company A, Private Harry Alger; B, J. O. Bolkey; F, Joseph Lorenz; G, William York; H, Frank Gibson; I, Addison Seymonr; A, K. Lundseenan, John Tierney.

TENTH PENNSYLVANIA—Two privates.

FIRST NEBRASKA—Captain and fourteen privates.

THIRD ARTILLERY—Eleven privates.

PUSHING ON TO MALOLOS

That City the Objective Point of the Americans.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The insurgent capital of Malolos is now the point to which attention in all official quarters is directed. The American advance line is now beyond Marilao and up to the large town of Bulacan. The exact distance to Maloloe is uncertain, owing to the lack of information as to just where the American troops are resting, but at most the distance cannot be more than 10 or 15 miles on a direct line along the railway. At the rate of progress made in the last two days the next 24 hours should bring the American force well up to the insurgent capital, if, indeed, the assault upon the place is not begun by that time.

Progress May Be Slow.

The officials are disposed to allow more time, however, considering the natural obstacles of unfordable rivers and burned bridges, together with the successive lines of rebel intrenchments. And, moreover, as at Santiago, it is not doubted that the intrenchments will become more formidable as the city itself is approached. Leading war department officials referred to the desperation with which the insurgents were fighting. It was taken as an indication that they had staked everything on the outcome of this fight, and, losing it, that they would submit rather than prolong a hopeless struggle.

MONEY FOR VOTES

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATORS ADMIT BEING APPROACHED.

Several Testify to Offers of Various Sums To Vote For Mr. Quay—His Supporters Confer and Decide to Stand by the Senator Until the End of the Contest—No Election Results They Will Make a Fight Two Years Hence.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 29.—The legislative committees investigating the charges of alleged bribery in connection with the consideration by the house of the McCarrell jury bill and the balloting for United States senator held sessions during the afternoon and evening and some interesting testimony was presented.

Several of the members admitted that offers had been tendered them for their votes. Representative Kendall of Somerset testified that a resident of Bedford county, not a member of the legislature, had told him that if he could see his way clear to vote for Quay for United States senator he would receive $3,000. He declined to name the man.

More of the Same Kind.

Representative Lambert of Philadelphia testified that a man named Frank Jones of Philadelphia told him that if he would vote for Quay he (Lambert) could have the chief clerkship of the mint or the customhouse. Representative Brown of Union swore that a man had offered him $3,000 to remain away on the day of the first joint ballot for United States senator. When he refused the offer was raised and he was told that if he would go into the convention and vote for Quay the price would "be altogether different." All these offers were refused. Mr. Brown declined to give the name of the man to the committee. The committee insisted and then finally said that the person who made him the offers was ex-Congressman Monroe H. Kulp of Shamokin.

QUAY'S FRIENDS FIRM.

They Decide to Stand by the Senator Until the End.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 29.—An informal conference of friends of Senator Quay was held at the executive mansion to discuss the senatorial situation. Senator Quay was present. It was decided that Mr. Quay would remain a candidate for United States senator and if there is no election by the present legislature to submit the question to the people at the election for members of the legislature two years hence.

SATURDAY'S FIGHTING.

Third Artillery and Oregon Regiment Lose Heavily.

MANILA, March 27.—At 6 a. m. an advance was begun all along the lines from San Juan de Monte to Caloocan. The entire division under General MacArthur was engaged in the movement, the brigades being commanded by Generals Harrison G. Otis, Hale, Hall and Wheaton.

The Nebraska and Colorado volunteer regiments encountered the first strong resistance. This was at San Francisco del Monte and in the surrounding trenches. The cavalry outflanked the enemy, who broke and ran, suffering a severe loss. But the enemy made a stubborn stand in the woods north of the Lalomac church.

Enemy Kept Up a Steady Fire.

The Twentieth Kansas and Tenth Pennsylvania regiments, with the Montana volunteers on the left, protected by the Utah battery, advanced over the open rice fields. The enemy was strongly entrenched in the woods, kept up a steady fire until the Americans were in close quarters. Then the rebels fled through the woods under a raging fire. General Hale's brigade was soon followed by General Harrison G. Otis' brigade. The insurgents opened fire on our right. Our advance was over open ground for a mile and a half. The Third artillery, at the apex on which the line was to turn, got the hardest fighting. It was in a perfect hail during the mile and a half, and lost 9 per cent of its men.

Crossed the River Under Fire.

The Third artillery crossed the river an hour and a half before any of the other troops. Later the Kansas volunteers came up on our left and crossed the river under fire. They lost eight men. They found 27 dead Filipinos on the bank. The insurgents stopped firing when our doctors went forward to get the Filipino wounded.

On the left, toward the sea, Wheaton's brigade pounded its way through the first series of insurgent trenches. The Oregon regiment lost at least 40 men. It was a great fight.

The insurgents fought well. Our loss was the greatest in the campaign in proportion to the number of troops engaged.

BOCAVE CAPTURED.

Americans Take Another Town in Their Advance on the Filipino Capital.

NEW YORK, March 29.—A dispatch to The Journal dated Manila, Wednesday, says:

Bocave has been taken by our troops. The railroad bridge is uninjured. General MacArthur is now within eight miles of Malolos.

The monitor Monadnock shelled Los Pinas, south of Manila, Tuesday noon.

REMOVED FROM MALOLOS.

Filipino Insurgent Capital Now at San Fernando.

NEW YORK, March 29.—A dispatch to The Herald from Manila says the insurgent capital has been moved from Malolos to San Fernando.

WHOLLY UNFIT FOR USE

Colonel Roosevelt's Opinion of the Canned Roast Beef.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Governor Roosevelt was before the court of inquiry for half an hour and gave testimony in regard to the meat issued to the troops as travel rations. In his testimony the governor substantially confirmed the canned roast beef as an "unfit ration."

"What did the meat look like?" asked Colonel Davis.

"When the cans were opened, there was a covering of slime. It was unattractive. The meat was stringy and it did not agree with the men who ate it."

"Could you not eat it when served with onions or potatoes?"

"I think at that, time I could have eaten my hat if I could have had onions and potatoes. The men would have eaten anything with fresh vegetables. They stewed the meat with mangoes and ate it. Some of the men seemed to eat the meat without difficulty or distress, but it was not suitable for sick or half sick men."

Repeated His Story.

Governor Roosevelt told at length of his attempt to get supplies in Cuba. He repeated the statement he made to the army investigation commission as to his attempt to organize a transportation train to bring supplies to his men from Sibonoy.

"When did you begin receiving refrigerator beef?" asked Colonel Davis.

"About July 27, when ashore about a month."

"Were the supplies regular?"

"Some times. We received them about noon."

"What was their condition when you received them?"

"Their condition as a rule was good. The outside sometimes was bad, but it seemed awfully good to me."

"What was the proportion that was bad?"

"I can't exactly say, but I doubt if there were more than two or three issues when the larger portion were bad."

"Did you attribute their ill health to the rations?" asked Colonel Davis.

"To a certain extent, I suppose, yes. When we left Cuba less than 20 per cent of the brigade was fit for active service."

"Will you tell us," asked Major Lee, "what in your opinion is the value of the canned roast beef issued at Cuba and elsewhere, as an army ration?"

"I wish to say unhesitatingly that it was entirely unfit and unwholesome for troops. My experience proves beyond a shadow of doubt or question, that at its best the canned roast beef was unpalatable, and at its worst, it was uneatable and unwholesome."

TOTAL DEAD THIRTY-TWO.

Three More Bodies Found in the Ruins of the Windsor Hotel.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The fragments of three bodies were found in the Windsor hotel ruins during the day and taken to the morgue. It is impossible to give a description of the bodies, each box containing merely a mixture of burned bones, blackened and shriveled flesh and dirt.

The total of dead is now 32, the identified numbering 11 and the unknown dead 21. The list of missing is still very large, numbering about 40, but many of the injured have recovered and have been discharged from the hospitals.

A Hank of Hair.

Chickens are sold by the piece in Buenos Ayres. They are dressed before being offered for sale, the only feathers left upon them being those of the tail.

The same custom prevails in China; no te dogs, however, the only hair to be always left on the end of the tail, even when the animal is cooked. But this is because the Chinese consider the flesh of black dogs the best and most delicate to put a brave spirit into the body of the eater.

Gloves of chicken skin were in vogue in the early part of the seventeenth century. They were used at night to give the hand whiteness and delicacy.

We have completed arrangements for the exclusive serial rights for this section of a first class story entitled

They That Sit in Darkness

BY JOHN MACKIE

Author of "The Devil's Playground" and "Sinners Twain."

It is an exciting tale of life on the Australian plains. It is interesting from start to finish because the lives of the characters are filled with adventures of many sorts, but the most engaging of which are dangerous and deadly conflicts with the natives.

The first chapters will be printed soon.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

OSMOND Q. FISKE, President. WM. ANGLIM, Vice-President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Anglim, J. R. Robinson, E. M. Wolsh, L. Fontaine, J. P. Foote, W. B. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.
Special Attention to Collections, County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON.....PRESIDENT. H. STEENERSON.....VICE PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS.....2d VICE PRESIDENT. A. L. ELLINGTON.....CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 36 inch Minneapolis separator, two sets Huwe's 60 bushel warehouse scales, one Kansas city hay press, ten harvesters and self binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, each piece being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap to responsible purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

FARM LOANS

NO DELAY. NO BONUS.

DO YOU Want to Renew, Want a new loan? Without Delay?

Call at the First National Bank of Crookston and see

J. W. WHEELER.

Cleveland Hotel,

Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor
Main and Fourth Sts.

This popular hotel is again re-opened to the public under new management. The new proprietor will spare no pains nor expense in the effort to provide for the comfort of his guests. His effort will be to keep up the reputation its portis have won, and he invites the farmers to still make up the Cleveland their headquarters when in the city.

PRINTING

Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

CHRISTIANSON & STRANDER,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance.

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

CHOICE FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchaser.

Office o Robert Street CROOKSTON, MINN

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY APRIL 6, 1899 NO. 52

ANIMAL INDUSTRY.

J. J. Hill one of the Best to Encourage Dairying in This Section.

FUTURE PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

Crookston Experiment Farm of importance as Affecting Dairy Interests.

The following paper on "Dairying in Northwestern Minnesota" was read by E. D. Childs at the last meeting of the State Agricultural Society:

My subject falls naturally under three heads; first, Present Conditions; second, Future Possibilities; third, Best Ways and Means of Developing These Possibilities.

Present Conditions:—Either as regards the number of dairy animals raised, creameries in operation, or output of products, this region is much below the southwestern portion of our state. In order rightly to understand why this is so, we must for a moment consider the circumstances which have controlled in developing the one section and retarding the other.

First among these agencies is our river system. Before the days of railway supremacy, in fact before the first rail was laid on Minnesota soil, the great tide of immigration, flowing westward found its most ready means of transportation in the river packets. These, ascending the Mississippi to St. Paul, thence to Minnesota and its tributaries, carried settlers and settlements to the southeast and central portions of our state; while yet the buffalo roved in countless herds upon the northern prairie.

The second agency was the railway lines, which radiating from the large eastern centers, first penetrated that portion of the state lying south of St. Paul, their rapid development being fostered by the gift of vast tracts of swamp lying in the northern portion of the state, a gift, which not only developed the settlement of the southern portion, but correspondingly retarded growth in the north.

Again, while the tide of emigration in the days of our territorial existence and early years of Statehood was deep and wide, yet the field to be occupied was so vast and in comparison, the people so few, that it was not until the early seventies, that, with the beginning of the Northern Pacific, and the old St. Paul & Pacific railway, settlement in the northwestern quarter began.

The first settlers who came into a new country where they have only the soil beneath their feet, the blue sky above their heads, and perhaps the forest and the stream at hand, must expect many years of hard and unceasing toil before they can enjoy more than the most primitive of surroundings. Houses and barns must be built, fields cleared and broken, fences constructed, wells dug and the thousand and one details, which are necessities to a comfortable life on the farm, worked out. It naturally follows, that in these pioneer years, the crops selected should be those best adapted to the virgin soil, most easily and quickly raised and disposed of, and which will bring the largest returns in ready money.

Thus it came about that the attention of the farmers of northwestern Minnesota was not generally attracted toward the question of animal husbandry until 1881. In that year Pres. J. J. Hill, of the then St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railway, with that sagacious foresight which has made him the greatest railway manager the northwest has ever seen, and with a wise liberality, which has never received the recognition it deserved from those benefitted, at his own expense imported a large number of full blooded sires from the noted herds of the old world. These he transported to the regions along the line of his road and presented, one in a community, to farmers on whose integrity he could rely to care for the conditions of the gift. These conditions were such that every farmer, who wished, could have the use of the animal for the improvement of his herd by the payment of a small fee, sufficient to pay for the keeping of the animal. The gift was widely advertized by the public press throughout the whole state, sometimes in words of wise commendation, but nearly as often in works of derision and ridicule.

These animals, the very highest types of their kind, were nearly of the beef breeds, and so far as the individual animals were concerned, not profitable to place at the head of an exclusively dairy herd, but they were instrumental in starting many good herds of their own types, and improving many others.

The direct results of this unprecedented generosity were, small as compared with the indirect. The publicity given to the transaction by the press, whether of ridicule or commendation, drew public attention to the urgent need of a wiser and less exhaustive system of agriculture, with animal husbandry as one of its leading features. From the day of this awaking dates the birth of the dairy industry in this section. True, its growth has been slow, for in the intervening years herds must be bred, shelter provided, suitable forage crops selected and grown, a market for the product provided, and above all else, a knowledge upon dairy subjects disseminated. Much of all this has so far been done, but much remains to be done.

Second, In regard to future possibilities much might be said. The first requisite to successful dairying is intelligent, industrious citizenship—men and women who can and do read along the line of their life work, and who are ready, and willing to work out with pales-taking care the details of their business. Where can a more intelligent body of farmers, taken as a whole, be found than among the young, vigorous and enterprising men and women who have taken their fortunes in their hands and gone out from the ancestral homes, often crossing oceans and continents to find and enjoy the blessings of our new Northwest?

Then, as scarcely less important, comes the need of dairy animals of the right type. These are being bred and imported as fast as the demands and the financial condition of the country permit.

Again, shelter from our vigorous winters must be provided; but here nature has been kind, for the pine and hard wood forest reaches to our very doors, giving an abundance of cheap lumber for buildings. Food and water must also be at hand. Where can a wider variety of nutritious native grasses be found; where a richer soil or a kinder climate for raising the most approved varities of forage plants than here? The purest water lie in richest abundance, even in the heart of the Red River Valley, where it was once supposed only alkaline waters could be obtained. Within a few years ago sent a sample of artesian water from his farm at Wolseon to the Illinois State University for analysis, and the report returned showed it to be 98 36-100 per cent. pure water.

Again, the soils of Northwestern Minnesota known, as the Red River Valley, it is a perfectly safe and conservative statement to say that onun average every 80 acres is capable of supporting a family of five persons in comfort; and giving each one of the boys a team, and encouragement given to enter more largely into experiments in animal husbandry. The all important lesson to teach the farmers of this section is not the raising of small grains, but of animal husbandry, and to reduce the number of acres cultivated to the individual capacity for profitable tillage.

The further development of our market is a matter which lies largely with the dairymen and creameries themselves, depending much upon the quality of their own product and their skill and activity in advertising it, but much assistance might be given it by a reduction of freight, and express rates, especially local rates, to enable them to more successfully compete for trade in the mining and lumber sections.

Again effort should be unremitting to drive all fraudulent butter and butter compounds from the market.

Leech Lake Agency Located.

The Indian commissioner at Washington approved the report of Captain Mercer us to the location of agency headquarters at the new Leech Lake agency. The agent recommended a point directly across the bay from the old headquarters, which is hot far from Walker, Minn. A strong fight was made for the location of the agency at Bena, but the Indian commissioner's approval of the agent's selection will no doubt be indorsed by Secretary Hitchcock.

The commissioner also approved Captain Clapp's selection for the site of the new school building at Leech Lake. The building will be built on what is known as the school reserve, which was set a side for that purpose when the lands were allotted. It is about four miles from Walker. The plans for the structure are nearing completion.

CLEAN SEED WHEAT

Prof. Hays Tells How Best to Get Rid of Smut That is in Wheat

BEST SEED OF NEIGHBORHOOD.

Should be Planted Rather Than Seed From Abroad—Formula for Solution in Which to Wash Wheat.

Prof. W. M. Hays, of the State Agricultural school, has given out the following statement as to the best method of securing seed wheat that has not been infected by smut:

It is not usually wise to discard a variety of life, or blue stem wheat that is doing well in a county, a neighborhood or on a certain farm, and, at considerable expense, get seed of unknown pedigree from some remote state or territory. We have all the good varieties on this side of the line that they have in the Canadian Northwest, and we have no more reason for throwing away varieties that have proved good than Henry F. Brown would have for discarding his herd of fine Shorthorns because they might become lousy.

Farmers should, as a rule, sow wheat from their own farms—that which was raised on their best and cleanest fields. If they do not have fields or blue stem on their own farms, they should seek from neighbors, or at farthest, from farmers within hauling distance in an adjoining county. The Minnesota and North Dakota experiment stations have sought the world over, and, after testing more than five hundred varieties of wheat, have found no other spring wheat so well adapted to the Northwest as the hard red fife and blue stem wheats grown in every county in this portion of the country. They find some samples better than others, but the evidence now leads to the belief that farmers should plant the best seed obtainable on their own farms or in their own locality. If new seed must be secured let it be from some near-by farmer who has been getting unusually good yields for a number of years.

Prof. Shepperd, of the North Dakota agricultural college, asserted in the grain growers' convention at Fargo last week that wheat does not run out, but if it did. He asked those who held to the theory that it is necessary to change wheat from sandy to clay soils and vice versa, or from timber to prairie counties, if they could offer facts. He said they thought that being a close fertilized plant, will change for the better or worse, but that it will not become the better side of the proposition when the argument against seeking good seed wheat from some remote point.

"Smut has less to do with the inherited quality of a sample of seed wheat than our farmers think, though it can be treated with its effect on the plant and grain would adhere only very smutty wheat, even after it had been treated with a fungicide, as bluestone, formaline or hot water.

GET THE BEST ANYWAY.

"Neither should wheat be used for seed that had been badly shrunken or seriously injured by frosting before ripe. And wheat that has been seriously injured in the shock or in the stack or has been long burned will yield less as a rule, and especially in the early part of the season is unfavorable. It pays to sow plump, hard seeds, not large, soft, nor very small berries.

A change from smutted or light, poor seed wheat can be accomplished in any neighborhood by selling the poor wheat on the market and purchasing a good sample of wheat of some reliable farmer who is known to have no bad weeds and to secure good yields of wheat. The extra cost will be the handling and the difference in price which will as a rule be only 5 to 10 cents per bushel more than the difference in the market value of the two samples of wheat. By thus changing the seed wheat clean of smut can usually be secured.

Still another way of securing good seed wheat is to secure from some reliable farmer a small amount of seed wheat, and from this raise sufficient to stock the farm in one or two years. Where the farmer has a good kind of wheat and is smutty, he is unwise to discard it for an unknown kind. Even if he thinks best to secure clean wheat for the bulk of his planting he should retain a part of his original superior kind and clean it of smut by treating it with one of the effective remedies now so well known.

"Wheat which is not very badly smutted can be profitably used for seed and the cost of treatment is only slight. Smut now has such a general hold in most neighborhoods that most of the wheat used for seed should be treated. If all the seed sown were treated the cost would probably not equal one-tenth of the present loss from smut. The farmers of New York have generally adopted spraying in their apple orchards to prevent injury by apple insects, and a little more serious experience will teach our farmers not to spread out over so many acres and to farm more carefully.

"Smut is a disease which enters the small wheat plant, and in nearly all cases the spores adhere to the seed and thus reach the plantlet very soon after germination. These seed-like spores send a thread-like growth into the host plant. This growth fills up the tissues of the host and when the wheat forms its seeds she smut forms its seeds or spores inside the berry instead of the flour which the wheat would naturally store up in its seeds. These smut balls are broken in threshing and the spores are scattered throughout the wheat some clinging to the healthy berries, and thus being ready to fasten themselves to the young plant when the seed germinates.

HOW TO DESTROY SMUT.

"These spores that cling to the seeds may be destroyed and the seeds that are otherwise healthy will produce strong plants that will bear wheat, hard or shrunken according as the season, soil and other conditions may determine. The treatment is simple and sure if carefully carried out, and it is not a difficult process.

"Those who treat their seed every other year have little or no trouble. Some farmers should treat their seed every year, especially those who are ambitious to sell seed wheat at prices above the market, and we need more of such careful and ambitious men. In rare cases, where there is no smut in the neighborhood, treatment is not necessary for a long number of years.

"Formaline and bluestone are at present the best remedies known. The only fault to be found with them is that they must be dissolved in water and the wheat made moist. This causes a little labor and a little trouble at a time when the farmer is very busy. But he would better hire an extra man if need be to have clean wheat than to pay so many men to harvest and thresh grain which will be picked one to three grades because it is smutted.

"Bluestone or copper sulphate is best dissolved by placing in hot water in the proportion. Twelve pounds should be used to fifty gallons of water.

GIVE IT A BATH.

"To apply the solution the liquid grain may be dipped into the solution, in either case all that is needed is that the solution reach every kernel and touch every part of the grain that no germs may escape. No more water should be used than enough to moisten the entire surface of every berry, since much wetting causes the grain to swell and makes sowing it in the seeder or drill somewhat difficult. If the seed is simply dipped under and taken out of the liquid in one or two minutes, and allowed to drain it will dry out sufficiently to be put in the drill box in an hour or two, though grain for each day's seeding might better be treated the evening previous.

"When the liquid is sprinkled on the grain a tight box floor or wagon box should be used to prevent waste. The grain should be shoveled over constantly while the solution is being sprinkled on that all parts of the mass of grain be thoroughly moistened. Fifty gallons of water will treat fifty bushels of wheat, the amount depending largely upon the care used in saving the liquid."

Columbia Club Dance.

In this the first week after Lent society circles have been quite active and the Columbia Club not to be outdone by other social organizations have arranged for one of their brilliant functions which will take place tomorrow night. Dancing will be the leading feature of the evening's entertainment.

The City Council.

On the City Council there are eleven members. The Ward aldermen are elected to serve two years, hence five, Thos. Harris, A. G. Anderson, Allan McKinnon, E. C. Davis and A. McGregor, who were members of the council last year hold over, and these with the aldermen-elect, F. M. Brown, Jas. E. O'Brien, L. Ellington, G. S. Chesterman, T. G. Thompson and E. D. Childs, constitute the governing body of the city of Crookston for the ensuing year.

ELECTION RETURNS

A. D. Stephens is Mayor elect—Republican Candidates carry Almost all Other Offices.

THE TOTAL VOTE CAST 849.

In The Evening the Band Turns out and Candidates Elect Address The People.

Election day passed off very quietly, at least until after 8 o'clock in the evening, still a large number of hustlers were getting in their fine work up to the very moment when the polls closed. The total vote was large, the day being favorable to this result and also the fact that the outcome in the case of several offices was somewhat doubtful so that few available voters failed to exercise their right of franchise.

A. D. Stephens was elected Mayor, Captain Conrrets assessor and James E. O'Brien Alderman in the first ward, but with these exceptions the republican ticket was elected.

Complete returns were in by half past seven and then the fun began. The small boys were the first to celebrate and with tin horns, tin cans, whoop and wild halloo they proceeded to call upon each of the successful candidates, and these men were doubtless duly impressed with the honor thus conferred upon them.

The city band next appeared upon the scene as Prof. Briggs had announced they would no matter what occurred. They proceeded to the front entrance of Hotel Crookston followed by what had now become a large crowd of the citizens of the city. After they had furnished some excellent music Mr. Awnie McKinnon barred his head, took his stand on a dry goods box and introduced to the assembled people the Mayor elect, A. D. Stephens. Mr. Stephens then made a short address thanking the voters for giving him the highest honor they had at their disposal. He regretted, he said, that two men could not have been elected to each office as in that case all would have the merrier. In these democratic times a public officer was simply a servant of the people bound to do their bidding and be proposed to act as such and in the interest of all the citizens.

From Hotel Crookston the crowd surged down to the Palace Hotel where James E. O'Brien mounted an improvised rostrum and addressed them. He delivered a short panegeric upon the Queen City of the Red River Valley and stated that it was a privilege to fearlessly perform the duties of the office to which the people had seen fit to elect him. When through speaking Mr. O'Brien distributed several boxes of cigars among the crowd. Mr. Stephens at this point introduced Mr. McKinnon to whom he said great credit was due for the management of the campaign. Mr. McKinnon responded briefly.

The gathered hosts next proceeded to the Fournet block and after they had waited a few minutes, city clerk elect W. A. Lanctot was carried triumphantly forth and amid cheers thanked the citizens for again electing him. Here the crowd dispersed as the other candidates elect could not be found.

CANDIDATES.	1st Ward.	2nd Ward.	3rd Ward.	4th Ward.	Majorities.
For Mayor.
Hattie Stevenson	431	91	103	54	541
A. D. Stephens	111	172	169	194	105
For Alderman-at-large.
F. S. Benedict	404	151	147	174	480
E. Rosenthal	78	77	69	71	311
For Treasurer.
G. G. Lindblom	84	172	167	194	33
J. L. Vannet	87	90	71	54
For City Clerk.
W. A. Lanctot	89	176	169	194	610
F. L. Bissonette	80	87	71	54
For Assessor.
C. W. Metz	83	91	70	53	547
L. C. Conrretts	430	180	169	194
For Constables.
J. Glenn	132	169	167	194	677
J. J. Greenhalgh	134	165	69	55
For Justices.
G. H. Rut	84	172	167	194	35
J. McLean	121	112	71	54
For Aldermen.
G. D. Buhn	68
J. S. Gilmore	84				35
T. G. Thompson		169
E. D. Childs			167	194
For Justices.
S. Silverstone			169	194	25
C. A. Meyer			69	55
E. D. Childs			167	194	6

And Still the Settlers Keep Pouring into the Northwest.

A dozen long trains filled with immigrants bound for the western part of North Dakota have passed through Crookston within the last week. And in addition many substantial farmers are coming in and settling in Polk county and vicinity. This is what builds up the country to have the number of small farms increased.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—Henry Steege, of Moorhead, is in the city.

—Mrs. Conger, of McIntosh, is in the city visiting friends.

—Sheriff Lawrence is spending the day at Woodside.

—L. D. Marshall went out to St. Hilaire this morning.

—M. F. Hanson, of Warren, spent last night in the city.

—G. M. Swift, of Mentor, was in the city Tuesday night.

—Will Wood, of Thief River Falls, is spending today in the city.

—Mrs. W. S. Lyons is in Minneapolis visiting with friends.

—L. Billington, cashier of the Scandia bank, was at Erskine on business yesterday.

—Miss Emma Krans came in from Grand Forks this morning and will be the guest of Mrs. W. B. Smith.

—J. W. Wheeler makes a specialty of loaning money to farmers. Call and see him at the First National bank.

—O. L. Hennery, county surveyor, returned this morning from the southern part of the county where he has been doing some surveying.

—Mrs. L. S. Hancock, of Euclid, and Miss Bolton took the train this morning for Mahtomi where they will be the guests for today of Mrs. Paul Carpenter.

—The new city council will meet for the first time next Tuesday night and at the same time the mayor elect, A. D. Stephens, will take the oath of office.

—Oscar Teal, one of the employees in Jim Hill's round house at South Crookston left for Chicago last Tuesday night. He will probably visit relatives in Canada before returning.

—George Taylor, late of the Gas-Light, and Heating company of Austin, Minn., reached Crookston the first part of the week and will assist James Morrissey in the molding department of the Crookston Iron works.

—The regular passenger train on the Great Northern this morning consisted of 11 coaches and the consequence was it was two and a half hours late. The extra coaches were filled with Italians on their way to Idaho to work on the railway.

—J. Bisazza and family arrived in Crookston yesterday and will make this their permanent home. Mr. Bisazza has rented the entire brick block in South Crookston, save the two rooms used for church purposes, and will open up a general store and put in a big stock of goods.

—Two decisions in land contest cases were received from the Interior Department at the Crookston U. S. land office last Tuesday. In the one case A. A. Paine, editor of the Solway Advocate-Press won, and in the other, Nettie Langseth of Thief River Falls against Nary Olson, the defendant was successful.

The last broken of the Philippine insurrection is broken. When the natives saw Malolos, the seat of Aguinaldo's government, taken, they lost faith in their leader. The proclamation, too, issued by the Philippine Commission, sent to the Islands by President McKinley had influence in quieting the warlike tendencies of many of the natives.

MAJOR DALY REITERATES

Says Army Beef Smelled Like an Embalmed Cadaver.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The court of inquiry examined Dr. Daly in regard to the character of beef furnished to the army during the late war. He adhered to his former statement, paid his respects to the war investigating commission and reiterated that the beef smelled like a cadaver that had been embalmed.

In a cross-examination by Colonel Davis, asked if he was still as much convinced as when he made his report of the quality of the beef, Dr. Daly said:

"I am stronger in my convictions than I ever was, from the unsolicited evidence that has come to me since the report was made.

"No matter what authority says these chemicals are safe, they are not safe," said Dr. Daly emphatically.

Dr. Nicodemus of Philadelphia, who saw service in Porto Rico, corroborated this testimony, comparing the smell of the beef to the odor about a dissecting room.

The day brought out a proposition from General Miles to supply the court with the names of a large number of witnesses and stating that in February he had offered the names of 147 officers as willing to testify, but the court had had not announced its acceptance of them.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

NELSON BANKRUPTCY ACT.

Mr. Vaule Unravels Some of the Knotty Questions That Arise Under This law.

Ole J. Vaule, referee in bankruptcy has kindly answered for the Journal the following questions with reference to the recent bankruptcy act passed by Congress.

"What was the object of the Nelson Bankruptcy Act?" "As I understand it, the object of the act was to grant relief to the poor, and especially to those who suffered financial ruin under the crisis of 1893, by giving them a chance to start life over again with their debts cancelled. We have had similar laws before, with similar objects. But they were all of short duration. When the times became normal and the law was supposed to have accomplished its main object, it was in each case soon repealed. In view of the history of the bankruptcy legislation and the natural opposition to the present act from the credit men, it is probable that it will not be in force very long. Those contemplating taking advantage of the act would therefore better do so soon." "Can a farmer get rid of his debt by making an assignment under the Bankruptcy act?" "Yes, anyone having debts he cannot pay may take advantage of the act."

Must one under the law turn over to his creditors all he has, or does he have exemptions, and if so, what are they?"

"He has the same exemptions as under the state laws and to a farmer they would be, the homestead consisting of not to exceed 80 acres of land, all clothes and household goods, team of horses, threecows, tenswine, twenty sheep, the necessary food for these animals for the debtor and his family for a year, one wagon, one bicycle, one sleigh, two plows, one drag and other farming implements or machinery not exceeding in value $200, onesewingmachine, the necessary seed grain for one year not to exceed one hundred bushels of wheat, one hundred bushels of barley, one hundred bushels of potatoes, fifty bushels of oats, and twins sufficient for use in harvesting the crops from the seed grain specified." What does it cost to go through Bankruptcy." It costs $25, which amount is to bedeposited in advance with the clerk of the United States District Court.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, April 5

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, 72½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; No. 2 Northern, 68c; No. 3, 63¾c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; May, 70½c; July, 70½c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 5.

WHEAT—April closed at 69½c; May, 69¾@69¾c; July, 70¾@71c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 73c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; No. 2 Northern, 67¾c.

Stock City Live Stock.

STOCK CITY, IA., April 5.

HOGS—Market steady to stronger. Range of prices, $3.67½@3.70.

CATTLE—Market fairly active; steady. Sales ranged at $4.00@5.10 for beeves; $2.00@3.60 for cows and bulls, mixed; $3.30@4.60 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @5.00 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts—Cattle, 1,500; cattle, 1,600.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, April 5.

HOGS—Market steady and active. Range of prices, $3.67½@3.75.

CATTLE—Steady and active; good stockers stronger and scarce; common dull.

Sales ranged as $3.90@4.60 for stockers, $4.00@4.40 for steers; $3.60@3.65 for heifers; $2.40@3.75 for cows; $5.15 for calves; $3.90@3.00 for bulls.

SHEEP—Strong; lambs steady.

Sales ranged at $5.20@5.35 for sheep; $5.15 for muttons.

Receipts: Cattle, 1000; calves, 600; hogs, 1,800; sheep, 100.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, April 5.

HOGS—Market fairly active, steady.

Sales ranged at $3.60@3.95 for mixed and butchers; $3.80@4.05 for good heavy; $3.60@3.70 rough heavy; $3.65 @3.87½ for light.

CATTLE—Market steady to strong.

Sales ranged as $4.00@5.80 for beeves; $4.00@4.80 for cows and heifers; $3.60@4.10 for Texas steers; $3.40@4.00 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $3.00@4.00 for sheep; $4.00@5.00 for lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 24,000; cattle, 14,000; sheep, 12,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 5.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 71¾@73c; July, 72½c. CORN—April, 36½c; May, 36¾c; July, 35¾c; September 36½c.

OATS—April, 30¾c; May, 28¾c; July, 25¾@25¾c.

PORK—April, $9.00; May, $9.10; July, $9.32½@9.35.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 11@13c; ducks, 10@11c; chickens, 6½@7c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@20c; dairies, 11½@16c.

EGGS—Fresh, 11¾c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....60c
No. 1 northern.....59c
No. 2 northern.....56c

Farm Wanted.

Send fall particulars, price, etc., at once to A. H. Bissell, Akron, Ohio
[47-tf]

BAND BUSINESS STATEMENT.

Report of Band Organization For First Quarter Is Very Encouraging.

The JOURNAL presents herewith the report of the officers of the band organization as to the financial condition of that institution:

In presenting this statement of the band, we give a list of the public spirited business men and citizens of Crookston, who considered the band an organization worthy of their support, knowing that a band conducted on business principles, is one of the best advertisements for a town to be had. A complete statement will be published at the end of each quarter:

NAMES PER MONTH.

Valley Roller Mills	$2 00
Rasmussen & Dahl	2 00
Scott & Lyman	2 00
J W Wheeler	2 00
L Ellington	2 00
Rosenthal & Falk	2 00
A Chabot	2 00
Erikson & Vannet	2 00
J E O'Brien & Co	2 00
Larson & Carpenter	2 00
W E McKenzie	2 00
Thos Lawrence	2 00
Andrew Ekren	2 00
A F George	2 00
Fontaine & anglim	2 00
N Rapin	2 00
C W V P & L Co	2 00
Dan McKinnon	2 00
Ray Merc Co	2 00
Finch-Smith Co	2 00
N J Benik	2 00
N P Stone	2 00
A J & A McKinnon	2 00
P L Reene	2 00
Mrs A O Tweedton	2 00
Geo Purvis	2 00
Jos F Koelmel	2 00
John B McKinnon	2 00
Max Eriesson	2 00
Crookston Brewing Co	2 00
Otto Burkhardt	2 00
John Waterstradh	2 00
C C Hoch	2 00
A Brosseau	2 00
Bergquist Bros	2 00
L Morin	2 00
J R Rasmussun	2 00
C D Billings	2 00
Collins & Bunnel	2 00
Chas Westerberg & Son	2 00
Vance & Stone	2 00
Miller & Poote	2 00
Dr A E Dunlop	2 00
E Shevlin	3 00
K K Austin	2 00
Alex Thompson	2 00
Vanstrum Clothing Co	2 00
S A Wallace	2 00
Jas B McCall	2 00
Journal office	2 00
Peoples Press	2 00
A O Rolstad	1 00
Mrs J A Boh	1 00
S Melby	1 00
Mrs Schraeder	1 00
F D Bell	1 00
E S Peterson & Co	1 00
T E Clydale	1 00
E A Erickson	1 00
H P Brown	1 00
S L Collins	1 00
J S Maim & Co	1 00
Earnest Rolsch	1 00
J E Carpenter	1 00
Carl Riedesel	1 00
W W Hoch	1 00
F G Rauch	1 00
Ed Martin	1 00
J H Peterson	1 00
W E Rowe	1 00
Christianson & Strander	1 00
P E Lynne	1 00
A Anderson	1 00
W E Slocum	1 00
N S Gervais	1 00
O H Bjoln	1 00
A G Anderseu	1 00
F H Hillard & Son	1 00
A M Siverston	1 00
Geo Vine	1 00
W A Robertson	1 00
Thos Spence	1 00
Martin Larson	1 00
A L Fuller	1 00
Chas Ralston	1 00
H G Ebbighausen	1 00
Martin E Loken	1 00
J J Molstead	1 00
A Koeppe	1 00
Gates & Sargent	1 00
A J Conrreste	1 00
John Gleason	1 00
J S Dwyer	1 00
L E Larson	1 00

EXPENSES.

Salary Oct. 1, '98 to Mar. 14 '99	$475 00
Music and follos	23 30
Printing tickets and programs	6 10
Drum purchased	12 30
Janitor	7 00
Triangle	41
Electric-light chandelier	15 00
24 chairs	30 00
624 yards carpet	76 50
Broom	25
Cuspidores	1 50
Wardrobe	26 00
	$673 36
Balance due on above items
Carpet	$49 76
Chairs	20 00
Wardrobe	5 55
Salary	31 61-107 21
	$596 15

CASH RECEIPTS.

On hand contracts	$489 00
Net proceeds of concerts	77 15
	$566 1

Amount uncollected on contract $ 6 00

O. O. DAHL, Manager
F. M. BROWN, President
G. OLIVER RIBER, Band Master.

There are others who have not had the opportunity of signing the list and their names will probably appear in the next report.

The canvass of the town is not yet complete. Some whose names are not on the above list will be given an opportunity to assist in this commendable undertaking.

Births.

DU LUDE.

On Friday, March 31, to Mr. and Mrs. P. Du Lude, a boy.

ANDERSON.

On Sunday, April 2, to Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Anderson, a girl.

Weddings.

CARRUTHERS—FREDRICKSON.

On Monday, April 3, at the Palace Hotel in Crookston, by the Rev. A. E. Rowson, H. J. Carruthers, of Ramsey County, Minn., to Minnie Fredrickson, of Walsh county, N. D.

GULLETSON—NELSON.

On Wednesday, April 5, by the Rev. Poole, John Gilbistrot to Julia Nelson, both of Euclid.

Deaths.

CUNSTRUM.

On Friday morning, March, 31, at St. Paul, Mrs. A. B. Christie, of East Grand Forks. Mrs. Christie had been spending the winter at the Capitol of the State, where her husband is engrossing clerk of the senate. Her death came suddenly. On Thursday she was in apparently good health, and went to dinner with Mr. Christie. At 3 o'clock she was taken ill and Friday morning breathed her last. Death was due to heart failure superinduced by grip.

Mrs. Christie went to East Grand Forks in 1892, from which time she held the position of assistant principal of the schools up to Dec. 31, 1898. She was a quiet, modest woman of scholarly excellence, having received the degree of bachelor of arts from Mount Union college. She also held professional life certificates from Minnesota and North Dakota which require a college or university course. Mrs. Christie was buried at her old home in Ohio. The remains were escorted as far as the depot by a committee of eight senators, the start being made from the State Capitol Friday afternoon. Mrs. Christie's mother and several brothers and sisters are still living in Ohio. The pupils of the East Grand Forks schools were sadly grieved at learning of their former teacher's death, and sent a handsome floral tribute to the funeral.

DUCKET AD.

On Monday April 3rd at Fertile the infant child of Brown Ducketud,

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side of

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

BABY'S SMOOTH, FAIR SKIN

A Grateful Mother Writes this Letter—Tells all about Her Troubles when Baby Broke out with Scrofula Sores.

"At the age of two months, my baby began to have sores break out on his right cheek. We used all the external applications that we could think or hear of, but in vain. The sores spread all over one side of his face. We consulted a physician and tried his medicine, and in a week the sore was gone. But to my surprise in two weeks more another scrofulous looking sore appeared on baby's arm. It grew worse and worse, and when he was three months old, I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before the first bottle was finished, the sores were well and have never returned. He is now four years old, but he has never had any sign of those scrofulous sores since he was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I feel very grateful. My boy owes his good health and smooth, fair skin to this great medicine." Mrs. E. S. Warren, Farmington, Delaware.

Get only Hood's

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient and easy to effect. 25 cents.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable. You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the Common Council of said city of Crookston and filed in my office praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors at the premises hereinafter described, for the term beginning on April 5th, 1899, and ending the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application, to-wit: John H. Oliver, from room on ground floor, facing Broadway, of the two-story frame building known as the Rosenbeulder corner, situate in the N. E. ¼ of the original townsite of city of Crookston, in said county and state.

Said applicant is a person of good and determined character and a resident of the city of Crookston at the regular meeting in the city hall in said city of Crookston, Polk County and state of Minnesota, on Tuesday the 11th day of April A. D. 1899, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. at which time

Any person may hand and send of said city this 28th day of March A. D. 1899.

[SEAL] W. A. LANGTOT, City Clerk.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk,—ss.

In Probate Court, Special term, March 29th 1899.

In the matter of the estate of John Provencher, deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Mary Provencher, widow of John Provencher, late of the County of Polk, in said State, deceased, on the 29th day of March A. D. 1899 at the County of Polk filed in said court, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county and state, that said petitioner is the surviving widow of said deceased and that she is the administratrix of said estate to be finally Provencher granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Friday the 7th day of April A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office in the City of Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

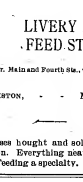
Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 29th day of March A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE E. HAGEN,
(1-3) Judge of Probate.

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By the Author of BIGGLE.



No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 74 Illustrations, a handy work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing small Fruits—read and learn how; contains 42 colored life-like reproductions of all leading varieties and 50 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; the best Poultry Book in existence; tells everything; 48 has colored life-like reproductions of all the principal breeds; with 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great deal to say about Milk; 40 fine reproductions of cows of each breed, with 150 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original, useful—you never saw anything like them—so practical, so sensible. They are having an enormous sale—all over the West, North, South. Every one who keeps a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chickens or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for men and 100,000 a month. It is 32 pages only; it is the great bold-down, bile-the-cabbage-and-a-quilt-after-you-have-said-it, Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL

5 YEARS (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for a DOLLAR BILL.
Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON,
CHAS. S. JENKINS. Address, FARM JOURNAL, PHILADELPHIA

For Sale.

—Twelve good heavy work horses and mares, and one large pair mules. Will sell for cash or good bankable paper. TOM YOUNG.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Eighty-one dollars and fifty cents ($481.50) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice on a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Hendrieta Lee Hart and John G. Hart her husband, mortgagors, to Chas A. Reynolds, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of October 1892, and duly filed in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m., in book 59 of mortgages on page 354, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The undivided one half of lot number eight (8) in section thirty-six (36) in township one hundred fifty (150) north of range forty-seven (47) west, containing seventeen and one-fifth acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, together with the share and rights given by Lake River in Polk county and state of Minnesota, by the articles of agreements and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the 7th day of April, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, of public sale, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said sum of $481.50 and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements, including the attorney's fees, as provided by law and as stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 27, A. D. 1899.

CLARA A. REYNOLDS,
A. A. MILLER,
Attorney for Mortgagee Crookston, Minn. 45-52

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight ($478.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice on a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ryner Ousnes and Jennie Ousnes his wife, mortgagors, to O. N. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 27th day of January, 1894, and duly filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of January, 1894, at 4 o'clock p. m. in book 69 of mortgages on page 107, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south west quarter of section thirty-four township number one hundred forty-three range forty-three west, containing one hundred sixty acres according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements, including a reasonable attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 45-52

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo.
O. WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Final Proof.

United Land Office, Crookston, Minn. Feb. 28, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that Judson S. Flemming has filed notice of intention to make final proof before the county judge of Polk county, Minnesota, on Thursday the 6th day of April 1899 on timber culture application No. 981 for the E½ NE¼ and the NW¼ NE¼ of sec. 6 in township No. 153 N. of range No. 47 W.

He names as witnesses:

John Love and Thomas Rutherford, of Kerwood, Minnesota, Almer P. Hixson and John O'Brien, of Crookston, Minnesota.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Nine Hundred ($1,000.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Sylvester Peterson and Josephine his wife, mortgagors, to E. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 9th day of January, 1896, and duly filed for record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 11th day of August, 1896, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 69 of mortgages, on page 151, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of section thirty-four township number one hundred forty-three range forty three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said sum of Nine Hundred ($1,000.00) Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements, including a reasonable attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 45-52

Ellen Lake, Minn.

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance. In order to avoid the numerous inconveniences which are often annoying, travel via the fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and dining coaches, they are fully appreciated by the traveling public. Your nearest ticket agent will give you complete information and furnish you with rates of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
[16-tf] Milwaukee, Wis.

IN THE NAME OF ART.

BY JOHN J. A'BECKET.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

Rarely indeed is a wayfarer in New York streets arrested by a scene that is picturesque, especially when the element of picturesqueness is supplied by humankind. Such a picture one morning at the corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-first street met the appreciative gaze of Mr. Hamilton Strongwell.

It was an Italian woman and her baby. Poor, despised, weary alien, she was sitting on the sidewalk, her back propped against the hand railing of the Union club, whose somber exclusiveness suggests kindred retreats for gregarious worldlings on Pall Mall. A large, shawl-like basket, whose contents were covered by a worn black enameled cloth, rested on the sidewalk by her side, while anything but resting on her breast was a lusty baby boy, whom she was suckling with the modesty of the lower animals.

The woman had a handkerchief covering the back of her shapely head. Her face was a delicately accented oval, with brilliant clear eyes, shaded by long, curling lashes, while her hair was a blue black. Short, tight curls of pale gold clustered all over the head of the baby boy. Nature had lavished this touch of aristocratic grooming on the little beggar, who, despite his grimy face and hands, was the picture of cherubic waywardness. Strongwell as he strolled indolently out of the club took in the picture with marked interest. After he had crossed to the opposite side of Twenty-first street he turned and stood regarding the mother and child with a fixed scrutiny.

"By George," he muttered to himself, "that's exactly what Homer Ferris is looking for! How the deuce can such common clay take on a grace like that?"

He crossed the street once more and spoke to the woman in Italian. The baby, having glutted itself, had left the table with ungrateful promptness.

The woman's voice, when she answered Strongwell's inquiries, had an unadulterated sharpness, and despite the volatile vivaciousness of her race, her intelligence was slow and dull. However, the man succeeded in making her understand that he wanted her to come to the Sherwood studio building the next day. He wrote out the address for her and, promising her $2 if she was there at the appointed hour, left her.

Hamilton Strongwell went to the

CHIARA'S SOUL MAD FLOWERED INTO PAIN.

Players' club that evening to see Ferris, who usually dined there.

"I have found the model, Ferris," remarked the elder man, with an air of triumph, as soon as they had given their orders. "She's exactly what you want."

"Well, she can hardly be that, you know," replied Ferris skeptically, "unless she dropped from the skies."

"Perhaps she did," returned Strongwell, with a smile. "She had dropped to the sidewalk when I spotted her and was using the Union club railing as a prop for her back, with a delightful indifference to its having any other purpose. She's got a baby that's a corker, too, round as a dumpling. No fifth avenue brat could have his hair curled any better. Her hair is jet black; large eyes, drooping lids, long lashes, well cut; stunning nose; mouth just on the edge of being too large, but with lots of expression; clear olive skin, almost like a bronze, and a figure that's great! I couldn't tell what kind of a skirt the kid had—couldn't see it well—but in everything else he is just like the baby Du Maupassant describes in that 'Fille de Ferme.' I suppose she'd wash it for a consideration."

"Oh, it is little dirt is the only har I'd wash it myself if necessary!" said Ferris pleasantly. He was somewhat heartened by Strongwell's convictions.

"I'm after a model that will help me to complete my own imagination of what I want. I know what that is well enough abstractly, but the expression I'm feeling for I can't quite formulate, as it were, with my fancy. You know the subject I have in mind, and you can tell the difference of getting what I want. Here is the Virgin Mother of the Christ Child looking at the baby in her arms after she has been heard of the massacre of the innocents by Herod. The tyrant has killed all these other babies in an attempt to get here in his big scoop net. But he didn't. There it is in her arms and there are those other poor babies dead, their mothers' arms empty and their hearts broken.

"Now, picture to yourself if you can,' continued Ferris, warming with his theme, "the look on her face—pity for those other bereaved mothers, joy at still possessing her own child, forecasting what his life will be who in his infancy is the subject of such a calamity, the shadow across her face of the 'sword of sorrow,' which Simeon had told her would pierce her heart; then, too, her glad acceptance of any and every share in the life of her child, her humble joy at being the mother of the promised of centuries, of him who was to come. How would a woman of deep intelligence, absolute innocence and the most intense and perfect sensibility look in the grasp of an emotion as composite as that?" concluded Ferris, throwing out his hands with a despairing gesture. "That's what I have to get, and you know how close to it studio models are, with their self conscious dollar an hour expression. But if I ever do get what I want on to canvas Raphael, Andrea del Sarto, Hofheim and the rest may come and look at it if they like. I'm much obliged, old fellow, for your taking such an interest in it. I dare say the woman may be some help."

When Strongwell's "find" came the next morning to the studio, with her cherubic boy and her shawl, scrubbed for the occasion, Ferris was delighted. Strongwell had not done her justice.

Ferris regarded the woman with unpretentiosity. But he was a remorseless critic of himself. The precession of madonnas that marched across his canvas a year after another monstrifactory result was rushed out would have filled a gallery.

"I don't know what it is!" he exclaimed, with vexation in his voice to Strongwell after a fresh obliteration. "Her features could hardly be better, and the expression seems to do, but it doesn't. I think the trouble is her dull, commonplace soul. What good is a lantern without a light in it? My picture has got to have pathos in it, and this woman, with all her delicate lines and stolid beauty, hasn't the pathos of a mother seal. I wish something would stir her up."

The model's appearance two days later seemed a direct answer to this aspiration of Ferris. Her eyes were swollen from weeping, her face drawn and steeped in dejection. Ferris knew no Italian, the woman only the most broken English. He sent for Strongwell, and through him found out that Chiara was in trouble on account of her husband. He was in trouble on account of his handsome wife. Jealousy, a quarrel, Palo Degni, the offending rival, in a hospital, hovering between life and death from a stiletto stab, and Franchini in the Tombs awaiting results. That was the brief story.

"Strongwell," said Ferris, with a most cheerful tone in his voice, "say something soothing to her." He was already at work painting in the new expression which strong grief and grief had wrought in his model's face. "Tell her the other fellow will get well, and then her husband will be let out. She's scared to death for fear they'll hang him the day after tomorrow."

Strongwell did offer what homely comfort he could to the stricken woman. Into the tired eyes and drooping lips came a gleam of hope, the touch of returning peace—enough to soften, freshen, animate them, not enough to drive entirely away the shadow of sadness.

"By Jove!" muttered Ferris, who was painting like mad and breathing heavily with excitement over his task, "I'd give $1,000 to petrify her just as she is!"

His was getting what he wanted. Chiara's soul had flowered into pain.

"Strongwell, don't you see what an enormous difference this makes in her looks?" he said excitedly. "Gad! Look at the yearning suffering look in her eyes, that sense of being lapped in pain in her whole face! I wouldn't lose her for a fortune now. Try to make her feel that we are friends and that she can count on us—if she comes regularly to the studio," he added so naively as to bring a grin to Strongwell's face. "I've got her where I want her now, if I can only keep her so long enough. Old man, you must help me out. Don't desert me now, when you have got me this treasure. I never dreamed her face could reflect emotion as it does, but there is too devastating a sadness in it. She is swamped in grief. You be here when she comes tomorrow and talk to her. If she's lost this expression, just say something or other that will recall the situation her husband is in. After all, this stuck Italian may die and the hangman make a widow of Chiara. But if she's too sad, and the expression is overdone, as it was today," he added, looking critically at his canvas, "cheer her up. Make her feel hopeful and that sort of thing. Will you?"

Ferris was intensely serious despite his impetuous enthusiasm. Strongwell could not forbear smiling at this ingenious scheme of playing on the poor creature's heartstrings to bring out nuances of expression in her mobile face. He said quietly, "Do you object that you are asking me to act as a moral executioner, to torture this poor, ignorant, bruised thing to help you make a picture?"

"Torture nothing!" exclaimed Ferris excitedly. "Isn't there a bright side and a dark side and each of them true? And wouldn't any sensible being consider them both?"

Then as Strongwell slowly shook his head in refutation of this sophistry Ferris resumed eagerly: "Well, I'll tell you what you can do. I've got an idea. What I want is to catch her face as the anguish of sorrow and fear melts into the rapture of hope and comfort. Now, whether she goes up from pain to joy or comes down from joy to pain the blending point of transition should be the same, and that is what I want. See here! She is likely to come tomorrow morning all worked up by the hard doings of the night, and she'll be liker than indigo. I hope she does," he added impulsively, "for you surely can't object to trying to soothe her and make her feel better. I'll have my camera put behind that screen, covered with draperies. I'll go in there, you talk to her, and when she reaches the proper roads I'll snap her off! See? You'll do that, won't you, Strongwell?" he concluded pleadingly.

"Yes, I'll do that with pleasure," replied his friend. "I'm willing enough to comfort her."

The scheme worked to a charm. Chiara presented herself the next day fathoms deep in fresh sorrow. Ferris explained that he had to do some work first and that she could talk with Strongwell in the meantime. That confederate in the holy treachery of art got the poor woman placed suitably for the camera and began his role of comforter to the afflicted. Chiara's first question showed her frame of mind.

"They can't hang him till they try him first, can they?" she asked hrskenly.

"No," said Strongwell calmly, repressing his first inclination to a lengthy form of assertion. Then he suggested one thing after another that was likely to soothe. He dwelt on Signor Degni's robust health, the likelihood of his promptly rallying from a little pin prick of a stiletto wound and instituted that the astonishingly extenuating circumstances of her husband's honorable action in the matter would affect the judge and jury to leniency.

He had been pouring this balm of Gilead on the woman's bruised soul only a few moments when he heard an approving click from behind the screen. As he deftly continued enacting the role of consoler several other small, but vivacious snaps signaled the success of Ferris from behind his ambuscade was "winging" the soul of Chiara in its upward flight as it was shadowed on her face.

Strongwell kept playing on the keyboard of the woman's heart, an unknown con gioia, an poco accelerando, a rondo pathing but capriccioso, until Ferris stepped briskly forth from his retreat with a beaming face.

"If they come out well, I've got it to a T," he muttered excitedly to Strongwell, with an eloquently grateful glance at that generous accomplice. "Still, she'll have to come tomorrow, because if they don't print well we'll have to do it all over again. I wouldn't lose her now for a farm."

He gave Chiara $3 in the expansion of heart consequent on the day's work. The plates developed perfectly. He got half a dozen photographs, each with a different, but most helpful expression. Each was a station where Chiara's soul had unloaded grief. For the remaining sittings Ferris needed his model only for the figure, and they went rapidly enough. He and his confederate in art drew only on their powers of condolence now, because, as Ferris remarked, it didn't make a bit of difference how happy she looked.

The outcome of the impulsive conduct of Mr. Francisini was not nearly so bad as it might have been. Degni left the hospital a fortnight later none the worse for his wound and considerably better for the diet. After an absence of some months from his family Antonio Franchini was restored to Chiara and the cherubic Amadeo.

But the most important result of that quarrel was that Homer Ferris realized his ideal as few art workers are able to do. When Strongwell looked upon the solemnly sweet face of "Our Lady of the Innocents," he had no scruple for his share in its accomplishment.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

The St. Paul health department will start a crusade against unwholesome milk.

A court of inquiry has been appointed to sit at St. Paul for the Fifteenth Minnesota.

Edward L. Pratt, Company I, Thirteenth Minnesota, died of smallpox at Manila.

Judge Kelly of St. Paul holds the horse thief bounty law to be unconstitutional.

Colonel Ames of the Thirteenth Minnesota, cables that all the wounded are doing well.

A rigid inspection of renovated butter under the new law has been proclaimed by the state dairy department.

The Fifteenth Minnesota regiment has been mustered out and most of the men have returned to their homes.

The Minneapolis grand council of Royal Arcanum held its annual meeting in Minneapolis the latter part of the week.

Arrangements are pending made by the First Baptist church of St. Paul for the celebration of its Fiftieth anniversary.

Railroads in Southern Minnesota have agreed to a new schedule reducing rates on wheat and flax ½ to 2 cents per hundred pounds.

The young women of the West Superior normal debated those of Macalester college at basketball. The game was played at St. Paul.

The war department has allowed the claim of the Twelfth Minnesota regiment for expenses incurred while in camp at New Ulm.

Requisition has been made on the Wisconsin authorities for the arrest of Joseph R. Clements, concerned in the wreck of the Fillmore county bank.

Chairman Fred Gerlach of the L. A. W. racing board announces that A. D. Smith, St. Paul, has been appointed handicapper for the Minnesota district.

Teachers in the Moorhead schools will hold an exhibition day April 13, at which time the work and proficiency of the scholars will be viewed by friends and parents.

The acting secretary of the interior has affirmed the decision of the land commissioner, granting to the State of Minnesota to certain swamp lands in the St. Cloud district.

Representative of the Chippewa Indian tribes held a council at Leech Lake. They oppose the sale of their pine lands and solemnly promise not to be guilty of another outbreak.

Michael Treacy, of Brown, Treacy & Co., St. Paul, was assaulted and robbed of about $200 while going from the first to the third floor of the building to pay the employes.

Creditors of the Scandia bank of Minneapolis are to have two dividends of 3 per cent each declared. One is to come from collections from stockholders and the other from collections made by the receiver.

A. J. Jeramy of Nininger has filed suit at Whitehall, Wis., in behalf of his stepson, R. W. Bush, against J. J. Marsh and his mother, Mrs. Kate Marsh, for $10,000 damages for criminal libel. Libelous articles received by having been repeatedly horsewhipped.

Albert Vance of Winona, who was mustered out of service with Company G of the Fifteenth regiment, is but 15 years of age, and is the youngest war veteran in the United States. He enlisted at the age of 13 and served his full time, so that he is in every sense of the word a veteran.

According to the St. Paul weather bureau reports the March just passed was the coldest and snowiest March of the last sixty years. The average mean temperature for the month was 15 degrees, against a general average of 31. The precipitation was 2.49 inches, and 2.67 inches, against an average of 1.43 inches.

The ceded timber land question, as far as the Minnesota reservations are concerned, has been settled. Secretary Hitchcock has authorized a statement that the sale had been postponed. The commissioners will leave the stumpage of all estimating, logging and every matter connected with the ceded timber land question.

Captain Mercer, the recently appointed United States Indian agent at Leech Lake, and Red Lake sub-agency, has notified Major J. H. Sutherland, the agent in charge, that he is ready to receive the property and will formally take charge of the said agencies. Major Sutherland will remain in charge of the White Earth agency.

The Superior Shipbuilding company has been incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, with a capital stock of $1,600,000. The ship yard will be built at Duluth. It is stated that Andrew Carnegie, the inventor of the steel "whaleback" barges, is back of the company, and that the new ship-building combination recently completed on the great lakes.

In consideration of the Great Northern agreeing to erect a depot in St. Paul, the city council agreed to cease opposition to the union property near the union depot which is now in litigation for some time, and to abandon the Broadway street bridge project. Special meetings of both bodies were held and the ordinance rushed through the consummation of the sales. Building of new shops will begin at once.

At the closing session of the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. at Minneapolis, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: J. M. Dimmick, Owatonna, grand master workman; W. H. White, Duluth grand foreman; W. B. Anderson, Winona, grand overseer; Olaf Olsen, Willmar, grand recorder; J. J. McCarty, St. Paul, grand receiver, elected for the 22d time; M. S. Tifft, Glencoe, grand guide; J. F. Creamer, Crookston, grand inside watchman; F. W. Bashore, Brainerd, grand outside watchman.

FINALLY GIVES UP

CUBAN ASSEMBLY VOTES TO DISBAND THE ARMY.

Muster Rolls Will Be Put in Shape and Turned Over to General Brooke—Little Opposition Shown—Decision to Go Out of Business Carried by a Vote of 21 for to 1 Against—Action Taken Will Hasten the Work of Reconstruction on the Island.

HAVANA, April 5.—The Cuban assembly has voted to disband the Cuban army and dissolve. The vote was 21 in favor against 1 opposed. The muster rolls were left in the possession of the executive committee of the assembly who will facilitate the preparation of copies for Governor General Brooke.

The final session of the assembly lasted four hours and was calm and dispassionate. After the motion to disband the army was carried the assembly entered upon the details and methods of disbandment. A new executive committee was appointed to attend to the routine work and this committee will supply to General Brooke the copies of the Cuban muster rolls.

Salvator Cisneros of Puerto Principe, who was chosen president of the Cuban republic at the meeting of the provincial delegates at Puerto Principe Sept. 29, 1895, and was ultimately succeeded by Senor Bartolomo Masso, was the only member to vote against the resolutions to disband and to dissolve. To the very last he declared that, in my event, the resolution to dissolve was unconstitutional and that he would never give up his position until a new assembly had been elected.

The resolution adopted calls for the disbanding of the army with the permission to the soldiers to accept money from the United States. The various amendments had to do with the details of disorganization.

PLEASES THE OFFICIALS.

Work of Reconstruction Can Now Proceed More Rapidly.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The news of the Cuban assembly's vote for immediate dissolution and disbandment of the army was received here with relief and gratification. The prolonged struggle over the payment of the Cuban army had begun to exhaust the patience of the authorities here. The administration now looks for more rapid progress in the work of reconstruction of the island and less difficulty in instituting reforms generally.

The vote, 21 to 1, shows the lack of a quorum on the basis of the original organization of 48 members, but the apparent insignificance of this is weakened by the fact that numerous members of the assembly left it without ceremony on account of its attitude.

REVOLUTION PROBABLE.

General Feeling of Unrest Throughout Macedonia.

LONDON, April 4.—In connection with the collision between the Turkish and Bulgarian frontier guards at Kosyi Agob, between Lambolil and Adrianople, a correspondent in Macedonia writes to The Pall Mall Gazette concerning the seething condition in the Balkans. He says:

"Grave consequences cannot be deferred much longer. The whole province is armed and matters are rapidly drifting into open revolution. The people are drilling for the coming struggle and the country is virtually in a state of siege. Turkish troops have been pouring into most of the disturbed districts, concentrating chiefly in the north, and reinforcements are arriving daily. Detachments guard the Oriental railway from Salonica to the Servian border, and the garrison towns are packed with soldiers. There is a widespread impression throughout the land that momentous events are impending. There is a general feeling of unrest everywhere, trade is at an absolute standstill and the Ottomans are preparing in deadly earnest because they are convinced that Bulgaria is at the bottom of the trouble in Macedonia, and will certainly actively support the expected rising, encouraged by Russian influence. It is estimated that 100,000 men are under arms, ready for action in the immediate repression of the rebellion.

PASSES ARE BRIBES.

Law Passed by the Wisconsin Senate So Declares.

MADISON, Wis., April 8.—The most sweeping anti-pass measure yet conceived in any state legislature passed the senate without debate. It was introduced as a substitute measure and was the result of the conference which reported a constitutional amendment.

Not only does it make it unlawful for state, county and city officials and employes to use passes, but it makes it a state prison offense of from one to five years to use a pass in attending political conventions. It makes violations of the law bribery.

SALISBURY ACCEPTS.

Tripartite Commission Will Settle the Samoan Difficulties.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Lord Salisbury has accepted the plan proposed by Germany for the settlement of the Samoan trouble by the appointment of a tripartite commission. The acceptance is on the broad principle only, and details of the arrangement are yet to be agreed upon. As the United States has already accepted the proposition there is no longer doubt as to the organization of the commission.

Municipal Ownership Wins.

TOLEDO, O., April 4.—S. M. Jones, who was a candidate for mayor on an independent ticket with a platform of municipal ownership of utilities, has been elected by at least 5,000 plurality and probably a majority over all. The contest was marked by great spirit.

ARE YOU A RENTER

—A farmer's son unable to procure a farm near home, or burdened with taxes, heavy mortgages, impoverished soil, and failure of crops?

IF SO

the solution to your troubles is offered in the Canadian Government—every born babe settler getting a of 160 acres of the best land on the continent for mixed farming and stock farming. No. 1 Hard Wheat is raised in Western Canada, the average yield is from 25 to 32 bushels to the acre. Railways, schools, churches, &c., convenient, climate is the healthiest, the soil the best. For information apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada.

FREE HOMESTEAD

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government agent,
184 E. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Crookston, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villard, Minn., local agents.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.

Six months, 30 cents.

13 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH.

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $76

MONARCH ROADSTERS $60

DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $36

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.

Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago

Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Jessie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

IN THE NAME OF ART.

BY JOHN J. A'BECKET.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

Rarely indeed is a wayfarer in New York streets arrested by a scene that is picturesque, especially when the element of picturesqueness is supplied by humankind. Such a picture ons morning at the corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-first street met the appreciative gaze of Mr. Hamilton Strongwell.

It was an Italian woman and her baby. Poor, despised, weary alien, she was sitting on the sidewalk, her back propped against the hard railing of the Union club, whose somber exclusiveness suggests kindred retreats for gregarious worldlings on Pall Mall. A large, shallow basket, whose contents were covered by a worn black enameled cloth, rested on the sidewalk by her side, while anything but resting on her breast was a burly baby boy, whom she was suckling with the modesty of the lower animals.

The woman had a handkerchief covering the back of her shapely head. Her face was a delicately accented oval, with brilliantly clear eyes, shaded by long, curling lashes, while her hair was a blue black. Short, tight curls of pale gold clustered all over the head of the baby boy. Nature had lavished this touch of aristocratic grooming on the little beggar, who, despite his grimy face and hands, was the picture of cherubic wholesomeness. Strongwell as he strolled indolently out of the club took in the picture with marked interest. After he had crossed to the opposite side of Twenty-first street he turned and stood regarding the mother and child with a fixed scrutiny.

"By George," he muttered to himself, "that's exactly what Homer Ferris is looking for! How the deuce can such common clay take on a grace like that?"

He crossed the street once more and spoke to the woman in Italian. The baby, having glutted itself, had left the table with ungrateful promptness.

The woman's voice, when she answered Strongwell's inquiries, had an uneducated sharpness, and, despite the volubile utterances of her race, her intelligence was slow and dull. However, the man succeeded in making her understand that he wanted her to come to the Sharwood studio building the next day. He wrote out the address for her and, promising her $1 if she was there at the appointed hour, left her.

Hamilton Strongwell went to the

CHIARA'S SOUL HAD FLOWERED INTO PAIN.

Players' club that evening to see Ferris, who usually dined there.

"I have got your model, Ferris," remarked the elder man, with an air of triumph, as soon as they had given their orders. "She's exactly what you want."

"Well, she can hardly be that, you know," replied Ferris skeptically, "unless she droops in the skies."

"Perhaps she did," returned Strongwell, with a smile. "She had dropped to the sidewalk when I spotted her and was using the Union club railing as a prop for her back, with a delightful indifference to its having any other purpose. She's got a baby that's a corker, too round a dumpling. No Fifth avenue brat could have his hair curled any better. Her hair is jet black; large eyes, drooping lids, long lashes, well cut; ensuing nose; mouth just on the edge of being too large, but with lots of expression; clear olive skin, almost that a bronze, and a figure that's great! I couldn't tell what kind of a skin the kid had—couldn't see it well—but in every thing else he is just like the baby Do Maupassant describes in that 'Fille de Ferme.' I suppose she'd wash it for a consideration."

"Oh, if a little dirt is the only har I'd wash it myself if necessary!" said Ferris pleasantly. He was somewhat heartened by Strongwell's convictions. "I'm after a model that will help me to complete my own imagination of what I want. I know what that is well enough abstractly, but the expression the feeling for it can't quite formulate, as it were, with my fancy. You know the subject I have in mind, and you can tell me if the difficulties of getting what I want. Here is the Virgin Mother of the Christ Child looking at the baby in her arms after she has heard of the massacre of the innocents by Herod. The tyrant has killed all these other babies in an attempt to get here in the big scoop net. But he didn't. There it is in her arms, and there are those other babies dead, their mothers' arms empty and their hearts broken.

"Now, picture to yourself if you can,' continued Ferris, warming with his theme, "the look on her face—pity for those other bereaved mothers, joy at still possessing her own child, forecasting what his life will be who in his infancy is the occasion of such a calamity, the shadow across her face of the 'sword of sorrow,' which Simeon had told her would pierce her heart; then, too, her glad acceptance of any and every share in the life of her child, her humble joy at being the mother of the promised of centuries, of 'him who was to come.' How would a woman of deep intelligence, absolute innocence and the most intense and perfect sensibility look in the group of an ensemble as composits as that?" concluded Ferris, throwing out his hands with a despairing gesture. "That's what I have to get, and you know how close to it studio models are, with their self conscious dollar and bone expression. But if I ever do get what I want on to canvas Raphael, Andrea del Sarto, Holbein and all the rest may come and look at it if they like. I'm much obliged, old fellow, for your taking such an interest in it. I dare say the woman may be some help."

When Strongwell's "find" came the next morning to the studio, with her cherubic boy, well washed and scrubbed for the occasion, Ferris was delighted. Strongwell had not done her justice.

Ferris was tingling with nervous impetuosity. But he was a ruthless critic of himself. The procession of madonnas that marched across his canvas as one after another unsatisfactory result was rubbed out would have filled a gallery.

"I don't know what it is!" he exclaimed, with vexation in his voice to Strongwell after a fresh obliteration. "Her features could hardly be better, and the expression seems to do, but it doesn't. I think the trouble is her dull, commonplace soul. What good is a lantern without a light in it? My picture has got to have pathos in it, and this woman, with all her delicate lines and stolid beauty, hasn't the pathos of a mother owl. I wish something would stir her up."

The model's appearance two days later seemed a direct answer to this aspiration of Ferris. Her eyes were swollen from weeping, her face drawn and stamped in dejection. Ferris knew no Italian, the woman only the most broken English. He sent for Strongwell, and through him found out that Chiara was in trouble on account of her husband. He was in trouble on account of his handsome wife. Jealousy, a quarrel, Palo Degni, the offending rival, in a hospital, hovering between life and death from a stiletto stab, and Franchini in the Tombs awaiting results. That was the brief story.

"Strongwell," said Ferris, with a most cheerful tone in his voice, "say something soothing to her." He was already at work painting in the new expression which strong fear and grief had wrought in his model's face. "Tell her the other fellow will get well, and then her husband will be let out. She's scared to death for fear they'll hang him to-day after to-morrow."

Strongwell did offer what homely comfort he could to the stricken woman. Into the dusky eyes and drooping lips came a gleam of hope, the touch of returning peace—enough to soften, freshen, animate them, but enough to drive entirely away the shadow of sadness.

"By Jove!" muttered Ferris, who was painting like a fiend and breathing heavily with excitement over his task, "I'd give $1,000 to petrify her just as she is!"

He was getting what he wanted. Chiara's soul had flowered into pain.

"Strongwell, don't you see what an enormous difference this makes in her looks?" he said excitedly. "God! look at the yearning, suffering look in her eyes, that seems of being lapped in pain in her whole face! I wouldn't lose her for a fortune now. Try to make her feel that we are friends and that she can count on us—if she comes regularly to the studio," he added so naively as to bring a grin to Strongwell's face, "I've got her where I want her now, if I can only keep her so long enough. Old man, you must help me out. Don't desert me now, when you have got me this treasure. I never dreamed her face could reflect emotion as it does. hat there is too devastating a sadness in it. She is swamped in grief. You be here when she comes tomorrow and talk to her. If she's lost this expression, just say something or other that will recall the situation her husband is in. After all this stuck Italian may die and the hangman make a widow of Chiara. But if she's too sad, and the expression is diminished as it was today," he added, looking critically at his canvas, "cheer her up. Make her feel hopeful and that sort of thing. Will you?"

Ferris was intensely serious despite his impetuous enthusiasm. Strongwell could not forbear smiling at this ingenious scheme of playing on the poor creature's heartstrings to bring out nuances of expression in her mobile face. He said quickly: "Do you reflect that you are asking me to act as a moral executioner, to torture this poor, ignorant, trusting thing to help you make a picture?"

"Torture nothing!" exclaimed Ferris excitedly. "Isn't there a bright side and a dark side and each of them true? And wouldn't any sensible being consider them both?"

Then as Strongwell slowly shook his head in refutation of this sophistry Ferris rsmoned eagerly: "Well, I'll tell you what you can do. I've got an idea. What I want is to catch her face as the anguish of sorrow and fear melts into the support of hope and comfort. Now, whether she goes up from pain to joy or comes down from joy to pain the blending point of transition should be the same, and that is what I want. See here! She is likely to come tomorrow morning, and you can tell her the tidings of the night, and she'll be nlear than indigo. I hope she does," he added impatiently, "for you are only a subject to trying to soothe her and make her feel better. I'll have my camera set behind that screen, covered with draperies. I'll go in there, you talk to her, and when she reaches the crossroads I'll snap her off! See? Don't you that, won't you, Strongwell?" he concluded pleadingly.

"Yes, I'll do that with pleasure," replied his friend. "I'm willing enough to comfort her."

The scheme worked to a charm. Chiara presented herself the next day fathome deep in fresh sorrow. Ferris explained that he had to do some work first and that she could talk with Strongwell in the meantime. That confederate in the holy treachery of art got the poor woman placed suitably for the camera and began his role of comforter to the afflicted. Chiara's first question dowed her frame of mind.

"They can't hang him till they try him first, can they?" she asked hroughly.

"No," said Strongwell calmly, repressing his first inclination to a heartiform of assertion. Then he suggested one thing after another that was likely to soothe. He dwelt on Signor Degni's robust health, the likelihood of his promptly rallying from a little pin prick of a stiletto wound and intimated that the astonishingly extenuating circumstances of her husband's honorable action in the matter would soften judge and jury to leniency.

He had been pouring this balm of Gilead on the woman's bruised soul only a few moments when he heard an approving click from behind the screen. As he deftly continued enacting the role of consoler several other small but vivacious snaps applauded his success. Ferris from behind his ambuscade was "winging" the soul of Chiara in its upward flight as it was shadowed on her face.

Strongwell kept playing on the keyboard of the woman's heart, an adagio con gioia, un poco accelerando, a rondo anything but capriccioso, until Ferris stepped briskly forth from his retreat with a beaming face.

"If they come out well, I've got it to a T," he muttered excitedly to Strongwell, with an eloquently grateful glance at that generous accomplice. "Still, she'll have to come tomorrow, because if they don't print well we'll have to do it all over again. I wouldn't lose her now for a farm."

He gave Chiara $2 in the expansion of heart consequent on the day's work. The plates developed perfectly. He got half a dozen photographs, each with a different, but most helpful expression. Each was a station where Chiara's soul had unloaded grief. For the remaining sittings Ferris needed his model only for the figure, and they went rapidly enough. He and his confederate in art drew only on their powers of conciliation now, because, as Ferris remarked, it didn't make a bit of difference how happy she looked.

The outcome of the impulsive conduct of Mr. Francelli was not nearly as bad as it might have been. Degni left the hospital a fortnight later none the worse for his wound and considerably better for the diet. After an absence of some months from his family Antonio Franchini was restored to Chiara and the cherubic Amadeo.

But the most important result of that quarrel was that Homer Ferris realized his ideal as few art workers are able to do. When Strongwell looked upon the solemnly sweet face of "Our Lady of the Innocents," he had no scruple for his share in its accomplishment.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

The St. Paul health department will start a crusade against unwholesome milk.

A court of inquiry has been appointed to sit at St. Paul for the Fifteenth Minnesota.

Edward L. Pratt, Company L, Thirteenth Minnesota, died of smallpox at Manila.

Judge Kelly of St. Paul holds the horse thief bounty law to be unconstitutional.

Colonel Ames of the Thirteenth Minnesota, cables that all the wounded are doing well.

A rapid inspection of renovated hutter under the new law has been proclaimed by the state dairy department.

The Fifteenth Minnesota regiment has been mustered out and most of the men have returned to their homes.

The Minnesota grand council of Royal Arcanum held its annual meeting in Minneapolis the letter part of the week.

Arrangements are being made by the First Baptist church of St. Paul for the celebration of its Fiftieth anniversary.

Railroads in Southern Minnesota have agreed to a new schedule reducing rates on wheat and flax ¼ to 2 cents per hundred pounds.

The young women of the West Superior normal defeated those of Macalester college at basketball. The game was played at St. Paul.

The war department has allowed the claim of the Twelfth Minnesota regiment for expenses incurred while in camp at New Ulm.

Requisition has been made on the Wisconsin authorities for the arrest of Joseph R. Clements, concerned in the wreck of the Fillmore county bank.

Chairman Fred Gerlach of the L. A. W. racing board announces that A. D. Smith, St. Paul, has been appointed handicapper for the Minnesota district.

Teachers in the Moorhead schools will hold an exhibition day April 13, at which time the work and proficiency of the scholars will be viewed by friends and parents.

The acting secretary of the interior has affirmed the decision of the land commissioner, denying the right of the State of Minnesota to certain swamp lands in the St. Cloud district.

Representatives of the Chippewa Indians have held a council at Leech Lake. They oppose the sale of their pine lands and solemnly promise not to be guilty of another outbreak.

Michael Treacy, of Brown, Treacy & Co., St. Paul, was assaulted and robbed of about $500 while going from the first to the third floor of the building to pay the employes.

Creditors of the Scandia bank of Minneapolis are to have two dividends of 3 per cent each declared. One is to come from collections from stockholders and the other from collections made by the receiver.

A. J. Jeremy of Ninigner has filed suit at Whitehall, Wis., in behalf of his stepson, R. W. Bush, against J. A. Marsh and his mother, Mrs. Kate Marsh, for $10,000 damages for personal injuries received by having been repeatedly horsewhipped.

Albert Vance of Winona, who was mustered out of service with Company G of the Fifteenth regiment, is but 15 years of age, and is the youngest war veteran in the army.

According to the St. Paul weather bureau records the March just passed was the coldest and snowiest March of which there is any record. The average temperature for the month was 16 degrees, against a general average of 31. The precipitation for the month was 2.87 inches, against an average of 1.43 inches.

The so-called timber land question, as far as the Minnesota reservations are concerned, has been settled. Secretary Hitchcock and Commissioner Jones say that the sale had been postponed. The secretary's order includes the stoppage of all estimating, logging and every matter connected with the cedar timber land question.

Captain Mercer, the recently appointed United States Indian agent at Leech lake, and Red lake sub-agencies, has notified Major J. A. Sutherland, the agent in charge, that he is ready to receive the property and will formally take charge of the said agencies. Major Sutherland will remain in charge of the Chippewa Indian agency.

The Superior Shipbuilding company has been incorporated under the laws of Virginia, with a capital stock of $1,400,000. The ship yard will be built at Duluth. It is stated that Andrew Peterson, the inventor of the steel "whalleback" barges, is back of the company, and that it will fight the shipbuilding combination recently completed on the great lakes.

In consideration of the Great Northern agreeing to erect a depot in the city, the city council agreed to cease collecting title to the depot property near the union depot which has been in litigation for some time, and to abandon Jackson street bridge proposition. Special meetings of both bodies were held and the ordinance rushed through under suspension of the rules. Building of new shops will begin at once.

At the closing session of the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. at Minneapolis, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: J. M. Dunn of Owatonna, grand master workman; Thomas White, Duluth, grand foreman; F. E. Anderson, Winona, grand overseer; Adolf Olsen, Willmar, grand recorder; J. J. McCardy, St. Paul, grand receiver; Alexander Bruce, grand trustee; M. S. Tifft, Glencoe, grand guide; J. F. Creamer, Crookston, grand inside watchman; F. W. Hanberg, Brainerd, grand outside watchman.

FINALLY GIVES UP

CUBAN ASSEMBLY VOTES TO DISBAND THE ARMY.

Muster Rolls Will Be Put in Shape and Turned Over to General Brooke—Little Opposition Shown—Decision to Go Out of Business Carried by a Vote of 31 for to 1 Against—Action Taken Will Hasten the Work of Reconstruction on the Island.

HAVANA, April 3.—The Cuban assembly has voted to disband the Cuban army and disolve. The vote was in favor against 1 opposed. The muster rolls were left in the possession of the executive committee of the assembly who will facilitate the preparation of copies for Governor General Brooke.

The final session of the assembly lasted four hours and was calm and dispassionate. After the motion to disband the army was carried the assembly entered upon the details and methods of disbandment. A new executive committee was appointed to attend to the routine work and this committee will supply to General Brooke the copies of the Cuban muster rolls.

Salvator Cisneros of Puerto Principe, who was chosen president of the Cuban republic at the meeting of the provincial delegates at Puerto Principe Sept. 23, 1895, and was ultimately succeeded by Senor Bartolomo Masso, was the only member to vote against the resolutions to disband and to dissolve. To the very last he declared that, in my event, the resolution to disolve was unconstitutional and that he would never give up his position until a new assembly had been elected.

The resolution adopted calls for the disbanding of the army with permission to the soldiers to accept money from the United States. The various amendments had to do with the details of disorganization.

PLEASES THE OFFICIALS.

Work of Reconstruction Can Now Proceed More Rapidly.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The news of the Cuban assembly's vote for immediate dissolution and disbandment of the army was received here with relief and gratification. The prolonged struggle over the payment of the Cuban army had begun to embarrass the success of the authorities here. The administration now looks for more rapid progress in the work of reconstruction of the island and less difficulty in instituting reforms generally.

The vote, 21 to 1, shows the lack of a quorum on the basis of the original organization of 46 members, but the apparent insignificance of this is weakened by the fact that numerous members of the assembly left it without ceremony on account of its attitude.

REVOLUTION PROBABLE.

General Feeling of Unrest Throughout Macedonia.

LONDON, April 4.—In connection with the collision between the Turkish and Bulgarian frontier guards at Kooy Agoh, between Lamboli and Adrianople, a correspondent in Macedonia writes to The Pall Mall Gazette concerning the seething condition in the Balkans. He says:

"Grave consequences cannot be deferred much longer. The whole province is armed and matters are rapidly drifting into open revolution. The people are drilling for the coming struggle and the country is virtually in a state of siege. Turkish troops have been massed to the east of the disturbed districts, concentrating chiefly in the north, and reinforcements are arriving daily. Detachments guard the Oriental railway from Salonica to the Servian border, and the garrison towns are packed with soldiers. There is a widespread impression throughout the land that momentous events are impending. There is a general feeling of unrest everywhere, trade is at an absolute standstill and the Ottomans are preparing in deadly earnest beacuse they are convinced that Bulgaria is at the bottom of the troubles in Macedonia, and will certainly actively support the people's rising, encouraged by Russian influences. It is estimated that 100,000 men are under arms, ready for action in the immediate repression of the rebellion.

PASSES ARE BRIBES.

Law Passed by the Wisconsin Senate So Declares.

MADISON, Wis., April 5.—The most sweeping anti-pass measure ever received in any state legislature passed the senate without debate. It was introduced as a substitute measure and is the result of the conference which reported a constitutional amendment.

Not only does it make it unlawful for state, county and city officials and employes to use passes, but it makes it a state prison offense of from one to five years to use a pass in attending political conventions. It makes violations of the law bribery.

SALISBURY ACCEPTS.

Tripartite Commission Will Settle the Venezuelan Difficulty.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Lord Salisbury has accepted the plan proposed by Germany for the settlement of the Samoan trouble by the appointment of a tripartite commission. The acceptance is on the broad principle only, and details of the arrangement are yet to be agreed upon. As the United States has already accepted the general proposition there is no longer doubt as to the organization of the commission.

Municipal Ownership Won.

TOLEDO, O., April 4.—S. M. Jones, who was a candidate for mayor on an independent ticket with a platform of municipal ownership of utilities, has been elected by at least 5,000 plurality and probably a majority over all. The contest was marked by great spirit.

ARE YOU A RENTER

—A farmer's son unable to procure a farm near home, or burdened with taxes, heavy mortgages, impoverished soil, and failure of crops?

IF SO

the solution to your troubles is offered by the Canadian Government—every born Hoosier getting a

FREE HOMESTEAD

of 160 acres of the best land on the face of the globe. Wheat, cattle, mixed farming. No 1 Hard Wheat, specially grown in Canada, the average yield is from 30 to 40 bushels to the acre. Schools, churches, &c., convenient, climate is the healthiest, the soil the best. For information apply (before Sept. 1st) to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government Agent,
124 E. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Crookston, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villard, Minn., local agents.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

FARM PROFITS

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year.

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.
With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH.

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75
MONARCH ROADSTERS $60
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 25 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Janie Bartlett, Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal,

BY W. S. GORDON.

1.50 Subscription $1.50 per year in advance.

Resident at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1899.

BRYAN and Belmont, two Bs, and yet no one thinks of them in connection.

THE attempt of the populists and democrats to demoralize the republican party and cause a split in the vote of that party was not very successful. Only two fusionists were elected.

THERE are to be two Jefferson dinners in New York on Jefferson's birthday, given by the two factions of the Democratic party. There is to be a ten dollars a plate affair and there is to be one where the plates are but a dollar a piece. It is ten to one that Jefferson, if he were alive, would not affiliate with either crowd.

A COURT of inquiry has been appointed to examine into the conduct of Capt. Lennhauser, 25th U. S. Infantry, (formerly colonel of the 15th Minnesota Volunteers) on the occasion of and in connection with the mutiny that occurred at Augusta, Georgia. This will incidentally give the officers of the 15th who were severely censured by their commanding officer a chance to show whether General Young's strictures were merited or not.

THE Fosston woolen mills are in full operation now, six days in the week. Samples being turned out by this mill, of flannels, blankets, mackinaw goods, etc., cannot be excelled by any mill in the country. This is the verdict of experts who have visited the mill and seen the product thereof. And the custom work that is being done every day gives entire satisfaction, the farmers who have had business to do with the institution thus far being united in their approval of the way the mill is conducted.

MR. BRYAN is reported to have said that "what the Lord's supper is to the Christian, so is a Jefferson banquet to a Democrat," and that "just as a good Christian would revolt at having the sacrament administered by an infidel, so a good Democrat objects to having a Jefferson banquet presided over by Perry Belmont." Such comparisons are in very bad taste, not to say sacreligious, still they express the man. The more Mr. Bryan talks the more he shows himself incompetent to fill the high office of president which fortunately he will never reach.

THE state grain inspection department has issued a small book with paper cover, containing general information concerning state inspection, weighing, and handling of grain, also public warehouses and state registration. The rules which govern the wheat inspectors in grading the grain are given in full. A detailed account is given of how the grain is handled at terminal points, and several pages are devoted to giving advice to country shippers. We think that there is much in the book that would be valuable to farmers.

"The people of the city expressed themselves through the ballot on last Tuesday the 4th inst. and it behooves every citizens to examine well the results as to see what they mean. It is clearly evident that the republicans are still in control. Mr. Stephens who bloated the so-called citizens' party ticket, it is true, was elected, but he has insisted throughout the short campaign that he was still a republican, so there is no glory for the fusionists in his election to the mayoralty. Four aldermen-elect are republicans, one is independent and the sixth, a democrat, was elected by a small majority. Republicans were elected to all the other offices save one, so really out of 14 candidates only two fusionists were successful.

THE American forces in the Philippines have been forced to take the offensive against Aguialdo, and they are waging a magnificent campaign. Reports of daring dashes on shore on the part of our brave boys in blue reach this country every day. But many have fallen on the battlefield and the question is whether the anticipated results of this struggle are worth this sacrifice. Fearful though it may seem life must be sacrificed wherever progress is made. The Filipinos' are yet in the infancy of life and must be governed till they are nearer the age of manhood. The United States is not crushing a people fighting for their liberty. True freedom can only be attained under law and restraint and if these natives were left alone license and not law would prevail. For humanity's sake we must force them to submit to us and then we will teach them the ways that lead to freedom.

A JOINT high commission of Germany, Great Britain, and the United States is likely to be appointed to settle the Samoan trouble. The world done indeed move. It was an imposing sight and one that marked a long advance in civilization to see Great Britain and the United States standing side by side in upholding what they judged was justice in the Samoan Islands.

THE JOURNAL supported Mr. Stevenson because we believed he would make a good mayor and because he was the regular nominee of the republican convention. Now that Mr. Stephens has been elected, however, we do not propose to oppose his administration. It is our intention whenever and wherever we can conscientiously to give him our assistance, and we thing it is the duty of all citizens, laying aside any personal feelings that may arise, to co-operate with the administration in an attempt to make the coming year one of the most successful in the history of the city.

JULIAN M. PALMER, who has been connected with the Transcript for a number of years, goes to Crookston this week in the employ of N. S. Gordon. Mr. Palmer has been a faithful and trusty employee on this paper and we wish him the greatest success in the change which he has voluntarily made. He has a wide acquaintance in Mower county: Mower County Transcript.

Mr. Palmer worked for the present editor of the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL for nearly nine years, while we were publishing the Mower County Transcript. He arrived in Crookston last Friday evening, and will have charge of the subscription and advertising part of the JOURNAL. We can heartily recommend Mr. Palmer and guarantee that all orders and money given him will be promptly returned to this office. We thank for him a kindly welcome at the hands of the residents of Polk County.

Notes From Exchanges.

St. Hilaire Spectator: H. T. Marray is now the proud possesor of a black thorne cane which he values very highly. It was presented to the genial conductor by Judge Ives last Friday in a round about way.

Many farmers express themselves as being anxious to go into the business of sheep raising, now that the mill is established upon a solid, substantial basis, and this means much for the community residing hereabouts: Thirteen Towns.

Detroit Record: A. C. Billon, of Crookston, was in Detroit last week looking the field over with a view to engaging in business here. We understand that he has decided to come here, and that he will open a jewelry store in the room now occupied by Chas. Hume, in the Nunn building.

Austin Daily Herald: Julian Palmer, who for nine years has been with the Transcript, severs his connection with that paper this week. He has taken a similar position to the one he had in Austin, with N. S. Gordon now of Crookston. Mr. Palmer has many friends throughout the country. He will boom Mr. Gordon's paper's circulation for he knows how to do it.

Norman County Herald: Crookston has three dailies, the Peoples Press being the latest in the field. It is an old saying that there can not be too much of a good thing and probably that holds good in this case—for Crookston. Crookston is a good town but we would not give a confederate paper dollar for an option on its three dailies on condition that they should all be kept alive.

A petition for a drainage ditch through the big swamp south of town was put up in circulation this week and will be presented to the county board as soon as the necessary procedure has been gone through with. This is an improvement that should have been taken up long ago as it will accomplish much in the way of reclaiming waste lands and furnishing drainage for roads at a trifling expense: McIntosh Times.

Grand Forks Herald: According to the most liberal construction of the statute, the person who has not begun his residence in North Dakota before midnight tonight, April 1, cannot bring suit for divorce in this state under the 90 day clause. It is not likely that any would-be applicants for divorce have delayed their arrival until the last day fixed by law, therefore it may safely be assumed that the days of divorce colonization in North Dakota are over. For all of which the state has reason to be thankful.

McIntosh Tribune: Reports from Klondike to the effect that P. F. Bodine, the founder of the Tribune of this city, is dead, are current, though lacking confirmation, the report bears a semblance of truth. Mr. Bodine left here for the Klondike something over a year since and has been heard but little of since that time. The report of his death comes through a mutual friend who states that a friend of his who was acquainted with Mr. Bodine has advised him that the former died of scurvey and lack of exercise after a three days illness.

The New York Outlook: The Atlantic Monthly strikes the note of leadership, and this is precisely the note that the Atlantic ought to strike. With its fine traditions, its associations with the best literature, and its loyalty to the highest interests of American civilization, the Atlantic Monthly has a great position and opportunity as an educational force. It can no longer be regarded as expressing in any exclusive way the sentiment of New England. It has caught the National tone and it is as a force in the development of the National life that it can render its greatest service.

Glenwood Herald: Ole Telgen was a pleasant caller upon Glenwood friends last Monday. Ole has lately stepped into business with both feet so to speak, having been chosen as the secretary, treasurer and general manager of the Scandia Hail Insurance Co., lately organized at Crookston, Minn. An honorable, intelligent and painstaking young man is Mr. T., and the affairs of the company cannot help prospering under his efficient management.

Thirteen Towns: There is a saw mill outfit in the vicinity of Teeklu that is causing the residents of that vicinity much trouble this winter, the principal business, apparently, of this disreputable gang is the stealing of logs, their work being done in the night and their loot taken by day. Settlers have had their logs taken from beside their houses and sawed up before they missed them. This saw mill crew have even attempted to terrorize people about there, threatening them bodily injury if they meddled. Not only do the settlers suffer, but Uncle Sam's pine is being freely appropriated by them.

Pioneer Press. One of the legislative visitors to the Stillwater prison asked James Younger if he took much interest in the proceedings relative to the parole bill. There was a world of pathos in the reply.

"Yes," he said, "sometimes I close my eyes and watch the proceedings in the legislature and wonder what they will do. It seems sometimes like some of the dreams of my childhood and I wonder if it is real, if, perhaps, my hopes will be realized or my fears will prove true."

There is little change in the Youngers since the last time the legislature visited the prison. They are both old men, with but a few years left them at best.

Duluth News Tribune: Speaking of telephone systems, the city of Stockholm, Sweden, supports one that costs a subscriber about $5 per year. It is controlled by the government, and there is hardly a residence in Stockholm and the neighboring towns not connected with the central office, which occupies ten stories of an immense square tower in the middle of the city. The telephone tax is levied in the same manner as the water tax is levied in the cities of the United States. It is so insignificant that the poorest wage earners can afford to have telephones in their houses, and even now every fifth house is connected with the central office. In the large hotels there is a telephone in every room connected with the sub-central in the hotel office.

Red Lake County Courier:—Ed Wilcox's prowess as a hunter of "big game" is well known in Thief River Falls, but last week he had a thrilling experience which he is not likely to forget soon. Having been out from camp all day looking for—working as he was returning he saw a large moose in a tamarack swamp. As the moose are at this season protected by law, Ed paid very little (?) attention to him, but, when the animal charged straight for him it was more than Ed. could put up with and he fired and dropped the moose. Calling to his companions they went to examine their capture, when to their chagrin it proved to be Ed's favorite horse. As they watched the expiring beast Ed. was heard to mutter "consarn yel that will teach you. Next time you will stay where you are picketed."

Aitkin Age: Unless the administration soon makes up its mind to get rid of Alger and his pets, Mr. McKinley may possibly discover the whereabouts of the "White Man's Burden" on a certain close and balmy day in June 1900. It is to be regretted that an otherwise broadgauged and wise administration should be marred by the blunders of an incompetent head of the war department. And President McKinley will be compelled to bear more of the responsibility for Algerism than he will probably care to.

Little Falls Transcript: As soon as the snow leaves the ground the demand for labor will be greater than it has been since 1890. Employment agents and contractors alike agree that the common laborer will be in such demand that he will really become common, and can therefore have a whole lot to say about what his price will be. Already they are paying $2 a day for the simplest kind of work on the railroad lines now building in Idaho, and it is impossible to get enough men, even at that figure.

Literary Notes.

AMERICAN MONTHLY.

In the American Monthly Review of Reviews for April the editor reviews the work of the Fifty-fifth Congress, examines the present status of the various plans for inter-oceanic ship transit, discusses the latest developments in the Philippine situation, and comments on the other news topics of the day in home and foreign politics, including the cabinet change in Spain and the altered relations of Germany, England, and the United States.

The cartoon department of the April Review of Reviews is largely devoted to the subject of "The White Man's Burden" as represented by the caricaturists.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for April publishes an interesting line of comment on the attitude of the American public toward Rudyard Kipling, as illustrated during his recent illness in New York City.

ANTHONY HOPE'S NEW ROMANCE.

Anthony Hope's new romance, which he has just finished, is called "The Countess Emilia," and has been purchased by The Ladies' Home Journal, in which periodical it will immediately begin. The story is about a beautiful Countess. She has quarreled with her husband; and they have decided to live in seclusion in separate wings of the castle. This they do until Captain Dieppe, who becomes a member of the household, inadvertently opens a door, through which are revealed to him the apartments of the exiled Countess, with the beautiful occupant standing in a doorway. The Captain falls in love with the young woman, and from this point there is not a moment's cessation in the romantic adventures which ensue in the castle, its gardens and neighboring places of residence.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

Professor John Fiske in the April Atlantic treats the ever engrossing question of the Mystery of Evil in a profound and thoughtful paper in which he embodies the results of his own researches and the writings of religious and philosophical authors, and draws a conclusion that cannot fail to interest all thinking and reflecting people.

The continuation of the fascinating Reminiscences of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe in the April Atlantic covers the years from eighteen hundred and fifty to sixty, and relates her Boston experiences, in addition to recollections of a winter spent in Rome and a trip to Cuba, in the meantime. Her sketches, anecdotes, and descriptions of Prof. Agassiz, the famous Count Gurowski, Edwin Booth, Arthur Hugh Clough the English poet, and others of that time are of absorbing interest and freshness.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

The Hon. John A. T. Hull, chairman of the committee on Military Affairs, contributes to the April number of the "North American Review" an interesting paper on "The Organization of the Army." Mr. Hull describes particularly the provisions of the army organization bill recently passed by the Fifty-fifth Congress. That bill in its finished state is by no means as the worst kind of patchwork, which does not meet the approval of any man familiar with the subject.

"Public Schools and Parents' Duties" forms the theme of a very clever article by Julian Hawthorne in the "North American Review" for April. Touching upon American parents neglect of their children, Mr. Hawthorne says: "We do not do our duty by them. It is too soft an expression to say that we entrust them to the State; we abandon them to it. We pay for their book-learning, and their amusements; but we deny them what it is our chief concern to give them—opportunity to develop character. Yet it is in order to afford them that opportunity we, as parents exist.

Republican Committees.

CITY CENTRAL

R. J. Montague. G. A. Ralph
W. A. Lanctot. N. S. Gervais.
C. A. Myers. T. G. Thompson.
C. C. Strander.

FIRST WARD.

N. S. Gordon.
A. G. Anderson.
James Greenhalgh.

SECOND WARD

George Ralph, chairman.
Alfred Rosberg.
John Monroe.

THIRD WARD

M. R. Brown.
G. S. Chesterman.
August Munn.

FOURTH WARD.

J. C. Sathre. T. A. Harris.
John McLean. H. R. Robertson.
Frank Jerome.

Easy to Take Easy to Operate

Are features peculiar to Hood's Pills. Small in size, tasteless, efficient, thorough. As one man said: "You never know you have taken a pill till it's all over." So. C. I. Hood & Co., Proprietors, Lowell, Mass. The only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills

Elsewhere.

The people of Northfield where the Younger brothers and the Jessie James gang robbed the bank and shot two men, are up in arms against the Younger parole bill.

The Grand Forks authorities are having the school children of that city vaccinated as a precaution against small pox which has appeared in small towns west and north of there.

The National Editorial Association has planned for a telp to Europe this summer.

A Cass Lake dispatch says that an Eastern publishing house is contemplating putting up a large pulp and paper mill at that place in the near future.

Marconi, the famous inventor, has been experimenting with wireless telegraphy between England and France. A hundred word dispatch was sent by the Marconi system to the London Times over a distance of 32 miles.

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

United States Map, 15c A copy of our handsome map, 48x48 inches, printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money order. We cannot well use postage stamps. GEO. H. LYMAN, General Passenger Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal, Morrisey's Foundry.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give on the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

There are 512 inmates of the Stillwater penitentiary.

The sale of the pine timber lands on the Chippewa Indian reservation has been postponed indefinitely. The sale was to have come off in May.

Joe Durick an employee in the Troy laundry at Grand Forks had one of his fingers, last week, caught between the rollers of a polishing machine, and so badly crushed that amputation at the first joint was necessary.

Ex-governor Pillsbury, president of the board of regents, told the legislatures when the latter visited the state university last Saturday that the amount required by the university and school of agriculture outside of the regular current expense maintenance fund aggregates $265,000.

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

—J. W. Wheeler has money to lend. You will find him at the First National bank of Crookston.

—If you wish to borrow money on easy terms see J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

—A. N. Hixson has sold the last half section of his farm in Lowell, the east half of section 16, to Julius Winsel.

SEED WHEAT

A few hundred bushels of good clean seed wheat for sale.
9-50 VANCE & STONE.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

H. STEENERSON.
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Robert street, Crookston, Minn.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—I. J. Elwood was in from Beltrami Monday.

—Geo. Webb of Euclid was in the city Tuesday.

—E. R. white, of Fisher, was here on Sunday last.

—The Fertile Journal got out a special Easter edition.

—J. O. Sether was down from Hallock Saturday last.

—Silvert O Reksdal was in from the town of Liberty Monday.

—Col. Tim Sheehan, deputy U. S. Marshal, was in the city Friday.

—Herbert Fuller of Thief River Falls spent Tuesday in Crookston.

—Chas. E. Bonighton of Red Lake Falls was here over Monday night.

—Mr. S. L. Collins' father from Bellevue, Iowa, is making his son a visit.

—Attorney H. W. Lee, of Thief River Falls, spent Monday night in Crookston.

—Misses Dunn and Hamba Elchhoff spent last Sunday at Fisher visiting with friends.

—The Salvation army of Crookston may organize a corps of the army at Red Lake Falls.

—Dr. G. A. Morley, specialist, eye, ear, nose and throat. Office, Rickett block, Crookston, Minn.

—James Meehan passed through the city Friday on his way from Milwaukee to Thief River Falls.

—Miss Clara Mugean returned Saturday from Grand Forks where she spent a few days visiting with friends.

—Miss Sadie Cashman, one of the teachers in the Fertile public schools, spent last Sunday in the city.

—W. Lemm, of Angus, returned Friday from Virginia where he has been spending several months.

—In the probate court last Friday there was placed on file the will of Segrid P. Milford, of Fosston.

—Archie Shannon, a former resident of Crookston, was back last Monday shaking hands with old friends.

—Miss Esther Roy, a pupil of the Crookston high school, is spending the Easter vacation at her home in Fosston.

—Miss Jean Woodall is spending the spring vacation on the Lockhart farm with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McPhee.

—Agent Shankey, of the Northern Pacific, took a trip to Brainerd last Thursday evening returning Saturday morning.

—Fred Lucian, principal of the schools at Mallory, is spending this week, the spring vacation, at his home in this city.

—Miss Winifred Griffin left Tuesday morning for Red Lake Falls to spend the rest of the spring vacation there as a visiting friends.

—Chas. Ward came up from Ada last Monday morning and took the train for Stephen where he will attend to some business.

—Miss Melissa King, of McIntosh, who was the guest of Mrs. Charles Ritchcock for about ten days returned last Saturday morning to her home.

—Mr. J. Scarrott and family have gone to Bemidji where they will make their future home. Mr. Scarrott will engage in the boat building business.

—Attorney F. C. Musser came over from East Grand Forks last Tuesday morning and started north in connection with the Rowan country where he has some legal business to transact.

—Among the many improvements which the Crookston Lumber company are making in their sawmill lumber yards in South Crookston the latest is a huge furnace for reduce the waste from the mill.

—A very pleasant time was spent the parlors of the M. E. church it Friday night. Charades were a feature of the evening, still other entertainment was provided. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies.

—Dr. A. A. Just left Sunday night St. Paul. There he will be joined Dr. Rutledge of Grand Forks and together they will proceed at once Chicago where they will take up clal medical studies for a month six weeks.

—Mrs. W. E. McKenzie and Miss re Porter left for Chicago Monnight. Miss Olive will visit her sister Miss Tillie Portter in ngo and also with Miss Emily ms who is at present living in of the Gulf States

The question of the county attorship of Beltrami county is not rst settled. O. M. Skinvik and Street were the candidates for office last fall and the result of election was a tie. That the ter may be finally decided a hearwill be had before Attorney Gen Douglas April 6th upon the tion as to whether that officer fause a writ of quo warranto.

—S. C. Bagley went east on the Duluth train Monday.

—Chris Ranson and wife of Lowell spent Sunday in Crookston.

—Robert Stanton, of Grand Forks, spent Monday in Crookston.

—Ira C. Richardson, of Thief River Falls, was in the city Sunday.

—Rev. A. P. Fisher lectured at Edna last Friday night.

—Miss Nettie Gleason has been visiting with relatives in Grand Forks.

—Fred Smith has been spending the spring vacation with friends in Red Lake Falls.

—David Ruggard has sold a quarter of section 22 to town of Crookston to Arnold Weber Jr.

—Miss Julia Theberge left Monday morning for Angus near which place she will teach school this spring.

—M. J. Laity has sold his house and lot on Ronston avenue to H. F. Brown, the price received being $2600.

—W. L. Vannet spent Monday night in Fertile. The occasion was a brilliant social function in that burg.

—Messrs J. Creighton and O. Hanson went to Cass Lake Monday to look after the handling of a large quantity of logs.

—G. T. Goodwin, and not C. A. Tuller, as the JOURNAL stated last week, is the present night operator of the Great Northern.

—And still Sam Wallace keeps improving the interior of his drug store. A new prescription case and two new show cases are the latest.

—Miss Enderle and Harvey, of the Ada Corps of teachers, are spending the spring holidays in the city at the home of Sylvester Peterson.

—R. W. Hitchcock, supt. of the Fosston public schools, was in the city last Thursday looking out for a new teacher for next year.

—Miss Bessie Redemour, of Bemidji, who has been doing some copying work in the U. S. land office here returned home last Saturday morning.

—One of the Fosston boys of the 15th regiment of Minnesota volunteers, just mustered out, brought back with him from Georgia a possum.

—Joseph Whitfield has purchased the meat market so long successfully run by George Vine and he will carry on the butcher business at the old stand.

—Jud La Moure one of the great moguls in the political arena in North Dakota passed through the city Monday en route to his home at Fargo.

—Miss Grace Lussier who has been teaching this winter at Dugdale closes her term this week and next week will begin a spring term of school out near Mallory.

—Mrs. Alex McKinnon left Sunday night for Montreal in response to a telegram saying that her mother was dangerously ill. Mrs. McKinnon will probably remain in Canada for some time.

—The West Superior Normal school has a famous basket ball team of which Miss Ida Stone, of this city, is a member. These players recently won a game from the young ladies of Macalester college.

—E. A. Nelson, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the house, came up from the capitol Friday and went up to his home at Hallock where he remained till after Sunday.

—The linemen of the Crookston Telephone exchange company are busy these days putting in new telephones, but merely in business places but in private houses.

—The people of Crookston hailing from Wahpeton and a number of their friends held a dance at the G. A. R. hall last Monday night. The time was spent very pleasantly indeed.

—M. E. Hirbin and Fred Shaw were at Grand Forks Monday attending a meeting of the Minnesota and North Dakota agents of the New York Life Insurance company.

—Miss Annie Thompson, of McIntosh, after spending several weeks in the hospital in this city returned last Saturday to her home very much improved in health. Miss Thompson is a daughter of Mr. Thompson who has charge of Elken's shoe store.

—Miss Mayme Vannet, who has been for several months acting as bookkeeper for the hardware firm of Erikson and Vannet, returned last Sunday night to her home at Fertile. She expects in a short time to begin teaching school in the district near East Grand Forks where she has taught for several terms.

—Sunday morning Dr. W. A. Robertson, dentist, McKinnon block, resorted to his old habit of waking up his office stove by throwing in kerosene with the result of blowing out a door and enveloping his assistant Mr. D. G. Smith in flames, completely spoiling his overcoat and burning his head as it does, and burning off his eyebrows and lashes and right side of his hair.

—James Gilmour, of Nesbit, was in the city Monday.

—C. S. Wels, of Warren, sojourned in the city Monday night.

—Cake walk at the Medford hall on Broadway tomorrow night.

—J. G. Johnson, of Perley, spent Tuesday in the city with friends.

—Cedar posts, 12½ to 15 cents a piece, for sale at S. C. Johnson's feed store.

—D. R. Sveen, civil engineer of the Northern Pacific, was in Crookston Tuesday.

—C. E. Sawyer was a passenger on the St. Hilaire train yesterday morning.

—Miss Ethel Milne, of Grand Forks, spent Sunday in Crookston with her sister, Mrs. H. B Finch.

—Geo. Q. Erskine is back from Hot Springs, Arkansas, where he has spent part of the winter.

—Fred G. Rauch was called to Fergus Falls Monday night by the serious illness of his mother.

—M. O. Sortedahl went out to Red Lake Falls yesterday morning to look after his abstract business.

J. Hazeltine, of Euclid, has left for Wisconsin where he will in future manage the large Hazeltine estate near Madison.

—Company L. of Crookston and other companies of the 14th Regiment of Minnesota are planning to hold a reunion some time this summer.

—All interest in the election at Grand Forks centred in the city treasurership for which office there were six candidates. Mr. Brockhoff won over the next highest man by 137 votes.

—During March there were 68 homestead entries at the U. S. land office, 65 reservation entries, 23 final proofs, 15 cash entries and 1 final timber culture. The total receipts were $3,624.21.

—Mrs. C. P. Cahoon has received word from her husband who is in the Klondike gold fields. He was well at the writing of the letter and with in a few miles of his claim on Porcupine Creek.

—Attorney Street was in from Bemidji Monday on his way to the Capital of the State, where the Beltrami county attorneyship contest case is to be heard before Attorney General Douglas.

—Bert Buckman, a former Crookston boy who has been absent for some three years, is spending a few days in the city visiting relatives and friends. While away, Bert has been working in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

—The name of T. H. Graham, who was a candidate for the office of city treasurer of East Grand Forks, was taken from the ticket by order of Judge Watts. Mr. Graham not being legally qualified to fill the office.

—Judge Ives and Ben Strawbridge will have opposition at Cass Lake in their newspaper venture. A couple of weeks ago the Cass Lake Independent was published for the first time, Kendall Clark as proprietor and editor.

—Mr. J. Fleming is making arrangements to build on his new farm near the city as soon as the weather will permit. He has recently sold his land at Burlington and received in exchange part of the large farm of A. N. Hixson.

—Ed. Gilbertson has sold his sawing machine business to E. J. Keatling and will blcsset enter upon a new line of work. He has bought the restaurant next to the postoffice and will be ready next week at his new quarters to meet and serve in first class style new and old friends.

—Charley Lohn, court reporter for the 14th judicial district, leaves in a few days for Minneapolis where he will spend the next month in pre paring in the courts there. He returns the middle of May in time to accompany Judge Watts to Roseau for the spring term of court in that county.

—Ben Strawbridge went out to Cass Lake Monday morning to look over the field and make further arrangements for starting the newspaper that is to be published by Judge Ives and himself. He expects to return to Crookston in the morning to stay a few days and then go for good.

—Attorney Keefe was up from Fertile last Saturday. He is representing that town in a case against John Tuff. The latter brought some horses to Fertile not long ago and shortly after they arrived it was discovered that some of them were diseased and hence had to be quarantined. The town is suing to recover money thus expended.

—The chairmanship of the Supervisors of the town of King had to go begging this spring. Chairman elect, J. J. Airick, failed to qualify, and the retiring chairman refused to continue. The appointing board, therefore, used their personalve power to induce Tallak Askon to accept the place and Mr. Askon was consequently duly installed.

—Henry Peterson is back from Hot Springs, Ark.

—Mrs. Finlayson went out to her farm at Angus last Tuesday.

—M. R. Brown went east on the Duluth train Tuesday morning.

—Attorney H. W. Lee returned from the Twin Cities this morning.

—A. C. Wilkinson was a passenger on the St. Hilaire train this morning.

—The Worth While club give an entertainment at the College hall this evening.

—Two men from Michigan who are looking for land claims reached the city this morning.

—W. J. Murphy, of the Minneapolis Tribune, is in the city today looking after his business interests here.

—The social held at the Baptist church in south Crookston last Monday evening was a great success.

It is rumored that the lumber firm of Meehan Bros. have sold their interests at Thief River Falls to capitalists from Wisconsin.

—Robert Morrison, deputy U. S. Marshal, passed through Crookston last Tuesday en route east on the Duluth line on legal business.

—Rev. E. F. Spicer, pastor of the Methodist Church at Warren and Rev. A. E. Swenson of this city will exchange pulpits next Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Halvor Steenerson left for St. Paul Tuesday night where in that city Mr. Steenerson will argue a case before the supreme court.

—Red Lake county peoplesthll hope to work their little game of getting more money from Polk county than they are either legally or legitimately entitled to.

—J. E. Gossman and Deputy Sheriff Losey went to St. Paul last night on business. While there he will use the opportunity to visit the legislature.

—Arthur Kirsch is spending part of his spring vacation at Duluth.

—Special services are held at the Congregational church every evening this week excepting Saturday evening.

—D. Ferguson, of Mallory, and P. Rand, of Grand Forks, were given the Royal Arch degree at the Masonic lodge in this city last Monday night.

—Prof. Squires of the English Literature Department of the University of North Dakota is expected to preach in the Congregational church of this city April 16.

—O. H. Linden, a resident of Crookston some fifteen years ago, came in from Duluth, his present home, last Monday and spent a short time in greeting old friends.

—Miss Olive Douglas, one of the Marshall county teachers, returned this morning from Wahpeton where she has been making a visit. She proceeded at once to Argyle.

—F. E. LePage and family have moved out to Mentor where Mr. LePage will open up a hotel. He has been a resident of Crookston for many years and his many friends regret that he has thought it best to move away.

—S. Sivertson, who has been in the butcher business in Erskine, has sold out his family into Crookston and will open up a boarding house. His establishment is located across the Great Northern tracks.

—The collection taken at the Knights Templar service last Sunday afternoon amounted to $24.75. The money was handed over to the Ladies' Relief Society and will be expended in assisting the needy of the city.

—Communion services will be held at the Congregational church next Sunday morning, and in the evening the pastor will give the sixth of a special series of sermons on the great characters of the Bible. The subject will be—"Isaiah the Poet-Statesman."

—Chief Gonyea had the apartments in the basement of the city hall fairly well filled last Monday night, there being the number of lodgers that stopped at police headquarters that night. In the cells on the first floor two plain drunks passed away the time between sunset and sunrise.

The many friends of Joseph Beaubien, an engineer in the employ of the Great Northern railroad, will rejoice to learn that he has been bequeathed an estate valued at $20,000. The property consists of a farm in the county of Beauprs, Mrs. Adam Cell, of Toronto, Canada, who has just died at the age of 83 years.

The train men on the St. Hilaire line were unable to vote at the election on Tuesday as their train was due to leave the city at 8:30 a. m., and unfortunately for them it left on the that day though very frequently it is quite late. Supt. Jenks was requested to allow the train to be held till the men had voted but the request was refused.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

North half of section 12, town of Andover. No buildings. Will rent in tracts to suit. VANCE & STONE.

EASTER SERVICES.

Flowers, Music and Pulpit Eloquence Commingle—Address to Knights Templar by Rev. Fr. Green.

The air was rather too cold to betoken spring time, but the sky was clear and sunshine flooded the city which was indeed particularly fitting upon Easter Day, for gladness and sunshine fill all hearts at the thought that divinness is supreme in the universe.

The day was very appropriately observed. The churches toward which an unusually large number of people wended their way, were decorated with Easter lilies, roses and other kinds of flowers, special music for the day had been prepared by all the church choirs. Six-thirty o'clock in the morning found members seventy of the various young people's religious societies of the city gathered at the Baptist church to take part in a sunrise prayer meeting. Special Easter sermons were preached at most of the churches. In some cases, however, the services were in the hands of the Sunday school, as at the Congregational church in the morning "Easter Lilies" was the theme, the program consisting of songs, recitations and responsive readings, and at the Methodist church in the evening Missionary work was the topic.

In the afternoon the Knights Templar held their regular Easter service at the Baptist church. The service was a very beautiful one and a large audience was present in addition to the Sir Knights themselves. Music was furnished by a quartet consisting of Mrs. Van Arnum, Mrs. Slocum, N. S. Gordon and F. L. Durand, and the address was given by Rev. H. M. Green rector of the Episcopal church.

The night was as the day, no cloud appeared and the stars, "heaven's ministers" shone bright and clear.

Royal Neighbors.

This lodge deserves its name of Royal Neighbors if for no other reason because of the entertainment given last Monday night. The hospitality was unbounded and all present enjoyed a right royal time. The Woodmen were the guests of the evening and these together with outside friends who were invited and the Royal Neighbors themselves made a goodly company. There was dancing and other amusements, lunch was served and all felt that the small hours of the morning came altogether too soon.

Sir Knight Maccabees Surprised.

The Knights of the Maccabees last Monday night held a meeting at which several new members were received into the lodge. After the work was over they were preparing to go home when suddenly the lady Maccabees appeared about sixty strong. The Sir Knights at once changed their minds and remained. The ladies served most delicious refreshments, Miss Legree and Mr. John Crawford gave some readings, after which social chat and dancing were the order. A most enjoyable time was spent by all.

Farmers Confer About Binding Twine.

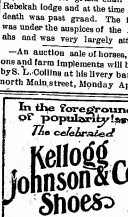
Last Saturday a large number of the farmers of Polk county met in Crookston for the purpose of arranging for buying their binding twine together. L. H. Judson, of the town of Hammond, was elected chairman and Mat Cornelius secretary. In the discussion which took place it was brought out that all the pure manila twine which the plant at Stillwater can make has been ordered, so that only twine of a mixed quality can now be secured. Such arrangements were made that several car loads will be ordered from here.

One of the Old Settlers.

The funeral of Mrs. Skinner whose death was announced in last week's paper occurred at Fisher. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers in that district. She came from Devonshire, England, in 1874, and with her husband settled first at Holly near Clayton removing in 1876 to their farm near Fisher, where they have since resided. For two terms she occupied the noble grand chair of the Rebekah lodge and at the time of her death was past grand. The funeral was under the auspices of the Rebekahs and was very largely attended.

—An auction sale of horses, wagons and farm implements will be held by S. L. Collins at his livery barns on north Main street, Monday April 10.

In the foreground of popularity are The celebrated Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes



Ask for them Do not accept others

HORSES FOR SALE.

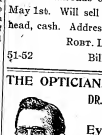
About 100 head of well-bred mares and geldings, weight averaging about 1150 pounds, good, solid colors, fifteen yearlings in the bunch. Will have them at Billings on N. P. and B. & M. railroads on or about May 1st. Will sell for $25 per head, cash. Address,

ROBT. LEAVENS,
Billings, Mont.

51-52

THE OPTICIAN,

DR. T. J. SMITH,



Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

IN THE

North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS, BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

50 Cents a Number. $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N. Y

NORTHERN PACIFIC

TIME CARD —OF— TRAINS, Crookston

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:27 pm	8:27 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6:20 a m	6:20 a m
C. A. SHARKEY, Act. Crookston, Minn.	CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn.

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	*Daily	†Except Sunday.	LEAVE
5.55 pm	Grand Forks, North and West	7.00 am
9.00 pm	Minneapolis, St. Paul and points east	9.05 am
4.00 pm	Warren, Thief River Falls, Minneapolis, St. Vincent	9.15 am
9.00 pm	Red Lake Falls	3.30 pm
4.00 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior	9.00 am
8.45 pm	Wahpeton, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo	7.30 am

*Monday, Wednesday and, Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

L. E. GOSSMAN,

Attorney-at-Law.

No. 8 Forrest Block CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.

GRADUATE—

McGill University, Montreal.

Licensed College Physicians and Surgeons, Quebec.

Office in McKinnon Block.

A. R. HOLSTON,

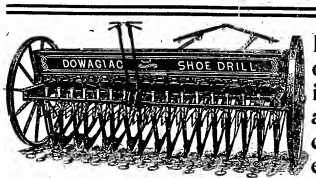
Attorney - at - Law

Practices in all the courts. Office, Wallace Block.

CROOKSTON, MINN

DEFECTIVE PAGE

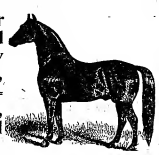
AUCTION SALE!



Having sold over 4,000 acres of our farm lands, and desiring to dispose of a large amount of the stock and machinery which we had formerly used in working the same we have decided to offer the following items of personal property at public auction, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m.

TUESDAY, APRIL 18, 1899

On the common just north of our farm house in the 5th Ward of the City of Crookston, to-wit:



Six head of work horses, 14 fine colts 2 and 3 year old, 6 dairy cows deep milkers, several blooded bull and heifer calves, 1 fine boar pig, Agricultural machinery consisting of binders, mowers, gang plows, hay rakes, farm wagons, seed drills, broadcast seeders, corn cultivators, walking plows, 1 36 inch Victory separator, wheeled stacker, 10 sets work harness and other small implements too numerous to mention.

Lunch Served at Noon. Come all Who Want to Buy.

TERMS: All sums of $10 and under, cash. Over $10 approved notes due October 1, 1899 at 10 per cent. interest. A discount of 5 per cent. will be given for cash on all time payments.

E. D. CHILDS CO.

A Magazine for a Penny

"GOOD HOUSE-KEEPING" "Conducted in the Interests of the Higher Life of the Household."—Contains: valuable recipes, timely suggestions, discussions of the Domestic Problems, Hygenic Housekeeping, Original Stories, Choice Bits of Verse, Etc. Sample copy sent on receipt of a postal if you mention the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. Agents wanted.

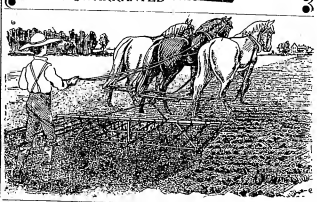
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

THE

Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED



....Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,
AUSTIN, MINN.

Aug. Miller & Co., TANNERS.

FUR DRESSING AND DYEING A SPECIALTY.

We dress all kinds of Hides for coats, robes, harness and shoes.
We pay good price for black steer, cow and calf hides suitable for coats and robes.
We also take orders for coats and robes making, and cleaning and repairing of old furs.

FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT
WINCHESTER
Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE! Send name on a postal for 176 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Cleveland Hotel, Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor

Main and Fourth Sts.

This popular hotel is again re-opened to the public under new management. The new proprietor will spare no pains nor expense in the effort to provide for the comfort of his guests, and every effort will be to keep up the reputation its merits have won, and he invites the farmers to still consider the Cleveland their headquarters when in the city.

"DARKNESS AND DAYLIGHT."

Or Lights and Shadows of New York Life—The Famous New Book.

In this new and superbly illustrated work a noble Christian woman tells the thrilling story of her personal experience in Gospel temperance, mission, and rescue-work in a great city. No recent publication is now commanding so much attention nor has any other called forth such ringing words of "God-speed" from ministers and eminent women. It has been preached about from famous pulpits, read by tens of thousands of subscribers, and made the subject of many a clergyman's Sunday evening lecture. Its authorship is fourfold, its four authors being no less than:—Mrs. Helen Campbell, Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., Col. Thomas W. Knox, and Inspector Thomas Byrnes, Chief of the New York Detective Bureau.

Mrs. Campbell, the principal writer, certainly was a woman commissioned of God, and "In His Name" spent many years as a city missionary literally "In Darkest New York." What a wonderful work she did. How devoted and blessed her labors were. It is a story never to be forgotten. This unique volume presents these thrilling experiences of Christian endeavor with the hundreds of pathetic and amusing scenes that were packed into them: it portrays life in a great city by day and by night "As Seen by a Woman:" it shows the power of the Gospel to redeem souls from the lowest depths; it gives striking testimonies of the redeemed; and from all these rich and varied experiences it draws living truths for head and heart that are worth to any reader ten times the price of the book. Mrs. Campbell's account of rescue-work is full of wonderfully touching incidents. Stranger stories are here told than romance ever dreamed of, every one of them drawn from real life by a woman's hand. In every chapter she weaves in anecdote after anecdote, incident after incident, story after story, and the reader's attention is held breathless to the end of the volume. "Strange but most suggestive is the fact," says Bishop Corp in warmly commending this volume, "that Christ is to be visited in these dens and dives; there are those whom He will hear in mind when He says: 'Ye visited me'; or, when he says: 'Ye did it not to Me.'"

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott's life-long interest in City Mission work, and his personal share in that work, pre-eminently fitted him to write for this book. In his Introduction to it he says:—

"My interest in these phases of city life dates from my college days. From that day to this—over a third of a century—I have continued the studies then begun, and the subject of this book has been one of the great subjects of my study—sometimes in literature, often in life."

No appeal from temperance advocates can do more to promote the cause of temperance than the thrilling scenes and incidents so well described; at least so say Mrs. Mary A. Liver-more and Miss Frances E. Willard.

One of the most absorbingly interesting portions of the book is that written by Inspector Byrnes giving the ripe experiences of thirty years of detective life. Many of the startling revelations he makes are taken from his private diary. They have never before been published.

This fascinating volume is indeed a wonderful tale of Christian love and faith, all alive with intense and striking reality. The best of it is that it is a pure and elevating book from beginning to end—a volume, for the family circle. On this point the words of Rev. Dr. Twichell (who has a family of ten children) and Rev. Dr. Magoun, President Iowa College, are worth quoting here; Dr. Twichell writes,—"My wife says that she is going to set our young people on the book right off, for the good it will do them"; and President Mogoun,—"My family finds, where other books on our shelves lack interest, this one always holds and rewards attention."

It contains 252 superb engravings, every one of them made from photographs taken from life, mostly by flash-light. Every face is a portrait, every scene a stern reality. In looking at these splendid illustrations the reader sees at a glance just how Gospel work is carried on by day and by night by rescue-bands; he is shown strange sights in out of the way places that are rarely or never seen by the casual visitor; he is taken into cheap lodging-houses and cellars; into the homes of the poor; into newsboys' lodging-houses; into the police and detective departments, etc.,—nothing seems to be omitted.

We do not know when 740 pages have given us more genuine pleasure. If we speak warmly of the book, it is because it richly deserves it. It is sold only by agents, and is meeting with an enormous sale. Agents who introduce such work ought to be cordially welcomed. A better work has certainly never come to our table. It will be read over and over again by old and young, with ever increasing pleasure and lasting profit.

The work is published by the old and well-known firm of A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn., whose imprint is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of this first-class volume. Royal Octavo, 740 pages. 252 fine plates, portraits, and text illustrations. The local agent for Darkness and Daylight is John H. Tommerdal.

Our Weekly Herald.

Our weekly Herald is the name of a paper published in the interests of the Baptist church of this city. The first edition appeared last Saturday. On the front page is a handsome cut of the church building, a directory of the church officers and a calendar of the regular services. The printing on the other three pages is done with a mimeograph, church notes and news is a feature, the pastor makes some timely suggestions to church members and the work that the young people's society is doing is outlined.

Red River Valley Presbytery.

The Presbytery of the Presbyterian churches of the Red River Valley met in regular session at Argyle last Tuesday morning. Rev. F. W. Fraser and Henry Collins of Crookston have been in attendance. Others who passed through Crookston Tuesday morning on their way to Argyle were Revs. Dr. N. R. Adams of Minneapolis, who has recently returned from Porto Rico, Crawford McKibbin, of East Grand Forks, James Godward of Elbow Lake, E. H. Moore, of Fergus Falls, Mr. West, of Red Lake Falls, Wm. Dunglop, of Maplewood, James McLeod and J. B. Astwood.

CROSS SEEDING PAYS.

It Requires More Work But the Increase is Several Bushels to the Acre.

Farmers, make a note of this. Have you ever tried seeding your grain both ways of the field. It will not only increase the yield, but will help to protect the crop from hot winds. Drill in one half bushel of wheat per acre in the ordinary way, then drill in one half bushel per acre at right angles to the first seeding. If good seed is used, one bushel per acre is enough. By this method you cover the ground better, get a finer and firmer seed bed, and a better stand of wheat, and a better yield. The rows of grain running both ways of the field will prevent the dry winds from blowing through and evaporating the moisture from the soil. Reports received from eleven farmers along the "Soo" Line of North Dakota, who tried this method in 1898, show an average increase of over five bushels to the acre. One Richland county farmer who made a careful test in two large fields adjoining, reports an increase of seven bushels of wheat per acre from the field that was drilled both ways. Cross seeding requires a little more work but it pays big returns. Give it a trial this year. If you are going to buy a new drill, buy a press drill that will put the seed in the ground right, and press the soil down firmly over it.

Maj. Wilkinson's Sword.

Gray W. Richardson, of St. Paul, who is doing some pine investigating at Walker, has succeeded in recovering Major Wilkinson's sword. Mr. Richardson heard that "Old Bug" had the weapon, and hired Paul Bongus and an Indian policeman to get it. They called on "Bug" and after some parley he agreed to surrender the sword in exchange for four steel traps and $6.00 in money. He claimed that he picked it up on the battlefield at Sugar Point the day after the fight, and returned it with the remark that he had no ill-will toward the family of the dead soldier, and hoped that the widow would be consoled by its possession.

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING, U.S.A.

AUTHOR OF "FORT FRAYNE," "AN ARMY WIFE," "TRUMPETER TRED," "NOBLE BLOOD."

Copyright, 1898, by J. Tregaskis Neely.

CHAPTER XVI.

Five days later all the ——th were home again, and great was the rejoicing at Russell. Atherton had directed Stannard, to prove in and take possession of the best guestroom aside his roof. Barry had applied for a long leave of absence. Walters, with his little company, was relieved from duty at the post and on his way back to Fort Steele, and the last thing Warner did before going was to help carry Maynard over to the other guest chamber under Atherton's roof, where the colonel declared the gallant young fellow should stay until perfectly restored. The arrangement never appeared on paper, never became a matter of record, for Walters and appressed all further mention of it within 24 hours of his ill judged order. Miss O'Meara, languishing in the county jail, had been subjected to the process known as "the sweatbox," an interrogatory fortune that is supposed to compel the suspected malefactor to unwittingly betray the secrets of the gang to which he may be attached, and Bridget had broken down under the pressure.

As a result of her revelation Cook had rushed for Kansas and was heard of no more for several days, and meantime there wasn't a woman at Russell who did not revel in the fact that she at least had never for an instant believed that Miss Baird had anything to do with the persons guilty of the burglary. Some of the ladies repeatedly said as much, notably Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Raymond. Walters had also had to call, poor fellow, and tell Mrs. Barry and Miss Baird how unhappy he was over having ever believed that story of the latter's knowledge of the burglary, but in justice to himself he must say that not only did the sheriff admonish him that such was his duty, but there were even two ladies at the post who similarly advised him. Neither Mrs. Barry nor Miss Baird would ask the question, but Major Barry did, and demanded an answer, and then Walters named Mrs. Turner and Miss Maynard, both of whom, as it subsequently transpired, had been actuated only by the purest and best of motives and with no thought of malice. All they said was that they feared she was being terrorized by some scoundrel who had a hold on her, and all they hoped was to relieve her from such a horror. Of course if she had dreamed the captain would ever quote her or take such steps as he had done, nothing, said Mrs. Turner, could ever have induced her to open her lips.

As for Miss Maynard, she was in a state bordering on nervous prostration, yet she was glad there was no one else to take her place at Ronald's side. She and she alone, should nurse and care for him, and there was indeed several days in which his sufferings were such she was allowed to see no visitor. Then he began to mend and Barry called often and lent over him with a world of gratitude and affection in his speaking eyes, and Barry said that he expected to get away within the week, but that his wife declared that she would not go until she and Nathalie could see and thank him in person, and Grace Maynard had to listen to it all.

But two days later the Barrys drove to the station, all the officers and more than half the women and children seem to the train and seeing them off with every manifestation of affection. The doctors had said that it was necessary for Mrs. Barry's health that she should be taken away from Russell as soon as possible. It was interesting to watch the different women in their goodby to Miss Baird, without whom Mrs. Barry went nowhere now. Mrs. Freeman clung to her, kissed her on both cheeks, almost cried over her. So did Mrs. Roy. Mrs. Truscott, too, was demonstrative. Mrs. Stannard was the last to leave her, and the eyes of both were brimming as at last she had to hurry from the car. All the other women, young and old, were gentle and sympathetic in manner to her. Miss Maynard, of course, was still at her brother's bedside. Mrs. Turner, who rarely missed an occasion of the kind, had a splitting headache this day of days, and therefore was unable to come at all. It was the Barrys' plan to go to the south for complete change and rest for both for Mrs. Barry and Nathalie, and then to spend July and August at the seashore. The insurance adjusters had come and gone, the fire losses were being settled. Fort Russell had found out to its entire satisfaction that the burglaries were fixed on a gang of which Miss Baird could have had no knowledge whatever despite the accepted fact that she had some suspicious acquaintances. One reason, indeed, that the Barrys hurried was her continued ill health. When Dr. Pease heard all that Mrs. Barry had to tell him on his return and had felt Nathalie's pulse and looked into her and eyes, he hummed and hawed and blushed and made some inquiries of Mrs. Stannard, and finally told both Major and Mrs. Barry that they could not too soon get the girl away from Russell. She was simply dying by inches there and needed immediate change. Most affectionate and grateful was the letter Mrs. Barry penned to the young officer, still lying half blind and more than half bandaged up at the colonel's.

Most grateful and timid and shy was the little note penned by Nathalie to the same remembered warrior. She would always pray for his happiness and never forget the heroism to which he owed her life, but it took her hours to get that letter into semisatisfactory shape, and she knew how fast and hard the tears fell as she wrote. They were instructed—both the notes—to Mrs. Stannard's care, that she herself, said Mrs. Barry, might send them to him, and not Miss Maynard, for against that Spartan sister Mrs. Barry's heart was set. The proposed visit to Ronald's bedside had to be abandoned. Mrs. Barry could not well be carried up the stairs for a formal call, and Nathalie could not well go without her. "But remember, Mrs. Barry," said Stannard, "you shall be at Sea Girt for July and August, shall have car own cottage there, and you are to have two maids' leave, and you're to spend every possible week of it with us."

Not until well on their way to Chicago—the first objective point, because both ladies had to renew their wardrobes—was Mrs. Barry informed that there might be difficulty as to that part of the plan. She read Nathalie's letter aloud and saying how lovely it would be to have their invra, big boy here to be nursed and petted until all trace of his burns was swept away, and Nathalie falteringly said:

"But there is somebody else who is awaiting his coming and expecting to do all that, Sherwood Mrs. Barry wrote with prompt, even indignant, denial in her eyes and said:

"He never told you so."

"No, but his sister did. It—it is quite an old affair."

"What did his sister tell you? Who is it?"

"That he was in love with—engaged to a Miss Gertrude Bonner—at their home."

"Nathalie, that woman has told another lie!" exclaimed Mrs. Barry, and the major, coming in from the smoking compartment at the moment, marveled at the sudden fire in the soft eyes of his beloved wife and at the flush of color in her usually pallid face. Only deep conviction and wrath as deep could prompt her to the use of language so forcible.

They were in Chicago an entire week, joined at once by Mrs. Atherton and piloted by that experienced and accomplished shopper, and then came a deluge of letters from Russell, and news, such as never! Two men had been run down and arrested in Kansas City, had been brought back to Cheyenne and promptly recognized as the "couple" engaged in the casting affray at the Empire wherein Burton was placed on the invalid list; were also recognized as the two who were seen at the Railroad House early on the morning following the robbery. Miss O'Meara's cousin, Michael Dungan, who kept a saloon frequented ordinarily by laborers and machine shop men employed in the railway yards, had likewise been gathered in by the police, but only a little of the stolen property had been recovered. Cook and Maynard were dividing the honors of the capture. "Cook of course," said the major at once, "but why Maynard?" And not until he came to the Stannard letter was all explained. Cook had had certain undefined suspicions, but could do nothing, saw nothing, until the brief interview with Maynard.

This was Maynard's part of it. He sat in his room one sweltering night writing long letters to his father, explaining his conduct in refusing to betray Nathalie Baird, telling what it was that drew love for her, his faith in her innocence, and all that had come of it. He hoped for his father's approval of his conduct, despite the stigma of arrest, and he begged him not to be prejudiced against the girl whom he so devotedly loved by anything Grace might say. All this could be explained. He wrote to Atherton and to his captain, and by that time it was 1 o'clock, and he felt weary and hungry. He had eaten hardly a mouthful since his arrest and was suffering the consequences. He had of late availed himself of Mrs. Stannard's repeated invitation to help himself and had gone down to get a glass of milk or a crust of bread, and so, taking his candle, he softly descended the stairs, his slipper-ed feet making no noise, let himself on into the drafty kitchen and attacked the refrigerator, setting his candle meantime well back upon the kitchen table.

His appetite soon satisfied, he was about to retire, when through the thin board partition separating Mrs. Stannard's kitchen from Mrs. Barry's he heard the sound of a door creaking in a rusty look, and suddenly there came a rush of wind through every crack and knothole. His candle was instantly extinguished, and some one seemed almost upon him before the neighboring room. He heard Bridget's voice, low and cautious, but oh!fgratory. He was groping for his candle, intending to retrace his steps, when a moment later that door was closed, the rush of the wind ceased and Bridget struck a light, tiptoed to her bedroom and almost instantly has-tened back, reopened the door, called "Mike!" in cautious tone, admitted some masculine stranger and said; "What luck! Sh-h! sleeping wid the misses. We can load the things right in now, and I'll go back wid ye. Shure, they'll never dream I was back."

And then still flashed over him—the disappearance of Bridget the day of his visit to Jim Barry; the whanging portiere, the apparent determination of the domestic in question to avoid his sight, the prodigal bitterness on her part to luck in hitting in Barry's den and listen to his plan or suspicions, if any plan he had, and now her coming in after 1 at night with a strange man and talking of loading the things right in and going back with him and no one dreaming of her being there. His heart leaped and throbbed violently. Three hours before he had eongaled his brains in vain for a clew to the robbery, and here it came all at once, unlooked for, unbidden.

At first the thought stolen property was meant when she spoke of loading up the things, but then he remembered how thorough a search was made in that room, and it seemed improbable. He peered through a knothole and got a glimpse of the stranger's face, but it was one he had never seen before. She lugged the tray of a trunk to the kitchen table and loaded it with fruit. She gave her friend a comforting drink from the bottle in the closet and did not disdain a sip on her own account.

She rejoiced that they could go back together and finish the frolic of the night, as she said, just as Cook later confounded her by quoting: "If I'd known this, it's the two horse rig we'd have fetched wid us, Mike. It's them that drove the best load that was ever rolled away from this post." Which was over for loading up another tray. She excitedly urged with Mike on the subject. The young lieutenant suspioned somebody, she said. She'd heard him say so, and it wasn't Denton, and some to him much as she wished they could make it so appear. She wished to get her vuluables under Mike's roof before anything was discovered, in case she had to skip. But Mike said they had all they could possibly carry in that gale, to come along now and he'd take the next train when he brought her back in the morning. And so Mike piled his cigar and hurried away the match, and the process pair went forth into the night, leaving Maynard to plan what should be their reception on their return. The entire visit occupied not more than 10 or 15 minutes. By a quarter past Maynard was back in his room, trembling a bit with excitement and joy, and, resenting himself at his desk, he was making a memorandum of Bridget's words and the stranger's appearance when startled by Mary's awful cry on the lower floor of the house adjoining.

"Nathalie, that woman has told another lie," exclaimed Mrs. Barry.

Maynard's discoveries had been supplemented by those of Cook. The burglars had been admitted into the house doubtless by Bridget and by way of the kitchen. The window was left open, and the latch had been engaged at first from without, for the cotton stuffing showed no signs of it whatever, as it infallibly would have done had the window been forced.

Bridget had unquestionably brought about the heavy, stupor like sleep of her mistress. When Mary came that evening for the purpose of opening some which Mrs. Barry always had at her bedside, as well as to renew the water in which her medicines were mixed, Bridget, as she well remembered, had the pitcher ready. It was easy for the latter to have slipped in one of the glasses a tablet or two of colorless morphia. Its faintly bitter taste was neutralized by that of the medicines itself, and that could not destroy the effect. Indeed, among the uncommanded effects at the bottom of one of Bridget's store togas was found a little vial containing some half a dozen cubelike tablets which Dr. Pease promptly declared to be morphia.

Mrs. Stannard had still more to tell Captain Gregg had gone to Kansas City to see some presumably stolen property that had been captured there by the police and was believed to be part of the Fort Russell plunder, and from them he telegraphed that the first thing shown him was Mrs. Freeman's watch, injured, Mrs. Gregg's was found at another pawnshop, but the rings, pins and other costly gimcracks were still missing. Dungan's place in town had been ransacked, but to no purpose. The silver had probably been broken up before this. Mr. Cook had come to talk with her major about the business. Cook believed there were three dozen parties whom he had arrested were members of some gang of professionals who had been completing to leave their favorite fields of operation in the distant east and were merely keeping their hand in here on the far frontier. Their only hold on Bridget was through her putative cousin, Mike, a bad character at best, though not a "crackman." Her letters from good families in St. Louis, which she had so confidently exhibited to Mrs. Barry in response to the advertisement for a cook, proved to be forgeries, but also pointed to the probability of her being familiar with names, localities, etc., in that city. So that was where the police were now working. Meanwhile Bridget, Mike and the silent pair brought back from the borderland of Missouri were languishing behind the bars. Further proof was needed.

But there was a part of the long, long letter Mrs. Barry did read.

But nothing yet had been seen or heard of Boston. If they could find him, Mr. Cook said, they stood a big chance of learning who the others were. They were doubtless wanted in more places than one, and a goodly reward might possibly be paid. Mrs. Barry did not show this part of the letter to Nathalie, nor did she read it. The girl shrank at any mention of the fellow, and yet had narrowed her friend that she had no idea whatever whither he had fled or where he was now in hiding, and that was enough for Mrs. Barry.

But there was a part of the long, long letter Mrs. Barry did read, and her gentle eyes grew more than once glanced up from the page and sought the flushing face beside her:

"Mr. Maynard improves rapidly now and picks up every day. The doctors say his eyesight will be restored all right and that he will soon be quite well again, but he was badly and painfully burned for all that and has suffered as keenly as he has complained-ingly. Miss Maynard is still on guard and motion of his callers and strives to forestall his replies is getting decidedly tiresome. They wish they didn't have to say Mr. Maynard remains by his sister. Colonel Atherton has been called to department headquarters for consultation and will doubtless go thence to Chicago to join Mrs. Atherton, so you will probably see him before you go south. Major Stannard is in command meanwhile, and as we are now under the same roof we see more of the Maynards than anybody else, and Lucy (her major) says he believes Maynard would be all right in a few days if the old maid sister of his would only clear out and go home, but Lucy always has something hateful to say of old maids.

"She is always down stairs when the orderly comes with the letters. She always reads over the letters from Grace for her brother, and only through her do we hear anything of Miss Lucre morris angerly and 'says things' more than I like to tell you. He thinks she would even become content if her brother were reconciled, and that she doesn't at all like it now that he is permitted to read his own letters. This morning Mr. Maynard said to me, 'The doctor tells me that tomorrow I may see my hand a little, and the first thing I'll want to do is to write Mrs. Barry to thank her and Nathalie for the lovely letters they wrote me,' whereupon Miss Maynard instantly spoke up, 'Why, Ronald, I'd be glad to write for you any time,' but he as promptly said that there were matters that he preferred not to trouble her with, and that was how she was much nettled. So you will be getting letters in a day or two."

Two days later Mrs. Barry's was a short, painfully written three page missive, but it delighted her greatly, and she hastened to relate its every word to Nathalie, but the girl had turned away. "Gone to read her own letter in her room," said Mrs. Barry, with a knowing smile that spoke volumes of hope and sympathy and interest, and she would have given diamonds for the repressed maidea meditation for full two hours. But Nathalie returned not Mrs. Barry became anxious and rapped at the communicating door.

They were to start for the south that very night. The trunks had been packed and many preparations made in the household, but much remained to be done, yet there sat Nathalie at her open window, gazing afar out over the dancing, sparkling waters of the lake, her eyes brimming with tears.

"Why, I know what he had to say to my Nathalie!" cried Mrs. Barry, in tones full of fond interest, her fragile white hand placed caressingly on the bonny head.

For answer the girl took the hand in both her own and pressed it to her face upon it. It was some little time before she could trust herself to speak, but first she made low inquiry as to Mrs. Barry's letter. Her hand the little letter with the well known Cheyenne postmark.

"Am I to read it, Nathalie?" was the question.

"Yes."

Slowly Mrs. Barry opened the carefully written pages. Every word and line seemed dripping of the pain and difficulty with which it was penned, but there was no halting, no stumbling, no hesitating, in what he had to say. A more outspoken, manly, straightforward appeal Mrs. Barry had never read:

"My Dear Mrs. Barry—I must pray for all you say in your letter. It was a sad disappointment to me that you and the major and dear Mrs. Barry before you left, but the doctor says I might not have been able to see even could you have come.

"I am not going to say more what I must say now—that I love you with all my heart and soul and that I long to hear from you that I may hope very soon you will be my wife.

"Nathalie, in those precious lines you gave me you spoke of honor and gratitude and told me you still always pray for me. I pray for you, darling. I beg you by no mere mistaken sense of honor to keep me from you. I forget that night and never again to speak of me as the time when you were ill, but I pray you, Nathalie, by your love, and, as for happiness, you and your dear ones give it, to tell me you go south within a very few days. Before you start you must have the answer I hope for, pray for, long for! Devotedly yours,

"And the answer, Nathalie?" she whispered.

RONALD MAYNARD.

Twice did Mrs. Barry read this over, one hand straying as she did so over the beautiful-browed head. Then, laying the letter on the dressing table, she bent low over the little-plain ear that peeped through the rippling strands of bright golden hair.

"And the answer, Nathalie?" she whispered. "I am sure there can be only one."

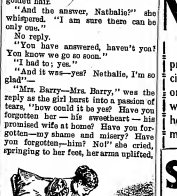
No reply.

"You have answered, haven't you? You know we go so soon."

"I had to; yes."

"And it was—yes? Nathalie, I'm so glad!—

"Mrs. Barry—Mrs. Barry," was the reply as the girl burst into a paroxysm of tears, "how could it be yes? Have you forgotten her — his sweetheart — his promised wife at home? Have you forgotten—my shame and misery? Have you forgotten—him? No!" she cried, springing to her feet, her arms uplifted,



"And the answer, Nathalie?" she whispered.

her hand thrown wildly back. "No! With that horror hanging over me I am fit to be no man's wife, and my answer was 'No!'" Then face forward she threw herself upon the bed, sobbing in utter desolation of spirit.

Two days later that answer was in her hands, and when in bitter disappointment, stunned and sorrowing, he would have turned to Grace as though for explanation she had left the house. She, too, had received a letter that filled her with dismay.

TO BE CONTINUED.

One Way to Kill a Snake

Just how this beautiful young woman killed the venomous snake forms an interesting description in John Mackie's charming story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never. His full of sunlight and shade and at the same time, supplies a great deal of information about the romantic life of the adventurous people who sought fortunes in tropical Australia. John Mackie wrote "The Devil's Playground" and "Sinner's Peak," both interesting stories. This is another.

"They That Sit in Darkness" will appear in installments in this paper.

Look Out for the First Chapters

RUNG IN A COLD DECK.

Inspector Brockinridge Gives His Opinion of Army Beef.

New York, April 4.—Inspector General J. C. Breckinridge, who has just returned from Porto Rico, is, quoted in a World interview as saying:

"It is my opinion that the government intended to furnish the American troops with food that is good, and has been never seen by the army of any country. I think that the contractors, to use a vulgar term, 'rung in a cold deck.'

"The canned roast beef was largely unfit for use. "It had no nutrition. The corned beef was not had at all.

"I put some of the canned roast beef in my saddle bags and carried it over to General Lawton's headquarters. I gave it to one of the staff officers and remarked to him: 'Here is a treat for you.' He at once opened one of the cans and the appearance of the food and the odor smitted nauseated him."

VETOED BY THE MAYOR.

Hitch in Detroit's Plan for Municipal Ownership of Street Railways.

Detroit, Mich., April 5.—Mayor Maybury has vetoed the resolution of the common council appointing Governor Pingree and two other citizens commissioners to purchase and operate the street railways of Detroit for the city. The mayor insists that the matter is municipal ownership, but he alleges that the act empowering the council to appoint this commission is void. Alderman Beamer, who has been one of the leading opponents of municipal ownership, stated to the aldermen that he had secured a legal decision from good authority that the mayor had no legal right to veto the resolution. There will Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally, correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. . . . Time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—Philadelphia Public Ledger and Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Send a postal or ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

25 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Pat-ent-business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE THE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can obtain patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo, with descrip-tion. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASH., D. C.

PATENTS

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

MUNN & CO.,

361 Broadway, New York.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county.

STATE LEGISLATURE

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29.

The house was in a killing mood et its morning session and accepted, without debate, the reports of the various committees, which read the death knells of over a score of bills of more or less importance. In committee of the whole the Larson bill, to permit pool selling for 30 days each year on the fair grounds, was recommended for postponement.

The committee on elections killed off the Oleson and Fulton bills providing for the use of automatic ballot boxes in certain cases. The Ferris general election law was likewise killed.

The senate concurred in the house amendments to Senator Baldwin's bill separating Cook and Lake counties for judicial purposes, and Senator Knutzvold's bill allowing rural school districts to increase their school tax levy from 9 to 15 mills, and repassed both bills.

THURSDAY, MARCH 30.

The senate devoted two hours to the Jacobson railroad gross earnings bill, with the result that his friends have no tangible encouragement, although they console themselves with the thought that they have not lost any ground, the bill, in a parliamentary way, being adjudged by the leaders of the senate to be just where it was before the day's fight began.

The peddlers' license bill was passed, also the 9-hour bill.

The house, by a vote of 87 to 21, passed the Roberts bill providing for a bounty on beet sugar. The bill reduces the amount which may annually be expended in sugar bounties to $40,000, of which but $30,000 may be spent in any one congressional district. The time limit is 1901.

The house devoted the afternoon to work in committee of the whole. A dozen bills were advanced to the calendar and three indefinitely postponed.

FRIDAY, MARCH 31.

The senate has passed the Staples bill providing for the erection of an insane hospital at Anoka and appropriating money for the purchase of a site for another at Hastings. The vote on the measure was 46 to 24. The bill now goes to the governor.

On general orders, with Senator Skyright in the chair, the medical bill came up. Senator Schaller moved that it be recommended for passage. Several attempts were made to amend it, but all were lost and the bill was then recommended for passage.

There was a lively discussion in the house when the report from the committee on forestry, presented by Mr. Pope, recommended for indefinite postponement the bill abolishing the office of state fire warden, but definite action was postponed.

The bill of Mr. Mallory of St. Louis, providing for the payment of a state bounty of 50 cents per ton on coke, was recommended to pass. The bill carries an appropriation of $75,000 per year.

The committee on state prison and reformatory met and voted to return the Wilson bill for the parole of the Younger brothers to the house without recommendation.

SATURDAY, APRIL 1.

The senate has recommended for passage the bill placing the state oil inspector on a salary of $2,000 a year. Under the fee system his earnings have been from $10,000 to $15,000. The Underlock anti-trust bill was made a special order for Wednesday. In the afternoon both houses paid their biennial visit to the state university.

MONDAY, APRIL 3.

The senate held but one session and made a vigorous attack on general orders, finally recommending 59 bills for passage, of which 39 were of the senate and 26 of the house. As a rule bills to which objection was raised were laid over. Among the measures acted on were the following:

Admitting disabled soldiers of the Spanish war to the soldiers' home and appropriating $20,000 a year for its support.

Providing that not more than $9 a week wages shall be exempt from garnishment.

Establishing a board of appeal for the inspection of grain.

The house spent the morning on the calendar, passing a number of bills. The Abbott bill providing that every notarial seal bear the name of the city, bessor was the only measure lost. The following were passed:

Relating to state elevator site at Duluth.

Legalizing deeds made direct by husband to wife or wife to husband without subscribing witness.

Allowing city street fair associations to send delegates to state agricultural society.

TUESDAY, APRIL 4.

The house at the morning session adopted the report of the committee on prisons and reformatories and went on record as opposing any change in the laws relating to the method of fixing the price of state binding twine. Bills were passed:

Authorizing county commissioners to appropriate money to towns in counties changing from county system of caring for the poor.

Declaring certain dogs to be public nuisances and providing for destruction of the same.

Continuing in its persistent assault on general orders the senate disposed of 47 pending bills, temporarily at least, of which 39 were measures originating in the senate and 27 from the house. The calendar was not taken up.

The county option bill was defeated in the senate at the morning session by a vote of 24 to 13.

Among the bills recommended for passage were these:

Giving preference in public employment to honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors.

MASSING IN FORCE

FILIPINOS PREPARING TO MAKE A STAND OUTSIDE OF MALOLOS.

Position a Strong One and Hard Fighting Will Be Necessary to Dislodge Them—MacArthur Reconnoiters—Montana Regiment Loses One Killed and Two Wounded in the Skirmish—American Commission Issues Its Promised Proclamation to the People.

MANILA, April 5.—The insurgents are massing strong forces north of Calumpit, about five and one-half miles northwest of Malolos, and, according to the observations of the reconnoitering parties, they have fine intrenchments there.

It is expected that hard fighting will be necessary to dislodge them at that point and at San Fernando, where Aguinaldo is supposed to be. Large rivers strengthen both positions.

Two Montana regiment had one man killed and three wounded Tuesday. Twenty-five men were prostrated by the heat and brought to the hospital.

The new big Krupp guns, one 6-inch and the other 8-inch, which were found buried at Malolos, will be mounted. The Americans have also found 27,000 rifles.

MANILA, April 5.—General MacArthur reconnoitered during the morning with the Montana regiment, the Fourth cavalry and two guns of the light artillery as far as the river north of Malolos. The reconnoissance developed the fact that there are fully 5,000 rebels, armed with Mauser rifles, preparing for defense. Shots were exchanged and one of the Montana regiment was killed and two were wounded, but there was no engagement.

Later in the day General MacArthur moved northward, as the water supply of Malolos is inadequate.

GOOD WILL ASSURED.

Philippine Commission Issues a Proclamation to the People.

MANILA, April 5.—The expected proclamation of the American Philippine commission has been promulgated. The document is about 1,500 words in length. Spanish, Tagalog and English versions have been printed and it is proposed to circulate them about Malolos and at all the seaports. The preamble assures the people of the Philippines of the cordial good will of the president of the United States and the American people, and asserts that the well being of the inhabitants of the archipelago is the aim and object of the American government. The principle by which the United States will be guided in their relations with the people of the islands are as follows:

Will Enforce Sovereignty.

First—The supremacy of the United States must and will be enforced throughout every part of the archipelago, and those who resist it can accomplish no end other than their own ruin.

Second—To the Philippine people will be granted the most ample liberty and self-government reconcilable with the maintenance of a wise, just, stable, effective and economical administration of public affairs and compatible with the sovereign and international rights and the obligations of the United States.

Third—The civil rights of the Philippine people will be guaranteed and protected to the fullest extent. Religious freedom will be assured, and all persons shall be equal and have equal standing in the eyes of the law.

Fourth—Honor, justice and friendship forbid the use of the Philippine people or the islands their wealth as an object or means of exploitation. The purpose of the American government is the welfare and the advancement of the Philippine people.

Natives to Be Employed.

Fifth—There shall be guaranteed to the Philippine people an honest and effective civil service in which, to the fullest extent to which it is practicable, natives shall be employed.

Sixth—Collection of all taxes and other revenues will be placed upon a sound, economical basis and public funds, raised justly and collected honestly, will be applied only to defray the regular and proper expenses incurred by and for the establishment and maintenance of the Philippine government and such general improvements as the public interests may demand.

Seventh—A pure, speedy and effective administration of justice will be established, whereby any one who suffers injury, severe; D, Corporal J. C. Bryon, wrong or damage from any person, whether-man, moderate; Private E. Morgan, high or low, may have ample remedy.

Eighth—The construction of roads, railroads and similar means of communication and transportation, and of other public works manifestly for the advantage of the Philippine people will be promoted.

Will Develop the Country.

Ninth—Domestic and foreign trade and commerce, agriculture and other industrial pursuits looking toward the general development of the country for the interest of the inhabitants shall be objects of constant solicitude and fostering care.

Tenth—Effective provision will be made for the establishment of elementary schools, in which the children of the people may be educated, and appropriate facilities will be provided for a higher education.

Eleventh—Reforms in all departments of the government, all branches of the public service and all corporations closely touching the common life of the people will be undertaken without delay and effected conformably with right and justice in a way to satisfy the well founded demands and the highest sentiments and aspirations of the people.

NORTH DAKOTANS IN IT.

Three Men Wounded in a Brisk Engagement With Filipinos.

MANILA, April 3.—The American troops are in good condition considering the hardships they endure. The plans of the rebels, if they have any, are conjectural. Considerable rebel forces have been collected along the fronts of General Lawton and General Hall, who are holding the line from the waterworks to Laloma. There is shooting nightly along this line, apparently for the purpose of breaking the American's sleep. Consequently General Lawton has detailed five sharpshooters from each company to attend to the rebels and the Americans are picking off numbers of them.

It is reported that 8,000 rebels under Pilar are concentrating at Cainta and Taytay.

General King sent out a reconnoitering party of two companies of the North Dakota regiment and a brisk engagement followed, during which seven Filipinos were killed. On the American side a lieutenant and two privates were wounded.

KEEP OFFICERS AND MEN.

Volunteers in the Philippines Cannot Be Spared Yet.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—It was stated at the war department during the day that the provision of the army law allowing the retention for five or six months of the volunteers in the Philippines had been construed to mean the officers as well as the men and that the volunteer organizations would be retained just as they now exist. General Otis was given large plenary powers in the matter, but was instructed by cable to send all sick and wounded home, as well as volunteers who had exceptional reasons why they should return, such as the support of families and the loss of property by reason of their absence. General Otis will decide such questions on their merits. The volunteers in the Philippines will not be mustered out until they can be spared, and the presence there of these organizations, the war department believes, makes it unnecessary to organize the provisional army of 35,000 allowed under the army law.

MANY RETURNING HOME.

Natives See the Promises of Good Treatment Are Fulfilled.

MANILA, April 4.—6:30 p. m.—The natives continue returning to their homes. They are coming in all along the American lines, and many of them say that the promise of good treatment are fulfilled are inducing their relatives to return to their homes.

It is reported that the United States Philippine commission, the last member of that body, Colonel Charles Denby, former minister to China, having arrived here, will discuss the situation. The members are hopeful of conclusion of peace, believing hostilities will soon be brought to the habitual revolutionists.

Brigadier General Harrison Gray Otis sails for home on board the United States transport Sherman. He says he believes the insurrection has received its death blow.

General Wheaton has assumed command of the brigade lately commanded by General Otis. The Third and Twenty-second regiments of General Wheaton's command, are returning to this city.

GENERAL OTIS' MESSAGE.

Believes the Philine Rebellion Is Practically Over.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The following has been received at the war department from General Otis:

"Present indications denote insurgent government in perilous condition; its army defeated, discouraged and scattered. Insurgents returning to their homes in cities and villages between here and points north of Malolos, which our reconnoitering parties have reached and desire protection of Americans. News from Visayan islands more encouraging every day."

REPORTED BY OTIS.

Late List of Dead and Wounded Philippine Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The following names are included in General Otis' latest casualty report from Manila:

FIRST NORTH DAKOTA — Private Adolph Kolberg, Company A, accidentally drowned.

THIRTEENTH MINNESOTA — Private Edward Pratt, Company L, smallpox.

FIRST MONTANA — Privates Robert Brown, Company G; Fred H. Wheston, H, from wounds in action.

FIFTY-FIRST IOWA—Wallace Bolin, Company K, rheumatic neuritis, smallpox.

FIRST SOUTH DAKOTA—Private Nelson McKollar, Company F, smallpox; Sergeant Charles Franchen, H; Private Will May, F, from wounds in action.

FIRST NORTH DAKOTA—Company H, killed, Lieutenant Frederick Galvin, leg, severe; D, Corporal J. C. Bryon, byebrow, slight.

POPE'S CASE SERIOUS.

Report Says He Has Had Another Paralyzing Spell.

LONDON, April 4.—According to a dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Rome the pope had a fainting fit, which is considered of the gravest character.

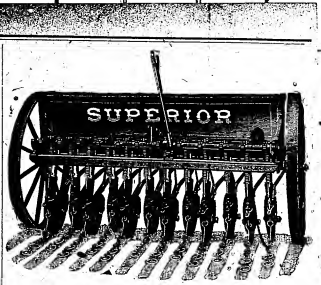
Every effort is being made by Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, to conceal the real condition of the supreme pontiff, his object being to prevent the powers from working for the next conclave.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Norway Evidently Intends to Make an Attack on Sweden.

LONDON, April 4.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Gothenberg, Sweden, referring to the warlike preparations of Norway, says:

The only possible object of these preparations is to attack Sweden, whose defenses and armaments are inferior and whose infantry are armed with obsolete weapons. Should the Norwegian fleet attack Gothenberg, the city must inevitably fall.



Our line comprises the Superior Double Disk Drills, Dowagiac Shoe Drills, Kentucky Single Disk Drills and our usual line of Harrows, Wagons, Harness and other spring goods. At our Stores in Fosston and McIntosh we also carry a full line of Iowa and shelf Hardware suited to your requirements. We solicit your trade at the point nearest you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or McIntosh.

LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. ERSKINE, President. WM. ANGLIM, Vice-President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Anglim, J. R. Robinson, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine J. P. Foote, W. H. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.
Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON..... PRESIDENT. H. STEENERSON..... VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GRIVAIS..... 2d VICE-PRESIDENT. ELLINGTON..... CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe Havana press drills, eight Broadcast wheel seeders, two gang plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 56 inch Minneapolis separator, two sets Howe's 20 inch warehouse scales, one Kansas city hay press, ten harvesters and self binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, cash piece being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap to responsible purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Elections in Other Towns.

EAST GRAND FORKS.

Hugh Thompson was elected mayor by a majority of 17, T. A. Sullivan, municipal judge, W. J. Buckley, treasurer, P. Burns, city justice, T. Murray, constable, Messrs. Zelmo, Remley, Hiler and Barlow, aldermen.

ADA.

D. C. Lightbourn wnaselected president of the council, receiving 193 votes. License was carried by a majority of 14 and the vote on incorporation was 130 for and 70 against. Total vote cast 226.

$75.00

Buys a team of horses—sound, well matched, in good condition and ready for business.

VANCE & STONE.

—Brown Bro's have a car load of fine farm horses just shipped in from central Iowa. Call and see them at M. R. Brown's barn.

Our Dead Heroes.

"The remains of officers and soldiers who lost their lives in the war with Spain during the operations on Cuba and Porto Rico were interred with due and fitting ceremonies, in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., at 2 p. m. today.

By direction of the president, all of the United States troops serving in the vicinity of Washington, together with the national guard of the District of Columbia, assembled at Arlington participated in the funeral ceremony."

The national flag was displayed at half mast on all public buildings, forts, camps, and public vessels of the United States.

—The city council meets tonight to canvass the vote of the late city election.

—Remember the auction sale of horses, wagons and farm implements will be held by S. L. Collins at his livery barns on Main street, Monday April, 10.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY APRIL 13, 1899 NO 1

FOR BETTER HORSES

Dr. Carryer Explains the Laws That Govern in Improving Breeding Stock.

LIKE WILL BEGET LIKE.

Size, Color Form, Endurance of Horses Can be Controlled.

The following article on the "Improvement of the horses of Minnesota" was read by Dr. J. C. Carryer, President of the Minnesota Stock Breeders' Association, at the last meeting of the State Agricultural Society.

Mr. President and gentlemen of this annual agricultural gathering: You will agree with me in one particular, if in no other, that in considering the prospects for improvement in the future it is well to first refer to the incidents, practices and results of the past for guide-boards to success, or the danger signals of the mistakes made by others, which we should strive to avoid. Therefore I will first briefly call your attention to what has been done before considering the problems for the future.

More than ten centuries have elapsed since Charles The Great, (charlemagne,) that renowned soldier, ruler, agriculturist, road builder and stock breeder of Europe recognized that great natural law of like begetting like or likeness of an ancestor, and therefore, issued an edict to the people throughout his entire domain to the effect that the different sizes and colors of all horses should be bred together respectively, i. e., there should be no crossing in colors nor extremes in sizes; but that the largest horses should be mated together, the smallest together, the intermediate together, that the bays, the blacks, the browns, the chestnuts, the grays and the duns, should each be bred separately so as to establish a likeness of the different types as well as colors. The effect of this remarkable proclamation was so marked and satisfactory that it was adhered to for more than two hundred years after the death of the author of this wise decree.

In the 13th century, Edward 3rd, of England, caused the horses of this country to be classified into the large war horses, Coursers, Palfreys and Hackneys, and to be bred in line for these several purposes.

Henry 7th, of England, in the 14th century had a law enacted for the destruction of all inferior mares and fillies, and the castration of all horses except the most worthy sires for the improvement of the several classes above named, and especially the large armored war horses.

Henry 8th, in the 15th century, made a reputation in horse breeding (as well as in some other matters,) but he carried horse breeding even further than his father had done, by declaring all mares to be bred should be over 15 hands high, and that no horses should be exported to foreign countries.

Afterwards, Queen Elizabeth, in the 16th century, took great interest in the improvements in breeding and development of the horses of England; both riding and harness horses.

The English running horse was not developed until in the 17th century, and he is almost the only example we have of systematic horse-breeding. He has never been crossed with other classes to improve his speed at the run, but the selections of both sires and dams are from the survival of the fittest in the same class.

The Arabs have for many, many centuries been very choice in their selections for horse-breeding, care and training, all of which command their closest attention. So much depends upon the fleetness, endurance and fidelity of their horses that often they owe their lives to these qualities.

Necessity, (and it often seems that nothing else will force people to do their whole duty in any direction,) caused Napoleon to institute and develop what he called his "heavy horse" in cavalry, since which time France has been one of the fertile fields in the production of large, heavy horses. England, Scotland and Belgium have also been active in the breeding of large horses, and this country can complete successfully with any other on the globe if her people would turn their attention to the subject as it justly deserves. But as long as we disregard the law of likes in size, conformation, endurance, colors and breeding, the farther we are getting from any desirable characterisics in horse-breeding. We must conform to the wise and universal law of like begetting like or likeness of some near or remote ancestor if we desire to perpetuate and improve our breeding stock of any kind.

The sires to be used in general breeding should be typical animals of their class in size, soundness, conformation, style, action, endurance and breeding. They should be so strongly vested in their class that they will be able to control the external characteristics of the offspring with almost all varieties of mares.

The well bred Clydesdale sire is almost sure to give the form, color, markings and hairy legs to his offspring. But the size, to a considerable degree, nerve force and endurance are derived from the dam and her ancestry. This is equally true of the Shire, Suffolk, Punch, Percheon or Belgium sires with the varieties of our large classes respectively.

Probably the most striking illustration of the sire controlling all the external characteristics is in breeding the mare and the jack together. Who ever saw a mule resemble its dam but closely that of the sire; or who who ever saw the produce of the thoroughbred horse and the mare will be equally well satisfied that the striking result is just the same. The latter produce will be a horse in all external characteristics, but like its dam, will be small, listless and unambitous.

Kentucky's and Missouri's reputation for raising mules is from the thoroughbred blood many of their proud mares possess, giving nerve force, ambition and endurance to the mules produced from such dams.

This same law applies through the mule line to the improvement of all our domestic animals. The form, style and action of our sires with strong ancestral inheritance, would be our foundation for the radical improvement of our horses. The selection of dams is equally important in the part they perform in the reproduction relation.

Almost all the breeders of our heavy draft horses of note at the present day, are proud to be able to trace the breeding of their stock back to the large black horse of Flanders, which is recognized through quite history as the result of the edict of Charlemagne.

All breeders note with pride or perplexity the fixedness of some of the colors of our horses. The bays have from time immemorial been fashionable, the blacks are comfortable with many; the browns are with some, favorites; the grays have their decrees, and there was a time when the duns were specially admired. But think of the breeders' disappointment when the produce of some favorite sire and dam, by the power of reversion, takes on the ill conformation, defects or unfavorable color of some remote ancestor. Every breeder knows how difficult it is to obliterate what is often termed the despised 'dun' color, and the gray is often equally persistent in its manifestation in reproduction. Then shall we not consider it very unfortunate that Charlemagne's edict has not been enforced from his time down to the present? If these colors were so well established in the time devoted to their separation that we are often unable at this remote period to eradicate what is undesirable, does it not prove that we might have had not only all the desired colors, but whatever type of animals are in demand, by keeping each separate and distinct? It has been demonstrated for ages that almost any change in conformation can be made by selections of the breeding stock, where the desired improvements are obtained in both sire and dam for several generations back, but the general failure with all breeders is, to not being able to recognize a weed out in many undesirable qualities, until they have become so fixed that it is the next thing to an impossibility to eradicate them or find sufficient breeding stock strong enough to overcome the defects.

It is a notorious fact that we have whole families of horses with ewe necks, heavy heads and clumsy ears, defective feet, straight pasterns, curly hocks, and flat ribs, or if not all of these, they are known to possess too many undesirable qualities for the market's demand, and this too often leads the producer to conclude there is something wrong with the market instead of his horses.

All well informed horsemen recognize a standardform, style and action of the different classes of horses, except the speedy class, and they are known to get there, in all forms, styles and manner of going, however, the long levered, low striding, frictionless gaited, fine movers are always to be preferred to the "wabbly" gaited, cross firing, knee pounding, elbow hitting, scalping, "Skip Jack" actors.

With the breeders of our draft horses too much stress has been placed upon the pounds the sires could be made to weigh, instead of their conformation and qualities for enduring the great strain consequent on heavy draft work, and the breeders for speed have gauged every sire's ability by what he could do in competition with "Father Time (the time watch) regardless of his conformation, size style, way of going, or the amount of trappings he is obliged to carry in his extreme efforts.

Seven-eighths, yes, nine-tenths of all our domestic horses are bred and reared by farmers, too many of whose views in relation to horse-breeding change annually; breeding first in one class, then another, until in the course of a few years it would be difficult for even an expert to classify their stock; and then they finally wonder what is the matter that they cannot find a ready market for their horses. The reason is plain. They have disregarded the great law upon which Charlemagne based his grand decree, of like begetting like, etc. These same annual changers in horse breeding would never think of crossing the Jersey Cow with the greyhound to improve the bird qualities of the one, the running speed of the other. No, they have seen too much along these lines to be guilty of such work as that; but finding our horse stock crossed and recrossed so often, they are unable to understand where and how to make the proper selections, as they breed first one way and then another in the vain hope of making a happy hit of it somewhere.

Concluded next week.

RED LAKE VS. POLK.

An Attempt is Made to Secure Funds from Polk Co.—Not Likely to Succeed.

Mention was made in a former issue of the JOURNAL that Red Lake county through Senator Myran had introduced a bill in the legislature under the provisions of which that county would get several thousand dollars out of the treasury of Polk county. The matter was kept quiet till County Auditor John Gleason discovered the fraud and since then there has been a big discussion. Crookston has sent representatives to the state capitol to work against the bill, among these being John Gleason, W. E. McKenzie, A. D. Stephens, J. W. Wheeler, Henri Fortier, M. Losey, J. E. Goss man and A. R. Holston. So far the prospects are good that the bill will be defeated. It is not a pleasant thing to explain. At the time when Red Lake county was set apart from Polk county a law was passed in accordance with the provisions of which appraisers were appointed to set a value upon the Polk county court house and jail and this amount was deducted from the bonded indebtedness and of the sum left Red Lake county was to pay her share. What our neighbors are now trying to do is to have the delinquent taxes and penalties on the land that is now Red Lake county, which were due at the time the separation was made, used to pay Red Lake county's share of the bonded indebtedness of Polk county.

This is clearly unjust. Red Lake county agreed to the law at that time. If the people northeast did not like the law, then was the time to protest. Had the law then read as Red Lake county now wishes it to read, it is hardly likely that Red Lake county would have been formed. These people agreed to certain conditions and it is illegal and most manifestly unjust now to try to repudiate what they accepted.

At the municipal election held last week in the town of Beattie, Kansas, women were elected to all the offices save those of police, judge and marshall.

Senator Ives' bill introduced at the request of the Liquor Dealers' Association, providing for the transfer of liquor licenses without expense, was recommended to pass by the judiciary committee after the amendment requiring the authorization of the municipal controlling board had been adopted.

The Northwestern Telephone Exchange Co. is considering the advisability of putting telephones into country houses. It is thought this can be done at the rate of $5.00 per month where there are at least four subscribers on a line. These lines would save farmers a great deal of running to town, especially in busy seasons, and would be of great use in cases of urgent sickness.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Streets Need Improving—Cost of Paving Ought to be Accurately Learned.

NO LIQUOR TO MINORS.

New G. N. Station Needed—A Public Park Would Greatly Improve The City.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the City Council:

In considering who the personnel of the council are, it becomes a difficult task indeed for the mayor to make any recommendations. The council is composed of business men who are so familiar with the city's needs that it is not within the probabilities that any recommendations could be offered that were not already being considered by this body.

The city is to be congratulated on the prosperity already arrived and the still more brilliant outlook for the future. The increase in population, and the changed conditions, are bound to stimulate a progressive city government, having in view, however, such economy as can be practiced without detriment to its welfare.

Probably, no one thing is more in the minds of the citizens, as well as the council, than the proper care of the streets. There seems to be a general desire to do something for their betterment; and this question is a large one—so large, that I am not prepared to make any positive recommendations. If the streets are to be paved, it is something that all the citizens—and especially real estate owners—are so vitally interested in, that I believe a knowledge should be obtained and disseminated, so that each and every one would have a proper basis on which to determine their opition, pro and con. I would therefore suggest that the city council employ itself as thoroughly as possible as to the actual cost of street paving, the various kinds that might be suitable for this city, so that each property owner could tell just how much it will cost him as a special tax for each twenty-five feet of frontage, and in addition thereto the approximate amount of taxes that would have to be levied as a general tax by the city, also to determine if it can be so done that the burden may be distributed over a number of years.

What has been done in the past for the fire department, I believe, meets with the approval of all of the citizens, and anything done by this council to continue its present efficiency and encourage further advancement will be approved. Due to it and our excellent system of waterworks that we have now the low insurance rates.

The police department is another of the city's institutions that needs no commendations from me, nor is it necessary to state that the council will undoubtedly continue to make it adequate for the needs of a growing city; and in mentioning the police department I cannot refrain from particularly calling its attention to the fact that it is my earnest desire that a law should be more strenuously enforced than any other, it is the law pertaining to the relations between the liquor dealers and minors. This is important both to the citizens generally and the retailer of spirituous liquors, and the best results can only be had by and with the hearty cooperation of the dealers themselves, and it is necessary to attempt to enlarge on the injury that such enforcement would obviate, as is a matter that is fully understood and appreciated by all who have arrived at the years of discretion. I believe the city is fortunate in the character of its juvenile population, due, first, to the parents, and secondly, to our excellent school system, which, while it pertains to education, and yet, well as the youth are cared for, I cannot refrain from cautioning the parents to so care for their children, of certain ages, that the curfew ordinance will not need to be enforced by the police.

It is a pleasure to meet with the council in this magnificent city hall, which is certainly a credit to this city, and will answer its needs when we have arrived at a size which will be beyond what we at present anticipate. It would seem to me proper that such city officials as have no other business interfering, should have their offices in the building, thus adding greatly to the convenience of those having business with the city authorities. This would apply more particularly to the city engineer.

One of the tasks before you is the completion of the change in the water works' system; and as you are all more familiar with that than I am, I will simply mention it, knowing full well that you will push it as speedily as possible.

The railroads are showing a friendly feeling towards the city. Especially have improvements made by the Great Northern been beneficial and much may with confidence be hoped for hereafter. A new passenger depot is really something of mutual need, and anything the council can do to bring about soon the building of an adequate depot, will meet with my best assistance.

We may well feel grateful for the excellent health enjoyed by our citizens, and I believe gratitude is due to our efficient board of health, especially to its chief officer.

Were it not that we have lately added to the city improvements to an extent that should cause us to move slowly in expending any money except for absolute needs, I would refer to the desirability of establishing a park as a matter that would be pleasing to the citizens. Public spirit will at some time demand it, but I am not prepared to say that the coming year will be the proper time in which to do it. The park fund should be fostered with care, so if not ready now the time may soon come when this improvement can be made.

The reasons stated at the beginning of this message, I will not offer any further suggestions nor take up any time in felicting ourselves on our present condition and the bright future and should I during my term deem it necessary to submit any further recommendations or suggestions, I feel assured of your hearty co-operation in anything that is for the best interest of the city.

MEETS SUDDEN DEATH.

Chris Sylvester Found Dead Near N. P. Track Three miles South of Crookston.

Lying on his face with the mark of a blow on the left side of the back part of his head from which blowa fracture of the skull and consequently instant death was caused, Chris. Sylvester was found yesterday morning. He was brought to Crookston where he was, yesterday, at Chesterman's undertaking rooms. The place where he was found was at the whistle board, a mile south of the N. P. crossing and about three and one-half miles south of Crookston. The body was near the railway track and lay where it had been apparently knocked by a passing train. Just how he came to his death is not known. He might have been on the track and the train have struck him or he might have been going to board the train when he was in motion. Foul play is hardly likely as he had no money and there are no marks, on the ground of a scuffle. What he was doing at that place is not certain. It is possible that he has been working near Marin and that he was on his way there.

Sylvester has three brothers all of whom live within a short distance of Crookston, the brother John on a farm but a short distance from where the fatal accident occurred. It is something of a coincidence that not many years ago a brother of the deceased, a Sylvester Sylvesterson, was killed on the Northern Pacific railway over in Jerome's addition.

Chris Sylvester (short for Sylvester son) was seen in Crookston Tuesday and though he is known to drink, those who saw him say he was not drunk when seen.

In times past he was one of the charges of Sheriff Lawrence, and while he was here his wife secured a divorce from him. His daughter Julia, about sixteen years of age, he appears to have been very fond of, frequently going to Portlie where the mother and daughter lived that he might see the latter. Among the articles found on Chris Sylvester were some photographs of this young girl, photos which he persuaded her to get taken at Lynne's when he and she were in Crookston once together.

The remains were buried by the brothers. No inquest was deemed necessary.

The Great Northern bridge west of Niagara was burned one day last week. A bridge crew numbering 150 was on hand within a day. The space to be bridged was about 200 feet and within three hours of the time when the work began the working train was crossing the bridge. A few of the passengers not approving of such rapid work walked across and caught the train which waited for them at the other side.

NEW CITY COUNCIL

Jas. E. O'Brien Chosen President and T. A. Harris Vice-President For the Coming Year.

NEW APPOINTMENTS RATIFIED

New Members Get Down to Work and Transact Considerable Business.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in city hall April 11, 1899.

Meeting called to order by President Vance.

Roll-call, Aldermen present: Childs, Anderson, McGregor, Harris, McKinnon, Davis, Vance.

Aldermen absent: Walsh, Sawyer, Kirsch, Rauch.

City clerk announced the newly elected aldermen who had qualified up to date, being J. E. O'Brien, T. G. Thompson, F. M. Brown and G. S. Chesterman; all of whom were present and in their seats.

The minutes of regular meeting held March 14, last were read and approved with correction that special committee appointed to investigate the real estate assessment for 1898 had reference only to parts of Jerome's addition.

The minutes of special meeting held April 6, 1899 were read and approved.

Before proceeding to organize, the new council listened to some remarks from the retiring president of council, Ald. Vance, which were well received by all present.

Ald. Vance then announced that the next order of business would be the election of his successor.

On motion the first ballot for president was made informal, and resulted in five votes being cast for T. A. Harris and five votes for J. E. O'Brien, one scattering.

Five formal ballots were taken with about same results. On the 6th formal ballot J. E. O'Brien received six votes, T. A. Harris four votes and one scattering, whereupon J. E. O'Brien was declared duly elected president of council for ensuing year.

President O'Brien thank the members for the council for the honor conferred upon him, and after a brief address announced the next order of business, the election of a vice-president. Alderman Harris was chosen to fill that office for the ensuing year.

Retiring Mayor M. R. Brown was invited to address the council at this time, after which Mayor Andrew D. Stephens presented his formal address to council, and announced the following appointments for ensuing year: For Chief of Police, Louis Gongre; for Patrolmen, Andrew Larivierre, Joseph Andrist and Ernest Hansen. For Comptroller Samuel Rosenthal; for City Attorney DeForrest Buckler; for City Engineer O. C. Ramery; all of which appointments were confirmed by council.

Frank Jerome was elected by council as street commissioner for ensuing year.

Special bridge committee on Broadway bridge rendered written report on same, which was on motion accepted and committee discharged.

Bill No. 6950 Frank Mageau $17.70 for extra hunt during election day of November last was on motion disallowed.

Following bills were allowed and ordered paid.

W. A. Lanctot, aldermen's per diem last quarter.....	$142.00
C H Mix, judge of election...	8.90
T A Harris judge of election.	12.20
C O Bahn judge of election...	6.00
J C Sather judge of election..	12.20
A McGregor judge of election.	11.90
W H Norrie judge of election.	9.20
E D Parks judge of election...	12.20
W H Norrie clerk of election..	1.50
Jesse C Childs clerk of election.....	2.90
R Giese clerk of election.....	2.90
Jerry Logan clerk of election	2.90
Chas W Latta clerk of election.....	2.20
F R Hauuel clerk of election..	3.15
Henry Funk clerk of election.	2.90
W H Halladay clerk of election.....	3.00
W L Palmer clerk of election.	3.20
Crookston Plumbing Co brass sildepck.....	55.00
Asetia & Locken furniture for fire department.....	70.00

Following bills were allowed on poor fund:

St. Gabriel's Hospital Cora Brown 3 months.....	$30.00

(Continued on Fourth page.)

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Red River Valley Drainage Commission, State of Minnesota.

Tabulated statement, showing name, location, length in miles, cubic yards of earthwork, price per cubic yard, amount paid contractors and when completed of all ditches constructed by said commission to date, Feb. 24, 1898.

Name of Ditch.	Location of Ditch.		Length in miles.	Length in miles.	Cubic yards earth.	Price per cubic yard.	Amt. pd. contractors.	When completed.	REMARKS
	County	Town R's
Moostikis Ditch	Traverse		128	45	5.29	87,385	8.5	$ 7,444.73 Nov. 1894
Extension Moostikis Ditch	Grant		128	44	1.79	19,024	8	1,521.92 Nov. 1896	Making openings in banks
Rabbit River Ditch	Traverse		129	44	11.41	163,218	6.46	16,102.51 Sept. 1896	Includes South Branch
Otter Tail River Ditch	Wilkin		132	40	5.38	71,830	7 15-16	5,689.13 Oct. 1895
			133	41
Nordlok Ditch	Wilkin		137	41	6.01	101,380	7.75	7,860.95 June 1898
Alsterson Ditch	Wilkin		138	42	2.00	33,300	7.9	1,656.00 Oct. 1897
Atherton Ditch	Wilkin		135	45	2.98	41,039	8.5	3,878.76 Oct. 1897	Includes South Branch
Whisky Creek Ditch	Clay		144	44	2.09	29,901	11.25	2,250.43 Sept. 1896
Norden Ditch	Clay		141	45	6.42	125,239	7.9	1,901.85 Nov. 1898
Felton Ditch	Clay		141	43	10.30	137,514	6.95	7,967.22 Sept. 1896	For building dam
Felton Extension Ditch	Clay		141	46	1.92	12,848	9	1,961.35 July 1897
Horuh Ditch	Norman		141	43	9.40	87,585	10	8,163.50 Sept. 1896
Ada Ditch	Norman		142	44	4.25	53,715	8	4,657.50 July 1895
Spring Creek Ditch	Norman		145	46	0.72	93,316	7.7	7,184.97 Oct. 1896
Spring Creek Ex Ditch	Norman		146	46	1.53	19,718	9	1,234.62 Nov. 1896
Sand Hill River Ditch	Polk		147	46
			148	46	6.05	200,364	11.075	22,190.91 August 1894
Sand Hill River Ex Ditch	Polk		147	46				1,504.01	Extra work
Snake River Ditch	Polk		154	49	4.03	85,407	7.45	6,172.32 June 1898
				48	2.46	53,467	6 7-8	8,447.30 July 1896	Clearing brush
Vesa Ditch	Marshall		155	48				355.01
				49	6.48	109,882	6.7	7,362.76 Nov. 1898
Middle River Ditch	Marshall		156	50				50.00
Tamarac River Ditch	Marshall		157	50	4.88	76,300	11.5	6,871.82 Not Comp.	$1,213.64 per cent. held back by state for 11,339 cubic yards still to be moved.
			158	50
			159	50	7.73	187,870	11.075	20,807.26 Sept. 1896
								675.00	Extra work
Kennedy Ditch	Kittson		160	48	8.73	71,960	7.76	5,579.90 Sept. 1896
Totals						117,47[illegible]	8[illegible]	162,417.62

THE DRAINAGE COMMISSION.

They Have Done Their Work Well and Spent Appropriations Most Wisely.

The JOURNAL publishes this week a complete statement of the drainage report which has been done by the state in the Red River Valley during the past six years and also a statement of what money has been expended. It is a most magnificent showing and is evidence that the drainage commission of which Ezra G. Valentine, of Brookings, was president, was made up of thoroughly competent men. More than ninety per cent of the appropriation was paid to the contractors, an unusually large amount for such a large enterprise. The following is the report of the receipts and expenditures:

RED RIVER VALLEY DRAINAGE COMMISSION, STATE OF MINNESOTA.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 14, 1898.

Summary of receipts and expenditures from the beginning of drainage to the year ending in 1897-3 to the present time.

Itemized vouchers for all expenses are on file in state auditor's office.

RECEIPTS.

First Appropriation by Legislature in 1891	$ 100,000.00
Second Appropriation by Legislature in 1895	50,000.00
Third Appropriation by Legislature in 1897	7,500.00
Donation by Great Northern Ry. Co. in 1895-6	25,000.00
Total receipts to date	$182,500.00

EXPENDITURES.

Covering a period of six years of active work—1892 to 1898 inclusive as follows:

Amount paid contractors, as per accompanying report of C. H. Hoffman Esq. in charge	$ 162,417.62
Paid Engineers' department, for salaries, livery R. R. fare board and hotel bills	14,750.42
Right of way expenses—cost of surveyors, getting deeds and recording same	855.50
Paid, advertising for bids, for printing deeds' forms &c	149.31
Expenses of commissioners—who attended 30 meetings, including various trips and inspections of ditches, inspecting same when completed, attending business meetings, &c	1,401.24
Percentage held by state, till Middle River Ditch is completed	1,727.63
11,828 cub. yds. earthwork on Middle River Ditch, held by engineer pending completion	1,363.34
Moneys after deducting just two items, as shown by state auditor's books	762.57
Amount cancelled on auditor's books in 1894 to balance same	.22
Total of above statement	$182,500.00
BALANCE DUE OF APPROPRIATION PAID OUT.
To contractors, [illegible] per cent.
To engineers' department	20 [illegible]
For right of way expenses	20 [illegible]
For advertising and printing	20 [illegible]
For commissioner's expenses	20 [illegible]
Total

Respectfully submitted,
EZRA G. VALENTINE,
President of Board
ALBERT BERGO,
Secretary.

Compiled by C. H. Hoffman.

In regard to the benefit resulting from the building of these ditches the JOURNAL has recently spoken at some length. All land in the vicinity of the ditches has risen in value many dollars per acre. Polk county has supplemented the work of the commission by expending several thousands dollars in building small ditches tributary to the state ditches. There is still need of much more work of this kind throughout the valley and this section will undoubtedly get a large share of the money recently appropriated by the legislature for drainage purposes.

BIGGEST IN THE WORLD.

The Great Northern Is to Build a 6,500,000-Bushel Elevator Cost $2,000,000.

The first contract in the construction of the largest grain elevator in the world was let last week by the Great Northern railway. Schmidt Bros. of West Superior were awarded the contract for the foundation, their bid $84,000. The elevator is to be located at West Superior and will be built of steel at a total cost of over $2,000,000. Its capacity is to be 6,500,000 bushels of grain, or 2,500,000 more than the largest existing elevator. The elevator will have provision for wheat, corn, flax and oats, and is to be completed by next January.

STATE LEGISLATURE

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5.

The Underleak anti-trust bill came up as a special order in the senate and was passed by a unanimous vote.

The bill of Senator Schellhach, which aims to test the right of the state to alter gross earnings taxes on railroads operating under the old charters, by bringing suit against the Chicago Great Western, was passed without trouble.

The Wilson bill, putting the oil inspector on a salary of $2,400 a year in lieu of the fee system now in vogue, was defeated.

The house devoted the morning to work on the calendar. The bill increasing the salary of Warden Wolfer was passed.

The game and fish bill occupied the time of the house in the afternoon and it was recommended to pass. The principal changes made in the law are that spring shooting is restored. The season for deer is changed from Oct. 25 to Nov. 15 to Nov. 1 and Nov. 20. The license section limits the shooting to elk, deer, caribou and moose and makes the license $20 for non-resident hunters and 25 cents for resident hunters.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6.

Spending all day on the calendar the senate had a very dreary time, but managed to clear the tab of over 40 bills.

Under suspension Senator Snyder's bill providing for a probation officer in Minneapolis and Duluth was also passed. Each officer is to attend the municipal, district and probate courts and is empowered to take children under 18 years, after sentence has been pronounced, and to keep them on probation during one year while sentence is suspended.

A bill to reach another class of delinquent children was passed in the form of S. F. 400, by Senator Potter. It provides for the appointment in every judicial district of the state.

When the house adjourned at 6 o'clock there was but little to show for it. The greater part of the day was taken up in the discussion on the peddlers' bill, which was killed.

FRIDAY, APRIL 7.

The governor sent a message to the house vetoing the Hastings-Anoka insane hospital measure upon the ground that it was against both humanity and economy.

Much of the morning session of the senate was given to the Staples timber and mineral taxation bill, which was recommended for passage.

The senate devoted a large part of the afternoon session to discussing its game bills and, with the exception of forbidding spring shooting, the measures received about tally with those passed by the house.

The Halvorson bill, putting the oil inspector on a salary, was killed.

The house, by a vote of 65 to 58, passed the bill of Senator Grindeland requiring grain and other commission merchants to give bonds to the railroad and warehouse commission.

SATURDAY, APRIL 8.

The senate debated the Peterson bill to reduce the rate of interest and extend the time of payment on state lands. The bill finally went to the calendar. Several other bills of less importance were also placed on the calendar.

The O'Neil bill providing for a modified Torrens system of land transfers was debated at length and defeated, on motion of Mr. O'Neil, went to the calendar.

Governor Lind sent three messages to the house. The first related to the binding plant at the penitentiary. The governor favored an enlargement of the plant now there. The second message refers to the interest on state funds deposited in banks. Message No. 3 directed attention to chapter 97, General Laws of 1897, relating to the collection of personal taxes.

The McGowan eight-hour bill and the O'Neil bill raising the legal school age to six years, were killed.

MONDAY, APRIL 10.

The Younger parole bill of Senator Wilson was beaten in the house by the decisive vote of 31 to 68.

The Kinne good roads bill was indefinitely postponed.

As a result of the two sessions of the senate 43 bills were advanced on their way toward becoming laws. About 20 of these have yet to pass the house.

The substitute Irvine bill, H. F. 164, passed the senate at the morning session. An amendment was adopted striking out the clause requiring farmers who buy twine to make affidavit of the number of acres under cultivation which will require the use of binding twine.

Another bill of great importance passed was H. F. 273, establishing a board of appeals for the inspection of grain, the governor to appoint a board of six, three of whom shall constitute a board of appeals for the inspection of grain at Minneapolis, and the other a similar board at Duluth.

TUESDAY, APRIL 11.

The omnibus appropriation bill has been completed and was presented to both houses during the morning. It carries approximately $1,000,000, of which the various state institutions get $1,350,000 while the other divisions of the bill foot up about $475,000.

Senator Somerville's corporation tax bill was again passed after the error made in copying had been corrected.

The two senate bills relating to the new capitol and the construction of same in the house, but not without opposition.

On S. F. 125, which allowed the tax levy of two-tenths of a mill to be extended over a period of years until the $3,000,000 is repaid, and also allowed the commission to issue certificates of indebtedness in anticipation of the money, there was a short and lively discussion. It was finally passed—73 to 32.

A dozen bills of minor importance were also passed.

MARINES AMBUSHED.

Seven American and British Sailors Killed in Samoa.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., April 12.—Dispatches received here from Apia, Samoa, April 4, say that a party of 105 American and British sailors were forced to retreat to the beach, after having been caught in an ambush on a German plantation on that date. The expedition was led by Lieutenant A. H. Freeman of the British third-class cruiser Tauranga. Lieutenant Freeman and Lieutenant P. L. Lawsdale of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, and Ensign J. R. Monahan of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, were left dead on the field. Lieutenant Monahan remained dead. Lieutenant Lansdale and was shot in retiring.

Two British and two American sailors were also killed.

The natives engaged were some of Mataafa's warriors. They severed the heads of the British and American officers killed. Priests of the French mission afterward brought the heads into Apia. The manager of the German plantation has been arrested, and detained on board the Tauranga, on affidavits declaring that he was seen urging the rebels to fight. In a previous engagement 27 of Mataafa's warriors were killed and there were no casualties among the European forces.

ATTACKED MINNESOTANS

Filipinos Outside Maloios Repulsed After a Fight.

MANILA, April 12—5:45 p. m.—At about midnight the rebels cut the telegraph line at several places between here and Maloios, and signal fires were lighted and rockets sent up along the foothills to the right of the railroad. Later the enemy attacked the outposts of the Minnesota regiment between Bigaa and Bocaviz, five miles south of Maloios, killing 2 men and wounding 14.

Simultaneously the outposts of the Oregon regiment at Marilao, the next station on the way to Manila, were attacked, with the result that 8 Americans were killed and 3 were wounded. The loss of the enemy was 10 men killed and 6 wounded. The Americans also captured 2 prisoners. Troops were concentrated along the railroads as thickly as possible, and the rebels were driven back to the foothills.

The roadbed of the railroad was damaged, but it was repaired almost immediately and traffic was soon resumed.

It is supposed that many of the rebels, who attacked General MacArthur's line of communication and who were repulsed by the troops commanded by General Wheaton, were natives who entered the region in the guise of friendlies. They had seemingly secreted arms in several places and fired on the Americans from the bushes at so close a range that they could be heard talking. General Wheaton is the best marksmen since Saturday morning and death came painlessly.

NOTED AS A JURIST.

Stephen J. Field of the Federal Supreme Court, Retired, Dies at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Justice Stephen J. Field of the United States supreme court, retired, died at his home here of kidney complications. About his bedside were his wife and her sister, Justice David J. Brewer and other close friends. He had been unconscious since Saturday morning and death came painlessly.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, April 12.

WHEAT—No. 1 hard, 72½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; No. 2 Northern, 68½c; No. 3, 62c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 72½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 72½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; May, 70½c; July, 71¾c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 12.

WHEAT—April closed, No. 1 Northern, 68c; May, 69¾c; July, 70¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 70½c; No. 1 Northern, 69½c; No. 2 Northern, 67½c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, April 12.

HOGS—Market strong. Range of prices, $3.60@3.76.

CATTLE—Market active, strong to 10c higher.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.10 for beeves; $2.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.00@4.05 for stockers and feeders; $3.50 @4.10 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts: Hogs, 953; cattle, 4,300.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, April 12.

HOGS—Market shade lower. Range of prices, $3.70@3.80.

CATTLE—Receipts, 1,000; cattle firm and active; good demand for stockers and feeders.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for cows; $3.00@4.00 for bulls; $4.30@4.35 for steers; $4.00@4.05 for stockers; $4.00 for half ers; $4.00 for calves.

Receipts: Cattle, 500; calves, 200; hogs, 3,000; sheep, 200.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, April 12.

HOGS—Market generally 5c lower.

Sales ranged at $3.60@3.87½ for mixed and butchers, $3.75@3.90 for choice heavy; $3.55@3.65 for rough heavy; $3.60 @3.80 for lights.

CATTLE—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.40 for beeves; $2.00@4.80 for cows and heifers; $3.70@ 5.00 for Texas steers; $3.00@4.00 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $3.00@5.10 for sheep; $4.00@5.00 for lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 33,000; cattle, 13,000; sheep, 14,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 12.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 71¼@71⅜c; July, 71⅜c.

CORN—May, 36c; May, 34½c; July, 35c; September, 35½c.

OATS—May, 24c; July, 25½c; September, 25½c.

PORK—April, $9.00; May, $8.05; July, $8.15@8.17½.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 13@13c; live, turkeys, 8@8c; chickens, 5½@6c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@19½c; dairies, 11½@17½c.

EGGS—Fresh, 12½c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the prices of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard	69c
No. 1 northern	67c
No. 2 northern	64c

Headache

Is often a warning that the liver is torpid or inactive. More serious troubles may follow. For a prompt, efficient cure of Headache and all liver troubles, take

Hood's Pills

While they rouse the liver, restore the regular action of the bowels, they do not gripe or pain, do not irritate or inflame the internal organs, but have a positive tonic effect. 25c. at all druggists or by mail of

C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A FREE PATTERN
(your own selection) to every sub scriber. Only 50 cents a year.

McCALL'S 50¢ MAGAZINE A YEAR

A LADIES' MAGAZINE.

A gem; beautiful colored plates; latest fashions; unequaled dressmaking helps; short stories; household hints; fashion notes; fancy work; fine literature. Special terms. Lady agents wanted. Send for terms.

Stylish, Reliable, Simple, Up-to-date, Economical and Absolutely Perfect-Fitting Paper Patterns.

McCALL BAZAR PATTERNS 10¢ and 15¢

(No-Seam-Allowance Patterns.)
Only 10 and 15 cts. each—open higher cost for them. Sold in nearly every city and town, or by mail from

THE McCALL CO.,
138-146 West 14th St., New York.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS
CANNOT BE MADE FOR
$1 per Dozen
And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn

S. L. Collins,
LIVERY AND FEED STABLES
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., West side
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

Farm Wanted.
Send full particulars, price, etc., at once.
A. H. RUSSELL,
Akron, Ohio
[37-tf]

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 75 illustrations; a standard work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—neat and large; how to cultivate; tells everything; with a colored life-like reproduction of all leading varieties and one of the best methods. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry—the Up-to-Date Book in every detail; tells everything; with a colored life-like reproduction of all the principal breeds; with many other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great sale; contains 3 colored life-like reproductions of Jersey bull, with 130 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchery, Diseases, etc. Contains cover in beautiful dark breed, with 130 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

THE BIGGLE BOOKS are original, useful—you never saw anything like them—so practical, so sensible. They are having a rousing sale—in the East, West, North and South. Every one who keeps a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The is your paper, made for you and not a mixed. It is 12 years old; it is the great boiled-down agricultural paper—the quiet-but-you-have-said-it, Farm and Household people in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over 1 million and a half regular readers.

FARM JOURNAL

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL 5 YEARS (remainder of 1897, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for A DOLLAR BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON,
Chest. F. JENKINS. Address, FARM JOURNAL, PHILADELPHIA

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of chattel mortgage dated the 28th day of April, 1897, ($126.00) Dollars, which is already due, and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by Ole Hagen and by Syver Omnes and Johne Omnes, his wife, mortgagors, to C. D. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1896 and with the chattels therein described, which said mortgage was filed in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 40 of mortgages, on page 152, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter of the southeast quarter and the west quarter of the south-east quarter all in section one (1) four township one hundred and forty-eight (148) range forty-three west, containing eighty (80) acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston in said county and State, on the

6th day May,

1898, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated for in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 2, A. D. 1898.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee.
8-6t Ihlow Lake, Minn.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk,—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, March 29th 1898.

In the matter of the estate of John Provencher, deceased.

On reserving and filing the petition of Waldil Provencher of the County of Polk representing, among other things, that John Provencher, late of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of March A. D. 1898, at the City of Crookston in said county, and being an inhabitant of said county at the time of his death, died intestate, leaving chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the surviving widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Waldil Provencher.

It is ordered, That said petition be heard before said court on Friday the 29th day of April A. D. 1898, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested in said estate by causing a copy of this order to be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published in said Polk county.

Witness my hand and official seal this 29th day of March A. D. 1898.

(13) OLE H. HAGEN,
Justice of Probate.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston.—ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the Common Council of said city of Crookston, and there are now pending for license to sell intoxicating liquors at retail, commencing on the 1st day of May, 1898, and terminating on April 14th 1899, by the following persons, and at the following places designated, viz: Said applicant, John H. Oliver, front room on ground floor on west Broadway, of the 4-story brick building known as the Rauchleisher corner, situate in lot 23, block 34, original plat of the city of Crookston, in said county and state.

Which application will be heard and determined by the Common Council of the city of Crookston at the regular meeting of said council to be held said city of Crookston, on Tuesday the 12th day of April A. D. 1898, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 23rd day of March A. D. 1898.

(13-4) W. A. LANGTON,
City Clerk.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Sixteen Hundred (1,600.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be now due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hagen and Johne Omnes his wife, mortgagors, to G. W. Stevens, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of August, 1896, and with the chattels therein described, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of August, 1896, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 40 of mortgages, on page 151, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of section four in township one hundred and forty-eight north of range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal Meredian in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1898, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Sixteen Hundred Dollars and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1898.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 8-6t

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance. In order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. The two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Magnificently equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the traveling public. Your nearest ticket agent will give you complete information, or address John Y. Calder, 2nd Vice Pres't and Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Chicago. Send for folder of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
[16-tf] Milwaukee, Wis.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The Journal wants a Live Correspondent in every township in the county..

DEFECTIVE PAGE

ONE SIDED COURTSHIP.

BY THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

John Turner thought it a piece of great good fortune when he was chosen to teach the Possum Ridge public school. It was the beginning of his career as a pedagogue, and he had gone through the experience of most young teachers. He had made innumerable applications, but had been rejected because of his lack of experience.

The board took occasion to caution Turner in the beginning to be careful not to introduce any new methods into the school or any new ideas into the minds of his pupils. They instructed him to fight shy of new things altogether.

"The last teacher we hired," a member of the board remarked, "put his foot in it by trying to do too much. He wasn't satisfied to let the school run along as it had been running for 40 years. He had to start something new."

"What did he do?" Turner asked.

"His put the children to studying grammar. He did, for a fact!"

"Did that cause trouble?"

"Well, I should say so. Do you suppose we want to pay out money to a schoolteacher and have him fool away his time like that?"

"Grammar is a very useful study," Turner ventured to suggest.

"It may be, but we don't have any need of it in Possum Ridge as we are able to tell what we know and ask for what we want we are all right. My advice to you is to steer clear of grammar. Stick to reading, writing and ciphering, and make good use of the hickory. That's the only safe way."

Unfortunately it transpired that new things were not the only things that were dangerous. There is the thing as old ee the human race which, while from time immemorial it has created the sweetest of all happiness, has ever been a source of sorrow and trouble to mankind. That thing is love.

Among Turner's pupils was a grown up girl. Her name was Sallie Perkins. She was not pretty; neither was she refined, but she was buxom, and she had not been in her bonnet and wraps, and he knew what her action meant. Without waiting to be asked she had arranged to give him the pleasure of accompanying her home. He saw that he was trapped. He had feared that she would play the spelling school game on him again by waiting for him, and he had intended to defeat her by leaving early, but she had got the better of him.

There was nothing for it but that he must submit to fate and the ingenuity of Sallie Perkins. He was too much of a gentlemen to be rude even under great provocation.

That night Sallie had recourse to her little arts of lovemaking, as before, but Turner was insensible to it all. She appealed to his affections. She prattled away vivaciously. She sighed and grew sad. He seemed almost unconscious of her presence. At last, as a final resort, she burst into tears. That disturbed it; it did not touch him. He stopped.

"What are you crying ebout?" he asked.

"I—I'm so miserable and unhap-happy!" she answered between sobs.

"What about?"

"Oh, don't ask me, for I'd blush to tell you! If you wanted to know, you could see."

"I don't see anybow."

"Oh," she cried, "you are so hard hearted! You make me so miserable when you could meke me the happiest girl on earth."

"I don't know what I have donato make you miserable," he said, "or how it is in my power to make you happy."

"You do know, too," she replied, "or at least you would know if you ever loved somebody who didn't love you."

Turner walked a little way in silence. Then he said gravely:

"Miss Perkins, I understand you now, and I am sorry you have honored me with your affections. I do not and never can return them."

"Then you spurn my love!" she cried through her tears.

"No, but I cannot return it."

"Oh, dear! And everybody thinks we are going to marry. I don't know how I can look people in the face after this."

"It is not my fault if people think we are going to marry. I have not given them any reason for thinking so."

"But you have, though."

"How?"

"By your attentions to me."

"My attentions to you! I have not shown you any attentions."

"Oh, how can you say that after going home with me from the spelling school and after the way you treated me tonight?"

Turner left Sallie at her father's and returned home, vowing that he would never be caught by her again. How well he would have kept that promise will never be known.

The next day Sallie was not at school. Turner hoped she would never come again and that he had seen the last of her.

Along about the middle of the forenoon, however, old man Perkins entered the schoolhouse. He was a great, broad, portly six foot man, with a pair of cold gray eyes hidden under massive black brows. As he stalked into the schoolroom there was a heavy frown on his face and a determined expression in his eyes that portended evil for somebody, and that somebody was no other than John Turner.

"Mr. Turner," he said, "jest let'up on yur teachin for a minute an listen to me."

"All right, Mr. Perkins," Turner replied. "What have you to say?"

"I've got a right smart to say mebby, but first I want to ax yo fa'r an squar' if ye intend to marry my gal?"

"I do not."

"Why hain't ye?"

"Because it doesn't suit me."

"Ah, it don't suit ya, eh?"

"No, sir."

"But it suited ye wall enough in make love to her an win her affections, eh?"

"I never made love to her."

"Ye didn't walk home with her from the spellin school, I reckon?"

"I did, but how could I avoid it under the circumstances?"

"Ye didn't set up to her over at the dance last night like a sick kitten to a hot brick, eh?"

"I did only what I was forced to do."

"Ye made love to her an won her heart, an now if yo don't marry her she'll pine away to a shadder. Young man, I love my gal too well to let any spindle shanked chap ruin her life an cause her to grieve herself into the grave. Ye must marry her."

"I can't do it."

"Yes, but ye kin. Ses here now. I'm willin to do this thing up friendlylike an if ye'll marry Sal without any fuss or rumpus I'll make it to ye intrust. I'll give yo a cow an a feather bed to start to housekeepin on. Whet ya say to that?"

"Mr. Perkins, I cannot under any circumstances marry your daughter."

"Well, I'm sorry ya sez it in that light. I hate to have to deal rough with yo, but I reckon I got it to do. Ye gye to marry my gal, an if ye can't be persuaded or hired into it I'll have to try force."

"What are you going to do?" Turner questioned uneasily.

"Goin to lick tha very hide off ye!" Perkins replied. "Look out for me now, for I'm a-comin right at ye! Who-o-pe-o!"

His mode a sudden spring forward, grabbed at Turner with one hand and struck at him with the other. Turner dodged, made a rush at a window and went through it a bound, taking the sash with him. Perkins followed him, and then there began a mad, wild chase through the woods and over the hills that lasted till night.

In the darkness Turner eluded his pursuer and stole away to the railroad, where he boarded the first train for his home. Almost a month's salary was due him from the Possum Ridge school district, but he never made any attempt to get it. He was willing to let matters rest as they were.

"WHAT ARE YOU CRYING ABOUT?" HE ASKED.

loved. Turner was the object upon which she fixed her affections.

Unhappily for Sallie, Turner's affections were fixed in another direction. He had a sweetheart back in the city where he was born. So Sallie's love was hopeless, but she did not know it.

One night there was a spelling school at the schoolhouse. Turner was there, and so was Sallie. She came with her father.

When the spelling school was over, Turner remained until the people were all gone. Then he came out and was surprised to find Sallie standing at the door alone.

"What are you waiting for, Sallie?" he asked.

She hung her head and answered demurely:

"I am afraid to go home alone."

"Why, didn't your father come with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Isn't he going back with you?"

"No, sir. He's already gone."

"Gone and left you?"

"Yes, sir."

"That's curious. How did he expect you to get home?"

"I don't know. Maybe he thought I'd have company."

"Humph! It seems to me he should have scarred himself of that before he went away and left you."

"I reckon he ought, but he didn't." She might have told Turner that she had informed her father that he need not wait for her, as she would have a beau home.

"I don't know what in the world I am to do!" she said in a tone of sad distress. "I am afraid to go all that way by myself."

"Perhaps, if I should call as lond as I can, I could make your father hear."

"Oh, no, you couldn't! He's too far away," she replied hastily.

"Humph! Let's see! You will have to stay all night with some of the neighbors. There's Smith's right down—"

"Oh, I couldn't think of doing that!" she broke in. "Is it to your house?"

"Two miles."

Turner was silent for a little while. Then he said:

"It won't do for you to go home alone. I shall have to go with you."

Her heart gave a great, joyful bound, and she trembled with suppressed happiness. She had got what she had been working for, and for an hour or so she would be alone with the man she loved.

Turner was in for five miles of walking, and, not being in love with the girl, he did not enjoy the prospect. He gave Sallie his arm gallantly enough, but for all that he was not the best of company. He was moody, and his conversation was dull, but Sallie took no notice of that. The bare idea of being in his company, of having her hand on his arm and walking by his side, was heaven to her. Her happiness was too great to be disconcerted by trifles.

And she, though as untutored child of nature, knew how to make love. She was in possession of all the little delicate arts by which women appeal to the hearts of men. She was wildly gay at times. Then suddenly she would check herself and turn demurely sad. Then she would lean heavily on him and press his arm close to her and seem to unconsciously surrender herself wholly to his protection.

Naturally it is blissful for a man to be made the victim of a woman's love-making, but it was not so with Turner. The girl's conduct repelled and disgusted him. She was coarse, uneducated, unrefined and unlovable, and when at last she walk was over he drew a long breath of relief. He vowed, too, that he would never be her beau again, but in this he was mistaken.

Just a week after the spelling school there was a dance in the neighborhood. Turner was invited, and he had to accept the invitation. By refusing he would have given umbrage to the entire district. On Possum Ridge the schoolteacher was expected to participate in all the social functions, from a rooster fight to a candy pulling.

Turner went to the dance. Sallie Perkins was there. He met her with a civil word nf greeting. She met him with a heavenly smile and a blush. He realized her sentiments and turned away, resolved to avoid her.

Somehow, though, everybody had become possessed of the idea that Turner and Sallia were lovers and that their marriage was only a question of time. They treated them as an engaged couple. They threw them together on every possible occasion, made them dance together, sit together, go into supper together. All this was pleasant to Sallie, but not exactly to the taste of Turner.

When the dance was over, Sallie came to Turner and slipped her arm into his. She had on her bonnet and wraps, and he knew what her action meant. Without waiting to be asked she had arranged to give him the pleasure of accompanying her home. He saw that he was trapped. He had feared that she would play the spelling school game on him again by waiting for him, and he had intended to defeat her by leaving early, but she had got the better of him.

There was nothing for it but that he must submit to fate and the ingenuity of Sallie Perkins. He was too much of a gentlemen to be rude even under great provocation.

That night Sallie had recourse to her little arts of lovemaking, as before, but Turner was insensible to it all. She appealed to his affections. She prattled away vivaciously. She sighed and grew sad. He seemed almost unconscious of her presence. At last, as a final resort, she burst into tears. That disturbed it; it did not touch him. He stopped.

"What are you crying ebont?" he asked.

"I—I'm so miserable and unhap-happy!" she answered between sobs.

"What about?"

"Oh, don't ask me, for I'd blush to tell you! If you wanted to know, you could see."

"I don't see anybow."

"Oh," she cried, "you are so hard hearted! You make me so miserable when you could meke me the happiest girl on earth."

"I don't know what I have donato make you miserable," he said, "or how it is in my power to make you happy."

"You do know, too," she replied, "or at least you would know if you ever loved somebody who didn't love you."

Turner walked a little way in silence. Then he said gravely:

"Miss Perkins, I understand you now, and I am sorry you have honored me with your affections. I do not and never can return them."

"Then you spurn my love!" she cried through her tears.

"No, but I cannot return it."

"Oh, dear! And everybody thinks we are going to marry. I don't know how I can look people in the face after this."

"It is not my fault if people think we are going to marry. I have not given them any reason for thinking so."

"But you have, though."

"How?"

"By your attentions to me."

"My attentions to you! I have not shown you any attentions."

"Oh, how can you say that after going home with me from the spelling school and after the way you treated me tonight?"

Turner left Sallia at her father's and returned home, vowing that he would never be caught by her again. How well he would have kept that promise will never be known.

The next day Sallie was not at school. Turner hoped she would never come again and that he had seen the last of her.

Along about the middle of the forenoon, however, old man Perkins entered the schoolhouse. He was a great, broad, portly six foot man, with a pair of cold gray eyes hidden under massive black brows. As he stalked into the schoolroom there was a heavy frown on his face and a determined expression in his eyes that portended evil for somebody, and that somebody was no other than John Turner.

"Mr. Turner," he said, "jest let'up on yur teachin for a minute an listen to me."

"All right, Mr. Perkins," Turner replied. "What have you to say?"

"I've got a right smart to say mebby, but first I want to ax yo fa'r an squar' if ye intend to marry my gal?"

"I do not."

"Why hain't ye?"

"Because it doesn't suit me."

"Ah, it don't suit ya, eh?"

"No, sir."

"But it suited ye wall enough in make love to her an win her affections, eh?"

"I never made love to her."

"Ye didn't walk home with her from the spellin school, I reckon?"

"I did, but how could I avoid it under the circumstances?"

"Ye didn't set up to her over at the dance last night like a sick kitten to a hot brick, eh?"

"I did only what I was forced to do."

"Ye made love to her an won her heart, an now if yo don't marry her she'll pine away to a shadder. Young man, I love my gal too well to let any spindle shanked chap ruin her life an cause her to grieve herself into the grave. Ye must marry her."

"I can't do it."

"Yes, but ye kin. Ses here now. I'm willin to do this thing up friendlylike an if ye'll marry Sal without any fuss or rumpus I'll make it to ye intrust. I'll give yo a cow an a feather bed to start to housekeepin on. Whet ya say to that?"

"Mr. Perkins, I cannot under any circumstances marry your daughter."

"Well, I'm sorry ya sez it in that light. I hate to have to deal rough with yo, but I reckon I got it to do. Ye gye to marry my gal, an if ye can't be persuaded or hired into it I'll have to try force."

"What are you going to do?" Turner questioned uneasily.

"Goin to lick tha very hide off ye!" Perkins replied. "Look out for me now, for I'm a-comin right at ye! Who-o-pe-o!"

His mode a sudden spring forward, grabbed at Turner with one hand and struck at him with the other. Turner dodged, made a rush at a window and went through it a bound, taking the sash with him. Perkins followed him, and then there began a mad, wild chase through the woods and over the hills that lasted till night.

In the darkness Turner eluded his pursuer and stole away to the railroad, where he boarded the first train for his home. Almost a month's salary was due him from the Possum Ridge school district, but he never made any attempt to get it. He was willing to let matters rest as they were.

OLD AGE.

Yer wrunkle a job, yer daw,
An yer eyes only stay-sight!
Thanks, we've all the paralytics as we're needin without your!
This air's no bloomin 'orspital, this factory is not!
Ye tiken on room that's young an sensyes an
'ave a look on the rush.
An that is what's yer ain't, my friend, nork by a tidy bit!
It sig'n no yooze ter try,
So 'ike yerself 'ome awyes!
Thar's the young 'un close be'ind yer, an we're blockin up the way!

An whur are yer ter go?
Ow the dickens shud I know!
Thar's no one 'asperin for yer when yo're
dyer-tere or sol
Yer 'ad yer chawnce cherister, yer don't go on like booze,
Yer've got all yer strength still left as ya'd
'ave it after yooze.
Sus ov 'yer, yer awaks fer wuk yer finds as they 'ave sed—
An ev'rybuer yer've told
Is 'ere, right an, these bonerd
Are, the sin that's paved thar forgiven in the sin o bein old!

An thur's anithink as yer'll get—
Frushing schemes in ov, yer bet!
Thar nye be their good time comin, but it ain't a-comin yet!
With the growth of thirty 'ahirs it is wrong
ter interfere,
Likewise we won't get no twenty rollying
parrels a year!
An see thing is ov differenuh, an teather thing's too dear.
Call tge 'as done yer trick,
So jest yer mawuh off quickt
Thar's the work's now at the same'ayy—yar've only got ter pickt

—London Chronicle.

A LITTLE JOKE.

BY ROBYARD KIPLING.

A day or two before Easter I was sitting in my office finishing up some scraps of work and ever and anon casting happy glances at my portmenteau, which stood in the corner. I was just off to spend a fortnight with my old friend Colonel Gunton, in Norfolk, and was looking forward to seeing him again with great pleasure. We had not met for ten years, and I had never been to his place or seen any of his family. It would be delightful.

The telephone bell rang.

"Oh, confound it! I hope that's nothing to keep me!" I exclaimed, and I rose to see to it.

"Mr. Miller, are you there?"

"Yes."

"All right. I'll come round."

A few minutes passed and then my clerk announced. "A lady to see you, sir."

A remarkably pretty girl of about 18 was ushered in. She stood still some way from me till the door was closed. Then she suddenly rushed toward me, fell at my feet and exclaimed, "You will protect me, won't you?"

"My dear young lady, what in the world"—

"You're the famous Mr. Miller, aren't you—Mr. Joseph Miller, the philanthropist?"

"My name is Joseph Miller, certainly."

"Ah! Then I am safe!" And she sat down in an armchair and smiled confidingly at me.

"Madam," said I sternly, "will you have the goodness to explain to what I owe the pleasure of this visit?"

"They told me to come to you."

"Who?"

"Why, the people at the police station."

"The police station?"

"Yes, when they let me go—because it was a first offense, you know. They said you always took up cases like mine, and that if I stuck to you I should be well looked after."

It was quite true that I had taken an interest in rescuing young persons from becoming habitual criminals, but I was hardly prepared for this.

"What have you been doing?"

"Oh, nothing this time—only a bracelet."

"This time?"

"They didn't know me up here," she explained smilingly. "I've always practiced in the country. Wasn't it lucky I came, Mr. Miller, I'm tired of it, and I am indeed. The life is too exciting—the doctors say so—so I've come to town."

The case was a strange one, but I had no time to investigate it now. It wanted only half an hour to the time my train left Liverpool street.

"What is your name?" I asked.

"Sarah Jones."

"Well, I will have your case looked into. Come and see me again, or, if you are in distress, you may write to me—at Colonel Gunton's, Beech Hill, Norfolk. I shall be staying there"—

"Going now?"

"I start in a few minutes."

"Oh, I'll come with you!"

"Madam," I answered with emphasis, "I will see you—out of the office first."

But what am I to do? Oh, it's nonsense, I shall come. I shall say I belong to you."

I rang the bell.

"Show this lady out, Thomas, at once."

She laughed, bowed and went—evidently a most impudent hussy. I finished my business, drove to Liverpool street and established myself in a first class smoking carriage. I was alone and settled myself for a comfortable journey. I was rudely interrupted. Just as the train was starting, the door opened—and that odious young woman jumped in.

"Therel I nearly missed you!" she said.

"I've come to communicate with you," I said severely. "You are a disgrace to your—er—sex."

"Oh, all right. I've wired to the colonel."

"You've wired to my friend, Colonel Gunton!"

"Yes; I didn't want to surprise them. I said you would bring a friend with you. It's all right, Mr. Miller."

"I don't know who you are or what you are, but the Guntons are respectable people, and I am a respectable man, and—"

"That's no reason why you should promenade up and down, Mr. Miller. It's very uncomfortable for me."

"What is the meaning of this insolent behavior?"

"Why not be friendly? We're off now, and I must go on."

"I shall give you in charge at the next station."

"What for?"

On reflection, I supposed she had committed no criminal offense, and with a dignified air I opened my paper.

"I don't mind your smoking," she said and took out a box of chocolates.

I was et my wits' end. Either this girl was mad or she was a dangerous and unscrupulous person. She was quite capable of making a most unpleasant and discreditable commotion on the platform at Beech Hill station that would be very bad for me.

"Shall we stay long at the Guntons'?" she asked.

"You, madam, will never go there."

"Oh, yes, I shall!"

"Indeed, you won't. I'll take care of that. The police will see to that."

"I don't care a fig for the police. I shall go and stay as long as you do. They told me to stick to you."

I became angry. Any man would have. But nothing was to be gained by losing my temper. I took out a sovereign.

"If you'll get out at the next station, I'll give you this."

She laughed merrily. "I thought you went in for personal supervision, not mere pecuniary doles," she said. "I read that in your speech at the charity organization meeting. No; I'm not to be bribed. I'm going to the Guntons'."

It's absurd. It's preposterous. What will—what will Mrs. Gunton say?"

"Oh, she won't mind!" answered my companion, with a confident nod. "She's used to girls like me."

"You surprise me," I retorted sarcastically, but she only laughed again.

I returned to my paper.

An hour passed in silence. The train began to slacken speed as we neared the station next before Beech Hill. She looked up and said:

"Would you really rather I didn't come with you?"

I had passed a wretched hour. This girl was evidently bent on blasting my character.

"Madam," said I, "if you will get out at this station, I'll give you a £5 note."

"What? I heard you never gave away a farthing! They said no one could get a penny out of you."

"It is true that I disapprove of indiscriminate charity, but under the circumstances I"—

"Think I am e deserving object? Well, I'll take it."

With a sigh of relief I took a note from my pocketbook and gave it her.

"I'll pay it back soon," she said.

"Never let me see your face again."

"Apologize for me to the Guntons. Goodby."

She jumped out lightly, and I sank back murmuring:

"Thank heaven!"

After I got rid of her my journey was peaceful and happy, and I forgot all my troubles in the warm greeting my old friend Bob Gunton and his wife gave me. The girl must have lied about the telegram; at least Bob made no reference to it. He had a fine family of boys and girls and presented them to me with natural pride.

"That's my lot—except Addie. She's gone to see some friends, but we expect her back every minute. They keep me alive, I can tell you, Miller."

After tea my host and hostess insisted on taking me for a stroll on the terrace. It was a beautiful evening, and I did not mind the cold. As we were talking together I heard the rumble of wheels. An omnibus stopped at the gate.

"Ah, she has," said Gunton. "It runs between here and our market town."

I hardly heard him, for, to my horror, I saw, descending from the box and opening the gate, that girl!

"Send her away!" I cried. "Send her away! On my honor, Bob, as a gentleman, I know nothing about her."

"Why, what's the matter?"

"I solemnly assure Mrs. Gunton and yourself that"—

"What's the matter with the man? What's he talking about?"

"Why, Bob, that girl—that barefaced girl!"

"That girl! Why, that's my daughter Addie!"

"Your daughter?"

The little minx walked up to me with a smile, dropped a little courtesy and said:

"I knew, Mr. Miller, that it wasn't true that you would refuse help to a really deserving case. The others said you would, but I thought better of you."

And she had the effrontery, then and there, to tell her parents all about it!

I think parents are the most infatuated class of persons in the community. They laughed, and Mrs. Gunton said:

"How clever of you, Addie! You must forgive her, Mr. Miller. My dear girls are so playful!"

Playful! And she never returned the £5 note.

Short Whist—Its Invention.

This revolution was occasioned by a worthy Welsh baronet preferring his lobster for supper to the dinner that whist players—consequently four great men—adjourned from the house of company to Brookes' and proceeded to play while the cook was busy. "The lobster must be hot," said the baronet. "A rubber may last an hour," said another. "and the lobster may be cold again or spoiled before we have finished." "It is too long," said a third. "Let us cut it shorter," said the fourth; carried nem. con. Down they sat and found it very lively to win or lose so much quicker. Besides furnishing conversation at supper, the thing was new—they were logisleters and had a fine opportunity to exercise their calling.—Short Whist.

Agricultural Land Seekers

save time and money and improve their condition if they will read carefully these announcements

Free Homestead Lands in Western Canada

Secure for yourself and your sons a heritage, costing you nothing. In the course of a few years it will

Yield You a Competence

as it has done thousands of others, who farming elsewhere, to-day have comfortable homes. Yield of cereals phenomenal and prices the highest, owing to extra quality of grain and Low Railway Rates that Exist.

Climate healthy, fuel plentiful and taxes merely nominal. Write for pamphlet and particulars of free grants to intending settlers, to the Canadian Government or to any Canadian Government Agent.

W. H. ROGERS
WESTERN AGENT
CANADIAN GOVERNMENT

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
154 E. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Cronkstnn, Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villand, Minn., local agents.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.
With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH.

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75
MONARCH ROADSTERS $60
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Annie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance.

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

C. N. COSGROVE, we notice, has been elected mayor of the town of Le Sueur. We congratulate Le Sueur upon its wise selection and Mr. Cosgrove upon the honor which his fellow townsmen have conferred upon him.

FROM what we know of the controversy that has been going on amongst the members of the medical fraternity of the state almost ever since the legislature opened we are inclined to be out of patience with the osteopaths. They wish a special osteopathic medical examining board and are not satisfied to be represented on the general medical examining board of the state.

"IMPERIALISM finds its inspiration in dollars not in duty." This sentence is quoted from Col. Bryan's new book on the Philippine question and strikes the key note of the volume. Mr. Bryan delights in finely turned expressions but the trouble with him is that he will sacrifice truth to rhetoric. The only fault that we can find with the above quoted sentence is that it is not true.

THE ceremonies at the graves of the dead heroes who died in behalf of humanity in Cuba and Porto Rico and who were buried last Thursday in the national cemetery at Arlington Heights, were most imposing. All possible honors were accorded them. Their comrades in the war and others "with arms reversed and muffled drum followed their funeral car." Nothing that American could do would be too much for these brave warriors who died on duty.

MR. BOWLER, the daily and food commissioner, and Mr. Pope, the public examiner, are both loudly clamoring for more money which they say is necessary if the affairs of their departments are to be managed rightly and yet the fusionists talked about the extravagance of the republicans while the latter were in office. It is becoming more evident every day that there was little to reform in the state government and that the republicans themselves would have effected these reforms much better than the fusionists.

WE do not envy ex-governor Merriam his position as census director. Applications for positions keep pouring in upon him. Reports with reference to the work run thus: There is a close contest in such and such a congressional district for an $1,200 position: representative so and so will probably be able to land a $1,600 position etc. The fitness of this or that man for some particular office is seldom referred to, the question is who will be the lucky man to draw the salary.

"THE aim and object of the American government, apart from the fulfillment of the solemn obligations it has assumed toward the family of nations by its acceptance of sovereignty over the Philippine islands is the well being, prosperity and happiness of the Philippine people and their elevation and advancement to a position among the most civilized peoples of the world." The above is a quotation from the proclamation issued at Manila by the Commission which represents President McKinley, and yet there are those who say the United States is striving to crush a people who are struggling for liberty.

SECRETARY RANDALL of the state agricultural society has sent as a very cordial invitation to call at his home the next time we are in the city and he will be pleased to introduce us to Miss Randall the youngest member of his family, who, he says, is quite musically inclined. We shall esteem it an honor to be presented to this young musician, but we may say that it is not necessary for us to leave home in order to hear melodious sounds, the difference between Mr. Randall and ourselves being that our little warbler has the advantage of a few days' longer sojourn on this planet.

THE Indian commission has made a division of the White Earth agency, making two agencies, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian appropriation bill. The Leech lake agency, under Captain Mercer, will comprise Leech Lake, Cass Lake and Lake Winnebegoshish reservation and the Chippewa reserve north of Leech lake. Agent Sutherland will have charge of the White Earth reservation proper, and Mille Lacs, which will constitute the White Earth agency. Secretary Hitchcock will approve the Indian commissioner's recommendation that Agent Mercer's headquarters on the Leech lake agency be located near Walker. The secretary has informed the Indian commissioner verbally to this effect.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Methodist Ministers Will Discuss Church Work—Dr. Forbes, Presiding Elder, Will Lecture.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district has been one of the busiest men in Northern Minnesota during the present Conference year which began last October. His district was enlarged so as to include the towns along the new Duluth line and the Red River Valley. He soon found that much of this territory had not been worked and his time has consequently been spent in organizing new parishes, dedicating new churches and preaching and lecturing in every corner of his large district.

It is with a view to aiding the Ministers in this part of his district that he has arranged with the aid of Rev. A. E. Rowson, pastor of the M. E. church in Crookston, to hold a District Conference in this city on May 8, 9 and 10.

Live topics of church work will be discussed by prominent pastors. The meetings will be opened to the public and will be found interesting and profitable. The following is the program in full:

Monday, May 8th at 8:00 p. m.—Sermon by Rev. J. G. Moore, of Pembina, North Dakota: followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Tuesday, May 9th, at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by J. C. Hartley, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota. Subject: "The Present Status of Sunday School Work and What Modifications are Needed."

Tuesday at 3:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. A. Cooke, of Fisher. Subject: "The Use of the Ritual in Church Services.

Tuesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Geo. P. Watson, of Bemidji. Subject: "Revival Methods Best Suited to the times.

Tuesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. H. Logan, of St. Hilaire. Subject: "Church Literature."

Tuesday, at 8:00 p. m.—Lecture by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Epworth League Idea."

Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. T. J. Smith, of Argyle. Subject: "The Functions of the Different Church Boards."

Wednesday, at 3:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Wm. Park, of Ada. Subject: "The Preacher as a Student of Human Nature and General Literature."

Wednesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. A. E. Rowson, of Crookston. Subject: "The Sermon—Its Theme, Preparation and Delivery."

Wednesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. F. Spicer, of Warren. Subject: "The Preacher as a Pastor."

Wednesday, at 8 p. m.—Address by Mr. J. W. Wheeler. Subject: "The Business Affairs of the Church." Address by Rev. J. G. Moore. Subject: "The Social Meetings." Address by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Benevolent Societies."

The Conference to close with a consecration service.

The forenoon of Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to the examination of the undergraduates of the Conference. Everybody will be welcome.

FIFTH BAND CONCERT.

In Opera House April 21—Two Numbers by Ladies' Chorus.

Friday evening April 21, is the date of the next band and orchestral concer This one will be the last of this series, and will be an excellent entertainment. The ladies chorus will sing two songs, one entitled "The Fisher," we wish to make special mention of. It is a difficult chorus and is quite an undertaking for amateur singers, but the ladies have worked faithfully and will sing the song in a very creditable way. In this chorus is a very pleasing solo for soprano which Miss Bessel will sing. Mr. Ballou, a bass singer of considerable note will sing one song. The orchestra will play "The Big Rib Two Step" and "Don Juan Overture" by Mozart both of which have been played very recently by Danz orchestra of Minneapolis and other large orchestras. The following is the program:

March..... "The Charleston" (new) ..... Sousa. Band.

Piano Solo..... Mrs. Riggs.

Vocal Solo..... Selected. Mr. E. B. Ballou.

Characitic March..."Alabama Dream"..Barnard. Band.

Song..... "Oh Old Maids"..... Garcia. Ladies Chorus.

Two Step "The Big Rib" by the same composer as The Winner, been published just one week..... Brainard. Riggs Orchestra.

Song..... "The Fisher"..... Parker. Ladies Chorus (Solo sung by Miss Bessell)

Overture..... "Don Juan"..... Mozart. Riggs Orchestra.

Cornet Duet "Sweet and Sweet Polka" Short. Mr. Riggs and Dr. Smith.

Negro Oddity "Pickaninnies Parade" Barnard. Band.

The band will be up to their usual standing and will play a couple of the very latest rag-time negro oddities which will be enjoyed immensely by the audience. The seats will be on sale at Tom Morris' on Thursday morning the 20th at 10 o'clock sharp.

NEW CITY COUNCIL.

Continued from first page.

St Gabriel's Hospital John Lindgren 3 months..... 30.00
W E Slocum mdse..... 28.00
F X Farley medical attendance Geo Burney..... 2.00
A G Anderson medicine..... 14.00
Mrs C M Benson board Pat Connors..... 10.00
C E Dunpiel medical attendance Sophie Johnson..... 25.00

Bills for justice court fees were allowed as follows:

John McLean..... $25.50
G H Holt..... 19.00

Pay roll for March, amounting to $23.42 was ordered paid.

City clerk to whom was referred the report of special committee, appointed to inquire into the matter of excessive assessment on parts of Jerome's addition, reported that the aggregate reduction made by the committee in the assessed valuation was $6400, amounting to $560.46 total tax.

It was moved and seconded that the report of the clerk be accepted, and that the recommendations of special committee for a reduction of assessed values in Jerome's addition, as contained in their report, be rejected and the committee discharged. Motion carried.

On motion the report of comptroller for the previous year's business in his office, was referred to the finance committee, to report on at the next meeting of council.

Official bonds given by Ole O. Christianson city treasurer, W. A. Lanctot city clerk, John McLean and G. H. Holtcity justices. A. A. Gleun and J. E. Greenhalgh constables, were read before council, and on motion accepted and approved.

On motion license was granted John B. Oliver to sell intoxicating liquors, as per his application, and his bond, with T. G. Thompson and Thomas F. Walsh as sureties accepted and approved.

Written report of George Ralph as city engineer as to the unfinished work in the city, was read and ordered placed on file.

On petition of O. N. Lucken grading tax on lot 1 block 10 in Fletcher & Houston addition assessed for filling on Fletcher street, amounting to $22.72 was abated, it appearing that filling was a detriment instead of a benefit to said lot.

A petition from residents of Chase addition was read asking authority to build certain sidewalks in said addition. On motion same was referred to street bridge committee.

On motion it was declared to be the sense of the council that the amount previously rendered by Superintendent Peterson for lights in gymnasium, should be charged and collected on that basis.

On motion Aldermen Harris, Chesternan and McKinnon were appointed a committee to inquire into the matter of lighting for the band room, and report at next meeting.

On petition by Scott & Lycan council recommended a reduction in their assessment on personal property to correspond to the valuation as reported by the city equalization board.

On motion council proceeded to fix the salaries for the different city officials for ensuing year.

By unanimous vote of council salary of chief of police was fixed at $60 per month and that of patrolman at $45 per month.

It was moved and seconded that the salary of comptroller be fixed at $300 for ensuing year. Motion amended that it be $200.

The ayes and nays being called for, the vote on the amendment was as follows:

Ayes: Anderson, Thompson, Davis, McGregor, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan, Childs.

Nays: Vance, Harris. Amendment declared carried. Vote on original motion as amended was as follows:

Ayes: Vance, Thompson, Davis, Harris, McGregor, McKinnon, Chesternan, Brown and Childs.

Nays: Anderson. Motion as amended was declared carried and salary was fixed at $200.

By the unanimous vote of council the salary of the city attorney was fixed at $300 for the ensuing year.

It was moved and seconded that the city engineer be provided a room in the city hall buildings, and that the question of locating said office be referred to the city hall committee. Motion carried.

It was moved and seconded that the salary of city engineer be fixed at $300 for ensuing year. Amended that salary for said office be fixed at $600 a year. Vote taken on the unendment resulted as follows:

Ayes: Vance, Thompson, Davis, McGregor, Brown, Childs.

Nays: Anderson, Harris, McKinnon, Chesternan. Amendment declared carried. Vote on original motion as amended follows:

Ayes: Vance, Anderson, Thompson, Davis, Harris, McGregor, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan, Childs.

Nays: None. Upon this vote the chair declared motion carried, and salary of city engineer fixed at $600 for ensuing year.

Moved and seconded that the salary of city clerk be fixed at $650 per month.

Amended that it be $45 per month. Vote taken on the amendment as follows:

Ayes: McKinnon, Childs.

Nays: Vance, Anderson, Thompson, Davis, Harris, McGregor, Brown, Chesternan. Upon this vote amendment was declared lost.

Vote on the motion was as follows:

Ayes: Vance, Anderson, Thompson, Davis, Harris, McGregor, McKinnon. Motion declared carried and salary of city clerk fixed at $50 per month for ensuing year.

Moved and seconded that the salary of street commissioner be fixed at $50 a month for ensuing year. Amended that same be fixed at $45 per month. Vote on the amendment was as follows:

Ayes: Anderson, Thompson, Davis, McGregor, Childs.

Nays: Vance, Davis, Harris, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan. Vote being a tie, the chair voted nay and declared amendment lost.

Vote on the motion was as follows:

Ayes: Vance, Davis, Harris, McGregor, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan, Childs.

Nays: Anderson, Thompson. Upon this vote motion was declared carried, fixing salary of street commissioner at $50 per month for ensuing year.

It was moved and seconded that the salary of city treasurer be fixed at $200 for the ensuing year. Amended that it be fixed at $300. Vote on the amendment resulted as follows:

Ayes:—Vance, Anderson, Thompson, Davis, McGregor.

Nays:—Harris, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan, Childs.

Vote being a tie, the chair voted nay and declared the amendment lost. Vote being taken on the motion resulted as follows:

Ayes:—Harris, McGregor, McKinnon, Brown, Chesternan, Childs.

Nays:—Vance, Anderson, Thompson Davis. Upon this vote the motion was declared carried fixing the salary of city treasurer at $200 for the ensuing year.

By unanimous vote of council the president of council was appointed to the purchasing agent for the ensuing year.

It was moved and seconded that Johnson be taken to Little Falls, Minn. where other departments of the city are located, and that the city clerk draw an order on the city treasurer for the amount of railroad fare. Motion carried.

On motion the president of council was authorized to appoint the several committees for the ensuing year, and announce same in city papers.

On motion city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for doing the city printing and job work for ensuing year.

On motion council adjourned.

W. A. LANCTOT,
City Clerk.

Elsewhere.

According to government engineers there will not be a flood on the upper Mississippi this spring, unless unusually heavy rains fall in the early spring.

The snow is not heavy in the river basin this year as a usual, and there is not enough to produce the water to cause a freshet that would be at all dangerous. The weather bureau does not expect a flood.

The city of Grand Forks has filed a claim with the board of commissioners of that county for about $30,000, which is claimed to be due from the county to the city. The claim is for the payment of all interest and penalties which have been collected on the city's share of delinquent taxes since 1881, and is supposed to approximate $50,000.

WONDERFUL SPECIMENS.

The Worth While Club Entertain a Large Audience and Auction off Dainty Lunches.

The Freak show given at the College Hall last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Worth While Club was very amusing and entertaining and was attended by a good sized audience. The freaks took theirstand on the platform and were one by one introduced by the manager of the show, Mr. W. B. Smith. Glass bottles were swallowed, the musically dumb sang, the famous Siamese twins appeared, so unlike you could hardly tell them apart, etc. etc.

The second part of the program consisted of the auctioning off of the delicious lunches which had been prepared by the ladies. Ed Martin mounted a chair and with the good nature, ready wit, and keen ability of one who had been long at the business, he sold to the highest bidder the sweetmeats which were concealed within very dainty coverings. At times the bidding was very brisk particularly when an unusually choice looking basket was held up by the auctioneer. After the sale a very pleasant social time was spent while the refreshments were being eaten.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Last Days of Legislature.

The bill prepared by the Red Lake county people for the purpose of their getting some money out of the Polk county treasury comes up for final vote in the senate today. John Gleason and N. S. Gordon are in St. Paul looking after the interests of Polk county. Even if it does pass the senate it is not likely to pass the house as the legislature adjourns Tuesday and Monday will be the last day for the passage of bills. This is the time when there is a great scramble for position, and many "pet" measures have already been side-tracked.

—Miss Bolton who for six months has been visiting with Mrs. George Carpenter and other relatives here left for her home in the southern part of the state Tuesday morning. She went by way of Fargo where for a short time she will be the guest of friends.

For Sale.

—Twelve good heavy work horses and mares, and one large pair mules. Will sell for cash or good bankable paper. TOM YOUNG.

—Brown Bros have on a car load of fine farm horse just shipped in from central Iowa. Call and see them at M. R. Brown's barn.

PRINTING
Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

MISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. MISNER, Crookston, Minn.

A. R. HOLSTON,
Attorney - at - Law
Practices in all the courts.
Office, Wallace Block.
CROOKSTON, MINN

United States Map.
15c. A copy of our handsome map, 48x38 inches, printed in five colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money order. We prepay mail and postage stamps. GEO. F. EYMAN, General Passenger Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

CASH PAID FOR Old Metal,
Morrisey's Foundry.

H. STEENERSON.
Attorney-at-Law
Crookston, Minnesota.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW.
Offices, Cor. of Broadway and Robert street.
Crookston, Minn.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When laying out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give us the benefit of our experience in laying out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing
to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—Frank Jerrue, of Warren, spent last Friday in the city.

—Attorney Keefe came up from Fertile Tuesday morning.

—Miss Lou. King, of Grand Forks, was in the city over Sunday.

—James Rosanen, of Fisher, has bought the Hugh Thompson farm near that village.

—In the probate court on Saturday the estate of Wm. Akeley of New York was closed.

—Miss McKercher left Monday night for Minneapolis where she will visit at her home.

—Judge Montague went out to Fosston yesterday morning to look after a land contest case.

—Mr. and Mrs. Elford, of Grand Forks, spent Sunday in this city at the home of M. E. Hardin.

—J. W. Wheeler has money to lend. You will find him at the First National bank of Crookston.

—The Columbia Club dance that took place last Friday night was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

—Lewis Billington, left Monday night for Forest City, Iowa, called there by the serious illness of his sister.

—E. J. Keating, the piano man, left yesterday morning for a trip through the towns along the St. Hilaire line.

—Art and Mrs. Frank Bain of Mentor have agreed to live apart though at present neither will apply for a divorce.

—Attorney Will Marin has returned from Minneapolis where he spent about two weeks in transacting legal business.

—A. J. McLaughlin and wife came up from the Twin Cities yesterday morning and took the first train for their home at Argyle.

—The small pox scare in some of the towns west of Grand Forks still continues. Several new cases have developed at Glasgow.

—Engineer George Winney who is now running on the other side of the Red River came in from Grand Forks yesterday morning.

—The Y. M. C. A. of the city have rented a room on the second floor of the McKinnon block which they will fit up as a reading and general meeting room.

—Carl Riedesel's business has so increased as to compel him to extend the main room of his store that he might have more room for displaying his stock.

—The Fosston paper is booming that town's coming base ball team. What's the matter with the Crookston players? The usual winning aggregation, we suppose, will be got together.

—Charley Lohn, court reporter, left Friday night for Minneapolis where he will practice in the courts for five weeks, that is, until the opening of the spring term of court in Roseau county.

—Dr. Holte left Friday night for El Paso, Texas, where his wife has been spending the winter. As Mrs. Holte's health has not improved as rapidly as the Doctor would like he will probably go with her to Colorado.

—Supt. John Moore, Misses Lusian, Still and Langford, of the local corps of teachers, and Fred Lusian, principal of the Mallory schools, attended the meeting of Northwestern Teachers association at Moorhead last Friday and Saturday.

—The case of state of Minnesota vs Ole Vinger came up before Judge Holt Tuesday morning at ten o'clock but was adjourned till tomorrow. The defendant is accused of stealing timber from Messrs Goodvanden and Martin Erickson in the town of Tynsid.

—Tomorrow night the young people of the society organizations of several of the churches will hold a union social at the Baptist church. It is to be a bicycle social. Just what that implies the JOURNAL is not informed, but evidently something very delightful. It is expected that a union of the various societies will be formed and arrangements made for holding regular union services.

—Rev. Herman P. Fisher left last Monday evening to spend a few days in Ortonville of this state where he was pastor of the Congregational church before coming to this city. He will visit Milbank, S. D., and preach in the Congregational church of that place next Sunday. On his return trip, he expects to spend one day in visiting Fargo College of which institution he is one of the trustees.

—P. J. Carey was in from Beltrami Monday.

—Editor George was up from Fertile on Tuesday.

—P. M. Ringdal and wife were up from St. Paul last Monday.

—J. S. LaDue and wife, of Fertile, were in Crookston yesterday.

—Judge Montague spent Monday at McIntosh on legal business.

—Halvor Steenerson transacted legal business at Warren on Monday.

—Mrs. T. A. Adams, of Melrose, has been visiting with friends in the city.

—Mrs. A. M. Eklund returned yesterday morning to her home at Hallock.

—Master Mechanic Mills of the Great Northern was in the city Tuesday.

—W. A. Case, state organizer of Woodmen lodges, was in the city over Sunday.

—John Kleweil, late of Little Falls, has bought a residence in the north part of town.

—C. L. Dobner, the Thief River Falls banker, was transacting business in the city yesterday.

—John Loha came in from Fosston Tuesday afternoon and went down below the same evening.

—Mikkel Anderson and John Baats have bought the north half of section 20 in the town of Russia.

—R. Teal, A. H. Pitkin, C. Stuhr and John Goodvan were among those from Euclid who spent Monday in the city.

—The Grand Forks Herald is authority for the statement that wheat was being sown at Arvilla N. D. last Monday.

—T. A. Hovetstad has been in St. Paul this week on business connected with the spring work on the Experiment farm.

—A. Chabot has just received a large stock of spring goods. Call at the New York store before making your purchases.

—Rev. R. H. Battey, of Minneapolis, who speaks at the Baptist church tonight, gave a temperance lecture at Warren last night.

—The next band concert and the last one to be given in the opera house till next fall, is scheduled for Friday night, April 21.

—Even numbered telephones were cut off from the central office for a couple of days during the week where some changes were being made in the connections at the office.

—C. E. Sawyer went south night before last to be present at the funeral of his father who died Tuesday. The remains will be buried at Waukashaw, Wis., the old family home.

—Robert Olson, late of Erskine and Otto Nylas of Grand Forks have opened up a candy and fruit store in the building on Robert Street just west of the Boston Clothing Store.

—Judge Ives left Monday for Cass Lake where he will take up his permanent residence. Mrs. Ives will go to Minneapolis tonight, but will spend part of the summer with the Judge.

—Thos E. Adams, well known in Crookston, who has for sometime been living in Melrose has removed to West Superior and become master mechanic of the Eastern Minnesota railroad.

—In the United States land office during the first three months of this year 352 homestead entries were made, 70 cash entries of pine land, and 75 final proofs. The total amount of money was $18364.20.

—E. W. Young, of St. Cloud, special examiner of the United States Pension Bureau, was in the city last Friday taking evidence in the case of a Red Lake Falls man who is an applicant for a pension.

—E. M. Walsh, Sylvester Peterson, F. D. Bell and Joseph Smith came in yesterday morning from Grand Forks where, the previous night, they had been attending a special meeting of the Masonic lodge.

—Mrs. W. E. Bailey, a deputy supreme chief of the Maccabees from Little Falls was at the meeting of the local lodge last Monday evening. She left the next morning for Red Lake Falls where she will form a new hive.

—S. C. Johnson's team yesterday took a rapid spin down Front street, whirled exceedingly close to a passing engine and came to an abrupt stop when the wheels of the rig got stuck between the rails of a part of Jim Hill's road. No further damage was done than the scattering of the contents of the wagon.

—Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Fisher will be absent from the city, and the pulpit of the Congregational church will be filled by Prof. Vernon P. Squires who is at the head of the department of English Language and Literature in the University of North Dakota. His subject in the morning will be. "The Open Mystery of a Happy Life." In the evening he will speak about. "The Bible as Literature."

—Mrs. Finlayson went up to Angus this morning.

—Editor J. J. Soil was in from St. Hilaire last night.

—Wm. Lennon, of Thief River Falls is in the city today.

—Chas. Hitchcock went out to Fosston this morning.

—A. O. Strand, of Halstad, spent last night in the city.

—Attorney H. L. Gaylord was up from Fertile yesterday.

—Fred Tiedt, of Argyle, returned home Tuesday morning.

—W. D. Scott has bought a half section of land in the town of Lowell.

—Mecian Bros. have sold their milling interests at Thief River Falls.

—The spring term of the public schools began last Monday and lasts eight weeks.

—Crookston Experiment farm is likely to get an appropriation of about $5,000.

—Munson and Eck are putting in a new refrigerator in their meat market on Main street.

—Rev. John Watson, better known as Ian McLaren, will lecture at Grand Forks on May 2.

—Hugh Thompson the newly elected mayor of East Grand Forks was in Crookston last Friday.

—The dwelling of Mr. Lindsay at Fisher was burned last Thursday. Most of the household effects were saved, —Mrs. L. G. Hancock went out to McIntosh Tuesday morning where she was the guest of Mrs. Paul Carpenter.

—The ladies' chorus under the directorship of Mrs. Biggins busy practicing for the April concert of the band and orchestra.

—Halvor Steenerson and Dr. Forbest Bochies went to Fergus Falls Monday night where the United States court is in session.

—C. W. Vetell, a student of the Augsburg Seminary of Chicago, will preach in the Swedish Lutheran church in this city for the next three months.

—Dan Mc Kinnon's popular clerk at the Palace Hotel is off duty since the day before yesterday. He is spending a few days with friends at Grafton and Winnipeg.

—Tonight at the Baptist church a union temperance meeting will be addressed by the Rev. Richard H. Battey of Minneapolis, supt. of the Minnesota anti-saloon league.

—Mrs. W. L. McKinney and daughter of Bradley S. D. are visiting in this city with Mrs. J. R. G. Poole, a sister of Mrs. McKinney. They will remain for about two months.

—Mrs. Wm. Campion returned Tuesday morning from San Antonio, Texas, where she had been with her son. The latter's health, however, has not been much improved by his stay in the south.

—Supt. John Moore who for many years has been at the head of the public schools in Crookston announced to the board of education last Tuesday night that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

—Frank Brown and family have moved into the residence of John Cramb on Houston Ave. and the house left vacant by Mr. Brown is now occupied by Mr. Richards, who has been living in one of the flats of the Adams block.

—Several Indians who have been at Fergus Falls as witnesses in the U. S. court there passed through Crookston this morning on their way back to the reservations out east. They were in charge of the Indian policeman Bonga.

—Rev. Elliot H. Moore, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Fergus Falls has accepted a call to the church of the same denomination at Red Wing. The Presbytery which met at Argyle last week transferred Mr. Moore to the St. Paul presbytery.

—This evening in the Baptist church at 8 o'clock Rev. Richard H. Battey of Minneapolis the state secretary of the Anti-Saloon League will give an address. Mr. Battey is well-known here as he was a pastor in this city several years ago. The admission is free and a cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

Notice for Bids.

Bids will be received by the undersigned as per order of the city council of the city of Crookston, for doing the printing and publishing of the council proceedings, motions, ordinances and all other matter required to be published, such as legal notices, treasurer's and comptroller's reports etc.

Bids for said publications to be in conformity with the requirements of the city charter. Also for doing the job printing of the city for the ensuing year.

Said bids will be received until the 9th day of May, 1899 at eight o'clock p. m., and will be opened at the regular meeting of the council to be held on the evening of said date.

Dated the 18th day of April, 1899.

W. A. LANCTOT,
City Clerk.

Mayor Brown's Farewell.

At the council meeting last Tuesday night after the new president and vice-president had been elected, M. R. Brown, the retiring mayor, was called upon by the council for some farewell remarks and he made them in a most happy manner. He spoke to the council and to the citizens who were present in quite large numbers. He began by referring to the excellent judgment that had been shown in selecting the city officers for the coming year. Not merely men who were qualified to perform the duties of the offices but public spirited men had been chosen.

The criticism that had been made by a few that unwarranted expense had incurred during the past year he thought was unfair. The city had been progressive and to procure certain advantages appropriations were needed. The opportunities offered had been used for the best interests of the city. Crookston had a reputation throughout the state that was envied by many a town. At the close of his remarks Mr. Brown introduced Mayor Stephens to the council.

Firemen's Ball.

One of those enjoyable affairs for which the firemen of this city are so noted is to come off at the City Hall this evening. Chief Tom Marris' protegees have made all arrangements for a grand dance. These pronunciades of the fire extinguishers have always been a huge success and those who cannot go will miss much enjoyment. This dance, too, is for the benefit of the running team of the fire department. There is no one who does not wish the Crookston team to come off victorious in the tournament to be held at East Grand Forks next June. Let every one, then, turn out to the dance and thus lend what aid he can to the end that our boys may win next summer.

In Probate Court.

A rather interesting case was up before Judge Hagen last Tuesday. Petition was filed asking that a guardian be appointed for Walter Olson of the town of Onstad, and a hearing upon the petition was granted. Walter Olson, a lad about twelve years old, has for some five years been living with a family by the name of Donaldson. The neighbors claimed that the boy was being abused and asked Judge Hagen to appoint a guardian. As the mother of the boy appeared in court the judge refused to appoint a guardian but handed him over to the mother who agreed to take care of him.

Loses his Winter Wages.

The bartender at the Sherman House was up before Judge Mc Lean last Monday charged by Askel Leraas with having relieved the latter of considerable money. Leraas had been working in the woods all winter and had just returned to civilization with the hard earned cash. He took several drinks at the Sherman House bar and when he came to several hours afterwards he was minus his wages. The evidence against the bartender was not sufficient to convict him. This is rather hard luck for Leraas but the moral of it all is very plain.

Cass Lake Times.

Ben Strawbridge spent last week at Cass Lake returning to Crookston on Friday. He goes back today to take up his new line of business. He is well pleased with the outlook, and thinks he has struck just the right place. In addition to the business block which he and Judge Ives have erected, Ben talks of building a private residence. What this may mean the JOURNAL is not informed though a good guess might be made. The new paper will be called the Cass Lake Times and it is proposed to make it a hummer.

Deaths.

MCNULTY.—On Saturday, April 8th, at Fertile, Chester McNulty. The deceased, aged 15 years, was the son of C. McNulty who has charge of the Northern Pacific passenger station at Fertile. The boy was in the elevator of the coal shed for the purpose of cleaning it out when the engine was started and the coal cups coming down crushed out his life.

Births.

WYLIE.

—On Friday, April 7, to Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wylie a girl.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., postoffice, for the week ending April 8, 1899:

GENTLEMEN.

Askain, Jim — Brakken, Albert
Curries James — Gould George
Haseon H. Hans — Harry B. Eberhart
Hudson Lafferty — Johnson Jerris
Larson Louis — More J. C.
Murch Geo. — Schon Ole
Wagnea Frank — Walck William
Wilson A. E.

LADIES.

Beushan Mrs. — Buszell Joseph Mrs.
Churchill D. Mrs. — Clausen M. Miss
Johnson L. Miss — Kastson Emma
Knertson Josis — Miller Myrtle
Morse Helen — William Sophia

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING.

Aldermen Meet to Canvass Vote of Recent City Election.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the Commercial rooms in the city hall April 6th, 1899.

Meeting called to order by President Vance.

Roll-call, aldermen present: Childs, Anderson, McGregor, Kirsch, Harris, McKinnon, Davis, Rauch, and Vance.

Alderman absent: Walsh, Sawyer.

The call for special meeting was read, which follows:

TO THEMEMBERS OF CITY COUNCIL.

Crookston, Minn., April 6th, 1899.

Gentlemen:—

Please take notice that a meeting of the city council is hereby called to meet at the city hall on this the 6th day of April A. D. 1899, at the hour of eight p. m., for the purpose of canvassing the returns of the recent charter election, to receive and act on any and all reports from special and standing committees, and all questions relating to unfinished business properly brought before the council.

Sheldon W. Vance.

President of the city council.

Upon motion the council proceeded to canvass the returns of the last city election, and made the following report. -

The undersigned—Board of Canvassers of the City of Crookston, hereby, certify that they have canvassed the returns of the annual charter elections of the city of Crookston held April 4th, 1899, and that at such elections the following named persons received the number of votes set opposite their respective names for the offices named-to wit:—

For Mayor.
Halvor Steenerson received ..... 341 votes
Andrew B. Stephens received ..... 307 votes
For Aldermen-at-large.
Frank M. Brown received ..... 482 votes
Samuel Rosenthal received ..... 338 votes
For City Treasurer.
Ole O. Christianson received ..... 491 votes
William L. Vanet received ..... 301 votes
For City Clerk.
William A. Lanctot received ..... 488 votes
Peter L. Reuss received ..... 346 votes
For City Assessor
C. W. Mott received ..... 346 votes
L. C. Couvrette received ..... 473 votes
For Constable.
A. A. Glenn received ..... 502 votes
J. E. Greenhalgh received ..... 322 votes
For City Justice.
George H. Holt received ..... 425 votes
John McLean received ..... 399 votes
For Alderman 1st Ward.
Geo. O. Bain received ..... 98 votes
J. K. O'Brien received ..... 93 votes
For Alderman 2d Ward.
T. G. Thompson received ..... 199 votes
For Alderman 3d Ward.
Geo. S. Chesterman received ..... 80 votes
For Alderman 4th Ward:
L. Ellington received ..... 209 votes
For Alderman 5th Ward.
C. A. Myers received ..... 24 votes
E. D. Childs received ..... 32 votes

And we further certify and declare that the following named persons have been elected -to-wit:—

Andrew B. Stephens ..... Mayor.
Frank M. Brown ..... Alderman-at-large.
Ole O. Christianson ..... Treasurer.
William A. Lanctot ..... City Clerk.
L. C. Couvrette ..... Assessor.
A. A. Glenn and } ..... Constables.
J. E. Greenhalgh }
George H. Holt and } ..... City Justices.
John McLean }
J. K. O'Brien ..... Alderman 1st Ward.
T. H. Thompson ..... Alderman 2nd Ward.
G. S. Chesterman ..... Alderman 3rd Ward.
L. Ellington ..... Alderman 4th Ward.
E. D. Childs ..... Alderman 5th Ward.

Dated Crookston, Minn., this 6th day of April A. D. 1899.

M. E. Kirsch,
T. A. Harris,
E. C. Davis,
A. G. Anderson,
E. D. Childs,
A. McGregor,
A. J. McKinnon,
Fred G. Rauch,
Sheldon W. Vance,
Board of Canvassers.

The committee appointed to investigate the 1898 assessment in the city, rendered their report on a portion of Jerome's Addition and recommended a general reduction in the assessed valuation on same.

On motion action on the report was deferred until the next meeting of council and the city clerk instructed to ascertain from the records the aggregate amount of the reduction made by the committee on the amount of taxes such reduction represented.

Upon the favorable report of special committee, sewer tax levied against property of Mrs. E. P. Pierce amounting to $44, was reduced to $22, as it appeared that a mistake had been made, said property having only 50 feet frontage and had been assessed for 100 feet frontage.

President Vance took occasion at this time to thank the members of the council for the courteous treatment accorded him as their presiding officer during the past last year and bespoke for his successor the same courtesy and respect shown him and for the new council, his best wishes.

On motion council adjourned.

W. A. LANCTOT,
Clerk.

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

$75.00

Buys a team of horses—sound, well matched, in good condition and ready for business. VANCE & STONE.

FOR SALE...

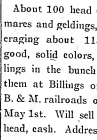
Household Furniture.—Dining table, chairs, sideboard nearly new in oak, drop head sewing machine (new), rugs, curtains, coal, wood and gasoline stoves, high grade gentleman's bicycle (new), Wilcox & White Symphony organ, cost $270. This instrument is also self-playing. Will trade for 1100 lb team, wagon, good saddle, shot gun, rifle. Adjusting differences in cash. Address Box 802, Crookston, Minn., or call at 112 Ash st., opposite Couvrette's barn.

HORSES FOR SALE.

About 100 head of well-bred mares and geldings, weight averaging about 1150 pounds, good, solid colors, fifteen yearlings in the bunch. Will have them at Billings on N. P. and B. & M. railroads on or about May 1st. Will sell for $25 per head, cash. Address,

ROBT. LEAVENS,
Billings, Mont.
51-52

THE OPTICIAN,
DR. T. J. SMITH.



Eyes Examined Free.

Office over First National Bank, Crookston.

Spectacles Made to Suit All Eyes.

IN THE
North American Review

You will always find....

THE RIGHT TOPICS, BY THE RIGHT MEN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

It is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a program of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is not partisan nor a sectarian publication, but

All Sides of All Questions

in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

Subjects that concern the interests of

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention.

50 Cents a Number: $5.00 a Year.

Now is the time to subscribe.

The North American Review, N. Y.

TIME CARD
—OF—
TRAINS.
Crookston

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:27 p m	8:27 p m
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6:20 a m	6:20 a m

C. A. STEARNS, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn.

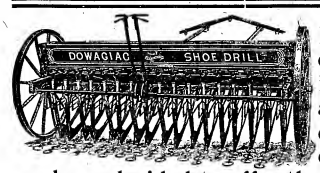
THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	*Daily	†Except Sunday.	LEAVE
8.55 a m		From Fargo, North and West	7.00 a m
5.00 p m		Minneapolis, St. Paul and points east	10.05 p m
8.15 p m		From Warren, Stephen, Mt. Vincent	9.15 a m
5.00 p m		From Hallock, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls	10.05 a m
4.00 p m		From Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior	8.30 a m
5.45 p m		From Climax, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo	9.00 a m
			7.30 a m

†Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

F. D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

AUCTION SALE!



Having sold over 4,000 acres of our farm lands, and desiring to dispose of a large amount of the stock and machinery which we had formerly used in working the same we have decided to offer the following items of personal property at public auction, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m.

TUESDAY, APRIL 18, 1899

On the common just north of our farm house in the 5th Ward of the City of Crookston, to-wit:

Six head of work horses, 14 fine colts 2 and 3 year old, 6 dairy cows deep milkers, several blooded bull and heifer calves, 1 fine boar pig, Agricultural machinery consisting of binders, mowers, gang plows, hay rakes, farm wagons, seed drills, broadcast seeders, corn cultivators, walking plows, 1 36 inch Victory separator, wheeled stacker, 10 sets work harness and other small implements too numerous to mention

Lunch Served at Noon. Come all Who Want to Buy.

TERMS: All sums of $10 and under, cash Over $10 approved notes due October 1, 1899 at 10 per cent. interest A discount of 5 per cent will be given for cash on all time payments

E. D. CHILDS CO.

M. M. S. POULTRY FENCING

is thoroughly interwoven but has long horizontal wires, which crimps it so

A FENCE, NOT A NETTING.

Its close, even meshes are securely stretched and erected with few posts and those 16 rods apart. The bottom horizontal cable selvage and a cable running through the top of every foot. Each roll contains the famous M. M. S. trade mark. None other genuine.

We are manufacturers also of the following famous fences:
CABLED FIELD AND HOG FENCE with or without lower cable barbed. All horizontal wires are crimped.
STEEL WEB PICKET FENCE Ideal fence for lawns, parks, cemeteries, etc. Steel gates, posts, etc. Everything the best of its kind.
DE KALB FENCE CO., 109 High St., DE KALB, ILL.
Pat. July 25, 1896. Pat. July 6, 1897.

FOR SALE BY FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,
OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.
Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

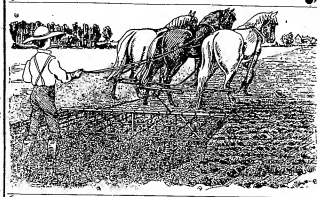
INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON.....PRESIDENT. H. STEENERSON.....VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS.....2M VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON.....CASHIER
A. P. RANSOM, ASST. CASHIER.

THE
Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED



....Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,
AUSTIN, MINN.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT
WINCHESTER
Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE: Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Cleveland Hotel, Otto Burkhardt, Proprietor
Main and Fourth Sts.

This popular hotel is again re-opened to the public under new management. The present proprietor will spare no pains nor expense in the effort to provide for his guests. His effort will be to keep up the reputation its merits have won, and to further the favors it still considers the Cleveland their headquarters when in the city.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, April 6.

Serious strike riots have occurred in Russia.

Republicans elected their state ticket in Rhode Island.

The government has begun a suit under the anti-trust law against Ohio coal companies.

Miss Emily Vanderbilt Sloane was married to John Henry Hammond, a Boston attorney.

The United States transport Crook has sailed for Santiago to bring back another consignment of bodies of soldiers and sailors.

Emperor William of Germany is recovering from the severe attack of rheumatism, which for a week past has necessitated his remaining part of the time in bed.

The plague is still raging in Formosa. According to the latest advices 11 deaths had occurred in Tainin and one in Taikoku, bringing the total number of deaths since Jan. 1, up to 232.

Friday, April 7.

William J. Bryan will publish a book against "imperialism."

A rebellion in the Philippine island of Negros was promptly quelled by Colonel Smith.

The bodies of soldiers who died in Cuba and Porto Rico were buried in Arlington cemetery, Washington, Thursday.

An American crusier has been ordered to Bluefields, Nicaragua, where Americans are being oppressed by an agent of the president.

The representatives of the United States at the disarmament conference have been announced. Stanford Newel of St. Paul is one.

Henry de Wolfe, editorial writer for the Woonsocket (R. I.) Evening Post, committed suicide by shooting near the grave of his wife, buried the day previous.

Saturday, April 8.

Five thousand miles of railway, it is expected, will be built this year.

The Arkansas anti-trust law threatens to destroy the labor organizations of that state.

General Gomez will agitate for the withdrawal of American authority from Cuba.

General Weston has assumed command of the commissary department as acting commissary general.

Governor Thomas of Colorado has signed the bill passed by the general assembly legalizing prize fights when conducted by licensed clubs.

There are now 22 bandits in the Santiago military prison. Major General Wood, the military governor, is actively suppressing disturbances from this source.

General Miles' counsel furnished the court of inquiry with a letter from Armour & Co. to Commissary General Eagan, proposing to use the Powell process for preserving beef.

Monday, April 10.

The Pitzsimmons-Jeffries fight is off.

An uprising of Mohammedan Tartars in Southeastern Russia is imminent.

The transport Sheridan reported at Singapore Friday last en route to Manila.

The Nationalists were victorious in the recent county council elections in Ireland.

The squabble over the Boston and Montana Mining company's properties at Butte has ended.

Former Presidents Cleveland and Harrison indorse the universal peace efforts of the Christian Endeavor.

The Pullman company, in consequence of the action of the Great Northern, has reduced sleeping car rates to the coast.

Representatives of all the accident insurance companies doing business in Arkansas have been notified to suspend business on account of the anti-trust law, recently enacted by the legislature.

Tuesday, April 11.

The condition of winter wheat is 779, against 98.7 last year; winter rye, 84.9 against 95.1.

Moses W. Dodd, founder of the publishing house of Dodd, Mead & Co., is dead at New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Charles were found dead at their home at Whitewater, Wis., having been asphyxiated by coal gas.

The queen regent of Spain has signed a decree granting a credit for the payment of the interest and the redemption of the Philippine bonds.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific will extend its Winterset branch at once from Winterset to Creston, Ia., 40 miles southwest, via Macksburg.

Judge Ross, in the district court at Los Angeles, in the case entitled the United States against the Southern Pacific company, which involves title to 1,810,000 acres of land in Southern California, decided in favor of the government.

Wednesday, April 12.

Bellamy Storer of Ohio will be the new minister to Spain.

The crisis in Jamaica has ended, the government surrendering to the wishes of the people.

James J. Hill has been elected director and member of the executive committee of the Baltimore and Ohio.

The sheriff of Pana, Ills., was roundly lectured by Governor Tanner for his conduct in connection with the latest riot, in which seven persons were killed.

There is a tremendous rush of divorcees to North Dakota to take advantage of the present law, which is soon to become inoperative.

General Shafter testified before the beef inquiry board that he heard no complaints about the quality of beef furnished troops at Santiago.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Franchise for an electric line has been granted at Mankato.

A bitter war is on at Halstad between saloon and anti-saloon factions.

The State Bank of Morristown, capital $10,000, has opened for business.

J. J. Hill will develop his mining properties in the northern part of the state.

The Duluth and Iron Range road has opened a way station at Biwabik for the season.

Active work on the new capitol will be resumed as soon as it stops freezing at night.

Monroe Nichols of Duluth is said to be slated for one of the $2,000 positions in the census bureau.

The secretary of the treasury has received from Minneapolis a $2 contribution to the conscience fund.

The Northern Pacific-St. Paul and Duluth land grant case has been decided in favor of the Northern Pacific.

Application has been made for a receiver for the Odd Fellows Accident Insurance company of St. Paul.

Joseph Pilhal of Silver Lake has been lodged in jail at Glencoe for counterfeiting. He admits the charge.

A new court of the Catholic Order of Foresters has been instituted at Monument with 40 charter members.

Land Commissioner Hermann expresses the hope that the Minnesota legislature will not repeal the fire warden law.

A. D. Aldrich of Benson, one of the proprietors of the Aldrich House, was fatally injured in a runaway accident Sunday.

The large saw mill at Akeley, owned by M. L. Moore, burned to the ground late Sunday night. Loss, $2,000; no insurance. It will be rebuilt at once.

A stranger passed 20 Peruvian dollars on Winona saloonkeepers, and as the dollars are worth only 46 cents, he cleared $12 in a short time and then skipped out.

Judge Bunn of the United States district court has appointed E. B. Lincoln of St. Paul receiver of the Washburn, Northland and Iron River, vice George M. Seward of Chicago, resigned.

John D. Sloane of St. Paul has been appointed supervising inspector of steam vessels for the fifth inspection district. Under Harrison's administration Mr. Sloane held the same position.

A man supposed to be C. A. McClure of West Duluth was killed by a Northern Pacific train at Elk River, Sunday evening. A note was found upon him which indicates that he was in Morris Jan. 1.

The John Ball post, G. A. R., at Winona, has secured a number of headstones for the unmarked graves of soldiers in the cemeteries of that city and of Trempealeau, Wis., and Minneska, Minn., from the government.

A payment has been made to the state of Minnesota by the United States of $18,033 on account of wages paid to the volunteers before they were mustered in. The whole claim under this head is $21,000. The remainder is the pay of men who did not afterward enter the volunteer service.

Orders for many thousand dollars' worth of twine, together with the cash accompanying them have been returned to farmers by Warden Wolfer, the prison twine factory having reached its limit some days ago. Every pound that can be manufactured up to Aug. 1 has been sold either in small cash lots or carload club orders, and it is believed the orders yet to come direct from farmers will amount to millions of pounds. Not a single order from a dealer has been booked and twine dealers throughout the state this year will be unable to handle the prison twine.

Cavalry for Santiago.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 12.—Four troops of the Tenth United States cavalry at Fort Sam Houston and two troops at Fort Clark, together with the regimental band, have been ordered to Galveston for embarkation to Santiago de Cuba.

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY ARTHUR CHEESMAN KING

"FORT FRAYNE," "AN ARMY WIFE," AUTHOR OF "TRUMPETER TRED," "NOBLE BLOOD."

Copyrighted 1899 by F. Tennyson Neely

CHAPTER XVII.

Contrary to opinion, Ronald Maynard did not apply for leave of absence when once more fully able to move about. Miss Maynard had gone in haste, a peremptory summons from her father being given as the cause, he needing her services and receiving benefit from them far more than did his son. Colonel and Mrs. Atherton were home from Chicago and regimental work went briskly on. Four troops had been warned for duty in the Big Horn country and were packing for the start. Major and Mrs. Stannard were still the guests of the Athertons; but, inasmuch matters were settled, Mrs. Stannard was soon to depart for the east to replenish her wardrobe. Everybody in the —th, from colonel down to the children, was making very much of Maynard, or would have done so but for the profound sadness and melancholy that seemed to oppress him. He was able to ride every day. He went about his drills and duties, but he could not be coaxed to the hops and dances and concerts. His father was very ill, he said, and failing so fast that he, Ronald, could take no part in garrison gayeties. He went to Dana, whose troop was to go to the field, and offered to exchange with him, but Dana loved field duty and would none of it. The Barrys, with Miss Baird, had journeyed down the Mississippi and one to Havanas, and were now resting among the pines of southern Alabama, and, except by Mrs. Gregg, the fascinating study of burglaries was rarely mentioned in the press of other topics of more recent interest, when one evening now impetus was given to the whole matter by the tidings that a famous thief catcher had come out from the east charged with requisitions for the silent pair of professionals in jail, whom he recognized by the descriptions sent to the police of the big cities as prominent members of a gang that despoiled a great metropolitan bank two years before. If discharged for lack of evidence in Wyoming, they would be instantly rearrested on this other charge.

But Bridget, said the great man, was not one of the original gang. She was a western product, an exile from St. Louis, whither Dungan's trail had been followed back and his police record thoroughly examined. Mike and his cousin, however, proved game too much for a hunter of the New York man's caliber. They were quick to detect escapes. The case was to come up for trial within the week, but with the morrow's sun there was excitement in good earnest in the prairie city. With the ease of long habit the experts had saved their selfish way out of jail, leaving Mike and Bridget to rage at their defection and to bear alone the odium of their crime. To the wrath of the eastern officials and the stupefaction of the sheriff, the birds had flown and left no note behind.

But now Bridget began to give tongue, and a sharp one it proved to be. Hitherto none four or four had made her dumb as to the antecedents of the pair and the circumstances that drew them together. Now, it seemed, the shrewd thing considerable negotiable booty stored away, the two had pledged their knightly word to Bridget that they would defray all expenses of her defense and Mike's if they would but tell her what all previous knowledge of them, and this they had done, claiming to know them only as gentlemen who visited Mike's saloon and were most liberal with their money. Then it transpired that one of them had paid Miss O'Meara flattering attentions — attentions that turned her head and brought her thrice in one week to town, decked in finery that had seen better days and wearers in St. Louis. To him, in answer to questions, she told all she knew concerning the valuables of the garrison. The officers and ladies were all away. Why should not the crackmen turn an honest penny at their old craft instead of rusting here while the big cities were being searched for them?

Bridget made a clean breast of it now that she had found her own case hopeless, while the prime movers, the tempters, the only ones who had profited a penny's worth by the robberies, had got off scot free. "Twas them that persuaded her through false promises and flattery to 'dope' both Mrs. Barry and Mary," to let them in at the kitchen door and to profess utter ignorance of the crime. They were then to share alike after the sale of the booty, but all she and Mike had got as their share was the jail, with the penitentiary ahead.

Again did Cook and the sheriff eagerly ask the same question, "But how about Boston?" And this was something she could not answer, nor could Mike. All either could say was that, after the row at the Empire, Boston was brought to Mike's saloon by Cook, where he had been a frequent visitor for some little time previous, and Mike hid him away in the back room of the wing of his house, and there, too, under his roof, were temporarily secreted these same fellows who later were so silent about themselves, but so dangerous meantime to Boston, to Mike and to Bridget. 'Twas Mike got Maloney to go out to the fort for the young lady of whom Boston begged he could get money — for somebody had to come in and pay for his lodging and keep — and the poor girl had indeed come and had raised the money for him, and if Mike hadn't taken care of it for Boston the others would have got it, for Bridget heard them "shinning him fearful." This moment he was well enough to move Boston had slipped away, and that was the last seen of him. But meantime the burglary had taken place, and then the fire, and Bridget's downfall was complete.

All this, of course, was duly carried to Atherton, who was an interested listener, and all this did Maynard learn from Cook, for the question of the identity of Boston and his relation to Nathalie Baird had become vital in Maynard's eyes. Through him in great measure had the girl he loved been cleared of all suspicion of complicity in or knowledge of the burglaries. Through him, God willing and helping, she should be shown to the men and women of that garrison, especially the women, and more especially Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Reynard, as one so pure and good and noble that no one of their number could ever again think ill of her, and to do this he must solve the problem of her strange relationship to that unprepossessing stranger.

For Nathalie's letter had well nigh made him desperate. It was brevity itself. It was almost bitter in its hopelessness. "Even had you no ties of your own," she wrote, "I have been — and for all I know may still be — so bound that the direst suspicions have attached to me, and, though you are generous, magnanimous, and made no allusion to this, I know you know it, and I can be wife to no man."

Of course the famous ties of his own other than those that drew him to the father and mother at home he did not understand. Never for a moment did he dream that Grace had gone so far as to marry Boston, unless that there was a love affair — an engagement with some girl whom he had known long before his meeting with her. What must he have done was to find that man Boston if alive or the proofs of it if he were dead, and on this matter he called long and eagerly with Cook, who could give little information.

"If Miss Baird has no idea what has become of him, I'm sure I haven't," said the man from Denver with cold bloodied, matter of fact and professional bluntness. "You dropped on a mighty good thing, of evidence by a streak of very good luck, Mr. Maynard. Perhaps your luck will hold out still longer. I hope it may."

All the same he thought it wouldn't and was willing to bet, for he had had his weaknesses as well as other men. If he couldn't find Boston, how would a stripling like him be able to?

June came and with it a summons that Maynard could not but have expected, and that gave him sorely. "Come at once. Failing fast," were the brief words of his sister's dispatch, and Atherton kindly laid his hand upon the young officer's shoulder.

"I hate to inflict this sorrow coming to you after all you've been through, Maynard," he said, "and I would say I would rather you may find your father better, but that I fear more than I can hope. At least he has lived to know how splendidly you have borne the name and how proud we all are of you."

Ah, if the latter could but hear those words, thought Maynard as the train swiftly bore him eastward, with what love and pride would he not welcome him now, his only boy.

But hours before the still swifter trains of the eastern railways whirled him along past Erie's wave and the mirrorlike reaches of the familiar old canal the father's ears were deaf to all earthly music, and Grace was weeping over the wasted hand still clasped in hers, kneeling at the side, as dumb as the mourners, walked the brother and sister behind the flag draped coffin when they sought the grave. Convalescing allowing to Ronald, sobbing and unnerved, as the comrades of the Grand Army fired their volleys over the veteran's bier. Plaintively she hovered about him during the days he remained there, settling the affairs of his father's humble estate, and then he told her that pertinent business would compel him to leave for awhile, but she would have her aunt and Gertrude— By the way, where was Gertrude? She had not been to the house; he had not seen her since the day of the funeral, and then only for a minute. Grace merely didn't know. "She came much less frequently of late," and Ronald vaguely felt that it was better so, yet wondered at the cause.

His one comfort. Dad scanned his grave face with his hands.

And now at last the sister stood in question, interposed no objection to his going. Well she knew that the deep sorrow in his brave young face was there before their father's death, and that much of it was her doing. Well she knew that she had that to answer for which he never yet suspected. Well she knew that should he learn that in her overweening sense of her duty in the case she had blackened the good name of Nathalie Baird in her recollection to Captain Walters her brother's love would go as had the old faith and trust. He was master now. What would he say when the whole truth came to light?

Two days later Maynard was at the store of a Mr. Williams in a charming little New England village and had sent in to the office, with his card, a letter of introduction from Major Barry. The face that greeted him was that of a man bowed with care and sorrow, but it lighted with frank kindliness as it glanced up from the letter, and with a cordial hand clasp Williams bade him welcome.

An hour later, the day's work done, the bowed form of the broken country merchant and the erect, athletic figure of the young officer strolled away together in the twilight to a grove "where Nathalie used to call," and both Maynard told his story. Before it was half finished his one auditor had covered his grave face with his hands and, bowed almost double, was shedding silent tears

"When first Nathalie came to dwell, she was the picture of health and happiness," said Maynard. "One night, however, after she had been there about a month I saw a prowler under her window — a tall, heavily built stranger in civilian dress. He threw pebbles at the window and hoarsely called to her, 'Nathalie!' She was frightened and fled. She had been leaning out of the window when he first appeared. I challenged and grabbed him, and he knocked me flat as though I were n boy. Only a day or two later a man strongly resembling this was at the head of a gang of street loafers that took the horses of a patrol of which I was in command and dashed out on the street. We grabbed them, and I hurled the ringleader, who was evidently very drinking, astride his saddle. He was stunned and carried into a doctor's office. No one knew him except as Boston, unless that there was a lady here in Cheyenne but a short time and had gambled away what money she had. He was still unconscious, as the doctor opened his shirt a silk handkerchief was lying on his breast, sewing around which by a silken string. In it his monogram were worked two letters, and I could plainly see — as I! and W.

"A few days later this same man was laid Miss Baird away out on the prairie. She came home looking badly unstrung, yet that very night late stole out of the house and met him and probably gave him money. Again they met, though she would no longer venture out on the prairie. He dared to come into the post after the garrison had left on this field. Again he demanded money and was willing to bail, for Miss Barry told me that Miss Baird had so confessed to her. All this had been seen by ladies, officers and soldiers, and people declared this rough looking man to be her lover, and her good name suffered. Shortly afterward, early one morning, an Irish saloon employee came out to the post, shouting aloud that he had a letter for the young lady at Major Barry's, and she came down to him, and a little later walked across miles to town where the writer of the letter was lying, wounded in some fight the night before, and he again demanded money of her, and she sent away out to the post for $25, and then they let her go. Her health had suffered serious, and had her good name. The Barrys begged her to come to the same and wherefrom of this stranger that very night got word to his blackmailing, but she induced them to disregard the whole thing. She had given her word not to betray him. But, Mr. Williams, she implored Mrs. Barry to send her away, here because this was the one place that fellow dare not follow her. There can be but one explanation. He has something on here or hereabouts some crime. He is a fugitive from justice, and this brave, devoted girl, for old friend's sake and the love she bears those who were good to her in bygone days, is shielding him to this day to the detriment of her own peace, happiness and reputation. Mr. Williams, will you lift the burden from her life and tell me who this man is or was?"

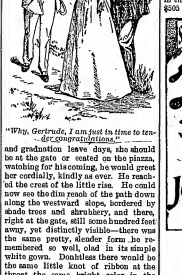
"God forgive him! God pity him!" was the heartbroken answer. "It is my poor wife's favorite — Nathalie's own cousin — my handsome, reckless boy Harry," and the poor father buried his face in his arms as though, in his pain and misery, he could no longer look on the world. It was some time before he could speak with sufficient self control, and then he told his story.

"Hal used to vow when he was a big, stalwart youngster of ten that he'd kill little schoolgirl in sunbonnet and short dresses that Nathalie and he were to be married some day. He was always fond of her, but he was wild as a hawk and invariably in some kind of trouble. He went to Boston to work, and — I shall tell you the whole story — drink, gambling, appeals to her for money — more drink, more gambling, more appeals for money, more trouble through poor buying, and God knows what all. Then one night he came back here unexpectedly, haunted and fearsome. He had come to talk with Nathalie, for she came to my bed. Next day he was gone. Then came the detectives. He had forged my name and his employer's too. He was caught, tried, sentenced to prison, and after a year escaped. That was the last of him until now. Long ago we had to say Nathalie was the only one who could ever influence him, and long ago she promised his poor mother ever to be a friend to him, and now even to her my son has been a curse, and through him, and this she has striven to protect him. My God, but it's hard — it's hard!"

So Maynard was right in his theory after all. All the homeward way he pondered over what he had learned, striving to settle on the plan by which, without bringing further misery to the stricken father, Nathalie's name might be cleared at least — her real relation to this outcast and scapegrace established. If it were only possible to trace the fellow and bring him to book! There would be comfort in that, he thought, for his heart was hot against the scoundrel who could bring such shame to the loving ones at home, such shame and torment and peril to an innocent and almost defenseless girl. Of this evil was the father had given Maynard a written statement of the case to place in Barry's hands, and already Maynard had dispatched it to him, while taking a copy to be used with Atherton at Russell.

Once more he alighted at the familiar old station and made his way to the cottage that was now Grace's home. All the brother's share in his father's little estate he had deeded to her. It was after sunset, and the soft hush of twilight had fallen on the beautiful valley. Even the drowsy hum of insects had died away, and only the mellow tolling of the distant church bell and the soothing plash of the river sweeping over its rocky bed was the silence broken. The townsfolk seemed mainly gathered at the depot across the rapid stream, for the broad, shaded streets, soft and dusty, lay unwheeled, untrodden, deserted. Over on the playground a knot of children had gathered in absorbed attention about some older, for the glad young voices were hushed. The long, shady walk before him was deserted. The silver shield of the graveyard gate was already gleaming high aloft. The stars began to twinkle in the outward heaven. The low rumble of some faraway freight train was borne for a moment on the breathless air, then all again was peace and silence. Wrapped in thought, Maynard walked slowly toward the outskirts of the village, seeing no one when he knew some crossing the old bridge at the Mohawk; turned mechanically to the west as he reached a cross street as deeply shaded as that by which he came, and there stretched away before him the road that gave him a sudden feeling of hesitation if not embarrassment. This was the road which led to Gardiner Bonnet's home. Bowered among rose and lilac bushes and pretty trees it lay only a few rods beyond that little wave in front of him. That light, twinkling even now through the foliage, must be in an upper window close under the roof-tree. For an instant he wished he had taken the other side of the street, the second of the thought as utterly unworthy. Why should he shrink from meeting her?

Briskly now he strode on, his head erect. If, as often in the old furlough



"Why, Gertrude, I am just in time to tender congratulations," said Ronald, and graduation leave days, she should be at the gate or seated on the piazza, and he would see her, and would greet her cordially, kindly as ever. He reached the crest of the little rise. He could now see the dim ribbon of the path down along the westward slope, bordered by shade trees and shrubbery, and there, right at the gate, still in the hundred feet away, yet distinctly visible — there was the same pretty, slender form ,he rose-decked face, still with the bandeau of white gown. Doubtless there would be the same little kind of ribbon at the throat, the same bright color in the rounded cheeks, the same joyous smile about the rosy lips and shining eyes, the same frank welcome of the plump little hand. He had wired Grace of his coming; so, just as of old, here was Gertrude on the lookout. Yet, although his quick, elastic footsteps brought him every instant nearer and this time should he audible, she did not stir, she did not look toward him. She was not on the watch for him at all, for her head was drooping, her eyes downcast, her hands clasped in her lap, and her thoughts were riveted on — another man.

Yes, there at the gate on which as children they had swung together, Ronald and Gertrude — there, talking in low, rapturous tones — was a youth whom Maynard had never seen before, but recognized at once as the new young man who in March had come to teach the village school, to whom inside salary he had already pledged himself to subscribe, and that the master had been teaching to good effect and to far more sweet and thrilling than grammar and rhetoric was apparent at a glance. A black coat sleeve slid about the slender white waist when Maynard was but ten yards away, and then, all blushes and confusion, the pair started at his cheery salutation.

"Why, Gertrude, I'm just in time to tender congratulations, which I do with all my heart, Mr. Crowe," said he, cordially extending his hand.

It was taken somewhat gingerly. The hostess could not at once frame his reply. Gertrude rose to the occasion.

"You will be even wondering when you would — condescend, Ronald, and I —

"Condescend, Gertie! Why, this is the first I knew of it."

"Is it? Why, I wrote to Grace weeks ago, while she was with you and told her to tell you. Did she think —

"She never told me a word, and I'm sure she would have told me had she known. Why, Gertie, I'm just as glad as I can be, and I'm sure Grace will be, and I'm sure you will be happy, and I'm sure — I'm sure I wish you joy with all my heart."

And Grace had got that letter, for he saw the envelope and knew the superscription and remembered how suddenly and precipitately she had left the room. Grace had got that letter and never yet had told him. What could have been her object? Why should she have been slight? She knew his whole heart was wrapped up in Nathalie Baird and that, except in a kind and friendly way, Gertrude was nothing to him. Why should she have concealed this?

And then all on a sudden Nathalie's words flashed across his memory:

"Even had you no ties of your own."

His steps were slower, his face sadder now by far, but from no chagrin at thought of how readily the sweetheart of his schoolboy days had listened to the first pleadings of another love. It was not that he had lost her. It was that the old, fond faith in the sister he had so long loved and almost as long reverenced and served was shattered once and for all. And she who stood to welcome him once more to the little home

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Tropical Forest.

Its giant cedar, chestnut and magnolias are thickly draped with moss and wreaths of aerial orchids, ferns and festooning climbers and parasitic plants, which hang in great tufts and pendants, waving over the blue hydrangeas of the undergrowth. Some of the branches of these trees are perfect gardens in themselves. In the soft drapery of moist moss that thickly clothes their branches and in the beds of fine mold from the decaying leaves that fill their crevices are to be found, not only luxuriant clusters of exquisite orchids and many kinds of other epiphytic plants, but even large, woody shrubs and evergreens, with a variety of flowers and foliage.

A gorgeous feature of the forest is the blaze of crimson blooms of the Magnolia campbelli. Here in its home it is a forest monarch over 80 feet high, and its large flowers, like those of the cotton tree below, appear curiously on the bare branches before it leaves. White magnolias also abound, scenting the air with their fragrance. Delicately pink rhododendrons 18 to 20 feet high are common, and ferns are so numerous that over 60 species may be found along this forest road within a few miles.—"Travels in the Himalayas."

Deliberate Opinion.

"When I see some men," he said thoughtfully, "I am prepared to believe that we are actually descended from monkeys and that in certain cases it is a distinct, considerable of a descent."—Chicago Post.

At the English Inn.

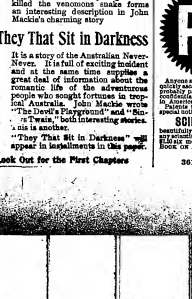
"Hamyhody with arf a heys could 'ave you was a typical Hamerican!"

"And what is a typical American?"

"One that gives tips freely, sir."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Forty Shot Starters.

ELWOOD PARK, N. J., April 12.—In the tournament of the International association 40 of the contestants shot straight in the blind handicap and divided $500 between them.



One Way to Kill a Snake

Just how this beautiful young woman killed the venomous snake forms an interesting description in John Maclin's charming story

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Never-Never. It is full of exciting incident and at the same time contains a great deal of information about the Romantic life of the adventurous people who scratch out a living from tropical Australia. John Maclin wrote "The Devil's Playground" and "Sister Twain," both interesting stories. A tie is another.

"They That Sit in Darkness" will appear in localities in this paper.

Look Out for the First Chapters

Danger Signals!

Do you take cold with every change in the weather? Does your throat feel raw? And do sharp pains dart through your chest?

Don't you know these are danger signals which point to pneumonia, bronchitis, or consumption itself?

If you are ailing and have not flesh lately, they are certainly dangerous. The question for you to decide is, "Have I the vitality to throw off these diseases?"

Don't wait to try SCOTT'S EMULSION "as a last resort." There is no remedy equal to it for fortifying the system. Prevention is easy.

Scott's Emulsion

prevents consumption and hosts of other diseases which attack the weak and those with poor blood.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is the one standard remedy for inflamed throats and lungs, for colds, bronchitis and consumption. It is a food medicine of remarkable power. A food, because it nourishes the system. A medicine, because it corrects diseased conditions.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacancy left by a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is daily in America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and what it is for them is baffled alm of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide publicity attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and importance not than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for moderate fees.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can obtain patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through MUNN & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,

361 Broadway, New York.

SAMOAN TROUBLES

GERMAN CONSUL SAID TO BE MAINLY RESPONSIBLE

For the Recent Fighting There—He Issued a Proclamation Which Encouraged Mataafa's Followers to Disregard One Issued by Admiral Kautz—Malietoa Crowned King—Account of the Fighting.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—Mail advices from Apia, Samoa, confirm the cable reports of the trouble there and give many additional details. After the proclamation of Admiral Kautz was issued and the Mataafans were obeying its commands, the German consul general, Rose, issued the following:

"Notice to all Samoans:—By the proclamation of the admiral of the United States, dated March 11, was made known that the three consuls of the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty, as well as the three commanders of men-of-war, and been unanimous to no more recognize the provisional government composed of Mataafa and the thirteen chiefs. I therefore make known to you that this proclamation is quite false. I, as the German consul general, continue to recognize this provisional government of Samoa, until I have received contrary instructions from my government."

REAR ADMIRAL ALBERT KAUTZ.

Mataafa Turned Back.

The immediate result of this act was that the rebels to@d back and prepared for war, declaring that they would not obey the admiral's order and prevent any food supplies being brought into Samoa from Malietoa natives. The next day Apia was surrounded by Mataafa's warriors. Forces from the Philadelphia and Porpoise under Lieutenants Brown and Cave were landed to protect the loyal natives. On Tuesday Mataafa having failed to obey the admiral's proclamation, Flag Lieutenant Miller was sent to deliver an ultimatum. His was not allowed to see the chief, but delivered his message and retired. Everything looked ugly and British and American blue jackets were landed in Apia to protect the consulates. Quick-firing machine and small field pieces were also landed.

Hostilities Are Begun.

Hostilities commenced on Tuesday afternoon, when half a dozen Malietoa men were taken to headquarters and bound. On Wednesday morning notice was spread that if no answer was received from Mataafa by o'clock the Philadelphia would fire one of her large guns, followed by three 1-minute guns. Mataafa sent no answer. At 9 o'clock chiefs were buoyed up by the German consul's proclamations, and many talk that Germany would support them and was the greatest nation on earth, invincible in war, and that Great Britain and America would never dare to engage Germany in conflict. Signal guns were fired and the foreign population of British and Americans were taken on board their respective warships. Other nationalities went on board sailing vessels in the harbor. One hundred and seventy-five men and officers were landed, and at Admiral Kautz's request, Captain Sturdy of the Porpoise assumed command of the combined forces on shore, Flag Lieutenant Miller of the Philadelphia, assisting.

Philadelphia Opens Fire.

As soon as the land forces were stationed, the Philadelphia opened fire by throwing a shell into the cedarits of the Apia. The Royalist followed. About 90 shells in all were fired.

About dusk, the rebels made an attack on the Britishers at the Tivoli hotel. About 2:30 a. m. the attack was a rush on the guard at the Tivoli. Three British sailors were killed and one wounded. The native loss is not known.

The German warship Falke attempted to leave port on a secret mission when Admiral Kautz ordered her captain to stay where he was and be ready to afford help to his countrymen. The Falke remained.

Rebels Attack the Consulate.

Early Friday morning, 200 rebels rushed up to within 30 yards of the consulate. The sailors behaved splendidly and the natives were repulsed. One American sailor was killed and one British sailor was shot in both legs.

There is intense feeling against the Germans here and they are accused of spying and giving information to the rebels. Fighting by night is an entirely new department in Samoan warfare, and everything points to German teaching. Sunday a body of native foragers came upon a Mataafa crowd, killing eight and wounding 20 of them, when the rebels fled.

For several days the German warship Falke persistently kept in the way so as to incommode the fire of the British ships. Finally Admiral Kautz compelled her to more inside the harbor entrance out of the way.

March 23, King Tanu Mafili Malietoa was crowned king of Samoa at Mulinuu. The ceremony was attended by United States and British representatives. A procession marched all through Apia, headed by the band of the Philadelphia. The German officials were conspicuous by their absence.

PANA'S DEADLY RIOT.

Seven Persons Killed and Nine Wounded During the Disturbance.

PANA, Ills., April 11.—A deadly riot, the most serious disturbance that has occurred here since the coal miners instigated a strike in April, 1898, was enacted during the morning, resulting in seven persons being shot to death and nine wounded. The dead are: Frank Coburn, citizen; Xavier Lecocq, Frenchman, union miner; four negro men; one negro woman.

The situation quieted down at nightfall and no more trouble was looked for. Adjutant General Reece, Colonel A. B. Culver and three companies of infantry arrived at 6 o'clock on special trains and perfect order was maintained throughout the town from that time on. Half a dozen more companies of infantry are on the way from different towns in the state. On arriving the soldiers immediately began patrolling the streets throughout the entire town. Miners stood about in groups talking, but there were no outward manifestations of excitement.

Cause of the Disturbance.

The rioting was the direct result of the shooting of Henry Stevens, the leader of the non-union miners, by Deputy Sheriff Cheney while resisting arrest.

A number of shots during which Xavier Lecocq, a Frenchman, was shot and killed and Stevens wounded. When the first shots had been fired the whistle of the electric light plant was blown as a signal for the citizens, the majority of whom had long ago been sworn as deputies, to turn out armed ready to fight. At the same time the miners of the Pana and Penwell mines, which are located near the center of town, rushed into the tipples and opened fire on the crowned streets, the news that Stevens, one of their number, had been shot and arrested causing them to a pitch of fury. They shot at any living merk in sight, and, as a result, among their victims are, three women, two of whom are white, wounded, and one negro woman dead.

DOZEN LIVES LOST.

Ice Gorge on the Yellowstone at Glendive, Mon., Results in an Overflow.

GLENDIVE, Mon., April 10.—An ice gorge in the Yellowstone river at this point caused the stream to overflow, drowning 12 persons. Three spans of the steel bridge are washed out, causing a loss of $35,000; the Northern Pacific tracks are inundated and possibly washed away for some distance, and the loss to live stock by drowning will involve a large sum.

DEWEY AGAIN DENIES IT

The Admiral Insists He Has No Political Ambition.

NEW YORK, April 10. — Admiral Dewey has given to the Associated Press correspondent of the Associated Press an interview regarding the suggestion that the admiral be made a candidate for presidential honors. The admiral said as to his politics:

"I am a sailor, and a sailor has no politics. The administration is his party, and Republican or Democratic, it makes no difference.

Admiral Dewey said that neither by position, disposition, education or training was he capacitated to fill the presidency. He said that he was too well along in life to consider such a possibility. His health would not admit. All his life's work was in different lines of effort, and that, while the kindness and enthusiasm of his friends were grateful to him and the generous tributes of the American people were dear to him, he could not and would not be a candidate for the presidency of the United States under any conditions.

HISTORIC INCIDENT.

War Between the United States and Spain Officially Declared at an End.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The complete restoration and official declaration that peace between the United States and Spain was effected, through the exchange of ratifications of treaty of peace, followed by the publication of a proclamation by the president, announcing to the world that peace is restored. The ceremony of exchanging ratifications occurred at the executive mansion at 9:35 p. m., when the president handed to M. Cambon, the French ambassador, the American copy of the treaty, and the ambassador in turn gave the president the Spanish copy of the treaty, properly attested by the queen regent and the premier of Spain.

After the ceremony connected with the exchange and ratification of the peace treaty, President McKinley issued a proclamation setting forth the restoration of amicable relations.

THE CASE MAY COLLAPSE

Surprise Sprung by the Attorneys For Senator Quay.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—In the trial of ex-Senator Quay his lawyers began what is regarded as the all important contention when was ruled for his acquittal, namely, that the books of the broken People's bank are not competent testimony against the accused man and therefore should not be admitted in evidence. On the decision of this point rests the entire future of the prosecution's case. Should Judge Biddle decide the point and taken the common wealth's case will necessarily collapse.

BARTLETT TRIPP CHOSEN.

Former Minister to Austria to Be Our Samoan Commissioner.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The president has selected Bartlett Tripp of South Dakota, former American minister to Austria, as the United States representative on the Samoan joint commission.

Treaty Is in Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The exchange copy of the Spanish-American peace treaty has reached Washington, it is now in the hands of the French ambassador, M. Cambon, who will at once arrange with the state department for the final exchange of ratification.

SANTA CRUZ FIGHT

CAPTURE THE RESULT OF A MOST INTERESTING BATTLE

American Soldiers, Aided by Gunboats, Take the Place Without Loss—Enemy Suffered Severely — At Least Eighty Killed, Many Wounded and Ten Captured—Indian Fighting Tactics Used by American Troops in the Advance.

MANILA, April 11.—The capture of Santa Cruz by General Lawton's expedition followed one of the most interesting and important battles of the war. The American loss, owing largely to the use of gunboats, was 6 wounded. The Filipinos are known to have lost 80 killed, many more wounded and a large number captured. The American expedition was under the personal command of General Lawton and his plans worked pesfectly with the exception that progress up the river was delayed by difficult navigation.

The expedition was composed of about 1,500 picked men. These troops partly surrounded the city, while the gunboats Laguna de Bay, Napidan and Oeste, under the command of Captain Grant of the Utah battery, shelled the city and outlying trenches.

General Lawton and his staff accompanied the troops, sometimes leading charges in Indian fighting tactics, which eventually resulted in the complete rout of the rebels, with the smallest amount of damage to the city and slight loss to the Americans.

Beginning of the Fight.

Canoes with a force of 200 picked sharpshooters under Major Wetsenberger, mostly belonging to the First Washington regiment, were run into a shallow inlet about five miles south of the city. Then a few shells were sent toward the entrenchments of the rebels and, wading for about 100 yards, crept forward and formed in line covering the landing of the remainder.

The three troops of the Fourth cavalry, unmounted, were sent ashore in dangerous marshy point directly south of the city under fire from the enemy's trenches.

Meanwhile in the town itself there was utter silence and not a sign of life. General Lawton, desiring to give the inhabitants an opportunity to surrender, went on board the Laguna de Bay and steamed slowly to the dock. When it was discovered by the glasses that the trenches and stone buildings were swarming with whitecload soldiers the boat withdrew, receiving volleys from the trenches thrown up on the marshy plain north of the city.

Gunboats Cleared the Way.

At sunrise Monday the assault commenced. The American outlines south of the city stretched two miles inland and, with its left sweeping the shore, it moved north, while the Fourth cavalry men on the point advanced toward the city, pouring volleys upon the rebels. Simultaneously the gunboats hovered along the shore, shelling the woods ahead of the troops and driving the Filipinos inland. The Gatlings cleared several trenches.

The whole brigade was divided into squads of 12 and the fighting was carried on in the old time frontier fashion from behind trees, crawling through the bushes or running across the open. Each trenchea that were not cleared by the gunboats gave considerable resistance and the Laguna de Bay and Oeste bombarded them for an hour in the hope of making them too warm for occupancy, but did not succeed in clearing them entirely.

General Lawton, with the Fourteenth infantry battalion, approached a narrow iron bridge across a creek on the south border of the town. Here a company of Filipinos was intrenched across the stream and behind a stone barricade at the entrance to the bridge.

Faced a Galling Fire.

The Americans rushed forward in single file in the face of a galling fire, demolished the barricade with their hands and drove the enemy from the trenches, killing a dozen.

The Filipino soldiers in the town were occupying various buildings, and firing from the windows, gave the invaders an interesting hour. There was a regular nest of them in the Stone jail, which is hedged in by a wall. This was a formidable pepper pot. The Americans, tumpet or in pairs, entered the enclosure and many warriors were taken prisoners.

A considerable body of Filipinos fled northward, crossing the open marshes, but the Gatling guns penned upon them a deadly hail until they disappeared in the woods, slaying dozens.

Major Weisenberger deployed the sharpshooters along the shore and they crept steadily forward with the Gatlings. Suddenly a large body was seen against the sqamy in the woods, driving them toward the mountains.

Lawton Occupies the Palace.

General Lawton established headquarters at the elegant palace of the governor and a guard was immediately placed in the church, as the sacred edifice are always the first objective point of looters. Within an hour the town was patrolled and all looting rigidly prevented.

Almost all the inhabitants had fled during the two preceding nights and only a few Chinese shopkeepers have emerged from hidiug and resumed business.

On the marshes north of town were found 40 dead Filipinos, some horribly torn by shells and many others wounded, to whom the Americans offered their canteens as though they were comrades. A surgeon who traversed the field counted 80 killed and General Lawton will report at least 80. One Filipino, attempting to make his escape, slashed viciously at Major Weisenberger, who shot and killed him.

"The Least Hair Casts a Shadow."

A single drop of poison blood will, unless checked in time, make the whole impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the great leader in blood purifiers.

It casts no shadow, but brings sunshine and health into every household.

Dyspepsia—"Suffered everything but death for years with dyspepsia. Nothing relieved me until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made and kept me well. Can eat anything I want." MRS. EDMUND MOWERY, Bull's Mill, Danbury, Conn.

Consumptive Cough—"Five years ago I had a consumptive cough which resisted me to a decline. Was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did and recovered normal health. I have been well ever since." MATILDA BRIDGEWATER, Cor. Pleasant and Chestnut Sts., Lebanon, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Notes From Exchanges.

Brainerd Tribune: At present there is no indication of a subsidence of the wonderful business boom which is being felt in all lines of commercial activity, and it is to be hoped that nothing will happen to check the steady and healthy growth of the business of the country. All previous records now bid fair to be eclipsed, and 1899 promises to be the greatest year in American history.

Fertile Journal: They are telling a good joke on a certain young man who was here on a visit the fore part of the week—who, by the way, is no stranger in Fertile. The young man prides himself on his personal appearance and this is where the joke comes in. Monday after providing himself with a clean shave at one of our tonsorial shops he started out to make a few calls. He had about made the rounde when ons young lady, more bolder than the rest, remarked, "Why, Mr. C—, you have become of your collar and tie." He took in the situation at a glance and started off dobbe quick time for the barber shop where the boys were lying in wait for him and a good laugh was had at his expense.

Norman County Index: Out at Beaujolais, the booming metropolis of Belltrami county, everything depends upon which side of the "street" you take your stand. All contests and public movements are fought out by Co. Atty. Street's friends and that gentlemen's enemies. So far Street has managedto come out on top, although the enemy is constantly making a fight.

Norman County Index: Myran's county option bill was indefinitely postponed in the Senate Tuesday, and there appears to be no hope that this measure, so much desired by a large majority of the people of Norman county, will become a law for at least four years.

St. James Gazette: In the way of securing state appointments, Dave Morgan seems to have more "influence" with the governor than have the leaders or the democrat and populist parties put together. This goes to show that Mr. Lind knows how to appreciate the good work of David, and also that David knows how to yank a string when he has a chance.

The Grand Forks Herald: North Dakota is on the eve of a potato famine. Last fall the merchants did not stock their basements with the tubers, owing to discouraging experiences in the past, and the potatoes that were stored in pits by the farmers have in large part been frozen. A sharp advance is looked for by the merchants of North Dakota.

Pioneer Press: The following bill has been modestly suggested for the $1 Byran dinner:

Soup (of the vintage of '96.)

Fish, Buzzard's bay trout, with tartar sauce.

Entree, Bones of contention, gilded.

Roast, Republican elephant, with pawnbroker sauce.

Game, Crow, a la Belmont.

Salad, Young Democrats, green in judgment.

Sweets, The uses of adversity.

St. Cloud Journal Press: Experienced fishermen predict that there will be a big loss of fish in the smaller lakes on account of the very cold winter weather, which froze the ice to unusual thickness. The ice is so solid that there are few airholes and the fish will be smothered. When the sun goss out people need not be surprised to find large numbers of dead fish washed on shore. It is all the more necessary that the laws be enforced against the illegal killing of fish, and the people who live near the lakes should be most interested. But too often they are the most persistent violators.

Dr. Adams who spoke at the Red River Valley Presbytery meeting last week Friday and that the children of one school in Porto Rico—where the Doctor has been recently—that had been established only three weeks, could sing almost all the national airs that are dear to the hearts of Americans.

Harrows

There are quite a number of Harrows on the market. Some are good, some fair and a good many very poor. It will pay you to carefully look them all over and buy a good one. We have the old style BOSS that has been sold for years. Arms are riveted--not nailed--at each tooth, have steel teeth and two good coats of paint. . . . . Then we have John Deere's best Harrow, steel frame, U bar with their patent tooth fastener that hold the tooth solid so it can't get away, but at the same time admits of its being turned readily to the use of all four edges, or remove them to sharpen. We have sold these Harrows for about 15 years and our increasing sales each year shows they are well liked We have them in all sizes and shall be pleased to sell you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., LARSEN & CARPENTER,
Fosston or Mcintosh. Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes leg right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. EDDIE, President. WM. ANGUS, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. B. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

George B. Eddie, A. A. Miller, Wm. Angus, J. R. Kellogan, E. M. Webb, L. Fontaine, J. P. Foote, W. B. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

Horses and Farm Implements For Sale.

The undersigned having disposed of a large portion of their cultivated lands and turned their attention exclusively to dairying, offer for sale, eighteen head of horses and colts, three 20 shoe Havana press drills, eight Brunsdorf seeders, ten grain plows, six farm wagons, one threshing outfit complete, one 36 inch Dimentpolis separator, two sets Howe's 60 bushel warehouse scales, one Kansas city hay press, ten harvesters and self binders, besides a great variety of small tools too numerous to mention. Also three quarter sections of prairie and two quarter sections of wood lands, each place being well located and very desirable. All of the above will be sold very cheap for cash purchasers, and can be had for cash, or on time with approved securities.

Apply or address

E. D. CHILDS CO.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Agriculture college of North Dakota has received a quantity of sugar beet seed for free distribution among the farmers of the state who may desire to experiment in growing sugar beets.

In the district court at Minneapolis last week there were 90 default divorce cases. Five judges had the cases and hence they were disposed of with unusual celerity.

Grand Forks business men are discussing the question as to whether they will have this year, a midsummer merchants carnival or the regular street fair in the fall.

Bishop Andrews of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold special services at Grand Forks tomorrow, April 14th.

Order To Examine Accounts, etc

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, } ss.
In probate court, special term, April 11, 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Mary J. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie E. Booker, administratrix de bonis non of the estate of Mary J. Cooke deceased, representing, among other things, that she has fully administered said estate, and praying for a weekly newspaper, printed and published at Crookston to said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 11th day of April, A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
DUD E. HADEN,
Judge of Probate.

The Journal wants a live Correspondent in every township in the county.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY APRIL 20, 1899 NO 2

FOR BETTER HORSES

Dr. Carryer Continues his Advice as to How to Breed Better Stock.

CAREFUL SELECTION NECESSARY

Records of Breeding Throughout the State Should be Kept—Only Best Sires to be Used.

(Continued from last week.)

While we may not all be willing to recognize the fact, yet it is nevertheless true, that all the improvements in our domestic animals of all kinds have been accomplished through close observations and painstaking handlers in mating and at the experience and expense of individuals, each one working out his own way, certain points of improvement, color or markings of the animals to which he has devoted his individual attention. We have never had in this country, strong breeding societies, or well directed concert of action along specific lines, that were far reaching enough to be of lasting benefit to the masses; but to those who could comprehend the efforts of the master breeders, and continue their work, great results have been attained. Yet too often the work of a lifetime of some of our greatest breeders has been "wafted to the four winds" in a single day's closing out sale to purchasers not understanding the lines on which the great breeder had been working. They are not able to continue the system so well begun, and as a consequence, it is all lost.

When we understand that all the grand specimens of the equine race that are exhibited at our fairs and horse shows have been evolved during the lapse of centuries from the small, inferior looking, low headed, clumsy gaited, heavy headed, primitive horse, and that all this excellence has been attained by careful selection for mating, but by the law of reversion towards that primitive animal, we must constantly be guarded, or we find our efforts at improvement producing retrogression.

Constant vigilance must be the watchword of improvement and relaxation of efforts or carelessness in breeding, results in one or losings, in a very short time, what it required many years to secure.

Color was one of the first improvements aimed at. The Hereford breeder made his selections for the red body and the white face. The Shorthorn breeder first for the white color, then roan and now red. The Berkshire breeder for the black body, white in face, all four feet white and white tip of tail. The Jersey breeder for the dark underline fawn colored back, black tongue and black switch. The Clydesdale breeder the bay color, white strip in face, two to four white feet and long, fine hair on the legs, etc., among all classes of animals and fowls breeders have accomplished wonders.

The ambitious breeders have confined themselves to specific markings with wonderful accuracy, and when we can get everybody interested in breeding and confine the work to specific conformations, size, style and action with same care they have for marking and colors, we will be able to supply any market with whatever may be desired.

The French government maintains 2,800 stallions in the national studs for public service, the fees ranging from $10.00 downward. In the spring season these are distributed throughout the country attended by government keepers under special superintendents, whose duty it is to see that these stallions are properly fed, exercised, and bred for the best results. These stallions are concentrated before winter at 22 different stations, and there fed and exercised daily or worked to keep them strong and vigorous for the next season's work in the stud. Belgium has a somewhat similar system and both countries, although small, are capable of furnishing large numbers of horses of a specific type. The Paris Omnibus Co. employs 16,000 horses, nearly all Percheons. The distance traveled daily is from twelve to sixteen miles and the average life of each is five years.

The breeders of thoroughbred horses in Kentucky, where they have the very best sires and have always taken the greatest care in keeping their breeding stock as pure as possible, have recently formed what they are pleased to call a Protective Association, one of the duties of which is to attend public sales and purchase all of the undesirable mares and then sell them outside of their breeding district divested of their pedigrees, so that even afterwards they will be classed as "unknowns" and cannot be identified as thoroughbreds. Minnesota has already gained a reputation for producing stock of a high quality in animal fibre both in our horses and meat producing animals, which is due to our pure atmosphere, nutritious grasses and cereals. We should, through systematic efforts, encourage and sustain all those who have sires of worthy breeding and by some lawful means dispose of all those that are incapable of rendering us a benefit. We cannot afford to use sires that are constantly doing our state a damage, and now that we are again on the eve of being actively engaged in horse breeding, something should be done at once to prevent the use of sires of no distinctive type, unsound, or greatly defective in conformation. It costs no more to raise to maturity a well bred, sound, shapely horse, (that will be a credit to the state and profitable to the breeder,) than to produce a crooked, slab-sided, crippled good-for-nothing, of which we have now far too many, and in justice to our state should have some legitimate means of getting rid of.

Just as soon as Minnesota makes a move in the direction of pure bred sires of only strong, sound, constitutions, that day and hour marks the commencement of the most important improvement in her live stock, which in conjunction with her agriculture, will constitute her greatest wealth.

The first move in the right direction would be to relieve from taxation all acceptable full blood sires, kept for public service. The second, that no service fees should be collectable by law for the use of sires not proven worthy, even if eligible to registration in the established stud books. The third, that service fees should be regulated by law in a manner that will be equal with the character and quality of such sires, but in no case to exceed $20.00.

To get the best interest of all concerned, the owners of all sires should file with the several township clerks where such sires are doing service, copies of their full breeding, and whenever obtainable, certificates from the breeders of such sires as additional evidence that they are bred as represented, also a description of all females bred to such sires, together with the names and addresses of their several owners. And still further, the owners of the produce should file with the township clerks where they reside, a description of such produce, together with names, color, and marks and pedigree of the dam, as well as the name and number of the sire. The several township clerks should be provided with books for this purpose, and further still, every sale or exchange of animals should be recorded with the township clerks where the respective owners reside, so that we will be able to trace the individuality and ownership of every animal in the State of Minnesota.

We cannot do too much to encourage the use of the very best sires obtainable, as it is the only avenue left for us, and if neighborhoods, townships, or even to the extent of counties could so organize as to breed only in certain lines of stock, and confine themselves to the very best strains, they could change sires among themselves and thereby avoid frequent purchases or interbreeding, the result of which would make, within a very few years, a home market for all their stock, as the buyers would know where to get what they want and in sufficient numbers.

Now, gentlemen of this convention, it is for you and our lawmakers to decide whether the Minnesota State Agricultural Society, and Live Stock Breeders' Association is a worthy enterprise and of sufficient importance to justify your individual and combined support in the development of the State in the rapid and consistent improvement of our live stock of all kinds from the horse down to the chicken, or the busy bee.

The Minnesota Stock Breeder's Association is young in years, but ambitious, and with the proper assistance will aid this great commonwealth in establishing a system of stock breeding throughout the state that will make her famous for her horses of sufficient size for the required duties, symetry of form, perfect action, elegant style, constitutions for wonderful endurance, and intelligent almost human, beef cattle for the most delicious cuts, dairy cattle of the form for the greatest production of globe butter and toothsome cheese; sheep for the finest quality of mutton; hogs for the variety of meat demanded by the market; poultry that never fails in egg production; and bees so enchanted by the sweetness of the flowers abounding in our meadows, by the silvery lakes and soft rippling streams, that they have lost their inclination to sting.

SHEEP RAISING PAYS.

So Says Prof Craig of Iowa Agricultural College—Applicable to This Section.

LAMBS FATTENED CHEAPLY

The Prospects for This Industry are Very Bright—Farmers are Taking More Interest In It.

This present exceeding satisfactory prices for well finished sheep and lambs is turning the attention of western farmers and feeders to this branch of the live stock business and the authorities are answering frequent inquiries as to the opportunities it possesses for the average farmer under western farm conditions. There is a popular impression among the farming community that a farm or locality must possess some special characteristic topographical or otherwise, to assure success in sheep raising or sheep feeding. The old idea that the sheep is a natural scavenger and must have his natural environment in a deep-wooded cover and it is proving a pretty hard task to root it out. The experiment stations are doing much to combat this mistaken theory and light is happily breaking into many dark places. There is also a general ignorance concerning the cost of lamb and mutton production and the conditions under which such production can be conducted profitably.

Prof. John A. Craig, of the Iowa agricultural college, throws some much needed light upon both these latter phases of the business in a recent letter in tne Breeders' Gazette, answering specific inquiry along the above lines from a Central Illinois farmer. The latter wants to know definitely if it is true that his locality is not adapted to sheep raising; and if there is not a place on a 160 acre prairie farm for at least 50 breedings ewes. He also asked for information relative to the comparitive profits of sheep raising and cattle raising.

GOOD PROFIT IN SHEEP RAISING.

Prof. Craig, in reply vouches for the value of sheep in preserving the fertility of a farm or upbuilding depleted soils, and declares that any well drained farm in Central Illinois can very profitably carry a small flock of ewes the year round and feed many more during the winter months. On the other point he says:

"In regard to the relative profit of sheep-raising and cattle-raising, it seems to me that the advantage is in favor of the sheep up to this time. I think it is generally true that lambs have sold as well on the market, taking one year with another, as fat cattle, and if this is accepted as true it certainly seems that there has been more profit in feeding lambs than in fattening cattle.

"We know from exact data that lambs can be fattened cheaper than cattle. In the experiments made in this station it was found that it took about nine pounds of dry matter to make one pound of increase in beef steers. As other stations in this country and in England it has taken more dry matter in the ration to secure one pound of gain. In a trial in this station sheep made one pound of gain for each seven and one-quarter pounds of dry matter that was consumed, while the English experiments show one pound of increase for nine pounds of dry matter. I think that it is safe to assert that sheep will make a pound of gain cheaper than steers. This being so and the market prices being about the same, the only other factor to consider is that of risk and labor, and it seems to me that in both of these the advantage may be considered to be slightly in favor of the sheep. In the breeding of stock of these kinds the sheep again is favored, for the first is less, the increase more rapid and the risk less. These comparisons have, of course been made between mutton sheep and cattle selected solely for beef purposes.

"There is another side of the question at this time that is occupying the thoughts of a great many of those interested in the sheep industry. It is the industry of fattening lambs going to remain stable and profitable? During the past winter there were a great many that wavered in their faith in the sheep business. They have had good reason for this on account of the high prices that were paid for feeding stock last fall and the low prices for finished stock a month or so ago. It did seem this spring that the lamb market would collapse, but the strength that it has shown in the last month gives every encouragement for faith in the future of the industry. There is no doubt but that there will be less speculation in the feeding of lambs in the years to come, for we are now getting to that point where the farmer and the producer of feeding stock desires to obtain all there is in this by fattening his own lambs instead of selling them to others to do it for him. The price of feeding stock is likely to be so high that the man who has to buy his feed to finish this class will find a very difficult matter to secure profit from it, but the farmer who produces this fattening feed will be able to make more than market prices for his farm produce by feeding it to lambs. It does seem to me that our lamb-feeding operations are going to rest on a more stable basis in the future, because of the fact that the market is going to shut out the speculators and thus make the conditions more valuable for those who have the facilities for making a permanent business of this industry."

The above sentiments are exactly those of our own Prof. Thomas Shaw applied to the conditions in Minnesota. He has preached this gospel early and late and with ability and vigor, but the responses have been few and scattering up to date. The present high prices for fat stock with the likelihood of stable conditions ahead, should stimulate an added interest in this line of work among the farmers of the state.

IN DISTRICT COURT.

Mandamus Served on County Auditor Gleason Is Quashed—Case Tried in June.

Last Friday the city and county appeared before Judge Watts in the person of Judge Montague, and A. A. Miller and A. R. Holston respectively. The county through its attorneys asked to have the writ of mandamus issued by the court and served upon John Gleason, county auditor, ordering him to issue a warrant to county treasurer to pay to city of Crookston certain per cent of interest on delinquent taxes or appear before the court and show cause why he should not, that this writ be issued. The Judge on Monday gave his decision, quashing the writ. As the case could not be got into the supreme court at this term the decision is not displeasing to the city. The case will now come up regularly in the district court which opens here in June. Expert accountants will now be set to work by the city to ascertain accurately what is due from the county and then the city will sue for this amount.

PROF. MOORE'S RETIREMENT.

A Man Thoroughly Competent in Educational Affairs Ought to Follow Him.

With the present school year Prof. John Moore's long term of fourteen yeas as superintendent of the Crookston public schools comes to a close. He has informed the board that he would not be a candidate for re-election. It was at the beginning of the school year 1884 that Mr. Moore entered upon his duties as superintendent and he has been in charge of the schools continuously ever since. During this period the schools have grown rapidly till today there are 9 school buildings and 23 teachers, and the enrollment year there will be more assistance needed. A high school was organized by Mr. Moore in 1885 and under the superintendency it has been steadily built up till it numbers over one hundred pupils and ranks with the best in the state. The work in the whole are well and favorably known throughout the state. State Inspectors Alton and Rankin speak in high terms of the work that has been done in the Crookston schools in the past.

Mr. Moore's administration has been economical and efficient. As the schools are losing him it is very necessary that the board of education be careful in selecting his successor. It will be disastrous to the schools at the present time for an incapable man to be put into so important a position. The city of Crookston is growing and the numbers in the schools are increasing so that today there are few more important positions in the educational field in the state. The future prosperity of our city depends as much upon the education that the young people are receiving as it does upon the business ability of the citizens. The question, therefore, of the selection of a superintendent is of particularly important one, for upon this man's shoulders great responsibility rests, and not merely the future welfare of the schools but the future welfare of the city is in his hands.

ABOLISH GRADE SYSTEM.

Under it not Enough Prominence Given to Individuality of Pupils.

There is considerable discussion going on among the educational papers in regard to a proposition by the superintendent of the Elizabeth, N. J., schools to abolish the grade system somewhat resembling the unclassified plan of some of the select schools. One of the objections to the grade system is, that it insists too much on each pupil in the same grade doing the same amount of work in each study. The pupils are all given a certain amount of work to do in arithmetic, for instance. A part of the class will do the work in half the time allotted, while the rest of the class comes to the recitation with but half the lesson learned. Then the lesson must be gone over again by the whole class, which is a waste of time for part of them, or they must all go on to the next lesson, which is equally wrong for the balance of the class. The same plan is pursued in other branches. At the close of the term, certain pupils take the examinations in a very satisfactory way, while others miserably fail. They may be good in others branches, but in arithmetic and perhaps one or two more branches they fail.

NEW FLOUR MILL.

Prospects that W. C. Leistkow of North Dakota May Build Here.

Crookston is becoming more and more the Mecca for men who have capital which they wish to invest well. The city has one flour mill now and there is a probability that another will be built in the near future. W. C. Leistkow who has large milling interest at Grafton, N. D. is the man who is interested in the new deal. The property is already secured—where the old round house was—and a new mill that will turn out 500 barrels a day is likely to go up. It is said by enterprises as this that Crookston is particularly interested in and if Mr. Leistkow decides to invest here it will be a great advantage indeed for the city. Frank M. Brown who has had large experience in milling matters would act a manager of the new concern.

CITY HALL FURNITURE.

Antique Oak Desks—Leather Swivel Chairs—Committee Room and Reporters' Tables.

The furniture for the new city hall came last Friday and it is an elegant set indeed. It is all antique quartered oak, highly polished. In the extreme eastern end of the council chamber is a new hardwood platform and on this platform are the desks of the president of the council and the city clerk, the latter a little lower than the president. There are ten low, roll-top desks, one each for the aldermen—desks made particularly for aldermen. With each of these desks goes a leather swivel chair. Each of the committee rooms is furnished with a large table and several chairs. Within the railing are tables for newspaper reporters, and one for the city comptroller. Outside the railing are 21 settees for the public.

In the city clerk's office is a large table and a counter the interior of which is arranged for books and blanks. The counter has a panel front with swinging gate.

The chief of police has in his office on the first floor a fine new wardrobe, a leather topped couch, four chairs and a roll-top desk.

The furniture is in harmony with the building in which it has been placed—it is handsome and durable. With such surroundings and equipment if the city fathers can't do extra good work the city is not to blame.

The desks and chairs were made in Minneapolis, the chairs in Chicago. It was the Crookston Furniture Company, however, that planned and superintended the work and to them credit is due for thus handsomely furnishing our new city hall. It usually pays and it has in this case paid to patronize home industry.

Pioneer Press: The bill providing that prisoners under life sentence may be eligible to parole after twenty years' imprisonment, provided they have had a record during that time of uniform good conduct, and provided also, that the board of prison managers and the board of pardons shall concur in approving the parole, was defeated in the house yesterday. We make the prediction that the time will come when every member whose name is recorded in opposition to this bill will be heartily ashamed of his vote.

CROOKSTON GROWING.

Evidence on Every Hand That This Year Will be Even More Prosperous Than Last.

NEW BUILDINGS IN PROGRESS.

The Carpenter's Hammer and Saw are Heard in all Parts of the Queen City.

Even before winter loosened its icy grasp on things there were not wanting signs that there would this year be a boom in building in Crookston like unto that of last year, but since spring has opened up the signs have multiplied. Several business blocks will be built but the feature will be the number of private dwellings that will go up. There is now a scarcity of private residences and as the demand for such is great it is readily seen that capital invested in this way will be well invested.

Among the many improvements now being made or in contemplation are these: John Waterstradt will build a two story brick building on Main street just north of his present business location at the corner of Second and Main streets. Andrew Carlson is building an addition to his boarding house on South Main street, the addition to contain twelve rooms. Mrs. Rose has added to her restaurant rooms on Second street near Great Northern station, quite a large dining room. Fred Fuyer has built him a blacksmith shop on North Main street and two blocks above him Espe and Larson are erecting their new machine shop and foundry. The front part of this building will be two stories high, 40x42, and will be used as a machine shop. The rear part, which is the foundry will be 30x40 and one story high. The firm will do repairing and will fill special orders. By May 10 they expect to turn out their first casting. In Jerome's addition Banks and Bancroft are at present remodelling Ed. Teagan's house. In this part of town O. K. Berget and E. E. Lommen are talking of erecting two dwelling houses, though the final plans are not yet completed. M. G. Peterson is also thinking of building. In Simpson's addition Andrew Lundahl is putting the finishing touches to his large house of eight rooms, located near the public school building. In this same part of town Daniel Peterson, father of Ed. Peterson, manager of Waterworks company, is building a five room house on Hubbard street, north. Mr. Peterson will move in from Thief River Falls as soon as the house is completed, and right alongside this house another dwelling of about the same size is being erected. The German Lutheran Society will build a church on North Main street. Work on this edifice has already begun in the carpenter's shop. It is to be a frame structure. Strander and Christianson are considering the plan of putting up a two story brick building on Broadway on the vacant lot just south of Hotel Crookston. This, if erected, will be an office block exclusively. A. P. Greene will build a handsome residence on Ash street near the Episcopal church. E. M. Walsh has the plans and specifications all ready for a thoroughly modern dwelling house which he will erect on a fine building site northeast of the Northern Pacific station.

A SHOOT IN JUNE

Gun Club Elects Officers and Makes Arrangements For The Meet This Summer.

The Gun Club of Crookston which was resurrected last summer after a short period during which it had been inactive, is still on earth, and proposes to have considerable sport this spring and summer. This club, which numbers about forty members, met last Tuesday night at the firemen's assembly room in the City Hall. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. C. Hoch, president; W. L. Vasaw, vice-president; Will Bloom, secretary, A. R. Fuller, treasurer, and Tom Morris, field captain. It was decided to hold the next grand shoot in June, the executive committee to decide upon the exact date.

The tournament will take place at the Gun Club's grounds north of the city and a big time is expected. Any one may compete though he must first pay the entry fee. The medal goes to the best all around man. Crack shots even from as far away as Winnipeg will be here.

—J. W. Wheeler has money to lend. You will find him at the First National bank of Crookston.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Methodist Ministers Will Discuss Church Work—Dr. Forbes, Presiding Elder, Will Lecture.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district has been one of the busiest men in Northern Minnesota during the present Conference year which began last October. His district was enlarged so as to include the towns along the new Duluth line and the Red River Valley. He soon found that much of this territory had not been worked and his time has consequently been spent in organizing new parishes, dedicating new churches and preaching and lecturing in every corner of his large district.

It is with a view to aiding the Ministers in this part of his district that he has arranged with the aid of Rev. A. E. Rowson, pastor of the M. E. church in Crookston, to hold a District Conference in this city on May 8, 9 and 10.

Live topics of church work will be discussed by prominent pastors. The meetings will be opened to the public and will be found interesting and profitable. The following is the program in full:

Monday, May 8th at 8:00 p. m.—Sermon by Rev. J. G. Moore, of Pembina, North Dakota: followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Tuesday, May 9th, at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by J. C. Hartley, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota. Subject: "The Present Status of Sunday School Work and What Modifications are Needed.

Tuesday at 3:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. A. Cooke, of Fisher. Subject: "The Use of the Ritual in Church Services.

Tuesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Geo. P. Watson, of Bemidji. Subject: "Revival Methods Best Suited to the times.

Tuesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. H. Logan, of St. Hilaire. Subject: "Church Literature."

Tuesday, at 8:00 p. m.—Lecture by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Epworth League Idea."

Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. T. J. Smith, of Argyle. Subject: "The Functions of the Different Church Boards."

Wednesday, at 3:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Wm. Park, of Ada, Subject: "The Preacher as a Student of Human Nature and General Literature."

Wednesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. A. E. Rowson, of Crookston. Subject: "The Sermon—Its Theme, Preparation and Delivery."

Wednesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. F. Spicer, of Warren. Subject: "The Preacher as a Pastor."

Wednesday, at 8 p. m.—Address by Mr. J. W. Wheeler. Subject: "The Business Affairs of the Church."

Address by Rev. J. G. Moore. Subject: "The Social Meetings."

Address by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Benevolent Societies."

The Conference to close with a consecration service.

The forenoon of Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to the examination of the undergraduates of the Conference. Everybody will be welcome.

FIFTH BAND CONCERT.

In Opera House April 21—Two Numbers by Ladies' Chorus.

Friday evening April 21, is the date of the next band and orchestral concer This one will be the last of this series, and will be an excellent entertainment. The ladies chorus will sing two songs, one entitled "The Fisher," we wish to make special mention of. It is a difficult chorus and is quite an undertaking for amateur singers, but the ladies have worked faithfully and will sing the song in a very creditable way. In this chorus is a very pleasing solo for soprano which Miss Bunnel will sing. Mr. Ballou, a basso singer of considerable note will sing one song. The orchestra will play "The Big Hit Two Step" and "Don Juan Overture" by Mozart both of which have been played very recently by Danz orchestra of Minneapolis and other leading orchestras. The following is the program:

March.....The Charlatan" (new) .....Sousa, Band.

Piano Solo.....
Mrs. Rigg.

Vocal Solo.....Selected.
Mr. E. B. Ballou.

Characitic March.."Alabama Dream".Barnard. Band.

Song.....'In Old Madrid".....Gaccia.
Ladies Chorus.

Two Step "The Big Hit" by the same composer of The Winner, been published just one week.....Brisman.
Rigg Orchestra.

Song.....The Two Grenadiers".....Parker.
Ladies Chorus (Solo sung by Miss Bunnell)

Overture.....'Don Juan".....Mozart
Rigg Orchestra.

Cornet Duet "Short and Sweet Polka" Short Mr. Rigg and Dr. Smith.

Negro Oddity—Pickaninies on Parade" Barnard. Band.

The band will be up to their usual standing and will play a couple of the very latest rag-time negro oddities which will be enjoyed immensely by the audience. The seats will be on sale at Tom Morris' on Thursday morning the 20th at 10 o'clock sharp.

FROM GOLD FIELDS.

Eber Cameron Writes That Some are Making Big Money Out of Claims.

Sheriff Lawrence received last Monday a letter from Eber Cameron, the son-in-law, who is in the gold regions in the far northwest. Mr. Cameron left New Westcomb, in Washington state, last January, in company with four others, in search of gold. All the members of the party have bought claims. The letter is dated at Ailin City, British Columbia, March 26, 1899. Among other things Mr. Cameron says: "I have reached my journey's end and drop you a few lines to let you know I landed all right and am in good health. Had hard times on the trail but pulled through all right. From 20 to 50 below zero and as we are in a tent it is pretty cold, but the prospects are good as far as I can see. I think we will make some money this summer. I would not take $10,000 for my claim though it may not be worth $10. All the indications, however, are good. Just above our claims they have taken out in two days $700. One man took out $325 in four days and in several places they have got from 50 cents to $1.25 per pan, and that means at bed rock about $300 per day if like other places mining.

A BAD ACCIDENT

Herman Camp at Dugdale Has Two of His Fingers Badly Crushed.

Herman Camp, of Dugdale met with a severe accident last Monday in consequence of which he lost the first joint of the index finger of his right hand and had the second finger badly crushed. Dr. Dampier of this city dressed the wound and he hopes to be able to save the finger that was crushed.

Mr. Camp had charge of a stallion belonging to John Hickie, who lives two miles south of Dugdale. The animal was tied to a post near the barn and Camp was adjusting the rope that was around the horse's head and neck when some dust whirling up in the yard scared the horse and he leaped up. Camp's fingers were caught in the rope and first joint of index finger literally cut right off. He lead the horse back to the barn, fastened him, and then owing to loss of blood fainted, falling under the horse. He lay here for about 15 minutes when he regained consciousness. It is a great wonder that the animal did not trample him to death. Mr. Camp will probably not be able to do much work for a month or two.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

Peter Carmody After Rigid Examination in Probate Court is Committed to Fergus Falls.

Peter Carmody, who during the past winter, has been keeping a boarding stable in the lower part of the barn just east of N. P. Stone's machine shop, was up last Tuesday before W. A. Gates, special examiner of the state board of charities and corrections, and after a careful examination he was judged insane and sent to Fergus Falle.

Carmody with his 15 year old boy has been living with John LaChance near the city limits. Mr. LaChance filed information with the probate court to the effect that Carmody was acting like a man out of his head. As the latter was from Algona, Iowa, W. A. Gates, of the state board of charities and corrections, came up from St. Paul and conducted the examination. Carmody is now at Fergus Falls but steps will be taken to have him placed under the care of his own state.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., postoffice, for the week ending April 8, 1899.

GENTLEMEN.

Calligso, Bernard
Capang, Harry
Emmons, W. W.
Gould, George
Hanson, Nils
Larson, A. L.
Lammet, Geo.
Marsharee, Eq
Parsons, W. H.
Robbins, H. Chas.
Landlaw, H. Ole
Schriber, Charles
Simon, Hesso
Simore, Arthur
Wynn, R. John
Higley, F. Wm.

LADIES.

Bohn, T. Miss
Mosher M. A. Mise
Mickisson E. A.
Nyster, Mary
Paquin, Azelie
Torkildsin, B. Iren

Persons calling for the above say advertised.

ANDREW EIKEN,
Postmaster.

For Sale.

As I am going to the Pacific Coast I offer my farm for sale, 880 acres half a mile from Beltrami station, Polk Co. 640 acres under cultivation, mostly new land, pasture fenced, Sand Hill river flowing through it, artesian well, groves along the river, no waste land, always raise big crops, one of the most conveniently and finely situated farms in the Valley. Will sell cheap to a first class farmer on shares.

T. B. DEERMAN, St. Ansgar, Minn.

Railroad Notes.

The Soo will notably build into Fargo, but it will build out of Fargo—seeking feeders for its main line. This people of Fargo will welcome the Soo, which will give them a third great railroad line friendly to the country from which it derives its trade—another N. W.

Nelson D. Miller, who has been chief engineer of the Great Northern for the past two years, has resigned, and John F. Stevens has been appointed to succeed him. Mr. Miller has served with the Great Northern for a good many years, and wasformerly chief engineer of the road, prior to the former administration of Mr. Stevens, who resigned nearly two years ago to engage in railroad construction for himself. Mr. Stevens is reported to have been offered $25,000 a year by Mr. Hill to return to his old position which is by far the largest salary paid to any employee of the road.

The steep grade on the N. P. between Helberg and Twin Valley will be reduced by making a deep cut this summer. This does not look as if there will be a cut-off built from Staples to Fertile.

J. J. Hill has been named as a director and also a member of the executive committee of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

The N. P. railway evidently intends to make considerable improvements at Grand Forks. The law land near the present depot will be filled in and the grade of track will be raised some eight or nine feet, beginning at the bridge and continuing to the turn of the river. The East Grand Forks people hope also to get a han new railway station.

The Great Northern road is now suffering from the floods. Out on the main line west of Minot the track is washed out at Spring Brook and Pacific Junction and the trains are not being sent west of the Wards Lake metropolis. It is reported a bridge or two has gone farther west. Passengers for western points over the G. N. are transferring to the Soo at Minot, and some are waiting for the water to go down.

The Northern Pacific train No. 7 eastbound, killed a man at the water tank just west of the Elk river station last week. The head was nearly severed from the body. The victim had apparently been riding on the bumper of the train and had fallen off with fatal results. From the name on certain papers found on his person it is believed that he was one C. A. Mc Clure.

President Mellen, of the Northern Pacific, who has just returned from the coast says that his trip was for the purpose of looking over the facilities at Tacoma for handling shipping. There is an actual necessity for docks and warehouse facilities at this point and the company proposes to spend a large sum to provide these facilities. The Asiatic business needs increased facilities and these the N. P. has in mind to furnish at the earliest opportunity.

Notice for Bids.

Bids will be received by the undersigned as per order of the city council of the city of Crookston, for doing the printing and publishing of the council proceedings, resolutions, ordinances and all other matter required to be published, such as legal notices, treasurer's and comptroller's reports etc.

Bids for said publications to be in conformity with the requirements of the city charter. Also for doing the job printing of the city for the ensuing year.

Said bids will be received until the 9th day of May, 1899 at eight o'clock p. m., and will be opened at the regular meeting of the council to be held on the evening of said date.

Dated this 13th day of April, 1899.

W. A. LANCTOT,
City clerk.

New Game Law.

The game law bill prohibits the sale of quail; prohibits spring shooting; requires all hunters to obtain licenses, with a fee of $25 for non-residents and 25 cents for residents; allows the spearing of suckers, redhouse and buffalo in all Minnesota waters, instead of only in the St. Croix and Mississippi; changes the open season for deer from between Oct. 25 and Nov. 15 to Nov. 1 to Nov. 20, and prohibits the selling of deer carcasses at any time of the season. The elimination of spring shooting is said to be at the demand of sportsmen generally.

Winnipeg Line not to be Shortened.

The wall street Journal of New York, last Friday, upon the authority of a high Northern Pacific official, published a statement in regard to what improvements the Northern Pacific was likely to make this year. Among other facts it was stated that the report about an extension from Staples to Fertile, Minnesota, to shorten the Winnipeg line is wrong.

The wall street Journal of New York, last Friday, upon the authority of a high Northern Pacific official, published a statement in regard to what improvements the Northern Pacific was likely to make this year. Among other facts it was stated that the report about an extension from Staples to Fertile, Minnesota, to shorten the Winnipeg line is wrong.

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

WAS NOT GOOD LAW.

Federal Supreme Court Knocks Out the Wagner Fare Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—In the United States supreme court, an opinion was handed down by Justice Peckham pronouncing invalid a portion of the state law of Michigan regulating the sale of thousand mile railroad tickets. The part of the law affected is that providing that these tickets shall be good for two years and shall be sold at a reduced rate.

Justice Peckham said the provision was not the exercise of a power to fix maximum rates and not a fair regulation of the railroads, but an improper interference, the legislature having no right to discriminate, as was done in this act.

The chief justice and Justices Gray and McKenna dissented.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, April 19.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 1 hard, 74½c; No. 1 Northern, 71¾c; No 2 Northern, 68¾c; No. 3, 66¾c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 74½c; No. 1 Northern, 71¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 74½c; No. 1 Northern, 71¾c; May, 72¾c; July, 74½c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 19.

WHEAT—In Store—No. 1 Northern, 72¾c; May, 71½c; July, 73½c; September, 71¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 73c; No. 1 Northern, 72¾c; No. 2 Northern, 70¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, April 19.

HOGS—Market 25¢ lower. Range of prices, $3.60@3.75.

CATTLE—Market active and fully steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.10 for heavys; $2.90@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.00@3.70 for stockers and feeders; $2.10 @3.10 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts—Cattle, 1,700; cattle, 800.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, April 19.

HOGS—Market strong and active. Quality not so good. Range of prices $3.70 @3.85.

CATTLE—Steady and active. Butcher cattle selling at good prices.

Sales ranged at $4.25@4.70 for stockers; $4.10@5.00 for steers; $2.2@3.75 for heifers; $2.00@2.75 for bulls; $2.75@3.25 for cows.

SHEEP—Strong. Everything sold. Sales ranged at $3.75 for ewes; $3.60@ 4.00 for sheep.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, April 19.

HOGS—Market active and strong to be higher.

Sales ranged at $3.75@4.02½ for mixed and butchers; $3.85@4.05 for good heavy; $3.70@3.80 for rough heavy; $3.75@3.95 for light.

CATTLE—Market for best steady; others weak to 10c lower.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.70 for steers; $2.00@4.85 for cows and heifers; $4.60@ 4.80 for Texas steers; $4.75@4.85 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady to a shade lower.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.90 for lambs; $4.00@5.00 for sheep.

Receipts: Hogs, 27,000; cattle, 15,500; sheep, 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 19.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 70¾c; July, 71¾c; September, 74½c.

CORN—April, 34½c; May, 34¼@34¾c; July, 35½c; September, 36½@36¾c.

OATS—April, 26c; May, 26¼c; July, 24½@24¾c; September, 23½c.

PORK—April, $9.00; May, $9.05; July, $9.37½; September, $9.40.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 11@12c; ducks, 10@11c; chickens, 8½c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@18½c; dairies, 11½@17c.

EGGS—Fresh, 12½c

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....60c
No. 1 northern.....59c
No. 2 northern.....54c

—If you wish to borrow money on easy terms see J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

Hood's Pills

Are prepared from Nature's mild laxatives, and while gentle are reliable and efficient. They

Rouse the Liver

Cure Sick Headache, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, and Constipation. Sold everywhere, 25c. per box. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

THE BEST OF THEM ALL!!

LIPPINCOTT'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Contains a complete novel in every number, in addition to a large quantity of useful and entertaining reading matter.

No continued stories, which are so objectionable to most readers.

It should be in every household. Subscriptions taken by agents or sold by the most liberal Subscription plan will be offered.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Publishers, PHILADELPHIA.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3.00 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

MUNN & CO. 361 Broadway, New York

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable. You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,

Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of hundred and seventy dollars ($470.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Oanag and Josine Oanag, his wife, mortgagors, to C. J. Thorson, mortgagee, bearing date 15th day of August, 1896, with power of sale contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of August, 1896, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 32, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south-west quarter of the north-east quarter and the south-west quarter of the south-east quarter, all in section thirty-four township one hundred and forty-three north of range forty-three west, containing forty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston and county and State, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-seven Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty-five Dollars, attorney's fee, stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. J. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 48-52

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.
In Probate Court, Special term. March 29th 1899.

In the matter of the estate of John Provencher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Naida Provencher, widow of said deceased, representing, among other things, that John Provencher, late of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of March A. D. 1899 at the County of Polk died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death leaving goods, chattels, rights and credits in this county and that the said petitioner is the survivor widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be granted to Naida Provencher granted.

It is ordered, That said petition be heard before said court on Friday the 28th day of April A. D. 1899 at 10 o'clock a. m. of the probate office in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, That notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publication as ordered once in each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 29th day of March A. D. 1899. By the Court,

OLE E. HAUGEN,
(1-3) Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Oanag and Josine Oanag his wife, mortgagors, to C. E. Thorson mortgagee, bearing date the 20 day of August, 1896 and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of August, 1896, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book of mortgages, on page 154, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of section thirty four in township one hundred and forty-eight, north of range forty-three (143) west of the fifth Principal Meridian in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Seven Hundred Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Fifty Dollars, attorney's fee, stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 48-52

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 74 illustrations; a work of merit. Price, 50 cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; contains 45 colored life-like reproductions of all leading varieties and 80 other illustrations. Price, 50 cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; the best Poultry Book in existence; tells everything; with 27 colored life-like reproductions of fine poultry, and 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great many chapters of interest to dairymen; with 40 colored and 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchering, Diseases, etc. Contains over 50 beautiful colored and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

The BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original and their equal can never be surpassed. They are not a mere compilation, but are entirely new from cover to cover. Every one who loves a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for you and not a mate. It is 32 years old. It is the great boiled-down, hit-the-nail-on-the-head,—quit-when-you-have-said-it, Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL 5 YEARS (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for A DOLLAR BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

Address, FARM JOURNAL, WILMER ATKINSON, CHAS. P. JEFFRIS. PHILADELPHIA.

Order To Examine Accounts, etc

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss.
In probate court, special term, April 11, 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Mary E. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie A. Cooke, administratrix of the estate of Mary E. Cooke deceased, representing among other things, that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing her account of her administration, and for assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account and petition be heard by this court on Friday, the 5th day of May A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office in Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published in Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 11th day of April, A. D. 1899. By the Court,

OLE E. HAUGEN,
[1-3] Judge of Probate.

THE LAW OF CONTRARIES.

BY GWENDOLEN OVERTON.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

Miss Garrick's blue eyes contemplated the blue Pacific. She took up a handful of sand and let it run through her fingers. Then she made deep, round holes with the point of her parasol.

"Well?" said her brother-in-law.

"I don't know what to do," she said. The melting look and the appealing sigh aroused his wrath.

"That, for instance. Don't do that."

"What?" The eyes were round, guileless and surprised.

"Nor that!" he said. Her brows puckered helplessly.

"What?" she insisted.

"Don't throw those tender, infantile glances. They're enough to drive any man out of his senses."

"I didn't mean to."

"You never mean to. The woman who doesn't mean to is very charming, but about as dangerous as the small boy who doesn't know the gun is loaded. Unfortunately the discharge never blows off her own head."

"I think you are dreadfully cross, Richard."

Miss Garrick pouted and frowned. Her brother-in-law watched her, then shook his head. There was a long silence. Miss Garrick resumed her parasol and wrote "Cat" and "Dog" and "Man" on the sand. But she scratched out the "Man" with an apprehensive sidelong look at the one beside her. He and for all. "I meet them and I am such a vampire, why did you risk it?"

"It is not all because of Mr. Phillips," he said. "It is all because of Mr. Morris and Mr. Trelowney and Mr. Erwin and Mr. Strathmore and Mr. Carter and dear knows how many more. Look here, Edna, how many men have you refused in these three months?"

Miss Garrick shifted her position.

"Ow! My foot has gone to sleep!" she said.

"Never mind your foot. Answer me!"

"What did you ask?" She smiled in sweet inquiry.

"Don't be that on me. I am only your brother-in-law, and I know you like a hook. Answer me!"

"I don't remember exactly. At least, that is"—

"How many?" firmly.

"Well, about—about eight or maybe ten."

"Or maybe ten! An extra broken heart or two don't especially matter."

"Well," she said, with final exasperation, "would you have me marry one of them or all of them without being the least bit in love?"

"No, I wouldn't, but I'd have you encourage them considerably less."

"Encourage them! I never do. It is simply this way." She turned indignantly on him and clasped her hands firmly. She was going to make herself clear once and for all. "I meet them and I am civil to them. I am sure I couldn't turn my back on a man after an introduction and say over my shoulder, 'Go away, do, or you'll fall in love with me!' Then they get to be attentive either by degrees or all at once. Would you have me refuse to dance twice with the same man—I never do more than that—or send back his candy or his flowers?"

"You need not go to extremes, but there is a medium that might be happier for all concerned. You might abstain from languishing, toasting smiles and glances."

"I don't languish, and I certainly don't toast them or anybody else. It's not my fault that I have hahpish eyes and a pretty mouth. I am sure I wish they were as cold as steel and as hard as an old cat's. I'd be a great deal happier." Tears rose in the blue depths. He was only her brother-in-law, but he was likewise a man, and he had to make a desperate struggle not to appear melted at once. She went on: "When I begin to think they are getting too serious, I try to repulse them. I am as cold as ice and awfully civil. Then I get to thinking they must think me a goose and a prude, and I retreat before I advance. So then I am nice to them again, and then—then the crash comes. I suppose it's wrong, but I am perfectly innocent of any intention, and it makes me feel very sorry for them. Do you suppose I like it?"

"I don't suppose anything about it. Only just mind this"—he nerved himself to extreme severity—"Philips is my friend. He is a splendid fellow. He has had a pretty hard set and life, and I will not have you adding one drop to his cup of woe. Do you understand? If you let him fall in love with you and refuse him, you shall go straight home, and your sister and I will be very angry indeed."

He arose and held out his hand to help her to her feet. She stood up and shook the sand from innumerable ruffles and frills.

"OH, DON'T!" SHE CRIED.

"I can't help his falling in love with me—really I can't, Richard—but I'll promise you this—I will not let him propose to me if I can possibly prevent it," which is about as much success as he should have dared to hope for.

In pursuance of her promise Miss Garrick raised her hippid eyes to Philips' face a week later and said with this most beseeching of smiles, that she thought she had better not go out to walk in the moonlight that evening because she had a cold. It was perfectly manifest that she had not. Philips was contentedly incredulous and suggested that she might put on a light wrap. "I have something to tell you," he said. His face was serious.

"Really I can't." She blushed and trembled. "I am sure sure sister wouldn't like it. She warned me to be careful not to—to get any more cold."

"She said nothing to me about it when I suggested it to her just now. In fact, she said you might go."

This was base betrayal. If trouble resulted, it would be on her sister's head. She had done her best. Then she wondered what Philips must think of her.

"Very well. I will get my cape," she said. She had vague thoughts of not returning, but when she reflected that that would only delay the catastrophe she decided against it. "And then besides, how do I know that he means to ask me to marry him? I am so vain." She did not know it, but she was morally certain of it.

They went out into the warm moonlight night and began to walk beneath the palms. The odor of heliotrope and honeysuckle and jasmine was thick in the air.

"I wanted you to come out here where we would be alone, Miss Garrick, because I wanted to tell you"—

"Do you know I think this court is one of the most beautiful spots on earth. Surely only California could produce it. Don't you agree with me?" She chattered madly ahead on the charms of the place. Philips answered shortly and began again.

"I asked you to come out here with me because I had something"—

"Is that some one over there under the date palms, the one near the steps, or is it just a shadow? It is odd how shadows take on human shapes at times, don't you think?" and more in the vein until another tone of the court was accomplished. Philips renewed the attack. Miss Garrick interrupted.

"I think it is chilly out here, don't you? Wouldn't it be wise to go in?"

"No," said Philips, "it would not. Draw your cape closer, and you will be warm. It is an exceptionally mild night. I have something to say before you go in."

"Have you? But tell me first how you liked the hock I banned you." Truly she was making a brave fight to keep her promise, but the strain was wearing upon her. She insisted upon going indoors. "I am almost frozen. Just feel my hands."

"Certainly," said Philips.

Miss Garrick clasped them behind her. "I don't mean that. You can take my word for it, I suppose."

"Of course, but that was not what you said."

"Fancy quoting what a girl did or didn't say, and me especially. I am the most shallow and unreliable of mortals. You can't trust me at all." She felt it was very heroic of her thus to malign herself.

"Really? But are you going to stop talking and let me say what I brought you out here to say?"

She reflected that he was very serious, almost tragic—that he would be unmanageable. He reflected that what he had heard of her was true. She expected men to fall at her feet and sea. When this was finally borne in upon him, he took refuge in the perversity of his sex. He would not fall at her feet; neither would he see. He had meant to do both, but on the instant he changed his plans. He could wait, and in the meantime he would teach her a lesson. He thought it was needed. He drew her arm through his, and she walked weakly to her doom. She saw herself sent home in disgrace, an angry brother-in-law, a weeping sister, and yet another broken hearted lover throwing curses after her, and she was powerless.

"I wanted to tell you," said Philips.

To such a pitch was she wrought that she drew away with a gasp. "Oh, don't!" she cried.

"Don't what? Have you any objection to my telling you that I caught 77 fish today?"

Miss Garrick stood still and drew her hand across her brow. She was dazed.

"I thought"—she began.

"Oh, you thought," said Philips, "that I was going to be the same kind of a fool as all the others and tell you that I loved you after a fortnight's acquaintance!"

"Don't you?" she asked. She was regaining consciousness slowly.

"Yes, but I can wait." The appealing blue eyes looked up into his face.

"Don't wait!" she said, and he did not.

A Little Difference.

Here is a good story of a passage at arms between a well known English woman and the late Sergeant Parry:

"You are Mrs. Georgiana Weldon?" asked the distinguished lawyer.

"No, I am not."

"You don't understand me. I asked you, are you Mrs. Georgiana Weldon?"

"I know you did, and I say I am not!"

"But you are the wife of Mr. Weldon?"

"Yes, I am."

"Then surely you are Mrs. Weldon?"

"Of course I am."

"And is not your name Georgiana?"

"Certainly not."

"What is it, then?"

"Georgina."

"Then why could you not say so at first?"

"Because you didn't ask me."

HEAT; HUNGER; "HELL!"

Three Evils Braved by Shafter's Soldiers on July 2.

WAR AT ITS WORST, THEY SAY

Rotten Spaniards Try to Drive the Victors From the Captured Ridge. General Linares at the Front, Sharpshooting on Both Sides—A Night Attack Repulsed.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

XII.

L INARES' personal part in the Santiago campaign is something of a mystery. The Spaniards seemed to lack an aggressive leader, yet Linares was often at the scene of danger. The Cubans said that he was at Las Guasimas when they exchanged shots with the Americans on the morning of the 23d of June, but the Spaniards told the Americans that General Escario was in command of them during the action with the cavalry on the 24th.

The French officer before quoted said that Linares instructed his men on San Juan ridge to hold on as long as they could and then fall back, a command which is the next thing to ordering a retreat. The conduct of the Spaniards all through indicated that they intended to let the Americans come up to the main defenses of the city if they would. Linares was wounded at a critical time for a counter attack on San Juan ridge and seems to have been preparing for it when hit. What transpired shortly after his fall—that is, on the evening of July 2—indicates that it helped to time Shafter's left flank and ont him off from his base. In point of fact the right flank of the American line was its weakest spot just at that time. It was "in the air." as soldiers say, owing to the failure of Lawton to get into position on the heights on the El Caney road. Strong position, but a weak line to hold it," is the way the cavalrymen spoke of the north part of the ridge which they carried and intrenched, referring to the situation the evening of July 1 and the day following.

Mention has been made of the Ninth cavalry calling for help on the afternoon of the 1st. This regiment, consisting of one battalion, occupied the extreme right, a narrow ridge extending toward the El Caney road, with a Spanish blockhouses and fort only 900 yards away. To that point she machine guns were hurried. Kent also sent the Thirteenth infantry.

A proposition to retreat from its position was discussed in the cavalry division late on the 1st, and it was understood that Colonel Roosevelt, whose rank made him senior on the front line, favored it. Captain Morton, then commanding the Rough Riders, opposed it, saying the place would have to be won again. Captain Houghton of the same regiment, writing to Hamlet, "We have on hold it against all hell!" But supports were needed, and after repeated calls by Morton they came up at 10 p. m. The last call for help was referred to General Wheeler, as commander of the division, the first heard of him by the officers on the front line that day.

The Third cavalry occupied and intrenched a salient on the ridge looking toward Santiago, the point nearest the Spanish trenches and less than 600 yards from them. At midnight the Spaniards opened on that point with a sharp fusillade. Meanwhile the battalions left as reserve on "Kettle" hill had moved to the crest, making seven battalions, or less than four regiments, to hold the ridge from the San Juan road to that from El Caney. A most important part of the line, this was as things stood. Had Lawton taken position on the latter road Kent's division holding on at the blockhouse and south of it, the ridge taken by the cavalry would have been useless to the Spaniards.

There are some grounds for the claim that the cavalry division took the ridge without orders from headquarters. No positive orders like those to Kent can be traced. General Sumner, who commanded the cavalry, says he changed the hill in order to avoid reinforcing the Spanish. The position which the cavalry occupied in the morning of July 1 along the entire line was one to enable it to support Kent in the attack assigned him at San Juan or to help Lawton in the attack on the El Caney road. The testimony of General Wheeler on the 1st of July supports the inference that the cavalry division had no orders to attack in the morning. There is a slight contradiction in the statements of Wheeler and Shafter as to Wheeler's work that day. Wheeler says he was able to act early in the morning; that he conveyed Lawton's orders to Kent to move forward, and also personally told Sumner to do the same, a statement which places Sumner in command of the cavalry and makes Wheeler an acting corps commander. Shafter, on the other hand, says that "Wheeler, the permanent commander of the cavalry division, who had been ill, came forward during the morning and later returned to duty." Among all the orders that day which I traced I found no allusion to Wheeler, until along in the evening, when he established his headquarters at the base of the hill in rear of his own division. Wheeler says that he sent for intrenching tools and ordered his men to intrench, and sent word to them that Lawton would come up on the right, and General Bates' troops from El Caney would strengthen the left on San Juan ridge. This shows that Wheeler was perfectly familiar with ideas at headquarters, for these movements of Bates and Lawton were what Shafter himself had ordered and was expecting at the hour Wheeler refers to, toward midnight of July 1.

As already indicated in these articles, the success of the cavalry in taking the first hill, giving the Gatling and Hotchkiss guns a chance to silence the blockhouse, made Kent's task the easier. As things turned out, it was fortunate that somebody ordered the cavalry to go in.

A word will suffice to carry the story of the cavalry over the 2d of July up to the hour of a night attack by the Spaniards and the second proposition to retreat. A few rations and some water were got up the first night. At daybreak on the 2d the Spaniards opened a fusillade and kept it up all day. The night of the 2d a heavy fusillade began on the extreme left of the infantry division and rolled along in front of the cavalry. In an hour the Spanish were silenced. It is held in the cavalry that General Sumner was then discussing the question of retreat, and the result of the night attack showed that the Americans could hold on.

On the left of the cavalry the infantry suffered from Spanish fire all day the 2d. General Hawkins was wounded that day. It was so hot that men fainted in the trenches, and some of the faint and wounded who were carried over were hit before they could get to cover in the rear. Fairchnrst's battery got into position the night of the 1st at the block house, and at 5:30 a. m. on the 2d opened fire on the city. The Spanish answered with Mausers and artillery, killing one cannoneer and wounding Fairhurst and two men. Lieutenant Altman took command after Fairhurst fell and continued in action until it became too hot, then withdrew. A shell struck one gun, and the wheels were cut up by bullets. Best's battery tried to get into action, but the blaze of fire proved too much for the cannoneers.

The night attack of the 2d was sprung about 9:30 p. m. on the line of Kent-son's brigade, left of Kent's division. Much activity had been noticed there in the afternoon and a Spanish officer of high rank, as shown by his following, was a conspicuous object for some time. It was believed that the officer must be the Spanish commander, and one of the sharpshooters of Parsons's brigade asked General Kent, who was on the line at the time, to allow him to fire. Kent did so, and at the second shot the Spaniard fell. Afterward it was learned that Linares had been wounded on that ground at the time, about 4 p. m. Pearson's men had a hard fight of it all day the 2d. His Twenty-first regiment was in a salient only 400 yards from the Spanish trenches. None of his men dare leave the trenches to cook, and ate their bacon raw. Marksmen with records were picked out to do the firing, and the rest of the soldiers remained quiet under cover. It was one of those sharpshooters who brought down Linares.

The night attack, so called, lasted an hour. Officers in the brigade said that they saw Spanish troops advance from their line and believed that a sortie had been attempted, as directed by Linares before he was wounded. General Pearson says that when his men heard of the proposed retreat the night of the 2d, they insisted on staying on the ground they had won. All the second day on the captured ridge may be summed up as a day of torrid heat, constant Mauser fire upon the men in the trenches and hunger. It was the condition of the men and inability to relieve it which led to talk of falling back to a better line for protracted siege. Two things occurred the night of the 2d to change the situation—first, what was credited with being a Spanish sortie was repulsed; second, the weather became cooler, and, to use an expression common at Camp Wikoff, "there was a better feeling all along the line." Hence the idea of a retrograde was abandoned.

GENERAL LINARES.

(Spanish commander during the battle.)

What little rest could be spared on the 2d from bettering the trenches, getting food and dodging Spanish bullets was devoted to accounting for the gaps made in the ranks the day before. On the 1st Kent's division lost 464 killed and wounded out of 6,080, including details. Its distribution is shown by the following table:

BATTLE LOSS IN KENT'S DIVISION JULY 1.

	Killed. Offs	Killed. Men.	Wounded. Offs	Wounded. Men.	Strength. Offs.	Strength. Men.
Hawkins' Brigade—
9th infantry....	1	13	5	54	32	637
6th infantry....	1	7	3	86	32	632
71st New York.—	2	1	7	47	40	900
Total.....	4	21	15	187	104	2,169
Pearson's Brigade—
12th infantry....	1	4	5	21	32	643
24th infantry....	1	6	6	23	41	643
2d infantry.....	1	4	12	17	30	650
Total.....	3	14	23	61	103	1,936
Wikoff's Brigade—
Commander....
9th infantry....	1	8	—	23	—	625
13th infantry....	2	11	10	51	—	624
24th infantry....	2	10	4	23	—	600
Total.....	5	29	9	117	—	1,849
Grand total.....	12	64	47	365	136	5,954

In Wikoff's brigade the last column of figures shows the combined strength in officers and men. Kent's loss on the 1st was 11¾ per cent. On the 2d this division lost 108 officers and men.

GEORGE L. KILMER.

FREE HOMESTEADS

In Western Canada.

Besides, farmers' sons and farmers interested with home, northern, impoverished soil and crop failures may secure free homesteads of 160 acres in the Canadian West, the Last Best Land. Wheat, 25 to 35 bushels to the acre. Unsurpassed grazing range; special advantages in ranching. The best grain and cattle country in the world. Good water, fuel and climate cool. The Minnesota editors, who recently made the Western Canada trip, speak of it as a new home for small farmers. The official report and maps, with descriptive matter, new Indian Western Canada, free of cost to settlers. While it seems a long way north the Canadian Pacific Railway line is far south of Edinburgh, the climate is that of Northern Minnesota, and the land raises splendid and sure crops."

Address and full information as to rates, etc., apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government Agent,
124 E. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Crookston Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villano, Minn., local agents.

Northern Pacific Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75
MONARCH ROADSTERS $30
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 50 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Monarch Bicycles, Fanny Allison Brantly Tom Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

Polk County Journal,

BY N. S. GORDON.

$2.00 Subscription $1.50 per year in advance

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minn. as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

SENATOR DAVIS, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, was asked to express an opinion on the Samoan rumpus and his wise reply was, "We must be careful and not lose our heads. We must not form an opinion until all the facts are known." His words are commended to all hot heads as those of a statesman and patriot,

WE think the movement made by the legislature, looking to the enlargement of the binding twine plant at the Stillwater penitentiary is a good one. For several weeks Warden Wolfer has had to keeping back hundreds of orders from farmers for binding twine because he already had more orders than he could fill. The consequence is that many farmers will have to buy their twine from private manufacturers and the cost will be much greater than if they had got it from the state.

WE regret to report that the appropriation for drainage did not pass. This is one of the measures which the legislature acted unwisely in refusing to pass. The money was needed and not merely the Red River Valley but the state at large would have been benefitted by this legislation. The members from this section worked faithfully up to the last moment but the opposition led by Jacobson was too strong for them. The honorable Jacobson will, however, hear from this part of the state.

SHAFFER has testified that the refrigerated beef was "perfectly satisfactory" and that the canned roast beef was "not pleasing" on account of the climate. Judge Shaffer really thinks that this evidence of his will at all change the opinion that the people have formed with reference to the beef furnished the army. To us it is only further proof that General Shafter was not in touch with his men and that he knew little with reference to the campaign and its equipments of which he was the nominal head.

ONE JACOBSON, a member of the late legislature, came from the county Lac-qui-parle—the lake that talks. It is possible that he may have imbibed quite freely of the waters of this lake and that in this way we may account for the fact that he has the gift of gab. Like the Scribes and Pharisees of old he is known for his much speaking. At the beginning of the session, like a rocket at first, he appeared to be brilliant, but at the last he came down like a stick. He has attempted to act the part of a bull dozer but to the credit of the legislature, let it be said, they have refused to be bull dozed.

DURING the last two years the number of daily newspapers in the state has increased nineteen per cent but notwithstanding this fact the Honorable Representative Jacobson tried to have the appropriation for publishing the laws reduced 25 per cent. This, of course, was a dig at the newspapers through which alone the people learn of the laws and hence indirectly was against the people. The legislature, however, had the good sense to defeat Mr. Jacobson's little narrowminded scheme. The man qui parle evidently heard the bee of some state office buzzing in his ears, but he is doomed to disappointment. Like Col. Bryan he has talked himself out.

THE new state bank examiner seems to find nothing demanding his attention except the enacting of laws appropriating funds for disbursement at his hands. He has discharged this entire office force and devotes practically all his time to making demands upon the legislature for this, that or the other amendment to the laws relating to the office he holds.—Warren Register.

The appropriation for his department that he asked for was not granted and the legislature has adjourned. What will Mr. Pope find to do now? Possibly he will employ himself in kicking at the republican legislature, which had the sense not to do as Mr. Pope wanted.

THE Younger brothers will not be released. The opposition to the parole bill savored very much of revenge, in fact the bill failed to pass the bill virtually commits the legislature to the doctrine that men are incarcerated that the state may thereby take vengeance upon them and lessen crime in society. Now, while the latter may be one of the reasons why men are put in prison the former never should be. The great purpose that the state should have in placing those who have violated the law in jail is that these men may in this way be taught to be good citizens and when that is accomplished the state's task is done. By those who knew the Younger brothers they were said to be wholly reformed and hence the object the state had in imprisoning them was accomplished. The act of the legislature was reactionary.

THE fighting men of the barbarian Filipinos are equipped with more modern weapons than our own soldiers. How is this Mr. Algor?

HEREAFTER the railroad and warehouse commissioners will be elected directly by the people. While we were not in favor of this change the people seemed to demand it and hence it was perhaps best that a trial be made of the new plan.

THE bill introduced into the legislature through the agency of the people of Red Lake county under the provisions of which Red Lake would have got more money from Polk county than it was agreed at the time of separation they should receive, was defeated in the senate and hence did not come up in the house. We hope that the final settlement between these two counties will now be speedily and amicably made

A BILL was introduced into the legislature providing that the office of oil inspector be placed on a salary basis, but it was defeated. The republicans thought that for the two years during which a fusionist will hold this office he might be permitted to draw the large salary which he gets through fees. This was done notwithstanding the fact that the governor in his message had recommended that the fee system be abolished.

THE legislature has finished its work and on the whole we think that work deserving some commendation. Service has been rendered the state, not merely in what has been done but in what has not been done. Though we do not approve of all measures passed we uphold the legislature in its refusal to pass certain other measures, still we are of the opinion that some credit is due the make up laws. They have been particularly energetic and have kept up with the business in hand.

Notes From Exchanges.

Grand Forks Herald: Briefly summarized, no more wholesomely conservative epoch making years are not to be found in the national learner than the two years now completed under President McKinley, no matter from what point viewed—whether in the industrial strides taken, the glory won by our army and navy, the colossal vantage gained through our many newly acquired and hitherto unprofitable island possessions or in the enhanced national respect felt for us by other nations. To the man, therefore, who has been so largely and loyally a part of the great forward movement of the nation—to William McKinley—a full meed of praise!

Farm Students' Review: The status of the sugar beet in Minnesota may hardly be considered an open question. The season of '98 proved very successful and some very excellent beets were grown. But all seasons are not alike, and a good paying crop of beets is not a moral certainty by any means. There is, of course, no good reason for believing that the coming year will be less favorable than the last one was, but it does seem reasonable to say the sugar beet growing as an industry is hardly yet out of the experimental stage, and it might be well not to risk too much on it just yet.

Red Lake County Courier: The Courier is able to give to our readers this week the news of the early establishment of another state bank in the city. The incorporators will include all local capital, some 10 or 12 of the principal business men taking stock. The capital stock of the new concern will be either $20,000 or $25,000. The preliminary organization is being rapidly pushed along and at a stage now which assures the establishment of his new financial enterprise, the expectation being to be started and transacting business by June 1st.

Austin Transcript: Good drainage is one secret of good roads. As we have traveled in the country during the past few days, we have especially noticed that the only dry and passable roads were where the ditchmen carried off the surface water quickly.

Norman County Index: A bill which will be of great value to farmers has passed both branches of the legislature. It makes the commission merchants under the regulation of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission and requires that such merchants shall keep a record to show details of their transactions and shall give bonds to secure farmers, who send them products, against loss. This is one of the wholesome laws passed at the present session.

Willmar Tribune: A bill which will remove a heavy load of care from the county superintendents of schools has become a law. Hereafter the examination papers of applicants for teacher's certificates will be marked by the state department of public instruction, thus relieving the schools of much of the danger from favoritism which has been so apt when this matter of qualifications has been left entirely to the county superintendents.

Elsewhere.

The Millers, association of Grand Forks has sold the "B" mill and the adjoining elavator at that place to Messrs Breen of Iowa and Remington of Winnebago City, Minn. The property is considered one of the best of its kind in the northwest but has been disposed of by the Millers association in accordance with the plan to go out of business and the sale leaves it with only one mill—that at Crookston—on its hands.

A recent North Dakota experiment station bulletin, devoted to wheat, says that wheat on fall and spring plowing gives an average yield of one bushel to the acre greater on the first. Subsoiling gave 54 pounds more wheat to the acre. Deep plowing gave 3 pounds greater yield to the acre than shallow plowing. Rolling and harrowing immediately after seeding gave an increase of 2 bushels, 11 lbs. to the acre, and increased the net profit $1.25 an acre. Harrowing wheat one week after seeding caused an increase in yield of 2 bushels, and an increase in net profit of 72 cents per acre.

Aleck Cameron, an inmate of the hospital at Fergus Falls, committed suicide last week by strangling himself. This is the second suicide that has occurred at this institution since it was opened ten years ago.

President L. C. Lord, of the Moorhead Normal, has been formally elected president of the Normal school at Charleston, Ill. President Lord's removal is a great loss to the educational interests of Minnesota.

A telephone system will be put in at Red Lake Falls that will be in running order early in the summer. The telephone company is composed of the leading business men of that city.

The village council of Halstad has got after the so-called temperance saloons in a mild way by prohibiting card playing for drinks, and requiring these places to remain closed from 11 p. m. until 6 a. m. They have also required to keep closed on Sunday.

The wolf bounty bill passed the senate. It prescribes a bounty of $5 and $7 a head and also provides that the town clerk may issue certificates, thus doing away with the necessity of carting the carcass off to the county auditor, as heretofore.

The county auditor of Red Lake county announces to the farmers that the state treasurer has apportioned 20 pounds of best sugar seed for free distribution in Red Lake county. Applications for seed will be received up to April 20th, and after that date seed will be equally distributed among the applicants.

Red Lake Falls post office has been made an international money order office.

The Elks of Grand Forks are planning to attend the Elks convention at St. Louis, June 19 and 20 next.

Y. P. C. A.

This organization is one of the youngest in the city but is none the less a very important one. As announced last week the young men have now a regular Y. M. C. A. room located in the McKinnon block. Good literature will be on the tables here and the young men of the city and those who are transient here are invited to call at the rooms and make use of the reading material and also to join the Sunday afternoon religious services. The town ought and undoubtedly will encourage the society.

AUSTIN HAIL INSURANCE CO.

Losses are Always Paid in Full and a Safe Surplus Carried Over.

The JOURNAL would like to call the attention of its readers to the advertisement, to be found in another column, of the Alliance Hail and Cyclone Mutual Insurance Company of Austin, Minn. It is an old, reliable, substantial company. Its plan is approved and recommended by the leading agricultural papers of the northwest. Farmers who have had losses are loud in there praise of the way it has treated them. The Alliance has an enviable record of ten years of honorable dealing with the insuring public, and now as it enters upon its 11th year offers stronger indemnity than ever, and with its guaranty fund of over $75,000 can confidently promise that the losses of its patrons for 1899 will be adjusted and paid promptly, fully and satisfactorily at the time of adjustment. The editor has known this company since its organization and is fully satisfied that it is a solid institution. Farmers insuring with it may rest assured that they will get just what the company promises.

Fergus Falls Journal: It is reported on very good authority that President Northrup, of the state university, has been tendered the presidency of the Iowa state university at a salary of $7,500 a year. President Northrup is being appreciated in a great many places, but all friends of the university trust he is securely anchored in Minnesota.

L. Wade, Chas. Ohler and Joseph Miller of Dugdale began seeding last Saturday.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following are the real estate transfers for Polk county for the week ending April 19, 1899.

J. C. Grennard to Josphine Tardif, lot 20 blk. 7 Crystal & Shelton's sub. div.	$ 200 00
John Flint to Edward Pulkrabek, e ½ sw¼ sec. 32 town 153 range 46	800 00
Francis W. Noyes to Nils Sylvesterson s ½ of e ½ sec. 10 town 149 range 45	5 00
E. M. Walsh to W. C. Dibble west 60ft. of lot 1 blk. 4 Fletcher & Stanton add.	250 00
Almond A. White to Olof Johnson lot 6 & 8 blk. 3 Trull's add. to E. G. F.	1100 00
Mary Lonstor to Charles E. Sawyer w ¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼ sec 2 and nw¼ ne¼ sec 34 town 148 range 43	600 00
Jens Olson to Thomas Olson ne¼ nw¼ and lots 3 and 5 sec 19 town 146 range 39	1200 00
Jesse M. Symons to Olof Omeseth nw¼ sw¼, ne¼ and lot 1 sec 26 town 150 range 45	700 00
Western Security Co. to St. P. N. and M. Ry Co. right of way of the s½ s½ sec 22 town 152 range 44	50 00
Ole G. Rust to Andrew Rust s½ ne¼ ne¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼ sec 1 town 147 range 46	320 00
Geo. W. Batchelder to Annie M. Sylvester ne¼ sec 26 town 148 range 47	1200 00
Charles L. Conger to Tilderman Olson w ½ ne¼ and ne¼ ne¼ sec 27 and s½ s½ sec 34 town 149 range 43	800 00
Ellen Rice to S. A. Lawrence lot 37, blk. 3 Becombe's add to Crookston	345 00
Caroline Rivard to Joseph O. Surprise ne¼ sw¼ and lots 3,4 and 5 sec 6 town 147 range 47	1 00
Ole G. Rust to Even K. Grove s½ ne¼ and lots 1,2,3,4 and 5 sec 1 town 147 range 46	2500 00
Almond L. White to J. H. Glover, lots 2 and 3 blk. 3 Trull's add	200 00
Mary E. Brown to Allen J. and Archie McKinnon Blk. 1 original plat of Crookston	600 00
Joseph O. Sargent to George H. Omeseth ne¼ sw¼ and lots 3 and 5 sec 6 town 148 range 47	1600 00
Andrew Lund to Severin Olhero lot 10 blk. 2 original Mc intosh	83 00
Nellie Cronquist to Bertha Boyce lots 1 2 and 8 blk. 4 north Mc Intosh	800 00
William H. Boyce to Nellie Cronquist lot 7 blk. 4 north McIntosh	200 00
Carsten Hastings to Ossaline Capistran nw¼ sw¼ and nw¼ ne¼ sec 1 town 150 range 47	2000 00
Andrew T. Anderson to Thor Anderson se¼ ne¼ sec 2 and e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼ sec 1 town 147 range 44	661 00
Reebolt Bros Co. to Th. S. Bergseth, sec 28 town 148 range 41	500 00
Nicholas Leisen to Lyman Dinsmore lot 7 in Kimble's out lots to E. G. F.	275 00
Henry Pinsenau to Chester E. Lindsey s½ of lots 1 and 2 blk. 7 Sampson's add	1 00
Olof Omeseth to Chas. E. Lindberg lots 3 and 4 blk 7 Sampson's add	100 00
Clarence St. Louis to Henry Pinsenau lot 15 and 16 blk. 23 Carman	165 00
Theophile Nevaux to Peter Desmarais nw¼ sec. 28 town 148 range 46	1600 00
Gunder J. Nordmarken to Gustav Stjernquist se¼ sec 18 town 149 range 48	1500 00
John Kuspert to Jas. Scott se¼ sec 13 town 150 range 47	2000 00
John C. Johnson to Robert Dawson part of w½ sw¼ sec 21 town 147 range 44	150 00
Christian J. Brothood to Hans T. Norlie lot 9 sec. 29 town 149 range 41	800 00

STATEMENT OF

The First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

As reported to the Comptroller of the Currency, April 5, 1899.

(CONDENSED)

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$367,837.47
Overdrafts	2,233.71
U. S. Bonds	50,000.00
Banking House and other Real Estate	30,139.50
Due from U. S. Treasurer	1,125.00
Cash on hand and with Banks	71,760.01
Total	$523,095.54
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock	$ 75,000.00
Surplus Fund	15,000.00
Undivided Profits	6,497.66
Circulation	50,500.00
Deposits	376,097.88
Total	$523,095.54

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

OF THE

Scandia-American Bank

In the State of Minnesota, at the close of business on the 5th day of April, 1899.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$295,427.60
Other Stocks, Bonds and Securities	1,000.00
Banking House, Furniture	1,000.00
Expenses paid	1,890.54
Taxes Paid	1,218.21
Due from Banks	38,934.83
U. S. Revenue Stamps	40.00
Cash on hand	34,017.46
Total	$373,068.64
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock	$ 50,000.00
Surplus Fund	10,000.00
Undivided Profits	7,359.03
Individual Deposits subject to check	307,262.38
Demand Certificates of Deposit	6,116.38
Time Certificates of Deposit	330.85
Total	$373,068.64

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
County of Polk. }

I, L. Ellington, cashier of the Scandia-American Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Signed,
L. ELLINGTON, Cashier.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
County of Polk. }

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of April, A. D. 1899.
[SEAL] J. O. HAWDON,
Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
A. P. HANSON,
N. S. GORDAN,
Directors.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

In the District Court of the United States, for the District of Minnesota, Sixth Division.

In the matter of Henry Steege, bankrupt.

To the creditors of Henry Steege, of Crookston, in the County of Polk and District aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given, That on the 15th day of April, A. D. 1899, the said Henry Steege was duly adjudicated bankrupt; that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my office in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of May, A. D. 1899, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated April 15th, 1899.

OLE J. VAULE,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

District Court of the United States, for the District of Minnesota, Sixth Division.

In the matter of Burke E. Burke and John E. Burke, co-partners as Burke brothers and individually, bankrupts.

To the creditors of Burke E. Burke and John E. Burke, co-partners as Burke brothers, and individually, of St. Hilaire, in the County of Red Lake and District aforesaid, bankrupts:

Notice is hereby given, That on the 15th day of April, A. D. 1899, the said Burke E. Burke and John E. Burke were duly adjudicated bankrupts; that the first meeting of their creditors will be held at my office in the City of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 1st day of May, A. D. 1899, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated April 15th, 1899.

OLE J. VAULE,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

McIntosh Times: Our base ball enthusiasts have already organized a base ball club with S. H. Drew as manager and Chas. Wood as captain. The new club is said to be composed of excellent talent and supply able to keep up its end with anything in this neck of the woods. An effort is now being made to organize a local league with a view to securing a number of good games here this summer.

The Northern Pacific has chartered the steamer Batchelder to transfer passengers at Mandan until the Heart river flood subsides. Saturday morning the trip by water was about a mile in length.

The Milk river is subsiding and both bridges on the Great Northern have been replaced. Six wrecking trains and between 400 and 500 workmen are on the scene repairing the track as fast as it is uncovered.

PRINTING Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

Tis Said....

And truly stated that talk is cheap. This rule has its exceptions. This little talk you are getting here costs money, hence we shall state facts only.

Don't send to Minneapolis or St. Paul for your spring supplies. A chance to figure on your bill is all we ask. We are much better prepared than ever to fill orders promptly, having a wholesale house at our command enables us to quote very close prices

Bring us your Butter and Eggs and get highest market price

We are headquarters for all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds.

Slocum's Grocery,

ROBERT STREET.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—Don't miss the band concert Apr. 21st.

—Bert Anderson went to West Superior Monday.

—Jas. Rostvolt, of McIntosh, was in the city Tuesday.

—C. R. Snyder and F. Barbour were up from Fertile Tuesday.

—Attorney Cooke of Warren spent Monday night in the city.

—F. O. Syverson is the new bike man at the Klondike store.

—C. F. Peterson of Hallock was in Crookston Monday night.

—A high grade bicycle for sale. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

—J. Grealy of Red Lake Falls is in the city under the care of Dr. Brown.

—A. R. Holston was called to Fosston yesterday on legal business.

—The U. C. T. dance held last Saturday evening was a great success.

—Rudy Rasmusson was a railroad passenger yesterday bound for Benidji.

—One arrest Monday night. Judge McLean gave him one hour to leave town.

—Miss Ida Schrader has begun a spring term of school near Grand Forks.

—J. F. Fleming is located on his new farm that he bought from A. N. Hixson.

—Archie Crawford was over from Grand Forks last Sunday for a short visit at home.

—Mr. Brokaw, city editor of the Plaindealer at Grand Forks, spent Sunday in Crookston.

—Thos. Skor of Fertile has been adjudged insane by Judge Hagen and sent to Fergus Falls.

—S. W. Vance was a Great Northern passenger Monday morning bound for Red Lake Falls.

—H. F. Bosworth was up from Ada Monday visiting with Register Peterson of the U. S. land office.

—The band concert, the last of the season, will be great. Admission 25 cents—reserved seats 35 cents Apr. 21.

—Mr. E. B. Dallon, a bass singer of ability, will sing one song at the band concert Friday night April 21.

—Last Saturday J. O. Sargent sold his farm—a quarter section—in the town of Hammond to G. H. Olmsted of this city.

—D. H. Fisk, one of Fosston's attorneys, was transacting legal business in the city Monday, returning home Tuesday morning.

—Mrs. Dr. Warnlager of Fosston and Fred Rauch of this city left Monday night for Fergus Falls where their mother lies quite ill.

—Mrs. Jas. Siebert, wife of Engineer Siebert who runs on the St. Vincent line, arrived in the city the first of the week and will make Crookston her future home.

—Wm. Benson of Thief River Falls had an operation performed by Dr. Brown and he has so far recovered as to be able to return home.

—Jas. E. Morrissey went out to Red Lake Falls yesterday morning to do some repairing on the boiler of one of the steamers on the lake.

—N. M. Watson of Red Lake Falls and K. M. Hansen of Thief River Falls came up from the Twin Cities Tuesday morning and took the St. Hilaire train for their homes.

—The high school boys have already organized for the base ball season. Frank Waldron was elected manager, Louis Barret captain, Ed Walsh secretary-treasurer.

—Don't fail to hear the "Big Hit March" by the orchestra at the band concert Friday, April 21st. It has only been published one week and is being played by all the city orchestras.

—Miss Christine Lilleboe who for three or four months has been visiting in this city with her sister Miss Lillebo and friends returned Tuesday morning to their home at Park Rapids.

—The last of the series, April 21, Ladies chorus, band and orchestra. Mr. Ballou bass singer and cornet duet, each of which will be an attraction by itself. Admission 25 cents reserved seats 35 cents.

—The private car of Supt. Britton of the Dakota Division was in the yards here in Crookston on Tuesday last. Mr. Britton in company with trainmaster Brainard was looking over the work in this city.

—Albert A. Rivers returned Sunday from the Black Duck River country where he spent the winter on his claim. He has proved up on this claim and will go back to his old work in the machine business.

—Seats for the band concert will be open Thursday April 20 at Tom Morris'. There is always a great rush for the seats and all who wish good seats should not fail to be at Morris' Thursday the 20 at the proper hour.

—D. H. Miller of Angus was in the city Tuesday.

—J. B. Merrill was over from Fisher Tuesday last.

—Tuesday was pay day for the Great Northern employees.

—F. E. LaPage was in Tuesday from his home near Mentor.

—Dr. Smith was called to Euclid Tuesday on professional business.

—Special postoffice inspector Tibbie is expected in Crookston anyday now.

—J. J. Rue, one of Uncle Sam's late soldiers boys was in the city Tuesday.

—Dr. McPhee of Lockhart passed through the city Tuesday on his way to Fargo.

—A. E. Jordan head of the Great Northern detective force was in the city Tuesday.

—Mrs. Horton of Maple Bay was in consultation with Dr. Grendon Tuesday last.

—Ole Hovenhas bought half of the northeast quarter of section 26 in the town of Lowell.

—A. C. Wilkinson was a railway passenger Tuesday morning bound in the direction of Red Lake Falls.

—George Tassna, one of the boys from this section of the country who was at Santiago, was in from Angus Tuesday.

—There is a new barber shop in the basement of the Palace hotel. Ed Kosinel will handle the tonsorial instruments.

—L. F. Clausen, a prominent attorney from Austin, was in the city last Tuesday, and the editor enjoyed a very pleasant call from him.

—Joel Fogelberg and sister, Mrs. Chris Olson, both of Fosston passed through the city Monday on their way to Pelican Rapids where their father, Carl Fogelberg, is lying very low.

—The JOURNAL desires to call attention to the creditable statements of the First National and Scandia Banks of Crookston which statements appear in another column of this issue.

—At the meeting of the Royal Arch Chapter last Monday evening a fine camera was presented by his brother Masons to the Rev. H. M. Green, De Forest Buckler making a very happy presentation speech.

—Last Thursday night the Knights of Pathias received into their lodge the following new members, S. H. Witney, Allan McKinnon, Frank Cremmer, William Anglin, J. W. Wheeler, L. Fontaine and A. Johnson.

—Mrs. Wm. Campton, of Euclid, who returned from the south two weeks ago left again Monday night for San Antonio, Texas, in response to a telegram that her son M. A. Campion, 18, was feared, was dying and not likely to live many hours.

—The bankruptcy case of C. U. Lowe et al which came up before the United States court at Fergus Falls last week was not settled. The Judge will give a decision some time in May. Balver Steenerson of Crookston appeared for the creditors.

—H. P. Solstad, a farmer living in the town of Bygland has had the great misfortune to lose 5 of his horses which had to be shot because they had the glanders. His neighbors have kindly offered to lend him that assistance they can during the spring work.

—Col. Mix who was at Fergus Falls as a witness in a case before the United States court, telegraphed Fred Mix, his son, on Tuesday to bring him down his pocket book. The Colonel insisted that Fred Mix should bring it himself so the latter went to Fergus Falls the same evening.

—Will Hoch and several other Crookston sportsmen have been out in search of wild geese but as their time was limited it was impossible to do much shooting. One must camp out for a week and learn the regular feeding places of the birds before he stands much chance of getting within range of them.

—Judge Watts has issued a writ of mandamus charging County Auditor Gunsaon to pay to Mat Carnelius some where about $1,000 for services rendered. He furnished security for the payment of the funds.

—Judge Watts has issued a writ of mandamus charging County Auditor Gunsaon to pay to Mat Carnelius some where about $1,000 for services rendered. Mr. Cornelius' services as deputy auditor when C. U. Webster was county auditor, or appear before the judge at the opening of court in June and show cause why he should not pay such money.

—Attorney Nat Campbell went over to Donaldson last week with a party of Canucks and was the only man in the crowd that brought down a goose. Speaking of the game law passed by the legislature prohibiting shooting in the spring Mr. Campbell was very emphatic in his denunciation of it. He thinks that the senators and representatives who voted for the measure are entirely ignorant of the whole matter. He is willing to pay $10 for every legislator favoring the bill who has ever shot a bird.

—M. R. Brown left Saturday morning for the woods out east.

—Sylvester Peterson was at his old home, Ada, last Saturday.

—Now is the time for every body to clean up his back yard.

—J. P. Foote transacted business at Warren the first of the week.

—Col. R. A. Wilkinson has sold one of his high bred bulls to J. J. Carey of Beltrami.

—Joseph Smith was looking after insurance matters at Red Lake Falls last Saturday.

—The water works company is putting in a new steel smoke stack at the Power house.

—Prof. Mitchell went out to Fosston and McIntosh last Monday morning to look after his music pupils.

—Judge Watts will hold a special term of court at Halstad on April 22 and 23 for the purpose of issuing citizens' papers.

—Last Thursday evening was the date for the firemen's dance and those who were there had a very pleasant time.

—A new hotel may be built at Maple Lake to accommodate the many people who resort thither in the summer time.

—M. O. Sortedahl left Monday morning for Red Lake Falls where he will in the future engage in the abstract business.

—Mrs. LaBlanchere, after a short visit at her old home in this city went back to Red Lake Falls last Saturday morning.

—H. P. Knappen, of Minneapolis, a brother of C. C. Knappen, editor of the Peoples' Press, reached the city last week. He will act as manager of C. C.'s paper.

—Miss Ellingson and Mrs. Bliss came over from Grand Forks Monday morning. They will have charge of the millinery store that is to be opened in Crookston.

—Lieutenant B. S. Bennet of the 15th Regiment of Minnesota Volunteers that was recently mustered out passed through Crookston the latter part of last week.

—Chas. H. Jacobson, a former employee of the JOURNAL, who has recently been working for the Plaindealer at Grand Forks was in the city Sunday. He went out Monday morning to Thief River Falls.

—The barn next the Salvation Army barracks on North Main street that was the property of M. R. Brown was sold last week to the McKinnon brothers who will use it as a storage room as well as barn.

—The familiar sound of the whistle of the saw mill in South Crookston was heard for the first time this spring at 6 o'clock last Saturday evening. They will begin sawing about six weeks earlier this season than last.

—Dr. Anderson came up from Fertile last Friday morning and found Dr. Smith back with him to assist in performing an operation for appendicitis on a young man by the name of Rindal who lives about 30 miles south of Fertile.

—Messrs Cahoon and Hawes of this city who are in the gold fields near the Klondike region have written that they are now at their claims on McKinley creek and that all is well. They expect to make something finds as everything is favorable.

—Geo. A. Davidson, editor of the Neepawa Register, at Neepawa, Manitoba was in Crookston last Friday. He is a brother of John A. Davidson, a member of the Manitoba provincial legislature. He is looking for a good location and when he strikes one he is likely to come across the lines.

—Brown Bros. have been selling their horses lively the past few days. Sold a fine mare to Will Reitmeyer, a matched span of grays to Charles Wentzel and the heaviest team they brought up, to Ole Kroken. These are fine horses and any one desiring good farm mares should call on the boys at once.

—D. P. Fuller, who has been doing some collecting for the Electric Laundry of this city, was arrested last Friday on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Plumber, the owner of the laundry, charging Fuller with retaining certain money that had been collected. He furnished security for the payment of the funds.

—Last Friday Supt. Wm. Angus of the Warren school and his corps of teachers, consisting of Misses Gibbs, Haven, Solum, Tennyson, Naylor and Fawcett, took a day off and visited the Crookston schools. This was a good idea. It helps a teacher a good deal to watch even for a short time the work of another teacher.

—Service was held in the Episcopal church last Friday evening, Bishop Morrison preaching. As the Bishop had been at Fergus Falls on the morning of the same day he found it impossible to reach here until 8:30 in the evening, consequently he did not meet the confirmation class but will do so when he comes to Crookston the latter part of May.

—J. B. Iren was in from Tabor yesterday.

—Ray Thompson and wife have gone to Wisconsin.

—Mrs. Eva Godfrey of Argyle is visiting in the city.

—J. F. Montgomery was in from Angus Friday night.

—C. Teal Sr., of Euclid, was in Crookston Saturday.

—Dr. W. Hitchcock, of the schools at Fosston, was in the city Saturday.

—P. J. Duffy of the East Grand Forks Courier was in the city yesterday.

—W. H. Verity will have charge of the cheese factory at Gentilly this summer.

—Marcus Johnson came up from St. Paul yesterday and went out to Red Lake Falls.

—Miss Mattie Brown and Miss Dollie Bunnell are visiting in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

—John McLennon and Gower Evans and wife were down from Angus Saturday.

—Col. Wilkinson was in the city Saturday. His family will move here in about a week.

—Harry Ives returned to St. Hilaire Saturday morning after spending the previous night here.

—H. G. Dampier, of Minneapolis, has been visiting here for a few days with his brother Dr. Dampier.

—Prof. LaSore's ladies' class in physical culture had their picture taken last Saturday afternoon.

—The Y. M. C. A. held their first meeting in their new rooms in the McKinnon block last Sunday afternoon.

—A. W. Rankin, state inspector of graded schools, spent Saturday and Sunday in the city going down to Ada Monday night.

—Miss Jennie Milne, of Grand Forks, a sister of Mrs. Harry Finch of this city, had $65 and her gold watch stolen from her office last week.

—H. B. Ayers, of the United States government survey, and G. J. Gloyster state dairy inspector spent yesterday at the Experiment Station with Supt. Haverstad.

—A new brick yard is among the possibilities for Crookston in the near future. Outside capital is coming to see that this city is the place in which to invest.

—A. E. Bates, of Grand Forks, was in the city Saturday on business and to see how things were getting on with the Ray Mercantile company in which he is a stockholder.

—Mrs. Thos A. Adams left Crookston last Saturday for West Superior where she will make her future home, will also determine the next place of meeting: President, S. A. Challman, Detroit; vice-President, Miss Ellen Reed, Moorhead; treasurer and Secretary, Carrie W. McCauley, of Cauleyville.

—Mrs. Adams having recently been transferred from Melrose to West Superior.

—The baseball season was opened last Saturday afternoon with a game of ball between two nines made up of youthful sports. The score ran high showing that there was considerable batting done.

—"Doc" Hodgdon who has for years been connected with newspaper work in Crookston has joined the Cass Lake Times force and will assist Judge Ives and Ben Strawbridge in their new enterprise.

—The dairy industry of Minnesota is on the threshold of a great future, as evinced by the keen appetite that the students of the Schools of Agriculture have for information on dairy work when they enter each fall.

—Will Martin informs the JOURNAL that Crookston is going to have a crack base ball team as usual, though there will be no paid players in the aggregation, the nine being made up entirely of local base ball cranks. The organization will be formed in a very short time.

CLEVER SPARRING.

At Open House April 25, Prof. La Sore and Geo. Vine Will Put on Gloves.

At the athletic exhibition to begiven April 25, in Crookston there will be a friendly sparring match between Prof. La Sore and George Vine. This will be a clever contest where physical strength will permit any manto strike him on the pit of the stomach, a feat he claims no other man can perform.

—Mrs. Riggs will play a piano solo at the band concert Friday evening April 21.

Yesterday the saw mill in south Crookston did a little work, chiefly to test new machinery. Next Monday the full night and day force will be put on.

—The Hendrum bridge across the Red River floated into Halstad last Monday. The Shelley and Climax bridges are also gone. The bridge at Halstad is still safe.

—The Polk county commissioners met at the court house in Crookston yesterday. A complete report of the proceedings will appear in next week's issue of the JOURNAL.

—The ladies of the Congregational church will hold a cake sale at Shuman's grocery store on Robert street next Saturday, April 22. They will have on sale nice cake, rolls and receipts. Sale to continue till everything is sold.

—Cashier Ellington of the Scandia bank returned this morning from Forest City, Iowa where he has been visiting a sister who was quite ill but is now improving. On his way back he called upon another of his sisters who lives at Brace, Iowa.

—A farmer living in Marshall county reported to have committed suicide. He was alone and it was noticed by the neighbors that his stock was neglected. On examination of the premises he was found dead and the indications were that he had come to death by his own hand.

Seeding Begun.

The farmers are astir these days and affairs on the different farms are becoming quite lively. Beforethis issue reaches our subscribers most of the farmers will have begun seeding. R. A. Rose in the town of Fairfax began last Saturday and Ed. Roberts in the same town and L. S. Hancock of Euclid began planting seed on Monday.

Too Warm for him.

George Wareham was seen again on the streets of Crookston last Friday morning. For the past month or more he has been at Hot Springs Arkansas taking the baths. He reports his health much improved, having gained several pounds while away. The south, however, he does not like and was glad to get back home. While he was at Hot Springs a shooting affair occured at which several officers of the law were killed Life is held too cheap there to suit him.

Officers of Teachers' Association.

At the close of the two days' session of the Northwestern Teachers' Association Saturday evening at the High school, says the Moorhead News, the following officers were elected, and these will constitute the executive committee for the next year, and they will also determine the next place of meeting: President, S. A. Challman, Detroit; vice-President, Miss Ellen Reed, Moorhead; treasurer and Secretary, Carrie W. McCauley, of Cauleyville.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES.

Have Been Made Out by President O'Brien—Complete List Below.

Nowadays in any organization most of the work is done in committee room; hence the importance of selecting the right men for the right kind of work. President O'Brien announces the following council committees:

Finance—Allan McKinnon, Louis Ellington, E. D. Chiles.

Poor—G. S. Chesterman, T. G. Thompson, A. McGregor.

Streets and bridges—T. A. Harris, A. G. Anderson, E. C. Davis.

Sewers—E. D. Childs, F. M. Brown, Jas McKinnon.

Printing—T. G. Thompson, E. C. Davis, G. S. Chesterman.

City hall—Louis Ellington, A. G. Anderson, Allan McKinnon.

Fire department—F. M. Brown, A. Harris, A. McGregor.

PROF. LASORE'S EXHIBITION.

Ladies' Physical Culture Class will Swing Indian Clubs—Other Exercises.

On Tuesday evening, April 25th, Prof. LaSore and his proteges will give an athletic exhibition in the opera house that promises to be very entertaining. The ladies' class in physical culture will gracefully swing the Indian clubs, the men will give an exhibition of club swinging, work with the dumb bells, sparring and bag punching and Prof. LaSore will himself perform some of his wonderful feats. Those who fail to go will miss an instructive and entertaining evening. The effort on the part of Prof. LaSore to build up the physical caught to be encouraged. In these days too little attention is being paid to the development of the physical man.

Cedar posts 12½ cents each at S. C. Johnson's feed store. 1-4t

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

A STEEPLE CHASE.

Chris Hoch's Team Makes a Flying Leap Over Finch and Smith's Dray Horses.

Four horses lying in a heap in front of Finch and Smith's wholesale house yesterday afternoon about 4:30 drew a large crowd. Ready hands soon extricated the animals from their entanglement, but Finch and Smith's team was somewhat cut up, one horse in particular being quite lame.

It all came about in this way: Charley Moeckel and Will Hoch were all ready for a shooting expedition and had started out with Chris Hoch's team. On Fletcher street near the Central house one of the animals began kicking, got one leg over the tongue of the carriage and then away they ran. Mr. Moeckel was driving so Mr. Hoch jumped, but as the unbridled team turned on to Main street at the JOURNAL corner, Moeckel was thrown out. On they dashed like Ben Hur's wild Arabs. In front of the warehouse and cross-ways of the street stood Finch-Smith's dray team. The runaways were unable to turn quickly enough to avoid this team so they attempted to leap over them. with the result as above stated. The dray team was crushed to the ground. Hoch's horses, however, coming out on the far side. Thetongues of both carriage and dray were broken. Had Hoch's team not leaped the pole of the carriage would undoubtedly have been driven into Finch-Smiths nigh horse. Noone was hurt.

CROOKSTON SCHOOL DISTRICT.

Sampson's Addition now a Part of City District but will help pay Carman School Debts.

H. F. 514, a bill that is of particular interest to Crookston, passed the legislature during the closing hours of the session. By its provisions Sampson's addition of this city is detached from the independent school district of Carman and attached to the city proper, of which district for many years it has to all intents and purposes been a part, the school there having been under the supervision of the city superintendent.

By an amendment added shortly before the bill's passage Sampson's addition is held for the indebtedness of the Carman district but exempt from the indebtedness of the city district.

Now that Sampson's addition is actually a part of the city school district, is not the next logical step the getting of the Carman district within the same fold? Would it not be better for all concerned for all the schools of the city to be under the supervision of the one city superintendent?

Births.

POOLE.

On Thursday, April 13, to Mr. and Mrs. C. R. G. Poole a boy.

OLSON.

On Friday, April 14, to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Olson a girl.

ROBERTSON.

On Tuesday, April 18, to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Robertson a girl.

Weddings.

NESNE—RALPH.

In the province of Ontario, Canada, at Hamills' Point, Mary Ruth Ralph to Hans Nesne. The bride is a sister of Geo. A. Ralph of this city. Ernst Nesne of Fosston will be their future home.

VOGEL—SPETTEL.

In the cathedral at St. Paul H. J. Vogel of Crookston to Miss Spettel of St. Paul. Mr. and Mrs. Vogel will make their home in Crookston.

VOGEL—RUPPERT.

At St. Paul on Monday, April 17, A. Vogel to Miss Tracy Mc. Ruppert, both of St. Paul. Mr. Vogel is a brother of H. J. Vogel, express agent on St. Vincent line.

O'NEILL—FEE.

Norman house, Wednesday morning, April 19. Ed O'Neill to Miss Fee, Father Murphy performed the ceremony. Last evening a merry wedding party gathered at the Norman and feasting and dancing were kept up till a late hour.

Deaths.

BRACE.

On Friday, April 14,at Great Falls, Montana, Frank Brace. Mr. Brace was at one timemaster mechanic of northern division of the Great Northern.

PASHLEY.

On Wednesday, April 12, at Thief River Falls, Harry Pashley. Brain fever was the cause of death. He leaves a wife and two children. His funeral took place on Sunday.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

TIME CARD
—OF—
TRAINS.
Crookston

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep's
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:27 pm	8:37 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	8:30 am	8:20 am

O. A. STARKEY, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

The state legislature adjourned Tuesday.

The German Evangelical association will hold a world's convention next fall in St. Paul.

Judge Wood, of Minneapolis, died Sunday at Hot Springs, Ark. He has been in ill health for some time.

President D. H. Bacon of the Minnesota Iron company will take up his residence in Duluth next month, moving from Chicago.

George Ferguson has been arrested at Iron River on suspicion of the murder of Frank Noggle, whose body was found near Grand Rapids.

Judge Thayer, in the United States circuit court of appeals, in re Duluth Gas and Water company, holds that taxes are a paramount lien.

Governor Lind has signed the new wolf bounty measure, which increases the reward from $5 to $7 in winter, and $3 to $5 for summer wolves.

Warden Wolfer of the state penitentiary has returned another $10,000 to farmers who had ordered binding twine after the supply had been exhausted.

Marine men claim that the ice in Duluth harbor that has disappeared has not blown out, nor jammed up against other fields, but has sunk to the bottom of the inlet.

Privates Charles Hill, Company M; Charles Canley, Company D, and Corporal Kelliher, Company E, Thirteenth regiment, are among the wounded reported by General Otis.

Andrew Nelson, superintendent of schools at Benson, has been appointed assistant to Superintendent Lewis. He is a young man and a graduate of the state university. The appointment will not take effect until the end of the school year.

The John Paul Lumber company of La Crosse, Wis., has purchased the remaining lumber of the Youmans Brothers & Hodgins mill of Winona, amounting to about 3,000,000 feet. This practically closes out the Winona concern's lumber interests.

The sons of Philip Anderson, a farmer living near John O. Green's lumber camp, in the vicinity of Hinckley, found some bore medicine in the stable at the camp on Sunday, which they drank. Their death occurred soon afterward. One of the boys was 12 and the other 10 years of age.

The Minneapolis and St. Louis has decided to resist the railway commission on its order fixing a division of rates to be charged for the transportation of coal from Duluth to New Ulm. The road holds that the commission has no right to dictate the division of rates between connecting lines.

Julius J. Heinrich, state oil inspector, has sent to Governor Lind the following names of new deputies for the governor's approval: J. G. Herring, Anoka; J. H. Reigel, Tracy; J. M. Hanley, Waseca; J. E. De Haven, Maple Lake; Martin Sorenson, Willmar. There still remain a half dozen deputyships to be filled.

William Dean, who succeeded in swindling Minneapolis and St. Paul wholesale houses out of no fewer than 50,000 packages of cigarettes, was arraigned before Judge Simpson at Minneapolis on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, and entered a plea of guilty. The police located him in Kansas City, where he had been engaged in similar games.

Pardon was granted at a meeting of the prison board to Herman Smith of St. Paul. He has served 3 years of a 10-year sentence for grand larceny. He must report every 60 days for 5 years. Conditional pardons were also granted to Frank Wysocka of Stearns county, sentenced for assault, William Haggerty of Blue Earth for grand larceny, and Harrison Todd of Itasca county, who killed the destroyer of his home.

Labor Commissioner McHale has received a statement from Factory Inspector Alfred McCallum of the Duluth district. The inspection covered 134 factories and jobbing houses employing 2,707 men, 326 women, and 361 boys and girls, making a total of the district of 3,068. Of this number 1,793 put in 10 hours per day, each day, 108 work 12 hours, 520 work eight hours, and 647 9 hours daily. The Duluth jobbing houses employ 546 men, the coal docks give employment to 332, and the foundries use 281 men.

VERY LOOSE INSPECTION.

Minnesota Legislature Grain Investigating Committee Makes Its Report.

St. Paul, April 18.—The joint senate and house committee appointed Jan. 5 to investigate charges of corruption and favoritism in the grain inspection department has submitted its report to both bodies.

The committee finds the following from the evidence produced:

1. That the grading of wheat has not been uniform; that prior to the month of October, the new crop of wheat had not been graded solely on its merits, it being the policy of the inspection department to give lower grades than later.

2. That the system of appeal from the inspector's decision is impracticable and of little benefit.

3. That it appears that some of the inspectors have been incompetent or careless.

4. That the weighing of the grain at the terminals is carried on in a loose manner.

5. That the farmers suffer a heavy loss by shipping uncleaned wheat, and by loading wheat into dirty and unsweep cars.

No reasons have been produced by the department of inspection in the testimony taken before your committee, to convince this committee that the system in vogue in the department can result in anything but a dead loss to the producer.

P. SAXE, [illegible]

MANY BILLS SLAIN OR LEFT

BIENNIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED

In the Small Hours of Tuesday—Hard Fight on Sugar Bounty—Large Part of the Day in the House Was Given to Discussing the Subject.

St. Paul, April 18.—The senate adjourned at 2 a. m., leaving 60 bills in the air. The house adjourned an hour later. Sixty-three bills were passed up. A third of the time of the house was spent in a vain attempt to get the Bate bill, repealing the sugar bounty law, from the committee on general legislation. This move was attended by all sorts of filibustering tactics and was finally ended by the senate passing the Roberts bill, limiting the bounty to $30,000 per year.

In amended form the omnibus bill was put through the house, and the bill declaring the tax levy for the next biennial period passed. The tax levy bill followed upon the heels of its general appropriation brother and was immediately passed under suspension of the rules. The rate is made the same as two years ago—1 5-10 mills for all general purposes.

The Miller rate resolution, directing the railroad and warehouse commission to general terms to consider the oppressiveness of certain freight schedules, was passed.

The anti-trust bill was amended to apply only to trusts hereafter established in this state and passed.

Most Important House Bills

Appointing a commission to settle the claim of the Twin City Jockey club.

Authorizing the incorporation of companies to loan money to indigent persons at 7 per cent per month.

Fixing the rate of interest to be paid by banks on state deposits at 2 per cent.

Providing for the certifying of testimony before the railroad and warehouse commission to the trial of cases in court.

Prohibiting the erecting of fences for the purpose of annoyance to owners of adjoining property.

Making wife responsible for debts of husband for household expenses.

Providing for the sale of property on which taxes are delinquent in and prior to 1897.

Providing for a state board of electricity and examination and licensing of electrical workers.

To authorize cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants to issue bonds to purchase lands for state institutions.

SENATE'S LAST DAY.

Best Sugar Bounty and Normal Schools Hold the Floor.

Sugar bounties and normal schools held the floor of the senate during a good part of the day. The sugar bounty bill was first killed—28 to 31. At the afternoon session the vote by which the bill was lost was reconsidered and the bill passed—34 to 24. At the evening session the house amendment making the bounty $4.25 per ton was agreed to.

The report of the conference committee on the omnibus appropriation bill was adopted and the summer sessions at state normal schools were done away with by a vote of 39 to 14. The bill was then adopted by a vote of 38 to 16.

The house bill to reduce the oil inspector's fee from 15 to 7 cents was reported adversely. From committee and the report adopted.

The McKusick bill to allow the publication of legals in foreign languages was killed.

The amended anti-boycott bill received eight votes.

The Marin peddlers' license bill failed.

The Argetsinger bill, carrying $162,000 for graded and rural schools was passed.

Some of the Bills Passed.

To prevent the adulteration of white lead and mixed paints.

For the free education of certain students of the University of Minnesota who enlisted in the United States army for the war with Spain.

To provide for the encouragement of the live stock interests of the state and to appropriate money therefor.

To prevent the use of chemical agents as preservatives in milk, cream, cheese and butter.

To create and provide for a system of traveling libraries, and to promote the establishment of free public libraries and to create a state public library commission.

Providing for leasing the elevator site now owned by the state at Duluth to the Grain Growers' Co-Operative association of Minnesota.

To enable counties, towns, cities and villages of this state to use automatic ballot machines at all elections therein.

Relating to the alternation of the names of candidates on election ballots.

Shortly before adjournment Governor Lind sent to the senate, and they were confirmed, the nominations of Aron S. Pins of St. Paul, vice Henry A. Castle, resigned, and Walter S. Westmoreland of Steele county, vice John A. Gilman, term expired, as trustees of the Minnesota soldiers' home.

THE NATION'S POLICY.

Discussion Of the Question the Last Work of the Minnesota Senate.

St. Paul, April 18.—The last session of the senate was marked by a lively discussion of the policy of the administration in the Philippines. The question came up on a report of the committee on military affairs recommending that no action be taken in the matter of the return of the Thirteenth Minnesota now in the Philippines, the subject having been brought to the attention of the legislature by a message from Governor Lind saying the boys desired to return. The Democrats, with the exception Senator Johnson, opposed the report and the administration, while the Republicans were unanimous in their support. After a number of speeches from both sides the report was adopted.

BOB'S TEMPTATION.

It was generally admitted by the members and friends of the Cambero football club that the fact of there being reached the final stage of the Blankshire cup competition was due in no small measure to the superior cool keeping of Bob Templeton, and it was believed that his individual prowess would just about turn the scales in favor of the Cambero in the final tie against William Rangers.

Bob Templeton was a fine, well built young fellow, and his popularity in the town was as much due to his good natured, happy disposition as to his value in the football field. He had signed for five years with the Cambero club on advantageous terms and the present was his second season.

Since his advent he had taken unto himself a wife—pretty May Dunning, the daughter of old Jack Dunning, the club's professional trainer, and the guide, philosopher and friend of the members—and had furnished a neat little villa, half a mile out of town.

But at length the inevitable cloud appeared on the hitherto clear horizon of his existence, and on its eve of the great match Bob was in sore trouble.

He was seated in the comfortable little parlor at home, his untouched breakfast before him, and staring blankly at a legal looking missive he held in his hand, while pretty May was crying softly at his elbow.

The document was from the Cambero Loan and Discount bank, and stated that unless Robert Templeton remitted the sum of $300 by the following Monday a certain bill of sale would be acted upon forthwith.

Previous to coming to Cambero he had supported his father and mother, and even since his marriage had contributed to help them with weekly remittances, until, six months ago, he heard that the good will of a small business in his native town was for sale cheap, and believing that it would be a very thing for his parents, he set his heart upon purchasing it for them and thus relieve himself of a responsibility.

Four hundred dollars was asked, and, in view of his improved income, he felt justified in raising the amount with his furniture as security.

Bob made his way to the imposing office of the Cambero Loan and Discount bank. The manager gave evasive answers. Bob begged for a time, but was refused, and after telling the manager what he thought of him in language more forcible than polite, left the office more convinced than before that there was some undercurrent in the affair which he did not understand.

On leaving the bank Bob had not proceeded far when a hearty "Good morning, Templeton!" and a sounding smack on the shoulder arrested his progress, and before him stood a portly, loudly dressed, much bejewelled individual, well known in Cambero as "Colonel" Bill, the bookmaker.

"You don't look up to the mark, Templeton," observed the colonel. "What's the matter? Shall you be all right for tomorrow?"

"Of course," returned Bob. "I'm a bit worried about a private matter; that's all."

"Your natural modesty, Templeton," went on the colonel, "should prevent you being aware that the club look to you as the leading factor in their prospects of success. I presume?"

"I know nothing about that," answered Bob. "But I do know that the Rangers won't get the better of the Cambero net may timen if I can prevent them."

"You could, if you'd a mind, be the cause of Cambero losing tomorrow," suggested the colonel, glancing at his companion.

"What do you mean?" returned Bob, wondering what the other was driving at.

"Now, look here, Templeton," said the colonel, facing round, "we'd better come to the point at once. I stand to win a pile of money on my book if the Wilmer Rangers beat Cambero tomorrow, and you are the man who has the best chance of bringing about that, from my point of view, desirable consummation. I know what your little private worry is about, for I may as well tell you I myself practically constitute the Cambero Loan and Discount bank, although few people are aware of it. Now, it would be a simple matter and no one would be any the wiser for you to let one or two of Williams' shots pass you. Anyhow, in a word, if the Rangers Pearl became panic stricken, explaining that it was a piece of extravagance on her part, and that she had expended on this piece of goods, which she could not possibly use before next fall, a large part of her weekly allowance. She likewise declared that she was afraid to take a home lest her husband should upbraid her. Accordingly, she agreed to leave it with Mrs. Nuwed for a day or two, until she could arrange for a home. And this is how Mrs. Nuwed came to cover her neighbor's goods. By the time Mr. Nuwed came home to dinner she had inspected that piece of "broadcloth" at least a dozen times, and with each inspection her desire to possess it became overpowering.

So when Mr. Nuwed, tired and hungry, did arrive he was treated to a rhapsody on this particular piece of "broadcloth" and was silently voted an unfeeling brute by his gentle spouse because he preferred corned beef and cabbage to contemplation of a piece of cold beauties. After dinner and with lighted cigar between his lips he assumed a judicial aspect and proceeded to examine the cloth. Mrs. Nuwed displayed it in all lights, draped it over her shapely person dress wise and expatiated upon its beautiful gloss, its great width and its eminently desirability as a spring gown. Then, of course, she explained how she "really had nothing to wear," which was something of a revelation to Mr. Nuwed, who recalled some recently paid dressmaker's bills and could not remember having seen his spouse in the role of beauty unadorned. However, like a wise husband, he said nothing on this score and contented himself with trying to tear the cloth, after which he decided that it was pretty good stuff.

This was really all he knew about dress goods, but he argued from the standpoint of common sense that there must be something more about a man's selling goods at less than cost. Incidentally it may be mentioned that Mr. Nuwed had been bitten by one of those Cuban cigar peddlers, although, of course, he kept this fact secret from his wife, but it served to cut his eyeteeth, and he applied the lesson to the "broadcloth" peddler. According to his diagnosis, the man was either a smuggler and liable to the law or a thief, in which case Mrs. Nuwed might be relieved of the goods by the police, if not suspected of receiving stolen goods, or a plain everyday fakir, with a new version of the Cuban cigar game.

Neither of the first two arguments appealed to Mrs. Nuwed, for by that same barbaric trait of femininity already mentioned the sex seems to delight in a slight flavor of lawlessness. As for the insinuation that it might be a "phony" piece of goods, Indeed she declared she would trust her own eyes against any would be swindler. Accordingly she proposed the next day to make overtures to Mrs. Pearl for the purchase of the goods, and the last Mr. Nuwed could do was to persuade her to take a sample of it to some reliable store to be tested.

Accordingly the next morning Mrs. Nuwed sallied down town with a piece of the coveted goods in her pocket. She felt a guilty sensation every time she passed a policeman, and hid the sample in her deepest pocket lest it should prove a clew. She went to the store where she usually does her trading and under pretense of trying to match the sample presented it to the clerk.

"Oh, yes," said the clerk, "we have this goods, although not in the same grade."

Mrs. Nuwed glowed with a feeling of conscious superiority.

"What is the difference?" said she.

"Well, ours is 60 cents a yard; this seems to be an inferior piece, and you can buy it for about 39 cents a yard."

"Well, what kind of cloth is it?" faltered Mrs. Nuwed.

"Flannel, just plain black flannel," answered the clerk, "but it seems to have been glossed on one side. They do that with a hot iron and some kind of preparation to make it look like broadcloth."

That is why Mrs. Nuwed did not get her bargain, and why Mrs. Pearl in making the "broadcloth" up into horse blankets.—Washington Post.

Wisconsin Town Burns.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., April 12.—Two stores, four dwellings, a hotel, livery barn, saloon, two icehouses and 120 cords of wood burned at Lynxville, this county, last night. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

Well dressed men and women wear

Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes.

For Style Comfort and wear they lead

Ask for them!

One Way to Kill a Snake

Just how this beautiful young woman killed the venomous snake forms an interesting description in John Backus's charming story.

They That Sit in Darkness

It is a story of the Australian Nevermore. It is full of exciting incident and at the same time supplies a great deal of information about the romantic life of the adventurous people who sought fortunes in tropical Australasia. John Mackie wrote "The Devil's Playground" and "Sinners Twain," both interesting stories. This is another.

"They That Sit in Darkness" will appear in installments in this paper.

Look Out for the First Chapters

M. M. S. POULTRY FENCING

is thoroughly interwoven but has long horizontal wires, while fences of other makes have short upright wires.

A FENCE, NOT A NETTING.

Like a fence. Runs in properly stretched and erected with few posts and without top and bottom rails. Has cable selvages and a cable running through the fence every foot. Each roll contains the famous M., M. S. trade mark.

Other styles for every purpose. Catalogue free.

CABLED FIELD AND HOG FENCE with or without lower cable barbed. All horizontal wires are cables.

STEEL WEB PICKET FENCE Ideal fence for lawns, parks, cemeteries, etc. Steel posts, posts, etc. Everything steel. Catalogue free.

DE KALB FENCE CO., 100 High St., DE KALB, ILL. Pat. July 6, 1897. Pat. July 6, 1897.

FOR SALE BY FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

THE Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED

Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our foursection harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,

AUSTIN, MINN.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE! Send name on a postal for 156 page illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG? It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our

STERLING GRADES OF SEEDS

are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. It's mailed free on application. Our seeds are sold by leading merchants.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. OSSO GROWERS. Osso Brand stands for the best quality obtainable.

A GARRISON TANGLE

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING

AUTHOR OF

"FORT FRAYNE." "TRUMPETER RED." "AN ARMY WIFE." "NOBLE BLOOD."

COPYRIGHTED 1898 BY J. Thompson Neely

CHAPTER XVIII.

Once more was the old post of Fort Russell left to the care of an infantry guard. Once more were the troopers all afield and rejoicing in the vigorous, open air life they led among the billowing foothills, the beautiful, sheltered valleys and the sparkling streams of the Big Horn. A summer camp had been established, and with this as the rendezvous and rallying point Atherton was keeping his stalwart horsemen scouting far and near, from the Platte at Fetterman to the Yellowstone away to the north. But Indians were seldom to be found. Sitting Bull and his starving followers were beyond the British line, closely watched by the frontier police. Crazy Horse was dead, ingnominied in wild effort to escape from his guard. Gall, Rain-in-the-Face and other notables of the Sioux Nation had fled for their ancient grudge against the white soldier whose Custer's hapless column withered away before the fierce blaze of their encircling fire.

It was a holiday summer for the —th, a veritable picnic in the heart of the glorious country over which for two years previous they rode only with strong battalions, with scouts thrown out in front, in rear, on every side, looking any instant for attack in force. Some of the ladies had actually broken up housekeeping at the fort and gone those rough hundreds of miles in army limbulances to join their lords in the tented field, and life at Russell was in one and stupid.

But when Jo Mallon drew away and sought the shelter of the ambulance with "hustler" and the horse thief begun to infest the land. One night a dozen of Gregg's best horses—all of Sergeant Donnelly's patient—were spirited away from the bivouac at the headwaters of the Mini Pusa and driven, as the trail showed, away toward the Sweetwater and there it was all split up and lost among the breaks and ranges of the cattle kings toward Rawlins and Rock Springs. Gregg boiled over with wrath when three days later, nearly worn out, his little squad of troopers reached the main camp afoot. Ray's troop was ordered out at once and bidden to raid the country far and wide until he found out where those horses were gone, and Atherton chose Ray because stockmen, cattlemen, scouts and Indians all knew him, and malefactors feared him, and with Ray's troop went Maynard, detached at his own earnest request and allowed to fill a temporary vacancy.

"It will be good, Maynard," said the colonel kindly, "and give you some valuable experience. Yes. I'm glad to have you go."

It was mid-July. The summer heat was fierce and the scorching wind blew pitilessly over the desolate sagebrush deserts beyond the Devil's Gate, and Ray and his 10 loyal troopers rode and ridden long marches from the time they left the cool shades of the Piney and the Clear Fork. But little cared they, those Arizona seasoned soldiers, for blistering sune or stifling alkali dust. They were keen on the recovery of those horses and matter though the thieves had three days and nearly 100 miles the start. They had mastered through the dreary water valley the previous year and had won many a hard-riding skirmish when loungingly syed their clean limbed have. No man yet had ever ventured to "lift" a horse from Ray's picket, and it tickled the vanity of his troopers that they and not Gregg's should be sent to recover Gregg's horses. The trail though nearly five days old when found, was still distinct, and Maynard was getting many an item of valuable lessons, for Ray had taken more than a liking to the quiet, and for good young fellow and had no difficulty as he and deeply interesting him in the work. Everybody in the command seemed to know by this time that he had returned to them wearing the willow for Natalie Rand. There had been some days of woeful, wordy battling at Russell, for the feud between Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Turner had involved others besides their lords, and Atherton was glad of the order that sent the whole command into the mountains and foothills and far away from the snarls and tangles that beset the garrison life at the fort. Turner's grim, sad, sallow face grew longer than ever, and even more than ever did he seem to withdraw from the society of his fellows. He, too, was thankful to get away from the post and into the field.

Up to the time the last of the regiment marched from Russell no trace had been found of the runaway burglars, but their duped accomplices, Michael and Bridget, had not. Both were soon found guilty of complicity at least and were "doing time" at Laramie. All doubt as to how the fire started was set at an end. The generally accepted theory was that when Mike threw away the match with which he lighted his cigar it dropped, still glowing, in the dust close to the basket in which Bridget kept her kindling. The fierce draft through cracks and crevices fanned its feeble glow into a blaze as the precious pair left the premises. The blaze had reached the timber. The basket of chips was soon afire. The flames leaped to the table, the dry, rough boarded partition and then the brushes lamp of bristle glass, filled with highly inflammable grease, and that, bursting, deluged the woodwork with liquid fire. This was the explanation accepted by the duly organized board of survey. Everything connected with the excitement of the springtime, firestorm, was recalled, but one person especially settled, except the perennial squabble in which Mrs. Turner was a factor and the question of Nathelie Baird's relationship to the lamented Boston, who had disappeared as though from the face of the earth.

They were talking of that very matter low, were Ray and Maynard, the day they forded the Sweetwater and struck out for the southward hills. Maynard couldn't understand, he said, how men dared run off with cavalry horses, because the U S brand on the shoulder would stamp them at once as stolen property.

"Why, bless your heart, Maynard," said Ray, "that's no bar. Stealing government property is no crime in Wyoming or anywhere else on the frontier. Besides, all they've got to do is to touch up that brand a little, and the U S becomes O S or a roadstool or some other equally transparent device. But no jury ever convicts a citizen of stealing from Uncle Sam, out in these parts at least. Why, it's a feather in the cap of those fellows to run off our stock, and the gang that did this trick were no novices, nor were they in number."

And that night proved the truth of Ray's conjectures.

Just before sunset away in among the jagged hille and ravines that hem the Sweetwater valley on the south the dust begrimed troop halted and dismounted, while Ray held brief converse with the pioneer of the party, a "one of whom the captain knew. He had served his time in the old regiment and, in common with most of the other "old hands," would do almost anything for Ray; but how his tongue was tied. Oh, he had seen nothing, heard nothing! No horse thieves had been thereabouts. His partner was sure of all these points also, and even if they had seen or heard it they would be signing their own death warrants to tell. No, neither man could give any information.

But Ray's dark eyes never left the ex-soldier's face. He read a secret there and was watching his opportunity. It came quickly and while the partner was talking a long, long pull at Ray's proffered flask.

"There's a camp of 'em right in on the Sawbrae that must somewhere about five miles ahead—seven or eight men and shoot a dozen horses—some of yours, sir," whispered the veteran, and the captain nodded expressively.

At 9 o'clock, despite the long day's march, Ray's men were up readily into saddle again, and away they went, every trooper guessing that the quarry was somewhere among those heights to the south and wondering were they like their old time foemen, the Indians, to ride hards to a man. The moon came floating into the starry sky from behind the shoulders of old Laramie, and those Arizona seasoned soldiers, for blistering sune or stifling alkali dust. They were keen on the recovery of those horses and matter though the thieves had three days and nearly 100 miles the start. They had mastered through the dreary water valley the previous year and had won many a hard-riding skirmish when loungingly syed their clean limbed have. No man yet had ever ventured to "lift" a horse from Ray's picket, and it tickled the vanity of his troopers that they and not Gregg's should be sent to recover Gregg's horses. The trail though nearly five days old when found, was still distinct, and Maynard was getting many an item of valuable lessons, for Ray had taken more than a liking to the quiet, and for good young fellow and had no difficulty as he and deeply interesting him in the work. Everybody in the command seemed to know by this time that he had returned to them wearing the willow for Natalie Rand. There had been some days of woeful, wordy battling at Russell, for the feud between Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Turner had involved others besides their lords, and Atherton was glad of the order that sent the whole command into the mountains and foothills and far away from the snarls and tangles that beset the garrison life at the fort. Turner's grim, sad, sallow face grew longer than ever, and even more than ever did he seem to withdraw from the society of his fellows. He, too, was thankful to get away from the post and into the field.

Up to the time the last of the regiment marched from Russell no trace had been found of the runaway burglars, but their duped accomplices, Michael and Bridget, had not. Both were soon found guilty of complicity at least and were "doing time" at Laramie. All doubt as to how the fire started was set at an end. The generally accepted theory was that when Mike threw away the match with which he lighted his cigar it dropped, still glowing, in the dust close to the basket in which Bridget kept her kindling. The fierce draft through cracks and crevices fanned its feeble glow into a blaze as the precious pair left the premises. The blaze had reached the timber. The basket of chips was soon afire. The flames leaped to the table, the dry, rough boarded partition and then the brushes lamp of bristle glass, filled with highly inflammable grease, and that, bursting, deluged the woodwork with liquid fire. This was the explanation accepted by the duly organized board of survey. Everything connected with the excitement of the stories except in case of Indians. Like as not we'd stir up some sheriff among those fellows and he'd spring the law on us. We're no posse comitatus, but rounder's our horses all the same." Just dismount, you men, till the moon gets behind that cloud," he continued, at which the foremost troopers noiselessly slipped out of saddle, and all the long column followed suit.

Then, dismounting, Ray and Maynard knelt beside the dying man.

Ten minutes later, as noiselessly and circling well away from the holsterons camp, the troop stole away from the shadowy cloud, and moved up the darkening cloudes, rode easily around to the southern side. Here a dozen men dismounted, and, following Sergt. Maynard, crept softly forward, and, speaking in low, reassuring tones to the nearest horses of the little herd, went swiftly from one to the other. Each one recognized as a government "property" was quickly secured by a lariat loosely knotted about the neck, and the transfer of what the captain called "stawk" took to the care of their old mesters was well nigh complete when out peeped the moon again. A mule set up an raucchy bray, a dog barked furiously, and some straggler from the band of revelers gave one wild yell of warning, instantly followed by a cry "Cavalry, by God! Look out, fellers!"

There was a rush for the horses, a volley of oaths and execrations, a scramble for saddles and a show of six shooten, but above all the uproar one voice furious and merciless, rose dominant.

"Curse your traitor hides! This is your doing, Boston." Then followed a shot, a shriek for help, another shot, and then, above all, Ray dashed forward into the thick of the throng.

"Stop this!" he commanded. "Stop, or, by God, we'll take a hand. Stop up the troop, Maynard. Grab that lunatic, some of you."

But with a spring like a cat the "lunatic," his pistol still smoking, threw himself astride a cow pony and dashed away into the darkness. Some of the gang ran for their horses and followed suit. Others, stupefied, stood gaping up at Ray. Others still were bending over a groaning, prostrate form. The firelight fell on the pallid, distorted face, and Maynard knew it at a glance. Here at last was Nathelie's tormentor. Here, shot to death, lay Natalie.

A word from Ray had sent a dozen troopers in pursuit of the murderer. Another word, and those who remained, stunned and half sobered, were surrounded and held by another squad of blue shirted troopers. Rough yet tender hands bore the stinking man closer to the fire and gave him hurried help. Maynard misemably up one moment, searching their faces as though in hope of some word of encouragement, and his eyes met Maynard's. He knew him instantly, and his face, heading now with the sweat of agony, took on an unforgiving look. He strove to speak, and one of his fellows turned and said:

"He want's to say something to you gantlemen."

Then, dismounting, Ray and Maynard knelt beside the dying man.

"They've killed me," he almost sobbed. "They knifed me at Chadron, mouths ago because I swore I'd have no part in that robbery. I've been a curse to all of my people, but I wasn't that mean. I was mean enough, though, to know—and—and—I took poor girl and —at Russell. She was my cousin. She did all she could to save me—to make a man of me—She even borrowed money —to lend to me, but I've saved over a hundred—I'd have paid it all it God had—let me live. It's—all in that silk bag—round my neck. Lieutenant, you are a square man—I'm sorry I ever hurt you, but I had to or get caught—under his window. I wouldn't bring harm to her—for the world. Shake hands on it, lieutenant, and promise me you'll give it to her—that money—all I've got. Shake."

And with his twitching hand in the firm grasp of the young soldier Boston died.

Another week, and with their recaptured horses Ray and Maynard were again on duty with the regiment and under orders for home, but before the move began there came tidings that involved a change in the personnel of the old regiment, and one it could not well spare. Barry received his promotion to a lieutenant colonelcy, and a new number planted in silver over the crossed sabres of his forage cap. It was hard to lose this true hearted, courteous soldier and gentleman from the —th. It was hard to think that Mrs. Barry would not again return to them, for one and all, men and women both, they knew her influence for good and deplored their loss. There were quite a number, therefore, who received the further news that came with something akin to gratification—the other regiment would not get the Barry after all, for Mrs. Barry's health would not admit of her going to the extreme north, and, knowing this and needing a new inspector general just then, a distinguished division commander asked that the recently promoted lieutenant colonel be assigned to his staff duty, and the war secretary was pleased to say, "Aye." The summer at Sea Girt had been of benefit to both Mrs. Barry and Natalie, especially the latter, who was beginning to look wondrously well again, wrote Mrs. Barry, and apply, musing happy. "You must come and see for yourself, Mr. Ronald Maynard," she wrote, and that was something he longed and very warrior meant to do the moment the summer's work was done and he could get the longed for leave of absence.

Very sad and touching, but grateful, were the letters that came to him from the sorrowing household—Henry Williams' kindred, in the placid New England village—yet even those letters breathed something like relief from a long threatened shame. It was as though the foul taking off of that reckless, ex stained wanderer had lifted from their hearts a load of anxiety and dread.

Then there were Grace's letters, so changed from all the old possessive, adoring, not to say boastful, assertiveness that used to come to him. Grece felt her fall from grace far more keenly than her stubborn pride would ever let her show. Grace maintained, to herself at least, that her course was justified by the circumstances and that Maynard must have been justified in Ronald's eyes for Gertrude's cruel, nearly unpardonable and incomprehensible defection. Had she but remained faithful to her schoolgirl fondness for Ronald he would have been in honor bound, and over the resultant dovecot would Grace have hovered, as was her right, self ordained and guardian angel. But with Gertrude the case to help there was an end to any semblance of obligation on Ronald's part.

She had faced him unflinchingly when at last brought to bay and told that she had concealed from him the fact of Gertrude's engagement. She admitted it and declared that it was her wrath at Gertrude that prompted it. She had felt that surely out of pique because of Ronald's indifference the girl had temporarily taken up with another admirer, but that it was nothing more than a fancy from which Grace could soon be won once again she recognized her way at home. But Grace had been away too long. The young man had begun to stay, and stayed of her former vassals had declared independence.

And so, with both her former subjects in revolt, Grace's power over them grown even narrower, sadder then ever. With her lover lost because she had failed to do his brood over the past and bewail the present. People, good, churchgoing neighbors in the town she had left to die but brood over the past and bewail the present. People, good, churchgoing neighbors in the town she had left to die but brood over the past and bewail the present. People, good, churchgoing neighbors in the town she had left as imbittered and morbid and to upbraid her in all kindliness of spirit because she bowed, she asked, "it is so" and know his sister was very ill—and he'd been sent for?"

"I am still very lately, Nat."

Without ever throwing off her hat and gloves the girl was again on her knees and gazing searchingly into the face on the pillow.

"He did—to Major Barry. I can't call him colonel yet. You know he had written to me from before, and even by my own directions only comes"—

"His only wrote when he sent poor Harry's old silk bag with aunty's picture and—that hateful money. Where did he write from?"

"From her home. She is very ill."

"Then he won't be coming here?" And the blue eyes were blanding pleasingly one minutes, then the light in their snowy lids the next.

"I don't see how he can be—coming, Nat."

The bright color faded from the rounded cheeks and left them piteously white.

"He has been lovely to you, Nathalie," murmured her friend, gathering now the restless little hand as it found its way into hers. "If he should want you to do something for him—you vanished his life to save yours—who would have a right to heed rescued your good name, too—would you do it?"

But here the portiere began violent and unseemly commotion. Natalie's head was bowed and she couldn't see. Mrs. Barry's eyes were blinded and she wouldn't see them if their snowy lids the next.

"I don't see how he can be—coming, Nat."

The bright color faded from the rounded cheeks and left them piteously white.

"He has been lovely to you, Nathalie," murmured her friend, gathering now the restless little hand as it found its way into hers. "If he should want you to do something for him—you vanished his life to save yours—who would have a right to heed rescued your good name, too—would you do it?"

But here the portiere began violent and unseemly commotion. Natalie's head was bowed and she couldn't see. Mrs. Barry's eyes were blinded and she wouldn't see them if their snowy lids the next.

"What could he ask of me now—after—" faltered the girl.

"What can you refuse him?" said Mrs. Barry, a teasing little smile playing about her lips. "It isn't much—provided I go too— It's to ask to see his sister."

Nathalie sprang to her feet. "I don't believe"— she began indignantly. "You never were unkind to me before—Mrs. Barry." The words came in big sob. The tears came raining from her bright blue eyes. Mrs. Barry's arms were outstretched—her heart was filled with dismay and compassion in an instant.

"Nathalie, Nathalie, I shouldn't have teased. I was unkind. I never knew it meant so much. Forgive me, dear one. There, there, don't cry. Run into the parlor. You'll find the letter there somewhere—or something that'll tell you all you want to know."

And as the girl, half sobbing still, hastened from the room in came Maynard, all dismay.

"The door was locked. I couldn't get through. I had to stay. I had to hear. Why, didn't you see the portiere swaying?"

"Never mind," smiled Mrs. Barry. "he's past my comforting. Go quickly and help her find that letter or that—something."

Nathalie had searched the desk and mantel. She was rummaging for the button of the electric light as he reached the arched doorway. The heavy curtains fell behind him as the bright, sudden glare responded to her touch, and whom she turned to renew the hurried search she saw him, barely arm's length away—no, it could not have been that far, for despite her struggles, her furious blushes, her fluttering hears and panting breath the little cry, half fright, half joy, with which she greeted him died on her lips—and his.

THE END.

It's Easy To Take

Thin, pale, anæmic girls need a fatty food to enrich their blood, give color to their cheeks and restore their health and strength. It is safe to say that they nearly all reject fat with their food.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

is exactly what they require. It not only gives them the important element (cod-liver oil) in a palatable and easily digested form, but also the hypophosphites which are so valuable in nervous disorders that usually accompany anæmia.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is a fatty food that is more easily digested than any other form of fat. A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health. You can get it this way

We have known persons to gain a pound a day while taking it.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has taken higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new century than has the ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is done by the ablest some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which is the only unbaffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.— From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can obtain patents in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with descrip-tion. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free.

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASH. D. C.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SOME WERE BRIBED

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE FINDS CHARGES TRUE.

Investigation Was in Relation to the Senator-at Election and the Jury Will Prosecution Is Favored—House Directs That Criminal Action Be Brought and Vigorously Pushed—Nine Persons Named Against Whom Sufficient Evidence Has Been Found—Quay Conspiracy Case.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 18.—Majority and minority reports were reported to the house from the committee which has for several weeks past been investigating the charges of attempted bribery in connection with the balloting for United States senator and the considerations in the house of the McCarrell jury bill. The latter bill, which was even tamily defeated, was said to have been introduced to aid Senator Quay in his then approaching trial in the Philadelphia court.

The majority report recites at considerables length testimony taken by the committee and says the evidence disclosed clearly that undue means were taken by many persons to corrupt ly solicit members of the house for the purpose of Influencing Their Official Action.

In reference to the McCarrol jury bill and in reference to their official action as to the election of an United States senator.

This corrupt solicitation, the report says, consisted of offers of money, position, advantage and political preferment. The report charges that in furtherance of an unlawful conspiracy to carry out the schemes rooms were maintained at the Lochiel hotel. In the concluding paragraph of the report nine persons are named against whom the committee recommends that legal action be brought. This paragraph is as follows:

"In conclusion, your committee respectfully reports that there is, in their opinion, sufficient evidence against Charles B. Spatz, John R. Byrne, Parker Titus, Frank B. Jones, Monroe H. Kulp, Thomas M. Moyles, Robert Evans, John J. Coyle and M. J. Costello, for this house to direct that against them in the courts of quarter sessions of Dauphin county, and it is recommended that these proceedings be immediately commenced and vigorously prosecuted by the authority of this house."

Criminal Proceedings Be Brought

Spatz is the present a member of the house from Berks county and is a Democrat. Kulp was a member of the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-sixth congresses from the Seventh Pennsylvania district and is a Republican. Coyle, Costello, Byrne and Moyles were formerly in the legislature. Some are Democrats and some are Republicans. The majority report is signed by five of the nine members of the committee, Messrs. Fow, Dem., chairman; Dixon, Dem., and Kounts, Randall and Young, anti-Quay Republicans.

The minority report is practically the same as the majority as far as the findings are concerned, but differs on the recommendations made.

QUAY'S TURN NOW.

State's Case Against the Senator Shaken by the Cross-Examination.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—The defense had its innings during the day in the trial of Senator Quay and it made the most of its opportunity. Expert Accountant Meyer Goldsmith, the commonwealth's witness, was under a scorching fire of cross-examination all day, and the result of it justifies the opinion that the network of evidence wrought by the prosecution from the books of the broken bank tending to show Senator Quay's guilty participation in the unlawful use of the bank's money was very much shaken by the admissions the witness was compelled to make. Nearly all the apparently damaging entries attached to Senator Quay's name or account in the bank as testified to were explained away or greatly modified by the statements of the commonwealth's own witness. Lawyer Shields got from the witness the admission that if Hopkins had

Properly Credited Quay's Account

with amounts that belonged there the book would show that at the beginning of the alleged conspiracy, Nov. 17, 1896, the senator owed the bank only $236 instead of over $20,000, as alleged. Taking up the allegation that Senator Quay had borrowed $135,000 during the "settlement" period ending Oct. 18, 1897, the last settlement before the bank closed, Mr. Shields forced from Goldsmith, piece by piece, the admission to show that in nearly every instance the amounts charged to Senator Quay were really loans to other persons, politicians mostly, for whom Quay endorsed. Where there was a definite loan to Senator Quay the repayment was clearly proven. In this connection it might be well to say that District Attorney Rothermel claims that he has clearly established the fact he started out to prove, namely, that $90,000 of the state deposit in the bank was set aside for the use of Senator Quay, and whether he used it himself or loaned it to others is not material in proving the conspiracy.

WILL BE AGAINST DREYFUS.

Court of Cassation Said to Have Reached a Decision.

PARIS, April 19.—It is rumored that the court of cassation, encouraged by the ministers, who desire to meet the chamber of deputies with a well defined situation, will dispense with the proposed confrontation of General Roget, Colonel Picquart, M. Bertulus, the magistrate, and other in order to hurry its decision before the chamber meets.

It is further asserted that the court's decision will be that none of the facts justified revision which the court will accordingly reject.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, April 13.

The Wisconsin assembly has passed a bill increasing the taxes on railroads.

Former Congressman James Williams is dead at Smyrna, Del., aged 79 years.

Spaniards in Cuba have formed a political party and will work for annexation.

The Third Nebraska volunteers have arrived at Savanaah on the transport Logan.

The British steamer Moncna, which sailed from Sydney Wednesday for San Francisco, carried £150,000 gold.

A comparative statement of the gross postal receipts at 50 of the largest postoffices for March, 1899, as against the same month of the preceding year, shows that the total receipts were $4,119,040, an increase of $328,793, or 8.3 per cent.

Friday, April 14.

Congressman Laird of Louisiana' is very ill.

Five North Dakota soldiers were killed by Filipinos in ambush.

Dr. Minton Warner, professor of Latin at Johns Hopkins university, has accepted the Latin professorship at Harvard.

The Samoan commission will sail for Apia on the United States naval transport Badger, leaving San Francisco on April 20.

The war department has decided to make four departments of the island of Cuba. Heretofore seven different provinces have been departments.

There is a great rush of young Finlanders for the United States to avoid the recent decree of Emperor Nicholas regarding Finland, which provides for an increase of the Russian military and naval forces. Nearly 1,000 have reached Hull, England, en routs, in the past few days.

Saturday, April 15.

H. Cochens of Wisconsin has broken the intercollegiate test strength record.

An election is to be held June 19 to elect a successor to Congressman Dingley of Maine.

A row has broken out among the Chicago-St. Paul roads which is likely to culminate in a rate war.

The original rolls of the Cuban army have been delivered to General Brooke and payment will begin immediately.

General Joseph Wheeler was at the White House and told the president that he desired active duty in the Philippines and if not assigned to active duty will resign.

Fred de McKinley has received a dispatch from Dr. Schurmann at Manila, saying the proclamation recently issued by the insurgent party, the Filipinos visiting the commissioners express their desire to become citizens of the United States. They also declare that Aguinaldo's government is tyranical, and that many natives are deserting from his standard.

Monday, April 17.

The Raleigh of Dewey's fleet has arrived at New York.

General Otis, it is said, is planning a new movement against Aguinaldo.

German-Americans will form a national organization in opposition to an Anglo-American alliance.

The congressional committee on monetary legislation will meet at Atlantic City, N. J., this week.

The duke of Arcos, former Spanish minister to Mexico, has been appointed minister to the United States.

Mr. Bryan is organizing a new party for the Dakotas and aims to prevent Tammany being represented in the next national convention.

Arrangements have been completed whereby President McKinley will push an electric button which will start work on the San Pedro, Cal., breakwater on April 26.

Tuesday, April 18.

Vice President Hobart continues to improve.

Hostile Indians are to be recruited for the army.

Sir Lambert Price, Bart., the author and soldier, is dead.

Six Cuban villages have been raided by bandits who killed several persons.

Lieutenant General Correa, chief of the queen regent's military household, is dead at Madrid.

The military governments of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines have been given instructions designed to promote the material welfare of the people.

Robert Lowery, formerly of Davenport, Ia., twice member of the Iowa legislature and Centennial commissioner from Iowa, is dead at Huron, S. D.

General Rios, the principal Spanish commander in the Philippines, has telegraphed to the Spanish war office confirming the report that a rising has occurred among the insurgents around Manila.

Wednesday, April 19.

May Hempstead won the Tennessee Derby by a length, Chancery second, Leo Planter third.

Fourteen men were killed by a premature explosion of a blast on the railway from Bilboa to Santander, Spain.

Experiments in this country cause a belief that the Marconi system of wireless telegraph will soon be in general use.

It is reported that the decision of the court of cassation in the Dreyfus case will be that none of the facts justified revision of which the court will accordingly reject.

Andrew Carnegie has promised to give $7,500,000 to cover the cost of the proposed additions to the art, science and library departments of the Carnegie library, Pittsburg.

It is said that a combination of all the tile companies of the country is in progress of organization, the new corporation to be called the Enecastic Tile company of America, and to be capitalized at $7,000,000.

DAKOTANS IN AMBUSH

CAUGHT IN A TRAP AND FIVE KILLED AND TWO WOUNDED.

Unexpectedly Run on a Nest of Rebels Well Protected From Attack—Natives Have Concentrated Near Pasig Since the Abscess of Lawton's Expedition. Latter Now Returns to Manila, Having Accomplished the End in View—No Cessation on Account of Rainy Season.

MANILA, April 15.—General Lawton is marching north along the roads between the hills and the lake, with the gunboats Napidan and Laguna de Bay abreast of his troops. The enemy is retreating northward.

On Wednesday the troops crossed the Pachanjan and concentrated at Lanchona, at the mouth of the river. After leaving two companies of the Fourteenth regiment to guard the entrance of the river, the troops marched to Longgas and found it deserted.

Major Weisenberger's sharpshooters were sent towards Pietos Ascontenca in the afternoon. They ran upon a nest of rebels in some thick bushes, which afforded a splendid cover. Five men of the North Dakota regiment were killed and two wounded, two of the former dying after having been brought to Longgas church, where Father McKinnon administered the sacrament to them. The main body of the American troops, while at dinner in Longgas, heard the firing and advanced to the Support of the Sharpshooters.

The Lagnaa de Bay, at the beginning of the fight, shelled the hills, making them too hot for the enemy.

The Americanas entered San Antonio at sunset without meeting with any resistance. Twenty mounted prisoners, bearing copies of the United States Philippine commission proclamation, which they had somehow secured, were afterwards released and sent outside our lines with bundles of the proclamation to distribute.

The Fourth cavalry is guarding Santa Cruz. Two companies of the Fourteenth regiment are at the mouth of the river, two are at Pasig and two at Lamlam, and one of the Fourteenth regiment and four of the North Dakota regiment are at San Antonio. The remainder of the troops are at Loagas. General Lawton is on board the Laguna de Bay.

Americans Capture Passanghan.

Starting in on easterly direction along the road to Passanghan a force of 60 sharpshooters, under Lieutenant Southern of the Washington regiment, came upon a trench across the road about a mile out of Santa Cruz. Lieutenant Southern was wounded first. The Americans then advanced with the mounted guns and the Fourteenth infantry battalion in the center, Lick's battalion of the First Idaho infantry on the right and Rainer battalion of the First North Dakota on the left. The trench was carried without loss to the Americans, Passanghan was found deserted.

One Filipino was killed and five wounded in the encounter beyond Tuanges. Eight men of the North Dakota regiment, moving in single file through the woods, received a volley from a clump of bushes not far away, and but one got off unhurt. He dragged off a comrade with four bullets in his body to the main force and then led the whole body of troops back to the scene of the ambush.

FILIPINOS IN FORCE.

Have Concentrated Near Pasig During the Absence of Lawton's Expedition.

MANILA, April 17.—During the absence of Major General Lawton's expedition to the Santa Cruz district, on the southeastern side of Laguna de Bay, the insurgents have been concentrating at the northern end of the lake, near Pasig, and the American scouts report that several thousand are already there.

Major General Lawton's expedition to the Laguna de Bay district, recembarked Sunday evening, anchored for the night at the head of the Pasig river and reached Manila Monday morning, bringing all the men and the captured insurgents boats. Its objects, namely the capture of the insurgents boats and the distribution of the proclamation throughout the lake region, have been attained.

General Lawton immediately began preparations for an important operation on land. There has been no fighting on the lake for three days.

General Otis regards the situation here cheerfully, and feels that with the work already done and that which he expects certainly to accomplish, the rebels will eventually be subdued forever. He said:

"The insurgents are moving eastward, and will soon be in the mountains. There they will become merely a band of robbers and they will fight among themselves.

"We shall not stop our operations because of the rainy season. The rebels are counting upon a cessation of hostilities on our part, but we intend to keep right on."

Rev. Thomas of Peoples Church, Chicago, Declares Himself.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Rev. H. W. Thomas broke down the barriers of restraint in the Peoples church and expressed himself a believer in socialism.

"The subject has caused me more mental and spiritual struggle during the last three years than any other, but the voice of duty, love of country, of man and God called me down," he said to his congregation in McVicker's theater. "The one solution that I can see in the future is some form of cooperation, some form of mutualism. It does not hurt me if you call it socialism."

From the galleries there came an answering thunder of applause. There was a silence in the body of the church and in the boxes, broken only here and there with a slight ripple of handclapping.

"Want of Watchfulness Makes the Thief."

Many cases of poor health come from want of watchfulness. But if you keep your blood pure no thief can steal your health.

The one effective, natural blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It never disappoints.

Impure Blood—"Five years I suffered with pimples on face and body. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me permanently. It also cured my father's carbuncles." ASAHEL R. CRARY, Tustin City, Cal.

Catarrh—"Disagreeable catarrhal dropping in my throat made me nervous and weary. My liver was torpid. Hood's Sarsaparilla corrected both troubles. My health is very good." MRS. EUNICE F. SMILEY, 171 Main St., Auburn, Maine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS UNION.

The Young People's Religious Societies of Four Churches Combined.

An important meeting as touching upon religious work in Crookston was held at the Baptist church last Friday night. The members of the young peoples societies of the Methodist, Congregational, Baptist, and Presbyterian churches were gathered here and the four societies were united in one organization with Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson, president, Miss Evelyn Hall, vice-president, Loren Wilde secretary and W. H. Amos, treasurer. It is the intention to hold meetings out and do work that the several societies have not been doing, such as charity visiting, the jails, the hospitals, looking out for the poor and the oppressed, etc.

This was one side, but the social side was not neglected. As each person entered the door he was given a card with a letter and a number on it. The letters both together formed the names of a large number of bicycles. These bicycle groups, so to speak, got together and each had to write some verse in praise of their particular wheel and a prize was given for the best stanzas. What they wrote was read aloud and very amusing. Next came some of the efforts. Excellent music, both vocal and instrumental, was furnished.

The members of the new organization will meet tomorrow night in the parlors of the M. E. church to formulate further plans.

Harrows

There are quite a number of Harrows on the market. Some are good, some fair and a good many very poor. It will pay you to carefully look them all over and buy a good one. We have the old style BOSS that has been sold for years. Arms are riveted--not nailed--at each tooth, have steel teeth and two good coats of paint. . . . . Then we have John Deere's best Harrow, steel frame, U bar with their patent tooth fastener that hold the tooth solid so it can't get away, but at the same time admits of its being turned readily to the use of all four edges, or remove them to sharpen. We have sold these Harrows for about 15 years and our increasing sales each year shows they are well liked We have them in all sizes and shall be pleased to sell you.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or Mcintosh. LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

George Q. Erskine, President. J. W. Wheeler, Cashier. Wm. Argyle, Vice-President H. Henderson, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits. Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Argyle, J. R. Robinson, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK, OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.
Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON, ... PRESIDENT. H. STENDERSON, ... VICE-PRESIDENT,
N. S. GERVAIS, ... 2d VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON, ... CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston, ss.

Notice is hereby given, That applications for license to sell intoxicating liquors in the County of said City of Crookston, and filed in my office, praying for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on May 15th, 1899 and terminating on May 14th, 1900, by the following persons and at the following places as stated in said applications respectively, viz:

Ross and Olson, in southeast room of two story frame building situate on lot 6, block 2, in block 14, outside of Cameron addition and City of Crookston.

John Bergquist, all of first floor of two building situate on lot 16, block 6, in Fletcher Bros. addition to the City of Crookston, fronting on Main street.

O'Reilly and Hall, all of first floor of two story frame building situate on lots 24, 25, 26, 27 and 28, in block 16, in original townsite of Crookston, and fronting on Second street and known as the "Board of Trade."

Thomas and Stewart, in the one story frame house, situate in lot 13, block 23, townsite of Crookston, and fronting on Ash street, and Main addition, which said several and determined by said Common Council, the City of Crookston at the regular meeting in the City Hall in said City of Crookston in Polk County and State of Minnesota on Monday the ninth day of May A. D. 1899 at 7:30 o'clock P. M. that day.

Witness my hand and seal of said city this 20th day of April, A. D. 1899.

WM. A. LACOUNT,
City Clerk.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

PHYSICIANS

A. A. Just M. D.
HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office in McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn

ATTORNEYS

H. Steenerson,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
Office: O'Dpera Block Crookston, Minn.

Miller & Foote,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Offices, corner Broadway and Robert streets, Crookston, Minn.

HORSES FOR SALE.

About 100 head of well-bred mares and geldings, weight averaging about 1150 pounds, good, solid colors, fifteen yearlings in the bunch. Will have them at Billings on N. P. and B. & M. railroads on or about May 1st. Will sell for $25 per head, cash. Address,

ROBT. LEAVENS,
Billings, Mont.

51-52

Read This The Best Yet

The Old Reliable

HAIL AND CYCLONE MUTUAL INSURANCE CO., OF AUSTIN, MINN.

Pays Cash for all Losses at Time of Adjustment. Rates Low. Adjustments Prompt and Liberal

No Other Mutual Company can Duplicate this Offer.

TENTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

ASSETS
Certificates of Deposit	$18,000.00
Loans	26,131.60
Cash in National Banks	31,370.27
Accounts Receivable	727.92
Assessments on 1898 notes not yet received	7,226.08
Gross Assets	$83,466.87
LIABILITIES
Unpaid Losses	None
Accounts Payable	$ 678.64
Total Liabilities	$ 678.64
	678.64
Net Assets	$82,788.23

REFERENCES:—Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis; Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa; Scandia American Bank, Crookston, Minn. H. Crook, J. W. Wheeler.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL ON
GEO. C. WILD,
ODD FELLOWS' BLOCK. CROOKSTON, MINN.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY APRIL 27, 1899 NO 3

COMMISSIONERS MEET

At Court House and Spend Several Days In Transacting Business of County.

RED LAKE COUNTY MUST SETTLE

County Auditor Thanked—School Districts Formed—Numerous Bills Allowed.

The board of county commissioners of Polk county met at the court house at 10 a. m. Thursday April 20, in special session pursuant to call, with members, Fortier, Thompson, Eastman and Bratvold present.

Threading of the record of the previous meeting was on motion dispensed with. A hearing was had upon the petition of Peter MacKinnon, et al, asking for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 24, 25, 26, 23, 20, 35, E½ of section 22, all of sections 27 and 34, and on motion the prayer of petitioners was granted and an order made accordingly, and the district given No. 249.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the personal property assessment of S. S.-Stadsvold of the village of Fosston for the year 1898 be and the same is hereby reduced $400.00, to correct an erroneous assessment and the county auditor is hereby instructed to issue a refunding order for the amount of tax paid on the same.

A petition was presented by John Shrett et al, asking for the formation of a school district to be composed of the following territory, to-wit: All of the N½ of section 6, east of the Red River, and N. ½ of section 5, T. 150, R. 49, all of sections 30 and 31 and the S½ of section 29, T. 151, R. 49, and the W½ of section 32 and the W½ of the E½ of section 32, T. 151, R. 49, and all of section 33 east of Red River, and lot 1, section 36, T. 151, R. 50 and lot 1, section 36, T. 151, R. 49. On motion a hearing was granted on said petition for the next meeting of the county board.

A hearing was had upon the petition of A. A. Weekly, et al, for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 13, 24 and 25, and lot 1 of section 30, T. 151, R. 50 and section 30 in T. 151, R. 49 and on motion the prayer of the petitioners was rejected.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson, was on motion adopted.

Resolved, that the bill of James McIlraith for $348.50 for constructing the Fertile bridge be and the same is hereby allowed and the county auditor is instructed to issue his warrant for the amount of same.

A hearing was had upon the application of Joseph Kresl for license to sell intoxicating liquor in the town of Tabor and a remonstrance against the granting of said application signed by 57 residents and citizens out of said town. A motion to reject the application prevailed upon a call of district as follows:

Commissioner McCarty, absent, Commissioners Eastman, Fortier, Bratvold, Thompson, yes.

An application signed by Henry Panzer and 12 others asking for a rehearing upon the petition of H. C. Peterson, et al, for the formation of a school district in the town of Andover, was on motion granted and it was ordered that said rehearing shall be had at the next meeting of the county board and that the required notice shall be given.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Eastman, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the moneys, bonds and credits (including moneys from bond sales) belonging to Carman school district at the time the petition to form school district No. 246 was granted, be divided and apportioned between said school districts in proportion as the assessed valuation for the year 1898 of the detached portion (now in district No. 246) has to the assessed valuation of the portion remaining in and now constituting Carman school district. That according to said basis of division school district No. 246 is entitled to and awarded the sum of $550.00 as its share of said moneys, bonds and credits; and Carman school district is hereby directed and ordered to turn over said amount from cash on hand in the treasury to the proper officers of school district No. 246.

E. D. Childs appearing for Carman school district submitted the following and requested that the same be recorded as a part of the proceedings of this meeting which request was on motion granted:

That the time has not yet arrived for the division of the funds of the district, 1st. Because no district treasury has as yet been legally created by the board into which the Carman school district may pay this money. 2nd. Because in view of your vote to have a rehearing the question of whether the Carman school district is divided and district No. 246 created is as yet an unsettled one. 3rd. Because no notice has been served on the proper officers of the Carman district that a division of the moneys of the district are to be made at this time, and consequently they have had no opportunity to properly prepare a statement of the district's rights in the matter. 4th. Because the board have no knowledge or information before them as a basis on which to decide what would be a just division of the moneys of the district. 5th. Because the division ordered will conflict with existing rights and contracts which the district has already entered into with private persons, firms and corporations.

The application of Ed. Peterson for reduction of assessment and abatement of taxes on lot 21, block 7, Sampson's Wayness Addition to the City of Crookston, for the year 1898 was on motion granted, and said assessment was reduced from $475 to $75 and the county auditor was instructed to correct the tax list accordingly, said reduction having been recommended by the equalization board of the City of Crookston.

The application of C. E. Sawyer for the cancellation of the assessment of certain real estate mortgages in the City of Crookston for the year 1898 was on motion granted, and the county auditor was instructed to cancel all of said assessment except the amount of $8.00 it having been shown by affidavit that only the amount named remained unpaid at the time of assessment in 1898.

The applications of J. B. Merrill of the village of Fisher and Myron Collins of the City of Crookston for auctioneers' licenses were on motion granted the necessary bonds having been filed and approved and the license fee of $10.00 paid.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the assessed valuation on the Fosston Corporation Creamery Association for the year 1897 be and the same is hereby reduced to $300 to correct an erroneous assessment, and the county auditor is instructed to correct the tax list accordingly.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the application of Henry Disrud for abatement of taxes on SE¼ of SW¼ and W½ of the SW¼ of section 14, T. 150, R. 46, and the S½ of SE¼ of section 15 in said township for the years 1892 and 1893, he and the same is hereby granted and the auditor is hereby ordered to cancel the said taxes.

The application of Knute Julson for cancellation of assessment on a real estate mortgage in favor of Winger for the year 1898 was on motion granted it having been shown by affidavit that said mortgage was satisfied prior to May 1, 1898.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the personal property tax of H. Rodman for $5.14 for the year 1898 in town of Hill River, be refunded, it having been shown that the property assessed was in town 150, R. 39, and assessed in said town.

The matter of the petition of Grady et al, and Jos. Morris et al, for construction of county drainage ditch, was considered, arguments relative to the proposed routes heard, and on motion further action was deferred until the following day, April 21, at 10 o'clock a. m. pending an examination of the proposed routes by Commissioners Eastman, Bratvold and Fortier who were appointed a committee to make such examination.

The application of Henry Schreiner et al, for reduction of assessment and abatement of taxes on north 100 feet of block 14 in Sampson's Woodland addition to city of Crookston for years 1888, 1897, 1896, 1897 and 1898 was on motion rejected.

A hearing was had upon the petition of T. A. Wood et al, asking for the formation of a school district to be composed of sections 22, 23, 35, 36, and N½ and SE¼ of section 27 and E½ of section 34, T. 152, R. 49 and on motion the prayer of petitioners was rejected.

(Continued on Second Page)

PROF. RIGGS PLAYERS

Last Indoor Concert Given in Opera House by City Band And Orchestra.

OPEN AIR CONCERTS BEGIN

About the Middle of May and Will Be Given Hereafter Every Week.

Prof. Riggs and his band of musicians have now on five different occasions entertained the citizens of Crookston, and it is stating the matter mildly to say that during no winter of its history has the city been favored with such musical treats. These concerts gives us a metropolitan air and at the same time refine the tastes and manners of the people.

Last Friday night the last of the series of indoor concerts was given in the opera house to a good sized audience. The band is now composed of 27 pieces, and to one who heard the boys five months ago and listened to them last Friday night, it was evident that great progress has been made. Nearly every selection played by the band Friday evening was encored. Mrs. Riggs' piano solo and encore were rendered in her usual artistic manner. Mr. Ballou in his vocal solo showed himself possessed of a rich baritone voice which filled the opera house. The orchestra of 11 instruments, played some difficult music that so pleased the audience that they insisted on an encore. The ladies' chorus of 40 voices that Mrs. Riggs has been drilling certainly did much better than ever before. The singing of the chorus was one of the features of the evening's entertainment.

Beginning about the middle of May, or as soon as the weather permits, the band will give open-air concerts at the different corners of the business blocks in the city once a week during the summer and fall.

VIOLENT HANDS ON HIMSELF.

Tollef Elde of Granville Found Dead in the Cellar of his Farm House.

Further particulars of the suicide in Marshall county that was spoken of last week are herewith given. A little over a week ago as Gunder Gunderson and two others were going down to visit an old bachelor by the name of Tollef Elde, living on the bank of Red River, two miles north of Granville, they were shocked beyond measure to find that the man they went to entertain was not in consition to entertain or be entertained. Upon arriving at the house (or shanty) they found everything locked up, and thought nobody was at home, but finding a door leading to the cellar, their curiosity led them to look in, and there they found the lifeless body of Tollef Elde in a sitting position in one corner of the small cellar, leaning backward into the corner, with the muzzle of his gun against his breast, one hand grasping firmly the barrel of the gun and the other hand hanging down toward the trigger. It seemed very evident that he had made a good swift job of it, as he had apparently not moved in the least, after firing the shot. It is thought the suicide had been committed a week or ten days before as he had not been seen for about two weeks.

Tollef Elde was a man about 50 years old, single, quiet, industrious and honest, and a good worker. He came to this country from Numeday, Norway, a few years ago and his motive in committing this act is a mystery.

MAIL CLERK FOUND GUILTY.

Stinson Who Through Decoy Letters was Caught Opening Mail, Stands Trial at Fergus Falls.

P. R. Stinson the railway mail clerk who was detected last fall opening registered letters and whose trial in the federal court at Fergus Falls came off recently was declared guilty on one of the three charges against him. Sentence has not as yet been pronounced but under any circumstances the punishment will be severe.

Mr. Stinson it will be remembered had his preliminary hearing before commissioner Mix. At that time Stinson plead guilty. The postoffice inspectors told him if he wished he could plead not guilty but he said no, I'll plead guilty and then my sentence will likely be lighter. Evidently his lawyer had him change his mind for to the surprise of all when brought before the court at Fergus he plead not guilty.

VISITS IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Rev. Mr. Fisher at Milbank Gives Several Addresses to Pupils and Teachers of Public School.

Rev. Herman P. Fisher has returned from his visit in South Dakota, and occupied his pulpit last Sunday. In his absence Prof. Vamon P. Squires of North Dakota University preached at the Congregational church. Mr. Fisher visited Ortonville, his former parish receiving old acquaintances, and giving the people their an evening address. He then spent a week in Milbank, S. D., and assisted the pastor of the Congregational church of that place in a series of special meetings. Among the pleasant features of the visit in Milbank was the invitation from the young people of the high school and upper grades, to give them two addresses, of which one was on, "After Graduation—What?" and the other was on "Recreations." These were given in the church just after the close of school. At the invitation of the teachers he gave an address on "Emerson," and another on "The New England Men of Letters," both of which were delivered in the main assembly room of the school building.

On his return trip Mr. Fisher spent a day at Fargo College visiting the different departments and professors. He found the college in thrifty condition, under the guidance of scholarly teachers, and rejoicing in large additions recently given to the endowment fund.

CITY SCHOOL ELECTIONS.

The Board of Education Selects R. W. Hitchcock of Fosston as City Superintendent.

The school board met last Tuesday evening and completed the selection of teachers for the public schools for the next school year. R. W. Hitchcock was elected superintendent at a salary of $1350, Harry McL. Dewart principal of the high school, and Miss Addie C. Dipert assistant. For the superintendency there were many applicants, among whom were A. B. Christie of East Grand Forks and E. A. Nelson of Hallock.

Mr. Hitchcock is well known in Crookston having formerly lived here. He has been engaged in educational work for several years, during the past three or four years as principal of the schools at Fosston. He holds a life state certificate of the first grade in Minnesota. His references are highly received in Michigan where he was studens in the State University at Ann Arbor.

ARBOR DAY.

The Governor Names May 1 as the Day on Which to Plant Trees Throughout the State.

Governor Lind has issued a proclamation fixing Monday, May 1, as Arbor Day. State Superintendent Lewis has followed this with another calling upon the schools to observe the day. Beginning without trees are cheerless, and no nobler work can be done by educators than to teach children to love nature, and this spirit can be promoted by interesting them in the planting of trees.

The governor in his proclamation very appropriately says: "Genial sunshine and genial showers are calling forth the slumbering buds and the vernal green. The robin is here to greet and serve us, the thrush and the oriole will shortly join him, and they will come again and again to gladden our people with their songs as long as there are trees to nest in and fields to cheer. Providence did not intend that any portion of this fair state of ours should become a treeless, a useless waste, mute to nature's cheeriest sons. We have hill and dale, upland and meadow, myriads of lakes, streams and purling brooks, all set in a garniture of trees and flowers that stand unrivalled on the continent. Let us preserve and enhance our beautiful inheritance. Greed and ignorance have conspired to partially denude our forests and our woodland, but an intelligent, law-loving people have already done much to clothe our prairies and beautify our homes with nature's shelter. To the end that this good work may be continued and taken up with renewed vigor by young and old in a spirit of rivalry as well as patriotic duty, it has, pursuant to custom and law, appointed Monday, the first day of May."

N. A. Newman, formerly of the Great Northern's division office at Grand Forks has been transferred to the Montana division, with headquarters at Havre. The Montana division now has three of Grand Forks men, Messrs. Lilly, Hoag and Newman.

The work of ballasting the Eastern Minnesota from Duluth to Cass Lake has begun.

PREJUDICE HURTFUL

In the Matter of Live Stock Breeding —Each Class Has Its Good Points.

UTILITY THEORY IN BREEDING

At First Denounced But Afterwards Accepted—Get Good Blood no Matter Where From.

One of the most puzzling problems that confronted me when a youngster on my father's farm was accounting for the fact that two men, both, honest and sincere, could hold exactly opposite opinions on the subject. I knew that only one could be right. How could the other be wrong and yet be honest? This problem bobbed up more frequently than others on account of two neighbors. One was broad-minded, tolerant, charitably disposed towards those who differed from him, and as open and honest as the day. The other was a naturally strong character, of great native force and honest intent, but narrow, bigoted and intolerant. He believed—believed hardly expresses the firmness of his conviction—he knew that the earth was flat and that the sun swung around it in the heavens. He could see the sun moving from east to west with his own eyes and what he saw he knew and no "book feller" could talk him out of it. His neighbor, with a patience that won my admiration, argued the question but without effect. The armor of prejudice was so close a fit that no ray of light ever found an opening asam or joint and he died a disbeliever in the solar system. It was interesting to these discussions that grew in an idea of the extent to which prejudice might become a bar to individual growth and progress; but I have often wondered since that time whether this man, saturated as he was with ignorance and prejudice, might not have risen, step by step, to the level of his broad-minded neighbor if he had given hospitable reception to the simple truths on which is based the theory of the Solar system, with its infinite vistas of starry worlds, so surely does the hospitable entertainment of one truth by shaking the bolts of prejudice and broadening the intellectual horizon, make way for other and greater truths.

That the breeders of live stock compare favorably with men engaged in other large affairs, goes without saying. The superior ability, high character, and breadth of view of the men prominent in this branch of agriculture are conceded. They ought to be the most liberal and broad-minded of men, lovers of truth and enemies of prejudice. Their success depends upon a correct interpretation of nature's laws. Error means loss of dollars, and self-interest dictates an effort to be right even if a conservative habit inclines one to foster old time errors. In spite of a high order of intelligence and a higher standard of commercial honor than prevails with any other class of business men, there still crops our pretty prejudices which are a bar to progress in live stock breeding. These prejudices lead to controversies which are unworthy of the fraternity of breeders, and weaken the force of the men who are working for the betterment of the live stock industries of the state. It will not be necessary, I think, to go beyond incidents still fresh in the memory of those present to cite instances that will illustrate, if they do not sustain, my position.

A few months ago I attended a fair. The display of stock was fine. In Jersey and shorthorns it was particularly excellent. After I had given the exhibit a casual examination I fell in with the owner of a few shorthorns, and listening to his praises of that good old breed and of his own specimens of it, with approval of the praises was well-deserved. But when I commended the string of Jerseys, he was scoused: "Blank them rabbits," said he, "They are the curse of the country," and followed with a tirade against Jersey steers. I learned afterwards that he was milking a shorthorn herd and sending his milk to the creamery and that he had chosen a Scotch shorthorn sire of pronounced beef type, and expected to raise good feeding steers and dairy cows! Now, it may be that for him and his environment the choice was wise, but his mental attitude of prejudice towards the Jerseys would have prevented a fair consideration of the arguments in favor of a sire of that despised breed. Even if certain to make his money, he evidently has no use for "them rabbits."

After leaving him I was curious to learn whether the Jersey breeders reciprocated his kindly feelings. Out of three, one thought shorthorns had a place on some farms. The other two had no use for cattle that had to be killed to get the cost of their keep. But I only had to speak of their usefulness as dual-purpose cows to touch the right button in all of them. They were subscribers to Hoard's Dairyman, and had no toleration for the general purpose idea.

From them I went into the horse ring, and it was curious to see the noses of even the track stable boys tilt upward when the bulky Percherons and Clydes clumsily tried to show their paces and to note the contempt of the draft horsemen for the whole trotting fraternity. The bantering was generally good natured, but the prejudice was there.

The same tolerant spirit has run through the recent discussion of the general or duel purpose cow. Warfare has been waged as if the recognition of the duel purpose cow meant the extermination of the special dairy breeds. The common sense view seems to be that there is room for both. There are some farmers who, are experts in dairy work who should have the special purpose cow, and there are others who do better with a less delicate machine. It is a question of fitness. A boy does not want a six pound axe. A blacksmith can do nothing with a watchmaker's outfit of tools. A lumberman has no use for a thoroughbred, and a standard bred trotter is out of place hitched to a plow. A general purpose man and a special purpose cow are not well matched and there are plenty of men who have none of the gifts that make a successful specialist. For them the duel purpose cow seems to be a useful and important attachment, and as such she deserves to have an honorable place in spite of the prejudice against her in dairy circles.

A few years ago Amos Cruickshank began to loom upon the shorthorn horizon. He was the Apostle of Utility. Rich in the Scotch blood, patient and presistent, he never swerved from his purpose to create a strain of shorthorns, useful and profitable, beyond any that had appeared. For years he prosecuted his work quietly, but when he entered into the show ring, his phenomenal success attracted—the attention of American breeders. A few saw that Cruickshank had common sense on his side, and began to import from his herd. The chorus of disapproval and denunciation that greeted them was not wholly due to alarmed self-interest. There was a little fear of these hulky specimens, among breeders, of the fashionable shorthorn families, but the majority believed Cruickshank's theory was a dangerous heresy, and were in haste to stamp it out. But the Cruickshank cattle breed for practical purposes went right on winning. Cruickshank blood meant money making cattle, and it was a "get there" quality that was irresistible.

Now the very men who denounced the Cruickshank shorthorns as ill-bred and of mixed blood, and were almost ready to vote to shut them out of the records, make up their show herds with scotch top crosses on foundations of the last fashionable families. A show herd without Scotch blood would be a novelty. Whether the disciples of Cruickshank will welcome or fight against the next progressive step in shorthorn breeding remains to be seen.

A more recent exhibition of prejudice has not yet subsided. Secretary Wilson in looking for new fields for American agriculture to conquer, naturally sought for ways to increase exports of swine products, and finding a foreign demand for bacon, suggested the introduction of Tamworths in order to improve the quality of American pork, from the standpoint of the bacon curer. A shall explosion at the Swine Camp would have caused less commotion. The press teemed with the crudest sort of criticism, ridicule and denunciation, from men who had never seen a bacon hog, but supposed it to be a cross between an Arkansas Elmpeeler and a Florida razorback. If it was generally agreed that 1 bacon pig must be lean, thin and scrubby, and a mark by birth and inheritance. As there were probably not a dozen Tamworths in the United States and scarcely enough in the world to give each Congressional District a sample, there was no immediate danger of the popular breeds being driven to the wall, but the general sentiment was, "If any man attempts to pull down the American hog, shoot him on the spot."

This spirit was not confined to breeders of other varieties of the swine genus. Self-interest might probably excuse them; they would naturally feel like defending their own. But men who pose as public instructors and who are supposed to be impartial

(Concluded next week.)

DEFECTIVE PAGE

AROUND THE COUNTY

Weekly Reports From The Journal's Corps of News Gatherers.

DUGDALE.

Toilet Forden informe us that seeding is progressing nicely, some farmers being half through.

Ole Hetla from South Dakota is staying with his brother-in-law, Mr. Turkelson, and expects to buy land here.

John Hanson, who recently came to Dugdale from Douglass county, Minn., thinks some of buying the hotel and the 160 acres of land adjoining it.

Herman Camp, who was so badly hurt last week Monday, is improving but suffers severe pain in his fingers. He will stay in the store of Camp & Odler for a time.

What came very near being a serious accident occurred here on Tuesday, the 25th inst. Sgm Mathison was driving through town with a rather wild horse attached to a road cart. The animal attempted to run away and Mathison was thrown from the rig. He, however, did not lose hold of the reins and after being dragged a short distance he finally succeeded in getting the horse quieted.

MAPLE BAY.

Miss Carrie Hunter has returned to the Bay from the town of Kerton ville, where she had been teaching.

The ice on the lake is beginning to break up and the boys are busy with their spears hunting for pickerel.

R. G. Spence and family, who were burned out some time ago, have bought a new supply of household goods and are once more keeping house.

Where is the editor of the Pop paper that offered to bet "dollars to cents" last fall that J. J. Ryder would never show up in Polk county again? Jack is back at the old stand.

G. Felsing of the town of Woodside and F. Barholtz had a law suit in Crookston last week, Mr. Felsing getting the best end. Bar. Fanny says that this is only the beginning of the trouble.

We heard a Populist the other day say that John Linn had promised wonders, but after he got into office he didn't care any more for the people. Bless his poor soul! Has he just found that out. Office is all any of the Populists want and the party will be dead long before the hungry office seekers will all be fed.

MENTOR.

Seeding is progressing nicely.

Several new arrivals are looking for land.

Mentor is in need of a doctor and drug store. A good opening awaits the right men.

Mary Skiple of Grove Park went to Crookston Monday to visit relatives who live near that city.

P. N. Barnes will travel this spring and summer and take stereopticon views, etc. Give him a trial.

The sound of the hammer is heard in the town, all of which goes to show that our village is boomlay.

There are lots of fish being caught and shot in Maple Lake and the outlook is fine for a good season of fishing.

The ice in Maple Lake is breaking up around the edges and it is only a question of a few days till the ice is all gone.

J. and H. Anderson are finishing their blacksmith shop. They are now ready to work and solicit a share of your patronage.

J. W. Benoy of Crookston, who has been here a week plastering the house of his uncle, George Benoy, returning home Monday afternoon.

A school meeting will be held in the near future, for the purpose of establishing a new school district. The land has been secured free for this purpose.

J. L. Stetten, the lumberman, is building a large addition to his lumber shed. Size 18x42, 10 foot posts. He is also erecting a livery barn adjoining it, 30x32, 14 foot posts. These buildings will soon be completed.

Anderson Bros. will run a saw-mill in connection with the feed mill. They expect a new saw soun and will then start the mill. The logs, which were hauled last winter from three miles south of Mentor, are elm, basswood and oak.

Hotel Mentor is having an addition 16x18, two story, built on the east of the present building. It will contain thirteen rooms when completed. Mr. Le Page, the genial landlord, formerly the postmaster of Crookston, has a good livery in connection with the hotel.

David Fulton, the real estate agent of Ada, a brother of our fellow townsman, J. H. Fulton, and who formerly lived in our midst, arrived in our village last Friday evening and will remain here for a few days. He has done a land office business since he came.

Corn seed is constantly being shipped from here to western points.

Joseph Tagley, who is just starting in the machinery business, has recently received a carload of farm implements; also wagons and buggies. He has just completed a machine shed 14x30.

FISHER.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dentell were trading in town Moadny.

Painters and paper hangers are at a premium here at present.

McDonald Bros. were in town Friday buying supplies for seeding.

Mrs. James Rose of Mallory called on Mrs. E. D. Kingsland Monday.

Joe Brown of Crookston visited the I. O. O. F. Lodge here on Saturday night.

The Citizens' Bank are having a very fancy sign painted on their plate glass windows.

Finch-Smith Co.'s representative, Mr. Campbell, was doing the merchants here on Friday.

Gunder Torrison, who has been living here for the last six months, is moving to Morrie, Minn.

Rev. E. A. Cook held services in Grand Forks last Sunday and Dr. S. P. Johnson of Grand Forks came here.

The I. O. of F. Lodge received a carload of brick from Grand Forks Tuesday for the foundation of their building.

The bridge across the river here is being repaired. It is something that needs looking after, as it is not very durable at present.

Mayor Kvostue has late new residence nearly completed. It is strictly up to date, with steam heat and acetylene gas light.

Brown the painter is painting the town red, or, in other words, is is painting signs on nearly all of the business places in the city.

Seeding began Monday in earnest around here and if the weather is favorable there will be a good share of the wheat in by the 1st of May.

F. R. Young is repairing the house lately vacated by B. F. Nesbitt. He has painters from Crookston to do the work. He believes in cleaning house before moving in.

The entertainment given by the O. W. L. club last Friday night was a grand success. The refreshments served afterwards were delicious. Netted them about $12.00.

The Odd Fellows will build an additon of twenty-four feet on their two story building that is now occupied by Merrill, Tofte & Co. They will also put in a basement and plate glass windows.

The St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator Co. have ten car of lumber on the way so far to start their new yard, and more to follow. Two lumber yards in Fisher now and both of them are doing business.

Alexander Van Prang, representing Manley & Ball, cigar manufacturers of St. Paul, was in the city Saturday evening visiting the cigar dealers. He also visited the I. O. O. F. Lodge here and sang a few of his favorite songs and made a few pleasant remarks which were very much appreciated. Thanks brother, come again.

For Sale.

As I am going to the Pacific Coast I offer my farm for sale. 880 acres half a mile from Beltrami station, Polk Co. 640 acres under cultivation, mostly new land, pasture fenced. Sand Hill river flowing through it, artesian well, groves along the river, no waste land, always raise big crops, one of the most conveniently laid finely situated farms in the Valley. Now rented to a first class farmer on shares.

F. B. DYKEMAN, St. Agt.,
Lockhart P. O., Minn.

Notice for Bids.

Bids will be received by the undersigned as per order of the city council of the city of Crookston, for doing the printing and publishing of the council proceedings, resolutions, ordinances and all other matter required to be published, such as legal notices, treasurer's and comptroller's reports etc.

Bids for said publications to be in conformity with the requirements of the city charter. Also for doing the job printing of the city for the ensuing year.

City Clerk.

Said bids will be received until the 9th day of May, 1899 at eight o'clock p. m. and will be opened at the regular meeting of the council to be held on the evening of said date.

Dated this 15th day of April, 1899.

W. A. LANGTON,
City Clerk.

Cedar posts 12½ cents each at S. C. Johnson's feed store. 1-4t

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

COMMISSIONERS MEET

(Continued from First Page).

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Thompson, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the county auditor hereby instructed to accept $18.31 in full payment of taxes on lots 35 and 36, block 14, Sarcaxee addition to city of Crookston for the year 1890 to correct an erroneous assessment.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Eastman was adopted:

Resolved, that the action of Commissioners Eastman, Fortier, and Thompson in appointing and retaining A. A. Miller to act with the county attorney in defending the county in the case brought by the city of Crookston against said county claiming interest and penalties on taxes levied for city purposes during the years 1893 to 1898 inclusive, be and the same is hereby approved and ratified. Resolved, that deuring the our duty as commissioners of Polk county to protect and defend the interests of the taxpayers of said county, we hereby advise and delegate that a vigorous and thorough defense shall be made in the case named, carrying it to the supreme court if found necessary.

The application of A. G. Cowing for abatement of personal tax in the city of Crookston for the year 1898 was on motion laid over until next meeting of the county board pending its reference to the board of equalization of said city.

Resolved, that the assessment on personal property of A. Kaiser in the village of Fosston for the year 1898 be reduced $75, it having been shown by affidavit that the said A. Kaiser was assessed by certain real estate mortgages that were owned by and assessed to the bank of Fosston and the tax on said mortgages was paid by the said bank of Fosston.

Commissioner Thompson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Be it resolved by the board of county commissioners, in behalf of the taxpayers of Polk county, that we hereby tender to our auditor, Mr. John Gleason, our grateful appreciation of the very efficient work done by him in defending this county against he concealed attempt of Red Lake county in trying to defraud our county out of a large amount of money through what is known as Senate File No. 539.—The Myers bill—and be it further resolved, that these proclamations be made a part of the official proceedings and that they be published in the official paper. The resolution were adopted unanimously.

On motion board adjourned until 9 o'clock a. m., April 21, 1899.

Board reconvened, pursuant to adjournment with all members present.

The committee appointed to examine as to practicability of proposed routes of county drainage ditches as outlined in petitions of James Headly et al, and Joseph Morrier et al, submitted the following report:

To the board of county commissioners of Polk county:

Your committee appointed on the 13th inst to examine the routes described in the ditch petitions of Joseph Morrier et al, and James Headly et al, would respectfully report that we have carefully examine the proposed routes referred to, noted the lay of the country and the natural courses of the water, and we are of the opinion that the course described in the Morrier et al, petition is the most practicable one and we therefore recommend that the said petition of Jas. Morrier et al be granted.

K. O. BEATVOLD,
G. W. EASTMAN,
REMI FORTIER,
Committee.

Pursuant to foregoing recommendation the petition of James Headly et al, for the construction of a county drainage ditch was on motion rejected.

An order accepting the petition of Jas. Morrier et al, and appointing viewers in the matter of the construction of a county drainage ditch through the towns of Fairfax and Andover to be known as county ditch No. 13, was made and adopted. The viewers appointed were Chris Hanson, John D. Knutseon and Joseph Lofranboise, and are to meet at county auditor's office April 28, 1899 preparatory to commencing their duties as such viewers, and to make and file their report with county auditor on or before May 31, 1899.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Eastman, was on motion adopted:

Be it resolved, that Thos. Torgerson 1st Commissioner's District, A. A. Tofte, 2nd District, G. S. Chesterman, 3rd District, E. D. Barnes, 4th District, and A. C. Rhinehart, 5th District are hereby appointed to supervise the interment of any old soldiers in indigent circumstances, in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 804 of the General Statutes of 1894. The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Eastmun, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that the county auditor be and he is hereby authorized to issue his warrant to Joseph Voolleker for the sum of $22.90 in payment of expenses incurred in locating Joseph Tickey to the state school for the feeble minded at Faribault.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved that the jailer is hereby authorized to rent a telephone for the use of the jail from this time forward at county expense.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner Bratvold, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that so much of the taxes against the SW¼ of section 22, T. 150, R. 48, for the year 1890, and the E½ of NE¼ and E½ SE¼ of section 11, T. 150, R. 42 for same year, as are seed grain liens be and the same is hereby abated in compliance with the petition of Geo. B. Clifford and the county auditor is instructed to correct the tax record accordingly.

The petition of Gunar Tarkelson et al, asking for the surveying and locating of certain property lines in township 147, R. 41, was on motion laid over until July meeting of county board.

The application of E. J. Erickson for reduction of assessment on S½ SW¼ section 29 and W½ NE¼ section 32, T. 147, R. 44, for year 1898, was on motion granted and said assessment was reduced from $535 to $380 to correct an erroneous assessment and the county auditor was instructed to correct the tax list accordingly.

The application of W. N. Conover for license as auctioneer was on motion granted, conditioned upon the petition and approval by the county treasurer of the necessary bond.

The following resolution, offered by Commissioner McCarthy, was on motion adopted:

Resolved, that S.F. No. 117, "an act granting awards for killing wolves" passed by the legislature of 1899, approved April 11, 1899, be and the same is hereby adopted and shall be in force in Polk county from date of approval and the county auditor is authorized to grant and pay awards in accordance with provisions of said act.

The application of Ole Sannes for reduction of assessment and abatement of taxes on SW¼ and S W ¼ section 28 and N½ NW¼ and NW¼ NE¼ section 33 T 147, R 41 was on motion rejected.

The following resolution, offered by Com. Eastmun, was on motion adopted:

Resolved that the county auditor is hereby authorized to transfer the sum of $5,000 from the general fund to the road and bridge fund.

The application of C. H. Sanke for abatement of personal property taxes in city of Crookston for year 1898 was on motion, rejected.

The affidavit of Hans Carlson relative to assessment in village of Erskine was on motion referred back for further explanation.

The following resolution, offered by Com. Thompson was on motion adopted:

Resolved that the county auditor is hereby authorized to accept $8.70 in payment of taxes on lot 6 block 1, village of Fisher for the year 1891, to correct an error.

The following resolution, offered by Com. Fortier, was on motion adopted:

Resolved that this county auditor is hereby directed on demand of the proper officers of Red Lake county that the necessary steps be at once taken by said county to complete settlement between said Red Lake county and this parent county of Polk in conformity with the provisions of chap. 143 of the general laws of 1893, and in the event of a refusal on the part of Red Lake county to comply with such demand the county auditor is directed to take such further action as may be deemed most effective under his authority conveyed by said Chap. 143 of general laws of 1893.

A petition was presented by Ole Engen, Chas. Bendickson et al asking for certain changes in the county road known as the Grand Forks and Moorhead county road and on motion Commissioners McCarty, Thompson and Eastman were appointed a committee to examine the desirability of the proposed changes and report at next meeting of the county board on May 31, 1899.

Commissioner Thompson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption.

Resolved that the amounts indicated below be allowed the following named gentlemen for services rendered in defeating the Red Lake county bill, the amount being for railroad fare and other necessary expenses;

John Gleason	$ 75.00
Remi Fortier	58.48
A. D Stephans	50.00
James Rosaaen	50.00

J W Wheeler	50.00
W E McKenzie	50.00
N S Gordon	25.00
Hugh Thompson	50.00
A R Holston	25.00

The motion was unanimously adopted. All applications for appropriations from the road and bridge fund, were on motion laid over until next meeting of county board.

The offer of R. H. McCoy to purchase certain lots in the city of East Grand Forks forfeited to the state under application for absolute deeds, at 50 per cent of all taxes charged against the property was on motion accepted subject to directions from state auditor to make the sale.

The petition of Ingeuit Larson et al asking for the surveying and locating of property lines in T. 147, R. 41 was on motion laid over until next regular meeting of county board in July 1899.

The application of Mrs. Lena Soliefor the abatement of taxes on a real estate mortage was on motion laid over until next meeting of county board.

The following uncollected personal property taxes for the year 1898 were abated, the commissioners being satisfied that the same could not be collected:

George Knudsaon Audover	$ .46
Christ Farbernun	.49
Oscar Doby Badger	.52
Thomas Burnhart Bygland	.49
Ole H Laude	.36
Osmond O Lejbold "	.54
Torger Tompson "	.50
G O Aasetad "	.68
Tarald Bensen "	.47
Torger Gustafnsen "	.75
Hans Larsen Chester	.72
Gustaf Lennon Chester	.72
R W Cotte E G Forks	.24
Joe Holwanger E G Forks	1.54
A A Thoraeun E G Forks	12
Zelmer E G Forks	1.08
Stunder Asbjornson Eden	.72
Gunder Fuboy Ester	1.10
Aunl Johnson "	.36
Lewis Benson "	.72
John Peterson "	.67
A D Stratten Erskine	.22
Geo Sanford "	.90
Knut Olsen Fairfax	.20
John A Olsen Furley	.45
Frank Burnhart Fisher	.36
Gunder Knutson Fisher	.36
Geo Knutson Fisher	.36
Ellingson Fosston	1.30
Stanley & Larsen	1.80
Wm Connery Fertile	.50
A M Stebbins	.85
Elbe Pipeline Grand Forks	.10
John A Rud Garfield	.17
Chas Trepanier Gentilly	.55
John C Bain Grove Park	.46
Peter Anderson "	.36
John Gaston Fisher (village)	3.90
Samuel Robinson Fisher	3.51
Helge Johnsrud Godfrey	.29
Paul Jones Huntsville	.20
Nat Marshall "	.36
Wm Coulter "	.90
Chas Hoffman "	.36
Chas Teal Keystone	.29
J C Gregerson Klig	.47
O Fraser King	2.99
Oliver E Rylan Klingo	.85
N H Romuld Liberty	.29
Gilbert Evensen Lessor	.14
Hans J Sunster McIntosh	.54
A D Stephens Mentor	2.70
Charley Beumont Parnell	.84
Charley Beason Queen	.36
Ole Arsland "	.36
C A Tausen "	.36
Gust Anderson Rinehard	.65
Jas Brandt Tabor	.20
Jos Madisun Tilden	.36
Martin Madleon Tilden	.36
Ole Vraf Woodside	.36
R H Bailey Lowell	.36
Fay Bailey "	.36
H D Pinkerton Lowell	.36
Andrew Jenshouee Kertsunville	.36
Louis Larson "	1.08
Anton Knutson "	.21
Albina St Marin "	.44
Fortman, Dumse "	.72
Adeline Fuorst "	.29
Frank Jerome "	.36
I Knutson "	.37
Jas Jerome "	.36
Jas Lavola "	.44
T Page "	.36
Mafy L Sanvier "	.44
Ole Indahan Winger	2.16

The following bills were audited and allowed:

S R Nonsens, seems to janitor	$ 1 50
Crookston Lumber Co., slabs to jail	6 00
Thomas Lawrence, fees in sheriff	3 60
Thomas Lawrence, fees as sheriff	6 30
Erbens Express, postage	2 40
W H Lawrence, boarding prisoners	72 20
Crookston Journal, printing, 3 bills	31 00
Crookston Journal, printing	4 00
C C Hampson, sundry printing	2 00
C C Lamsley, sundry printing	2 00
O B Miller, services as coroner, 2 jobs	20 00
Northwestern Telephone Exchange, rent of phones	3 00
Brown, Tracy & Co., blanks	2 75
Moore Bros., blanks	1 40
Geo Johnson, funeral and labor on courthouse	8 00
A P Moen, services as jury warden	4 00
Erbens Express, notice to jail	2 40
O B Rich, livery for use of commissioners	2 00
De W Robertson, extracting teeth for prisoners	4 00
H E O Anderson, post mortem examination	5 00
S Gately Hospital, board and care of Albert Baker	30 00

Johnson & Rinnsrud, wood to jail	38 00
J S Wilson, coal to jail	12 71
Erich Wiesbrenn, hauling wood	1 75
J F Sharp, recording bonds	2 25
I I Kamm, postage	1 50
K F Boling, recording old instruments in grogate office	14 00
The Hoskins, revenue stamps and postage	18 06
A A Miller, assisting in case, city Crookston vs. Polk county	100 00
John Gleason, postage, phone messages etc	21 60
C Ber Young, hauling dirt from bridge	6 00
Same, services work in office of clerk of court	4 00
A J Matson, justice fees	4 00
G R Hall, justice fees 2 bills	5 25
John McLean, justice fees 3 bills	13 50
C H Hanson, justice fees	4 50
J D Dwyer, justice fees	4 67
G A Brown, constable fees	2 80
H E Smith, constable fees 2 bills	7 97
J N Campbell, constable fees	1 40
Ed Wankeberg, Hans Sagen and Paul Johnson, witness fees	4 20
Same, witness fees	2 24
Jacob Anderson, witness fees	2 00
Ed Schuster, witness fees	1 40
M P Forth, witness fees	1 36
Fred Grover, witness fees	2 80
S F Nelsen, witness fees	1 48
C W Bauman, services as county commissioner	28 00
Remi Fortier, services as county commissioner	28 00
K O Bratvold, services as county commissioner	17 20
Chas McCarty, services as county commissioner	28 00
Hugh Thompson, services as county commissioner	27 40
Following bills were referred back for correction:
A E English, Thomas Lawrence, Village of Fisher, Ida J Nichols, A R, Thomas Lawrence, F P Cummingham, C E Pratt, M W Jones, A Ophelia, James N Balin, Leo Clifton, Peter Peterson, S H Drew, Otto Kankle, William Gray, John McLean, J Black, Ed Wahl, Geo Kronschnable, A R Butler.
Following bills were laid over:
E J Grover, T H Aakhus, John A Rothsten, J J Vantvlet, Austin & Lokes, Riverside Hospital, D G Scobey.
Following bills were disallowed: Frank Magseau, L E Gossman and M Losey, Jr.
On motion board adjourned sine die.

Notice of Dissolution.

Crookston, Minn., April 8, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned Rudolph T. Rasmusson & A. M. Dahl, under the firm name of Rasmusson & Dahl, has this day been dissolved, said A. M. Dahl selling and Rasmusson buying all the property and assets and all bills payable by said firm are to be paid by A. M. Dahl who will continue the business at the old stand. Robert Jones of Crookston, under the firm name Dahl & Co.

In presence of RUDOLPH T. RASMUSSON.
O. H. DAHL. ANNIE M. DAHL.
4-21

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Josina Omang, his wife to Thomas Lawrence, of Crookston, Minnesota, for the date the 7th day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale contained therein, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 8th day of August, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book G of mortgages, on page 182, and which said mortgage has been assigned by said mortgagee to the undersigned by an instrument in writing, bearing even date herewith, and duly recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 17th day of April, 1899, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 182, and no action or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north west quarter of the south east quarter and the north west quarter of the south east quarter of section Thirty four township one hundred and forty-eight (148) range forty three west, containing in all forty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and State, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee.
3-23 Elbow Lake, Minn.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk.—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Session, March 29th 1899.

In the matter of the estate of John Provencher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Mathil Provencher praying that Letters of Administration may be granted upon John Provencher, late of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2nd day of April, A. D. 1899 at the County of Polk died intestate, and being an inhabitant of the said County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the surviving widow of said deceased and is the proper person for the administration of said estate to be granted Provencher granted.

It is ordered, That said petition be heard before said court on Friday the 28th day of April, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at probate office in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered Further, That notice of said hearing be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested in said estate, by publication of a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published in Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 29th day of March, A. D. 1899. By the Court.

(1-3) OLE E. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of Twenty-Eight Hundred ($2,800.00) Dollars, which is claimed to be due, and is due at the date of this notice upon certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Engen, a single man, to Ole Bendickson, dated the 6th day of August, 1898, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of August, 1898, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 37, and which said mortgage has been assigned by said mortgagee to Chas. McCarty, of Crookston, Minnesota, by an instrument in writing, bearing even date herewith, and duly recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 11th day of April, 1899, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 37, and no action or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south east quarter of the south west quarter and the south west quarter of the south east quarter of section Thirty four township one hundred and forty-eight (148) range forty three west, containing in all forty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county, at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and State, on the

6th day May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. E. THORSON, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 48-52

PINK'S TAKE AT MESA VERDE.

BY HOWARD MARGUS STRONG.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Author.]

Where two states, two territories and the Rio San Juan draw to a point of meeting and where towers, cliffs, caves and abandoned pueblos afford a veritable city of refuge for the law hounded there Rucker, his two cuttiroat companions and a dozen renegade Navajos intrenched themselvas and defied capture.

The cause of Rucker's enforced isolation was directly traceable to the unfortunate ending of his mask during a successful hold up on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. In the words of Rucker himself, "It give the whole duru onap away."

For up to that time he had been a trusted employe of the railroad, serving as agent at Wagon Wheel Gap and later at Silverton.

"Looks like they weren't goin to try to take us," Rucker observed to Fent and Morely a week after the hold up. "Blamed if I'm not tired of this lyin around."

All three started to their feet and gazed in the direction of 'un old tower, from the top of which an Indian was gesticulating wildly.

"I guess he's seen signs of our friends," laughed Fent. "Come on, Rucker! There won't be any more lolyin round for a spell."

They were soon standing beside the Indian, straining their eyes to the north.

"I wish we had a glass," Rucker said.

"Don't need it. See that flash?" And Morely pointed to a small spot of dazzling brightness on the top of Sierra El Late.

"A heliograph!" exclaimed Rucker. "I suppose that means they've got the regulars after us!"

All day the watch was kept up in every direction. Shortly before dusk a score of cavalrymen came in sight over a ridge on the Mesa Verde and halted just out of rifle range. A man dressed in buckskin rode forward to the foot of the first rise and, dismounting, started to climb the rugged bluff.

There was a flash from up among the ruins, and a bullet sang so closely to his head that it stirred his long yellow hair.

"Hey! Let up on that, will you?" he shouted, waving his hand in apparent protest, but continuing his upward climb.

There was a second sharp report, and something clipped the top of his big felt hat.

"Amuse yourself!" he roared, never stopping for a second. "Pop away, only don't spoil my usefulness! I'm the sheriff of La Plata county, and I've got warrants for Rucker and Fent and Morely!"

"Well, if you take another step," said the last named individual, raising his head above an adobe wall, "you'll be the deadest sheriff this county ever saw!"

"Pshaw! You don't say so!" And the man in buckskin kept straight on, mopping his moist face with a yellow silk handkerchief. Without a second's warning Morely fired, and the sheriff pitched to the ground without a groan.

"Darn you!" Rucker cried wildly. "Why did you kill him? Do you want to have us strung up for murder? I've a notion to blow your worthless head off!"

"Save your change," replied Morely, coolly placing three fresh cartridges in the magazine of his gun. "Don't waste a shot on me. Look over there!"

All that Rucker could see was a cloud of dust rapidly rolling toward the battle. Sun he knew it enveloped a squad of United States cavalry. A moment later the blue uniforms were out of their saddles and climbing up the steep slope.

The three white men and the dozen Indians opened fire with murderous effect. The soldiers replied and strove bravely to reach the summit, but it was a hopeless undertaking, and as night closed in they retreated, most of them badly wounded and three dead besides the sheriff.

"It is kind of tough business," Fent admitted to Rucker as they buried the victims of the encounter, "but it can't be helped. You'll get used to it in time, like me and Morely. There's one thing, though—they ain't likely to disturb us again for some time."

After the failure of the expedition against the train robbers the officials held a consultation at Durango. A reward of $5,000 was also offered for the capture of Rucker, Morely and Fent.

One morning a week after the killing of the sheriff Rucker was fairly paralyzed by the sudden appearance of a stranger inside the old pueblo. He managed to let out a yell, however, that soon brought Fent and Morely to the spot.

"Good morning, gentlemen," said the intruder, carefully adjusting his eyeglasses and bowing to the little group. "Can you give me any data relative to these ruins? Are they Moki, Navajo or some extinct race? I am preparing a work on the pueblos of Arizona, New Mexico and southern Colorado, and any information will be gratefully received."

"Which direction did you come from?" asked Morely abruptly.

"From the south, sir," was the reply. "I was able to see these towers from Carrizo mountain. I've done the Grand river valley and also the Zuni plateau. If you will excuse me, I will lead my hurro here and show you a part of my collection of Pueblo Indian pottery. It is very unique."

"Never mind," Morely growled. "I'll send for it."

"Oh, thenk you!" replied the stranger, stroking his mustache and seating himself on a convenient roll of blankets. "In the meantime will you join me?" And he produced a flask of the finest whisky that had ever reached the banks of the Rio San Juan.

Several days passed, and the ethnologist continued his explorations and notations, apparently oblivious to the constant guard that was kept over his movements.

Rucker approached him af last as he was earnestly engaged in examining some Indian remains.

"I don't suppose you'd like to change places with them bones," Rucker observed.

There was a sharp glance from the stranger's glasses, but he continued his digging.

"Why?" he said.

"Because," whispered Rucker, "Fent and Morely are goin to kill you! They're on to your game—spy or detective, somethin like that. I don't want any more murder, done around here myself."

There was no answer from the man in the grave.

"Go tonight," persisted Rucker, and he sauntered away to meet his companions.

The following morning the ethnologist was missing. Morely and Fent administered kicks and curses to the whole dozen Indians for permitting the man's escape.

"I reckon he found it too much of a job to tackle single handed," Morely laughed after he had got over his illhumor. "I'll bet my head he don't come back soon again, eh?"

The little event, however, was speedily driven from the minds of the fugitives by an occurrence of much greater importance. A young woman had been found mounted upon a fine horse riding aimlessly about the valley. Both she and the animal were promptly captured and taken to the old ruins.

The girl was a big, rawboned creature, with stringy, dust colored hair, but a remarkably pretty face. As she Indians brought her into the presence of the three white men she burst into tears.

"Cheer up, sis," said Rucker awkwardly. "We ain't goin to do you no harm. What have you been doin down in the valley?"

"I sin't s-tellin," she sobbed.

"Ah, go ahead," Fent said encouragingly.

The girl looked from Fent to Rucker and from Rucker to Morely.

"Do youse a poser?" she inquired. "Be youse a bunch pap?"

Fent laughed and asked:

"Who is your pap, my beauty?"

"Ho'o Yaller Jaan," the girl announced, "and they're after him. I'm tryin to find him to give him the word and some ca'tridges. He left sudden-like."

"Reckon she's a half breed," Morely said behind his hand. "Her old man's the worst horse thief in ten states."

"Your pap's got an eye for horseflesh," he continued, turning to the girl and motioning toward the animal she had been riding. "What's your name, now? he persisted, trying to get her to speak.

"Pink," she said and was gone in a flood of tears.

"If youse we kind of make her comfortable here and then clear out," suggested Morely.

"And see that you keep away from her yourself," Rucker said with meaning, to which Morely responded with an oath.

That night Rucker felt a gentle touch on his face and started up to find the girl bending over him. Following her silent direction, he slipped out without disturbing his companions and came to where the girl was seated on a rock.

"Say," she began abruptly, "do you know why I came here? I was goin Silverton once and saw you at the station, and I liked you."

Rucker breathed deeply and, seating himself by her side, placed one arm around her waist.

"Let's get out of this," resumed the girl. "I like you, and I reckon I ain't so slouch to look at. Let's clear out tonight and give them devils the slip. They'll cut your throat some day to get that money. You've got it all now, ain't you?"

"Yes, all," said Rucker, patting the belt nervously.

"Thin ain't no place for a man like you," she persisted. "And she horse in over there all ready. He can take two of us. Come on!"

Half reluctantly Rucker permitted himself to be led down theotep path his way. The horse followed noiselessly, for Pink had carefully muffled his hoofs.

At the foot of the bluff they mounted and turned the horse out, across the Mesa Verde. A few moments later the sound of pursuers was clearly borne to their ears.

"How many horses have they?" said Pink.

"Only two," Rucker answered. "The Indians will come on foot."

"Rucker!" cried a stern voice that made him sway in the saddle. "Rucker, I've just taken your money and gun! Don't move or I'll kill you!" And straightway a pair of handcuffs snapped over Rucker's wrists.

"Pink!" gasped Rucker.

"Pinkerton!" was the response of the captor. He then continued: "Rucker, I want you to ride to Parrott and give yourself up. You can drive all right, and the horse can get away with only one of us. Swear that you'll do it, or"—

"I swear!" cried Rucker quickly, and he immediately felt the figure behind him slip to the ground.

"For God's sake, stop!" screamed Pink as Morely and Fent galloped up. "He stole me away, and now he's pitched me off his horse. Take me, pp, won't you?"

"Take her up, Fent," said Morely as they drew rein. "I've got to get Rucker."

Morely rode ahead, while Pink slowly mounted behind Fent.

"All right, there?" asked Fent.

"Rands up there!" growled Pink and placed a revolver against Fent's neck.

Fent was so shocked that he permitted himself to be relieved of all arms without a word of protest.

"Now, whip up," Pink said. "We've got to overhaul Morely."

Morely was a heavy man, mounted on a poor animal, and they came up with him just at dawn. Pink took careful aim and fired. Morely's right arm fell limply at his side.

"Get off and go over to him, Fent," Pink commanded. "Throw his gun away and get up behind him."

Fent had seen a sample of Pink's marksmanship. Fent thought it best to obey implicitly.

"Side on, now," said Pink, "and don't forget that sudden death's right at your heels."

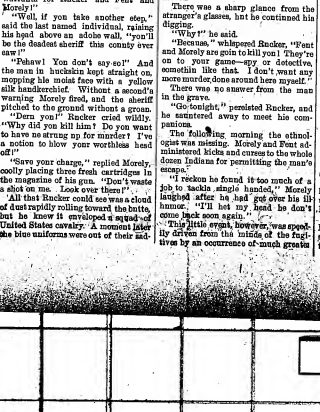
In this fashion Pink and his captives rode into Parrott. Rucker, true to his oath, had given himself up, and the whole town was wild with excitement. When the crowd caught sight of Pink's feminine attire they expressed their delight in one long sustained yell, which lasted until he had disappeared within the jail.

"Look here!" Rucker called as soon as Pink neared his cell. "I reckon you know something about Pueblo Indian pottery, too, don't you?"

Pink allowed that he had given the subject a little study at one time.

"Yonng man," said Rucker spitefully, "you're too darned smart. I've no use for people like you. But, thank the Lord, no real woman ever did yit!"

Rucker, nevertheless, by reason of Pink's mediation, received a very light sentence, while Fent and Morely ruined two good pieces of hemp rope.



THE THREE WHITE MEN AND THE DOZEN INDIANS OPENED FIRE.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, April 26.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 1 hard, 70½c; No. 1 Northern, 70¼c; No. 2 Northern, 68¾c. May, 70¾c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 70¾c; No. 1 Northern, 70¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 70¾c; No. 1 Northern, 70¼c; No. 2 Northern, 68¾c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 26.

WHEAT—In Store—No. 1 Northern, 70¾c. May, 70¾c; July, 72¾c. September, 68¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 71½c; No. 1 Northern, 70¾c; No. 2 Northern, 68¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, April 26.

HOGS—Market is strong. Range of prices, $3.60@3.75.

CATTLE—Market fully active; about steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for beeves; $3.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.97½@4.10 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @3.10 for calves and yearlings.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, April 26.

HOGS—Market 5c lower than yesterday. Quality fair to good. Range of prices, $4.05@3.90.

CATTLE—Butcher cattle a shade lower. Stockers and feeders firm and in good demand.

Sales ranged at $4.25@4.80 for steers; $3.00@4.35 for steers; $3.35@4.15 for heifers; $2.85@3.00 for bulls; $2.20@3.80 for cows.

SHEEP—Market for sheep and lambs weaker.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for lambs; $3.50 for sheep.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, April 26.

HOGS—Market barely steady.

Sales ranged at $3.75@4.00 for mixed and butchers; $3.90@4.00 for good heavy; $3.60@3.80 for rough heavy; $3.70@3.90 for light.

CATTLE—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.10@5.60 for beeves; $1.70@4.00 for cows and heifers; $4.00@ 4.80 for Texas steers; $3.80@5.00 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady to strong.

Sales ranged at $3.60@5.00 for sheep; $4.50@5.15 for lambs.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 26.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 71⅝c; July, 72¾c; September, 71½c.

CORN—April, 33½c; May, 34¼@34⅜c; July, 34⅝@34¾c; September, 35½c.

OATS—April, 29½c; May, 29¾@29⅝c; July, 24¼@24⅜c; September, 23½c.

PORK—April, $9.60; May, $9.94½; July, $9.20; September, $9.35.

POULTRY—Dressed turkeys, 11@13½c; ducks, 9@10c, chickens, 7½c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 14@16c; dairies, 11@12c.

EGGS—Fresh, 12½c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard	69c
No. 1 northern	68c
No. 2 northern	51c

—If you wish to borrow money on easy terms see J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, City of Crookston, ss.

Notice is hereby given, That applications have been made in writing to the Common Council of said City of Crookston and filed in the office of the City Clerk for license to sell intoxicating liquors for the term commencing on May 16th, 1899 and terminating on May 15th, 1900, by the several persons and at the following places as stated in said applications respectively, to-wit:

Nonn and Dinan, thesoutheast room of two story frame building situate on lot 16, block 9, in Fletcher and Houston addition to City of Crookston fronting on Robert street.

O'Reilly and Mott, all of first floor of two story frame building situate on part of lots 1 and 2, block 23, townsite of Crookston, in the City of Crookston, fronting on Broadway and Second streets and known as the "Round O" Trade.

Arnold and Stewart, in the old Arnold building, situate in lot 13, block 23, townsite of Crookston, fronting on Second street.

Said applications will be heard and determined by the Common Council of said City of Crookston at the meeting to be held at the City Hall in said City of Crookston on the 1st day of May A. D. 1899 at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

Witnessmy hand and seal of said city this 25th day of April, A. D. 1899.

WM A. LANGTON,
[SEAL] City Clerk.

25

DISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A positive cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells, which is nearly always charged with alkali are nearly all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbors about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail by C. E. DISNER, Crookston, Minn.

Order To Examine Accounts, etc

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, ss.

In probate court, special term, April, 11, 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Mary D. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie M. Cooke, administratrix herein, now of the estate of Mary E. Cooke deceased, representing among other things that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing her account of her administration for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition be heard by this court on Friday, the 5th day of May A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., before the probate office in Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested in said estate by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minn.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 11th day of April, A. D. 1899.

OLE S. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.

(1-3)

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

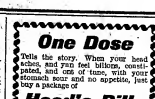
One Dose

tells the story. When your head aches and you feel bilious, coated tongue, and cuts of time, with your stomach sour and no appetite, just buy a package of

Hood's Pills

And take a dose, from 1 to 4 pills. You will be surprised at how easily they will do their work, cure your headache and biliousness, renew the liver and make you feel happy again. 25 cents. Sold by all medicine dealers.

FARMERS, WHAT DO YOU SAY?



WILL THE WORLD GO HUNGRY?

This was the question asked by the Chicago Tribune of a prominent citizen, when referring to a speech made by Sir William Crakes dwelling upon the problem of the world's wheat supply. Great Britain being self-sustaining only a small percentage of what she consumed.

REPLY:

WESTERN CANADA WILL PREVENT IT.

With millions of acres of excellent wheat lands in Western Canada awaiting the husbandman's efforts there is no fear of an exhausted supply. Those owned by the Government are given free to settlers near railways, schools, churches, &c. Particulars can be had on application to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government agent,
164 E. 3d St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Crookston Minn.
P. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villans, Minn., local agents.

Are Made by reading FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year.

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.
With the JOURNAL, one year for $1.75.

THE BEST OF THEM ALL!!

LIPPINCOTT'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Contains a complete novel in every number, in addition to 144 large pages of entertaining reading matter.

No sentimental stories, which are so objectionable to most readers.

It should be in every household. Subscription, $4.00 per year.

Agents wanted in every town, to whom the most liberal inducements will be offered.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Publishers, PHILADELPHIA.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH.

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $70
MONARCH ROADSTERS $60
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 30 cents in stamps for a deck of Parlor Games, Playing Cards, Illustrating Jessie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Tom Cooper, Lew Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

FARM PROFITS

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS,
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York.

United States Map.

15c. A copy of our handsome map, size of this page, 10x15 inches, printed in four colors and mounted on a roller, will be sent in any address on receipt of 15 cents in postal or express money order. We cannot sell unmounted maps. O. D. MAHAN, General Passenger Agent, C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Complete Treatise, with over 50 illustrations—a standard work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; a complete treatise—the reproduction of all leading varieties and how to grow them. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; the best Poultry Book in existence; over 100 fine engravings, within colored plates—the reproduction of all principal breeds, with 101 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great deal to say about Milk—the reproduction of fine cows and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchering, Curing, Etc. Contains over 50 beautiful half-tone and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

The Biggle Books are unique, original, useful—you never saw anything like them published in the United States or in fact in any enormous circulation, North and South. Every one who keeps a Horse, Pig or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The

FARM JOURNAL

Great Monthly Magazine

Is just paper, made for you and not a misfit. It is 24 years old—has a million and a quarter subscribers—is sent out after one fare—is North and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States—has over a million and a half regular readers.

Any-ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL

4 YEARS (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for a DOLLAR.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

Address, FARM JOURNAL,
Publishers, PHILADELPHIA.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance

Enndered at the postoffice at Crookston. Minnesota, as second class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

We have received an announcement from Ives and Strawbridge, proprietors of the Cass Lake Times, to the effect that the first number of their paper will be issued on Wednesday, April 26. We welcome this young journal into the newspaper fraternity and predict for it a prosperous career.

THE farmers of Polk county and surrounding counties will do well to bear in mind that a big farmers' convention is to be held in Crookston next June. Many of the men of the state who are authority on matters agricultural will be here and no farmer can really afford to be absent. The time will be set to suit their convenience.

BULLETIN NO. 61, issued by the Agricultural Experiment station of the State University at St. Anthony Park, deals with the subject of butterflies and moths injurious to our fruit producing plants. It is a work that cannot but be valuable to all farmers. The bulletins of this station are sent free to all residents of the state who make application for them.

MUDDY streets is the one blot on the escutcheon of our city and it is one that ought to be removed. Men of capital have more than once come to the city in the spring with a view to locating here but the conditions of the streets are such that they went away without investing. This question, we are told, has long been discussed. Let us then have done with words and not. The city as a whole would be greatly benefited if some of the principal streets were paved.

NO interests of the state are more important than those which pertain to education and these interests were not neglected by the late state legislature. Leaving out of consideration the $75,000 given for a new normal school at Duluth, which action we cannot sanction, we think the lawmakers acted wisely in making the appropriations they did. Four classes of schools, the high, graded, semi-graded and rural, were liberally provided for. Educational institutions and work will never suffer so long as the republicans guide the ship of state.

THE legislature refused to appropriate money for continuous sessions of the State Normal Schools and we think they did rightly. These summer sessions are supposedly for the benefit of those teachers who teach during the rest of the year, but if one who has taught nine months spends the remaining three months of the year in studying in the school room, he will be unfit to resume his work as teacher in the fall. One engaged in educational work must have rest, for it is well known that such work is very draining on the nervous system. The Normal School towns apparently think only of the financial advantages that would be theirs in case continuous sessions were held, but with this the state has nothing to do.

THE first bill providing for insane hospitals at Anoka and Hastings that was presented to Governor Lind he vetoed, chiefly because he did not think adequate provision had been made for the care of the chronic insane. This defect in the bill was remedied and as amended was signed by the governor. Anoka and Hastings, however, do not desire these institutions. A great deal of the valuable time of the legislature was spent, not in considering the question of the treatment of the insane—that would have been all right—but in wrangling over the question as to whether or not these towns would get the plum. Deals were made and votes exchanged that this bill might be passed. These methods of securing legislation are reprehensible.

THE legislative grain inspection investigating committee in the report sustains the existing system of inspection and weighing, with the addition of the McCollom board of appeals law, but severely criticizes the administration of the laws. No reason has been found why the grading of the wheat in the first part of the season should have been more rigid than what it was later. Some inspectors have been either incompetent or careless, while many a farmer suffers a heavy loss by shipping uncleaned wheat and by loading wheat into dirty and unswept cars. This investigation was initiated by the republicans and carried through by them in a most thorough manner. No attempt was made to screen any one, the facts only were sought after, and wherever the wheat inspection department was at fault the committee has censured it. All these facts go to show that the republican party is looking after the interests of the farmer and that if any abuse may have crept into the administration they will be eradicated as soon as found out.

LABOR is in big demand this spring, no man who really wishes to work need remain idle. The prosperity of the country is increasing every day.

THE Cass Lake Independent which we number among our exchanges is a neat looking seven column folio and its editor wields a ready vigorous pen.

IT seems to be the general impression that Thomas Reed is about to withdraw from political life and enter a law firm in New York City. Though doubtless deserving of the title "Czar" few if any men will be found who will fill so important a place as the speakership of the house as acceptably and as ably as Mr. Reed has.

QUAY has been tried on the charge of conspiring to use certain funds of the State of Pennsylvania for personal benefit and has been declared not guilty. Governor Stone, a few hours after the jury brought in the verdict, appointed Quay to the vacancy in the United States senatorship from that state which the late legislature failed to fill. Such appointees the United States senate has heretofore refused to receive. The act of the Governor, however, shows that Quay still has a strong grip on political affairs in this state.

THE peace conference to be participated in by the prominent nations of the world will be held at the Hague some time during the month of May. It is a noteworthy fact that most if not all the nations that will send representatives to this assembly have, since accepting the invitation of the Czar, increased their war equipment. Judging from this it is not likely that any thing definite will be done toward disarmament, still it marks a great advance when the nations of the earth get together and discuss the question of how the great burdens of militarism may be lessened even if they don't actually decrease the armaments.

Athletic Exhibition.

Prof. LaSore, a number of his athletes and the young ladies' physical culture class gave a first class entertainment at the opera house last Tuesday evening. The work done reflected great credit upon the performers and showed the effect of careful training. In the four-round glove contest between Prof. LaSore and George Vine much skill and science were shown on both sides, the professor being exceedingly lithe and active, and making up for his lack of weight by his quickness.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

The Boys Make a Good Showing for the First Practice of the Season.

The members of the Gun club are wasting no time in getting down to practice. They were out last Sunday on the hill north of town and the record they made at this the first shoot of the year is good evidence that in the tournament here in June Crookston will not come out second best. Out of a possible 25 points A. C. Cowing scored 21, L. A. Larson 20, C. C. Lynch 20, A. R. Fuller 19, T. G. Thompson 20, W. E. Rowe 19, H. Steenerson 8, A. E. Vanstrum 13, George Vine 19, Will Bloom 17, C. O. Espe 16 and L. E. Larsin 12. When it is considered that the badge was won at Grand Forks on a score of 19 out of 25 it will be seen that the above score is a very creditable one.

Thirteen Towns Incorporate.

Thirteen Towns: The Bemidji fire department has organized a relief association in connection with the department, under the by-laws of which any member disabled or injured while in active duty as a fireman will be entitled to $1.00 per day, during disability, and this sum may be increased if the circumstances warrant. In case of death, $50 will be appropriated for funeral expenses. It is an auxiliary the like of which should be connected with every organized fire department.

Cass Lake Independent: By a narrow margin the $75,000.00 appropriation for a fifth normal school at Duluth escaped defeat. The vote on this and on the insane asylum measure indicates that there is a rising sentiment in the state that our institutions are getting needlessly numerous and burdensome. It is not sufficiently strong as yet, however, to overcome the momentum of institutionalism.

Red Lake Falls Courier: Senator Myran's drainage bill, carrying an appropriation of $100,000, was killed in the House. John P. Jacobson headed the opposition against it. Thus they cut off a much needed appropriation from the farmers of the northwest, but spend money like water to give Duluth a new normal school and Anoka and Hastings each an insane asylum, not because the State needs them, but because these towns put up a jobbing combination and bowl for a slice of the state boodle.

McIntosh Tribune: A. F. Cronquist has secured the backing of a number of capitalists none of whom, we understand, are residents of this vicinity, and will open a bank at Erskine as soon as the rooms and furniture are in readiness. He purchased the safe and other furniture of the bank formerly located there. Mr. Cronquist is a good business man, and of known integrity.

Notes From Exchanges.

St. Peter Tribune: Up to date the John Lind administration has found very few reforms necessary but were not already in practice by former governors. In fact John found the business of the state in such good working order that he could find no opening for improvement, so he lets well enough alone.

Warren Sheaf: The capacity of the Stillwater twine plant will be doubled so that the farmers of this state will be independent of the twine trust. The amount agreed upon by the appropriations committee for this purpose was $20,000. On the floor of the House this was increased to $26,000. The work of enlarging the plant will be begun at once. This action of the legislature may lead to a big fight in the future, as it deals a hard blow to the twine trust. It may also result in ruining the twine business of dealers. One bad feature is that it places the labor of criminals in competition with free labor. But the benefits that will come to the farmers from cheap twine will very likely outweigh all objections that can be raised against the plan.

Faribault Republican: It is estimated that the wages of about 500,000 workingmen have been advanced within the past two months. Let it be noted that this prosperity has come about under a Republican administration.

Norman County Index: Settlers who have the money to purchase farms in the Red River Valley should make a note of the fact that lands on the Minnesota side of the river are cheaper than on the Dakota side. There has been more of a boom on the western side and prices have advanced accordingly. Although land over there is worth even more than is asked for it, yet just as good lands can be purchased on this side for less money, and as we are nearer Duluth, the farmer gets more for his crops. There is no better place to settle than in the Red River Valley.

Bedee Budget: We are pained to see the light and thoughtless way in which Speaker Thomas B. Reed is flayed by the republican press. Such attacks are the products of little souls, for surely the very essence of our government is the right of individual opinion. And if Thomas Brackett differs from his party on some minor points, or has balked some local appropriations in saving hundreds of millions to the tax-payer at a time when the burden was already great, he should be praised rather than condemned for his manly independence. Be not, therefore, hasty in your conclusions or severe in your denunciations of the big fellow from Maine. Such men are needed in every crisis, and though the may be good grounds for difference of opinion there are never any grounds for impudence of expression. The country is big enough and its glory great enough for us all.

Detroit Record: Mr. and Mrs. Chas Hume will leave in a few days for Fosston, where they will make their future home. They have been busy the past week packing up the goods in their store, and their household effects, preparatory to moving. Mr. and Mrs. Hume have resided here for many years and have many friends who regret that they have decided to cast their lot elsewhere. But it is the wish of all that success may attend them in their new home.

A Southern Gentlemen.

Of Mr. Clay Clemente, as General Carroll in "A Southern Gentleman," the Omaha Bee says:—

There is not now any wider gap between the young lieutenant and the man of matured age than the natural outgrowth of the years that intervene, and the character is in perfect consonance with itself. It is like his Baron Hohenstaufen in "The New Dominion"—a gem of its kind. Mr. Clement's quite methods, manly ways and conscientious efforts never fail to be pleasing to those who admire the refined and natural. None can excel him in the delivery of a pretty sentiment, in which both of his plays abound, and he assumes the heroic in no less natural and effective manner, for there seems to be shining through it all the outpouring of an earnest soul.

Mr. Clement will be seen here next Tuesday evening.

—Prices away down at Chabot's New York store. See the ad.

Grand Forks Herald:

Elevator men say that an unusually large amount of flax will be own this year throughout the state. The experience of those who raised flax last year was such as to stimulate the industry. The crop was one of the largest and best ever grown anywhere. The average yield of ma n fields was over 25 bushels per acre, and, as the price ranged from $1.06, it was a wonderfully remunerative crop. The Minneapolis & Northern Elevator company shipped 30,000 bushels of flax from Devils Lake last year, and 16,000 bushels from the little station of Glaseton.

Alexandria Post-News: Editor and ex-Congressman Halvor E. Boen is an alderman of Fergus Falls. Fergus is lucky. Its bonded debt will at once be wiped out. It will get its light and water free; telephones will connect every farm in the county with the county capital; it will rain silver dollars there once in each week and all the blessings of Heaven will be had for the asking. Halvor will see to it all, for hasn't the Globe told many times how it all should be done?

Hutchinson Times: When Ridpath, at the dollar-Chicago-platform feed in New York Saturday, declared that Jefferson was the most intelligent Democrat in history, a hundred voices shouted "No, no! Byrnn, Byrnn!" and Ridpath accepted the amendment. Well, it is horse and horse. Nobody seems to know just what Jeffersonism was—and the Lord only know what Bryanism will be next.

Austin Sagach Light: Mr. N. S. Gordon came down from Crookston yesterday. He is making the Polk County Journal a live paper, newsy and up to date.

Elsewhere.

Fertile has sold its old fire apparatus to the village of Beltrami.

For the month of March the Great Northern Railway company's gross earnings were $1,796,392, an increase, $321,315 over the corresponding month last year. For the six months ending March 31, the gross earnings were $15,307,653, being $2,030,756 greater than the gross earnings for the corresponding period in 1897—98.

The Hallock city council will help out the city band to the extent of $25 a month. L. A. Matthews of Sioux City will be band leader.

There was a prize fight on the streets of Bagley last week and the village marshall and constable were among the interested spectators. When the mayor came along, however, he sailed in and parted the combatants.

East Grand Forks is rejoicing over the new sawmill that the town expects to have built there this spring.

James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, has sailed from New York for Europe and will remain abroad for some weeks. The purpose of the great railroad magnate's visit to the other side is said to be to interest foreign capital, in his proposed trans-Pacific steamship line, the moneyed men of New York having responded satisfactorily to the inducements held out by him.

In the state supreme court the constitutionality has been affirmed of the statute relating to making the de facto city of Thief River Falls a city de jure. The attorney general had declined to bring quo warranto proceedings and it was done on authority of the districts court of Red Lake. The law was impeached as special legislation.

A petition signed by 123 persons residing along the line of the Great Northern between Crookston and Moorhead, asking that better service be provided on that branch, has been filed with the railway commissioners. The petitioners allege that the company now runs a mixed train, going north one day and returning the next day, and that the trains are not run on schedule time.

The Missouri legislature passed a bill on March 29, prohibiting the use of chemicals in milk and cream. This action was based on the charge that some Kansas City man was poisoning the people with "embalmed" milk.

Bugler George Schneiter of company I, First North Dakota Volunteers, was shot and killed by insurgents near Manilla on April 24. His mother is a resident of Thief River Falls, Minn.

Editor Clark of the Cass Lake Independent is preaching it to those out there who are unlawfully selling liquor to Indians and others on the reservation.

The Woodmen lodge of Grant Forks has been presented with the prize banner for having the largest membership in state of North Dakota.

The legal rate of interest in Minnesota is now six per cent.

Alexandria will this year give diplomas to the pupils who are promoted from the eighth grade into the high school. Regular eighth grade exercises will be held in addition to the commencement exercises of the high school.

Adjutant General Corbin has drawn a formal order for the return of the 13th Minnesota Volunteers from Manila. They will leave for home the first part of June.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Mrs. Picket, and her little boy of Devils Lake are visiting with Mrs. Geo. Winney, Mrs. Picket's sister.

—The number of the houses of the city will be finished to day by Schmidt and Bowen. If any house has been missed these men would consider it an favor if the fact were reported to them.

—Special prices quoted by the New York store. See advertisement on page eight.

Harry Walker, the noted tenor singer, has returned to railroad work after several months spent in nursing a hurt hand.

—The ministers of the Synod church in the Red River valley met in conference here yesterday to discuss the missionary work being done by that denomination in this section. Rev. O. A. Auberg of Devil's Lake was president.

PRINTING Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

Tis Said....

And truly stated that talk is cheap. This rule has its exceptions. This little talk you are getting here costs money, hence we shall state facts only.

Don't send to Minneapolis or St. Paul for your spring supplies. A chance to figure on your bill is all we ask. We are much better prepared than ever to fill orders promptly, having a wholesale house at our command enables us to quote very close prices

Bring us your Butter and Eggs and get highest market price

We are headquarters for all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds.

Slocum's Grocery,

ROBERT STREET.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—R. A. Wilkinson came up from St. Paul Monday morning.

—M. J. Lally was in from his farm at Gentilly last Saturday.

—There will be two baptisms at the Baptist church next Sunday evening.

—Read the opening chapters of our new serial on page seven of this issue.

—Archie Hillard will go out to the Hillard ranch near Cass Lake next Saturday.

—City Engineer O. L. Hinmery has been at work fixing the grade on Main street.

—A. J. and A. McKinnon are doing a rushing business in the awning line these days.

—A. H. Anderson, of Hallock, returned Sunday afternoon from a trip to Fosston, Bemidji and Cass Lake.

—Adam Zeh and Sam Giheau, county auditor and register of deeds, respectively, of Red Lake county, were in Crookston on Tuesday.

—Like Cincinnatus of old, Representative Marin, his duties to the state having been performed, has again grasped the handles of the plow.

—W. F. Street came up Monday morning from St. Paul, where he has been before the attorney general in reference to the county attorneyship of Beltrami county.

—Judge Hagen last Monday admitted to probate the last will and testament of Thos. W. Knox, of New York State. The deceased owned property in this county.

—John Garceau, of Red Lake Falls, is one of the lucky G. A. R. men. He will hereafter draw a pension of $12 a month, which is an increase of $4 per month.

—As the streets are not yet very smooth it is excusable if bike riders take the sidewalks but that ridge particularly when the bicyclist has no bell ought not to be allowed.

—C. A. Dahl's charger was a little too much for him last Monday night. The animal got away from him and came tearing down Brondway where he was captured in front of Monroe's blacksmith shop.

—The ladies of the Womens' Relief Corps in a body attended the meeting of the G. A. R. last Friday night bringing with them many delicacies which the old soldiers thoroughly enjoyed.

—Charley Lohn, Judge Watts' right hand man, after spending two weeks in the Twin Cities, returned to his old stamping ground where he will put in his time studying and practicing stenography until the next term of court opens.

—A crew started out east Tuesday morning for Gen water Lake, whence they will drive the logs to Crookston. It will probably be some six weeks before the logs reach here. The timber at present being sawed is what is left over from last year.

—W. H. Bell and family have arrived in the city. Mr. Bell has been in business in St. Hilaire but will open up a confectioner's store in the Reichtt block at the corner of Main and Second streets, in the store just vacated by A. C. Billon.

—Attorney Martin O'Brien newly papered and fitted up theoffice room in the McKinnon block formerly occupied by Judge Holt, and moved into his new quarters last Monday. His new office is larger and more pleasantly situated than his former one.

—Supt. Frank A. Weld, of the Stillwater public schools has been elected by the state Normal board to the presidency of the Moorhead Normal school. L. C. Lord, the present president, having accepted the presidency of the Normal school at Charleston, Ill.

—Those who have read "The Devil's Playground" will be pleased to know that we have secured a serial story by the same author. "Those who sit in Darkness," the opening chapters of which appear on page 7 of this issue, in our estimation, far out-classes its predecessors.

—Louis and John Lohn were in the city Sunday morning. The latter was on his way back from Minneapolis where he had been for some ten days during which time his brother, Charley Lohn, court stenographer, was also in the Flour City, but unfortunately neither brother knew that the other one was there.

—Next Sunday evening Rev. Fisher will give the first of a special series of evening discourses. The first one will be on "Olive Cromwell and the Mesmcre of Puritanism." This is a timely subject since Tuesday of this week was the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of the great Englishman whom the two leading nations of the world delight to honor.

—George B. Erskine of Fargo is in the city.

—A. T. Campion of Angus was in the city on Sunday.

—William Skinner of Fisher was in the city last Monday.

—P. F. Spaulding of Warren spent Monday in Crookston.

—A. N. Hixson spent Monday in Fargo, N. D., on business.

—The opening chapters of our new serial appear in this issue.

M. A. Brattland, of Ada, was in the city Monday morning.

—F. A. Grady was down from Red Lake Falls on Monday last.

—Attorney Shnrpe was up from Ada Monday on legal business.

—C. E. Sawyer went out on the St. Vincent line Tuesday morning.

—Father Murphy left for Bemidji and Cass Lake Monday morning.

—L. Billington, cashier of Scandia bank was at Grand Forks on business last Monday.

—Lou G. Hancock spent Sunday at McIntosh at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter.

—Archie McKinnin was a railway passenger Tuesday morning bound for the city of Solway.

—M. O. Sortedoli left Tuesday morning to take up his abstract business at Red Lake Falls.

—Jas. Kronenberg, of Fosston, came up from the Twin Cities Tuesday morning and went on out home.

—P. W. Horton and Mrs. D. D. Horton of Maple Bay were in the city last Sunday to consult with Dr. Gendron.

—A. W. Vance went to Chicago Sunday night. While there he will buy some new machinery for the Erskine brick yards.

—Wm. McLean had a case of larceny last Monday, one C. McAvoy having stolen a pair of gloves from E. Brosseau. The sentence was five days.

—E. A. Nelson, editor of Hallock News, and his wife, have been spending most of the past week in this city with the family of Mr. Nelson's brother, N. J. Nelson.

—James E. Morrisser of the Crookston Iron Works, having spent Monday night at home started out again Thursday morning for Red Lake, where he is fixing boilers on the lake steamers.

—A. B. Christie, of East Grand Forks, was in Crookston on Tuesday and was a caller at this office. Mr. Christie has spent the winter at St. Paul as one of the officers in the state senate.

—Assistant County Superintendent Gooler reports about three-fourths of the spring school of the county have begun within the last two weeks. The spring sessions continue from two to three months.

—Sores E. Borkee and John E. Burkee, formerly in business in St. Hilaire have been adjudicated bankrupts. The first meeting of the creditors will take place before Olof J. Vaule, referee in bankruptcy at his office in Crookston May 1.

—May 14 will be the tenth anniversary of the foundation of the Epworth League, the young people's society of the Methodist church. The local chapter will fittingly observe the day. A special program is being prepared.

—Miss Ruth Lademann, who for the past four months has been stenographer for Finch-Smith Co., has resigned her position. She left Tuesday for Argyle where she will spend a week visiting friends, after which she will return to her home at Buffalo, Minn.

—Frank Gravel and wife reached Crookston Tuesday morning after an absence of about a year most of which time they have spent in Montana. They will make Crookston their future home, Mr. Gravel representing his old firm in Northern Minnesota and North Dakota.

—There were about twenty men in from Gentilly last Monday to get Attorney Campbell to assist them in getting the titles to certain claims, but after investigating the matter Mr. Campbell told them that there was now no hope for them but that they would have to pay for the lands if they wished to get them.

—Miss Mamie Westerberg gave a party last Saturday afternoon to about twenty-five of her young friends in honor of Harry Hitchcock, whose birthday it was. The afternoon was pleasantly spent by the little folks in playing games, after which delicious refreshments were served. All went home feeling that they had a very enjoyable time.

—"They that Sit In Darkness," by John Mackie, is one of the most interesting stories of Australian pioneer life that has ever been given to the public. The author spent several years on the island continent and his descriptions of the country and people are based on personal observation. The opening chapters appear on the seventh page of this issue.

—Robert Teal was down from Eddid last Saturday.

—E. M. Walsh made a business trip to Solway the latter part of last week.

—A. C. Billon, the jeweler, who came to Crookston about six months ago, has moved to Detroit, Minn.

—Mrs. Hoverstnd, wife of Supt. T. A. Hoverstad of the Crookston experimental farm, is visiting with friends in St. Paul.

—Next Monday night will be held the annual election of the church trustees and officers of the Baptist society of this city.

—Miss Addie Marin, one of the teachers in the Fisher public schools, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Crookston.

—Rev. J. T. Smith, Methodist pastor at Argyle, and Rev. A. E. Rowson, of this city, exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

The contract for the erection of John Waterstradt's two story block on Main street has been let to L. J. Linder and John Florin.

—J. O. Sargeant and L. W. Clark left Monday for the town of Hammond where they will erect a handsome dwelling place on the estate of Lyford Sargent.

—Effie Smith of East Grand Forks has been granted a divorce by Judge Watts, from E. A. Smith. Desertion was charged, and on this ground the decree was granted.

—M. G. Peterson, county treasurer, went down to Fertile Saturday night and thence out to his farm in the town of Garden to see how the spring work was getting on.

—Wm. Marin has gone east on the Duluth line to look after putting the machinery in a new boat of M. R. Brown's which the latter will launch on one of the lakes out there.

—Senator Grindeland passed through the city on Friday last on his way from St. Paul to her home at Warren. His commission bill was one of the important measures of the session.

—W. L. Vannet was at Fertile last Saturday and Sunday looking after his interests in that enterprising village. He says the farmers down there were all seeding the latter part of last week.

—W. M. Arnold and John Stewart will begin in a few days to erect a frame building on lot 23, block 13, in South Crookston. Mr. Stewart is at present up north buying cattle but expects to reach Crookston some time next week.

—E. Strunaham, one of the employers in the office of the St. Hilaire Lumber company at St. Hilaire, spent last Sunday with friends in this city. The machinery in the mill at St. Hilaire began to whirl the day before yesterday.

—In the land contest case between Messrs. Jones and Kelley involving a piece of land not far from Crookston, Receiver August George has decided in favor of Kelley and Register Sylvester Peterson in favor of Jones. The case will be appealed.

—Herb Hunt left Monday morning for Devils Lake, N. D., where he will assume his old position as cook in the restaurant of W. H. Reed with whom he worked for a year and a half before he came to Crookston. Herb will be especially missed by the base ball crowds here, but the Devils Lake players will have the benefit this summer of his scientific knowledge of the national sport.

—In the probate court on Saturday the last will and testament of John Francis Murray was admitted to probate. The Judge also appointed as administrator in the estnte of Elizabeth Matteson, deceased, her husband, Frank C. Matteson. Mrs. Matteson had been living in St. Croix, Wis. and the estate of which Mr. Matteson has been administrator is a half section situated about three miles north of this city.

—Miss Gerty Glennon, who has during the past eight months been studying vocal and instrumental music at the Conservatory in Boston, Mass., is expected home some time in July. On her way west she will visit in Michigan at the home of her room-mate and while there these two young ladies and another young lady student from Boston, who is a public reader, will give a concert. Miss Gerty's many friends in the city will be pleased to learn of her success in her musical studies.

—Prof. E. C. Mitchell, who during the last six months has been teaching music to large classes in several of the surrounding towns will close up his work in about two weeks. Last night at Fertile his pupils gave a very creditable recital in the opera house. One week from tonight his music scholars at Red Lake Falls will give a public concert. The latter part of May Prof. Mitchell will spend at his old home in Northern Michigan, going thence to Chicago where he will likely take instruction during the summer months under the renowned musician Gottschalk.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient."

But some stubborn people wait until "down sick" before trying to ward off illness or cure it. The wise recognise in the word "Hood's" assurance of health.

For all blood troubles, scrofula, pimples, as well as diseases of the kidneys, liver and bowels, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the effective and faultless cure.

Poor Blood—"The doctor said there were not seven drops of good blood in my body. Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and made me strong and well." SUSIE E. BROWN, 16 Astor Hill, Lynn, Mass.

Dyspepsia—"We all use Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cured my brother-in-law and myself of dyspepsia. I owe my life to it." M. H. KIRK, 607 Franklin St., Philadelphia.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—See Chalot's advertisement on the eighth page.

J. R. Boome was in from his farm on Saturday last.

—James Petterson, of Warren, spent Monday night in the city.

—Attorney E. J. Grover was over from East Grand Forks Tuesday.

—Mrs. Moyer, of Montevideo, has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. W. D. Scott.

—Elsewhere in this issue will be found the special advertisement of Chalot's New York store.

—The news notes from the Journal's county correspondents will be found on page two of this issue.

—Will Andrist and John Risch are putting up neat dwelling houses on Sixth street, near Riverside hospital.

—D. Morrow and James Nisbet were down from Mallory Monday night to attend the Masonic Ladies.

—C. V. Vassens, who does considerable buying and selling of cattle in this section, was in Crookston Friday last.

Joseph Simpson, one of the prominent farmers living south of the city was a pleasant caller at the Journal office Monday afternoon.

—Judge Watts was at Halstad yesterday and the day before issuing final papers to foreigners who intend to become citizens.

—Mr. Skinner of Fisher on Tuesday last purchased from the Crookston marble works a monument for his wife, who died a few weeks ago.

—M. O. Berg, who has been a miller in the Valley Roller Mills at Crookston, has accepted a position with the proprietors of the Halstad mill.

—C. A. Hitchcock left last Thursday night for his old home in Muscatine, Iowa, to be present at the golden anniversary of the marriage of his parents.

—Sheriff Lawrence left Tuesday morning for Hannah, N. D., where he will transact some business and make a short visit with his daughter, Mrs. R. H. Catherwood.

—F. H. Hillard has bought the house and lot of Arny Grundysen on Cowing street. M. G. Peterson, county treasurer, who at present occupies this residence, will have to move elsewhere within a month.

—One of the pleasant features in connection with the athletic exhibition Tuesday night was the playing of Prof. Rigg's band. The boys were at the corner of Robert and Main street and a large crowd gathered to hear the music. The open air concerts soon to begin will be very popular.

—W. C. Leistikow, proprietor of the Grafton flour mills, was in Crookston last week looking over the field preparatory to entering into the milling business here. It is just possible that he may buy the Valley Roller Mills. He has gone to Minneapolis to consult with W. J. Murphy, president of the Crookston Power Company, about the furnishing of power with which to run the mill.

—When Mr. Hamel went out to his barn last Tuesday a strange sight presented itself to him. His horse had got loose and was standing quietly in the midst of a mixup that would beggar description—oats and bran covered the floor, all the window screens for his residence that had been nosed down by the animal and trampled under foot. A stove was there also in the mess, etc., etc. It was confusion worse confounded.

—Frank Mathey was in on Saturday from his farm in the town of Fulrfax, five miles south of the city. Mr. Mathey says that owing to the fact that the drainage ditch in that section was not cleared of weeds last fall nor of late this spring, it was unable to carry off the surplus water, so that part of the land out there has been flooded for a time, and hence is too wet as yet for seeding. Another year, he thinks, the farmers in the vicinity will see to it that the ditch is kept clear.

Cold Hard Facts...

There are some more things that you should think about if you are a Bicycle Buyer

YOU shouldn't pay a cent for dignity. You shouldn't pay a cent for name. When it gets right down to cold facts all that you should pay for any Bicycle is quality, and on the basis of quality Victories will stand any criticism, any examination, any comparison, any test. You don't have to be an expert or a mechanical engineer to figure out that thirty-five dollars is plenty to pay for quality. But of course if you want to pay fifteen or twenty dollars for somebody's name or somebody's dignity—well, the money is yours, not ours. All we have to say about Victories is that they are high grade wheels, an honest wheel, a time tried wheel, and in our opinion no wheel on earth is better constructed and no wheel by any name is worth any more. Today we show many different varieties of the wheel and you can have your pick, any size you want, any gear you want, any fittings you want and any guarantee you may require. Remember, for thirty-five dollars—cash or time. Whether you are a man or woman, an experienced rider or a novice, whether you want a wheel for business or for pleasure or for both, you will find the Victory wheel all that we claim for it—an honest wheel, honestly made honestly advertised, and sold at an honest price, and as good as any wheel at any price, no matter what is claimed for the other or what name it bears. Come in and look at the Victory. It is for you to say.

Hawkins & Olds.

—See the special announcements of the New York store on the last page.

—Go to the New York store if you wish to get goods at low prices. See ad. on page eight.

—George Kyle as a public reader scored a success at the Athletic exhibition last Tuesday night.

—L. A. Larsen of the foundry of Espe & Larsen, was at Grand Forks Tuesday and got a contract for several tons of castings. Yesterday he drove over to the Red river to get a boiler.

—Monday night the young people's society of the Baptist church elected these officers: President, T. E. Clydesdale; vice-president, Charley Ray; secretary, Maude Fiske; treasurer, Lorne Wilde.

—It is unlawful to catch fish with anything save a hook till May 1 and the game warden in this city proposes to enforce the law. Our anglers, therefore, would better restrain themselves for two or three more days.

—J. W. Schlievogt was in from his farm five miles west of town on the Fisher road last Monday. He reported no seeding in his neighborhood up to that time, but said work would begin the latter part of the week if there were in the meantime no rains.

Births.

PLANTE.

To Mr. and Mrs. George Plante on Saturday, April 22, a boy.

CARPENTER.

To Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter at McIntosh on Saturday, April 22, a boy.

Deaths.

GLUND.

Mrs. Chas. Hoglund, of Garfield, of blood poisoning Saturday April 15. Deceased was about thirty years old and leaves behind to mourn her loss besides a loving husband, three small children. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon.

ENGELSTAD.

Mrs. C. H. R. Engelstad, of Woodside, aged 50 years, Thursday, April 20.

KNUDSON.

Ole Knudson, aged 12 years, on Friday, April 21. He was an orphan boy living with his grandfather, Ole Knudson.

PELKA.

On Tuesday, April 25, at his home in the town of Kertsenville, Polk county, Moses Pelka, aged 54 years. He leaves a wife and seven children, one of his daughters being Mrs. Napoleon St. Aubin, Crookston. Mr. Pelka is one of the old settlers, having come to the county from the southern part of the state eighteen years ago. The remains will be buried tomorrow in the cemetery at Gentilly.

BRENNAN.

At St. Paul on Sunday, April 23, Mrs. Thos. A. Brennan, of paralysis. Mrs. Brennan was the mother of Thos. F. Brennan of Crookston. She was 58 years old.

EASBY.

At San Antonio, Texas, George Easby, aged 72 years. Mr. Easby went south several months ago in search of health, he having been ill for some time before that. He is a native of Vermont, coming west almost 20 years ago and settling at Euclid where his home has been ever since. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Milner of Euclid who were with him in the west with several months ago and the funeral will take place the first part of next week.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

PHYSICIANS

A. A. Just M. D.
HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office in McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn

ATTORNEYS

H. Steenerson,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Office in Opera Block Crookston, Minn

Miller & Foote,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
Offices, corner Second street and Robert streets
Crookston, Minn.

TIME CARD OF TRAINS. Crookston

NORTHERN PACIFIC

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:37 pm	8:37 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6:30 am	6:30 am

C. A. SHANKEY, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	*Daily	†Except Sunday	LEAVE
8.55 am	From Grand Forks, Winnipeg and West		9.00 am
6.00 pm	Minn., St. Paul and points east		6.05 pm
10.30 pm	Fisher, Stephen, Argyle, Wahpeton		10.40 am
6.00 pm	St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls		6.30 am
4.05 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior		7.00 am
5.45 pm	Sunday, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo		7.30 am

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

D. BELL, Ticket Agent.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

CALUMPIT IS TAKEN

MACARTHUR'S DIVISION CAPTURES THE INSURGENT CAPITAL.

Heat Accomplished After Fierce Fighting and a Long Pursuit—Killed and Wounded—Rebels Well Drilled—Every Foot of Ground Disputed by Thoroughly Organized Troops — First South Dakota the Heaviest Loser in the Battle.

NEW YORK, April 27.—A dispatch to The Journal from Manila, April 26, says:

General MacArthur's division, 6,000 troops, has annihilated the insurgents at Calumpit.

Aguinaldo's troops made a stubborn resistance, but were driven to the hills.

Eight Americans were killed.

Calumpit is the key to the whole of Northern Luzon.

MANILA, April 28.—General MacArthur's division fought its way to the Filipino trenches before Calumpit during the day, advancing four miles, mostly through woods and jungle and across the Bagbag river. This was accomplished at a cost to the Americans of six killed and 28 wounded. The First South Dakota were the heavy losers. After fording the river the South Dakotans pursued the insurgents to the outskirts of Calumpit, but the town was found so strongly protected that General MacArthur deemed it best to withdraw the tired fighters and to go into camp for a night's rest before making the final assault. The largest buildings in Calumpit were being fired by the Filipinos while the Americans were crossing the river fully a mile away, indicating the enemy's intention to abandon the place.

GENERAL IRVING HALE.

The insurgent forces were well drilled. Every foot of ground was tenaciously disputed by thoroughly organized troops who stood remarkably firm even before artillery. The enemy had planned to wreck our artillery transport train. This but a span of the iron railway bridge over the river was destroyed, hampering the American transportation for some time. The Filipinos cut the girder, intending to have the structure fall with the train, but it collapsed prematurely of its own weight. The Bagbag river, which is about 100 yards wide at that point, was splendidly fortified and the Americans were compelled to approach across an open space from which the rebels had cleared every obstruction in sight.

Attempt Was a Failure,

General Whéaton's brigade approached the river along the railway and General Hale swept westward toward the railway. The armored train was being guarded by Chinamen, the Twentieth Kansas regiment advancing in extended order on the left and the First Montana regiment, with the Utah light artillery, on the right. The rapid-firing guns on the train "opened the ball" at 11:30 a. m. The Montana regiment and the Utah artillery batteries at the same time entered the jungle from which the insurgents poured heavy volleys. In the course of an hour the through the woods to the open space in front of the river and the artillery immediately on wheeling in the open began shelling the Filipino trenches.

Americans Had Forced a Passage

Colonel Frederick Funston of the Kansas regiment called for volunteers to cross the river, and the colonel himself, Lieutenant Ball, a private of Company K, a private of Company E, Trumpeter Barsfield and Corporal Ferguson of Company I, crawled along the iron girders. Having reach the broken span, the small but valorous party of Americans slid down the caisson, swam to the shore and crawled up the bank. The little colonel led the way to the trenches, revolver in hand, while the few remaining Filipinos bolted.

General Hale's troops on the railway had the hardest fight. They followed the north bank of the river nearest the town from the east with the First Nebraska regiment on the left and the First South Dakota and the Fifty-first Iowa beyond. The colonel's line of advance was mostly jungle, but the even in the open spaces. When the cheers of the Kansas troops announced that the Americans had crossed the river General Hale's men began to form the Chico, a branch of the Bagbag stretching to the northeast. The general himself plunged in up to his neck and the regiments floundered across the stream. The guns of the Utah light artillery were dragged over next and formed into an extended line to advance upon the trenches before Calumpit, from which the Filipinos were pouring continuous volleys.

Filipinos Stood Their Ground

The armored car had one man killed and two wounded. The Kansas regiment had three wounded during the charge and the Utah light artillery one killed and two wounded. Most of the other casualties befell the South Dakota regiment. It is difficult to estimate the insurgent losses, but they had no fewer than 70 killed, many of them by the artillery.

BIG FIGHT AT QUENGUA.

Americans Lost Seven Killed and Forty-four Wounded.

MANILA, April 24.—Four men of the Nebraska regiment, including Captain Stotzenberg and Lieutenant Sisson, and three men of the Fourth cavalry were killed and 44 wounded in an engagement at Quenqua. The Filipinos retreated with small loss.

The engagement developed into a disastrous, though successful fight. The insurgents had a horseshoe trench about a mile long, encircling a rice field on the edge of a wood. Major Bell with 40 cavalrymen encountered a strong outpost. One of his men was killed and five were wounded by a volley. The Americans retired, carrying their wounded under fire with great difficulty, being closely pursued, a fog enabling the enemy to creep close up to them.

Major Bell sent for reinforcements to regain the bodies of the killed cavalrymen and a battalion of the Nebraska regiment under Major Ford arrived and advanced until checked by a volley from the intrenchments. The Americans were 800 yards from the trenches

Behind Rice Furrows for Two Hours.

Seven men were struck, one dying from his wounds, while waiting for the artillery to come up. Finally the Second battalion arrived, then Colonel Stotzenberg, who had spent the night with his family at Manila, came upon the field. The men immediately recognized him and raised a cheer.

Colonel Stotzenberg, deciding to charge as the best way out of the difficulty, led the attack at the head of his regiment. He fell with a bullet in his breast, dying instantly, about 200 yards from the breastworks. Lieutenant Sisson fell with a bullet in his heart. In the meantime the artillery had arrived and began shelling the trenches.

The Filipinos stood until the Nebraska troops were right on the trenches and then they bolted to the second line of intrenchments a mile back. The Nebraskans lost two privates killed and many wounded, including two lieutenants.

THE BATTLE OF APRIL 23.

General Otis Furnishes a List of the Casualties.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—General Otis has furnished the war department with the following list of casualties. The killed are:

First Nebraska—Colonel John M. Stotzenberg; K, Second Lieutenant L. L. Sisson; B, Quartermaster Sergeant J. F. Storch; H, Sergeant Charles Melecko.

Fourth Cavalry—Company I, Privates William B. Jackson and William B. Skinner.

Among the injured are:

Fifty-first Iowa—E, Corporal George E. Mariner, Lewis Hunter; L, Privates Carl Gardner, Walter Lanson, Robert L. Dailey; M, Adrian Hackett, Bert Thomas.

DEWEY IS PERPLEXED.

Fate of Gilmore and His Comrades Still a Mystery.

MANILA, April 24.—Admiral Dewey, in an interview, said the expedition of the Yorktown to Baler was purely to rescue the Spanish soldiers and priests who are being besieged in a church there. The soldiers refused to surrender when ordered to lay down their arms by General Rios at the end of the Paris peace conference. Admiral Dewey said he did not know what had become of Lieutenant Gilmore and the 14 men in the launch. They had been sent to sound the mouth of the river, but went beyond the bend, out of sight of the Yorktown. The supposition is they were captured or killed by the Spaniards or the 400 insurgents who are besieging the Spanish garrison.

DEAL ABOUT COMPLETE.

Standard Oil Company Secures the Richest Copper Properties.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The absolute statement is made by one of the most important interests in the copper trade that H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company, acting for a syndicate, has obtained control of many of the heaviest producing copper mine properties in the United States, including principally Montana mines and those in the Lake Superior region, including Anaconda, Isle Royale and Copper King. The deal, however, is yet in an incomplete shape, and on that account those most interested are averse to giving out any details. All the arrangements for carrying through have been placed, according to this authority, in the hands of Mr. Rogers.

FOUR-CENT FARE PROPOSED

New Street Railway Ordinance in Chicago City Council.

CHICAGO, April 20.—The first street railway ordinance which provides for a 4-cent fare, 10 per cent compensation to the city and the option of municipal ownership, has been introduced in the city council. The company seeking a 20-year franchise under these terms is the Chicago Western Elevated Railway company.

Captured in Wisconsin.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Joseph T. Nightingale, the former secretary of the Long Island Building and Loan association, who in December, 1894, absconded leaving a deficiency of $8,000 in his accounts, was brought to this city during the day from Green Bay, Wis.

Suicide of Colonel Clark.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 24.—Colonel M. Lewis Clark of Louisville, the well known racing judge, committed suicide in his room at the Gaston hotel. Colonel Clark had been indisposed for several days and his physician announced he was suffering from melancholia.

QUAY IS ACQUITTED

JURY RETURNS A VERDICT IN FAVOR OF THE SENATOR.

Declared Not Guilty of Conspiracy to Use State Funds for His Own Unlawful Gain—Is Immediately Appointed United States Senator to Succeed Himself by Governor Stone.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—After being out all night the jury in the Quay case declared the defendant not guilty of conspiring to use for his own unlawful gain and profit the funds of the state of Pennsylvania. This verdict was announced by the foreman of the jury just as the hands of the courtroom time piece pointed to 11 o'clock.

There was an attempt at a demonstration, but this was sternly repressed by the court officers, whose loud cries of "order," "order," "silence," were effective in silencing these jubilant spirits who wished to give vent to their satisfaction by cheering. The defendant was unable, however, to keep back those who struggled to get to Senator Quay, and congratulate him. Their words spent, tables were brushed aside, and hats were smashed by the crowd. Senator Quay, with a broad smile on his face, responded pleasantly to the greetings and congratulations of those who crowded around. A few of his political friends were there, and these men were loud and sincere in their expression.

Was Not Disappointed.

Senator Quay did not look at the jury at all or in any way express gratitude to them for their verdict in his favor. His friends, however, surrounded the jurors, patted them on the back, and told them what heroes they were. Senator Quay's only comment on the verdict was:

"Well, I expected it."

Four ballots were taken before the final decision was reached. The first ballot stood 10 to 2 for acquittal, the next two stood 11 to 1. The one standing out for conviction by this time had very much modified his reasons for conviction, and when the last ballot was taken he voted for acquittal. The jurors who stood out for conviction are said to have been Charles Penzler, shoemaker, Seventeenth ward, and Edward Bevan, painter, Nineteenth ward.

Penzler voted for acquittal after the first ballot, but Bevan held out until morning, when the final ballot was taken.

APPOINTED SENATOR.

Following His Acquittal Governor Stone Names Quay to Succeed Himself.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 24.—Shortly after noon Governor Stone appointed Matthew Stanley Quay as senator to serve until the next session of the legislature. The appointment is addressed to the president of the pro tem senate, and it is stated in the letter to be made under the authority of Clause 2, of Section 5, of Article 1, of the Constitution of the United States.

Believes Quay Will Be Seated.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Senator McMillan of Michigan said it was quite precedents are against seating Senator Quay, he is inclined to think the precedents will not be observed, and that Senator Quay will be seated.

MADE A PROTEST.

German Ambassador Complains of the Language of Captain Coghlan.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The German government has entered a formal protest against the language used by Captain Coghlan of the cruiser Raleigh at the Union League Club banquet in New York last Friday night.

The protest was lodged with Secretary Hay through the German ambassador, Herr von Holleben.

Secretary Hay replied that the language appeared to have been used at a dinner in a club and could not be regarded as an official or public utterance in the sense that would warrant the state department in acting. However, the navy department was fully competent to take such action as the case seemed to require. With this statement the ambassador was content for the time at least, and will doubtless await a reasonable length of time upon the navy department.

TEA EXPERT AT ST. PAUL.

Collector of Customs Asked to Reconsider Case.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Assistant Secretary Spalding has decided to ask the collector of customs at St. Paul to recommend a tea expert, who may be temporarily appointed as government examiner for that section. This action is made necessary from the fact that the civil service law no eligible list from which to make a selection. As soon as this list is furnished a permanent appointment will be made.

JURY FAILED TO AGREE.

No Verdict in the Case Against Lake City Lynchers.

CHARLESTON, S.C., April 24.—At 10:40 a. m. the jury in the Lake City case reported its inability to reach a verdict. The jury was out 25 hours.

In dismissing the jury Judge Bellinger was again moved to tears as he referred to the terrible crime. The case goes over to the next term of court for retrial.

Spanish Elections Quiet.

MADRID, April 24.—The ministerial elections for the new cortes were held during the day and passed off tranquilly throughout the country. They have resulted in giving the government a larger majority in the senate than it had secured in the chamber of deputies.

Navigation Open at Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Navigation practically opened with the departure of the George N. Orr for Buffalo. This is the first of the grain fleet to get away for that port from Chicago and many other boats are preparing to sail soon.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, April 20.

Taliferro was elected United States senator for Florida on the first ballot in the joint assembly.

Former Representative Kilhorne of California died at Garfield hospital, Washington, Wednesday.

Cardinal Philip Krements, archbishop of Cologne, is dying. He was born in Germany during the year 1819, and was created a cardinal in 1893.

Sir J. Miller's 3-year-old bay gelding Korosko, ridden by Tod Sloan, won the Cupthorn plate at Upsom. The betting was 4 to 1 against Kornako.

Brigadier General Charles King, who has been taken suddenly ill, and who is unable to continue in command of his brigade, has been relieved of further duty and has been ordered to return to the United States on the first transport sailing from Manila for home.

Friday, April 21.

The American Shipbuilding company has been organized.

The Burlington has announced its reorganization plan.

Fourteen thousand more regulars are to be sent to the Philippines.

The Thirteenth Minnesota is scheduled to sail for home June 20.

A meeting party of the Thirteenth Minnesota was attacked by Filipinos, who were repulsed. One Minnesotan was injured.

A manifestly false report has been received by steamer of the arrest of the commander of the German cruiser Falke, at Samoa.

Captain Samuel Fullerton, an old resident of Minnesota, was found asphyxiated in Minneapolis. It was thought to be a case of suicide.

The Great Northern is said to have joined hands with the American Steel and Wire company for the development of Minnesota railway, iron mining and dock interests.

Saturday, April 22.

M. Edouard Jules Henri Poilleron, the French poet and dramatist, is dead.

The United States supreme court will adjourn for the prescut term on the 22nd of May.

The American Glass company has advanced prices of window glass 10 per cent, to take effect at once.

The governor of Alabama has issued a call for an extra session of the legislature to repeal the constitutional convention act.

Secretary Alger has cabled to Major General Brooke an order extending the maturity of all liabilities "collectible by the judicial sale of real estate," until May 1, 1900.

The Chicago and Alton railroad company has increased the wages of 800 section men on the two divisions between Chicago and Bloomington and between Dwight and Peoria from $1.10 to $1.25 per day.

Monday, April 24.

Department stores throughout the country are uniting to fight the trusts.

George F. Koll, for the last few years editor of the New York Clipper, is dead.

The Missouri river is close to the danger line at Omaha. Union Pacific tracks are under water.

Mayor Tuhle of Alcester, S. D., has been convicted of sending obscene letters through the mails.

Frederick A Ross, for six years mayor of Terre Haute, is dead after a long illness of Bright's disease.

Horace Scott, colored, and Edward Zickmond, a young white man, fought to a draw with 300 rounds at Chicago.

Rev. Robert Ryland, probably the oldest Baptist clergyman and educator in the United States, is dead at Lexington, Ky., aged 94.

Tuesday, April 25.

Brigadier General John C. Bates, U. S. V., who was recently relieved from duty in Cuba, will go to Manila.

Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn reports the receipts from Porto Rico for four weeks in March as being $130,850.

J. Baldwin is trying to form a company to erect a hotel to cost $2,000,000 on the site of the old Baldwin, San Francisco.

American lumbermen have petitioned the treasury department to enforce the countervailing clause of the Dingley bill against the province of Ontario.

The commissary department of the army has been authorized to issue to volunteer regiments about to be mustered in fish in lieu of the beef ration now issued.

Major Francis S. Dodge of the pay department, recently relieved from duty at Denver, has been selected for the payment of the troops of the Cuban army as a condition of its disbandment.

Wednesday, April 26.

Tim Murphy, the well known comedian, is critically ill at Antioch, Wis.

Don Carlos, the pretender, is said to have sent a fresh manifesto to his adherents.

The St. Paul and Duluth has just ordered 10 new locomotives and 500 new box cars.

Vice President Hobart continues almost the same, present conditions indicating a slow improvement.

Japanese delegates to the peace conference at The Hague have arrived at Victoria, B. C., on the Empress of China.

About 200 houses of the town of Gruba, Hungary, have been burned. The charred remains of seven women and four children have been recovered from the ruins.

The Northern Pacific has placed orders for about 4,000 miles of steel rails, the delivery of which has just commenced. The contracts are mostly with the Illinois Steel company and amount to about $700,000.

M. S. POULTRY FENCING is thoroughly interwoven and has long horizontal wires, which strengthen it greatly.

A FENCE, NOT A NETTING.

Like a fabric, it can be properly stretched and erected with few posts and without top and bottom rails. Has cable selvage. Each roll contains the number of rods in the fence every foot. Each roll contains the name, M. S. trade mark. None other genuine. We are manufacturers also of a full line of farm fences, GABLED FIELD AND HOG FENCE without lower cable barbed. All horizontal wires galvanized.

STEEL WEB PICKET FENCE Ideal fence for parks, cemeteries, etc. Steel pickets, coils, etc. Everything the best of its kind.

DE KALB FENCE CO., 100 High St., DE KALB, ILL.

Feb. July 21, 1898. Feb. July 6, 1899.

FOR SALE BY FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

THE Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED

....Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific cutting power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,
AUSTIN, MINN.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE—Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?

It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our

STERLING GRADES OF SEEDS

are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. It is mailed free on application. Our seeds are sold by leading merchants.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., SEED GROWERS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

STERLING QUALITY SEEDS

It is the interest that every farmer should have the best seeds that can be had. Get the best qualities of the kinds you buy.

THEY THAT SIT IN DARKNESS

A STORY OF THE AUSTRALIAN NEVER-NEVER

BY

JOHN MACKIE

AUTHOR OF "THE DEVILS PLAYGROUND" AND "SINNERS TWAIN."

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY.

PREFACE.

As it is a far cry from the Great Lone Land of North America to the lonelier Never-Never of tropical Australia, perhaps it may be as well to say something explanatory. In my wayward youth, when necessity and an irrepressible love of adventure made me a wanderer in strange places, I figured in a humble way as a pioneer of civilization in the wild country it has been my endeavor to describe in these pages. I was the first white man to build a house and settle on the Van Alphen river in the far northern territory, and it was there I supported life for weeks together on crows, hawks, snakes and currajong roots. That was before I became, among other things, a gold digger in Queensland and a mounted policeman on the frontier in North America.

JOHN MACKIE.

London.

CHAPTER I.

KILLED BY THE BLACKS.

In July, 1885, I was "down on my luck" and a wanderer in the wild Never-Never of tropical Australia, by the comparatively untenanted shores of the Carpentarian gulf. But, though midwinter in that land of topsy turvydom, the thermometer stood all day at 90 in the shade, and the relentless sun blazed down like a ball of fire from a cloudless, steel blue sky.

This was the year of perhaps the greatest gold rush that Australia had ever seen since gold had first been discovered on the island continent, and I, Richard Parker, commonly called Dick, your humble servant, by a remarkable accident was false to the traditions of a never failing bad luck for once in not being one of its victims. When the discovery of gold was reported in the unexplored Kimberley district in Western Australia and the cry went up that the veritable land of Ophir had been found at last, from every spot on earth where nomadic man wrests a living from Mother Earth men flocked to the new El Dorado.

Gold diggers are like sheep: let one of them start out for a "duffer" rush, and all the others will follow him blindly.

My mate Jack and I were on our way to this rush. But at the time of which I write had I possessed all the gold in Australia it would have been gladly given by me in exchange for a drink of water, a sedative, an opiate, or anything that would have soothed or sent me to sleep forever; for my body was in the clutches of that demon of the gulf, the fever and ague! and yet, there—within a hundred yards of me—was the creek which I could not reach. My body was consumed by a fierce heat which even water could not cool, and my head was a chaos of wild, insane fancies—a prey to the morbid imaginings of my own wretched self.

My comrade, Jack Tyndall, had left camp shortly before me to look for the horses. I could see and hear, but could not properly understand nor think, far less act. My delusions, born of the delirium, were painfully vivid. But a laughing jackass with its loud, absurd cackle called my wandering senses to the fact that some one was coming along the trail. It was a swagsman; he was tall and dark, and, at first sight, so like Jack that had it been possible for me to have moved or called, I would most assuredly have sung out to him; as it was, I lay in a sort of trance. From my shaded vantage ground he could be seen plainly enough: a typical swagsman, not different from thousands of others one may see all over Australia. He passed within 60 yards from where I lay, trudging along wearily, looking neither to the right nor left.

When he had gone some 50 yards farther, past that part of the trail opposite me, he threw down his swag under a great shady bloodwood tree.

I must have gone to sleep or become unconscious again, for on coming to my senses a strange drama was being enacted before my eyes. There was such an air of unreality about it all that I fancied myself the victim of some optical illusion, and therefore did not act with that promptness the occasion called for.

He sat under the shade of a tree, reading. Before him was a small fire, upon which his billy rested. He had taken off his boots and hat and was enjoying a pipe. But behind the tree against which he leaned was a naked black fellow with a long, cruel looking barbed spear raised in one hand. So motionless was he that he might have been carved out of a solid block of ebony. Close behind him again, wriggling along the ground like reptiles and sneaking upon all fours like animals, were about half a dozen savages with spears and nulla-nullas in their hands. Traveling up the creek, they had noticed the fire and were now reconnoitering the unsuspecting man. Yes, they could manage him. They might have thought twice about it had he stood there facing them with a rifle or revolver in his hands.

I tried to cry out so as to warn him of his danger, but my throat and tongue were so dry that only a hoarse gurgling sound escaped from my lips. By an almost superhuman effort I drew my revolver and crawled forward a few feet on my hands and knees. I had just gathered together my scattered senses and was in the act of resting my revolver against a tree and surprising the aggressors by the unexpected fire, when there arose a hoarse shout. The savage had been too quick for me. Down came the spear, entering the poor fellow's back. With an agonized cry, and before the cannibals had time to follow up their advantage, he snatched up his revolver, leaped to his feet and fired it point blank in the face of the savage who had dealt the treacherous blow. Then he reeled, with the spear still protruding from his back, threw out his hands and fell forward on his face. At the same moment, like a number of hideous puppets, the black fellows sprang from the long grass. Singling out the nearest one, I fired my Colt's, which was as good as a rifle, and he dropped like a bullock when it is pithed in the yard. Accounts were squared with him anyhow. The savage whom the swagsman shot literally had the roof of his skull blown off. Jumping up, I fired wildly enough at the others, who stood for a moment as if paralyzed by the unexpected attack. Suddenly there rang out a shot in another direction, and the upraised arm of a black fellow dropped helpless by his side. And now could be heard the dull thud of hoofs as a horseman came galloping through the sandy scrub. I looked around, but need not have been surprised, as Jack, mounted on old Eclipse, dashed up. This settled the matter. The stand these savages made was but a poor one. I received a smart rap on the shoulder that knocked me over as cleanly as a ninepin, and Jack's horse was speared in the neck. Jack, however, charged in upon them with such effect that before I could get on my legs again they scuttled off like so many iguanas to a belt of scrub, into which they dived, and that was the last we saw of them. It was useless trying to follow.

"The deuce take such visitors, Dick!" was my mate's characteristic speech, as jumping from his horse he extracted the stone spearhead from its neck—luckily not a dangerous wound. This done, he was turning his attention to me, when, seeing the prostrate form of the swagsman, his manner changed. "Hello!" he exclaimed. "That chap's done for!"

On the ground, face downward, with outstretched arms, and the cruel spear still protruding from his back, was the hapless white man, his old gray shirt stained with his lifeblood. He had camped for the last time.

I never knew any one who could act so quickly and know just exactly how to do the right thing as Jack. With a quick, steady hand he broke off the spear within six inches of the wound, so that he could turn the poor fellow over. But just before Jack caught hold of his body and I took the feet he tore up the grass once or twice with his hands, and then lay still. We knew what that meant only too well. We stood in the solemn presence of death. In the stillness the chant of the morpoke sounded like a funeral knell.

Behind the tree against which he leaned was a naked black fellow.

"It's all up with him," said Jack in an awed voice, as he instinctively took off his hat.

Although the attack of fever was fast leaving me, I was weaker than a kitten and staggered to my feet.

"Sit down on the grass, Dick," said my mate. "There's no fear of the niggers coming back, but keep a lookout anyhow." Then we lifted the dead man tenderly, and turned him over on his back so that we might see his face. I gave a little cry and looked at Jack. What had struck me had evidently struck him too. The deceased was, literally speaking, alas, the dead image of Jack!

CHAPTER II.

LOST, AN IDENTITY.

Jack came with the horses and hobbled them out, remarking: "When you're in nigger country, they say you shouldn't hobble horses—it spoils their chances of getting away if the niggers come after them; but considering what has occurred, I'll risk it—shan't have much time to go horse hunting in the morning, you see."

The murdered man's billy was now boiling on the fire. I was about to lift it off and put on our own, when Jack stopped me.

"Leave it where it is," he said. "I'll put in the tea. What was good enough for him is good enough for us. He won't have lighted that fire for nothing. Dick, just think if I hadn't been after those confounded horses and you had not been sick, he might have been our guest now instead of us being his. And, look here, old chap, take a big dose of fever cure now that the fever has left you. After a bit you can have a pannikin of tea. It's no use asking you to eat anything just now, but I'll put on some dried apples and rice, and maybe in a few hours' time you'll be able to peck a little. In the meantime lie down and try to get some sleep. I'll keep a lookout. I want a big smoke and a good think anyhow. Lie down and get some sleep," he repeated.

I rolled myself in my blanket on a clear spot some little distance from the fire. Then, what with the exhaustion caused by the fever and the abatement of the excitement, I was soon in a deep sleep.

It may have been only a few minutes later when I awoke with a start.

"Jack," I cried, "it must be close on morning now. You've let me lie too long. Listen, don't you hear anything?"

There was no mistaking the sound. It was the deep, full tone of a "bull-frog" bell. Judging from its wavering, mellow pitch, it must have been about three miles distant.

"That's lucky," said Jack. "Somebody traveling. Can't be with bullocks or we'd have passed them. Must be horses. You see, it's 18 miles from the last water. They've only been able to make half the distance and have turned out. They'll come on first thing in the morning. Lucky for us if they have tools in the wagon, for then we can dig a decent grave. They will be here shortly after daybreak, you'll see."

"Now, Jack, turn in," I insisted. "You've got to rest, you know."

Jack knew me to be as obstinate as a mule when I took it into my head and so did what he was told. The attack of fever had passed, and, being intermittent, it would leave me fairly well for one day at least. Jack lay down in his blanket and in a few minutes was evidently in the land of dreams.

* * * * * * * *

The tropical day had begun. I lit a fire and was about to go down to the creek to fill the billy when a horseman galloped up.

"Good morning, mates!" he said cheerily, with an unmistakably Scotch accent. Then, observing the dead blacks lying on the ground, he pulled up with a queer look on his face and gave a low, prolonged whistle. I pointed to the body of the murdered man, whose shape showed under the blanket with that rigid angularity which there is no mistaking.

"Preserve us!" he exclaimed, jumping off his horse and shaking me by the hand. He had taken in the situation at a glance. "I'm mighty sorry for you, mate, but I see you've made them pay for it. I rode on before the wagon. They'll be here in half an hour to have breakfast. When did they attack you? As there's women in the party, I suppose, mate, you won't mind me just hiding that ugly sight?"

Catching up a tomahawk, he cut one or two leafy branches and covered up the dead black fellows. "They would not care to see them, you know," he explained. "It's Mackenzie of Tarragong, his daughter, and her maid—my sister—going through to the Robinson river. I'll just pick a camp a little way up the creek and then hurry back." He galloped his horse about a couple of hundred yards or so up the creek; then, evidently satisfied with the situation, cut off through the bush and was lost to sight.

As soon as he had gone Jack jumped up. "Good morning, Dick!" he said. "I've had a good sleep!"

After the usual wash—when there was water enough to have one—we had the never varying breakfast, which was barely finished when crack, crack! and with a jingle and a rattle up came a covered in wagon with six horses dragging it. A couple of men rode alongside, while two black boys, in blue serges and white slouch hats, came behind, driving some spare horses. They drove off the track and cut away among the trees, drawing up about a couple of hundred yards or so from our camp.

A few hundred yards behind came the squatter and his daughter. I could see that the horses which they rode were vastly superior to those generally used in the gulf, albeit some of the gulf horses showed a breeding that made the inquiring mind speculate as to how they ever came into the hands of the men who ostensibly owned them.

The pair halted for a minute or two. The squatter rode over to us by himself, the girl going on to the camp.

Roderick Mackenzie of Tarragong was a man who might be a few years over 50, of middle height, with clearly cut features, honest gray eyes, grizzled hair and beard—altogether a smart, kindly looking gentleman. He had been a long time in the colonies and had done well. He had lately taken up land in the northern territory, sent on stock ahead and was now on his way out to fix on a site for a head station.

He rode up and addressed himself to Jack. Somehow they always had a trick of addressing Jack first.

"Good morning," he said gravely, jumping off his horse. "Gordon, my man, told me of the sad affair that occurred last night. If you'll allow me to assist you, we may be able to give you very material assistance. I'll send over a couple of my men. Ah, here comes Gordon with the necessary article, and as the soil is sandy I don't think we'll have much difficulty in digging a grave. Have you found anything on the body that will lead to its identification? Perhaps a few notes with his description might be of use when reporting the matter to the police. I believe the police have come to the Macarthur river, which can't be more than 120 miles from here at the farthest." He spoke in a quiet, unobtrusive, businesslike way.

"Perhaps, sir," I said, "you're a J. P. in Queensland if not in the northern territory; so, if you wouldn't mind assisting us and witnessing the inventory of the dead man's property, we won't be greatly obliged to you. My name is Parker, and my mate's is Tyndall. Perhaps you'd better take down our names."

He had taken from a light gray kharkee coat a notebook and pencil to facilitate matters. "As you wish," he replied. "My name's Mackenzie. Tarragong is the name of my station on the Burdekin."

Then we lifted the blanket from off the corpse. Perhaps I never saw a more peaceful look upon the face of any one who had died by violence than I saw on the face of this man. Whatever may have been his restless passions once upon a time they had now forsaken the clay, and there was no expression there save that of the pristine innocence of the child. I had seen the same look on Jack's face when he was asleep. He had been, as the squatter said, looking sadly on his face, a handsome fellow. Then we examined his possessions.

In the small pouch attached to his belt we found a plain silver watch, in his trousers pocket some silver, and two £5 notes in an old purse. The squatter untied a small parcel wrapped in oilcloth and looked at a packet of letters; he read the addresses on one or two of the envelopes and seemed surprised; then he examined the correspondence. His face was a study now: the deepest concern and astonishment were depicted there. I heard Jack ejaculate hoarsely "Well?" but his face was averted. Then the squatter, in his quiet but somewhat formal way, said:

We lifted the blanket from off the corpse.

"This man, I learn from these letters, is the son of one whom once I considered my friend. His mother and my sister were at school together. His name is John Farquharson. Perhaps, under the circumstances, I may as well tell you that only a few years ago he had every reason to consider himself independent, but on the death of his father a sorry state of affairs transpired and he found himself penniless. I had heard about his misfortunes and was aware that he intended emigrating to Australia. Then his mother wrote to me to the effect that she had extracted from him a reluctant promise that he would come out to one of my stations. I believe there were some remote prospects of his coming into some money, and something else that I needn't talk about now. But he never came to me. I was sorry, however, to hear, in an official capacity, that he'd been seen in company that he'd have done well to have avoided; but I'm not at liberty to talk of that. Now that I look at him, I can see the family resemblance—he is John Farquharson beyond a doubt."

"Then you'll oblige us by keeping the articles belonging to him," I begged. "But I don't suppose you've had your breakfast yet. If you go back to your camp and get it now—you mightn't care about eating it here—we'll have everything ready in half an hour's time."

"I'll send Savile along to give you a hand," remarked the squatter and went over to his own camp.

We chose a dry, sandy spot for the grave, and Jack, taking the shovel in his hands, worked steadily. Then Savile came, a great strapping, quiet looking individual, with a round, good natured face. He took the shovel forcibly from Jack, who was too much astonished at this summary mode of procedure to express dissent. "You sit down, mate," he cried to me; "you're not looking too spicy!" I had been groping aimlessly around. To Jack he said: "Well, if you will work, you can get a sheet of bark. I've got some rope"—this for the bush coffin.

In less than an hour's time everything was ready. Then we placed the supposed John Farquharson on the sheet of bark ready to be rolled round his poor body when we lowered it into the grave, and now we saw Mackenzie of Tarragong coming among the trees, accompanied by his daughter, a girl who I supposed would be about 19 years of age, and with her a fair, fresh, pleasant woman who was evidently some few years older.

For a year or two I had not seen many women. In fact, they were few and far between in that gulf country, and such women as there were—well, the less said about some of them the better. It was little wonder therefore that Norah Mackenzie—I had heard her father mention her name—should have filled me with a peculiar interest. She was slightly built and wore a well fitting riding habit that suited her neat, trim figure to perfection. On her head was a gray, broad brimmed felt hat, caught up at one side and held by a small old fashioned Celtic silver brooch. Underneath her large dark eyes looked out from a delicately molded face that reminded me of some old Italian or Spanish picture. Her complexion was of a warm olive tint, and, what with her dark eyes, heavily fringed eyelids, and the light brown color of her hair, she represented a type of Australian womanhood that for subtle, attractive power will hold its own with any in the world. It was the Saxon type modified by the healthful, outdoor life of a subtropical climate. Her face was of too patrician a cast to compare to that of a gypsy's, but apart from its natural self possession there was something so alien from conventionality in her manner that the comparison was suggested. I saw Jack look at her steadily, then abruptly turn away his head. I could not see his face. Then the other man came up and one of the black boys.

The little group gathered round the grave. The squatter, taking his daughter by the hand, lifted a corner of the blanket and looked upon the peaceful white face. Then the girl placed a wreath of wild flowers, which she had carried in her hand, upon his breast, and it seemed to me as if tears stood in her eyes. When for the first time I saw the face of Norah Mackenzie, it struck me that there was not much would escape her observation, nor was I mistaken. She only looked for a moment upon that cold mask of clay, and then involuntarily, as it were, turning round, gazed in a strange, puzzled fashion at Jack. The likeness had struck her and evidently made her think.

"Have you a Book of Common Prayer?" the squatter asked. "I'll read the burial service, being the oldest, if you don't mind," adding in an undertone, "I'm not an Episcopalian, but that doesn't matter."

And here something occurred which shows how at times into the most sacred and solemn offices a touch of the ludicrous will creep. I glanced at Jack, and Jack returned the compliment. I suppose both of us must have presented such a shamefaced and guilty appearance that when I looked up and caught Miss Mackenzie's eyes, while Jack stammered out something about "being afraid he had forgotten to fetch his prayer book along with him," there was an amused expression in them for a second, indicating a quick appreciation of the situation. In another instant, however, it had died away, and the squatter himself came to the rescue.

"Oh, well, if you haven't one handy, don't mind," he remarked. "I put mine in my pocket in case of accidents."

And now in the shade of that great bloodwood tree the solemn words of the funeral service commenced—the most beautiful and solemn words of any like service in the world.

Then clearly and distinctly came the words, spoken in a manly, earnest voice, "I am the resurrection and the life." It was indeed a solemn scene. I had seen many funerals at sea, when those whom I knew well were committed to the deep, and fully realized the solemnity of the situation, but there was something tragic about the fate of him who lay in the sheet of bark, now folded round his poor, blood stained body, that was unspeakably pathetic. Whatever the faults or passions of this man may have been a sheet of bark and six feet of sandy soil in that far Australian forest were all that pertained to him now. Within a year or two, such is the changing nature of all things tropical, even the place where he slept would be a matter of conjecture. Perhaps the fever had made me somewhat fanciful, for I remember it flashed upon me suddenly what a strange spice of mockery there was in this burial after all. If I were not dreaming the night before—and I was half inclined to think I had been, or that it was some trick of the brain arising from the fever—I had seen Jack take from this man what simply obliterated his identity and left him with that which gave him a false one. He was being buried under the name of a man who at that moment was assisting at his burial. For I could not but suppose that my mate Jack was the same John Farquharson to whom the letters which the squatter had taken from the corpse had been addressed, and who for some reason or other wished to be forgotten by the world. He had seized upon the present opportunity of accomplishing his purpose to be considered as dead. The name which I had known him under, that of Jack Tyndall, was, of course, a false one. Still I could not be angry with Jack. "Speak of a man as you find him" is not only a charitable but a just maxim. I had never met with a more straightforward or a more unselfish man.

The elder of the two women was now crying silently. One could not but observe them. The younger of the two had placed her arm round the other's waist and held one of her hands as if to comfort her, although her own eyes were undoubtedly dimmed. It was evident she was averse to betraying her feelings.

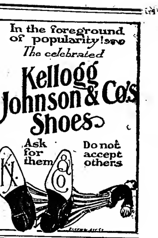
"Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, and dust to dust"— And in a few minutes all was over.

The women went back to their camp, and the squatter, with his own hands, cut four strong posts and placed them at the corners of the newly made grave. He also cut out on the bark of the tree the name "J. Farquharson," and the date, "July, 1885." "I'll get an iron plate made in Sydney and have it sent up to be placed over the grave," he said.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Filbert Culture In Italy.

It will surprise many to hear that in certain districts of Italy the filbert crop rivals the produce of the vine in commercial importance. These delicious nuts are grown on bushes or shrubs, which are arranged in groups that are from 15 to 25 feet apart so as to insure the access of plenty of light and air. They thrive best in a deep, clayey soil, and the planting takes place during November and December of slips from the mother plant. Seeds could be used, but the growth would be too slow to be profitable. As it is, the shrubs do not bear fruit until the third year, any blossoms appearing before that time being removed, so that the plant shall not be impoverished. The plants are periodically pruned, when any slips which have failed to sprout are removed and replaced by others; so that there are plantations which remain in full growth although nearly 100 years old. The filbert is not subject to the diseases common to other crops, but it suffers severely from hailstones and from cold winds.



Is Baby Too Thin?

If so, there must be some trouble with its food. Well babies are plump; only the sick are thin. Are you sure the food is all right? Children can't help but grow; they must grow if their food nourishes them. Perhaps a mistake was made in the past and as a result the digestion is weakened. If that is so, don't give the baby a lot of medicine; just use your every-day common sense and help nature a little, and the way to do it is to add half a teaspoonful of to the baby's food three or four times a day. The gain will begin the very first day you give it. It seems to correct the digestion and gets the baby started right again. If the baby is nursing but does not thrive, then the mother should take the emulsion. It will have a good effect both upon the mother and child. Twenty-five years proves this fact.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.
4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

.....AT THE.....

NEW YORK STORE

Is where you will find many pretty Goods which ought to suit your taste for Spring and Smmer wear. You will find every Department complete from the cheapest to the best Fabrics, such as are carried in a first class store

Shoes at a Great Reduction.

MEN'S

Plow Shoes, regular $1.50, reduced to $1.25.

Our Kingston Lace or Congress for fine Shoes, $1.98 reduced to $1.25.

Our Ko-Ko, they have no equal for the money, price $2, reduced to $1.75.

One lot of fine Calf Shoes, London toe, sizes 6 to 12, price $1.75 now $1.50

For fine high grade Shoes ask to see the Pingree & Smith makes.

LADIES' SHOES

One lot of hand turned Shoe, to close the lot, regular $3, at $1.25

For good heavy wearing Shoes we handle the Tiger brand.

Wide Toe Slippers, regular 75c, at 65c.

Odd lot of Slippers, sizes 2½ to 4 $1.25 reduced to 50c.

MISSES AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

Some big values if you can use any of these sizes.

Sizes 2½ to 5	25c
" 5½ to 8	50c
" 8 to 11½	65c

One lot of Heel or Spring at 50c and $1.00

RUBBERS

Ladies' 2½ to 8	35c
Misses'	30c
Children's	25c
Men's 8 to 12	50c

Carpet and Drapery Department.

Having just put in a Carpet and Drapery department we are able to show you the best line of

CARPETS
DRAPERIES
LACE CURTAINS
OPAQUE SHADES
BRASS POLES
WOODEN POLES

Wash Goods

Seventeen rolls of fine corded Novelties at 8c a yard.

Twenty-three rolls of fine fancy Jaconet at 10c a yard.

Nineteen rolls of fine Organdie in stripped and figured, at 12½c a yard.

Thirteen rolls of fine Sunnyside Batiste at 15c a yard.

Thirty rolls of fancy dress Ginghams at 8c a yard.

Fifteen rolls of fine Cordet Dress Ginghams at 8c a yard.

A large assortment of all the latest plique in plain white and colores.

It will surely pay you to look at our Wash Goods department over for every item is a money saver.

Dress Goods

Seven rolls of Fancy Plaids for Children's wear at 5c.

Nine rolls of Fancy Plaid, just the the thing for waists, at 12½c.

Forty inch Fancy Scotch Plaids, very strong, at 25c.

Thirty-four inch half wool Henriettes, all shades, 50c.

42 inch Nonette Dress Goods, 20c

We lead them all in fine Dress Goods, Silks and Trimmings.

Sailor and Fancy Hats

Everything that is new and up-to-date you will find here from 25c to to dollars.

Corsets

CORSETS

We have a fine line of Summer Corsets at 25c. Corsets to fit every form.

Hosiery

33 doz pairs Ladies' fast black Hose at 5c per pair.

25 doz pairs Ladies' fast black Hose at 10c per pair.

25 dozen pairs Ladies fast black Hose at 12½c per pair

25 dozen pairs Ladies' fast black Hose at 15c a pair.

We can show you the best 25c Hose in the city.

SUITS, JACKETS AND CAPES

If you are thinking of buying a new Jacket, Capé Suit or Skirt you should see our line in order to get highest values for your money. We handle nothing but the most reliable and up-to-date garments. Our $5., $7.50 and $10. garments are world beaters.

Men's Wear.

Heavy twilled black stripped working Shirts at 25c.

Heavy blue Denim Overalls, 45c.

Fancy Dress Shirts, 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00.

THE LANPHER

Everything that is new in Huts you will find here:

Artist	$1.00
Winner	1.50
Crescent	2.00

The best $3.00 Hat made is the Lanpher in soft and stiff hats.

Shirt Waists

Shirt Waists in all the latest tucks, plaits and corded effects. Prices ranging from 50c to 95c, 75c, 85c, 95c, $1.00.

You must see them in order to appreciate the big values we are giving for the money.

Ladies Summer Undervests

At 5c, 10c 15c, 25c, every one of them a standing advertisement wherever they are sold.

PARASOLS
KID GLOVES
LACE OF ALL KINDS
EMBROIDERIES
LADIES TIES
FANCY RIBBONS

We are offering special big values in the above lines.

For the Greatest Values and Lowest Prices go to

THE NEW YORK STORE - - A. CHABOT, Prop.

Deere Model B Disk Harrows

Has two levers for adjustment and spring spring pressure on the Gangs, thus admitting of the greatest flexibility, and allowing them to work on stony or rough and uneven ground independently, and conforming to the ground regardless of ridges. We have them in all sizes and in 16 or 20 inch discs.

You should see our fine line of buggies. It will arrive in a few days.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or McIntosh.

LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. ERSKINE, President. J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. WM. ANGUS, Vice President H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits. Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Angus, J. R. Eckinson, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine J. P. Foote, W. H. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. H. STEENERSON, Vice-President. N. S. GERVAIS, 2d Vice-President. L. ELLINGTON, Cashier. A. P. HANSON, Asst. Cashier.

Read This The Best Yet

No Other Mutual Company can Duplicate this Offer.

The Old Reliable

HAIL AND CYCLONE MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.,

OF AUSTIN, MINN.

Pays Cash for all Losses at Time of Adjustment. Rates Low. Adjustments Prompt and Liberal

TENTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

ASSETS

Certificates of Deposit	$18,000.00
Loans	26,131.60
Cash in National Banks	31,379.27
Accounts Receivable	127.92
Assessments on 1898 notes not yet received.	7,228.08
Gross Assets	$83,466.87

LIABILITIES

Unpaid Losses	None
Accounts Payable	$ 678.64
Total Liabilities	$ 678.64
Net Assets	$82,788.23

REFERENCES:—Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis; Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa; Scandia American Bank, Crookston, Minn.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL ON

GEO. C. WILD, ODD FELLOWS' BLOCK. CROOKSTON, MINN.

OR A. P. TOUPIN, RED LAKE FALLS.

AUSTIN HAIL INSURANCE CO.

Losses are Already Paid in Full and a Safe Surplus Carried Over.

The JOURNAL would like to call the attention of its readers to the advertisement, to be found in another column, of the Alliance Hail and Cyclone Mutual Insurance Company of Austin, Minn. It is an old, reliable, substantial company. Its plan is approved and recommended by the leading agricultural papers of the northwest. Farmers who have had losses are loud in their praises of the way it has treated them. The Alliance has an enviable record of ten years of honorable dealing with the insuring public, and now as it enters upon its 11th year offers stronger indemnity than ever, and with its guaranty fund of over $75,000 can confidently promise that the losses of its patrons for 1899 will be adjusted and paid promptly, fully and satisfactorily at the time of adjustment. The editor has known this company since its organization and is fully satisfied that it is a solid institution. Farmers insuring with it may rest assured that they will get just what the company promise.

Railroad Notes.

A Great Northern freight train ran into a ditch at Minot Saturday evening and all other trains on the road were about eleven hours late as a consequence.

The Great Northern railway has a large force of men at work sinking a well at Emerado. The new well will be 65 feet deep and will add greatly to the water facilities of the Great Northern at that point.

W. K. Neff, formerly in the Great Northern offices at Larimore, and lately in the general offices in St. Paul, has been promoted to the position of assistant superintendent of the Breckinridge division with headquarters at Breckinridge.

The people of Bismarck are firmly convinced that the Soo road will build into that town during the coming summer, and as a result there has been a boom in real estate. Alex McKenzie is arranging to build a large hotel at the capital of North Dakota.

It is reported that J. J. Hill has purchased the St. Paul and Duluth railway and also that he has secured control of the largest and best equipped coal dock in the world. The dock is at Superior and has facilities for handling 2,000,000 tons of coal during the open season of navigation.

A circular has been issued by the Great Northern Railway offering stockholders the privilege of subscribing $15,000,000 worth of new stock at par at the rate of one share of new stock for every five shares now held. The stock is to be paid for June 22. The books close May 29 and re-open May 22.

Among the improvements which the Great Northern will make during the coming summer, says the Grand Forks Herald, is the replacing of the wooden bridge across English coulie with a steel structure. This will be one of the steps toward the realization of the new yard-project for which plans were made over a year ago.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following are the real estate transfers for Polk county as furnished by Christinnson & Strauder, abstructors, for the week ending April 27, 1899:

C C Strander to T M Sorlie, lot 6, blk 1, South Crookston	$125	00
William G Smith to Gena Anderson, lot 17, blk 22, Traill's addition to E. G. F.	60	26
Petra Sampson to Harry Handsdson, lot 10, blk 16, South Crookston	100	00
Marit P. O. Skaalund to Margit Olson, se¼ nw¼, Sec 12-148-44	1	00
Olaf J Brauna to Carina Olson, lots 4 and 5, blk 1, Brauna's 2d addition to Erskine	60	00
John C Johnson to Grima Hagen, se¼ se¼ Sec 5, ne ne Sec 8, and nw¼ nw¼ Sec 9; 147-42	1,100	00
William G Vannet to William A Marin, ne¼ nw¼ se¼ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2, Sec 30-146-46	225	00
Hansine Bakken to Jacob Hanson, ne¼ ne¼ e¼ nw¼ Sec 24-148-45	100	00
Claus Vignes to Halvor G Dale, sw¼ se¼ Sec 34-148-48	600	00
Andrew A Lindby to Martin J Haugen, lot 15, block 6, Opheim & Mott's addition to Fertile	800	00
John H Olson to Nels Clementsen, ne¼ ne¼ sw¼ and w¼ se¼, Sec 15-147-45	828	00
Martin I Haugen to Andrew A Lindby, nw¼ se¼ and lots 2, 3, 4 and 5, Sec 8-147-43	1200	00
Alphonse Pfeil to Henry F Johnk, lots 17 and 18, block 2, Sampson's Woodland addition to Crookston	500	00
L F Bensen to L P Slattum, lot 22, block 2, original townsite of Erskine	200	00
M J Halla to Anna Lundahl, lots 15 and 16, block "C" McDonald's addition to Crookston	150	00
Iver Tharoldsen to Estine Durdall, lot 2, block 23, South Crookston	40	00
Carl Fagrens to Julius Jacobson, lot 11, block 6, South Crookston	400	00
Netherlands American Land Co, to Peder J Elc, se¼ Sec 24-148-47	1000	00
Ann E Bancroft to E P Bancroft, lot 11, block 9, Carman	200	00
Frederick J Wilcken to Julius Bjornstad, part of block 14, Sampson's Woodland addition to Crookston	800	00
Julius Bjornostad to Trustees of the Swedish Mission Church of Crookston, part of block 14, Sampson's Woodland addition to Crookston	150	00
James Ryan to Christine H. Moen, e½ e½ sw¼ ne¼ Sec 18-151-99	400	00
Martin J Lally to Henry F. Brown, lot 4, block 8, L Fletcher's addition to Crookston	2000	00
W. H. North to Jerome W. Wheeler, lots 1, 2, 3 and 4, block 7 Original Townsite of Crookston	1	00
Amon A Aamold to August Peterson n½ sw¼ Sec 35-148-50	700	00
John McLean to Amra G Haugen, se¼ nw¼ and lots 2, 3 and 4, Sec 5-147-44	500	00
John Martin to Almira Marin, se¼ Sec 29-148-46	700	00
Samuel Marin to John Marin se¼ Sec 23-149-46	700	00

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MAY 4, 1899 NO 4

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

INSTRUCTORS PARTIAL

Such Men Ought to be Removed—Impartial Farm Educators Needed.

HIGH BRED ANIMALS BEST.

No Matter Where From—Let Each Farmer Systematically Improve His own Stock.

An educator of a neighboring state, who had never seen a Tamworth, took up the issue at once. Later on he had an opportunity to see one. As he tells it, when he approached the yard in which the specimen was confined, he left his buggy at a safe distance and cautiously crept up to the high fence, and looking over saw a thin, red sow with a big litter of red pigs. The mother sow saw the educator at about the same time and with a "rough" started for the enemy, who fled in alarm to his buggy, drove home and continued to write down and talk down the bacon.

If the mother hog had been fat, sleepy, of some other color, with three or four half-fed pigs, he would probably have been impressed with her value to the American farmer, but to be thin, red and prolific as well as saucy, was unpardonable in any foreign hog.

Another still more recent case is in point, and is quoted to show how difficult it sometimes is for a public official, who is not supposed to have any selfish interest involved to treat a breed he does not happen to like, with fairness and candor.

One of the corn-belt states has a Secretary of Agriculture, who has been doing admirable work for his state in a general way. This secretary published a quarterly report which is circulated to farmers free. When they are issued, it is his practise to send to the agricultural press, notices of his reports, written by himself, but supposed to voice the editor's own sentiments. These are generally published by lazy editors. In his last quarterly report he includes what he calls "terse histories" of the several popular breeds of swine, including bacon breeds. In commenting on them and speaking of himself, he says:

"Some of these expressions will not please everybody, especially those who are inclined to believe that the use of leggy and lardless sorts, as represented by certain English types, is essential to the Yankee hog-growers salvation. His idea is that the best type of the general-purpose hog the world has yet seen is the one evolved by American farmers, or if not, that American farmers will make it so and further, that American hog raisers, whatever their shortcomings, know infinitely more about pork production than any presumptious outsider can tell them."

Of course this is a slap at Secretary Wilson and the Tamworth hog. To some people the word "bacon" has the same effect as the waving of a red flag in the barn yard has on the head of the herd. Now, this means, if it means anything, that American farmers know it all when it comes to pork-making and if they don't they can find it cures without suggestions from any "presumptious out sider." This is simply bombast. If England has a breed that will make our corn into better or higher priced pork than our breeds, would it not be common sense to raise that breed even if it is English. If an Anglo-American Alliance in hogs will help our pocket books, by all means let us have it.

Further on he speaks of Yorkshires and Tamworths as the "breeds so much doted on by the English and Canadians as "bacon" hogs, yielding possably not more lean but fat, than is common to the swine of the corn growing regions," and then swoops down on the friendless Tamworth with the following graphic, if incorrect, description:

"Tamworths are a slab-sided, long-legged, big-headed, lardless, unlovely, red, rusty or sandy, half-civilized sort from England."

Now there are so few Tamworths in the United States that, this secretary is excusable for his ignorance of their points, but when he attempts to instruct others he ought to be sure he is right before he goes ahead.

A well bred Tamworth would probably plead guilty to being slab-sided, as his long and deep sides are his stock in trade. He might admit rather long legs, but he would positively deny the big head and would challenge the doughty secretary to produce a Poland-China with a head that would not weigh twenty-five to forty per cent more than his own. The Tamworth has a very small head, with a long but very slender snout and almost no jowl.

But the secretary charges the Tamworth with being "unlovely." Now, common people outside the secretary's jurisdiction, suppose that utility is the chief merit in pigs and have no standard of hog-beauty. Does the secretary refer to lovliness of Character or only physical beauty? If a "presumptious outsider" might be permitted to suggest, would it not be well to get the secretaries of the swine records together to decide just how many points "lovelines" should count on the hog score card.

But the secretary says that the Tamworth is half-civilized. To be sure he has been bred for a century or so in England for the purpose of making Wiltshire bacon for royalty and the blue-blooded aristocracy of that "thrashed" country and Tamworth bacon is credited with being fairly good. Now, if half-civilized bacon is good enough for the Queen, what might we not expect of the Tamworth if the secretary would only premit a few of them to live for a while under the civilizing influence of society in his own state.

But, after all the culminating crime of the Tamworth seems to be that he is "from England." What right has a "presumptious outsider" hog, especially an "unlovely" and "half-civilized" hog, to project his long, red and sandy snout into American pens? It would be unpatriotic and un-American to allow him to do it. It does not matter if history credits England with about all the good blood that has been used to make what American farmers have "evolved" into best "general-purpose breed on earth," the "Bacon Breed" that the English and the Canadians so "dote on" are not to be recommended or countenanced. Now, a plain common sense American farmer might thing it well to look up any breed that the English "dote on." These English are credited with knowing something about live stock and something about breeding. The pigs pay the rent over there. Besides a good many of those Canadians who "dote" on the Yorkshires and Tamworth, too, are schrewd hardheaded Scots, who can turn a penny as well as the cutest Yankee on this side the line; but as we have the "best hog on earth" now, according to the secretary, it is not worth while to bother with "unlovely, half-civilized, rusty "fellows" from England."

Now, seriously, is it not high time that men who, pose as public instructors with the state money in their pockets, be required to investigate before they condemn at least far enough to be able to describe with a reasonable degree of accuracy, the outward physical characteristics of a new breed. We pay instructors for knowledge, not for guess work or revised editions of old views' fables. As instructor whose mental attitude is not hospitable to new ideas and new truths, no matter where they hail from, no matter how effectually they trip up his preconceived notions, is not up in this age of scientific inquiry. There is probably not a single Tamworth owned by a farmer in this state and it is of little consequence whether the breed goes up or down. It is of infinite import that the educators who mould our opinions and those of our children have their feet planted on the solid rock of truth.

And now any fellow breeders when the situation is as I have described it, is it any wonder that the scrub millionaires? Who can have faith in medicine when doctors disagree? Who can believe in the beneficent power of good blood when breeders take more time in flinging rotten eggs at each other than in fighting the common enemy? The truth is and we may as well admit it, that the wonder is not that progress has been slow but that we have made any progress at all. What beginner in live stock would gain courage to invest his hard-earned money in well-bred cattle, if after hearing the breed praised at a fair he has only ten rods to go to hear it denounced by another breeder as a cross on the scrub? Would not his faith be shaken in all breed and all breeders? Can the plain farmer who would like to better his stock, be blamed for holding on to his scrub, after reading the bitter controversies of breeders? When the secretary of agriculture goes out of his way to praise himself in the

(Continued on Second Page)

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Inspector Thiele Examines the Numbering and Street Signs of the City.

THREE LETTER CARRIERS.

Two Deliveries Daily in Business Portion and one in Residence Part.

Inspector H. E. Thiele of the United States postoffice department reached Crookston yesterday and spent the day in examining the books and records of the local postoffice. Today in company with Postmaster Elkins he is personally inspecting the work that the city has had done in the way of numbering the houses and putting up the street signs. If everything in this regard is satisfactory, inasmuch as the receipts of the postoffice entitle the city to free delivery, Mr. Thiele will undoubtedly recommend to the authorities at Washington that the free delivery system be established here.

There will be three carriers at first, as not being familiar with the work, they will not be able to do as much as they will later. Mr. Thiele says that they will not be allowed to work more than eight hours a day. As most of the mail into Crookston comes late at night and early in the morning it is probable that there will be only one delivery in the residence portion of the city, but in the business portion two deliveries.

Special laws govern the inspectors and the postmasters in the matter of establishing free delivery. The outside boundary of the carrier delivery and the number of delivereny and collection trips have to be fixed at the time of establishing the service.

Letters must be frequently and promptly delivered by the carriers so that citizens may have no inducement to call at the postoffice. The supervision of the carrier service will be in the hands of the local postmaster. In places with a population of less than 75,000, there may be two classes of letter-carriers, the salaries of these being $800 and $600 per annum. Every applicant for the position of letter carrier is required to undergo a physical examination before a reputable physician, who will fill out a blank furnished by the civil service commission through the local board of examiners, and the letter carriers are appointed by the Postmaster-General on the recommendation of the local postmaster.

NEW LUMBER COMPANY.

Rossaen Brothers of Fisher and A. H. Siverston of Crookston have Formed a Partnership.

Crookston has a new lumber company which really came into existence the first of the month though the project has been long planned. The company have styled themselves the Red River Sash, Door and Lumber company, of which H. O. Rossaen of Fisher is president, James Rossaen of same place as vice-president and A. M. Siverson of Crookston will be the manager of the business concern, while Lars Bjorge will have charge of the lumber yard which will be located near the Northern Pacific station on the grounds lately occupied by the Walker planing factory. The new company is now building a shed and a large stock of lumber will be put in. Mr. Siverson will also continue at the old stand on Broadway to sell sash, doors, cement etc.

The members of the new firm are well and favorably known in these parts and will undoubtedly build up a large trade here.

McKINNON WHEAT INSPECTOR.

He is Stated to take A. C. Clausen's Place as Chief Inspector of Grain.

The many friends of Alex McKinnon in Crookston and surrounding county will be pleased to learn that he is to be the new chief grain inspector, being A. C. Clausen's place. While Mr. McKinnon has as yet received no official notification of the appointment the story is already credited by the leading grain and elevator men of the state. The nomination is made by the governor and is ratified by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission but the action by the latter is merely a matter of form.

Mr. McKinnon is one of the leading democrats of the state having twice been selected by that party as their candidate for the state treasurership. He has had the experience which will enable him to fill successfully the duties of the office to which he has been chosen. His home will of course be in St. Paul and Crookston will lose one of her prominent citizens.

THE ASSESSORS MEET.

The Men Who set a Value on Property in Polk County Decide on Rates.

There are in all sixty assessors in Polk county, one for every township. Forty-six of these men met at the court house in Crookston last Saturday to receive from the county auditor their assessors' blanks and books and also to decide upon the prices or the assessed valuation of property. Few valuations were changed and the business was greatly expedited by the fact that almost all the assessors were old hands at the business. John Olsa, son was elected chairman and J. D. Knudson of King, secretary. The following were the assessors present: James T. Sullivan, Sullivan; P. J. Kelly, East Grand Forks; T. T. Morken, Northland; James Gilman, Nesbit; James A. Strohle, Angus; J. J. Eden; F. J. Cunningham, Fertile; R. Teal, Euclid; T. L. Davis, Rome; R. C. Robbins, Rosedale; Amber Fosston; C. Matterson, Lessor; Karl Bakke, Queen; Levi Steenerson, Climax; Christ Thoresen, Brandsvold; John J. Dahl, Johnson; H. C. Berg, Chester; John Mostad, Knute; S. C. Couvrette, Crookston; H. J. Peterson, Andover; M. W. Jensen, McIntosh; A. A. Rade, Lowell; Pat Tilbin, Parnell; S. S. Koldon, Crookston; J. D. Knudson, King; B. Johnson, Higdem; Martin Sands, Sandsville.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES.

Supt. Moore Announces Who the Graduates are and who Take the Honors.

Supt. John Moore has made out the averages for the members of the senior class for the four years during which they have been in the high school and he finds that Miss Ella Hanson stands first and Miss Bertha Samson second. These two young ladies will, therefore, be valedictorian and salutatorian of their class. Both of them have taken the classical course. The members of the senior class, all of whom will probably be graduated are, Misses Ella Hanson, Bertha Samson, Mamie Munch, Alpha Twedten, Constance Norddlad, Bertha McIntyre, Margaret Arnold and Orvill Finlayson, Frank Waldron, Edward Nelson, Will Arnglim and Charles Lusian.

Mr. Moore expects to have a public address given by some noted speaker at commencement, but final arrangements are not yet made.

BAPTIST ANNUAL MEETING.

Officers and Committees Chosen. June Jubilee to Celebrate Lifting Church Gebt.

Last Monday evening occurred the annual meeting of the members of the Baptist church of this city. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Trustees, E. F. McIntyre, Wayne Ray and G. M. Blake, clerk E. F. McIntyre, chairman of music committee, Mrs. G. M. Plake, ushers J. Lusian, C. W. Moss, Loren Wilde and Charley Ray, financial secretary Mrs. N. J. Nelson. The last year has been a most prosperous one. The members elected have increased, the current expenses have been met and a balance left in the treasury, and the church indebtedness of $1350 removed. There have been 21 baptisms during the year and 26 new members received into the church. Rev. Mr. Powell has present pastor, has been with the church just 18 months.

The society is naturally very jubilant over the lifting of the church debt and arrangements are being made for a grand jubilee in June to celebrate this momentous event in the history of the society. The celebration will be in the nature of a thanksgiving service and will be held on two different evenings, one of which will be Sunday evening. The mortgage will be burned, congratulatory speeches made and other appropriate exercises gone through.

A Fargo paper says that a carload of beef cattle shipped to that city by J. D. McPhee of the Lockhart farm was the finest ever brought there.

The Great Northern has decided to make considerable improvements at the depot and on the grounds at Red Lake Falls during the coming season.

FARMERS' CONVENTION

Business Men of the City Arranging for an Enthusiastic Meeting in June.

FARM EDUCATORS TO BE HERE.

And Give Results of Experiments—Farmers Will be Royally Entertained.

The project of holding a farmers' convention which has been, mentioned in the Journal several times, has been taken hold of by the business men of the city. An organization of these men has been formed with a view to more systematic work being done. James E. O'Brien was elected president. W. E. McKenzie, secretary and T. G. Thompson, L. Ellington, L. W. Larsen and John R. McKinnon as executive committee.

The best men in the way of instructors in the art of all kinds of farming will be here to assist the farmers in learning more about the science of agriculture. The meeting will be held in June at a time when the tillers of the soil can get away for a few days. Special entertainment in addition to instruction will be furnished. The farmers will undoubtedly avail themselves of this opportunity of increasing their knowledge of matters agricultural. The results of experiments made at the various stations throughout the state will here be given.

Elsewhere.

The Itasca News has been reading the riot act to the people of Deer River for not attending more to the interests of the church.

President Lord of the Moorhead Normal school lectured in East Grand Forks last Friday night on "Public Education" and at the State University Saturday night on "Rudyard Kipling.

M. O. Sortedahl, according to the Red Lake Courier, will open up a new bank at Red Lake Falls. The new banking house will be a private corporation for the present, with a capital of $10,000.

The Northern Pacific has placed orders for about 400 miles of steel rails, the delivery of which has just commenced. The contracts are mostly with the Illinois Steel company, and amount to about $750,000.

Fergus Falls will have a city directory in the near future. That city, like Crookston, has been recently numbered in view of the fact that a free delivery system is to be established there in a short time.

General Charles King has been ordered home from the Philippines on account of ill health. If his health is not too much impaired the public may soon look for some of those enchanting military romances, with scenes laid in the Philippines.

Russia will soon have completed a railroad from St. Petersburg across Russia and Siberia to the Pacific coast, and Rhodes has raised in Cape town $8,000,000 for the completion of his African railway which is to extend from Cairo to Cape town, from one end to the other of the continent.

Thirty-five applications for licenses have been granted in East Grand Forks. That little town has about as many saloons as all the other cities and villages in Polk, Norman, Marshall, Ellison and Roseau counties combined, or in other words all the Red river valley north of Clay county.

In the contest over the county authorship of Beltrami county, lawyers Street and Skinvik appeared last week before Attorney General Douglass and argued the case, but the attorney general has refused to recommend the issuing of a writ of quo warranto. It is possible that the matter will come up in the district court. Meanwhile Street holds the fort.

The engineering department of the Great Northern has prepared plans and specifications for a number of bridges along the western branches, which will necessitate an outlay of nearly one million dollars. Plans for thirty-five new bridges are complete, and others are in preparation. Some of these will be splendid examples of engineering skill and all will be up-to-date and substantial.

Judge Jenkins of Milwaukee has ordered the sale of all the remainder of the Northern Pacific land grant in Minnesota and in Dakota east of the Missouri river. Special Master Alfred L. Cray will have charge of the sale. The Minnesota lands will be sold at St. Paul and the Dakota lands at Fargo. Sixty days' notice of the sale will be given. The patented lands will be sold in sections of sub-divisions and the rest in two parcels.

CERTIFICATES FOR TEACHERS.

Requirements Under New Law—Co. Supt. May Issue 3rd Grade Good For One Year.

The new law providing for state certificates for teachers and fixing the requirements for the different grades of certificates is a long stride forward in the progress of education in this state.

The law authorizes the state superintendent of public instruction to issue state certificates for teachers, of the 1st grade, valid not to exceed five years and of the second grade not to exceed two years. The requirements for either grade of certificates shall include both scholastic and professional ability, and the regulations for the examination are to be prescribed by the state superintendent. The state superintendent is to mark the written examinations as to the scholastic qualifications and the county superintendents are to mark as to the professional qualifications. The county superintendent may revoke certificates for good cause, subject to appeal to the state superintendent. A complete first grade certificate is good in any county of the state. A complete second grade certificate is to be good in the county in which the examination is held, and may be made valid in any other county by the endorsement of the county superintendent of that county. No certificate is to be issued to a teacher who fails to give evidence of good moral character and successful experience. At least eight months of teaching is required for a first grade certificate and five months for a second grade, and the applicant must be at least 18 years of age, except that limited second grade certificates good for one year may be given by a county superintendent to applicants without experience not under 17 years of age, who have passed the scholastic examination of the state superintendent. County superintendents also issue third grade certificates upon their own examination, good for one year, good only in a designated district and not renewable without examination, nor may a teacher receive a third grade certificate more than twice in the same county.

McKINLEY TO DEWEY.

President Sends Congratulations to Admiral Dewey on Anniversary of Manila Naval Battle.

New York, May 1.—While at the navy yard President McKinley sent the following cablegram to Admiral Dewey:

"May 1, 1899.—Dewey, Manila: On this anniversary of your great victory, the people of the United States unite in an expression of affection and gratitude to yourself and the brave officers and men of your fleet, whose brilliant achievement added an epoch in history and which will live in the annals of the world's heroic deeds.

"WILLIAM McKINLEY."

County Ditch Business.

Complaints keep coming in to the county attorney from different parts of the county relative to the blocking of ditches. One case came up at East Grand Forks the latter part of last week. It was from the town of Sullivan. One Herr Johnson had stopped a ditch and vowed he would make away with anyone who broke the dam. He was arrested and is now under bonds to keep the peace. Another man from Sandsville is also under arrest for daming up a ditch. These facts go to show that a serious mistake was made in the legislature in defeating the drainage appropriation bill. Each of these farmers is trying to protect his own land, as the several ditches referred to are not large enough to carry off all the water. Larger county ditches are badly needed in several parts of the county, but the larger state ditches are also needed and many of the former cannot be built unless the latter are first built.

Attorney Marin Branches Out.

Will Marin, one of the prominent young attorneys of the city, has bought out the large insurance business which M. E. Welch has been working up in Crookston for several years. Mr. Marin will now represent eleven insurance companies in addition to those he had before. Those wishing to do business with him will find him on the second floor of the Wallace block.

Mr. Kirsch, who has long been a resident of Crookston and prominent in political and official circles, will for the present retire from active business life.

At the Eastern Minnesota railway's gravel pit, two miles east of Carlton, seven men were buried for a time under a gravel bank that caved in. Two were dead when dug out.

AROUND THE COUNTY

Weekly Reports From The Journal's Corps of News Gatherers.

MENTOR.

Mr. Folvig and wife were down to Fisher Saturday.

N. L. Nelson and Thos. Rustad visited here Sunday.

Jack Remick has built a fine addition to his house this spring.

Joe Martlie is going to build a fine house on his farm this summer.

Mr. Joe Remick has purchased a fine Percheron stallion for $300.00.

Mr. Ole Pederson, of Crookston, has been here a few days adjusting matters for the Deering Harvester Co.

Nels Nelson from Douglas county has purchased a 1/4 section of land near town and is at present building a house on the land.

LePage, the hotel man, has finished the addition to his hotel and is now using it. He reports a good run and every room occupied.

Mr. Ivor Lee, a prominent farmer from Fillmore Co., has been here for a few days looking for land, and he may soon be a permanent settler here.

The rain we have had the last few days has delayed the seeding around here considerable. A few of the farmers got their wheat in, but the majority are only about half through.

The Great Northern Railway is employing 3 men now on the section running out east of Mentor, there being considerable to do in order to get the track in good repair again after the frost is out.

J. L. Sletten, the lumberman, received another carload of lumber Friday, and he is expecting another one soon from the coast, consisting of fir lumber and shingles. He is selling a lot of lumber this spring which shows that his prices are all right.

Last Wednesday when Jack and Dave Fulton were out driving north of Mentor, they saw a big animal sitting up in a tree; they drove closer but not having a gun along returned to the nearest farm house and borrowed one. Returning to the place the animal was still there. Jack as the best marksman put the gun to his shoulder and downed the animal. Taking it to town it proved to be one of the largest lynx ever shot in this town.

DUODALE.

The wind blew a perfect gale here last Wednesday. One vacant house was blown down.

W. Horton of the town of Tilden finished seeding ninety-three acres on section 6 last Friday.

Considerable complaint is being made about the careless way in which the Great Northern railroad handles merchandise here.

The supervisors of the town of Tilden opened up a section line the latter part of last week. A good deal of grading will have to be done on the road runs through several sloughs.

L. P. Stairs, a first-class carpenter from LaCrosse, Wis., has been doing some repairing on Camp & Oehler's store at this place. He leaves next week for Big Lake Falls, where he will do some carpenter work in the saw mill.

W. C. Hortin, the landlord of the Dugdale hotel, has been attempting to dig post holes for the purpose of building a fence around his barn, but as he found the frost still in the ground he has abandoned the work for a day or two.

A severe hail storm swept over this burg last Wednesday evening. Hail the size of a bird's egg fell in large quantities and a large number of panes of glass were broken. The storm was so threatening that many people fearing a cyclone, went into their cellars.

Three employees of the Great Northern railway have been measuring the track at this place. There has been some talk of this railroad building a new line from Red Lake Falls to Wild Rice. One thing is certain and that is that if the new line is a go Fertile will be left out in the cold. The proposed line will connect with the old grade about a quarter of a mile east of Dugdale, going by Maple Bay and about four miles east of Fertile through a good farm country.

One day last week Mrs. Mary Ricke, who lives two miles north of Dugdale, heard one of the calves bawling back of the barn. She and her daughter at once ran out to see what was the matter and found that a large black bear had a calf in his arms and was carrying the calf away. The two women got two pitch forks and gave chase, following brain and his victim for a mile or more. The bear evidently got tired of the trail and so dropped the calf which, not being injured, the women drove back home. Two men started out the next day in search of the bear, but were unable to find him. Mrs. Ricke and her daughter are thought to have exhibited great bravery.

Ministers' Association.

The members of the Ministers' Association of the city met last Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the Episcopal church. It was the regular meeting for the election of officers and Rev. F. W. Fraser was elected president, Rev. H.' M. Green, vice president, and Rev. A. E. Rawson secretary. At these meetings the sermons preached the preceding day and the work done are discussed informally. Papers on various social and religious subjects are also read from time to time. Ministers of all denominations in the city are cordially invited to join this association.

One-Hundred Dollars in Gold.

That old and reliable publication, The Northwest Magazine of St. Paul, Minn., is offering $100 in gold for the five largest lists of new subscribers between this time and July 15. The prizes range from $50 to $20, $15, $10, and the rules governing the contest are such that even those who do not win one of these prizes will still be paid for his or for her work.

The Northwest Magazine is firmly established throughout this country, where it has thousands of friends, and the above offer affords an excellent opportunity for clerks, school teachers, housewives, and all money-making men, women and young folks everywhere to earn a handsome sum of money quickly and easily. For full particulars, write at once to The Northwest Magazine, St. Paul, Minn.

THESE GET FARMS.

Uncle Sam Furnishes Final Papers to Fifty-two Settlers.

The United States land office received from the county auditor for the following named persons: Anton H. Nelson, Geo. F. Shaeffer, John Backlund, Asse Asleson, Harvey Jones, Emly Murphy, Carl J. Nyren, Herbert H. Finrow, Sven Oleon, August F. Wilke, Ake Mule, John Wirtanen, Julius Swenson, Martin Peterson, Henry J. Kolden, Peter Svendsen, Knut Thronsen, Karl E. Storbekken, Lars J. Saud, Elias E. Storbekken, Andrew Hagen, Thos. Brenna, Ole Hansen Hansen, Christian H. Meisten, Per Frederick Kvislaad, Fritz Brechl, Per H. Mevik, Kristian O. Borud, Hans J. Sorord, Johannes Iversen, Chas. F. Earnet, Joann P. Bjorklund, Porter Nye, Peter Hegstad, Chas. A. Hedges, Chas. E. Evenas, Betty Nelson, Anna O. Ramstad (heirs of) Axel Larson, Ole E. Steen, Nells C. Hanson, Ole E. Rusted, Franz J. Maim, Ole Anderson, Per Martenson, Claes E. Erickson, Matts Jacobson, John Bengtson, Johann Persson, Nils Skoglund and Andrew Larsen.

Report on Grain Inspection.

The committee appointed by the legislature to investigate the work of the grain inspection department finds that the evidence,—to sum up the report:

1. That the grading of wheat has been uniform. That prior to the month of March there were over 2 wheat has not been graded solely on it merits, and it has been the policy of the inspection department to give lower grades than later.

2. That the system of appeal from the inspectors' decision is impracticable and of little benefit to shippers.

3. That it appears that some of the inspectors have been incompetent or careless.

4. That the weighing of grain at the terminal is carried on in a loose manner.

5. That the farmers suffer a heavy loss by shipping uncleaned wheat and by loading wheat into dirty and unswept cars.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

During Last Five Weeks Numerous Couples Made Happy.

From the first of April up to date the following named persons:

David Bronett, of West Duluth, and Matilda Boncher, of Lowell, Wis.; Joseph Zajdlik and Mary Verbski, of Tabor, H. J. Carruthers, of St. Paul, and Minnie Fredrickson, of Grafton, N. D., John Ghistorf, of Tabor, and Julia Nelson, of Argyle, H. E. Olsen, of Columbia, and Ellen Maria Roetuen, of Rosebud, John Knutson and Christina Clausen, of Fisher, Edward O'Neil and Lily May, of Crookston, Ben K. Kveste, of Red Lake County, Joseph Mirray and Flor Gagnon, of East Grand Forks, John Slovek and Frantiska Fordish, of Tabor, A. B. Hnivorson and Lizzie Chollett, of Polk County, Soren H. Jorgenson and Caroline Gunderson; of Erskine, Jeff Lowry and Susie V. Breggman, of Crookston, Odin Erlandson and Maren C. Rold, of Garden, George N. Evans and Ella Welsh, of Crookston, and Ira J. Bradshaw, of Crookston, and Mary D. Evans, of Goss, Falls Polk Co., Wis., A. Z. Hanson and Mary Olson, of Angus, Peder J. Anderson and Hilda M. Larson, of Crookston.

A Southern Gentleman.

Clay Clements in "A Southern Gentleman" at the Grand opera house last Tuesday evening entertained in a delightful manner the large audience which was present. He was well supported, so that the performance as a whole was artistic. The country chivalrous bearing of the typical southern gentleman was well portrayed by Mr. Clements. The villain played his part so well that those present came to hate him and Mrs. Clay Clements, as on her previous appearance here, completely captured the audience. May this company soon return is certainly the wish of Crookston theatre goers.

Y. M. C. A. Reading Room.

A very profitable meeting was held at the new Y. M. C. A. rooms in the McKinnon block last Sunday afternoon. Revs. Green, Hanson, Fraser and Poole made short addresses. The young men are getting the electric lights put into their quarters and have already ordered a fine reading table and as soon as possible, probably some time this week, the rooms will be open in the evening and good reading matter will be furnished to those who wish to read. This movement is deserving of the patronage of the city.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed in the Crookston, Minn., postoffice for the week ending April 29, 1899:

Aldrich W. G.
Berg Chas.
Bunk Nels
Bunnell Harry
Carlson Gust
Erickson Christ
Gleasner Edwin
Hadsett L C
Hartley W. H.
Miller J. M.
Nelson N.
Nerness Otto
Stenberg C. A.
Sutherland M.
Akre Marie Mrs.
Nuthier James
Mading W. Ruth
Mellgaard Anton
Miller J. E.
Brown M. Will
Thondland Ernest
Brandes Mike
Ellis Mrs. Ida
Gwinn F. E.
Johnson Y. W.
North Chas.
Nimso N.
Normand Alphonse
Robinson Fritz
Sorenson Chas.
Anderson V. Lena
Halverson Mary Miss
Logan Olga Miss
Peterson Anna Mrs.
Valley Eddie

Persons calling for the above say advertised. ANDREW EKEN, Postmaster.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following are the real estate transfers for Polk county as furnished by Christianson & Strander, abstracters, for the week ending May 3, 1899:

Andrew Wyds to Annie Vaden sw¼ nw¼ sec 9 152-47 ..... $ 300.00
Fahey J. Mims to Wm. J. Berdahl lots 5 and 6 block 3 Lake Park addition to East Grand Forks 1800.00
Keeue Pine Creek Savings Bank of New Hampshire to Frank O. Johnson ne¼ sw¼ and lots 2 and 4 sec. 18-148-41. 600.00
Mary E. David to Charles Bunnell and Andrew Melgaard sw¼ sec. 15-154-47 .... 1000.00
D. W. Lake & C. N. Nelson to Isaac Vossaer se¼ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2 sec. 2 152-49 ..... 1000.00
Bernhart Sampson to Gimild P. Werwage ne¼ sec. 18-148-41 ..... 1100.00
Thomas Campbell to Ole O Hatle inlot 2 and sec. 30-150-47 ..... 1000.00
Albert W. Mott to Julianna Finkle lots 1 and 2 block 20 First Addition to Townsite of Beltrami 155.00
Torger T. Oestby to Lars O. Stalland sw¼ ne¼ and se¼ sw¼ sec. 16-147-41. 800.00
George G. Nesbitt to First Presbyterian church of Crookston sly 50 f. block 3 and addition to Crookston 1000.00
Andrew Larson to Isabelle Larson w½ sw¼ sec. 9 152-48 ..... 1400.00
Ellsworth B. Dents to First Baptist church of Crookston and Dents addition lots 1 and 2 block 32 Crookston. 1.00
Peter Grinstad to Torger R. Rieber se¼ sec. 14-146-44 ..... 2000.00
Geo. Tallfson, admin., to Samuel C. Hayes ne¼ sec. 19-149-46 ..... 3000.00
Hanna Nelson to Oscar Nelson lots 19 and 20 block 7 Euclid addition to Crookston 350.00
George W. Carhart to George O. Gordon sw¼ ne¼ and se¼ sec. 21 sw¼ sec. 28, 154-47 and se¼ sec. 24 152-48 ..... 17,000.00
Teckel Averson to Knut K Moen se¼ se¼ sec. 9-150-49 ..... 348.00
Carrie D. Crookston to William Johnson 24 acres in se¼ ne¼ sec. 29-150-49 ..... 240.00
George W. Eastman, Kezia Strong se¼ sec. 34-149-47 ..... 1500.00
Carrie D. Crookston admin. to S. Gordon lots 11 and 12 block 7 Fletchers & Houstons addition to Crookston 1000.00
Lewis W. Larson to Sevrine N. Stenerson lots 1 and 2 block 24 Traills addition to Crookston 75.00
William A Marin to Michael E. Kinch lots 3 and 4 sw¼ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 sec. 30-151-46 ..... 400.00
Sigrid P Melfald to Rasmus K Melfald ne¼ sec. 29-148-45 ..... 1200.00
Archibald Cunlete to Eastern Ry. Co. right of way of land along the right of way of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Great Northern Ry. 14,880.00

"Two Sweethearts of Mine."

This song was received by us from the publishers a few days ago. Both the melody and words were so melodious and pretty that we can not help but reprint the chorus for our readers:

CHORUS.

One has hair of silvery gray,
The other just like gold,
One is my mother dear,
While the other is my sweetheart.

This song complete, words and music, will be sent to my address for 20 cents in silver or stamps, by the GROENE MUSIC PUBLISHING CO., 32 E. Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

For Sale.

As I am going to the Pacific Coast I offer my farm for sale, 880 acres half a mile from Detroit station, Polk Co. 640 acres under cultivation, mostly new land, pasture fenced, Sand Hill river flowing through it, artesian well, groves along the river, no waste land, always raise big crops, one of the most conveniently and finely situated farms in the Valley. Now rented to a first class farmer on shares.

F. B. DYKEMAN, St. Art.,
Lockhart P. O., Minn.

INSTRUCTORS PARTIAL

[Continued from First page.]

newspapers for writing down a breed, the outward physical characteristics of which he could not or would not accurately describe, is the layman to be blamed if he denounces the whole fraternity of instructors and writers as fakirs pure and simple?

But it is well for us to remember that there are educational forces at work besides the writers and talkers. The breeders themselves are down in the educational program. Every well bred herd of live stock is an object lesson known and read of all men who are not so blinded by prejudice that they will not see. Every well-kept farm advertises the laws which befriend and aid industry and thrift. Every breeder ought to be an object lesson himself—an example of fairness, candor and tolerance, and in no way can he do more to forward his own interests and the interests of a good cause than by fair treatment of every honorable rival. Fairness always dovetails well with enlightened self-interest.

It is not time for us as we approach the edge of the 20th century, to take a day off for self-examination. We are not always conscious of our prejudice. Paul, the great Apostle, persecuted the saints even unto death, and thought he was doing God service. He did not know that he was prejudiced until he saw a great light and the scales fell from his eyes. Perhaps when the scales fall from our eyes we may realize that we are more apt to find the weak places in the herd of our brother breeders, than we are to bring concerts from outside into the folds. A search light may reveal many precipices, small or great, if cast into outer darkness, may enable us to set up a new and higher standard of judgment and action. We cannot afford to waste time or energy in petty controversies with each other. It is not necessary for us to down another breed in order to exalt ours.

Every man whose live stock, with or without pedigree, is improving with every generation, is the friend and ally of progressive breeders. The result that he is working in harmony with Nature's laws.

Every man whose live stock, no matter how royal its lineage, is retrograding with every generation, is the enemy of progressive breeders. The results show that he is in error and out of line with nature's laws.

The common sense is not the man who dotes on a breed different from our own, but the living, ever present universal scrub, mas and beast.

The scrub man is the enemy of progress. We must educate him. If he is too old or too obstinate we must bury him decently at the first opportunity, and educate the boys and girls, too, for with the "New education" the "new woman" is likely to be a figure in 20th century agriculture.

The scrub beast is the result of mingling warring blood lines that refuse to blend. He is out of harmony with nature's laws. To make him useful we must graft him with better blood.

There is plenty of missionary work along these lines. It is the duty of many of the best men and the best minds. It concerns material interests almost too vast to compute. Error is well intrenched with prejudice and tradition. United we can accomplish wonders. Divided by pretty prejudices, the scrub will rightfully own the earth.

A. G. WILCOX.

Notice for Bids.

Bids will be received by the undersigned as per order of the city council of the city of Crookston, for doing the printing and publishing of the council proceedings, ordinances, ordinances and all other matter required to be published, such as legal notices, treasurer's and comptroller's reports etc.

Bids for said publications to be in conformity with the requirements of the city charter. Also for doing the job printing of the city for the ensuing year.

Red Lake Falls has voted $4,000 to build a new schoolhouse.

William Neff, late chief clerk to General Superintendent Ward, of the Great Northern, has been appointed superintendent of the Breckenridge division of that road.

The expenditure of $20,000 on the Red Lake dam is now authorized by the late legislature. This should, and undoubtedly will, make it one of the beauty spots of the state.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Methodist Ministers Will Discuss Church Work—Dr. Forbes, Presiding Elder, Will Lecture.

The Methodist ministers of this northwestern section of the state will meet in convention in Crookston next week. May 8, 9 and 10. An interesting program, published below, has been arranged. Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district, will be present.

Monday, May 8th at 8:00 p. m.—Sermon by Rev. J. G. Moore, of Pembina, North Dakota, followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Tuesday, May 9th, at 9:30 p. m.—Paper by J. C. Harley, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota. Subject: "The Present Status of Sunday School Work and What Modifications are Needed.

Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. A. Cooke, of Fisher. Subject: "The Use of the Ritual in Church Services.

Tuesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Geo. P. Watson, of Bemidji. Subject: "Revival Methods Best Suited to the times.

Tuesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. H. Logan, of St. Hilaire. Subject: "Church Literature."

Tuesday, at 8:00 p. m.—Lecture by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Epworth League Idea."

Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. T. J. Smith, of Argyle. Subject: "The Functions of the District Church Boards."

Wednesday, at 3:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. Wm. Park, of Ada, Subject: "The Preacher as a Student, of Business Methods and General Literature."

Wednesday, at 4:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. A. E. Rowson, of Crookston. Subject: "The Sermon—Its Theme, Preparation and Delivery."

Wednesday, at 5:30 p. m.—Paper by Rev. E. F. Spicer, of Warren. Subject: "The Preacher as a Pastor."

Wednesday, at 8 p. m.—Paper by Mr. J. W. Wheeler. Subject: "The Business Affairs of the Church."

Address by Rev. J. G. Moore. Subject: "The Social Meetings."

Address by Rev. Robt. Forbes D. D. Subject: "The Benevolent Societies."

The Conference to close with a consecration service.

Thursday, May 4, Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to the examination of the undergraduates of the Conference. Everybody will be welcome.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid and that said firm will pay the sum of One Hundred Dollars for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO. Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Order for Hearing Proof of Will.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.
In Probate Court. Special term, April 29, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of George Easley, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of said deceased, and praying that the same may be proved, allowed and recorded, and that letters testamentary be issued to Mary Easley, executrix named in said will.

It is Ordered, That the 15th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, in said County, be and hereby is appointed for the hearing of said petition, when all persons interested may appear and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said County.

By the Court.
A. M. HAGEN,
Attorney for Petitioner. Judge of Probate.
4-27

Final Proof.

Land office at Crookston, Minn.
April 26, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver, U. S. land office at Crookston, Minnesota, on June 10th, 1899, viz:

JOHN P. BAIKEN,

H. E. No. 10,777 for the lot 2 and sw¼ se¼, sec. 4, and lot 3, township 149 n, range 44 w.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Hagen, Herman Gunn, Ole Acher, John T. Farden, all of Dugdale, Minnesota.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

4-9

Order To Examine Accounts, etc.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. ss.
In the county court, special term, April 11, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of Jeremy F. Eaton, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Carrie D. Cooke, administratrix de bonis non of the estate of Mary E. Cooke deceased, representing among other things that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing her account of her administration, for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto, and for her discharge.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and said petition be heard by this court on the 6th day of May A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the probate office in Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 11th day of April, A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE E. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.
[1-3]

Notice of Application for Liquor License.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk. City of Crookston, ss.

Notice is hereby given, That applications have been made in writing to the Common Council of said City of Crookston and filed in the office of the City Recorder on the 3rd day of May, 1899, for the issuance on May 15th, 1899 by the Common Council of said City of the following licenses and at the following places as stated in said applications, respectively, to-wit:

Anne and Olson, the southeast room of two story frame building situate on lot 12 and the west 5 feet of lot 11 in block 7 of Crookston fronting on Robert street.

O'Reilly and Hall, all of first floor of two story frame building situate on part of lots 27, 28 and 29 in block 1 in the original townsite of the City of Crookston, and fronting on Second street and known as the "Bonanza" saloon.

Arnold and Stewart, in the one story frame building, situate in lot 12, block 28, townsite of Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, fronting on Main street.

Said applications will be our 4 and determined by the Common Council of the City of Crookston at the regular meeting in the City Hall in said City of Crookston in Polk County and State of Minnesota, on the 15th day of May A. D. 1899 at 7:30 o'clock p. m. of that day.

Witnessed my hand and seal of said city this 3rd day of April, A. D. 1899.

WM. A. LANGTOT,
City Clerk.

5-5

Mortgage Sale.

First publication May 4th, 1899.
Last publication, June 15th, 1899.

Notice of mortgage foreclosure sale.

Default has been made in the conditions of payment of a certain mortgage executed by Oscar Ostenso and Ingeborg Ostenso, husband and wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, to Ole Ostenso, dated the 19th day of April, 1890, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of April, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 56 of mortgages on page 266, which said mortgage was by said Ole Ostenso duly assigned to the American Freehold and Mortgage Company, Limited, of London, England, corporate, the certain tracts or parcels of real estate situate in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

The west half of the northeast quarter (we ¼ ne ¼) and the east half of the southeast quarter (e ½ se ¼) of section thirteen (13), township one hundred forty-eight (148), range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof, excepting and reserving therefrom unto ourselves, or any part of the same, and there is now due and claimed to be due and unpaid upon said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of two hundred and thirty-two hundredths (232.32) dollars; and

Whereas, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute, said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, by the Sheriff of Polk County, in said Polk County, Minnesota, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at the front door of the City of Crookston, in said Polk County, Minnesota, (that said door is the door of the court house in said county) to pay said debt, with interest, taxes and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated, St. Cloud, Minn., April 26th, 1899.
AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (Limited) of London, England, Mortgagee.
GEO. H. HEYDENBURK,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
4-11

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight and 50-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Oscar Ostenso and Ingeborg Ostenso, his wife mortgagors, to C. R. Pfaender mortgagee, bearing date the 19th day of April, 1890, and a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of April, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 56 of mortgages, on page 265, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, and the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: The south-west quarter of the south-east quarter and the south-east quarter of the south-west quarter of section thirty-four township one hundred and forty-eight range forty-four west of the fifth principal meridian in Polk county and State of Minnesota, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Four Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure by advertisement, and subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. R. PFAENDER, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee.
1-26 Library Block.

Order for Hearing Application for Appointment of Administrator.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk.—ss.
In Probate Court, special term, March 29th 1899.

In the matter of the estate of John Pinchen, deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Mary Pinchen, widow of said deceased, representing, among other things, that John Provencher died intestate on the 27th day of March A. D. 1899 at the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and that petitioner was at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate in said county and state, and praying petitioner is the surviving widow of said deceased, and that letters of administration of said estate be to Smith Provencher granted.

It is ordered, That said petition be heard before said court on Friday the 28th day of April A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at the office in the City of Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, That notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested in said estate, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county and state.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 29th day of March A. D. 1899.

By the Court,
OLE E. HAGEN,
Judge of Probate.
(1-3)

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of Seventy-five and 00-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Syver Omang and Josine Omang, his wife mortgagors, to C. R. Pfaender mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of August, 1890, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of August, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m. in book 56 of mortgages, on page 701, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter and lots one and two in section three township one hundred and forty-seven north of range forty-four (44) west of the fifth Principal Meridian in Polk county and State of Minnesota, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said Polk county, at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, in said county and state, on the

6th day of May,

1899, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Sixteen Hundred Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure by advertisement, and subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of such sale, as provided by law.

Dated Feb. 1, A. D. 1899.

C. R. PFAENDER, Mortgagee.
E. J. SCOFIELD, Attorney for Mortgagee. 45-53

Sportsmen Practice.,

The crack shots of Crookston are determined that the Queen City colors will not be trailed in the dust at the tournament to be held here next June. Every opportunity to practise shooting is being utilized. At the last shoot out a possible 50 was polnate the following was the score:

A.G. Anderson 18, C. C. Hoch 18, L. A. Larsen 17, J. E. Morrissey 17, W. E. Rowe 15 and W. W. Heen 10.

New Court Stenographer.

Chas. Lohn was on May 1st duly appointed by Judge Watts as court stenographer of the Fourteenth judicial district. He took the oath of office before the judge, swearing to support the Constitution of the United States and faithfully perform the duties of the office. Mr. Lohn has been a resident of Crookston for several years and has many friends here who will be pleased to learn of his appointment. He is a conscientious, energetic worker who will do the work of his office in a satisfactory manner.

New Residences.

G. L. Matson, who has recently returned from the Klondyke country, is rebuilding and remodeling his house on South Hunter street. The front part will be 18x22, with 16 foot posts, and the rear will be a kitchen 14x16.

Homer Tordiff is putting up a six room house 22x22 on Cromb street.

Victor Billesdeen is erecting a new residence 22x22, on Hunter street.

Frank Bottlue and Andrew are each building a private house on Spenting street. Thus is the residence portion of the town growing rapidly.

The Agreement.

We, the undersigned, agree to meet in a wrestling match at Crookston, May 6th, 1899, for a purse and $25 side bet, and winner to take 75 per cent. of gate receipts and loser 25 per cent.

We further agree that the style of wrestling shall be catch-as-catch-can best two out of three pin falls.

Referee to be decided on night of match. In case of either party not appearing on the night of the match agreed upon, unless by accident or sickness, side bet to be forfeited.

WILL LaROY,
F. J. ROGERS.

FIRE AT HOTEL JAMES.

Joe Wilson's Little Boy Sets Fire to the Bed

The firealarm rang out last Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock and soon the fire department and a large crowd were gathered in front of the James Hotel, from a window in the second story on the south side of which building issued volumes of smoke. Some buckets of water had been used before the firemen got there and it was but the work of a few minutes to quench the flames when once the water from the hose was turned on.

Joe Wilson's little four year old boy is supposed to have set fire to the bed on which his father was lying asleep. Mr. Wilson awoke to find the room in flames and smoke, his beard and hair badly singed, and both himself and boy nearly suffocated. Fortunate was it, indeed, that he awoke when he did for in a few minutes more both he and the lad would have been beyond recovery. On awakening he grasped the boy, rushed out of the room, closed the door so as if possible to confine the flames within the room, and gave the alarm.

All the contents of the room were badly damaged with fire and water, the building, carpet and wall paper being burned. The hall and some of the other rooms were flooded with water. The property was insured.

Mr. Wilson is an employee of the Crookston Lumber Company, but was off duty Friday owing to the mill being shut for the purpose of making repairs. Not only was he himself singed about the face and head, but Landlord Pratt also suffered the same fate.

The Northern division of the Great Northern will use about 75,000 new ties this year to replace those which are decayed. Most of these ties will come from the Fosston line, and will be of tamarac, which, next to oak, is recognized as the best available wood for this purpose. As the total cost of a tie placed in position on the road bed is about 60 cents, the Northern division will, therefore, spend about $45,000 in ties during the coming summer.

Paste this in your hat. The legal holidays in the state of Minnesota now number eight, the legislature just dead having added New Years, Independence day and Christmas day to the list. The dates of the holidays in their order during the year begin as follows: Jan. 1, February 15, Feb. 22, May 30, July 4, September 1, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in each even numbered year, election day, and Dec. 25. Good Friday and Thanksgiving day might as well have been added to the list as both are more or less observed as holidays throughout the land.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Appraisers will Fix the Value of the Land on which Thief River Falls Station Stands.

For some years the G. N. Ry. branch of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Ry. Co.—have held the right of way and station grounds at Thief River Falls acquired by quit claim deed, which is now shown was given by a party who had no title to the land. As the railroad company and R. E. Winslow, of Minneapolis, the owner, were unable to come to any satisfactory agreement as to the price of the land, the railway began condemnation proceedings to acquire the purchase of the land. The hearing of the petition for the appointment of a commission of three residents of Polk county to appraise its value was held before Judge Watts in chambers at Crookston, and the judge named as appraisers W. G. Sorseliel, C. J. Knox and C. A. Robbecke.

Deaths.

NOBLE.

On Saturday, April 29, at Fosston, Mary Jane Noble, wife of H. Noble of Blooming Prairie, Minnesota. For some months previous to her death the deceased was quite ill and about two weeks ago came north to Fosston where her sisters Mrs. Wm. Reed and Mrs. Rufus Emery are living, thinking that the change in climate might be beneficial to her. Mrs. Noble, whose maiden name was Knokes, was born at Harrietown, New York, March 3, 1852. Mr. Noble accompanied by Misses Mamie Emery and Goldie Reynolds, niece of the deceased, left Monday night with the remains for Blooming Prairie where the interment will take place.

—Geo. A. Wilde went out on the St. Vincent line Tuesday morning to arrange with the farmers out that way about having their crops insured.

NORDBY.

At Halstad on Wednesday April 26, L. E. Nordby. Mr. Nordby was born in 1842; came to Minnesota in 1868 and Halstad in 1883. Since that time he has been a prominent figure in Halstad business circles and in the politics of Norman county. The deceased was a member of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. He leaves one daughter, Mary, and one son C. Ed.

DARWIN.

On Tuesday, May 2, at Gentilly, Remi Darwin, aged 99 years and 11 months. Mr. Darwin was born in 1799 on Orleans island, situated in the St. Lawrence river near the historic city of Quebec, in the province of Quebec, Canada. He came to Minnesota in 1858 and settled first at Dayton, but after seven years spent there he came to Red river valley where he has lived for the last 24 years. At the time of his death he owned considerable property in the town of Gentilly. He has been a remarkably energetic and active man and up until about five years ago would do a day's hard work on the farm with any of his boys. Until two or three years ago he could see to read with out glasses. Had he lived one month more he would have completed the hundred years. His family has been quite large. Mrs. Louis Gonyea of the city is his daughter, as is also Mrs. T. Richards and Mrs. Thompson of Gentilly and Mrs. Albert Burdette of Anacondn, Montana. Two of his sons, Anthony and Alfonse, have been living on the farm with their father, another son is at Tacoma, Wash., and a fourth at San Francisco, Cal. His family is not a remarkable one: one of his brothers was a judge at the Orleans islands for 60 years, his father was a captain of a company in the last war in Canada between the Congress and the French and died at the advanced age of 105. His mother also lived to a ripe old age, being 90 years old at the time of her death.

The funeral takes place this morning at 10 o'clock at Gentilly.

ACCIDENT AT MILL.

George Lally has three Fingers Cut off by the Clipper Saw in the Shingle Department.

A serious accident occured at the saw mill last Saturday night about 6 o'clock by which George Lally lost the little finger of his right hand and part of the second and third fingers. It was only a few minutes before 6 o'clock at which time the employees usually clean up around their machines. Mr. Lally works in the shingle department with the knot or clipper saw. Whether something fell or just what happened he does not know, but all at once he found that the saw had passed through the fingers of his right hand. Dr. Dumpier dressed the wounds.

—Robert Stanton, of the firm of Stanton Bros., who has been engaged in the meat packing business in Grand Forks for years, is about to move to Palladne, Col., where he will engage in mercantile pursuits. The packing business will be continued by D. S. Stanton, who has been connected with the firm since its organization.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, April 27.

Ex-Premier Gerlachstein of Austro-Hungary is dead.

The cruiser Marblehead has sailed from San Lucia for Barbadoes to the Pacific station.

The Union Match company, with a capital of $10,000,000, has filed articles of incorporation at Trenton, N. J.

An examination shows that $120,000 in bogus revenue stamps were used in the Jacobs cigar factory at Lancaster, Pa.

The appearance of yellow fever at Bahia, Brazil, is announced in a dispatch to the state department from United States Consul Furniss at that place.

On Monday next the wages of carpenters in Denver will be increased 50 cents a day, making the minimum day's wages $2.00. About 500 men are affected.

Friday, April 28.

Surveyors are at Bismarck to begin surveying the new Washburn line from Bismarck to Washburn.

Philadelphia's equestrian statute of General Grant has been unveiled. President McKinley made an address.

Marcus Daly has been elected president of the new copper combine, known as the Amalgamated Copper company, capitalized at $75,000,000.

Fifty or sixty people were killed by a cyclone at Kirksville, Mo., and 15 at Newtown, same state. Deaths from the same cause have also occurred near Onawa, Ia.

A New York Herald Manila special states that General Lima, Aguinaldo's chief of staff, has sent an insurgent colonel through the lines under a flag of truce to ask for a cessation of hostilities.

General Lawton has planned to trap the Filipinos by entering Calumpit from the north. The fighting continues. General MacArthur winning a brilliant victory in consequence of a daring achievement by Colonel Funston of Kansas.

Saturday, April 29.

In the women's whist tournament at Washington the Minneapolis Journal club won the Philadelphia club.

Sam T. Jack, the well known theatrical manager, died at New York city of cancer of the liver, aged 46 years.

Judge Martin of the circuit court at Little Rock has upheld the constitutionality of the Arkansas anti-trust law.

Negotiations are pending for the consolidation of the Cramp Shipbuilding company of Philadelphia and the English firm of Vickers & Maxim.

In an altercation between W. A. Mullen, a plantation overseer, and a gang of negroes at Madison, Ala., Mullen and one of the negroes were killed.

Judge Jenkins has ordered the sale of that part of the land grant of the Northern Pacific Railway company which lie in Minnesota and North Dakota, east of the Missouri river. The sale will be made Special Master Alfred L. Carey. The North Dakota lands will be sold at Fargo and the Minnesota lands at St. Paul.

Monday, May 1.

King Leopold of Belgium will visit the United States.

Henry Charles Fitzroy Somerset, eighth duke of Beaufort, is dead.

Indiana experienced severe earthquake shocks Saturday night.

General Otis has been instructed to discharge every volunteer in the Philippines who applies.

General Harrison Gray Otis, has arrived at San Francisco. General Otis speaks in high terms of the volunteers in the Philippines.

Lieutenant O. E. Lamar, U. S. N., who was thrown from his trap while out driving with his new old son at Monterey, Cal., on April 21, has died of his injuries. He was a native of New York, aged 28 years.

A. N. Miller, vice president of the recently failed bank at Colden, Ills., committed suicide by shooting, himself twice in the head. Recently creditors of the bank filed suits against Miller, aggregating $60,000.

Tuesday, May 2.

The public debt increased $33,681,701, in April.

The United States has paid the $20,000,000 to Spain.

The first anniversary of Dewey's victory was celebrated throughout the country.

The 10th congress of the Sons of the American Revolution is in session at Detroit.

American women have started a movement for a universal international peace demonstration for May 15.

A consolidation of the peanut industry of the country, under the control of a single company with a capital of $5,000,000, is about to be effected.

Dr. Reuben Landen, president of Hahnemann medical college, Chicago, and one of the most widely known homeopathic practitioners of the world, was stricken with heart disease while performing an operation at the college hospital. He died five minutes later.

Wednesday, May 3.

John P. Altgeld is reported to be in improved condition.

Duluth street car employes are on a strike. The service is badly crippled.

Judge J. L. Mann of the probate court of Milwaukee county, Wis., is dead, aged 73.

No material change is reported in the condition of Vice President Hobart. He is still very weak.

The United States cable steamer Hooker has sailed for Manila to connect by cable all the principal points in the Philippines.

The directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent.

Easter in England.

In England less is made of the day now than before the reformation, but some curious practices survived until recently in that country. Among them was the custom of heaving, as it was called—possibly a relic of the heave offering of the Jews, though others say it was intended to symbolize the resurrection. A chair was decorated with rosettes and ribbons, and eligible men or women were desired to sit in it while the young women and servant maids of the place heaved them or raised them into the air. After that they gathered about and kissed them. This delightful custom should have been imported to this country. It would have had remarkable favor among those people who are fond of things English. Perhaps it took the edge from the enjoyment when the servants afterward insisted on tips, as other English servants do and have done on each and every occasion in life that offered the slightest excuse for such requests. On Easter Monday the men took their turn and heaved the women, demanding kisses and money as a penalty for refusal. In Ireland it was customary to rise at 4 in the morning in order to see the sun dance, as it was believed to do from joy that the anniversary should have come round again.

Constipation,
Headache, Biliousness,
Heartburn,
Indigestion, Dizziness,

Indicate that your liver is out of order. The best medicine to rose the liver and cure all these ills, is found in

Hood's Pills

25 cents. Sold by all medicine dealers.

THE BEST OF THEM ALL!!

LIPPINCOTT'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Contains a complete novel in every number, in addition to 144 pages of short stories and entertaining reading matter.

No continued stories, which are so objectionable to most readers.

It stands high in every household. Subscription price $2.00 per year.

Agents wanted in every town, to whom the most liberal inducements will be offered.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Publishers,
PHILADELPHIA.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS,
DESIGNS,
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain, free, whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents in America. We have a Washington office. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Specimen copies and HAND BOOK ON PATENTS sent free. Address

MUNN & CO.,
361 Broadway, New York.

Free Homes for Millions.

20,000,000
Acres Wheat and Grazing Lands for Settlement in Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Every acre will mature. Deep soil, well watered, wooded, easily reached by railroads. Average crop 1900 bushels to the acre. Pasturage 15 to 25 months in the year. Fuel and timber cheap. Taxes only one cent per acre. Prices and grazing rates low and exceptional. Immense coal fields guaranteeing a limitless supply at low prices. The Canadian Government gives to every male of eighteen years and to every female sole support of family, adding 160 acres for each to secure one with little means, but having sufficient energy to settle. Climate unsurpassed for health. For information address Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

FREE FARMS OF 160 ACRES

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government Agent,
154 E. 3d St., St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE

N. Campbell, Crookston Minn.
O. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villano, Minn., local agents.

Notice of Dissolution.

Crookston, April 8, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Rasmussen & A. M. Bell, under the firm name of Rasmussen & Bell is this day by mutual consent dissolved. All bills due said firm and all accounts against said firm will be collected and paid by A. M. Bell, who will succeed to the business at the old stand. Robert street, Crookston, under the name of Bell & Co.

In presence of
CHAS. HARRISON
O. D. DAHL

RUDOLPH T. RASMUSSON
ARNE M. DAHL

5ch

PISNER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink water from surface wells should use this remedy to purify the blood. All in any country all more or less afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or by mail by O. F. PISNER, Crookston, Minn.

South or East; Which?

When a trip is contemplated it is always well to prepare in advance, in order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. This two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the traveling public. Your nearest ticket agent will give you complete information and furnish you folder of the Wisconsin Central Lines.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
Milwaukee, Wis.
[16-tf]

HIGH-GRADE
HAWTHORNE
$22.50 NET.

SPECIFICATIONS. Name—Hawthorne. Grade—Standard. Frame—Diamond, 22 inches. Finish—Enamel, choice of colors. Fork—Drop forged, tubular. Bearings—Hanger, Hawthorne, ball; steering, Hawthorne, Pattern, Hawthorne, 28 inch. Rims—Hawthorne, 28 inch, 32 hole, 1¾ inch. Tires—Hawthorne, 28 inch, 1¾ inch. Saddle—Hawthorne. Handle bars—Hawthorne, drop. Pedals—Hawthorne, rubber. Sprocket—Hawthorne, 24 tooth. Chain—Hawthorne, 1/2 inch. Rear hub—Hawthorne, 3 speed, coaster brake. Front hub—Hawthorne, 28 hole. Spokes—Hawthorne, 11 gauge. Weight—About 30 pounds.

15000 Sold in 1898

It's as good as any bicycle made. All modern improvements. Guaranteed one year. If not found as represented, return at our expense both ways, and you can have your money back on demand

ASK US TO SEND YOU OUR FREE BICYCLE CATALOG

Send it costs for our 1,000 page catalogue. It lists everything used by mankind.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO.

FARM PROFITS

Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER,
STOCKMAN,
DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND
HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

With the JOURNAL one year for $1.75.

BINDER TWINE

Our famous BLUE LABEL BRAND. It's the best in the world. Price is as low as the lowest. Write for free sample and quotations.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO.

YOU CAN USE IT 20 DAYS FREE

Write us today for our 20 days free offer.

Originators of the Catalogue Business.

Send us this ad and we will send you our handsome catalogue free, and tell you how you can secure one with little means, but having sufficient energy to settle. Climate unsurpassed for health. For information address Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

BENJAMIN DAVIES,
Canadian Government Agent,
154 E. 3d St., St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE

N. Campbell, Crookston Minn.
O. Johnson, Fosston, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Villano, Minn., local agents.

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 74 Illustrations—a standard work. Price, 50 cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; contains 44 colored, life-like reproductions of all leading varieties and 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry Business; a practical book in existence; tells everything; with 24 colored life-like reproductions of all the principal breeds, with 70 other illustrations. Price, 50 cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great sale; contains 8 colored life-like reproductions of each breed, with 132 other illustrations. Price, 50 cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchery, Diseases, etc. Contains over 50 beautiful illustrations and other engravings. Price, 50 cents.

The BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original, and you never saw anything like them—so practical, so sensible. They are the big 50 cent success—Fat, Wool, North and Chicken, or grass, corn or horse. Every Cow, Hog or Horse in the BIGGLE BOOKS. Get it right

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for you and not a misfit. It is 27 years old; it is the great boiled-down, life-lead-on-the-head,—dairy-yes-he-said-it, Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL 5 YEARS (remainder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for DOLLAR BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON, Address, FARM JOURNAL,
CHAS. P. JEFFRIS. PHILADELPHIA

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities.

Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75
MONARCH ROADSTERS $60
DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.
Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago
Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Queen Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Ada Cooper, Lee Richardson and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

United States Map.

15c. A copy of our handsome map, 18x28 inches, showing all railroads, counties and county seats, will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in coin, postal or express money order. We cannot well use postage stamps. GEO. P. LYMAN, General Passenger Agent C. St. P. M. & O. Ry. St. Paul, Minn.

Polk County Journal,

By N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

JERRY J., the well known political writer for the Minneapolis Journal, is slated to be the Washington correspondent for that paper. The good wishes of the newspaper fraternity go with him in his new field of labor.

WE have received Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Business Hen and Busy Bee, a newspaper edited in St. Paul by N. S. Beardsley and devoted to poultry and bees. Some valuable suggestions are made in the paper and the farmer who spends fifty cents for it will not be throwing money away.

THE first number of the Cass Lake Times, edited by Ives & Strawbridge, has been received. It is a clean-looking, neatly printed, newsy, well-edited sheet. We suggest that the Times send copies of the paper to the Interior department at Washington. Judging the community out there by its live newspaper the government will be sure to conclude that the reservation ought to be thrown open to settlers.

A statue of Ulysses S. Grant was unveiled one day last week in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, by a grand daughter of the great general. This again does an ever grateful nation honor the man who assisted so nobly and ably in preserving the Union. This monument, representing General Grant on horseback, particularly emphasizes the man's characteristic quality of holding his peace. It is the "silent man on horseback."

THE Minneapolis Journal and Tribune are having a rather lively controversy over the teachers' and scholars' voting contest which was started by the first named paper. The Tribune accuses the Journal of demoralizing the public schools of the city by the contest that that paper has begun, while the Journal replies that the Tribune is annoyed because of the Journal's scoop. The Journal is certainly keeping within the letter of the school laws of the city and the scheme is undoubtedly a good advertising one.

OUR esteemed contemporary, the Tribune, took occasion in the issue of last Friday night to roundly denounce the show, "McFadden's Row of Flats," which was to appear at the Opera House that same evening. The result was that the show people treated the "Trib" to a warm roast and the audience applauded. From what we have learned from those who were present—we were not there ourselves—we should judge that the play was above the average for a farce.

CONSIDERABLE excitement is reported at Grand Forks and Crookston owing to the appearance of smallpox cases in those cities. Everybody is being vaccinated.—Brainard Tribune. With reference to the above we may say that though there may have been some excitement at Grand Forks we do not think any case of smallpox appeared there. While as far as Crookston is concerned there has been neither excitement nor smallpox. We think that in reference to matters of this kind particularly, newspapers ought to be careful always to state the truth for such reports as the above even though false nevertheless injure a town.

BANK EXAMINER KENYON was severely attacked and yet General Pope, his successor, has this to say of him: "Mr. Kenyon has not spent a cent extravagantly or improperly. He has simply used up the money for the support of the department under him and most of what was to run it the rest of the year. What I have asked is enough to run the department as Mr. Kenyon has done, with one man added, and with enough to pay traveling expenses. Out of the bank fees, which amount to $2,000, paid last June, that became available Aug. 1, Mr. Kenyon has spent $1,200 in advance. He was obliged to spend that much more than the appropriation allowed to accomplish as much as he did."

THE American forces in the Philippines have been winning brilliant victories, but like as the fair land of Italy lies beyond the Alps, so before the welcome cry, "They run, They run!" rings out, the dull thud is heard as many a brave soldier falls to the earth to rise no more. It is thoroughly characteristic of our populist friends always to look on the dark side of things, hence they see the dead in the Philippines, not the living. But they are responsible for those dead many times more than is the administration. The commission sent to the islands by President McKinley is finding difficulty in getting even the Filipinos, who are opposed to Aguinaldo and rather friendly to the Americans, to come out openly on the American side, for these Filipinos fear that the anti-expansionists may get in power in the United States, our forces be withdrawn and then they would be at the mercy of Aguinaldo.

IT IS only a question of time until every campaign cry of the demo-pops of last fall to the effect that incompetency had been shown by the republicans in several departments of the state, will be shown to be untrue.

HON. LEWIS BAKER, for many years editor of the St. Paul Globe, died in Washington April 30. With the exception of a few years in the government diplomatic service, he devoted his life to newspaper work.

AT the time when the Minneapolis Tribune building and plant was burned recently the action of the Minneapolis Journal in tendering the Tribune the use of its plant, was thought by every body to be most generous. The Tribune, however, says that the hospitality was given under contract obligation and that the Journal handed in a bill of $8,000 as the price of its hospitality.

IN all parts of the United States May 1 was celebrated as "Dewey Day," it being the first anniversary of the day when Dewey with his brave officers and sailors entered the harbor of Manila and forever destroyed the power of Spain in the east. Dewey is a remarkably able man, both as an admiral and a statesman and he stands today as the hero of the war and the idol of the American people.

THE action of the state normal board in raising the standards of admission to the normal schools is a commendable one. It was brought about by dropping the "C" or lowest class from the course and requiring that applicants for admission shall have completed the work hitherto done in the "C" class, in the subjects of arithmetic, geography, English grammar, reading and physiology. This work can just as well be done in the eighth grade of any public school or advanced work in the high school. The Normal schools in consequence will not in the future have as many students as in the past.

THE report of the army court of inquiry into the condition of the beef furnished the soldiers during the late war with Spain is completed. It is found that Miles' charges are almost all of them unfounded and that general is censured for not having reported the complaints sooner. As far as we can judge these conclusions will be as unsatisfactory to the people as were those of the war investigating committee. The people themselves have read most of the evidence taken and have made their own inferences and we think their verdict is that General Miles is rather deserving of praise than censure and that our soldiers were most outrageously treated in the matter of the beef furnished them.

RICHARD CROKER, the new York boss, Tom Reed, the great speaker of the house of representatives and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador at Washington, all left on the same ocean liner for Europe one day the latter part of last week. Crowds thronged the wharf and the boat to shake hands with and bid farewell to Mr. Crocker. Mr. Reed and Sir Julian were hardly noticed. Crocker, who acknowledged in his testimony before the Mazet investigating committee in New York that his acts were thoroughly selfish, is hurraked and cheered, while two men who have generally benefited their respective countries are lost in the crowd.

CAPTAIN COGHLAN of the Raleigh, one of the vessels that took part in the Manila naval battle of a year ago, in a speech at a banquet recently given in New York in his honor by one of the aristocratic clubs, made some somewhat disparaging remarks with reference to the German Emperor, voicing thereby the sentiments of the American Asiatic fleet. The German government promptly demanded of Secretary Hay an explanation of the affair. It will be unfortunate if this brave officer suffers any reprimand or disgrace, but public officials of our government must learn not to give their thoughts tongue, at least when the conduct of some foreign ruler or public official is called in question. What a public man says nowadays may reach the ends of the earth even while the words are yet warm on his lips.

THE situation in the Philippines is grave still we have no doubt but that in the end order will be restored and the inhabitants of these islands will enter upon a career of prosperity and growth. The difficulties encountered have been greater than it was supposed would be met with there and most of this trouble we charge to the anti-expansionists of this country, the vast majority of whom are political opponents of the administration. For the United States to withdraw now would mean that the fight for the cause of humanity is abandoned, would mean national humiliation, would mean disaster to the cause of freedom throughout the world, for the opponents of the republican party appear willing to go any length provided they can only get into power. What patriotism is here?

WITH the May number, George B.M. Harvey assumes editorial management of the North American Review. The questions, political, educational, scientific which are most prominent in the minds of the people of the world today are discussed in this number. The size of the magazine is enlarged and certain other material improvements made.

R. W. HITCHCOCK, principal of the Fosston schools, was elected some ten days ago as superintendent of the Crookston public schools for the next school year. We have been away from the city for some time and hence have not been able as yet to fully investigate the question of his election and his qualifications for the position for which he has been chosen. We are satisfied, however, from what we have so far learned that the board have acted hastily in their selection of a superintendent. Mr. Hitchcock comes recommended only by personal friends and some of the business men of Fosston. If we are correctly informed he is not endorsed by any of the prominent educational men of the state, and the board knew nothing further about his standing as a teacher than what certain men from Fosston told them. It seems to us that the matter should have been thoroughly investigated and we think that the town is of the same opinion, for we find general dissatisfaction among the people over the appointment. It is true that Mr. Hitchcock will not receive as large a salary as Supt. Moore did or as other educators of Mr. Moore's standing would have demanded. Economy is to be commended, but we feel sure that the people of Crookston desire to have a thoroughly competent man at the head of the city school system, cost what it may.

Notes From Exchanges.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel: The price of land in the Red River valley has greatly advanced during the past year. Land that sold for $6 to $15 per acre last spring is being disposed of at $20 to $30 this spring.

Cass Lake Times: Geo. Sebastian of Crookston spent a day in town last week. He will probably be engineer on the "Shamrock." George is a good engineer, and Messrs Dwyer & Lydick will make no mistake in employing him for that position.

Hoard's Dairyman: Cold water, cold barns, and cold air have to be heated with butter fat, if the cow is to keep herself warm. There are lots of dairymen who have not found it out yet—but their pocket-books have.

Norman County Index: The Sand Hill river slash ditch is being tested to its fullest capacity, water running into it from all directions, draining the land which heretofore has been flooded at this season. The roads almost impassable and a time to be dreaded by the farmers.

Fargo Forum: Cunning Colonel Bryan is talking incessantly, saying not much of anything interspersing in his talks much padding of weary platitudes—and making himself the best advertised man in America. You are doing all right, William, only—there is danger of your over-doing it.

Fargo Forum: The republican party is the party of the people. The reforms must be made through that party. They are continually being made—and thus the party retains confidence. Privileges bring responsibilities—that is a good thing for republicans, to remember. To retain confidence—it must be deserved.

Little Falls Transcript: State Auditor Dunn will remove strict with those who are delinquent on state land purchases than he has been in the past. He called the attention of the legislature to the many delinquencies, and asked for legislation to help the matter. Instead of obtaining relief he was criticised for allowing delinquencies. Under the circumstances he will insist on payment, or offer the land for sale again.

Thirteen Towns: It may be safely said that no legislature has done more than this one to advance the educational interests of the state. In the first place the legislature has been very liberal in its appropriations for the high schools and common schools and in the second place steps have been taken to raise the standard of excellence among the teachers by a system of state certificates. The University and Normal schools have been given everything they need for good work. The Republican party of Minnesota is glad to go on record as in the past, for education and progress.

Hallock News: Everything points to a boom in farm lands in the Red River Valley during the coming season. It is not a speculation movement but an immigration of bona seeking settlers that is causing the advance in the price of farm lands. The new settlers are coming from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and other neighboring states. Besides the general improvement in conditions, the opening up of railroad lands for settlement and the re-claiming of low land through ditching have been factors that have stimulated alike immigration and prices.

St. Paul Dispatch: The responsibility for the defeat of the drainage bill should be placed where it belongs, that the people of the district affected may know whom to hold accountable. The bill passed the senate though the exertions of Senators Myras, Grindeland and Ryder and with the support of their republican colleagues. It was defeated in the house by Jacobson and the other personal representatives of Lind upon the floor, and because the people of the Red river valley still insist upon sending a lot of incompetent populists to the house, who invariably obstruct instead of expediting legislation in the interest of the district.

The Business Hen: The farmer can keep anywhere from thirty to fifty hens to good advantage. If he desires to keep more, it will be necessary for him to build a lean-to on the south side of his barn, or put up a special house for their accommodation. I do not believe however, that it will pay the average farmer to keep a large number of hens. In order to do so, it will be necessary for him to spend considerable money for equipments, and the time he spends on his hens is just so much subtracted from his other work. Instead of keeping more hens, it will be wiser for him to keep better hens.

Literary Notes.

THE MAY ATLANTIC.

The May Atlantic opens with an article upon the Australian Extension of Democracy by H. De B. Walker who discusses the management of affairs, especially financial, in the five great Pacific colonies of England, their methods of governmental loans, their wise usefulness, their liquidating deposits and tax regulations, and their relief and pension systems.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh vividly depicts the jealous care with which all other nations, especially England, cultivate their mercantile marine and shipping interests, and the dangerous condition into which our own have been allowed to fall through mismanagement and long continued neglect.

John S. Wise continues his thrilling account of his war adventures during the last days of the Confederacy, including among other exciting incidents his last experiences with General Lee and President Davis, and at the surrender of General Johnson.

IAN MACLAREN ON LISTENING TO A SERMON.

Ian McLaren writes on "The Art of listening to a sermon," in the May Ladies' Home Journal, the first article of a series on the relations of the pulpit and the pew which he will contribute to that magazine. This author-preacher writes that the regular church-goer has the advantage over the "casual" in comprehending the minister's discourse, merely half the beauties and points of a sermon being lost if they fall on untrained ears. Hearing requires as much effort as preaching, says Ian Maclaren, for "no sermon is worth hearing into which the preacher has not put his whole strength, and no sermon can be heard aright unless the hearer gives his whole strength also."

REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews of May devotes considerable space to a survey of recent developments in American cities. The editor comments on the re-election of Mayor Carter Harrison in Chicago, on Mayor Jones' remarkable triumph in Toledo, on the Detroit project for municipal ownership of the street railways, and on the general situation in Boston, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Denver, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and New York. Dr. Shaw also contributes a special study of the new San Francisco charter—a remarkable document in its way, and Mr. George E. Hooker gives some interesting facts about Mayor Quincy's administration of Boston.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

General Miles contributes to the May number of the North American Review the first of a series of papers on "The War With Spain." He reviews the events leading up to the war and the movements of the army to the time when Santiago was invested. He describes the difficulties which had to be encountered in equipping the forces, and the preparations made for rendering them effective in the actual work on the field. General Miles makes some surprising revelations as to our lamentable lack of the munitions of war at the outbreak of hostilities.

Ninety Per Cent.

Of the people are afflicted with some form of humor, and this causes a variety of diseases. The reason why Hoods Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail is found in the fact that it effectually expells the humor. Scrofula, salt rheum, boils and all eruptions are permanently cured by this great medicine.

Hoods Pills are the best family cathartic and liver tonic. Gentle, reliable, sure.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

In Chambers.

The case of the First National Bank of Grand Forks against John Sorenson and Edward Gulseth was argued Monday by A. A. Miller, attorney for the plaintiff, and Halvor Steenerson for defendant. A motion was made for judgment notwithstanding the verdict. The motion for the amount contained in the complaint was granted.

Twin Valley Times: Never has there been such a demand upon the state experimental stations for information. This is as it should be. The stations were founded for the benefit of agriculture and farmers should use them. This condition is also significant of a desire on the part of the country people to be better informed, better educated and in consequence better prepared to intelligently manage their business.

PRINTING Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

Tis Said....

And truly stated that talk is cheap. This rule has its exceptions. This little talk you are getting here costs money, hence we shall state facts only.

Don't send to Minneapolis or St. Paul for your spring supplies. A chance to figure on your bill is all we ask. We are much better prepared than ever to fill orders promptly, having a wholesale house at our command enables us to quote very close prices

Bring us your Butter and Eggs and get highest market price

We are headquarters for all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds.

Slocum's Grocery,

ROBERT STREET.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figuré on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—J. S. Daly of Argyle spent Monday in the city.

—W. L. Vannet spent Sunday at his home in Fertile.

—T. J. Welsh came in from Bagley last Sunday afternoon.

—G. A. Tripp and wife of Hendrum spent Monday in Crookston.

—J. E. O'Grady was down from St. Vincent last Monday on business.

—Miss Packard, of St. Paul, is the new stenographer at Flach & Smith.

—Miss Lida Ward has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. J. E. Jerome.

—Mrs. J. Wallace of Grand Forks was in consultation with Dr. Brown last Sunday.

—Mrs. Hattie Stearns has opened a Kindergarten school in the parlors of the Baptist church.

—A. L. Mitchell of Minneapolis, the king of sewing machine men, was in Crookston on Monday last.

—One lot of ladies' hand turned shoes to be closed out at a great reduction at the New York Store.

—Deputy Public Examiner Koerner has been in the city this week looking over the books of the county officers.

—Colonel and Mrs. R. A. Wilkinson arrived in Crookston last Saturday and will make their home here during the summer.

—Rev. F. W. Fraser of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. R. G. Poole of the Baptist church exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

—O. K. Berget, clerk of court, Lommen's right hand man, was seen the other day intently studying plans for a dwelling house.

—Mrs. Sam Rosenthal entertained last Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Dr. Moyer, who is visiting with her sister, Mrs. W. D. Scott.

—W. Hallett, an employee in Morrissey's Iron Works, was badly cut last week by a piece of metal that flew up and struck him in the face.

—A. N. Hixson left last Thursday evening for West Superior, where he will engage in the flour milling business in partnership with C. E. Sawyer.

—Ed. Gilbertson has taken unto himself a partner in the restaurant business. The firm name of the Arcade Cafe now is Gilbertson & Beatty.

—M. A. Campion, who has been spending the winter in the south in search of health, returned last Thursday, accompanied by his wife and mother.

—Rev. Mr. Stickney, of Fargo, who represents the Sunday School Publishing Association of the Congregational church, was in Crookston last Friday visiting with Rev. H. P. Fisher.

—Dr. Geadron, of thisetty, received word Sunday that his brother, Dr. Eugene Geadron, of River Falls, Wis. had been successfully operated upon for appendicitis by Dr. Marquis of St. Paul.

—Jessie C. Childs, who has during the past school year been teaching 8th grade and high school subjects in the Crookston schools was re-elected for the ensuing year but he has resigned.

—A surveying crew from the Twin Cities composed of T. H. Crowell, E. R. Barton, L. Gregg and A. W. Miller, passed through Crookston Tuesday morning on their way to do some surveying in the Roseau country.

—George Strawbridge came down last Thursday evening from St. Hilaire where he is in business, and went out Friday morning to Cass Lake where he will look over the field with a view to locating there if the outlook is promising.

—One of the chimneys in the Reckitt block took fire about 7 o'clock Saturday morning and an alarm was turned in, but before the firemen's apparatus was taken out it was discovered that the help of the firemen was not needed.

—A colony of Crookston people comprising Anthony St. Martins, Jos. La Plante, O. Rivard, Alphonse Bay, their wives and families, Miss Matilda La Plante and Emil La-Plante have gone to Oregon where they will make their future home.

—The 60 foot approach to the Mafford bridge which the county has been building was inspected last week by County Commissioners McCarty, Eastman and Thompson and as they found the work completed as per contract, the bridge was accepted.

—Yates and others cannot for the present dam water in the ditches in the town of Hammond, for Judge Watts last Thursday issued a temporary injunction restraining them from doing so. This matter has been thrashed over in the courts several times.

—Rev. H. M. Green spent last Friday in Warren.

—Mrs. A. D. Stephens and daughter have returned from St. Paul.

—Mrs. N. P. Stone spent Saturday at Warren on a visit with friends.

—The fire bell continues to be audible a block away from the fire hall.

—A. E. Christie, of East Grand Forks, was a Crookston visitor yesterday.

—Everything new in the line of men's hats may be found at the New York store.

—H. A. Wilkinson and J. P. Foote were passengers on the St. Hilaire line yesterday morning.

—Mrs. M. B. Milligan went to Warren Saturday morning for a short visit with friends.

Mrs. Chas. Murch and her little lover are up from Minneapolis visiting at her old home in this city.

—Archie Hillard left yesterday for the Hillard estate near Cass Lake. He will be gone the rest of the week.

—Drs. Dunlop and Robertson went out six miles north of Fisher yesterday performing an operation for appendicitis.

—Patrick Meehan was down from Thief River Falls last Monday looking after the work on his farm northwest of the city.

—Charley Hitchcock has returned from his trip to Iowa where he attended the golden wedding of his father and mother.

—In Probate Court Monday a final account was rendered in the estate of Arthur Yvernault, and the administrator was discharged.

—John Daley, formerly proprietor of the Northwestern hotel, is the new manager of the restaurant on Main street above Second street recently owned by F. Smith.

—In the land office case between Gorman and Miller which has long been up before the United States officials the interior department has decided that Gorman may file on the land.

—A. J. Richards of Chicago has been added to the force of the Northwestern Marble Works. He is an expert workman in lettering and tracing in marble. His family will reach here in the near future.

—Wanted, teachers to attend the Crookston College Summer School. It is cheap, thorough, practical. Term opens June 12 and continues eight weeks. Address, Crookston College, Crookston, Minn. 4-26.

—Annie Nelson of East Grand Forks applied for a divorce from her husband, J. Nelson, and the divorce was granted by Judge Watts last Friday. The complainant charged that her husband treated her cruelly.

—Prof. E. C. Mitchell conducted his music classes at Fosston and Melntosh last Monday for the last time for several months. He will not hold a closing concert at Fosston but will at Red Lake Falls tonight.

—Miss A. Dunphy, of Duluth, who has been during the past school year teaching the primary department in the Perham schools, resigned about two weeks ago and last Monday began the spring term of school at Key West.

—W. A. Lanctot, local agent for the West Chester New York Insurance Company in which Landlord Pratt had insured his household goods, some of which were harmed in last week, has already settled for the damages of fire and water.

—In the United States land office in this city during the month of April there were in all 135 homestead entries, 15 final proofs on homesteads, two final proofs on timber culture, and 19 cash entries. Total receipts $3,467.80

—One Jacobs, a cigar manufacturer of Pennsylvania, has been using counterfeit revenue stamps on boxes of cigars sent out. Dealers in Crookston have found some of these goods among their stock and the cigars were at once seized by U. S. Collector Johnson.

—J. Strohle, who together with his father and two brothers, owns and works a 1200 acre farm in the town of Angus, was a caller at the Journal office last Friday. He said that at that time they had seeded 140 acres, and the other farmers in their vicinity were no further ahead.

—Deputy Sheriff Losey is putting a handsome fence around his props erty in Jerome's addition. The posts are brace, set in cement and wire netting between the posts. Chief Gonyea is also doing some fencing around his place,—a board fence in the rear of the house and a wire one in front.

—Sheriff Lawrence is sending notice to those who are delinquent in the payment of their personal property taxes. He finds that the record in the county during the last year is the thinnest by any these taxis is better than usual. In case no attention is paid to the notices he is now writing he will visit the delinquent in person.

—A. A. Miller was at Solway Saturday.

—John Clement; of Climax, was here on Monday.

—N. A. Mott, of Ada, was in the city over Sunday.

—Frank Jerrue of Warren was here over Sunday.

—A. E. Brush, of Angus, was here over night Tuesday.

—John Johnson was over from Fisher last Tuesday.

—Ed Monson of Climax spent Tuesday at the county seat.

—Attorney H. W. Lee of Thief River Falls was in the city Monday.

—Norman Hanson the banker from Fertile was in Crookston Monday.

—City Editor Hayford of the Tribune spent Sunday at Grand Forks.

—O. A. Brager has gone to Fosston to act as stenographer in the bank there.

—J. H. Peterson and family took the train Monday morning for a short visit with friends in St. Hilaire.

—Jasper Brown and wife were in from Erskine Sunday and spent the day visiting with friends in the city.

—Great reductions in the price of shoes at the New York Store. Men's plow shoes, regular $1.50, reduced to $1.25.

—Fred Lanctot of Elbow Lake, a brother of W. A. Lanctot of this city is assisting Tom Morris in the Jewelry store.

—A. L. Johnson of Alpina, Mich. was in the city Monday visiting with E. G. Cook of the Ray Mercantile company.

—The Great Northern will run weekly for the season a special stock train from St. Vincent to Fergus Falls via. Crookston.

—L. D. Wilkes, of St. Paul, state agent of the Equitable Insurance company of New York, spent Tuesday in the city with Joseph Smith.

—E. Knokes recently came to Fosston and will spend the summer there visiting with his daughters Mrs. Wm. Reed and Mrs. Rufus Emery.

—Miss Viola Kinyon, stenographer of the Union National bank at Grand Forks, spent last Sunday visiting at the home of Mrs. Geo. Whitney of this city.

—S. C. Bagley has returned from Montana where he seared from the Great Northern railway the contract for rebuilding fifteen miles of railroad.

—The Fisher Bulletin, lately owned by C. C. Knappen of the People's Press, has been bought by G. H. Shere, an old newspaper man from Evanston.

—The guests at Hotel Crookston enjoyed a hop in the spacious dining room last Saturday night. They danced to the music of the mandolin and guitar.

—Martin O'Brien and Robt. Ray have been named by Mayor A. D. Stephens as delegates to the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Convention which will meet in the south in June.

—Charley Carpenter who is located at Mcintosh with his brother Paul, came in from that large Sunday afternoon and returned thither Tuesday morning. The interval was spent in visiting with relatives in the city.

—The remains of George Sauby reached Crookston Saturday morning accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Misner. The funeral occured at Euclid, Mr. Sauby's home on Sunday. A large number of friends were present.

—Postmaster Elken has received word from Congressman Eddy that the latter had called at the post office department at Washington and that the first assistant of the department told him that he had written Inspector Thiele to proceed as soon as possible to Crookston and arrange for free delivery.

—From talking with the farmers from all parts of the county who were at the assessors' meeting here last Saturday it was learned that in the eastern half of the county the seeding was then pretty well finished, but that in the western portion there was hardly any done, a very few having in from 5 to 10 acres.

—Dave Gorton of the firm of Larsen, Carpenter & Co. of Fosston visited with friends in the city during the first part of this week. He is in just four months since Mr. Gorton left Crookston for his new work. He is enjoying life out at his new home and reports business as good. Many friends here were glad to see him again and only wish he might have stayed longer.

—The Methodists of the city are arranging a special program to be given one week from next Sunday night in the church. The occasion being the tenth anniversary of the establishment of the Epworth League. The choral club which a few weeks ago gave an entertaining concert are again drilling under the directorship of Mrs. Van Arnum and will sing two choruses at the special Epworth League celebration.

"Winter Finds Out What Summer Lays By."

Be it spring, summer, autumn or winter, someone in the family is "under the weather" from trouble originating in impure blood or irritated condition of the system.

All these, of whatever name, can be cured by the great blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla. It never disappoints.

Abscesses—"I am past 64 and my good health is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills, which purified my blood and healed the ugly abscesses that troubled me." Miss. Jennie C. Ewell, Southwick, N. J.

Dyspepsia—"My husband doctored a long time for dyspepsia with only temporary relief. Three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla helped him and the second cured him. I cured my sick headache." Miss. May A. Clark, Wilmington, Vt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—S. C. DeMers was up from Barnesville on Monday.

—Marcus Johnson spent Monday night in Crookston.

—Harry Ives was down from St. Hilaire last Monday night.

—Miss Mattie Brown has filed on a claim out east near Cass Lake.

—P. J. McGuire was seen on the streets of Crookston last Tuesday.

—Joe Purvis was down from Northcote last Thursday night.

—Attorney E. M. Stanton of Argyle was in Crookston Tuesday night.

—Louis A. Ralph was out in the town of Russia Tuesday doing some grading.

—Louis Hanson, the wheat buyer from River Falls, spent Tuesday in Crookston.

—The St. Vincent train now leaves Crookston at 10 o'clock n. m. 45 minutes later than formerly.

—Shirt waists in all the latest tucks, plaits and corded effects at low prices at the New York store.

—Miss Rose Thebarge, pianist, will assist Prof. E. C. Mitchell in his concert to be given at Red Lake Falls tonight.

—C. E. Southwayd, one of Melntosh's merchants, returned home yesterday after a short stay at the county seat.

—Grand Forks is organized for the base ball season and as is Fargo, and Crookston is arranging to have a crack team.

—E. B. Ballou came down from Euclid Tuesday evening and met his wife who had returned from a visit with friends below.

—M. O. Sorlendahl and family left yesterday morning for Red Lake Falls, their future home. His household goods preceded him.

—John Sanberg went out to the Benidji country yesterday morning to look the land over and see about looking up a claim out there.

—Joe Winfield's team last Tuesday evening ran up Broadway from the intersection on the top of the hill leaving behind in the mad the two occupants of the rig.

—Attorney F. A Grady, of Red Lake Falls, had business before Judge Watts on Monday. The same evening he drove home accompanied by his brother J. H. Grady.

—Geo. Sebastian's services as engineer are in great demand. He is wanted at Cass Lake to take charge of one of the steamers out there, but it is likely that he will run the "Marian Lelly" on Red Lake.

—John Holliday and family who have been living in Crookston for the past year left Tuesday evening for Montana where Mr. Holliday will start a ranch. Mrs. Holliday is a sister of George Carpenter.

—R. R. Brown left yesterday morning for the woods out east where he is superintending the driving through some of the lakes and streams there of the logs, etc., that he cut during the past winter.

—Special Agent Griffin of the Interior department, formerly in the United States land office here, but now of Ashland, Wis. reached Crookston Tuesday morning and at once left for Red Lake. He will be in this section for the next ten days.

—R. A. Ball and T. G. Maloney were up from Ada yesterday looking over the new land saw at the Crookston Lumber Company's mill in South Crookston. They intend putting into the saw-mill at Ada a somewhat similar saw to the one here and they wished to examine the machinery here first.

—Andrew Anderson, a private in Co. B, 4th Wisconsin Volunteers, passed through Crookston yesterday morning on his way to his home at Pine Lake, Minnesota, where he has not been for three years. He was mustered out about two months ago having been during the previous six months in camp at Anniston, Alabama.

Cold Hard Facts...

There are some more things that you should think about if you are a Bicycle Buyer

YOU shouldn't pay a cent for dignity. You shouldn't pay a cent for name. When it gets right down to cold facts all that you should pay for any Bicycle is quality, and on the basis of quality Victories will stand any criticism, any examination, any comparison, any test. You don't have to be an expert or a mechanical engineer to figure out that thirty-five dollars is plenty to pay for quality. But of course if you want to pay fifteen or twenty dollars for somebody's name or somebody's dignity—well, the money is yours, not ours. All we have to say about Victories is that they are high grade wheels, an honest wheel, a time tried wheel, and in our opinion no wheel on earth is better constructed and no wheel by any name is worth any more. Today we show may different varieties of the wheel and you can have your pick, any size you want, any gear you want, any fittings you want and any guarantee you may reasonably ask, for thirty-five dollars—cash or time. Whether you are a man or woman, an experienced rider or a novice, whether you want a wheel for business or for pleasure or for both, you will find the Victory wheel all that we claim for it—an honest wheel, honestly made honestly advertised, and sold at an honest price, and as good as any wheel at any price, no matter what is claimed for the other or what name it bears. Come in and look at the Victory. It is for you to say.

Hawkins & Olds.

—On Tuesday the will of Sigrid Milford was admitted to the probate.

—John Watts has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Canada.

—The sale of delinquent taxes has been going on at the county auditor's office this week.

—Attorney Nat Campbell has moved across the hall in the office last vacated by M. E. Kirsch.

—Landlord Westerberg reports that the paving of the streets has already begun at the Scandia bank corner. Straw is the first layer.

—Next Sunday evening Rev. Fleeman P. Fisher will give the second of a special series of evening sermons on "The Message of the Prophets."

—Rev. Street Olson will hold services tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Lutheran Free church. Mr. Olson is from Cullom, LaMoure county, N. D.

—O. K. Berget has broken ground for a new house in Jerome's addition, just beyond Mr. Lusian's place. The foundation is already built and the superstructure will rapidly follow.

—At the regular meeting of Constantine Commandery No. 29 last Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected: Tom Morris, E. C., John Cromly, G., J. C. Mix, C. G., H. M. Green, Prelate, A. D. Stephens, S. W., C. E. Dampier, J. W., Frank Divinis, treasurer, Joseph Smith, recorder.

—C. C. Knappen, editor of People's Press, and his wife and child leave tonight for Northfield where Mrs. Knappen will visit for several weeks at her old home. When Mr. Knappen returns north he will go out to his claim near Bemidji and spend some time there. His brother will manage the paper in the meantime.

—The square at the intersection of Main and Robert streets was decorated with straw yesterday in consequence of the fact that Tom Nelson's boy Nels upset part of a load of that kind of farm produce there. One of the hind wheels of his wagon had broken and he was attempting to drive with the axle dragging in the mud but when he struck the crossing over he went.

—Judge Hagen last Wednesday closed up the estate of May Lockea who died a minor. There was a hearing on claims also before him in the estate of Mary E Attlex, deceased, and the judge gave his decision. August Maas was appointed administrator in the estate of Frank Lalevre. The widow of the deceased is now living in providence of Quebec, Canada.

—Crookston has entered the Minneapolis Journal teachers' voting contest, and Miss Jean Woodall, primary teacher in the school in the woods, has been selected as the one for whom all votes in Crookston will be cast. A dozen or more of the teachers who received the greatest number of votes will get valuable prizes, among which are trips to Europe and California, the best pianos made, etc. etc. Already several thousand votes are collected for the Crookston candidate.

Transferred to Breckenridge.

Mike Murray, who has been assistant roadmaster of the Dakota division of the Great Northern, taking charge of the line between Crookston and Cass Lake, has been transferred to a similar position on the Breckinridge division. C. Newland, formerly a railroad employee at Crookston, takes Mr. Murray's place here. The reason for the change was that Mr. Newland was working for his brother on the Breckinridge division and such a state of affairs is against the rules of the railway company.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

PHYSICIANS

A. A. Just M. D.
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Office in McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn

ATTORNEYS

H. Steenerson,
Attorney at Law.
Office in Opera Block Crookston, Minn

Miller & Foote,
Attorneys at Law,
Offices, corner Broadway and Robert streets Crookston, Minn.

TIME CARD
—OF—
TRAINS.
Crookston
NORTHERN PACIFIC

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 101 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8:25 pm	8:35 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	4:20 am	4:30 am

C. A. Starkey, Agt. Crookston, Minn. Chas. S. Fee, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	*Daily	†Except Sunday.	LEAVE
6.55 am	Grand Forks, Nelson and West		7.00 am
5.00 pm	Duluth, St. Paul and points east		5.30 pm
8.25 pm	Warren, Stephen, Alex, Vincent		8.15 am
6.00 pm	St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls		8.30 am
4.05 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior		9.00 am
5.45 pm	Climax, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo		7.50 am

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

ELL, Tic et.

S. L. Collins,
LIVERY AND FEED STABLES
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side
Crookston, - Minnesota.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS
CANNOT BE MADE FOR
$1 per Dozen
And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

KIPLING AND HIS WORKS

Anglo-America's Poet Laureate and Premier Story Teller.

A REMARKABLE LITERARY CAREER

An Author Whose Tales and Poems Have Made Him One of the Most Widely Known and Admired of Living Writers—He Holds the Mirror Up to Nature.

Not until the light of a great genius seemed about to be extinguished did people generally begin to fully realize what an important place Rudyard Kipling holds in the literary world and in the affections of millions of Anglo-Saxons and Anglo-Americans. No great ruler at death's door could have excited a more universal and sincere sympathy and interest than did Kipling, lying at his hotel in New York, stricken with what for a time seemed a fatal disease. Here was a man only 35 years old, who had won no battles, taken no part in politics, born to no high rank and holding no official position, who had so moved the world that it stood watching with deepest anxiety at his bedside. This is the reason:

For words are things, and a small drop of ink,
Falling like dew upon a thought, produces
That which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.

Rudyard Kipling was born in Bombay Dec. 30, 1865, and is the son of John Lockwood Kipling, head of the Lahore School of Art in Bombay. The older Kipling is a native of Staffordshire, England, where he was formerly a designer of decorations in a large pottery firm, Dunton's, formerly Pinder, Bourne & Co. Pinder's son tells the following story of how Rudyard received his rather peculiar name:

RUDYARD KIPLING.

"One day my mother gave a picnic to the young people of the neighborhood at a pretty little English lake between the villages of Rudyard and Rushton, not far from Burslem. John Kipling went, of course, and there he met a pretty English girl, Mary McDonald, the daughter of a Methodist minister at Endon. Kipling fell in love with her at once. They met very often at my mother's house, and it grew into a love affair on both sides. Then John Kipling went to the art school in Kensington and was afterward sent out to direct the art schools of the Madras Presidency in India. When he went to India, he took pretty Mary McDonald along as his wife.

"In the fullness of time a son was born to the Kiplings in Bombay. Their first meeting at Rudyard lake must have been the pretty bit of sentiment of their lives, for when they named the son they took for him the name of the little lake on the banks of which they first saw one another."

Young Rudyard was the apple of his father's eye, and as he matured in years he soon showed that he had unusual ability and aptitude for learning and scorned all playthings that were commonplace toys, but any sort of instructive puzzle or game that required thought and intelligence appealed to him at once, and with these he found endless pleasure and pastime. His mother was his early instructor. He proved an apt pupil and in a very short space of time accomplished reading and writing, and when this time came to pass the difficulty was to persuade him to play and do as other boys. Books were his one pleasure. No matter how erudite the work might be, Rudyard attacked it and absorbed its contents—in fact, he was quite beyond his years in intellect. He had a will of his own, as a boy, and at times asserted it in spite of the remonstrances of his parents. When he was about 8 or 9 years of age he was taken over to England and left in charge of a certain elderly relative. Here he passed some of the most miserable and uninteresting years of his youth. Eventually the time came when Rudyard was old enough to be sent to a public school and was accordingly placed as a boarder in the well known naval school at New Cross, near Blackheath, a few miles from London. He proved an able scholar and kept his place in his classes throughout his career there. Strange to say, he never seemed to study seriously and continuously as other students, but was always ready for a lark or some practical joke, which kept him frequently in disgrace and a prisoner in the school. During his fifteen terms of confinement to his quarters he conceived the idea of editing and publishing a weekly school newspaper. This aroused the admiration of the professors, and then and there he made his first reputation as a writer. He finally ran away from the naval school, and later the editor of The Pioneer at Lahore, India, where his parents then lived, offered him a handsome salary to start for India via America. Honolulu, Japan, China, and so to Lahore, writing letters for publication. The offer was accepted.

When he returned to Lahore, he entered the office of The Pioneer and took a subordinate position in order to learn everything in the publishing line. The work was not congenial to him, and he was anxious to turn his attention to something else. It happened that the Duke of Connaught, then military commender of the northwestern district of India, would occasionally pay a visit to the Kiplings and spend an evening at their house. When he met Rudyard, he became greatly interested in him and, in the course of conversation, remarked, "What are you going to do, Mr. Kipling, now that you are in India again?"

"Well, sir, I have an ambition beyond the drudgery of working in the office of The Pioneer."

"What would you like to do, then, Mr. Kipling?"

"I would like, sir, to live with the army for a time and go to the frontier to write up Tommy Atkins." The duke considered the matter and finally gave him carte blanche to do whatever he liked, go to any military station in his command and, if he wished, go to the frontier and live with officers or men. This he did at any time he required in order he could have one. Rudyard availed himself of the duke's offer and went off to make acquaintance with Tommy Atkins. At the same time he became a great student of nature and the life and character of the people.

Thus began a career in literature which has given Mr. Kipling wide and enduring fame.

Mr. Kipling was married Jan. 19, 1892, in London, to Miss Balestier, sister of the young American novelists, Wolcott Balestier, who died in Dresden in 1891, and with whom Kipling collaborated in the story called "The Naulahka." It was through this brother that she became acquainted with Mr. Kipling. Her father, Joseph Navarro Balestier, was a very successful real estate man and lawyer of New York city. He brought very extensively property in and around Brattleboro, Vt., and today the Balestier estate there includes many hundreds of acres.

It was thus that Mr. Kipling settled in Brattleboro shortly after his marriage. He and Mrs. Kipling lived in the town until their new home was finished just outside the Brattleboro line. It is fashioned after the plan of an Indian bungalow, in which one long corridor from end to end of the building divides all the apartments, as in a hotel, and is built on the side of a hill. It is a long, curious looking structure, without an entrance on the side that faces the roadway and with but one door in the house, that on the hillside.

The property slopes down from the hillside to the roadway, and at the base of the hill, although there are no fences or obstructions, are scattered signs reading, "Trespassing on These Premises Is Forbidden."

Here Mr. and Mrs. Kipling lived for some time the year round, and many stories are told in Brattleboro of his life there. Strangers who saw him for the first time thought a cowboy had come to town, and his boots, his greatcoat and his sombrero, whenever the weather permitted him to go without a thick cap, were familiar to all the town folk.

There are few personalities more interesting than that of Rudyard Kipling, and there is no man of letters about whom there has been so much inquiry, yet he is little known. He has what is sometimes called the British insular prejudice against inquiry into his private life and habits.

A good many hundreds of people who have come in contact with him have called him, all the names that one could use in polite society. The explanation of most of these people is simple enough. Mr. Kipling did not care to know them and resented their attempts to know him. To these Kipling is inclined to be exceedingly short, not to say rude. He believes that he gives the best he has to the public in his writings and that it has no right to bother about his private life.

To those to whom he gives his friendship he is as genial, as kind, as warm hearted, as any one could ask. He is the most delightful of companions.

Personally Kipling is as complex and remarkable as his writings. His affection for his wife and children amounts to worship.

Everything in connection with his life in this country shows how desirous he is the young man to avoid people who bother him. He absolutely refuses to be lionized, and the thought of seeing in print what he ate for dinner draws from him language as picturesque and as vivid as his poems, but not so printable.

While Kipling has steadfastly refused to tell the reporters much about himself, his personality is quite fully revealed in his works. He may have had Sendee in "Mrs. Bathurst" or Dick Heldar in any other writer how to tell anecdotes about himself. • • • As a newspaper man Kipling is described by himself. In his remarkable story of "The Man Who Would Be King" he has given us a sketch of himself sitting at his desk on a Saturday night waiting to put the paper to press. "A king or courier was dying at the other end of the world," he says, "and the paper was to be held until the last possible moment.

"It was a pitchy, black, hot night, and raining—now and again a spot of almost boiling water would fall on the dust. • • • The thing, whatever it was, was keeping us back. It would not come off. • • • I drowsed off and wondered whether the telegraph was a blessing and whether this dying man was aware of the inconvenience and delay he was causing. • • • The clock hands crept up to 4 o'clock, and the machines spun their flywheels two or three times to see that all was in order before I said the word that would set them off. I could have shrieked aloud. Then the roar and rattle of the wheels shivered the quiet into little bits.

"It was in this trying environment that Kipling nevertheless composed some of his best things. In a couple of pages on "My First Book," which he contributed to McClure's four or five years ago, he told something about the way in which his verses were written, saying:

"Dad as they were, I burned twice as many as were published, and of the survivors at least two-thirds were cut down at the last moment. Nothing can be wholly beautiful that is not useful, and therefore my verses were made to earn off the perpetual strife between the manager extending his advertisements and my chief fighting for his reading matter. They were born to be sacrificed. Rukn-Din, the foreman of our side, approved of them immensely, for he was a Muslim of culture. He would say: 'Your poetry very good, sir. Just coming proper length today. You giving more soon. One-half column just proper. Always can take on third page.'

"Mahmond, who set them up, had an unpleasant way of referring to a new lyric as Ek aur chiz—one more thing—which I never liked. The job side, too, were unsympathetic, because I used to raid into their type for certain proofs with Old English and Gothic headlines. Even a Hindoo does not like to find the serifs of his Fs cut away to make long e's.

"And in this manner, week by week, my verses came to be printed in the paper."

Of course these verses immediately attracted the attention of the Anglo-Indian exiles in India, and scores of people soon began to demand the publication of the rhymes in book form. This was a little more than Kipling had bargained for when he dashed off his lines as the exigencies of the paper or the inspiration of the moment suggested. Here again we may quote his own words:

"A real book was out of the question, but I knew that Rukn-Din and the office plant were at my disposal at a price, if I did not see the office time. I had handled in the previous year a couple of small books, of which I was part owner and paid lost nothing. So oblong docket, wire stitched, to imitate a D. O. government envelope, printed on one side only, bound in brown paper and secured with red tape. It was addressed to all heads of departments and all government officials, and among a pile of papers would have deceived a clerk of 20 years' service. Of these 'books' we made some hundreds, and as there was no necessity for advertising, my public being to my hand, I took reply postcards, printed the news of the birth of the book on one side, the blank order form on the other and posted them up and down the empire from Aden to Singapore and from Quetta to Colombo. There was no trade discount, no reckoning twelves as thirteens, no commission and no credit of any kind whatever. The money came back in poor but honest rupees and was transferred from the publisher, the left hand of the contract to the author, the right hand pocket. Every copy sold in a few weeks, and the ratio of expenses to profits was, I remember it, has since prevented my injuring my health by sympathizing with publishers who talk of their risks and advertisements."

The price received by Kipling for his work he regards as nobody's business but his own; nevertheless everybody will feel a keen interest in the British Weekly's paragraph on this subject:

"Perhaps no one receives such large prices for his work as Mr. Rudyard Kipling. He has contracted to write eight stories for one of the magazines next year, for each of which he will receive about £240. This is simply for the English serial rights of the stories. In addition Mr. Kipling receives a payment from America, India and the colonies. This will probably bring up the price of the stories to about £600 each, or about £4,000 for the year. In addition to this Mr. Kipling receives the royalties for book publication in England and America. This will not amount to less than about £4,000, so that for each story the author ultimately receives about £1,000. Whether these high prices will be kept up is very doubtful. The cheap magazinism succeeds in injuring the dearer periodicals they cannot be maintained. It remains to be seen whether the public cares much for the papers with the largest circulation in this country do not depend upon names at all. Remember some years ago Mr. Kipling contributed one of his best pieces of work, better work by a great deal than he has been doing lately, to a monthly review. The editor informed me that not one extra copy of the periodical was sold."

Among the first of the stories of Kipling to attract attention was "The Man Who Would Be King," and it was drawn from his prolific and versatile pen such fascinating stories as "The Phantom Rickshaw," "The Taking of Lungtungpen," "The Strange Ride of Morrowbie Jukes," "The Matter of a Private," "The Rout of the White Hussars," "The Story of the Gadsbys," a number of which are included in "The Plain Tales From the Hills," which gave vivid and interesting pictures of native and garrison life in India. Kipling's fame as a poet is not less well established than his reputation as a writer of fiction. "The Trees of the Sear," in which he attacked the aggression of Russia, is one of his strongest poems, while "Recessional" may be regarded as one of the most delightful of the products of his poetic genius. Other poems which have attracted wide and favorable notice are "The Seven Seas," "McAndrew's Hymn," "The Many Glosted," "Tommy Atkins" and "Prize of Paradise." His latest poems, which all the English speaking world know almost by heart, are "The Recessional" and "The White Man's Burden," have given him enduring fame as a poet.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

St. James has incorporated as a city.

Lewis Baker, formerly editor of the St. Paul Globe, is dead.

Mayor Kiefer has invited President McKinley to pay a visit to St. Paul.

A postoffice substation has been ordered opened at Rice's Point, Duluth.

J. T. Shaw has been appointed manager in the internal revenue service at Winona.

A State Luther league has organized by the young people of the Lutheran churches of Minneapolis.

The banquet to be tendered Senator Davis and Congressman Stevens will be given May 16 at the Aberdeen hotel, St. Paul.

Bank Examiner Pope has taken charge of the West Side bank of St. Paul and will make a thorough examination of its affairs.

The secretary of the interior has approved for patents to Minnesota 1,549 acres of land in the Duluth land district on account of the swamp land grant.

A special election will be held in Hastings on Thursday, May 18, to vote upon the question of issuing $80,000 in bonds to build and equip a new school house.

The term of the United States circuit court of appeals opened in St. Paul Monday with the calendar call. Judges Sanborn, Thayer and Caldwell will sit during the term.

The first state teachers' examination to be held under the provisions of the new law will be conducted by the state department of public instruction in all sections of the state Aug. 7 and 8.

Frank Carson, Bonder, Minn., who so brutally murdered P. F. Dahlman, the Minnesota mining man, over an imaginary grievance, was convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree.

Fire harred the roof off the First National bank building, Duluth, and gutted the offices on the fourth floor. The Duluth telephone company's exchange is located there and was destroyed.

The Second and Third regiments will be equipped with new uniforms throughout to take the place of those worn at Chickamauga. Captain Bobleter, military storekeeper, is engaged in the work.

Several St. Paul Presbyterian preachers and their elders loaned money to a young man until his remittances should arrive from the East. They are wondering whether they have been "worked."

The special school meeting at Winona called for the purpose of providing additional school accommodations, resulted in the uncommon liberality of ordering constructed three additional school houses.

The annual business meeting of the State Sangerbund will be held at Winona Sunday, June 25, and local singing societies have already commenced to prepare for the entertainment of the visitors.

Charles Rasen of St. Paul, 16 years old, has been sentenced by Judge Kelly to eight years in the penitentiary. Rasen assaulted and robbed Mrs. Treacy of $483 in the stairway of the latter's place of business.

The business done in Minnesota by the life, fidelity and casualty companies has just been tabulated by Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessy. There is shown a net gain of $5,000,000 in life insurance over last year.

The finance committee of the Morris Improvement league has already raised over $1,500 for the improvement of the right of way there. City parks and streets have not yet canvassed thoroughly the business interests of the community.

The Duluth, Mesaba and Northern railway contemplate building a double line of iron bridge from their line, Proctor junction, also a number of iron bridges along their line, for summer. The Duluth and Iron Range, it is said, will erect a $9,000 depot at Eveleth.

The attorney general has given an opinion to Auditor Moriarty Lomen, to the effect that both officers and agents of foreign corporations doing business in this state would be required to make affidavits of the volume of their company's business.

Plans for the Pauly company, St. Louis, for a $10,000 jail have been accepted by the Lyon county commissioners. They provide for cells and four additional cells for women, children or insane persons, and an 8-room sheriff's residence.

Thomas B. Scott of St. Paul, formerly president of the Life Clearing company, has been arraigned in the criminal court on the charge of perjury. It is alleged in the indictment that statements to the insurance commissioner regarding the condition of his company.

Trespassers on the state pine lands during the past winter are to be vigorously prosecuted by State Auditor Dunn. Two indictments were returned, one in the Duluth district and the second near Bemidji. There have been many complaints by small farmers.

Colonel Fred Ames of the Thirteenth Minnesota sent a cablegram to Governor Lind stating that Lieutenant Hoffman and Sergeant Willinger of Company D, and Private Williams of Company B.

O. W. Smith, E. T. Foster, J. A. Kenworthy, H. B. Dyrss, Lewis H. Walker, Albert Newdal, John Dahlman, Fred Stillso, Charles McLane and Edward M. Griffin of the Thirteenth Minnesota returned from Manila on the transports Sherman and Grant, which arrived at San Francisco Sunday.

The Duluth, Rainy Lake and Rainy River railway has been sold by the sheriff of Pope county, under a judgment and decree of sale by the district court. The road was bid in by E. J. Hodgson of St. Paul, as trustee for the bondholders, for $100,000. This road was graded some years ago from Sauk Center to the west line of Douglas county, and Appleton, at a cost of about $200,000, and the grade is still in a very good state of repair.

M. M. S. POULTRY FENCING

is thoroughly interwoven, which closes all the spaces, and is

A FENCE, NOT A NETTING.

Like a fence, it has a strong top and bottom rail. Can be erected with few posts and without top and bottom rails. Has stable self-spacing and a cable running through the fence every foot. Each roll contains the famous M. M. S. trade mark.

We are manufacturers of the following famous fences:

CABLED FIELD AND HOG FENCE with or without lower cable barbed. All horizontal lines of wire.

STEEL WEB PICKET FENCE Ideal fence posts, ornamental, strong and durable. Steel gates, posts, etc. Everything for the use of man.

DE KALB FENCE CO., 100 High St., DE KALB, ILL.

Feb. July 31, 1899. Pat. July 5, 1897.

FOR SALE BY FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

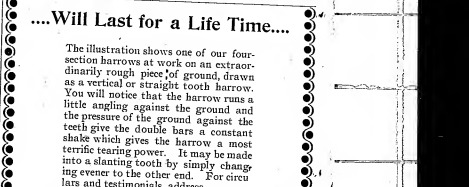
....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

THE

Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED



....Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our four-section harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure of the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing evener to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,

AUSTIN, MINN.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT

WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE. Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?

It is our Registered Trade Mark and means that our

STERLING GRADES OF SEEDS

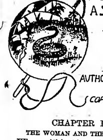
are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS, and SPECIAL FLOWER SEEDS. Its valuable to you, as it contains information obtained in leading countries.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., SEED GROWERS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

STERLING CROSS COUNTRY Seeds

It is likewise true that our Strawberry and Raspberry plants are the choicest. Send start consumers' list. Ask for it.

THEY THAT SIT IN DARKNESS



A STORY OF THE AUSTRALIAN NEVER-NEVER

BY JOHN MACKIE

AUTHOR OF "THE DEVILS PLAYGROUND" AND "SINNERS TWAIN."

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY.

CHAPTER III.

THE WOMAN AND THE SERPENT.

When within 00 yards or so of Mr. Mackenzie's camp, I witnessed a rather exciting little adventure.

Beneath an awning that had been rigged under the trees the squatter was sitting with his daughter. A little farther off were the wagons where Savile, the cook, was busying himself over a camp oven. A little farther still I could see the two black boys engaged, after the manner of their people, wandering about, tomahawk in hand, from tree to tree, evidently with an eye to a possum, an iguana or a "sugar bag," as they call a hive of bees. Suddenly, when passing a fallen log, I saw one of them give a skip and a jump and heard him sing out to his fellow:

"Yarry, Yarry, look out! Big fellow snake!"

Even from where I stood it could be seen, for it was an enormous tiger snake. One could see the patches of yellow gleaming amid the horrible, sinuous folds. It coiled itself up and stood on the defensive. Yarry promptly cut off its retreat in another direction. It had thrown itself at Snowball and narrowly missed that gentleman's bare shins. I cut a stick as I ran, intending to kill it, for bushmen invariably dispatch a snake upon principle. There is not much to fear from one if you keep well in front and keep cool. If it is a good fighter, there is just enough danger to give a certain relish to the entertainment. But the sporting bent of my nature was not to be indulged. Miss Mackenzie threw down the book she had been reading and cried, "Savile, hand me your whip and tie up the dogs."

"Here, miss," cried the cook, running toward her with it. Savile was courtesy itself where the female sex was concerned. "But don't get too close; he's an ugly chap."

At the same moment Yarry sang out to me, "You wait a bit; white fellow missis—that one white Mary—she kill 'm plenty quick—that fellow kill 'm snake."

I stood still and waited; things were growing interesting. I had seen girls in the bush kill snakes, but she was the first I had seen practice upon one with a stock whip, which was evidently her contemplated mode of warfare. This strange girl had pinned up her riding habit, so as not to interfere with her freedom of action, and took the whip from the hands of the cook.

"Now, be careful, Norah!" her father cried. But it was evidently no new sight to him; he sat coolly on a camp stool and watched what was going forward.

She ran into the open until she was within a few yards of the snake, which, with body coiled and with head and neck reared and swaying from side to side, looked the very incarnation of wickedness. As most readers know, the handle of a stock whip is short, perhaps not more than 24 inches in length at the outside, while the lash is 8 or 9 feet long; it requires skillful handling. And now the light, lithe figure of the girl stepped closer to the snake, her head being ever so slightly inclined forward. I observed a heightened color steal into the delicate olive of her cheeks. As I watched those great, inscrutable dark eyes of hers, in which some uncanny kind of glamour seemed to lie, I thought of the snake fascinating the bird, but I also thought that the snake had met more than its match this time. There was something very like a smile upon her lips as she watched it. She drew the soft, pliant body of the whip through the palm of her left hand, and then, raising her right arm, the lash described an airy circle round her head. With a forward and downward motion it cut through the air; a sharp report like the crack of a pistol right over the snake's head was the result. I never before had seen a girl handle a stock whip as she did. With eyes that seemed to blaze with fury the snake threw itself half of its own length toward her and struck at her with a lightninglike rapidity. My heart was in my mouth. At the same moment one of the blacks sprang forward as if to deal the angry reptile a stroke with a stick. But he never touched it, for swiftly the long lash whizzed through the air, the girl made a quick but deliberate step backward, and Snowball experienced a slight nip somewhere in the neighborhood of the right wrist. He dropped his stick as if he had been bitten by the snake and with a howl of terror skipped quickly out of harm's way.

"Now then, Snowball," cried the gypsy looking girl, "baal I had been tell 'm you kill 'em snake. What for you touch him?"

The quaint black's pigeon English came from her lips as trippingly as if she had been a black gin.

"My word, plenty coolah that fellow, missis," said Snowball by way of relieving his feelings and imparting information, at the same time ruefully rubbing his wrist.

The snake coiled itself back into position again, as if waiting for round number two. And now the girl and the snake seemed to be gazing into each other's eyes. I could see the snake's scintillate. Suddenly and before it threw itself at her a second time the long lash curled through the air, and with a deafening report struck it on the neck with a force that no doubt must have broken it, for the snake writhed a confused series of coils upon the ground. Two more steady cuts from [illegible] arm, graceful, lithe arm, and it lay still. She gathered up the coils of cowhide in her hand and seized the whip by the lash end. Then she stepped forward till she stood nearly over it, and with the butt end of the whip raised its head. I advanced toward her.

"Did you ever watch a snake's eyes when it was dying?" she asked. "If not, just look at this one." These were the first words this unconventional girl ever spoke to me.

The long lash curled through the air.

Now, I do not like to see anything die—not even a snake. Still my sporting instincts are keen, and no doubt resemble that typical Britisher's whom the Frenchman described thus: "He gets up and says, 'It's a beautiful morning; let us go out and kill something.'" But, then, the case bears entirely a different aspect when it comes to watching anything in a death agony. Such a condition of mind must betray a great deal of the old original Adam in our nature—that savage instinct which gloats over anything either dead or dying. The principle and the example are equally bad. For instance, allow a child thoughtlessly to destroy animal life, to be cruel to a cat or a dog, and in nine cases out of ten that child will grow up a man or woman, as the case may be, with a latent cruelty which will assert itself sooner or later and prove a curse to its possessor. This is a wholesome and immutable law of nature, hinging on the law of order and part of the grand scheme.

She must have noticed something of that which was passing through my mind, for, after one quick glance from her large dark eyes, she remarked: "I see you don't understand why I ask you to look. Come here." She had a strange gift, truly, of divining one's thoughts.

I obeyed and looked into the eyes of the dying snake. For a moment I confess to having been startled. It seemed to me there was a concentration of such devilish hate and impotent rage in them that I involuntarily turned away my head.

"It's not a pleasant sight," was my comment. "I don't know how you can look at such a thing." To me the very idea of those fawnlike eyes looking at such a repulsive object was horrible, and I must have shown my disgust.

"My only brother was killed by the bite of one," she remarked simply, and then struck it on the head with the butt end of her stock whip.

"I have put it out of its misery anyhow, but I suppose you'll ascribe some other motive to the action." She turned to the blacks: "Yarry, here you take 'em. This one budgeire fellow snake."

Then she walked off without so much as looking at me before I had time to dissent from this uncalled for disparagement. I somehow felt annoyed at her manner, but went over to the squatter, who was just finishing some writing, and took a seat with him in the shade under the awning.

"Glad to see you," he said heartily. "Where's your friend?"

I explained that Jack was finishing the fence round the grave. What had [illegible] seemed to have upset him. [illegible] talked about various things [illegible] had gained from me such in[illegible]on as the names of the schools [illegible] Jack and I had been at and [illegible]atters of a like nature. I did [illegible] telling him such things, for in the Australian back blocks, in the most unlikely places, you meet all sorts and conditions of men, so that nothing comes in the nature of a surprise. I also told him that Jack and I were traveling overland to the diggings newly broken out in Western Australia.

"I can't but think that you're making a mistake," remarked the squatter at this point. "I'm led to understand it's a miserably dry country. So I should wait if I were you until just before the wet season sets in and then you'll have a chance of prospecting the ranges properly. Hundreds will be driven off the field before that time, mark my words."

"Yes," I rejoined, "I've no doubt that's sound advice, but what are we to do in the meantime? There are lots of wild horses down near the salt pans—I don't suppose the sea is more than 60 miles off—but you know the class of fellows who are down there, making horse hunting an excuse for keeping out of the way of the police, and neither Jack nor I want to get mixed up with them."

"Well, I'll tell you what," said the squatter, "though, of course, we needn't come to any definite understanding just at present, the land I've taken up is some 60 miles south of the track on the Robinson river. I sent 2,000 head of cattle on ahead some five months ago, but am rather anxious about them. The blacks in that particular locality are undoubtedly bad, and I fear that since this rush to Western Australia has set in some of the men that Gibson, the drover, had looking after them may have gone off to it. I never saw it otherwise yet. The native born Australian will maintain that two birds in the bush are worth one in the hand any day, especially where a goldfield is concerned. If you care to follow my advice, I'll give you both work at 2s. 10d. a week when you get to the station and until you think it's time to start for Kimberley; so if, as you may find out before then, the rush has proved a 'duffer' you'll be money in pocket and won't have wasted time. Then if you want to remain and help to form the station—I'll only stop for a month or so—you can do so."

I thanked him, promising to arrange the matter with Jack. I knew he held out this offer to us with the best of motives and not because he may have wished to secure labor. He informed me that in half an hour's time they would strike camp and push on. Anyhow we would see him on Skeleton creek that night. Travelers generally camped in close proximity to each other on that lonely track for fear of being attacked by the blacks.

"Look here, Dick," said Jack. "I think it's time to tell you something, and may as well tell you it now as later on. Dick, before I met you I got into a considerable bit of trouble—that's to say, was seen in precious bad company and under circumstances which would naturally make the police jump at strange conclusions. I need hardly ask you to believe me"—

"Jack," I protested, "I'll punch your head for you in another minute!"

"All right, old chap, you can—afterward." The ghost of a smile lit up his face for the moment, and he went on again as if there had been no interruption. "I've a very strong suspicion that there's a warrant out for my arrest. In fact, it was the knowledge of this that hastened me to make up my mind when you asked me to go with you to Western Australia. You've only known me by the name of Tyndall. I suspect the police have another one for me, but from motives of prudence I think it will be better to stick to my present name. If the police have come to the Macarthur—I heard they were coming—they may be in a position to make it awkward for me, so you're liable to be seriously inconvenienced at any time through keeping my company. Now, Dick, all you've got to say is that you want to go with Mackenzie and I'll go right on. You can make any excuse for me you like. I'll 'pan out' somehow. Now, speak out. I shan't be offended whatever you do. And, look here, I'll leave you the gray as a keepsake, old chap."

"Jack, you cowardly brute! You know I haven't strength left to punch your head. As for the police, hang them!"

I was disappointed in Jack, but undoubtedly my reference to the police was unjust and uncalled for.

On reaching Skeleton creek, which was a series of water holes in a deep, thickly wooded hollow, we pulled off the track and pitched our camp. Just before sunset, when I was brushing the ashes off a damper, Mackenzie's party rattled up. Within a hundred yards of us they pitched their camp. I took a big dose of quinine and turned in soon after supper. Jack had insisted on this. On coming into camp he had produced a small pot of extract of meat and made some of it ready for me. I did not know till long afterward that at Turn-off-lagoon store he had come away without getting some much needed articles of clothing in order that he might purchase several little luxuries for my ailing condition. "You've got to fortify yourself, old chap," he remarked. "Tomorrow's Sunday, and as it's one of your bad days I think we'd better camp here. Apart from the Fourth Commandment, Dick, I'm Scot enough to know the value of one day's rest in seven. I venture to say we don't lose by it. Our cattle are always in better condition and get through more work in the long run than those who keep traveling right on."

I a little later placed my bedding under a shady ironbark tree. The morpoke's chant and the croon of the possum blended with other strange sounds, and I fell asleep.

Next morning, after breakfast, I heard the jangling of bells and the drumming of hoofs as Mackenzie's black boys brought up the horses. I allowed a few minutes to elapse before going over to find whether or not they had fetched up ours with them. On reaching the spot where the boys had rounded them up I found Jack and Norah Mackenzie already there. The latter had just said something to my mate that had evidently startled him; for when he saw me he left her and came toward me.

"Our gray's not in the mob," he said: "I made sure he was—must go and do a little horse hunting. I wonder where he could have strayed to anyhow?"

"Me see 'm yaraman track go up along a creek," sang out Yarry. "That fellow bin lose 'm one fellow shoe."

There is no sign or mark on the face of nature that the Australian black fellow will not read as if it were an open book. He must do it to live. But the practice through successive generations has become an instinct—he takes to it as readily as a kitten takes to playing with a ball of worsted.

"No, Dick, you won't!" I was moving toward my horse. "You stop where you are. I'm going."

Norah Mackenzie went over to pat one of the horses, and Jack, taking the bridle out of my hand, walked off to catch the roan. Before doing so he said to me in an aside which I considered just a little too audible: "Look out for that girl, old chap. She has either got the power of second sight or she is a gypsy in disguise." I watched him ride off. Jack, as usual, was doing the lion's share of the work!

The sober expression on my face as I thought of these things probably attracted Norah Mackenzie's attention as she moved away; anyhow she stopped and spoke.

"Are you traveling today?" she queried.

"No, I think not. You see, my mate and I are Scotch."

"That's to say, you make a virtue of sound policy."

"A woman is always at liberty to measure other people's corn by her own bushel," I rejoined politely.

"Even if they come from Inverness!" she added thoughtfully and with a smile.

"How did you know I came from there?" I asked in some astonishment.

"I suppose it may be accounted for by the gypsy in my composition," she answered, laughing, as she saw the chagrin on my face that Jack's injudicious speech had called up. "But soberly speaking," she continued, "your question shows that you still have a certain amount of modesty left. You see, all sorts of people come out here, and so to study dialects there is no place like the colonies. In Inverness they speak the English language in its best and purest form. I've no intention of paying you a compliment; indeed it was more difficult for me to tell where you came from than for you to suppress that lecture on cruelty to animals simmering in your mind when I killed the snake yesterday."

"You can have it now, if you like," I hastened to say.

"Some other time," she cried in alarm. "Just now you'd better come over and talk to my father; he will be glad to see some one."

I walked toward the camp with her, wondering not a little at the keenness of her perceptive faculties. What a pretty picture this daughter of the bush made, dressed, as she was now, in her simple but daintily made walking dress of some light material. There was the delicate bloom of health in her clear skin and its luster in her eyes. There was no question about her face being a striking one; it was calculated to rivet the attention of the beholder at first sight, for there was more in it than mere physical beauty—there was that higher attractiveness which men call individuality or character—and yet, despite her many strange and unconventional ways, no one could say she lacked that greatest charm of all—womanliness. But still, as yet, I frankly confess, I could but imperfectly understand her. She was already interesting me in a way that I hardly cared to admit to myself.

Just before we reached the squatter's camp she pointed out Savile, the cook, who was busying himself erecting a bough shed. He was 6 feet 4 inches in height, broad in proportion and had a round, good natured, sensible face.

I walked toward the camp with her.

"I must tell you about Savile," she said. "He has been with us since I was a child, and I should like you to be on good terms with him. His heart is nearly as big as his body—you needn't laugh. He is one cook in a thousand and doesn't want for shrewdness, but he has a hobby or two—toys, for instance"—

"Toys!" I stared at the son of Anak.

"Yes, toys; he spends heaps of money in sending to Melbourne and Sydney for all sorts of 'Yankee notions,' paper snakes that fly, talking dolls—and things. You mustn't laugh at him, you know."

"Not if I can help it. Tell me of another weakness." I had an uneasy impression that she was making fun of me.

"You mustn't call them weaknesses—so many of us are built that way. Let's call them partialities. I've got ever so many. Well, Savile's second biggest one's his dog, Samson, and, of course, he thinks there's not another like it in Australia. I know myself there isn't. You'll enjoy the poodle, however, when he tells you how it killed the rat at Charters Towers. The place doesn't signify—it's always shifting about, like the story. But you're bound to love Savile. I do, ever so much."

I came to the conclusion that I also would take to Savile. Apart from recommendations of a like nature, I always, upon principle, cultivate a friendly relationship with cooks.

We found the squatter seated close to the wagon; one of the sides of the tarpaulin had been lifted up and pitched like the roof of a veranda, so he sat in the shade.

"I've brought you some one to talk to, dad," exclaimed the girl. "I must go and see Elsie. She went off toward her tent, which, with sides gathered up, was covered with long leafy boughs, so as to keep the occupants cool.

"Good morning, Parker," said the squatter cheerily. "I'm glad you're not traveling today." He motioned me to sit down beside him.

I talked with him about an hour and found him well informed. He was precise in his ways, but the innate kindliness of the man robbed his speech of any suggestion of pedantry. He was in the middle of an argument when his daughter came out of her tent looking amused.

"Ho, dad!" she cried.

The squatter started and looked apprehensive, as if he had been caught in the act of exploiting some unorthodox doctrine. "Well, my dear?" he stammered.

"Why didn't you put up a notice in the morning that you were going to lecture? Then we'd all have had a chance of attending. You are unkind, daddy, dear."

"Really, my dear"—

But the girl interrupted him; she had heard a dog whining behind her, and, turning, cried sharply:

"Now, then, Snowball, what for you coolah alonga that fellow puppy dog? Baal that fellow savey no patter tumtum, s'posin you leave um alonga ground!"

The change from the talk of an educated English girl to the gibberish of a black gin was so complete and startling that I could hardly believe it was she who had spoken. The black fellow, who had been punishing his dog for appropriating some food left on the ground, desisted—to do a black fellow justice he seldom ill treats his dog—and went off to join his comrade, who was at some little distance beneath a shady ironbark tree. He tried to look unconcerned; so does a dog when it has stolen something.

The gray must have broken his hobbles and strayed a considerable distance from camp; it was a great pity that Jack had to go horse hunting while I was enjoying congenial company. Savile had begun to clatter the pots and pans about. I knew that soon the fever would again be upon me; so declining the repeated invitation of the squatter to stop and have some dinner I walked quickly away. It was my wish to be alone. In those attacks of delirium I did not care that any one should hear me talking nonsense. Oh, this curse of my life, this fever that had got me in its grip!

I hurried to my camp and seized a blanket. The ague was on me already, and I was becoming cold as death even under that warm sun. It must have affected my head, for on taking the canvas water bag I walked down and along the creek bottom, then struck out from it into the bush again, taking no note of where I wandered and caring less. I threw myself down somewhere. Then for some time I fancied myself alone in the arctic regions, lying on a field of ice, with nothing to cover me, and freezing to death.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

1899			MAY.			1899
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fr.	Sa.
	1	2	3	4	5	6
7	8	9	10	11	12	13
14	15	16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25	26	27
28	29	30	31

TROOPS ON HAND.

Detachment of Regulars at the Scene of the Mining Riots in Idaho.

WARDNER, Ida., May 3.—The presence of the soldiers has eased the situation remarkably and the people are gradually regaining slight confidence, but it is felt that peace cannot be assured until 500 troops are quartered here. Captain Batchelor and his 76 soldiers, assisted by 100 townsmen who are under arms, would give such resistance as would annihilate any ordinary force, but should the 1,800 men up Canyon Creek arrive fully armed the little guard now here could hardly hope to cope with them.

The regulars, on arrival, were met by hundreds of people who gave them an enthusiastic greeting. More troops are expected inside of 24 hours. For the present it is expected the troops will remain here, serving as a guard, and no aggressive action is expected until the coroner's inquest has been completed.

RUMOR NOT CREDITED.

Reported That Union Miners Would Attack Troops at Wardner.

WARDNER, Ida., May 3.—Shortly after the arrival of Company M, Twenty-fourth infantry, a report became current that the union miners from Canyon Creek had started down to Wardner to wipe out the troops before reinforcements could arrive.

Sixty non-union men armed with rifles immediately rushed down the road from Wardner to the railroad station, one and a half miles distant, to stop the union men. The report is not credited here and was probably occasioned by the suspension of telegraphic communication, between Wardner and Wallace.

Quite a number of union men left town during the day. But two arrests have been made and these are both out on bail. Martial law has not yet been declared, but it is expected it will be soon. Coroner France will commence the inquest as soon as the witnesses can be subpoenaed.

You Can't Dodge Them

Did you ever try to dodge the rain-drops? Did not succeed very well, did you? It's just as useless to try to escape from the germs of consumption. You can't do it. They are about us on every hand and we are constantly taking them into our lungs.

Then why don't we all have this disease? Simply because these germs cannot gain a foothold in a strong throat and lungs. It's when these are weak that the germs master.

The body must be well supplied with fat. The danger comes when the blood is poor and the body is thin. If your cough does not yield, and your throat and lungs feel raw and sore, you should not delay another day. Take of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites at once. It will heal the inflamed membranes and greatly strengthen them as well. The digestion becomes stronger, the appetite better and the weight increases. The whole body becomes well fortified and the germs of consumption cannot gain a foothold.

Scott's Emulsion

It's this nourishing, sustaining and strengthening power of SCOTT'S EMULSION that has made it of such value in all wasting and exhausting diseases.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

NO American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.
4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

GEN. OTIS NOT IDLE

AMERICAN COMMANDER BUSY PENDING NEGOTIATIONS.

Preparing to Assume the Aggressive Should Proposals Be Rejected—Aguinaldo Is Surprised—Had Expected Calampit Would Be the Graveyard of the American Army—Suggestions That Natives Are Playing For Time Given Little Credence.

MANILA, May 1.—While it is the general opinion among Americans that the Filipino emissaries will return with revised proposals from General Antonio Luna, Major General Otis is not letting this prospect interfere with his preparations for pushing the war. He has ordered Major General Lawton to return to Angat, a few miles northwest of Norzagaray, and not to advance aggressively while the negotiations are pending. MacArthur is apparently acting on the same policy, but he is repairing bridges and strengthening the line of his force, which is stretched out with a 4-mile front and within a quarter of a mile of the enemy.

GENERAL LUNA.

Manila is cheerful over the prospect of a return to normal life, though there are skeptics who remark that a truce would enable the insurgents to rest until the rainy season upon which they have been depending as an important ally.

Have No Place to Escape To.

When Dean C. Worcester of the United States Philippine commission, who accompanied the Filipino emissaries from Calumpit, said to Colonel Manuel Arguelles that the Americans were under no obligations to refrain from fighting, the Filipino officer replied:

"Would you fight while we are negotiating terms of peace?"

Mr. Worcester responded with the suggestion that an armistice would give the Filipino leaders time to escape.

"My God! Where would we escape to?" the Filipino exclaimed, referring in this to the menacing hostile tribes behind the Filipino line.

Colonel Arguelles told the correspondent of the Associated Press that he was much disappointed in the results of his mission. He said also that Aguinaldo expected Calumpit to be the cemetery of the American army.

Schurman's Promise to Filipinos.

In the course of the conference Jacob C. Schurman, chairman of the United States Philippine commission, told Colonel Arguelles that if the insurgents would lay down their arms he and his colleagues of the commission would consult them regarding the plan of government to be submitted to President McKinley. He said he could not promise that all their suggestions would be adopted but he could assure them that there would be a presumption in favor of their suggestions, adding that the commissioners would be especially desirous of satisfying the legitimate aspirations of the Filipinos. When Colonel Arguelles protested that unconditional surrender would be humiliation, Mr. Schurman replied:

"There would be no humiliation in General Otis treating our brother Filipinos as General Grant treated our brother Americans at Appomattox."

An Hour's Fight on Saturday.

Saturday before General Otis had issued the order directing General Lawton to return to Angat, the troops of his command encountered the rebels in a circle of hills outside of San Rafael, about five miles southwest of Angat, dislodging them after an hour's fighting. The Americans had three wounded. A thousand armed Filipinos fell back as the Americans advanced.

The villagers met General Lawton, offering him provisions. They dare not flee into the mountain country on the east because of the robber tribes and on the west are the troops of General MacArthur.

RESULT OF CONFERENCE.

Filipino Government Not Recognized, but Amnesty Is Promised.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—General Otis has cabled the war department that his conference with the Filipinos has terminated. He said that they wanted three weeks in which to allow their congress to decide whether hostilities should cease. The proposition was declined. The representatives retired to the insurgent lines. General Otis says the insurgents are tired of fighting and are no doubt seeking the best terms. In another cable General Otis expresses thanks to the president for his appreciation of the work of the army in the Philippines.

Back With New Proposals.

NEW YORK, May 2.—A dispatch to The Herald from Manila says: The insurgents' commissioners who left Manila on Saturday, have returned from the insurgent army's headquarters with new propositions for a cessation of hostilities.

THE SAME PROPOSITION.

Filipino Peace Envoys Again Call on General Otis.

MANILA, May 2.—3:05 p. m.—Major Manuel Arguelles and Lieutenant Jose Bernal, of the staff of General Antonio Luna, have returned here to renew and press the request of General Luna for a cessation of hostilities. They have found the field of labor a most unpromising one. The two officers were received in conference by Major General E. S. Otis. The proposals which they had to submit differed but slightly from those which they brought to the Filipino commission in the first place. They desired a little time in which to summon congress, and expressed themselves as being confident that congress will decree peace, because the people desire it. They represent that Aguinaldo is without power to surrender the army and that the congress must decide that question. Finally the Filipino envoys assert that Aguinaldo has not yet made a fair test of his strength against the American forces, because only one-third of his army had been assembled together.

The envoys will see General Otis again in the morning. They will sleep in Manila. They lunched with General MacArthur at his headquarters on the car of the armored train at Calumpit before going to Manila.

OPPOSED TO IMPERIALISM.

Meeting at Chicago to Protest Against Administration Policy.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Central Music hall was filled with an audience gathered to protest against the course of the administration with reference to the Philippine islands. Once or twice the proceedings were interrupted by protests of those who disagreed with the sentiments of the speakers.

Professor J. Lawrence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, speaking of the national policy towards the Filipinos, said:

"Then the flag is the emblem of tyranny and butchery."

Cries of "treason" came from the gallery, but the cries were quickly drowned out by approving cheers.

When Bishop Spalding of Peoria declared that "England has never been a friend of this country," an Englishman near the platform cried, excitedly, "That's a lie." Without noticing the interruption the bishop continued his address.

Dr. Henry Wade Rogers, president of Northwestern university, acted as chairman of the meeting. Besides him the speakers were Professor Laughlin, Bishop Spalding, Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, E. Burritt Smith, Sigmund Zeisler and Miss Jane Adams.

BELIEVES THE END NEAR

President Discusses the Prospects of Peace.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—President McKinley talked with his official callers before the cabinet meeting about the prospects of peace in the Philippines. It is believed that some advices from General Otis have been received enlarging upon the propositions which were submitted by the Filipino delegation which have not yet been made public and which give the officials additional information concerning the situation. The president expressed the opinion that the end was in sight and said he believed that the Filipinos will not hold out much longer. He regards the conditions as most hopeful.

The fact that negotiations for peace are in progress has stopped all talk of calling out the 35,000 additional volunteers.

FUNSTON A BRIGADIER.

President Recognizes the Value of His Services in the Campaign.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The president has appointed Colonel Frederick Funston of the Twentieth Kansas a brigadier general of volunteers. This appointment was recommended by Major General MacArthur and supplemented very strongly by General Otis in a cable dispatch.

FLOUR MILL COMBINE.

Articles of Incorporation Filed in New Jersey.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Articles of incorporation of the United States Flour Milling company, filed in New Jersey on Saturday, mark the consolidation of 19 of the large mills, including those in Duluth, West Superior, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Syracuse. The organizers of the trust have bought only such properties as they could procure at a reasonable market price. The 19 mills included in the list have a daily capacity of about 40,000 barrels of flour. The new company is capitalized at $25,000,000, half common and half preferred stock, and $15,000,000 6 per cent 40-year gold bonds.

THE HOANG-HO VALLEY.

Germany Picks Out Her "Sphere of Influence."

BERLIN, May 2.—It is the belief in political circles here that England having relinquished the open door in China and given her adhesion to the sphere of influence policy there, Germany must follow suit.

The Tageblatt says: "The first consequence of the Anglo-Russian agreement must be that Germany, too, must declare the Hoang-ho valley to be her sphere. It would be far reaching error were Germany to confine herself to the province of Shang Tung."

THE AMERICAN LOSS.

Eighteen Hundred Dead and Wounded Since Feb. 4.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A statement prepared by the war department shows casualties reported in the Philippines among American soldiers from Feb. 4 to April 28 as follows: Killed, 198; wounded, 1,111; total, 1,309.

Kills the Cable Project.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2.—A special from Ottawa says the withdrawal of Great Britain from the copartnership arrangement with the colonies in the Pacific cable scheme is regarded as effectually killing the project.

MISSOURI CYCLONE

KIRKSVILLE AND NEWTON BADLY WRECKED.

At the Former Place Two Hundred Houses Were Demolished and Many Persons Killed and Injured—Newton, a Smaller Place, Suffers Worse in Proportion.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 29.—As a result of the tornado that swept through the eastern portion of this city, demolishing half of the residences and office buildings, 300 families are homeless and nearly 50 dead bodies and the injured persons have been recovered from the ruins. More than a dozen of the injured will die. Although rescuers have been searching the ruins ever since the storm spent its fury many are still missing and it is thought that a considerable number of the unfortunates are consumed in the flames that broke out soon after the storm had ceased. The work of rescue continues, but it is said to days before the total number of victims is known.

Through the Residence Section.

The tornado struck the city about 6 p. m., cutting a clean path one mile long and 600 feet wide through the residence section. Buildings were demolished or twisted apart and scattered to the four winds. A conservative estimate places the aggregate amount of damage at $500,000.

For a time the people in that portion of the town not touched by the storm were panic-stricken, but as soon as they recovered their wits they immediately went to the aid of their unfortunate townsmen. Calls for help were sent to surrounding towns and were quickly responded to. Twenty-five doctors from Moberly, Macon and other points along the line of the Wabash railroad came to Kirksville in response to the calls for medical assistance. The visiting doctors co-operated with the local physicians and the work of caring for the wounded was expedited.

Horrifying Scenes Presented.

The scenes that met the gaze of the rescuers were horrifying. An aged man and his wife had evidently been eating their evening meal when the cyclone struck and carried them far away. They had clasped each other in their arms and were found dead on the ground some distance away from where their home had been. No trace of their home has been found.

Several of the dead were found at spots which would have been the center of their buildings had they not been blown to pieces. This was the case with Mrs. Passchiett, who suffered a most terrible death. Her headless body with her arms clasped about her lifeless baby, was discovered on the floor of the house, which was left as a raised platform in an adjoining field. The head, as nicely severed as if it had been done with a knife, was about 20 feet distant.

Children Miraculously Escape.

Two children had been lying in a cot in one of the destroyed houses. The house was carried away, but the floor of the first story and the foundations were left, the wind lifting the house from the sills and tumbling it along distance. The cot on which the little ones lay was lifted up with them on it and carried fully a block and a half and set down on the ground. Neither of the children was hurt.

Along the railroad track between the depot and Kellogg crossing, a distance of a half mile are, scattered the wrecks of many houses.

A meeting of citizens was held during the afternoon at which committees were appointed to systematize the work of clearing away the wreckage, providing shelter for the homeless ones and raising funds for their temporary care.

THE NEWTON TORNADO.

Fifteen Dead, Thirty Injured and Fifty Families Homeless.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., April 29.—Scenes of utter distress and desolation were pictured in the little tornado-swept burg of Newton, 40 miles from here on the St. Paul road. A day of ceaseless search among the ruins and work for the injured and suffering followed a night of gloom and despair. Fifty families are homeless, there are about fifteen dead and over thirty injured, while half of the place is in ruins. A complete list of casualties will not be known for several days.

The storm struck Newton at 6:15 in the evening, coming from the southwest. It came without warning and few were able to take shelter from their storm cellars. Striking the eastern end of town it cut a clean swath 200 to 600 feet wide through the best portion of the place, sweeping everything before it. Over 80 houses were torn to splinters. On one street alone a row of 10 houses was entirely demolished. Here scarcely any one escaped death or injury.

Verdict Suited the Crowd.

CANTON, O., May 1.—At 10:43 a. m. the jury in the George case, after being out all night, rendered a verdict of not guilty. A mighty cheer went up from the crowd in the courtroom when the verdict was announced. The cheer was almost instantly taken up by the people who packed the streets. Mrs. George's face lit up with a smile as the words were spoken that made her a free woman.

No More Legislative Passes.

MADISON, Wis., April 29.—The anti-pass bill has been passed by both houses. It makes penalty for using pass or frank by any public official one to five years imprisonment or $300 to $1,000 fine, and applies also to delegates to political conventions.

General Merriam Goes to Wardner.

BOISE, Ida., May 3.—General Merriam has left here for Wardner after a conference with state officers. He declined to discuss his plans, but the orders he has issued for the movement of troops indicate that he is prepared to deal firmly with the strikers.

More Troops on the Way.

SALT LAKE, Utah, May 3.—A detachment of 130 men of the twenty-fourth infantry (colored) has been ordered from Fort Douglas, Utah, to Wardner, Ida., and left here at 9 p. m. under command of Major Thomas.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, May 3.

WHEAT—Cash No. 1 hard, 74¾c; No. 1 Northern, 73¾c; No. 2 Northern, 67¾c; No. 2 do, 66¾c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 74¾c; No. 1 Northern, 71¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 70¾c; May, 70¼c; July, 72¾c.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 3.

WHEAT—In Store—No. 1 Northern, 71¾c; May, 71¼c; July, 72¼@72⅝c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 74¾c; No. 1 Northern, 70¾c; No. 2 Northern, 69¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 3.

HOGS—Market stronger. Range of prices, $5.55@5.70.

CATTLE—Market active; fully steady. Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for beeves; $2.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.00@4.35 for stockers and feeders; $3.75@5.90 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts: Hogs, 3,000; cattle, 3,000.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 3.

HOGS—Market a shade lower. Range of prices, $5.37@5.67½.

CATTLE—Good stockers and feeders firm and in demand. Butcher cattle steady.

Sales ranged at $3.40@4.80 for stockers; $3.25@3.90 for heifers; $4.00@4.50 steers; $2.80@4.25 for cows; $2.75@3.35 for bulls; $5.00@5.75 for calves.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.70 for ewes; $5.10@5.75 for lambs.

Receipts: Cattle, 800; calves, 400; hogs 4,500; sheep, 400.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, May 3.

HOGS—Market opened steady, weakened later.

Sales ranged at $5.05@5.85 for mixed and butchers; $5.75@5.87½ for good heavy and $5.65@5.85 for rough heavy; $5.60@5.85 for light.

CATTLE—Market steady to a shade lower.

Sales ranged at $4.10@5.85 for beeves; $1.90@4.90 for cows and heifers; $3.60@4.10 for Texas steers; $3.50@5.00 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market for sheep strong; lambs steady.

Sales ranged at $5.00@5.15 for sheep; $5.50@6.05 for lambs.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 3.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 70¼c; July, 72½c; September, 71½c.

CORN—May 35½c; July, 34⅝@34¾c; September, 35⅛@35½c.

OATS—May, 24⅝@24⅝c; July, 27⅜@ 28c; September, 25@25¼c.

PORK—May, $8.75; July $8.97½@9.00; September, $9.15.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 11@ 12½c; ducks, 9@10c; chickens, 9½c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 13@15½c; dairies, 11@14c.

EGGS—Fresh, 11½c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....60c
No. 1 northern.....60c
No. 2 northern.....54c

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—Mrs. N. S. Gordon and family returned Crookston this morning.

—W. W. Attix and Louis Borchert, prominent farmers from Mentor, were in the city yesterday and today.

—A postoffice has been established at Rillo, Red Lake county, with Magnus Johnson as postmaster.

We suggest to Colonel Bryan that he study the life of General Grant and therefrom he may learn the value of silence.

—The ladies of the Congregational church in Circle No. 1 will give a cake sale at Mr. Sloum's grocery Saturday.

For farm loans call upon J. W. Wheeler at the First National bank of Crookston.

—Fred Bey has opened up a barber shop on the first floor of the building occupied by the dye works on Minn street. Those desiring the services of a tonsorial artist will do well to call at Mr. Bey's shop.

Darius Stewart of Fargo, N. D., has been appointed superintendent of the public schools of Moorhead, Minn., at a salary of $2,000 per year. Prof. Stewart is widely known as an educator and is regarded as an able man. He will succeed Prof. F. A. Weld, who will become president of the normal school at Moorhead. Prof. Stewart was selected from a large list of applicants. He was born in Vermont and educated at Dartmouth college.

Births.

RIPPEL.

On Monday, May 1, to Mr. and Mrs. Rippel, a girl.

Easter In Olden Time.

Easter was at one time celebrated by feasts and games held in the churches. These at first were decorous and useful in bringing the congregations together in rejoicing after the severe duties imposed upon them during Lent. The custom was abandoned because of the excess which became a scandal to the church.

Deere Model B Disk Harrows

Has two levers for adjustment and spring pressure on the Gangs, thus admitting of the greatest flexibility, and allowing them to work on stony or rough and uneven ground independently, and conforming to the ground regardless of ridges. We have them in all sizes and in 16 or 20 inch discs.

You should see our fine line of buggies. It will arrive in a few days.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., Fosston or Mcintosh.

LARSEN & CARPENTER, Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk comes less right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. EDSTROM, President. W. WHEELER, Cashier. WM. ARGLIM, Vice-President. H. ROBERTSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $26,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits. Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

George B. Erstine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Argilm, J. H. McKinnon, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine P. Foote, W. H. Cowle, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Special Attention to Collections. County, Town and School orders bought.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON.....PRESIDENT. H. STENERSON.....VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS.....M VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON.....CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, ASST. CASHIER.

Read This The Best Yet

The Old Reliable

No Other Mutual Company can Duplicate this Offer.

HAIL AND Y CLONE MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.,

OF AUSTIN, MINN.

Pays Cash for all Losses at Time of Adjustment. Rates ☐ Low. Adjustments Prompt and Liberal

TENTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

ASSETS

Certificates of Deposit	$35,000.00
Notes	26,121.60
Cash in National Banks	21,778.27
Accounts Receivable	727.92
Assessments on 1898 notes	7,226.68
Gross Assets	$83,406.87

LIABILITIES

Unpaid Losses	None
Accounts Payable	$ 678.64
Total Liabilities	678.64
Net Assets	$82,788.23

REFERENCES:—Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis; Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa; Scandia American Bank, Crookston, Minn.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL ON

GEO. C. WILD, ODD FELLOWS' BLOCK. CROOKSTON, MINN.

OR A. P. TOUPIN, RED LAKE FALLS.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MAY 11, 1899 NO 4

STATE FARM SCHOOL

Scientific Training There Received Will Tend to Lessen old Time Drudgery on the Farm.

THE CHARMS OF A RURAL LIFE.

Greater Than Mythical Charms of City Life—Homes And Nature's Scenes the Best.

The JOURNAL publishes herewith an oration on "Benefits derived from the School of Agriculture" which was delivered by C. W. Hale at the Commencement Exercises of the Minnesota School of Agriculture on March 25, 1899. This school was one of the first of its kind established in the United States and it is undoubtedly one of the best. Farming is becoming more of a science every day and the more the farmers come to realize the magnificent work being done at the school of agriculture, the larger will be the attendance at this school. At least one—the more the better—from every farmer's family ought to receive a scientific training in the art of agriculture. The rural home ought to be the most peaceful and independent but too often alas, drudgery takes away all the pleasure and beauty of life. How the training at the State University helps to improve the life of the farmer let Mr. Hale tell:

As our fathers—the pioneers of the State of Minnesota—looked back to the older states they observed the depleted condition of the soil and saw many of the young people discouraged and leaving the farms, while others were going through life in a dreary, meaningless way. To correct these mistakes and enable us to live happy and prosperous lives, following in their footsteps, they established the School of Agriculture.

That an occupation may give contentment to a people, it must bring into action the powers of their intellect. As farming comes to be regarded among the sciences it wins the respect of thinking people and keeps them from feeling that in order to amount to something they must leave the farm.

What we learn here instead of diverting our attention from the farm, develops the charm for the occupation which cannot be expressed in words, and which enables us as we go back to our homes, to make life more happy and prosperous. Though we are aware that by nature we are no brighter than those in our own communities who do not have these opportunities, still we hope to be able, in a measure, to lighten the burdens of those about us, and in this way partially repay the efforts made in our behalf.

The benefits derived from the School of Agriculture are manifold. The lessons learned in Vegetable Gardening and Fruit Culture, help to provide for the table. Learning of the characteristics and adaptability of trees helps us to make the selection for the wind-break and lawn and to arrange them tastefully. This makes home brighter and if the time comes for the young people to go away and make homes of their own, the old surroundings will be a pattern, and when they look back to the old days of their childhood the old home will mean more to them than if it had been on a bleak plain.

The history and adaptability of stock enable us to select the kinds best suited to our conditions. Feeding and chemistry teach us how to prepare rations for dairy stock, fattening cattle, pigs and sheep, or to keep them in a growing condition; and still not have a surplus of concentrated, causing part of it to go to waste. We are taught also how to care for the health of our stock.

Field crops and soils and fertilizers teach us how to raise the best crops and still keep up the fertility of the farm. In our lessons in Entomology we learn which insects are injurious to man and which are beneficial and how to destroy the harmful ones—whether to apply the remedy in their youths or on their backs. We are taught in Carpentry and Drawing, how to use carpenter's tools and sharpen them, to draw plans for building and to estimate their cost.

Our lessons in Blacksmithing enable us to repair from work. Natural Philosophy unfolds to our minds many of the wonders, principles and beauties in nature. Geomstry strengthens the mind.

Botany teaches of the life history of plants, so that we are better able to eradicate weeds and keep from getting them[e. g., if we plant potatoes that grew in land where there was quack grass, we learn that the short root stocks of the quack grass will penetrate the potato and wherever such potato is planted the quack grass will appear. Botany also develops the powers of observation, helping us to see the intricate connections in our business and to see more of the beauties along life's pathway, and in the character of our associates. Civics gives us the great principles of our government and helps us to know better where to place our votes in order best to help maintain the glory of our nation.

The five Literary Societies accomplish a good work. Many people can talk well in an audience and make remarks to attract attention and disturb but could not be induced to come before an assembly and say anything which would benefit the condition of a community. Work in these societies develops the reasoning powers and increases one's stock of information, tends to prevent people from being angry when others disagree and develops the social qualities. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. guide us past many temptations and fill us with a desire to become man and woman.

Co-education prevents that coarseness which naturally arises from the continued absence of ladies, makes conversation and manners more easy and natural and tends to promote true refinement. By cultivating the desires along the same channel, it causes the young men and women who are to live on the farm, to bemore congenial. Learning the different branches of farming in which we are not engaged, might seem unnecessary; but in the time of wheat failure, if farmers had known more about the other branches, many homes might have been saved.

By the location of the school in close proximity to the Twin Cities, some of the mythical charm for city life are dispelled and we go back to our homes feeling that, there, amid nature's charming scenes, is where we want to spend our days, not feeling that as soon as we get money enough we will sell the farm and move to the city. By being acquainted with the instructors and familiar with the names and terms used, when we read the scientific research sent out from the school, it will mean more to us.

The benefit derived from the School of Agriculture is not alone in the facts which we carry home. It develops the ability to assimilate the opportunities in life to our advantage and we see more meaning in the motto "When a day is gone, it is gone forever," so let us do each day as few things to regret and as many that will be a pleasure to us, when we come to look back over the days gone by as possible.

As we look out over the great world we see myriads of bomes blighted by a lack of properly balanced minds; minds that place the proper estimate upon the different things in life. We see people with many mistaken ideas, many things left in doubt as to whether they are one way or another. We see many homes losing much of what life has for them because of a lack of application to business and a dwarfed sense of the beauties that surround them. Others, enslaving themselves and families to their occupation, sacrifice the pleasures of life to their misdirected ambition, and bend there all over the land we read in the countenances of people, of minds whose vision of the nobler things in life is darkened by a lack of proper development.

By attending this school these difficulties are overcome, not that the instructors pretend to have originated all of the ideas taught, nor obtained it within our state, it is information gathered from the brightest minds throughout the world. Information which according to their judgment is best adapted to raise the standard of civilization in the agricultural world. The mistaken ideas are corrected. The youth with too little ambition will be stimulated by the tids of progress and have more of a desire to amount to something. Those with too much ambition but misdirected, seeing nothing of value in life but money, will learn to see things more nearly as they are and have broader views of life and all will have a deeper sympathy for humanity.

Scattered over the country are homes looking bright and happy as though some one lived in them, and again there are log huts with a stained whitewashed appearance, seeming as though each was vieing with the other, to have the least joy in the home; the inmates looking as though it were their desire, as soon as they had lived their lives, to be forgotten even by their own people.

(Continued on second page.)

DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Methodist Ministers Meet and Discuss Church Topics during a Three Days' Session.

DR. FORBES' ELOQUENT LECTURE

Upon Epworth League Idea—Fall Meeting at Rush City.

The District Conference of the Duluth District of the M. E. church convened at the Methodist church in Crookston, Minn. May 8, at 8 o'clock in the evening. The sermon was preached by Rev. A. L. Richardson of Hibbing, Minn. and was followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and Wednesday evening were given up to the reading of papers on church subjects, followed by discussions. The public were invited to attend these meetings and by courtesy of the Conference were permitted to take part in the discussions. Each paper called forth comment from those present, the presiding elder interspersing here and there some of his wise and humorous remarks. Tuesday evening Dr. Forbes' delivered to a large audience an eloquent lecture on the Epworth League Idea of "Look Up Lift Up."

Among those in attendance were Revs. J. C. Hartley, of Grand Rapids, A. L. Richardson, of Hibbing, Geo. P. Wilson of Bemidji, E. A. Cooke, of Fisher, Wm. Park, of Ada, J. F. Smith, of Argyle, E. F. Spicer, of Warren, Henry Logan, of St. Hilaire, A. E. Rowson, of Crookston, and Dr. Forbes, of Duluth, presiding elder. The Conference is composed of the pastors and certain other officers of each charge within the bounds of the district. The Duluth district covers such a wide territory that it is not possible for more than a few of its pastors or people to be present at the sessions of its Conferences. The meeting which adjourned last evening was a very interesting and profitable one. The next session will be held at Rush City early in September.

FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM.

Inspector Thiele Found Every Thing Satisfactory—Favorable report to Washington.

Inspector Thiele of the post office department spent last Thursday in looking over the city with a view to seeing whether the numbering had been properly done and the street signs set up. He found these matters in a satisfactory state. The proposed routes then for the letter carriers had to be looked up and the boundaries of the carrier service fixed. City Surveyor Hamery has made some plats of different parts of the town and these will be sent to the authorities at Washington. Crookston will be entitled to three carriers and the boundaries will have to be fixed for the service will depend somewhat upon the amount of ground that these men can cover. The final order for the establishment of the free delivery will proceed from the first assistant postmaster general after he has examined Inspector Thiele's report. It is expected that the mail carriers will be at work within six weeks or two months.

LAWN TENNIS.

A Club Ought to be Formed and Tournaments held Here this Summer.

Crookston almost every year for a long time has had a base ball team that compared favorably with the teams from neighboring places and it is expected that such will be the case this year. In football the town has a good Rugby team one year and for the past three years the high school has had a winning eleven in association football. But in lawn tennis there has never been an organization and the JOURNAL thinks there ought to be one and that now is the time to form a club. Tennis is and has been a favorite pastime with quite a number in the city and some of these players have developed considerable skill in handling the racket. Crookston, then, ought to be the scene, this summer, of several tournaments in which the local players will take part and the city would then be in a position to send representatives to the tournaments which usually take place every season at Fergus Falls, Grand Forks and other places in this section.

A club ought to be formed, grounds leveled and marked out, wire fencing put up and practice begun at once. Were all the players of the city to unite the expense of fixing up grounds would not be great, while it would be very convenient to have all the courts together.

SUMMER SCHOOLS.

Among Educators at Crookston Will be Supt. Selleck of Austin.

State Supt. Lewis has announced the instructors who will teach in the various summer schools. At Argyle E. F. Carroll, of Grand Rapids, Wm. Angus, of Warren, and Walton Wheeler of Argyle will be the corps. E. A. Nelson of Hallock will have charge at Wheaton, at Fergus Falls Supt. Darius Stewart of Fargo will be at the head and one of his assistants will be Miss Ida Hancock, who is now in Boston, Ada will have A. M. Rowe of Little Falls and F. J. Butler of Ada, while at Crookston Henry Johnson of the Moorhead Normal school, Supt. W. F. Selleck of Austin, S. A. Challman of Detroit, L. Pietavius of Lake City and Gertrude Earhart of St. Cloud will constitute the faculty. This makes an unusually strong corps of teachers for the summer school in this city.

Supt. Lewis in his circular announces that the first-purpose of these summer schools is to do strong academic work. Where possible two courses will be offered, one leading to a second grade certificate, and the other an advanced course for pupils with the necessary foundation to pursue it profitably.

The schools are for teachers and no one is to be admitted who is neither a teacher nor training to be one. The schools will begin July 10 and continue for four weeks.

POPULIST REPRESENTATIVES.

From Seventh District do not Accomplish Much in Behalf of Their Constituents.

The newspapers of the Seventh congressional district, says the St. Paul Dispatch, are full of complaints at the failure of the legislature to conserve their interests, and are especially aggrieved over the defeat of the drainage bill. As the Dispatch frequently pointed out during the progress of the session, the Seventh district had twelve representatives and seven populists in the house. In the senate it only had two populists, while it had seven very able senators. The drainage bill passed the house at a very early stage of the proceedings, and was carried around in the pocket of the governor's personal representative for several weeks, and not allowed to be considered on the floor until a late hour on the last night of the session.

For any neglect of it the Seventh district has itself to blame. Had it sent to the house a set of men of equal character and ability with those it sent to the senate—two exceptions in the latter being noted—it would have secured all it asked and more that it asked at the hands of the legislature. What does the Seventh district expect of its Plowmans, its Marins, its Cummings, and its Lundins? Can it ever send down here to represent it? And what does it get for the majority it gave Lind last fall? Well, at any rate, it doesn't get drunk and it is probably not to be ashamed of such representation. The greatest producing district in the state, with infinite possibilities before it, and the rest of the state ready to aid in its development, it is held back and retarded in its growth by its blind allegiance to populism and populist leaders. Look at the record of the Seventh district populists in the senate! One of them was never heard at all, six did not vote even loud enough to keep still. Then look at the splendid array of talent on the republican side! Young, the leader of the senate; Myran, the best worker of them all; Ryder, the boy orator of the Red; Grindeland, the industrious, analytical, hard-working Norwegian; Donnelly, tarian and logician and Jones, and Smith! All men who would be a credit to any district in any state; in the house it was the weakest. In the senate every Seventh district bill was passed. In the house they were defeated.

Is it necessary to say more? The Seventh district's incompetent house delegation was only elected for two years, while its competent senate delegation holds over for another session. If the Seventh district wants recognition, it will send to the legislature of 1901 a house delegation to work in harmony with what it has in the senate.

East Grand Forks will vote, June 13, on the question of issuing $35,000 worth of bonds to put in a water works and electric light plant in the city.

The Cass Lake Times and Independent were having a little tilt in their last issues over the question as to whether the other fellow was a loyal disciple of George Washington when it came to giving evidence about cherry trees and ads.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Memorial Day Committee Appointed —Report of Finance Committee Adopted.

BIDS FOR THE CITY PRINTING.

Referred to Printing Committee. Special Police Officer to Look After Canines.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall May 9th, 1899.

Meeting called to order by President O'Brien.

Roll-call, Aldermen present, Anderson, Davis, Thompson, Chesterman, McKinnon, Ellington, Harris, Childs, McGregor, Brown, O'Brien.

Aldermen absent: None.

Minutes of last regular meeting were read and approved. Rules suspended.

Matter of tax Max Ericsson was referred to finance committee.

On motion Aldermen Ellington, Brown and Anderson were appointed a committee to co-operate with G. A. R. to arrange for Decoration Day. Regular order of Business resumed.

The report of finance committee as amended by council, was adopted, and following bills allowed and ordered paid for the amount stated, provided, that in the case of bill allowed G. S. Chesterman for burial expenses of William Maunu, if the amount can not be collected from the Village of Hallock, Chesterman agrees to accept the amount recommended to be paid him by the finance committee as full compensation for his bill.

Bill No.	6715 Crookston Telephone Co.,..	$ 3.00
" "	6716 Crookston Lumber Co.,....	6.00
" "	6717 C. H. Mix,.....	8.75
" "	6718 Ferdinand Schmunk,.....	3.75
" "	6719 E. Schmunk,.....	3.75
" "	6720 W. A. Lanctot,.....	1.85
" "	6721 G. S. Anderson,.....	5.00
" "	6722 C. H. Mix,.....	2.50
" "	6727 G. S. Chesterman,.....	54.00
" "	6728 W. L. Davis,.....	2.50
" "	6729 N. E. Gordon,.....	2.50
" "	6731 G. W. Banks,.....	2.50
" "	6734 Crookston Lumber Co.,....	11.36
" "	6735 Chapp Bros.,.....	16.50
" "	6736 J. Hennessy,.....	4.75
" "	6737 J. Hennessy,.....	4.75
" "	6744 A. J. McKinnon,.....	5.00

Following bills came before council for consideration, were allowed and ordered paid for the amounts stated:

Bill No.	6738 A. Mickelson,.....	$ 80.00
" "	6742 John Barlow,.....	8.00
" "	6745 Crookston Lumber Co.,....	5.00
" "	6739 A. G. Hardie,.....	9.00
" "	6743 Henry Brosseau,.....	9.00
" "	6746 James E. Murphy,.....	4.50
" "	6741 Mrs. H. A. Bolt,.....	12.50
" "	6747 Fredrick Anglim,.....	30.00
" "	6740 N. A. Rufford,.....	25.00
" "	6733 C. Jacobson,.....	2.00
" "	6732 A. L. Richardson,.....	10.00

On the favorable report of committee on poor, the following bills were allowed and ordered paid on poor fund:

Bill No.	6726 Mrs. Jens Benson,.....	$ 10.00
" "	6725 J. Mallone,.....	10.00
" "	6724 A. O. Gulbrandson,.....	7.00
" "	6721 T. E. Clyndale,.....	7.00
" "	6748 N. E. Gordon,.....	2.00
" "	6749 E. A. Kruger,.....	$ 16.00
" "	6750 E. A. Kruger,.....	11.00

Committee on streets and bridges reported that the painting on Broadway bridge had been completed, and recommended that the work be accepted and paid for, and that city clerk notify county auditor to that effect. On motion report of committee was accepted and adopted.

Payroll for April amounting to $178.50 was allowed and ordered paid in usual manner.

A petition from residents of Jerome's addition relating to a reduction of assessed valuation on part of said addition was read before council and discussed. On motion the matter was referred to finance committee.

It was moved and seconded that the bill allowed at this meeting to Henry Brosseau, amounting to $9, for cleaning up back yard of Recklit block be charged to the adjoining property, with seven per cent added, unless sums is paid within the next thirty days.

On motion committee on poor were requested to take immediate action regarding the removal of Swenson to hospital at Little Falls, Minn.

On motion finance committee were instructed to try and make better arrangements with some parties relating to boarding of prisoners.

It was moved and seconded that the street commissioner be added as a member of the Board of Health for the city, and that he be instructed to look after the burying of all dead animals in the city with scope of his force, wherever he finds that such work is required of said Board.

It was moved and seconded that the bill allowed at this meeting to effect an equitable settlement if possible, with A. C. Wilkinson, in the case of Wilkinson vs City of Crookston, and report progress made to council.

On motion city engineer was instructed to examine the sewers and streets in the city, and where possible see that contractors complete their contracts, where the work has not yet been accepted by the city, and make report at next meeting of council.

City hall committee rendered written report on city hall furniture, as contracted with R. G. Woodhmn, price being $835.50, to be paid $100 at once, and the balance $735.50 July 15, next, contractor to furnish bonds in the amount of $300 and to be filed with city clerk such bonds to be acceptable to council.

Committee further reported that contract had been completed to their satisfaction, and would recommend payment of same. On motion report of city hall committee was accepted and adopted, and payment authorized to be made in accordance therewith.

The resignation of Chas. E. Sawyer as a member of the Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners having been filed by that gentlemen, same was on motion accepted, and Lewis Ellington appointed to fill the vacancy.

August Munn having filed a claim for damages sustained by his stock of lumber in his basement by overflow of surface water, the matter was referred to committee on streets and bridges.

An ordinance having for its object the limiting of territory in the city wherein liquor should be allowed to be sold was introduced and read. On motion same was referred to the 5th ward aldermen to report on at next meeting of council.

Bill No. 6726. Frank Mugean $101.80 work on pest house, was on motion referred back to maker for a full itemized statement of original bills for materials used.

On motion the matter of sewer tax of Chas E Sawyer and William Anglim for money advanced by these gentlemen before sewer was constructed upon their property on Broadway, was referred to aldermans first ward.

A petition read from residents of McDonald addition requesting that part of Sixth street and McDonald avenue be graded was referred to city engineer, to ascertain cost and estimate.

A petition for sidewalks was read from residents of Jeromes addition, which was on motion referred to street and bridge committee.

City Engineer Hamery rendered a written report to council showing list of articles, books and instruments he received from Engineer Ralph belonging to he city, and calling attention of council to present condition of bridges and streets in city.

On motion report was referred to street and bridge committee.

A petition from residents of 5th ward was read asking council not to grant any application to sell intoxicating liquors in said ward. On motion same was referred to 4th ward aldermen.

A petition was read from residents of the 5th ward, asking council not to discriminate against said ward regarding the extension of patrol limits, and to extend the same courtesy to said ward regarding the granting of saloon licenses as is given the other wards in the city. On motion said petition was referred to the 5th ward aldermen.

It was moved and seconded that the petition on application filed for liquor licenses, affected by the proposed ordinances relating to same, be deferred until said ordinance is finally acted on and published.

Application and bond for liquor license by John Bergquist, with J. J. Ide and Thore Thorgrimson as sureties, and Grant and approved and proper officers authorized to issue licenses upon the payment of the required fee.

It was moved and seconded that a salary of $40 per month be allowed an additional police officer, whose special duty it shall be to capture and impound any dog running at large contrary to the provisions of city ordinance, from the time such officer is appointed by the mayor, in addition to the regular fee allowed such officer in the discharge of his duties.

On motion city hall committee were instructed to look after and secure all property belonging to city building.

Bids for doing the city printing were read from the POLK COUNTY

(Continued on second page.)

AROUND THE COUNTY

Weekly Reports From The Journal's Corps of News Gatherers.

EUCLID.

Our village school closes here Friday, May 19.

Rev. W. T. McKenzie was down to Crookston Tuesday.

Seeding commenced ont west of town on Monday of this week.

Chas Sohl has put up a small house in the east part of town.

M. P. Losey was down to Crookston Saturday, visiting his son.

Bert Teal has just erected a house and barn on his farm just west of town.

Several of the scholars of our village school will take the state examinations.

H. C. Misner recently returned from San Antonio, Texas. He was accompanied by his wife.

Nick Engel is building an additiou to his house, 16x18, and will also raise the main part of the house.

P. C. Keeley, who was recently elected town clerk, has fitted up a office in the front rooms of the hotel.

T. E. Biever will erect a blacksmith shop soon, the size to be 12x16. He is building it simply for his own use.

Bill Menringhausen moved out on his farm near Mr. Lang's place last Monday, where he will go to farming.

Mrs. Peter Stuhr went over to Red Lake Falls to visit her sisters Miss Katie Stuhr and Mrs. C. W. Mend for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will leave as soon as school closes here, for Bertha, Minn., where he will open up a drug store. We wish him success.

J. H. Arthur is the relief agent at the depot here during Mr. Ballou's absence at Hutchinson, Minn., where his mother resides, who is not expected to live.

George Nelson, who has been living on a farm five miles northeast of town, has moved into town and will reside in the house just vacated by Ben Grahs.

Rev. W. T. McKenzie, our Presbyterian minister, moved Monday from Angus here. We welcome them to our village. He will live over Mr. Misner's store.

Ben Grahs is moving on to his farm in Sec. 11, town of Belgium. He has just built a new house and barn on the place, which he purchased last fall. The house is 16x26.

Mike Engel, who has been sick for over a year, and who has been operated on twice (the last time being about a month ago) is not improving, we are sorry to learn.

Rev. G. F. Lieling, of Thief River Falls, took the train at this place for Big Stone City, S. D., to attend the annual convention of the Red Engelical Association, which lasts one week.

The Catholics will build a new church in Euclid on the east side of the track, just north of Mr. Louis Cattit's house. It will cost about $1000. The dimensions will be 28x60, 14 foot posts. It will be commenced about June 1.

Mr. Kohler, son of C. Kohler, recently of Ashland, Wis., has lately purchased a farm near town and has also bought a bill of lumber of Misner, Chaplu & Flek, and will build a house, the dimensions of which will be 20x22, two story. The farm is four miles southeast of town.

MENTOR.

Mr. Rapin of Crookston Sundayed here and at the lake.

J. L. Sletten will have his new barn finished this week.

Auth Poulsberg and U. L. Nelson of Maple Bay Sundayed here.

F. E. LePage will soon be a member of the M. W. A. camp here.

I. K. Messelt received a large new sale wednesday for his store.

I. K. Messelt drove to Winger Saturday last, returning Monday.

Herman Camp of Dugdale was in town last Saturday on business.

A. L. Nelson will go out east on his claim in the Reservation next week.

Joseph Tagley is planting his potatoes now, and so are the rest of them in town.

Frank Balu had the roof and out side of his store fixed up in grand shape last week.

Mrs. Joseph Tagley went to Fisher Saturday to visit her parents for a couple of weeks.

J. L. Sletten has now completed his lumber shed and has commenced to fill it with lumber.

Perry Hunt of Maple Bay was in town last Monday, buying lumber for building purposes.

Andrew Anderson is walking around town with his smile on, on account of a new arrival in the family.

A grand ball will be given by the M. W. A., May 17, in their hall at Mentor. Bring your best girl and come.

The sawmill has not been running the last week, as some repairing has been going on, but considerable feed has been ground.

Mr. Whiting from Clitheral, Otter Tail county, arrived here today. He has taken several contracts for building houses here.

Joseph Tagley's horse got away from him Saturday night when he was hitching up and run into a wire fence and got very badly cut.

The majority of the farmers have their wheat in and some of them their oats also. The most of the seeding around here will be finished this week.

H. Hunsen of Mentor lids been down near Beltrami for a couple of days this week, looking after his interest in a ditching job he has got there.

We had quite a snow storm here Friday morning and the boys had to pull their caps over their ears and don their overcoats in order to get out of the houses.

The M. W. A. here is trying to get the neighboring camp interested in having a large picnic down at the lake this summer in June or July. We hope they will succeed, as no better place can be found for a picnic and for a general good time.

ANGUS.

A. T. Campion was in Warren Thursday.

H. C. Misner and wife were in Angus on Friday.

Mrs. J. F. Montgomery spent Saturday in Warren.

A. E. Brush was in Crookston on Wednesday evening.

Rev. McKenzie moved his family to Euclid on Thursday.

Mr. W. L. Davies of Crookston spent Friday in town.

J. F. Montgomery and wife spent Thursday night in Crookston.

D. H. Huggard came up from Crookston to attend the funeral of M. A. Campion.

G. S. Winchester, Lou Orris, W. F. and W. N. Powell, of Warren, attended the funeral of M. A. Campion on Friday.

M. A. Campion, aged 28 years, died at the home of his mother on Thursday morning of consumption. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss.

MACCABEES ENTERTAIN.

A Choice Program Rendered, Followed by a Sumptuous Banquet.

The Lady Maccabees proved themselves royal entertainers last Monday night, and there invited one or more of the citizens of the city showed by their presence that they expected just this from the members of this lodge. "The Irishman's Philosophy of the Sun" was read by George Kyle in a pleasing manner, to the delight of the audience Misses Maude and Pearl sang the duet "Go Pretty Rose," Prof. La Rose and Misses Agnes Cromb and Nettie Dresson gracefully swung the Indian clubs, Martin and Ed Mossetin and Mr. Rood played on the mandolin and guitar and chose present insisted on their playing a second time. A male quartet composed of Messrs. Crawford, Rood, Martin Mossetin and Sandberg rendered "On the Banks of the Wabash" the solo part being taken by Mr. Rood, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Sandberg and the programe closed by the pantomime of the "Three Lovers." This last part was extremely amusing and the audience was kept in laughter all the way through. As one pantomime followed another Miss Evelyn Hall read a description of what was going on. Those who did such clever shadow work were Mrs. Braley, Miss Maybelle, Mr. Cahe, Messrs Crawford, Low and Martin Mossetin.

About half past ten the guests were seated at the tables that were loaded with everything in the way of refreshments. Reluctantly the people left for their respective homes feeling that they had all thoroughly enjoyed that themselves.

SHED BLOWN DOWN.

Three Boys Caught Beneath Fallen Building in South Crookston.

About ten o'clock Tuesday morning a shed in the brick yards in South Crookston was blown down by the high wind and three boys, Arthur Shepernaik, Fred Bageau and Albert Arell were buried beneath the fallen timber. When they were extricated it was found that the Supernault boy was severely injured internally and under any circumstances it will be several weeks before he will be about again.

Young Arell had his face very much bruised but will in consequence be unable to work for sometime.

The building was 30x144 and had been built this spring. It was used for storing brick in. After the boys were moulded and before they were dried. There were seven others working in the shed at the time of the accident but fortunately escaped. The brick stored there were destroyed.

EDITORS' ANNUAL OUTING.

Members of Northwestern Editorial Association Will Take a Trip In June.

The officers of the Northwestern Editorial Association, H. M. Wheelock of Fergus Falls, president; N. H. Ingersoll, of Brainerd, treasurer, and A. G. Bernard, of Walker, secretary, have arranged a most inviting trip for the editors who belong to this association. The program as mapped out is as follows:

The gang and its members will assemble at Walker without any signs or ceremonies on Tuesday, June 13, 1899. It will be danced that night. On Wednesday stampede will take the outfit to Sugar Point, on Leech lake, where nineteen Indians whipped our soldiers, killing the gallant Major Wilkinson and five other of our brave boys, besides wounding eleven more. Numerous places of interest will be visited during the day. In the evening a banquet will be given the association by the citizens of Walker.

On Thursday morning the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota railway will have a special train to take the party to Bemidji, where luncheon will be served by the citizens. At noon the association will board the Eastern Minnesota railway for Grand Rapids, arriving there at 2:35. Teams will be waiting to carry the visitors to the experimental farm. In the evening a banquet and ball will be tendered by the citizens of Grand Rapids. Friday morning a ride to the celebrated Pokegama falls will take place, returning in time for lunch. At 2:45 the party will re-embark on the Eastern Minnesota for Duluth, arriving there at 7 p. m. The citizens of the Zenith city will entertain the association that evening as a banquet. On Saturday morning carriages will be in waiting to convey the members around the boulevards, thus affording the visitors an opportunity of viewing the charming city of Duluth, also obtaining a fine view of Lake Superior. After lunch the party will disperse and return to their homes.

Appealed to District Court.

A rather interesting case was up before Judge Holt last Saturday afternoon. Supt. John Myers this spring bought from Caleb J. Church, of the State of Connecticut the northwest quarter of section 8 in township 149, range 46, located a short distance southeast of town, and received a warranty deed for the same. Mat Cornelius, who has been working the place under a lease, was on the land and refused to leave until the terms of the lease were complied with. Camp had the right to sell the land at any time, but Cornelius claimed remuneration for certain breaking and hack setting to which recovery was had in the action under the terms of the lease. Consequently both Mr. Moore and Mr. Cornelius have been seeding the land. To settle the matter it was brought up before Judge Holt and he decided that Cornelius could not be dispossessed of the land till the terms of the lease were complied with, or in other words till he was paid for his work, but as Mr. Camp did not offer to do this until after a part of the crop was in, Mr. Cornelius is still left in possession of the land. The case will be appealed to the district court.

FIREMEN'S MEETING.

Will Take Part in Bemidji Tournament —Delegates to State Meeting.

The boys who, when the fire alarm rings out, don rubber coats and head coverings of the same material and do battle against the fiery element, met in the firemen's assembly room last Thursday evening. The invitation which the company had received from Bemidji to send a running team to that place on the occasion of the big tournament which will be held there from May 23 to 25 inclusive, was discussed and it was finally agreed to accept the same. Several hundred dollars are offered as prizes and the Crookston firemen confidently expect to bring most of those back with them.

Delegates were also elected to the state meeting of firemen which is to be held in Austin, Minn., some time next month. Art Fuller and Peter Johnstone will probably represent Crookston at this meeting but if they can't go Fred Harris and A. P. Kirsch will take their places.

Gun Club's Shoot.

More interest is being manifested every day over the contests in shooting that are going on now among the members of the gun club. Beginning with this week the one who makes the highest score wears for a week the club's badge, and the second best shot gets the Minneapolis Brewing Company's badge. Chris Hoeh and Will Vannet were a tie for first place, each having scored 20 points out of a possible 25, but instead of shooting off the tie they drew cuts and Vannet was the more fortunate, so he holds the badge this week. The other badge is being worn by A. G. Anderson as a result of his having scored 18 points. W. E. Rowe brought down 23 birds out of twenty-five once, but unfortunately for him he was not shooting for the badge that day.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

(Continued from first page.)

JOURNAL, the Tribune and the Times, which were on motion referred to the printing committee, to report at next meeting of council.

On motion street commissioner was instructed to fix catch basin at corner of Main and 6th streets, under directions of second ward aldermen.

On motion the chief of police was added to committee on poor for ensuing year.

On motion city clerk was instructed to procure a record book for the poor committee's work answering the requirements of law relative in to the care of the poor.

It was moved by Alderman McKinnon and seconded by Alderman Brown that the thanks of this council be extended to Mr. John Glenson, Mayor A. D. Stephens, W. E. McKenzie, J. W. Wheeler, N. S. Gordon of this city, Remi Fortier of Gentilly, Mayor Hugh Thompson and E. J. Grover of East Grand Forks and James Rosenen of Fisher for their various efforts in protecting the rights of Polk county against the enforcement of the Red Lake county proposition offered in the recent state legislature. Motion declared carried unanimously.

On motion the matter of letting the gymnasium rooms in the basement was referred to the regular city hall committee.

President O'Brien announced for record the different committees appointed by him for ensuing year, as follows:

Finance:—Allan McKinnon, Lewis Ellington, E. O. Childs.

Poor:—Geo. S. Chesterman, T. G. Thompson, A. McGregor.

Streets & bridges:—T. A. Harris, A. G. Anderson, E. E. Davis.

Sewers:—E. O. Childs, F. M. Brown, Allan McKinnon.

Printing:—T. G. Thompson, E. C. Davis, G. S. Chesterman.

City Hall:—Lewis Ellington, A. G. Anderson, Allan McKinnon.

Health:—F. M. Brown, T. A. Harris, A. McGregor.

On motion council adjourned.

W. A. LANCTOT, Clerk.

"Gym" will be Continued.

The Y. M. C. A. made application to the city council last Tuesday night for the use of the two rooms in the basement of the city hall which have been used for the last three or four months by Prof. La Sore. The matter was referred to the city hall committee. In case the "gym" is opened these rooms one will be used as a reading room and the other as a gymnasium. In that case they will probably buy from Mr. La Sore all of his baths, fixtures and club etc. The firemen are also talking of purchasing the "gym" outfit.

Tomorrow evening at their room in the Mc Kinnon block the members of the Y. M. C. A. will hold their regular monthly meeting. An important matter will be transacted it is hoped that all members will be present.

The Turtle.

The "Turtle" the only real speck, men of its kind, without question the greatest success of the day, is announced for next Friday evening, at the Grand. "The Turtle" is so genuinely funny and is interspersed with such an artistic touch by players of distinction, that it stands quite alone among the farcical frivolities of the period. It is essentially Parisian and is interpreted with true French sprightliness and touch and vivacity by Rosabelle Kvasson, Jennie Raifferty, Ada Deaves, Marion Ballou, Lillian Colemae, Signor Perugini, George Holland, Louis Imbous, Hudson Liston, Ulric B. Ellis and Ross O'Neal, and other admirable players. "The Turtle" is curiously discussed in remote centres of civilization, like Chicago and St. Louis and pretty much every stranger visiting New York during its run made a bee line for the Manhattan. This word of mouth advertisement that "The Turtle" obtains is considered about the best valuable that could be devised.

Our Band Goes to Bemidji.

The Crookston Band has been engaged to play at the Firemen's Tournament held at Bemidji May 23, 24, 25. Mr. Riggs states that he intends to take a strong band and will hawhile to give them something that will be a great credit to the city, looking over the Crookston Experimental farm. He leaves for below tonight.

Births.

BURNS

To Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Burns a boy on Friday May 5.

GREENDALGH

To Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Greenhalgh a girl on Sunday, May 7.

FINCH

To Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Finch a boy on Monday, May 8.

Weddings.

ANDERSON-JARSON.

On Thursday, May 4, Elder I. Anderson and Hilda M. Larson. The ceremony was performed by Judge Hagen. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will take up housekeeping in Crookston.

Deaths.

TEIGEN

On Friday, May 5, at Lowry, Minn., Clara Teigen, age eleven years. Miss Clara was a sister of Ole Teigen, of Crookston. Mr. Teigen had visited with his sister during the previous week.

CAMPION

M. A. Campion, of Angus, on Thursday, May. 4. Deceased was 28 years old. He died of consumption. Mr. Campion has spent the winter in Texas returning north just two weeks before his death. He leaves a wife and one child.

In 1896 Mr. Campion was the republican candidate for superintendent of schools in Polk county. He was buried at Warren on Friday with Masonic honors.

RAFF

The infant son of John Raff on Saturday, May 6. The burial took place on Monday.

GREENSLITT

Herb E., aged six months, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Greenslitt, on Saturday May 6. The cause of death was spinal trouble. The interment was made at Detroit where another member of the same family lies buried.

JOHNSON

On Tuesday May 9, at the Palace hotel in Crookston A. E. Johnson aged about 30 years. The deceased had been suffering for more than two weeks with inflammation of the bowels and peritonitis. Mr. Johnson came to this city three years ago and was for some time salesman in Fontaine & Anglim's store. Last fall he accepted a position on the road with the Ray Mercantile Company. A sister of Mr. Johnson's is living in Callao, Ohio, other relatives are in Denmark. He has made many friends since coming to the city who will greatly regret his untimely death. The funeral takes place this afternoon and will be in charge of the Knights of Pythias.

M'KENZIE

On Saturday afternoon, May 6, at his residence, 42 Elm street north, in this city, James McKenzie. The immediate cause of death was heart disease. Mr. McKinzie was just recovering from an attack of several weeks duration and was able to be up and around the house. His wife was absent from the house for a short time on the afternoon of Saturday, and on her return found her husband dead in the yard. The deceased was born in Aberdeen, Scotland in 1827. Emigrating to the United States he was for 20 years in the employ of the Brooks Locomotive Works at Dunkirk, N. Y. He came to Crookston in 1882 and has lived in the city ever since though he has not engaged in business here. He was married in 1849 to Miss Margaret Laughlin. He leaves two sons and two daughters. A. C. McKenzie, of New York, and W. E. McKenzie, of Crookston, and Mrs. Newmarch and Mrs. Dewar, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Beveridge of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. Carruth, of Grand Forks. The funeral took place from the deceased's late residence at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Fraser having charge of the services.

Richard, the eight-year-old boy of R. A. Lawrence had a narrow escape from meeting death in a sewer in course of addition last week. Excavation had been going on and the sewer was not covered. Where the boy fell in there was water five feet deep and had he not happened to light on a post he would undoubtedly have been drowned. As it was the water reached almost to his mouth. He remained in the sewer about ten minutes before his cries attracted the attention of Messrs. Glenn and Nieman, who at once took and removed him from his perilous position.

In the spring the birds are singing
As they build their summer home,
Blades of grass and buds are springing,
Or the mead the cattle roam.
In the spring your blood is freighted
With germs that cause disease,
Humors, boils are generated
Signals warning you of these.
In the spring that tired feeling
Makes you weary day after day,
Makes you feel like begging, stealing,
Rather than engage in work.
But there's something known that will a
Man to health and vigor lead.
You will find Hood's Sarsaparilla
Just exactly what you need.

Sheriff's Sale.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Hagen, of Polk county, Minnesota, to Ole Hagen, mortgagee, dated the 15th day of October, 1898, and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of October, 1898, at 10:40 o'clock a. m., and recorded in book 36 of mortgages, on page 500, whereby Ole Hagen, a widower, mortgagor, mortgaged to the said mortgagee, Ole Hagen, the following described property, situated in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

The east half of the northeast quarter (e¼ of the ne¼) and the east half of the southeast quarter (e½ of the se¼) of section thirteen (13), township one hundred forty-seven (147), range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof, together with the appurtenances thereunto belonging, or appertaining, said property being subject to a mortgage for $1,000.

And no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover any debt secured thereby, or any part of the same, and the mortgage so executed to be due and payable at the date thereof four hundred and thirty-seven days from the date thereof, to-wit: November 27, 1899, whereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the said premises sold at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Polk County, or his deputy, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1899, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, said Polk County, Minnesota, to pay said debt and interest, taxes (if any), twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated, St. Cloud, Minn., April 15th, 1899.

OLE HAGEN, Mortgagee.
AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE CO. OF LONDON, England.

GEO. H. BEYNON, Att'y for Mortgagee.
Attorney for Mortgagee,
St. Cloud, Minn.

Order for Hearing Proof of Will.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.
In probate court, Special term May 2nd, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of Ole Hagen, deceased.

On motion, An instrument in writing, purporting to be the Will and Testament of George Ramsey, deceased, late of the county of Polk, in said state, deceased.

And Whereas, H. C. Misner has filed therewith his petition praying that the said instrument, and said George Ramsey died in Kent County, Texas, on the 3rd day of April, 1899, a resident of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to H. C. Misner, petitioner.

It is ordered that the proofs of said instrument, and the petition for hearing be heard before this court, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, on the 27th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument.

And it is further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minnesota.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 2nd day of May, 1899.

By the Court:
A. A. MILLER, OLE E. HAGEN,
Attorney for Petitioner. Judge of Probate.
4-6

Final Proof.

Land office at Crookston, Minn.
May 8th 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 17th, 1899, viz:

H. E. 14868 for the n½ sec. 1, township 150, north of range 46 west.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph Guglielmus, Fred Wagner, Adolph Klinger, Modeste Lapierre, all of Crookston, Minn.

5-11 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

STATE FARM SCHOOL

(Continued from first page.)

As we go back to our homes and join those who have gone before, and as strange new faces shall come and go, we believe that enough information will have been gained here so that this school will be the cause of lightening many a burden, and cheering many a heart. We listen, and hear the sad wail of humanity as it looks back into the past, and in the muffled sounds we detect these words, "Our school days were our brightest days." Must this be true? must each tomorrow be darker than each today? Let us believe that life means more than this.

By continuing to develop along these lines, our sense of appreciation will increase until all nature will smile more sweetly. The verdure of the trees and meadows, the loving of the cattle returning for the night, the sheep grazing in the distant pastures and the lambs frolicking with green, the brook, that recalls happy childhood days, flowing dreamily in the sunlight and the whispering hues of the forest in the autumn, will all, in full measure, lend their charms to brighten life's pathway, and with the nobler views of life and deeper sympathy for humanity, the days must grow brighter as we near life's golden harvest.

When the mists of illusion have cleared away, when we have reached the heights from which we turn and view the history of our lives, and when with tottering step we view the life to come; it is then that we will realize more fully than now, the Benefits Derived from the School of Agriculture.

For Sale.

Two brick cottages and lots 5 and 8 cents.

VANDE & STONE.

Mortgage Sale.

First publication May 4th 1899.
Last publication, June 15th, 1899.

Notice of mortgage foreclosure by advertisement.

Default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, executed by Peter of Ole, dated the 23th day of July, 1894, filed in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on the 25th day of August, at 10:40 o'clock a. m. and recorded in book 36 of mortgages, on page 500, whereby Ellen Peterson, a widower, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Scottish American Mortgage Company (Limited) (Limited), of London, England, mortgagee, the following described property situated in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

The east half of the northeast quarter (e¼ of the ne¼) and the east half of the southeast quarter (e½ of the se¼) of section thirteen (13), township one hundred forty-seven (147), range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof, together with the appurtenances thereunto belonging, or appertaining, said property being subject to a mortgage for $1,000.

And no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover any debt secured thereby, or any part of the same, and the mortgage so executed to be due and payable at the date thereof four hundred and thirty-seven days from the date thereof, to-wit: November 27, 1899, whereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and the statute, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the said premises sold at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Polk County, or his deputy, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1899, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, said Polk County, Minnesota, to pay said debt and interest, taxes (if any), twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee as stipulated in said mortgage and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated, St. Cloud, Minn., April 15th, 1899.

AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE CO. OF LONDON, England, Mortgagee.

GEO. H. BEYNON, Att'y for Mortgagee.
Attorney for Mortgagee,
St. Cloud, Minn.

Order for Hearing Proof of Will.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, ss.
In probate court, Special term May 2nd, 1899.
In the matter of the estate of Ole Hagen, deceased.

On motion, An instrument in writing, purporting to be the Will and Testament of George Ramsey, deceased, late of the county of Polk, in said state, deceased.

And Whereas, H. C. Misner has filed therewith his petition praying that the said instrument, and said George Ramsey died in Kent County, Texas, on the 3rd day of April, 1899, a resident of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to H. C. Misner, petitioner.

It is ordered that the proofs of said instrument, and the petition for hearing be heard before this court, at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, on the 27th day of May, 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument.

And it is further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, Minnesota.

Dated at Crookston, Minn. the 2nd day of May, 1899.

By the Court:
A. A. MILLER, OLE E. HAGEN,
Attorney for Petitioner. Judge of Probate.
4-6

Final Proof.

Land office at Crookston, Minn.
May 8th 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 17th, 1899, viz:

H. E. 14868 for the n½ sec. 1, township 150, north of range 46 west.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph Guglielmus, Fred Wagner, Adolph Klinger, Modeste Lapierre, all of Crookston, Minn.

5-11 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

FACE TO FACE AT LAST.

Americans and Spaniards Lined Up In the Open.

TOLD BY MEN WHO WERE THERE.

When the Firing Ceased, the Armies Looked Each Other Over—Spaniards Ready—Barbed Wire, Forts, Block-houses and Trenches Defied Assault.

[Copyright, 1898, by the Author.]

XIII.

AT NOON on July 3 the veil of mystery surrounding Santiago was torn asunder and for the first time the Americans got a close view of the Spanish position. Up to that date the invaders of Cuba had barely seen a Spanish soldier except such as were dead, or running before their sabers. But at last their foes, all buckled and braced for combat, looked them boldly in the face.

There was nothing to encourage Shafter's men in the spectacle which burst upon them, when, at 12 o'clock, the flag of truce went up to cover a message demanding surrender. They saw before them a city of brick and stone, defended on the east and south fronts by elaborate field works, every elevation crowned with a fort, every pass barred by trenches and blockhouses. Great guns could not be seen, yet it was known that the Spaniards had them, for their shots had been felt in the two days of battle. For long lines of men showed themselves around works and buildings, the character of which could not be mistaken.

It was quite as much a desire to stretch their legs as curiosity to know what Santiago was like that caused the Americans to crawl out of their trenches the moment the Spaniards ceased firing. To many the prospect of a chance to prepare a "square" meal was the chief consideration. Soldiers are always hungry. These soldiers were just at the time hungrier than the average. Camp rumors of movements, of strategy, of birds in the military mesh ready for pinching, received into a passing thought in the hustle for rations, for water, for all things needed to make life tolerable.

News of Cervera's escape caused greater wonder than the truce, but the men didn't credit it nor did they believe the protestations of Shafter that his fleet had been destroyed. Shafter said at Camp Wikoff, "We saw Cervera go." He also said that he had had warning of it. I sought specially for knowledge in the army of Cervera, but learned little. No one knew of his guns at work on July 3, as has been stated. Shafter said that 1,000 of Cervera's sailors were in the works that day. It is only another evidence of the desperate straits in which the soldiers found themselves after San Juan ridge had been carried that events like Cervera's escape and destruction made little impression here in the trenches, but that trifles which brought relief are remembered in detail. Officers and men alike could name the day and hour when they got the first apology for a meal, the first variation of diet, the first chance to wash and the first Red Cross aid. They could also tell of the fluctuations of misery in the trenches, the downpour of rain, the chill air and the depth of mud. When the flag of truce appeared, word was passed along: "Firing will cease! Get out of the works!" Later would sound the warning: "Lie down! Firing will begin!"

GENERAL HAWKINS. (Brigade commander, wounded July 2.)

Manser shots found victims all that Sunday morning until the white flag was displayed. Before, there were obliging sharpshooters' bullets, for the last spurt of volleying was the wind up of the attack the night before.

The proposition to retire the army on the night of July 2 to its position of June 29 on the hills back of El Poso will long remain a bone of contention, and may take 25 years to settle, as was the case with Meade at Gettysburg. Every one interviewed at Camp Wikoff mentioned the subject without restraint. No one criticised the plan. Officers said that the idea was not favored by the men; that before the battle of July 1 view was modified by the universal admission that the line of battle was dangerously weak and that the men suffering terribly from heat and hunger. The reasons given why the idea of retiring to a shorter line nearer the base of supplies was abandoned show that the idea was a natural one. All agreed that it was abandoned because of the repulse of the Spaniards the night of July 2 and the cool way of bringing relief from heat. Of course it would not have been proposed to retire because of the discomforts of heat. Sylvia and El Poso were no better in that respect than San Juan heights. Nor the effects of the heat were feared, and the real danger was a Spanish sortie.

Some time after midnight on the 3d decision was made at headquarters to hold the line on San Juan ridge. It has been stated that Shafter's demand for the surrender of Santiago was drafted that night. Shafter says that he wrote the demand on the morning of the 3d. It was dated 8:30 a. m., and Toral accepted that at the date, although he did not receive it until 1 p. m., at which hour, although neither he nor Shafter knew it, Cervera's fleet was a wreck.

Toral replied that he would not surrender, but that he had notified the foreign consuls and others interested. That afternoon the consuls entered the American lines and secured a further respite of 24 hours, or until 10 o'clock, July 5.

Shafter said that he believed that the Spanish army would gladly surrender if it were known that the prisoners of war would be humanely treated by their captors. In order to give an example of American ideas of humanity, he paroled and sent into Santiago a number of wounded prisoners, all who could stand the trip.

Meanwhile Cervera's escape and subsequent fate were not mentioned. Next day, however—that is, July 4—Shafter sent the news to Toral with the suggestion that he surrender to avoid needless loss of life. These details show the deliberation with which Shafter acted on July 3 and 4 in the matter of forcing the Spaniards, a course quite inconsistent, it seems to me, with the assumption that the American commander had lost his nerve the night of July 2 and wanted to retreat. At Camp Wikoff it was the impersonal and convenient "they" who had proposed retreat, and Shafter's name was not mentioned by any one on the inside. General Sumner declared that he himself had been wrongly classed as one who favored retreat. Captain Morton of the Third cavalry says that at the time of the night attack General Sumner was in the line of his own regiment, the Sixth, discovering giving one an order to retire, but at the repulse of the enemy showed that the line could be held the order was not given. That discussion was some hours before the council on retreat was held.

After the battle in the time to scan the list of fresh made graves and broken bones. And when was a leg position, ideally located for defense and defended by nominally 10,000 men, been carried and was the people' Kent's division loss of 684 killed and wounded on the 1st has been given in detail. He loss on the 2d is shown in the following table:

	Killed—		Wounded—
	Officers.	Men.	Officers.	Men.
Staff	—	—	1	—
Hawkins' (1st) Brigade—
Commander	—	—	1	—
16th infantry	—	1	—	23
71st infantry	—	—	—	6
71st New York	—	1	—	1
Total	—	2	2	30
Pearson's (2d) Brigade—
12th infantry	—	1	—	14
24th infantry	—	—	—	4
25th infantry	—	4	—	63
Total	—	5	—	87
Wikoff's (3d) Brigade—
9th infantry	—	—	—	4
13th infantry	—	—	—	6
56th infantry	—	1	3	1
Total	—	2	3	10
Grand total	—	9	6	127

The heaviest loss on the 2d was in Pearson's brigade, where the night attack began. The losses of Wheeler's division July 1 and 2 are united in the official table. They were about 14 per cent of the strength—that is, 367 officers and men killed and wounded out of 2,040, including detailed men. There was some loss in the cavalry on the 3d, but nothing compared to that suffered on the 1st either at the "Hell's Crossing" in charging up "Kettle" hill or in taking the rifle pits.

CASUALTIES IN WHEELER'S CAVALRY DIVISION, JULY 1 AND 2.

	Killed.			Wounded.
Sumner's (1st) Brigade—
Brigadier (Col. Carroll)—	Off.	Men.	Ors.	Off.	Men.	Ors.
1st cavalry	2	6	0	7	32	430
6th cavalry	—	4	0	10	15	427
9th cavalry	2	3	2	17	12	205
Total	4	13	2	34	59	1,062
Wood's (2d) Brigade—
1st U. S. cavalry	1	1	0	1	47	21	603
10th cavalry	2	5	0	63	22	601
3d, 6th cavalry	1	12	0	12	25	402
Total	3	20	0	13	122	68	1,606
Grand total	9	33	2	47	206	126	2,668

Three brigade commanders were hit at San Juan, Wikoff, Hawkins and Carroll, and two temporary commanders, Worth and Chaffee, all of whom learned their art in war and have been in harness ever since. Kent's regiments, as well as his brigade, were led by veterans. In the Thirteenth Colonel Worth and Majors Ellis and Auman, all wounded, were veterans, while Colonel Liscum and Major Markley of the Twenty-fourth and Colonel Ewers of the Ninth, with seven captains of that regiment, had served in the civil war.

Haven had the colonels of the Sixth and Sixteenth, Egbert and Theaker had been in the regular army since 1861. In the Sixteenth Major McLaughlin and Captains Palmer, Morrison and Whitall had served their spurs in the volunteers, and Captain Crowell, who commanded a battalion in the Sixth, had served through the war. Colonel Pearson of the Tenth, commanding the brigade; Major Eldridge and Captain Lincoln have been the uniform since 1861; also the leader of the Twenty-first, Colonel McElhinn. The Second was commanded by Colonel Wherry, a Mississippian having a long war record. The officers suffered 60 an extraordinary degree. It was stated at Camp Wikoff that the ridge officers exposed themselves to attract the men.

WIKOFF. WORTH. LISCUM. (Brigade commanders who fell July 1; Wikoff was killed.)

GEORGE L. KILMER.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

La Roy will build a $13,000 school house.

Beltrami county will build a new jail at Bemidji.

Work has begun on the Stillwater-St. Paul electric line.

Belgrade has voted bonds for water works and electric lights.

The Great Northern will build a new freight depot at St. Cloud.

St. Paul building contractors say they can't get enough laborers and carpenters.

The national convention of Royal Neighbors is in session at St. Paul this week.

General Otis reports the death of Private Frank Smith of the Thirteenth regiment.

A postoffice has been established at Rills, Red Lake county, with Magnus Johnson as postmaster.

Ex-Governor Ramsey has resigned from the St. Paul library board to make room for a younger man.

The appointment of Archibald Stevens as government tea inspector at St. Paul has been announced.

Peter Carroll, a North Dakota farmer, was drugged and robbed of $100 and valuable papers in St. Paul.

The general offices of the Omaha road at St. Paul were burglarized Saturday night. About $10 were secured.

The State bank of Campbell has been authorized to do business, capital $10,000. F. E. Kenaston of Minneapolis, chief stockholder.

The Minneapolis school board has voted to erect a new high school building on the East Side and eight additions to present buildings.

"Larry" Horrigan, alias "Slim" Wimble, was shot and killed while trying to escape arrest, being caught in the act of robbing a safe at Minneapolis.

The Citizens' State bank of Nicollet has gone into voluntary liquidation. Notices have been sent out to the depositors to call for their money, as they will be paid in full.

The Commercial bank of Carlton was broken into by burglars, who took a small amount of money, two revolvers and several other things. A barber shop was also burglarized.

In a decision by Justice Collins the Minnesota supreme court holds that where an agent was too busy to issue a permit a passenger was justified in boarding a freight train without it.

The Wright-Davis log and dry-carry ring road, the Duluth, Mississippi and Northern, has been absorbed by the Eastern Minnesota, the road runs from the Mississippi river to Hibbing and the Mahoning mines.

Secretary Folds of the Minnesota Bankers' association is canvassing that organization to ascertain the sentiment toward a proposition for a big excursion cotting over the Soo-Pacific, taking in Banff and the Yellowstone.

Darius Steward, superintendent of schools at Fargo, has been chosen superintendent of schools of Stillwater at a salary of $2,000 per year. He was educated at Dartmouth. The selection was made from a large list of applicants.

Factory Inspectors McCaffrey and Moersch have just completed an inspection of the mines on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, and have collected some interesting mining statistics which will be made public later.

General Hailey comment on the Thirteenth Minnesota: "The Minnesota men certainly are all right. The only fault I find with them is that they began firing a little too soon, and they charged at the enemy so fast that I could not keep up with them."

Sixteen candidates for appointment to a cadetship at West Point took examinations at Winona Friday. One-half of the number are likely to be barred on account of defective teeth. Others had some other trouble and four dropped out, feeling they could not pass.

The village council of Alexandria has appropriated $500, which, with a like amount to be appropriated by the county, will be expended on the roads leading into the village. The contracting was done last year, and $1,000 worth of work was done on the county roads near the town.

The United States circuit court of appeals at St. Paul has decided that the suit of the United States against the Northern Pacific, an action involving the title to about 1,000,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, shall be heard at the present term of court. It is set for hearing June 1.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE OFF.

American-Canadian Commission Will Not Again Convene.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—All hope of reconvening the joint American-Canadian commission in August has been abandoned. The conference adjourned after having made good headway, and it was thought at the time, towards the draughting of an agreement. Owing to an unexpected and insurmountable obstacle in the shape of the lumber and boundary question the joint commission adjourned to meet in August with the understanding that in the meantime the members of the two commissions would test public sentiment. It was also hoped that some difficulties which had presented themselves in the settlement of the work of the commission might in the interim be removed by diplomatic negotiations. It has now been demonstrated, however, that the temper of neither side has yielded sufficiently to warrant the expectation of any successful result attending the reconvening of the commission. It is said that the officials are thoroughly discouraged at the time-consuming manner in which the various propositions which have been put forward are handled back and forth between London and Ottawa.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The navy department has selected a successor to Admiral Dewey to command the Asiatic station. Orders were issued detaching Rear Admiral Watson from command of the Mare Island navy yard and ordering him to report to Admiral Dewey at Manila, to relieve that officer when he feels that he can be spared there.

HOOD'S PILLS

Cure all liver ills, biliousness, jaundice, indigestion, sick headache, constipation, dyspepsia, bad blood, and all disorders of the stomach. Hood's Pills are the favorite cathartic of those who know them best. Sold by druggists. 25c. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Well dressed men and women wear

Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes

For Style, Comfort and wear they lead

Ask for them!

THE BEST OF THEM ALL!!

LIPPINCOTT'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Contains a complete novel in every number, in addition to a large quantity of useful and entertaining reading matter.

No continued stories, which are so objectionable to most readers.

It should be in every household. Subscription, $3.00 per year.

Agents wanted in every town, to whom the most liberal inducements will be given.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Publishers, PHILADELPHIA.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS, DESIGNS, COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Oldest agency for securing patents. We have taken patents through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the beautifully illustrated, largest circulation of any scientific journal, weekly, terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York.

Agricultural Land Seekers

save time and money and improve their condition if they select them to the

Free Homestead Lands in Western Canada

Secure for yourself and your sons a heritage, entering your application. In its course of a few years it will

Yield You a Competence

as it has done thousands of others, who have left their children independent. Yield of wheat in places of 20 to 45 bushels per acre; with a ready market at right prices.

Low Railway Rates Rail Exist

Climate healthy, fuel plentiful and taxes merely nominal. Write for particulars and experiences of pioneers to Hon. Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada, or Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada.

BENJAMIN DAYKES, 256 E. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn.

N. Campbell, Crookston Minn.
P. Johnson, Finstrom, Minn.
W. V. Nugent, Vilhena, Minn., local agents.

Notice of Dissolution.

CROOKSTON, April 1, 1898.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Rudolph T. Rasmussen & A. R. Dahl, under the firm name of Rasmussen & Dahl is this day by mutual consent, dissolved. All bills due said firm and all bills payable by said firm will be collected and paid by A. R. Dahl, who will continue the business at the old stand. Robert street, Crookston, under the firm name of A. R. Dahl.

In presence of
H. RASMUSSEN. RUDOLPH T. RASMUSSEN.
O. D. DAHL. ANNIE M. DAHL.
5-21

ISENER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Has no drug effect worse than sarsaparilla. Which is not a sure cure for rheumatism. Call for 50 cent or one dollar size. Cures one day sick headache and kidney trouble. Ask your neighbor about the good quality of this remedy. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail by C. E. ISENER, Crookston, Minn.

HALL'S CATARRH CURE

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO. Toledo, O.

Sold by Family Pills are the best.

HIGH-GRADE HAWTHORNE $22.50 NET.

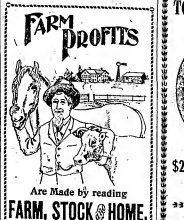
SPECIFICATIONS. Name—Hawthorne, Grade—The best obtainable, Finish—Enamel, Rims—Standard tubular, Spokes—Black, Sprockets—Detachable, Pedals—Rubber, Bearings—Ball, Tires—Dunlop, Saddle—Hawthorne, Handle bars—Drop, Frame—Diamond, Fork—Hawthorne, Chain—Hawthorne, Wheels—26 inches, Weight—About 30 pounds.

15000 Sold in 1898

It's as good as any wheel made. All modern improvements. Guaranteed for one year. Not found as represented, return at our expense and get your money back. Send for our Bicycle book on it. Then you can have your choice. ASK US TO SEND YOU OUR FREE BICYCLE CATALOG. Send 16 cents for our 1,000 page catalogue. It lists everything used by man or beast.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO.

FARM PROFITS



Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the

FARMER, STOCKMAN, DAIRYMAN, GARDENER, POULTRYMAN, APIARIST, PERFUMIST, AND HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS a YEAR.

Six months, 25 cents. 3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

With the JOURNAL oneyear for $1.75.

BINDER TWINE

Our famous BEE HIVE BRAND. It's the best in the market. Write for sample and price you'll be pleased. We deliver it F. O. B. Chicago or Minneapolis. Write for prices and samples.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

YOU CAN USE IT 20 DAYS FREE

Up-to-date in every detail.

And we'll ship it to you on 20 days free trial. If you like it after using it 20 days, pay us $2.00 per month until $25.00 is paid. If you don't like it, send it back at our expense and we will refund your money. We guarantee the machine for ten years. Here is what you get: Automatic lift, automatic bobbin winder, automatic tension release, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, self-regulating stitch, self-adjusting bearings, self-lubricating oil reservoir, self-governing balance wheel, self-winding bobbin, self-regulating tension, self-adjusting pressure foot, self-vibrating shuttle, self-drawing feeds, vertical, drop, automatic cushioned treadle, automatic belt shifter, automatic stop motion, improved bent needle, improved tension, improved thread take-up, improved bobbin, improved shuttle, improved drop feed, improved tension release, improved vibrating shuttle, improved drop feed, improved tension release, improved vibrating shuttle, improved drop feed, Rotary Polished Steel Woodwork, Oak or Walnut. Send 16 cents for our 1,000 page catalogue and it explains everything. It lists everything used by man or beast.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., Michigan Ave. & Madison St. Chicago.

Burlington Route

Finest Train on Earth from St. Paul and Minneapolis to St. Louis.

And all Southern Cities. Electric Lighted and Steam Heated.

ALL ROADS ARE ALIKE TO A MONARCH

$25 King and Queen $25

The best pair of bicycles on earth for the money . . .

MONARCH CHAINLESS $75

MONARCH ROADSTERS $50

DEFIANCE ROADSTERS $35

MONARCH CYCLE MFG. CO.

Lake, Halsted and Fulton Streets, Chicago

Branches—New York, London, Hamburg

Send 20 cents in stamps for a deck of Monarch Playing Cards, illustrating Jessie Bartlett Davis, Lillian Russell, Della Fox, Lew Dockstader and Walter Jones.

Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front.

Sold by ERICKSON & VANNET.

United States Map. 15c.

A copy of our handsome map, 48x28 inches, showing all the railroads in the United States on a color, will be sent to you on receipt of 15 cents in stamps. Address, CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A., St. Paul, Minn. Or call and get one free. Ticket agents will use passage stamps. GEO. P. LYMAN, General Passenger Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE

No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK
All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise with over 75 illustrations; a standard work. Price, 50 cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK
All about growing Small Fruits; how and how to raise; contains 47 colored life-like reproductions of all leading varieties and no other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK
All about Poultry; a Common Sense Poultry Book in existence; tells everything, with 40 colored life-like reproductions of all the principal breeds; with no other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK
All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great book; contains 3 colored life-like representations of each breed, with 75 other illustrations Price, 50 Cents.

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK
Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchering, Diseases, etc. Contains over 50 beautiful illustrations and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents

The BIGGLE BOOKS are handsomely printed—you never saw anything like them—so practical, so sensible. They are the best books ever written on the West, North and South. Every one who owns a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruits ought to have right away one of the BIGGLE BOOKS.

FARM JOURNAL

Is your paper, made for you and not a stilt. It is so years of age. It is the great home paper of the United States. Its subscription list is over a million. It is the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million subscribers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL

2 YEARS (remainder of this, 1897, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to address for only 25 cents.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON, FARM JOURNAL,
CHAS. S. FEE, PHILADELPHIA.

Polk County Journal,

BY N. S. GORDON.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minn., as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

WHEN the Board of Education elected R. W. Hitchcock as superintendent of the Crookston public schools it was understood, and it has since been claimed that he was a graduate of the University of Michigan. That there might be no mistake in this matter we wrote to President Angell, of the Ann Arbor institution, and received the following reply:

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

President's Office.

Ann Arbor, May 5, 1899.

MR. N. S. GORDON,

Crookston, Minnesota.

Dear Sir:—Mr. Rufus Wilbur Hitchcock entered the Literary Department of this University in 1886, coming from Mt. Clemens. He remained only one year, and of course could not graduate in that time. It is possible that he may have entered later some one of the professional schools of the University. I have not made search in their records. If you have any reason to think so, and will write me in what department, I will investigate.

Yours truly,

J. B. ANGELL.

It is hardly necessary to state that a University or College course comprises FOUR years of work. This letter, therefore, would appear to refute the claim that Mr. Hitchcock is an Ann Arbor graduate. It is evident then that the Board deliberately elected Mr. Hitchcock as city superintendent, against the wishes of the people, whose representatives they were supposed to be, and without a proper investigation of his standing as a scholar or as a teacher. As they were not, therefore, looking after the well-being of the pupils in the schools and consequently the welfare of the city, they must have been promoting other interests than those of the public. With regard to the impression created, that Mr. Hitchcock was a graduate of the University of Michigan, we can hardly believe that he would himself misrepresent the facts in the case, for such action would be fatal to him as a teacher, to say the least. We have deemed it best for the interests of the city to place the facts in the case before the people. It now rests with them whether they will express in act as they have in word their disapproval of what the Board has done with reference to a new city superintendent. They have the power to place on the Board of Education men who will consider that a public office is a public trust.

NOW that the city is practically sure of a free mail delivery system the next thing to secure is the rural free mail delivery. The first step in this direction is to have good roads every where throughout the country and when good roads and rural free delivery are established the value of farm lands will increase.

SENATOR FORAKER in a recent speech in Ohio declared that he proposed to fight Senator Hanna to a finish. No quarter is to be shown and the outcome must be that one will eventually retire from public life. It seems a pity that the energy of these two men might not be expended altogether in the public service rather than in a contest for personal power.

THE plan of building a bicycle path between Crookston and Grand Forks is a good one. It is well known that a rain spoils the roads around here as far as bicycling is concerned for several days. Once the path is built, however, we may expect to have a large number of bicyclists make this city who would not otherwise come near us. It would be a good advertisement for this section of the state.

A MONUMENT to ex-Governor J. S. Pillsbury will be erected on the State University grounds at Minneapolis on the knoll opposite the library building. The modeling of the statue will be in the hands of Daniel C. French of New York City. The matter is in charge of the alumni of the University, though the undergraduates will be given the privilege of contributing to the fund. This is a fitting tribute to Governor Pillsbury, who has freely given of his time and money to aid the University.

THROUGH a mistranslation by Governor Lind of a dispatch from the Philippines the 13th Regiment of Minnesota has been represented as demanding their recall, and in consequence our volunteers have been made the butt of sarcastic remarks from all over the country. The facts are our boys made no such demand and had Governor Lind been in touch with the spirit of the young men of Minnesota he would never have even thought that they would act thus. Our boys enlisted from love of country, and will remain on duty in the Philippines as long as Uncle Sam says they ought to.

ADMIRAL WATSON has been ordered to report at once to Dewey at Manila, which means that Dewey will return to the United States within a short time. Already the New York lawmaking arrangements for a big demonstration in his honor and verily he deserves all the can be done for him.

IN an address at Detroit, Mich, last week, Secretary Alger, speaking of the food furnished the American soldiers in the late war, said: "Supposing they had a little beef spoiled, what of it? If they had had no beef at all they would have had no more than Gen. Joe Wheeler and I had in that other war." It is just this contention of Mr. Alger's, namely, that everything was done that could have been done, that is so unendurable to the American people. If he would acknowledge that he was at fault some leniency might be shown him, but this he never has and never will do.

IN Wisconsin from May 5 to 10 no marriage could take place except by special permit of a judge. This state of affairs was occasioned by a law passed by the last legislature of that state which enacted that after May 5, 1899, marriage licenses must be procured by those who wish to wed and that five days must intervene between the time of the issuance of the license and the marriage ceremony. Many plans were in consequence discarnged and many happy gatherings postponed. Still with this morning the sun will break from the clouds and the past five days of waiting will soon be forgotten.

THREE large mass meetings were held in Chicago last Sunday to express approval of the policy of the administration upon the Philippine question, and from this time on this approval will be more general than ever before. The anti-expansionists, as they call themselves, have overstepped the mark in their intense desire to embarrass the administration in its strife with Aguinaldo. Did these populists compass the withdrawal of the United States forces from those islands they would be the first ones to censure President McKinley for the national humiliation which would be ours should such a withdrawal take place.

THE people of the country will approve of the action of the government in seizing certain seditious circulars, which were mailed to the troops in the Philippines. These pamphlets, supposedly written by Edward Atkinson, severely criticised the Philippine policy of the government and advised the volunteers whose term of service is about to expire not to re-enlist. It is clearly the purpose of the writer to incite our soldiers in the east to mutiny. His action is manifestly un-American and unpatriotic, not to say treasonable. It shows in what straits the opponents of the administration are when they will resort to such disgraceful methods. Such acts are worthy of a Spaniard but unbecoming an American citizen.

THE report of the committee appointed to investigate the quality of the beef furnished the United States forces in the late war with Spain, has been given to the public. The findings are about as outlined in the JOURNAL last week. The evidence does not support the charge that the refrigerator beef was chemically treated. Commissary-General Eagan is called to task for having bought the canned beef in too enormous quantities, and it is found that this beef was not properly inspected. General Miles is censured for not having reported sooner to the war department the conditions as to the food supply, but Secretary Alger is left alone as it he were not at all responsible for anything in connection with the whole matter. The president approves the findings of the court.

WE have received the premium list for the fortieth annual fair of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society which will occur on Sept. 4 to 9. The agricultural list has been revised and more than doubled and the premiums are very liberal. Special attention is called to the amounts offered for county exhibits. These exhibits give prominence to the products of the different localities. In these county exhibits Polk county ought not to come out second best. The fair grounds will be open continuously throughout the week and there will be evening as well as day programs. The exhibition features will be enlarged and the amusement program strengthened. Copies of the premium list may be secured at the JOURNAL office or we shall be glad to send the list to any address which may be given us.

Ten Years Younger.

"After having the grip I was left in a very weak condition, and with no appetite at all. After taking three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I felt ten years younger. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine we have in the house." H. H. BURTIL, Box 20, Mankato, Minnesota.

Hood's Pills are non-irritating and the only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Notes From Exchanges.

Fergus Falls Journal: Auditor Dunn has come to the conclusion that the Argesinger bill does not repeal existing laws until the date upon which it takes effect, and the schools of the state will receive state aid this year as heretofore, the increased appropriations under the Argesinger bill being available next year.

Detroit Record: In June Fargo will celebrate the sixth anniversary of her fire, on a grand scale. The city council has appropriated $1000 to help defray expenses. Fargo is popular. There are not many communities which mark the anniversary of their misfortunes by indulging in brass bands, floral arches and ice lemonade.

Aitkin Age: There is no denying the fact that the United States is a great country. The nation is just now entering upon an era of prosperity that extends from coast to coast, and at the same time we are engaged in fighting a rebellion of considerable magnitude in the Philippines. So far as the commercial conditions at home are concerned we are not more disturbed by the war than as though it were in the moon.

Hutchinson Times: Saying nothing of the discredit put upon the Thirteenth regiment by Gov. Lind—wherein was the sense or the humanity in Lind's holding out false hopes to the regiment by cabling that it would return before June 1st? Col. Ames distinctly deprecated similar action on the part of the auxiliary association of grandmothers some months ago. Lind should defer political plays to humans motives.

Alexandria Post-News: It is a fact that few newspaper men are popular. Too many persons "have it in" for them. If a newspaper does its duty by its party, and its town and county, it will make enemies. An editor naturally has a part for or against every movement in his community. If he is honest, his influence through his newspaper will grow, but his personal popularity will wane. If editor he will recognize this, accept it and stick to his newspaper.

Cass Lake Times: Now for a boat ride. Commodore Percy Baker's new launch and row boat arrived this morning. We got just a glimpse of them in the car. They are beauties, painted white, with red trimmings. The Commodore is a proud man now, and only a little smaller than Admiral Dewey. The launch is capable of carrying twelve persons, and will be propelled by electro-vapor.

The names of the boats are "Gretchen B." and "Clifford B." in honor of the Commodore's girl and boy.

Cass Lake Independent: There can be no doubt that Cass Lake is destined to attract much attention as a summer resort for those seeking health, water-scape scenery, bathing, fishing and general sporting. There are no finer bodies of water than the two we have here united by a short connecting stream. Pike Bay is a beautiful sheet of water with an expanse just adapting it to sail boats, and is probably more prolific in fish than any other water in all this region. Its beach has a fine slope all around and is composed of clean, white sand which is the bathers delight.

Faribault Republican: President McKinley received the following telegram from Capt. Kelley, of the Texas Rangers: "Muster out Minnesota's weak-kneed volunteers. Buck's Texas Rangers stand ready to take their place in the Philippines." This undeserved disparagement of Minnesota's soldiers, it is scarcely necessary to say, was brought out by the unpatriotic message of Gov. Jones Lind and the comments of some of the democratic newspapers who are evidently inspired with the purpose of making political capital through the attempt to embarrass the administration.

Ada Index: A number of our republican exchanges are giving advice on how to elect the republican candidate for governor next year. We feel confident that a good candidate on the republican ticket is certain to win. A good candidate with good organization cannot be defeated. The republicans have learned a lesson in the value of a thorough central organization—one which will satisfy all factions—and with a good candidate and the prestige of a previous campaign we cannot fail to win. Give us Judge Collins, Bob Dunn, and the people will do the rest.

The Farmer: Pick out the place where you will raise some of some kind for the sheep next season. Manure will make the largest crop and sugar beets the best one. Select a deep soil, manure it well right away and plow as soon as possible in the spring so as to get the manure rotted and allow the ground to get perfectly fine by the freezing and thawing of April. Twenty tons of sugar beets is not an extraordinary crop and the same amount of mangels could be called a small crop if good care is given. No feed can be grown that is more valuable according to acre.

Little Falls Transcript: Earl M. Rogers has accepted the position of superintendent of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, who are building a large saw mill at Thief River Falls. The organizers of the company are lumbermen from Merrill and neighboring Wisconsin points, and have bought a large amount of timber tributary to their new location and are now building a saw-mill, and expect to have it ready for work by July 1. The mill will be a two-band and re-saw plant. Mr. Rogers has had many years' experience in and about saw mills, and for the past few years has sawed in the Pine Tree company's big mill at this place, and has made an efficient and valuable employe.

Farm Students Review: Mangels are the most satisfactory root crops one can grow for live stock. They yield better than sugar beets and are fully as good feed. It costs less to raise than the dose to raise sugar beets as they are more easily harvested. Mangels should be planted on rich, warm soil any time between the 10th and 20th of May. Put the land in fine tilth before planting to make cultivation easy while the beets are small. Sow in rows 24 to 30 inches apart, using 7 to 10 pounds of seed per acre. Do not sow the seed over two inches of an inch deep. Mammoth Long Red Yellow Globe will yield well under most conditions.

Elsewhere.

A new creamery was started at Detroit, Minn. last Monday.

Elmer Adams of Fergus Falls is to be census enumerator for this district.

The New Roman Catholic Cathedral at Fargo will be dedicated on May 30.

The old First Minnesota regiment will have a reunion in St. Cloud, June 21.

Ada is discussing the advisability of having waterworks put into the city.

A strong water vein was tapped at Ada last week. The flow registered 500 barrels.

Philippeners think there are indications that the Northern Pacific will rebuild the Manitoba Hotel in that city.

The new State Bank at Red Lake Falls expects to open May 20. L. C. Simons is president and J. O. Duffy, cashier.

The Northern Minnesota Conference of the Methodist church meets in Minneapolis, Oct. 4, Bishop Joyce presiding.

Perley will have a new school house this summer. The village also wants a town hall and there is talk that the Woodmen's lodge of that place will erect one.

Mrs. Sommers was divorced from his wife at Grand Forks a week ago. He claims that sometime ago the woman who was his wife compelled him with a revolver staring him in the face to marry her.

Ex-President Cleveland is to become professor of political science in the Princeton college in which institution he has shown a lively interest since his retirement from the White House.

The G. N. passenger train ran into a herd of horses one mile south of Felton recently, killing three horses instantly and injuring another so seriously that it had to be killed by the trainmen.

The Eastern Railway company of Minnesota have formally taken control of the Wright and Davis road. This practically puts out of existence the Duluth, Mississippi river and Northern railroad.

Wm. P. Campbell, a well known attorney of White Earth, has gained considerable notoriety by eloping from Washington, D. C. with a beautiful southern woman, Mrs. Burgess, recently married in St. Paul.

Near Valley City N. D. a man jumped through one of the car window of a Northern Pacific train that was going at the rate of forty miles an hour. Diligent search failed to find him hence he must have escaped injury.

The new city council of Chaska has elected the chief of police to ring the fire bell every Sunday at 11:30 as a signal for the saloons to open, the saloons being closed for an hour and forty-five minutes during the morning service in the churches.

Last week a personal encounter took place on the streets of Moorhead between the city physician and city attorney of that city. It was a one round contest honors being fairly even but as the doctor used his feet as well as his fists in the contest, his opponent was given the decision on a foul.

A dam on Crow Wing river down which river 35,000,000 feet of logs were to be driven this spring, has been mysteriously destroyed. It is supposed that dynamite was used by some farmers whose land was overflowed in consequence of the dam being there.

Prof. Henry Johnson and Miss Ford, of the Moorhead Normal, and Prof. Paul Goode, formerly of the same school, will go to Charleston, Ill., with President Lord. Miss Wheeler will not return to the Normal, so there will be a decided change next year.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Special Services.

A special series of Wednesday evening services in the Congregational church has been announced by Rev. H.P. Fisher. The general subject is,—"The Call to Vigilance." Among the sub-topics are, "The Call of the House;" "The Call of the Church;" "The Call of the Business Man;" and "The Call of the Legislative Hall."

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed in the Crookston, Minn., postoffice for the week ending April 29, 1899:

Bradley Jr.
Crosby W H.
Gibbs Wm.
Maxwell W. D.
Morrison R. George
Myers S. S. Rev.
Hall M. L.
Hall M. L. 2.
Olson Julia Miss

Corcoran William
Johnson A. Gregers
Mathews J. Martin
Marx
Moeller E. W.
Schmidt C. W.
Goodlin C. P. Mrs.
Johnsaand Lizzie
Jewell Catherine
Thatcher

Persons calling for the above say advertised.

ANDREW EGGEN, Postmaster.

PRINTING Of Every Description done at this Office. City Styles at Lowest Prices.

Tis Said....

And truly stated that talk is cheap. This rule has its exceptions. This little talk you are getting here costs money, hence we shall state facts only.

Don't send to Minneapolis or St. Paul for your spring supplies. A chance to figure on your bill is all we ask. We are much better prepared than ever to fill orders promptly, having a wholesale house at our command enables us to quote very close prices

Bring us your Butter and Eggs and get highest market price

We are headquarters for all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds.

Slocum's Grocery,

ROBERT STREET.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When la ing out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give ou the benefit of our experience in la ing out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—P. J. Carey was in from Edna on Monday.

—L. A. Paddock was in from Bemidji Tuesday.

—If you want old papers call at the JOURNAL office.

—W. J. Brown, of Warren, was in the city on Tuesday.

—Dan Robertson, of Argyle, was here over night Monday.

—W. A. Case, of St. Hilaire, was in the city Friday night.

—W. W. Calkins, of Ada, was in Crookston last Saturday.

—F. Borchers, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city Saturday.

—James Foreman, of Argyle, was here over Saturday night.

—A. W. P. Hebard, of Fosston, spent Saturday night in the city.

—Notice our police officers. Their new helmets become them.

—Ed. Martin and N. Raphi were at Maple Lake last Sunday.

—Harry E. Ives, of St. Hilaire, was in the city last Monday.

—J. F. Montgomery spent last Thursday evening in the city.

—L. C. Ketcham, of Warren, spent Friday night last in this city.

—Roy Arnold has bought W. H. Norrie's residence on Main street.

—W. A. Stringer, of Northcote, spent Monday night in Crookston.

—Chas. B. March is the manager of T. B. Welker's new mill at Akely.

—P. S. Ware and wife, of Warren, were in Crookston Monday morning.

—W. H. Bailey was in from Keene Sunday and spent the day in the city.

—Climax was visited last Friday by Cashier Ellington and Lawyer O'Brien.

—S. C. Bagley has recently sold several hundred acres of pine land near Solway.

—Mrs. O. L. Dahl went to Fosston last Friday morning for a short visit with friends.

—A. H. Pitkin, of Euclid, attended a meeting of the Shriners in the Twin Cities last week.

—Sheriff Lawrence has invested in a $2,000 farm near the town of Hannah in North Dakota.

—K. N. Bragstad, of Gary, was in the city last Thursday visiting friends and doing business.

—Work has already commenced on E. M. Webb's new residence in the northeastern part of town.

—A stone in one of theiogs over at the mill Friday caused one of the hand saws to be badly smashed.

—District court opened at Rnsean last Monday. This is Judge Watts, first session in that far off country.

—Prof. Thos. Casey, who monids the minds of the rising generation at Fisher, spent Saturday in Crookston.

—J. Klewel and P. W., Blake, of Little Falls have been in the city for several days the guest of Chas. Klewel.

—A. R. Fuller returned Friday morning from a week's visit to Austin, Owatonna, St., Paul and Duluth.

—L. K. Hassell, ex-clerk of court of Grand Forks, was in the city on Tuesday on business before the probate court.

—In the probate court last Friday Judge Hagen closed up the estate of Mary E. Cooke, first wife of the late H. E. Cooke.

—Archis Crawford, of the Tribune force, who has been laid up with rheumatism for some time, is able to be around again.

—Fertile schools are closed this week because of the prevalence of diphtheria in the village.

—Dr. Holte has returned from Texas in company with his wife, who has been spending the winter in the south for her health.

—Edward Morrissey, an employee in the Great Northern machine shops at Emerville, spent last Friday and Saturday at his home in this city.

—O. H. Myran, of Ada, and Sylvester Peterson, of Crookston, have dissolved partnership in the hardware and farm machinery business.

—Mrs. Tom Morris was at home to some of her friends last Thursday evening. The guests played euchre whilst after which a delicious luncheon was served.

—Candidates for admission to the practice of law will be examined before the state board of examiners in law at St. Paul May 17. George Finlayson, of this city, expects to take those examinations.

—E. M. Warren, of Brainerd, has accepted the position of chief engineer for the Thief River Falls Lumber company. He was engineer in the sawmill at Little Falls for some time and lately has been employed as machinist in the Northern Pacific shops at Brainerd.

—John Nelson, of Gary, visited in Crookston from Friday until Sunday.

—A. A. Glenn is putting a new foundation under the parsonage of the Norwegian Methodist church.

—Miss Bessie Larson is building a new residence on Ash street opposite the Norwegian Methodist church.

—Attorney H. W. Lee, of Thief River Falls was transacting legal business in Crookston last Monday.

—Special Agent Griffin, of the Indoor department, who is now located at Ashland, Wis., is out in the Beltrami country this week.

—D. E. Fulton came up from Ada Tuesday morning and proceeded at once out to Mentor. Mr. Fulton is now in the employ of the Fargo Loan agency.

—W. F. Bugg is located at his new home in the eastern part of town. He will have full freedom now to do all that he wishes in the way of raising fancy fowls.

—T. A. Hoverstad, Supt. of Crookston Experiment Farm, has been doing some experimenting near Warren with a view to getting rid of some noxious weeds.

—Mrs. Dewar and Mrs. Newmarch, of Winnipeg, and Mrs. Carruth, of Grand Forks, were in the city the first of the week to attend the funeral of their father, James McKenzie.

—S. E. Gregg, formerly employed in the Crookston Tribune office and at present proprietor of the Bagley Independent, came in from Bagley on a business trip last Friday afternoon returning Saturday morning.

—Frank Waldron, manager of the high school base ball team, has been writing to all the schools in this section of the country with a view to arranging with them for games; So far he has had favorable answers from Red Lake Falls and Ada.

A decision in favor of the defendant in the land contest case of Elmer Hultin and Wm. Brompton involving a homestead entry in Beltrami county, was received in the local land office last Tuesday from the interior department at Washington.

—Fred L. Flack, who was manager of the Daily Tribune in this city several months last summer and fall, arrived in Crookston last Tuesday morning. Mr. Flack has been doing newspaper business in several different states since he was here, being at one time as far away as Arizona.

—Geo. A. Ralph has purchased some lots just south of N. P. Stone's residence on Broadway and intends building thereon a private dwelling. The plans are all ready and another handsome residence will be added to the already large number that adorn the city.

—Capt. Frank F. Green, of the First Montana regiment, reported among the recently wounded at Manila is the husband of one of the teachers in the Grand Forks schools. University of Minnesota graduates in the city will remember Captain Green as a member of the class of 1894.

—The contract for the building of the new four-room school house in South Crookston has been let to Clark and Surgent whose bid for the same was $3,491. Other bids on the same edifice were Ole Fylling, $3,495, Mr. Taggart, of Minneapolis, $3,533, Frank Mugean, $4,285, J. Anderson, Minneapolis, 4,800 and John Florin $4,065.

—A very small crowd assembled at the opera house Saturday night to witness the wrestling match, catch-as-catch-can, between Will LeRoy and F. J. Rogers. It was too one-sided an affair to be either interesting or exciting. LeRoy was a wren in it for a moment. Rogers won three falls within as many minutes. He appears to be a powerful man with a good deal of science, and is supposed to be Fred Fehr, of Dekota.

—Captain Decker, the gallant and popular commander of Company L, of the 16th Regiment of Minnesota Volunteers returned to Crookston last Sunday after an absence of six months. He would probably have received a commission in the United States regular army had not the recent decisive engagements in the Philippines precluded the possibility of many more regulars being needed over there. The Captain will make his home in Crookston for the present.

—Geo. A. Ralph, civil engineer, left this week for Roseau, where he will survey a township. From there he goes to Thief Lake on the banks of which, 80 miles north of Thief River Falls he will lay out a townsite for the Northern Minnesota Cranberry Culture company. Thief Lake is in the midst of a settlement of about 3000 people and the idea of the company is to build up a town that will act as a centre for the entire farming community. Arrangements have already been made for the erection of several pieces of business as soon as the town is started.

—Dr. Loe went up to Thief River Falls this morning.

—Rev. S. Carrie, of Euclid, was in the city on Monday.

—A high grade Monarch bicycle for sale. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

—The officers of Crookston Commandery, No. 20, were installed last Tuesday evening.

—C. R. Hitchcock, Nap Bray, R. B. Shute and F. G. Rauch joined the Knights of Pythias last Thursday evening.

—Charles P. Kling of New York City was in the city yesterday looking after his landed estates in this section.

—Two weeks from tonight the Knights of Pythias will receive into their lodge a large number of Fosstonites.

—The United States land office received one patent last Monday. The fortunate individual was J. J. Johnson, of Fosston.

—James E. Morrisey went up to Hallock Tuesday on business in connection with the Crookston Iron Works company.

—The Knights of Pythias will reestablish their lodge at Ada. The K. Ps. from Crookston have been invited to be present on the occasion.

—All the small saw mills established at different points along the line of the Fosston extension, have been purchased by one milling company.

—Harry Hitchcock, while playing about the logs in the river last Tuesday, fell into the water. He was rescued by his companion, Willie Montague.

—Last Sunday evening Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district, preached an eloquent sermon in the Methodist church to a large audience.

—Trespassers on pine lands out near Bemidji are quite numerous and have cut a good many thousand feet of timber but they are likely to pay dear for their wrong doing.

—B. C. Murphy, of Rostyn, Wash., arrived in the city last Friday morning. He will reside in Edna where he has a farm. He reports the weather out west as cold, wet and disagreeable.

—Friday afternoon Chris. Hoch, Bert Anderson and Will Vanest were up on the hill practicing shooting. Though there was considerable wind the scores made were very good. Out of a possible 25 points Mr. Hoch secured 18, Mr. Anderson 16 and Mr. Vanest 20.

—Commander John McLean, of Cobham Post No. 50, has received some very handsome hedges for the members of the G. A. R. in this city. They will be worn for the first time on Memorial Sunday, two weeks from next Sunday. Arrangements for a fitting observance of Memorial Day are being made.

—Chief Gouyea has instructed the policemen strictly to enforce the ordinance against bicycling on the sidewalks. While the streets have been muddy the authorities have been lenient in the matter of allowing riders on the sidewalks, but this privilege has been abused by some riders, hence the change.

—Wm. Davidson, manager of the Key West farm, was in the city last Tuesday and called at the JOURNAL office. He expected to begin seeding yesterday and if the weather continues favorable will sow wheat for the next ten days and then put in flax. Four thousand acres is the extent of the territory which he will have under cultivation.

—Drs. Melchen and Kjelland, of Twin Valley, came in Tuesday with an appendicitis patient. An operation was performed at the Bethesda Hospital. Dr. Melchen is an old friend of Charley Stetten, head bookkeeper in the New York Store. The doctor has recently returned from Edinburgh, Scotland, where he has been taking up some special studies.

—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church meets in Minneapolis on May 18, one week from today. To this assembly the Red River Presbytery will send two delegates, Rev. Mr. Dobias, of Tabor, and John Evens, an elder in the church, who lives near the village of Fisher. Besides these, several prominent members of the Presbyterian church, among them Rev. F. W. Fraser and Hugh Robertson, will attend.

—August George opened the bids on his new house last Saturday. The contract goes to the lowest bidder, H. L. Larsen, of Ada, whose figures were $3,681. Other contractors and their bids were as follows: Sargent and Clark, $3,980, Frank Magnan, $4,142 and John Florin, $4,225. Work begins at once. The house will be erected on the beautiful building site just north of the Episcopal rectory. It is to be a frame building and no one who sees the plans can come to any other conclusion than that Mr. George is to be one of the handsomest men in town in the city.

"Necessity Knows No Law."

But a law of Nature bows to the necessity of keeping the blood pure so that the entire system shall be strong, healthy and vigorous.

To take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is therefore a law of health and it is a necessity in nearly every household. It never disappoints.

Tired Feeling—"I had that tired, dull feeling after his, landed estates in this | Hood's Sarsaparilla made me a new man. I never was better than now." JOHN MOOR, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Rosy Cheeks—"I have good health and rosy cheeks thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It builds me up and saves doctor's bills." MARY A. BURKE, 604 East Clair Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure Dyer-Ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla

—W. F. Peterson was up from Fertile this morning.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. O'Reilly were at Fisher last Monday.

—Old papers for sale at the JOURNAL office at very low prices.

—Mrs. Fred Ekhoff of St. Hilaire is visiting friends in the city.

—Supt. Britton's car was attached to the Duluth train this morning.

—A new Congregational church will be dedicated soon at Beltrami.

—Editor Stevens, of the Warren Register, was in the city last Tuesday.

—A. R. Holston transacted legal business at Grand Forks last Monday.

—Joe Farley, a prominent farmer south of Crookston, is about done his seeding.

—W. H. Bell opened his confectionery store on corner of Second and Main streets last Tuesday.

—James Gilmour, James Nisbet and David Morrow were a trio from Mallory who spent Monday night in the city.

—Two individuals who were caught riding bicycles on the sidewalk were before Judge McLean this morning.

—Mr. Newberry, of Stockpnrt, Ohio, who was elected principal of the Crookston high school, has accepted the position.

—Wm. Simpson, one of the enterprising farmers out near Kittson has about completed his spring work in the line of seeding.

—The editor's team took a whirl up Main street last night. The tongue of the carriage was broken but no serious damage done.

—E. H. Milham of St. Paul, was a prone representative of the Knights of Pythias, is spending today in Crookston. He is on the way to Manitoba.

—E. E. Lommen, Clerk of Court, is putting up a residence on Lincoln avenue in Crookston's addition. The main part of the house is 30x36 with an addition of 24x18.

—W. F. Street and O. M. Skiavik, of Fosston, the men who are still contending over the county attorneyship of Beltrami county, were in Crookston last Tuesday.

—Sheridan-Carpenter Lumber Company have sold 3,000,000 feet of logs to a Winnipeg firm. The sorting of the logs begins today and they will be cut as fast as they come to the saws.

—R. H. Young, editor of the Midland Christian Advocate, published at Minneapolis, was in attendance at the District Conference held in the Methodist church the first three days of this week.

—Joe Miller, who committed a burglary at Ada recently, was brought to Crookston yesterday and lodged in the county jail. He has been bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

—Dr. Forbes was taken ill Tuesday evening and has been confined to the house ever since. He is in hopes, however, th at he will be able to continue his work in the Red River Valley in a day or two.

—The Crookston College has issued a circular with announcements concerning the work that will be done in the summer school that Professors Malm and Sather have arranged to hold here for eight weeks, beginning June 12.

—The Commercial hotel changes hands this morning. The new landlord, Wm. Powers, has been living in the city for several months, has made many friends and will endeavor to keep a first class house. Mr. and Mrs. Bemis will live at the hotel for the present.

—Mr. Smith, a former employee in the state Public Examiner's office, at St. Paul will arrive in Crookston next Monday and at once set to work on the records of the county treasurer with a view to locating the three thousand odd dollars which has not yet been accounted for. The county commissioners have hired Mr. Smith for this purpose.

James Rossaen of Fisher spent Monday at the county seat.

—Miss Nora Walsted left Monday for Warren near whereshe will teach school.

—G. H. Palmer went out to Bemidji on a business trip Monday morning.

—Mrs. Mat Bantz is decorating her home at the east end of Bridge street in Jerome's addition with a fresh coat of paint.

—Archie Hilliard has returned from his claim out east where he spent a week. He reports the fishing out there as extra good.

—Ed Gilbertson has sold out the Arcade Cafe fixtures to Harry Colby from Michigan state. Mr. Colby will open a restaurant in some place adjacent to Crookston.

—A brakeman in the Great Northern yards at Fosston yesterday fell from a freight car and had one leg so injured that it had to be amputated above the knee.

Memorial Day Orator.

The city is arranging for fitting observance of Memorial Day. Judge McLean, Commander of the G. A. R. Post here, received word yesterday morning from J. J. Ryder of East Grand Forks that he would accept the invitation to deliver an address in Crookston on Memorial Day.

Epworth League.

The special services at the M. E. church next Sunday in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Epworth League will begin by a sunrise prayer meeting at 6.30. For the evening a special program has been arranged by the Epworth League. The Choral Club, which has been drilling under the direction of Mrs. Van Arnum will sing several choruses.

Commencement Exercises.

Arrangements have been made by Supt. John Mostrom for the closing exercises of the public schools. An address on some educational theme will be delivered by Frank A. Weld, president of the Moorhead Normal School. The exercises will be held in the opera house on Saturday evening, June 3. In addition to President Weld's address there will be music, Miss Bertha Samson will give the salutatory for the class and Miss Ella Hinson, the valedictory.

Open Air Band Concert.

The first open air concert by the Crookston band was given last Saturday night at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher streets. The streets were thronged with people intend on hearing the music produced by Prof. Riggs' musicians. Taking the Saturday night concert as a standard these weekly musical treats are going to be a great success. A movable platform will be built and will be ready for the next concert. The people will look forward to Saturday nights as a time when they will have unusual pleasure.

Before Judge Hagen.

In the probate court on Thursday May 9, a license to mortgage land was given to Mrs. Matilda Larson, guardian of minor children. The land involved is near Fisher. In the estate of Mons T. Hagnes, deceased, a license to sell real estate was granted to Susannah Hagness and L. K. Hassell, executors of the estate. A. I. Rotberg, of Crookston, was appointed administrator in the estate of Alfred Peterson, of Angus, in the place of the deceased, are in Sweden the settling of the estate is being pushed by the Swedish Consul at St. Paul.

Cold Hard Facts...

There are some more things that you should think about if you are a Bicycle Buyer

YOU shouldn't pay a cent for dignity. You shouldn't pay a cent for name. When it gets right down to cold facts all that you should pay for any Bicycle is quality, and on the basis of quality Victories will stand any criticism, any examination, any comparison, any test. You don't have to be an expert or a mechanical engineer to figure out that thirty-five dollars is plenty to pay for quality. But of course if you want to pay fifteen or twenty dollars for somebody's name or somebody's dignity—well, the money is yours, not ours. All we have to say about Victories is that they are high grade wheels, an honest wheel, a time tried wheel, and in our opinion no wheel on earth is better constructed and no wheel by any name is worth any more. Today we show may different varieties of the wheel and you can have your pick, any size you want, any gear you want, any fittings you want and any guarantee you may reasonably ask, for thirty-five dollars—cash or time. Whether you are a man or woman, an experienced rider or a novice, whether you want a wheel for business or for pleasure or for both, you will find the Victory wheel all that we claim for it—an honest wheel, honestly made, honestly advertised, and sold at an honest price, and as good as any wheel at any price, no matter what is claimed for the other or what name it bears. Come in and look at the Victory. It is for you to say.

Hawkins & Olds.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

PHYSICIANS

A. A. Just M. D.
HOMŒOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office in McKinnon Block. Crookston, Minn

ATTORNEYS

H. Steenerson,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
Office in Opera Block Crookston, Minn

Miller & Foote,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Offices, corner Broadway and Robert streets Crookston, Minn.

Christ's Church, Episcopal.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Services every Sunday, Morning, 11:00; evening, 8:00. Holy Communion the First Sunday of every Month. Sunday-school, 2:30, at evening.
REV. H. M. GREEN, B. D., Rector.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

TIME CARD OF TRAINS. Crookston

SOUTH BOUND	Arr	Dep's
No. 10 via St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Superior	6.37 pm	6.37 p m
NORTH BOUND.
No. 309 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg	6.30 a m	6.30 a m

C. A. SHARBER, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE	*Daily	†Except Sunday	LEAVE
4.35 pm	Grand Forks, Noth and West		7.00 a m
2.00 pm	Fisher, Grand Forks, Winnipeg		11.00 a m
8.15 pm	Warren, Bemidji, Tamarack		7.15 a m
6.00 pm	St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls, Grand Forks		9.30 a m
4.05 pm	Fosston, Bemidji, Duluth and Superior		7.00 a m
5.45 pm	Climax, Halstad, Moorhead and Fargo		7.30 a m

*Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

ELL, Tic et.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable: You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

THE PHANTOM RICKSHAW.

BY

RUDYARD KIPLING.

May no ill dreams distort my rest
Nor powers of darkness me molest —Evening Hymn.

One of the few advantages that India has over England is a great knowability. After five years' service a man is directly or indirectly acquainted with 3000 or 300 civilians in his province, all the means of 10 or 12 regiments and batteries and some 1,500 other people of the nonofficial caste. In ten years his knowledge should be doubled, and at the end of 20 he knows, or knows something about, every Englishman in the empire and may travel anywhere and everywhere without paying hotel bills.

Globe trotters who expect entertainment as a right have, even within my memory, blasted this open hearthstone, but none the less today, if you belong to the inner circle and are neither a bear nor a black sheep, all houses are open to you, and our small world is very, very kind and helpful.

Ricketts of Komarsha staid with Polder of Kumson some 15 years ago. He meant to stay two nights, but was knocked down by rheumatic fever, and for six weeks disorganized Polder's establishment, stopped Polder's work and nearly died in Polder's bedroom. Polder behaves as though he had been placed under eternal obligation by Ricketts and yearly sends the little Ricketts a box of presents and toys. It is the same everywhere. The man who do not take the trouble to conceal from you their opinion that you are an incompetent ass and the women who blacken your character and misunderstand your wife's amusements will work themselves to the bone in your behalf if you fall sick or into serious trouble.

Heatherligh, the doctor, kept in addition to his regular practice a hospital on his private account—an arrangement of loose boxes for comrades, his friend called it—but it was really a sort of fitting up shed for craft that had been damaged by stress of weather. The weather, in India is often eultry, and since the tale of bricks is always a fixed quantity and the only liberty allowed is permission to work overtime and get no thanks men occasionally break down and become as mixed as the metaphors in this sentence.

Heatherligh is the dearest doctor that ever was, and his invariable prescription to all his patients is "Lie low, go slow and, keep cool." He says that more men are killed by overwork than the importance of this world justifies. He maintains that overwork slew Pannay, who died under his hands about three years ago. He has, of course, the right to speak authoritatively, and he laughs at my theory that there was a crack in Pansey's head and a little bit of the dark world came through and pressed him to death.

"Pannay went off the handle," says Heatherligh, "after the stunning of long leave at home. He may or he may not have behaved like a blackguard to Mrs. Keith-Wessington. My notion is that the work of the Ketahindi settlement ran him off his legs, and, that he took to brooding and making much of an ordinary F. and O. flirtation. He certainly was engaged to Miss Mannering, and she certainly broke off the engagement. Then he took a feverish chill, and all that nonsense about ghosts developed. Overwork started his illness, kept it alight and killed him, poor devil! Write him off to the system—one man to take the work of two and a half men."

I do not believe this. I used to sit up with Pansey sometimes when Heatherligh was called out to patients, and I happened to be within claim. The man would make no most unhappy by describing in a love, even voice the procession that was always passing at the bottom of his bed. He had a sick man's command of language. When he recovered, I suggested that he should write out the whole affair from beginning to end, knowing that ink might assist him to ease his mind. When little boys have learned a new bad word, they are never happy till they have chalked it up on a door. And this also is literature.

He was in a high fever while he was writing, and the blood and thunder magazine diction he adopted did not calm him. Two months afterward he was reported fit for duty, but in spite of the fact that he was urgently needed to help an undermanned commission stagger through a deficit he preferred to die, vowing at the last that he was hag-ridden. I got his manuscript before he died, and this is his version of the affair, dated 1886:

My doctor tells me that I need rest and change of air. It is not improbable that I shall get both ere long—rest that neither the redoubtable messenger nor the midday gun can break, and change of air far beyond that which any homeward bound steamer can give me. In the meantime I am resolved to stay where I am and, in flat defiance of my doctor's orders, to take all the world into my confidence. You shall learn for yourselves the precise nature of my malady and shall, too, judge for yourselves whether any man born of woman on this weary earth was ever so tormented as I.

Speaking now as a condemned criminal might speak ere the drop bolts are drawn, my story, wild and hideously improbable as it may appear, demands at least attention. That it will ever receive credence I utterly disbelieve. Two months ago I should have scouted as mad or drunk the man who had dared tell me the like. Two months ago I was the happiest man in India. Today, from Peshawur to the sea, there is no one more wretched. My doctor and I are the only two who know this. His explanation is that my brain, digestion and eyesight are all slightly affected, giving rise to my frequent and persistent "delusions." Delusions, indeed! I call him a fool, but he attends me still with the same unwearied smile, the same bland professional manner, the same neatly trimmed red whiskers, till I begin to suspect that I am an ungrateful, evil tempered invalid, but you shall judge for yourselves.

Three years ago it was my fortune—my great misfortune—to sail from Gravesend to Bombay, on return from long leave, with one Agnes Keith-Wessington, wife of an officer on the Bombay side. It does not in the least concern you to know what manner of women she was. Be content with the knowledge that, ere the voyage had ended, both she and I were desperately and unreasonably in love with the one other. Heaven knows that I can make the admission now without one particle of vanity. In matters of this sort there is always I and one who gives and another who accepts. From the first day of our ill omened attachment I was conscious that Agnes' passion was a stronger, a more dominent end—if I may use the expression — a purer sentiment than mine. Whether she recognized the fact then, I do not know. Afterward it was bitterly plain to both of us.

Arrived at Bombay in the spring of the year, we went our respective ways, to meet no more for the next three or four months, when my leave and her love took us both to Simla. There we spent the season together, and there my fire of straw burned itself out to a pitiful end with the closing rain. I attempted no excuse. I make no apology. Mrs. Wessington had given up much for my sake and was prepared to give up all. From my own lips, in August, 1888, she learned that I was sick of her presence, tired of her company and weary of the sound of her voice. Ninety-nine women out of a hundred would have wearied of me as I wearied of them; 75 of that number would have promptly avenged themselves by active and abhorrent flirtation with other men. Mrs. Wessington was the hundredth. On her neither my openly expressed aversion nor the cutting brutalities with which I garnished our interviews had the least effect.

"Jack, darling," was her one eternal cuckoo cry, "I'm sure it's all a mistake. A hideous mistake, and we'll, be good friends again some day. Say you forgive me, Jack, dear!"

I was the offender, and I knew it. That knowledge transformed my pity into passive endurance, and, eventually, into blind hate—the same instinct, I suppose, which prompts a man to savagely stamp on the spider he has just half killed. And with this hate in my bosom the season of 1883 came to an end.

Next year we met again at Simla—she with her monotonous face and timid attempts at reconciliation and I with loathing of her in every fiber of my frame. Several times I could not avoid meeting her and each and each occasion her words were identically the same—still the unreasoning wail that it was all a "mistake" and still the hope of eventually "making friends." I might have seen, had I cared to look, that hope only was keeping her alive. She grew more wan and thin month by month. You will agree with me at least that such conduct would have driven any one to despair. It was uncalled for, childish, unwomanly. I maintain that she was much to blame. And again, sometimes in the black, fever stricken night watches, I have begun to think that I might have been a little kinder to her. But that really is a "delusion." I could not have continued pretending to love her when I didn't, could I? It would have been unfair to both.

Last year we met again—on the same terms as before, the same weary appeals and the same cruel answers from my lips. At least I would make her see how wholly wrong and hopeless were her attempts at resuming the old relationship. As the season wore on we fell apart—that is to say, she found it difficult to meet me, for I had other and more absorbing interests to attend to. When I think in my quietly in my sickroom, the season of 1884 seems a confused nightmare wherein light and shade were fantastically intermingled—my courtship of little Kitty Mannering—my hopes, doubts and fears; our long rides together; my trembling avowal; my attachment; her reply, and now and again a vision of a white face flitting by in and out among the black and white liveries. I once watched for so many months the wave of Mrs. Wessington's gloved hand, and when she met me alone, which was but seldom, the tremulous murmuring of her appeal. I loved Kitty Mannering — honestly, heartily loved her—and with my love for her grew my hatred for Agnes. In August Kitty and I were engaged. The next day I met those accursed "ringdoves," Mrs. Wessington's locked arm in Jack's, and, moved by some passing sentiment of pity, stopped to tell Mrs. Wessington everything. She knew it already.

"So I hear you're engaged, Jack, dear." Then, without a moment's pause: "I'm sure it's all a mistake—a hideous mistake. We shall be as good friends some day, Jack, as we ever were."

My answer might have made even a man wince. It cut the dying woman before me like the blow of a whip. "Please forgive me, Jack! I didn't mean to make you angry. But it's true, it's true!"

And Mrs. Wessington broke down completely. I turned away and left her to finish her journey in peace, feeling, but only for a moment or two, that I had been an unutterably mean hound. I looked back and saw that she had turned her rickshaw with the idea, I suppose, of overtaking me.

The scene and its surroundings were photographed on my memory. The rain swept sky (we were at the end of the wet weather), the sodden, dingy pines, the muddy road and the black powder-riven cliffs formed a gloomy background against which the black and white liveries of the jhampanies, the yellow panoled rickshaw and Mrs. Wessington's down bowed golden head stood out clearly. She was holding her hand kerchief in her left hand and was leaning back exhausted against the rickshaw cushions. I turned my horse up a byrath near the Sanjowlie reservoir and literally ran away. Once I fancied I heard a faint call of "Jack!" This may have been imagination. I never stopped to verify it. Ten minutes later I came across Kitty on horseback, and in the delight of a long ride with her forgot all about the interview.

A week later Mrs. Wessington died, and the inexpressible burden of her existence was removed from my life. I went to Plainsward perfectly happy. Before three months were over I had forgotten all about her, except that at times the discovery of some of her old letters reminded me unpleasantly of our bygone relationship. By January I had disinterred what was left of our correspondence from among my scattered belongings and had burned it. At the beginning of April of this year, 1885, I was at Simla—semi-engaged, but only once more and was deep in lover's talks and walks with Kitty. It was decided that we should be married at the end of June. You will understand, therefore, that loving Kitty as I did, I am not saying too much when I declare to myself to have been at that time the happiest man in India.

Fourteen delightful days passed almost before I noticed their flight. Then, aroused to the sense of what was proper among mortals circumstanced as we were, I pointed out to Kitty that an engagement ring was the correct and visible sign of her dignity as an engaged girl and that she must forthwith come to Hamilton's to be measured for one. Up to that moment, I give you my word, we had completely forgotten so trivial a matter. To Hamilton's accordingly went on the 15th of April, 1885. Remember that—although the doctor may say to the contrary—I was then in perfect health, enjoying a well balanced mind and an abiding taste for quil spirit. Kitty and I entered Hamilton's shop together, and, there, regardless of the order of affairs, measured Kitty for the ring in the presence of the amused assistant. The ring was a sapphire with two diamonds. We then rode out down the slope that leads to the Combermere bridge and Pelit's shop.

While my waler was cautiously feiling his way over the loose metal Kitty was laughing and chattering at my side, while all Simla—that is to say, as much of it as the then-coy ferns of the plains—was grouped round the reading room and Pelit's verandah. I was aware that some one, speaking from a vast distance, was calling me by my Christian name. It struck me that I had heard the voice before, but where and when I could not at once determine. In the short space it took to cross the road between the path from Hamilton's shop and the first plank of the Combermere bridge I had thought over half a dozen people who might have committed such a solecism and had eventually decided that it must have been some singing in my ears. Immediately opposite Pelit's shop my eye was arrested by the sight of four jhampanies in "magpie" livery, pulling a yellow paneled, chun, Simla rickshaw. In a moment my mind flew back to the previous season and Mrs. Wessington with a sense of irritation and disgust. Was it not enough that the woman was dead and done with, without her black and white servants appearing to spoil the day's happiness? Whoever employed them now I thought I would call upon and ask to be allowed favor to change them for others. Then I would kiss the little hand myself and it necessary buy them. Kitty would understand. It was impossible to say here what a flood of undesirable memories their presence evoked.

"Kitty," I cried, "there are poor Mrs. Wessington's jhampanies returned again! I wonder who has them now!"

Kitty had known Mrs. Wessington slightly last season and had always been interested in the sickly woman.

"What! Where?", she asked. "I can't see them anywhere."

Even as she spoke her horse, swerving from a fallen mule, threw himself directly in front of the advancing rickshaw. I had scarcely time to utter a word of warning when, to my unutterable horror, horse and rider passed through men and carriage as if they had been thin air.

"What's the matter?" cried Kitty. "What made you call out so foolishly, Jack?" If I am engaged, I don't want all creation to know about it." There was lots of speed between the mule and the verandah, and if you think I can't ride—There!"

Whereupon willful Kitty set off, her dainty little head in the air, at a hand gallop in the direction of the band stand, fully expecting, as she assured me afterward, to hit me that I should follow her. What was the matter? Nothing.

[CONTINUED.]

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, May 4.

The strike of coal shovelers at Duluth threatens to spread.

Sheriff Downey has been arrested at Salt Lake City, by the militia for carrying arms.

A reciprocity agreement between the United States and Italy is nearly completed.

Fifteen thousand textile workmen at Brunn, capital of Moravia, have gone on strike for a reduction in hours of labor.

The Spanish cabinet council has decided to devote 5,000,000 pesetas to improving the fortifications in the Canary islands.

The retirement of Rear Admiral Stewart, paymaster general of the navy, and the promotion of Pay Inspector H. G. Colby are announced.

The Philadelphia Ledger makes an authoritative denial of the widely published statement that a marriage was contemplated between Secretary George W. Childs and General Joseph Wheeler.

Friday, May 5.

Queen Victoria has returned from Nice to England.

During April 24 corporations filed articles at Trenton, N. J., with capitalization aggregating $448,000,000.

The Missouri circuit court of appeals has rendered an anti-trust decision, declaring that accounts of trusts cannot legally be collected in that state.

The announcement is made that Miss Julia Dent Grant, daughter of General Fred Grant is to marry Prince Michel Cantumzenes of the Russian imperial guard.

A special from Ottawa says the withdrawal of Great Britain from the cooperative agreement with the colonies in the Pacific cable scheme is regarded there as effectually killing the project.

Joseph Trimborn, a wealthy brewer of Great Falls, Mon., went to New York to meet his wife on her return from Europe. He registered at a hotel Sunday, deposited a large sum of money and has not been seen since.

Saturday, May 6.

The Wisconsin legislature has adjourned.

Any portion of the Ute reservation, located in Colorado has been opened to settlement. There was a great rush.

There is serious talk of an extra session of congress to convene in October, in order to dispose of the great number of important matters pending.

The Financial News announces that the total cash subscriptions to the Amalgamated Copper company's stock capital $70,000,000) represents $412,000,000.

General MacArthur defeated the Filipinos at San Tomas and again four miles south of San Fernando. The Filipinos were commanded by General Tinio.

A New York syndicate has bought an old copper mine 20 miles from Guanabacoa, Cuba. The ore from this mine assays 35 per cent copper and 3 of silver and 1½ ounces of gold to the ton. The mine has been unworked 97 years. The syndicate controls 500 acres.

Monday, May 8.

Great Britain has acquired the friendly islands.

The condition of Tim Murphy, the comedian, is alarming.

The formation of the Cuban troops will begin this week.

Acting Secretary Meiklejohn has issued an order formally disbanding the Second and Seventh army corps.

The Spanish bishops in the West Indies who do not wish to live under United States jurisdiction are being deposed by the pope and Americans and Cubans appointed in their stead.

An order of the war department gives to the commanding officers in Cuba, Porto Rico and Philippines absolute authority in the matter of transfer from the line and enlistment and re-enlistment of the hospital corps.

Tuesday, May 9.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is in annual convention at New Orleans.

Dr. Austin Flint, the well known authority on diseases of the heart, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his home in New York.

Governor Smith of Montana, though opposed to the war in the Philippines, declines to demand the return of Montana troops.

The Chinese legation has made a strong protest to the state department against the exclusion of the Chinese exclusion act to Cuba.

Judge William Lawrence, formerly colonel of the Ninth Ohio regiment and well known as a politician and author of law books, is dead at Toledo, O.

Wednesday, May 10.

The war department has created the military district of North Alaska.

Two people dynamited a street car and several passengers were injured.

General Manuing F. Force, commanding from a token mule, threw himself directly in front of the advancing rickshaw. I had scarcely time to utter a word of warning when, to my unutterable horror, horse and rider passed through men and carriage as if they had been thin air.

"What's the matter?" cried Kitty. "What made you call out so foolishly, Jack?" If I am engaged, I don't want all creation to know about it." There was lots of speed between the mule and the verandah, and if you think I can't ride—There!"

Whereupon willful Kitty set off, her dainty little head in the air, at a hand gallop in the direction of the band stand, fully expecting, as she assured me afterward, to hit me that I should follow her. What was the matter? Nothing.

[CONTINUED.]

M. M. S. POULTRY FENCING

is thoroughly interwoven but has long horizontal wires. Without barbs.

A FENCE, NOT A NETTING.

Like a fence, it can be properly stretched and erected with few posts and without top and bottom rail. Has cable stays and a cable running through the fence every foot. Each cable guaranteed to stand 1,000 lbs. strain.

We are making extensive additions to our following famous fences:

CABLED FIELD and HOG FENCE

with or without lower wire barbed. All horizontal. Horse-proof.

STEEL WEB PICKET FENCE Ideal fence for lawns, parks, cemeteries, etc. Steel gates, posts, etc. Everything the best in its kind.

DE KALB FENCE CO., 100 High St., DE KALB, ILL.

Feb. July 14, 1898. Jan. July 4, 1899.

FOR SALE BY FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

FOR ALL THE NEWS....

Read THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

....JOB PRINTING A SPECIALTY.

THE

Everlasting Steel Harrow

The bands or double-bars and teeth are made of Bessemer Steel, and are made in two, three, four, five or six sections. Three sections, 82 teeth, 12 feet, usual size for ordinary farm team.

FULLY WARRANTED

....Will Last for a Life Time....

The illustration shows one of our foursection harrows at work on an extraordinarily rough piece of ground, drawn as a vertical or straight tooth harrow. You will notice that the harrow runs a little angling against the ground and the pressure to the ground against the teeth give the double bars a constant shake which gives the harrow a most terrific tearing power. It may be made into a slanting tooth by simply changing everier to the other end. For circulars and testimonials, address

JOHNSON & SMITH,

AUSTIN, MINN.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT

WINCHESTER

Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.

FREE: Send name on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DO YOU SEE THAT BAG?

It's our Registered Trade Mark, and means that our

STERLING GRADES OF SEEDS

STERLING Seeds are unconditionally the best that money can buy. Write now for our 1899 Catalogue of IMPROVED FARM SEEDS, TESTED VEGETABLE SEEDS and choice FLOWER SEEDS. It's FREE. YOU NEED no application; any seed we sell by sample merchants.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO., SEED GROWERS, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

STERLING Seeds

THEY THAT SIT IN DARKNESS

A STORY OF THE AUSTRALIAN NEVER NEVER

BY JOHN MACKIE

AUTHOR OF "THE DEVIL'S PLAYGROUND" AND "SINNERS TWAIN."

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY.

CHAPTER IV.

OTHER EXPERIENCES.

In the period of delirium which followed I experienced some curious delusions. So powerfully did they impress me at the time that even now I can recall them distinctly.

When I became alive to the present, it was only to be conscious of suffering—of a sore, wearied body stretched on the rack of a fierce fever and consumed by a burning thirst. My canvas water bag was empty, but there was not strength enough left in me to go and fill it again. As for the blacks who prowled about in that dangerous country, they hardly gave me a thought. But the snake that was forever poising itself above me as if to strike filled me with a terror which in vain I struggled against.

There was a mocking assumption of superior wisdom or cunning in its look. Would the end never come? In my horror to break the spell I cried aloud.

But it was a human voice that answered.

"All right, Mr. Parker. Why, don't you know me? You look as if you'd seen a snake or a black fellow! What do you take me for?"

"I believe you are—something uncanny," I gasped.

The glittering eyes of the serpent had changed into the calm, dark eyes of the squatter's daughter, and her soft, clear voice—it was one of her great charms—came from the place where the snake had hissed.

She looked fixedly at me through an opening in the trees with that wonderfully beautiful face of hers. There was a certain witchery in her gaze that fascinated. I almost began to think that she was only the embodiment of some spirit of the wood, or some illusion of my poor fever stricken senses, or that, by some species of magic, the serpent had been transformed into the woman; for my gaze had never shifted, and the eyes had always been there. But she had divined the situation at a glance. She came quickly forward till she stood by my side. In a second her voice had undergone a change; her eyes had lost that quizzing, laughing light, and instead there was a look of genuine anxiety and kindliness in them; her voice was womanly, and full of a quiet, unobtrusive sympathy when she spoke. She had changed from the girl into the woman.

"You have had another attack of the fever," she said. "Now, I shan't trouble you; because I know when one has the fever one is best left alone. And you have no water—oh, too bad, too bad! I'll fetch some in half a minute." And, picking up the water bag, she disappeared in what I suppose was the direction of the creek. I noticed that under her right arm she carried a light sporting rifle. In a few minutes she was back again; she held the bag up to my lips, and placed my hat upon my head—I had not missed it.

"Now you have had enough," she protested, when I had taken a few greedy mouthfuls. "Lie down for a little longer, and you'll be able to go to the camp after a bit. I'll go away and come back again." And off she went.

I dozed, and then my scattered senses began to gather themselves together again into some semblance of rationality. I must have been asleep some considerable time, for when I awoke the sun was low in the heavens, and the atmosphere was pleasanter. I was thinking that it was a curious thing to dream about some one coming and filling my water bag, and to wake up and find that there was indeed water in the bag, when, looking round, I saw Norah Mackenzie sitting on a fallen tree, with her back to me, a few paces distant. I had not moved nor uttered a word, but she turned the instant I looked at her, and, coming toward me, said:

"You are all right now. I can see you are. Do you think you can come to the camp? You really shouldn't wander from it when you feel the fever coming on. It's not safe. Just think of what occurred the other day. Come"—the frank impulsive nature of the girl was reasserting itself—"give me your hands." She stretched out both of hers and pulled me to my feet.

The attack of fever had passed. I was beginning to feel myself again.

"Don't tell me that you've been sitting here all this time waiting for me!" I exclaimed, conscience stricken.

She laughed lightly. "Remember the old saying, 'Ask no questions and you'll—suffer from no perversion of the truth.' Do you know, Mr. Parker, that there's a little of the quack about me. I believe I can produce a cure for this fever. It's one the blacks used upon the Burdekin."

"I'm skeptical about fever cures, but I'll try yours," I said. "But, by the way, you must have thought me awfully stupid a few minutes ago. The fact is, I had a curious dream about a snake, and the law of association's a queer thing."

"You are complimentary"—this with a show of dignity—"so much so that it suggests a good deal of highland superstition. Of course you're hinting at the highland myth about the princess who was turned into a snake. I hope you don't think that I'm a snake turned into a princess?"

"Why press a man so hard?" I protested, with a miserable attempt to say something cheerful. "In the present case circumstantial evidence seems to prove that the woman grew out of the snake. Anyhow, if I were certain of it, I'd never kill another one as long as I lived!"

She laughed as if she rather enjoyed the dubious compliment.

"And they say a Scotsman seldom makes pretty speeches," she exclaimed. "But wait a minute. Here is Mother Nature's cure for the fever. Strange, isn't it, that there is never a nettle without a docken growing alongside?"

We were passing a small, shrublike tree on which grew a round, yellow berry, a little larger than a cherry. She stopped and pulled some, putting them into a small bag she carried by her side. I bit the rind of one. She watched me taste it, but of all the bitter tastes I ever experienced that was the quintessence.

"You mustn't judge of my medicine by that berry," she insisted, smiling at my wry face. "I'll prepare them tonight and give you a drink tomorrow morning. That will be something to look forward to."

And all this time I was thinking of something to say to her, to thank her for the trouble she had taken with me, but felt that if I did anything of the kind it would simply be the means of silencing her cheerful talk and driving her away. This, of course, I did not want to do. We walked slowly through the bush, and from time to time she would stop and look at something or other in a way that for all the world—although the association was incongruous—put me in mind of the movements of a black fellow. Once she stooped, and, pointing to the ground, showed me some tracks. "Somebody must have been here with bullocks within the last three days," she remarked. "Look, they have gone in pairs—their neck yokes have never been off." Then she showed me the marks on a tree where on the previous evening a possum had stuck his sharp claws. She named the red passion flower, and the yellow ipomœa that climbed the trunks of trees, the pink and scarlet epacris, and, pointing to a casuarina, remarked it was difficult to believe that that tree was the survival of a still more remarkable type of Australian flora. She showed me a tiny nest glued to the underside of an insignificant leaf and some other things which I thought only a black fellow could have noticed.

I must have expressed some surprise at her powers of observation, for she remarked carelessly: "Oh, I don't see that any credit attaches to noticing such things. When one is brought up in the bush, one learns to read from nature's book. It seems to me they miss all the interesting things out of the other ones. I've learned more from an old black fellow about this wonderful world in half an hour than ever I did from all the books my father has insisted on my reading. Of course I'm not such a silly as to ignore books, though I am very ignorant."

It did not dawn upon my dulled faculties until I lay on my blanket thinking that night that she simply stopped and showed me these things so that I might take my time and rest myself going to the camp without her consideration being apparent. Let a woman alone for managing such things with a subtle delicacy, and let a man alone for accepting them with a sublime complaisance.

At length we reached the camp, which lay in quite a different direction from that which I had imagined. The faculty called 'locality' is one of my strong points, but I suppose it must have somewhat dulled by the fever. There we found Savile, the cook, and Jack, who was just in the act of mounting the gray as if to go out again.

"Hello, old chap!" he exclaimed the minute he saw me. "I thought you were lost; was just going to hunt you up."

Then he caught sight of the girl. He took the pipe out of his mouth, and I could see his face light up with a pleased and awakened interest. It was evident I had been ill, and he could guess the rest; there were few sharper than Jack at interpreting rightly a situation. He went toward the squatter's daughter, and, taking the empty water bag from her hand, said something to her in a voice so low that I knew it was not intended for my ears. Whatever it may have been, she showed by her manner that she was interested.

And I had allowed her to carry a rifle and my water bag to the camp! I dare say my face just then must have borne a look of horror and self reproach, for the girl laughed and said:

"You needn't blame yourself; my rifle only weighs a few pounds, and you didn't see it. As for the bag, I emptied and hid it, so after all you're not so very much to blame. But I must go back to my own camp. I'm so glad you're all right again. Goodby in the meantime." And before I could stammer out a word of thanks she had honored us with one of her comprehensive little bows and hurried away.

Jack and I sat under the trees, and the night came quickly down; again we heard the quaint notes of the unseen morpoke in the dim forest glades. Neither of us spoke, but as we rested and felt the peacefulness of the scene stealing over us we suddenly heard something that made us hold our breaths and stare at each other.

It was a sweet burst of melody. It held us as I could imagine those who for the first time heard the divine powers of music were held. Some one was playing on the violin with [illegible]—only a musician could produce such sounds. It was one of Mendelssohn's songs without words—that glorious "Spring Song." I ceased to speculate as to the creator of the music, lost in the beauty of the music itself.

"It's that witch, the squatter's girl," exclaimed Jack, who had let his pipe go out listening.

Without exchanging further words we went over to the squatter's camp.

"Glad to see you," was the squatter's greeting. "Sit down, Parker. Glad that you've recovered so quickly. Do you sing, Mr. Farquharson? Tut, tut. I mean Tyndall. I've just been thinking about that poor, unfortunate fellow."

Jack had started so violently and turned such a ghastly face upon the squatter when he was addressed as Farquharson that I saw Norah Mackenzie give him a strange glance with her quick, observant eyes. Jack recovered himself in another instant.

"Once upon a time I used to do a little singing," he answered, "but there's more of the raven than the canary in my composition now."

"That's your modesty, I'm sure," insisted the squatter. "Sometimes of a Sunday night in the bush we go in for a little music. Savile here sings a capital bass. He was a chorister in an old country cathedral once. Let's have a song that we all know and can join in. Here is one. Pass round these copies, Gordon, and poke up the fire into a big blaze so that we can see."

I remember the tune was "St. Helens." Norah Mackenzie played the accompaniment, and Jack surprised me with a remarkably good tenor voice. In fact, there was no one there who could not sing well, saving myself, and I was a good listener. It was a strange thing to be listening to those well known hymns under the dusky aisles of the Australian forest. It is safe to say I never enjoyed an open air concert so much as this one. I closed my eyes and lo!

I sat in a sleepy old fashioned church, watching the waning sunlight stream through a stained glass window which dyed the sunbeams with the crimson and golden hues from garments of saints and martyrs and deepening the shadows that, like the dust on the moldy marbles overhead, lay close and thick. Through other windows, ivy draped and partially open, came the sweet breath of spring, for the snow white hawthorn was gleaming in the green lanes, and the song of the birds never ceased. How instinct was that sacred spot with the associations of the past—how eloquent every dingy stone and well worn pew! But, oh, the dear familiar faces, where were they? Was there nothing in this world save farewells? Then, breathing of an infinite tenderness and trust, the notes of an anthem rose, the fresh, sweet voices of youth and beauty, and the deeper and fuller ones of maturer age blending with the rich chords of the organ until the harmony was more of heaven than of earth. The world, the flesh and the devil were no more, and a sense of rest and peace possessed me such as I have never before known. Surely, the spirits of those whose memory had become as a sacred dream were with me then, and there was no such thing in this world as care. But the music ceased, and the sweet notes rolled away—waves of sound on the sands of eternity.

"Hello, old chap!" he exclaimed.

Then I heard the quaint refrains and dirges of the sad voiced Australian forest, and, looking up toward the fretted roof of the old church, I saw the Southern Cross gleaming in the illimitable vault of the eternal heavens.

CHAPTER V.

"WHICH WOULD YOU PREFER?"

Next morning Jack and I were up at daybreak; the squatter's camp was also astir. Luckily the horses had not strayed far during the night, so that soon we had them driven up, ready for a start immediately after breakfast. I was just putting the billy on the fire when Snowball, one of the black boys, came up and told me that his "white missis" wanted to see me. Instructing him to tell her I would be with her immediately, and wondering what she could want with me, I ran down to the creek and hurried through my simple toilet.

When I reached the squatter's camp, Norah Mackenzie was waiting for me. With a smile she took down a silver drinking cup from the limb of a tree on which it had rested overnight, and taking a tumbler poured off a clear, amber hued liquid from the former into it, throwing out what I supposed were the cores of the berries she had plucked on the previous day. I must have stood looking as foolish as an overgrown schoolboy who with a rebellious spirit, conscious of the dignity of his coming manhood, is eying the doctor's nauseous draft, from which he knows there is no escape. She watched my face, held the glass up to the light, and with an arch pleasantry repeated these lines:

> "Oh, for a beaker full of the warm south,
> The true, the blushful Hippocrene,
> With beaded bubbles winking at the brim
> And purple stained mouth!"

and, in the same breath, "Just fancy something of that sort, you know, and here's a big chocolate drop you'll have as a reward when you've finished."

I thought the comparison between the draft that Keats meant and this was hardly a fair one. I must have presented a very disconcerted spectacle, for she laughed heartily at me, but I drank the fever cure to the bitter lees. I think if I had imagined it would prove as bitter again I would have swallowed it without a moment's hesitation, coming as it did from her hands. After all, it was not so very unpleasant. It had a peculiarly bitter, burning taste, but was not particularly disagreeable.

"Where is my reward?" I asked.

And now the length to which this girl would go in pursuit of a joke was fully exemplified. She held up the chocolate drop between finger and thumb till it was on a level with that siren's face of hers, and, turning those great, dark eyes full upon me till I could read the meaning in them and slightly pouting her lips, she asked in a low voice that suggested the manner of addressing a child, "Which would you prefer?"

I simply turned hot and cold, and the blood seemed to tingle through my body at the audacity of such a speech. But before I could stretch out my hands to her, which had been my first unreasoning impulse, she placed the chocolate drop between my lips and was laughing beyond my reach.

It was well for her and for myself that she did escape. I was never so much the slave of an irresistible impulse as at that moment.

Just then the squatter came from his tent.

"Hello, Parker!" he said. "Been taking Norah's medicine? Yes, it's good stuff. Repeat the dose tomorrow, and I'll wager you'll get rid of the fever. By the way, we strike off from here

"Jack," I cried, "are we to go on with Mr. Mackenzie?"

southwest through the bush this morning for my new country up the Robinson river. Are you coming with us?"

"Jack," I cried, turning to my mate, who at that moment came up, "are we to go on with Mr. Mackenzie to his new country?"

"Yes, and thanks for the offer, sir," answered Jack, addressing the squatter. "I'd go to another planet and not take a return ticket, either, if I could get the chance."

"Hello!" exclaimed the squatter, betrayed into an exhibition of surprise by something in the tone of Jack's speech. "You're too young to say such things. Don't you ever think of your father"—

"Yes, I do," interrupted Jack grimly, with that old hard look coming into his face which I knew was the outcome of some hidden trouble.

The squatter saw it and hastened to say: "Oh, I beg your pardon! I didn't mean to. However, I'm very glad you are coming. Let's get ready."

Then Jack and I, putting the pack saddles on our horses, drove them over into Mackenzie's mob and rode on, not wishing to force our company upon the others more than was absolutely necessary.

It was now good and pleasant traveling. Occasionally we had to go a little out of the line we had adopted to keep clear of a thick ti-tree scrub or a clump of wattle, but generally it was a grassy open or lightly timbered country. Sometimes, for many miles at a stretch, we could imagine ourselves in a nobleman's park in some beautiful old country county. There was the turf beneath our feet—not, however, so green and velvety. There were the great ancestral trees standing in stately isolation and the long dim glades in the background. The wagon could pursue a straight course in such places. Only at times that we were not in the old country was brought forcibly home, when, for instance, some emus on a clearing would crane their necks at our approach and scuttle off into the scrub or a band of gray kangaroos came bounding right into the open in the foreground; then, on observing us, sat up on their hind quarters to get a better view before hopping off again, beating a labored tattoo on the ground with their great tails. Once we halted and watched a pair of native companions—large gray birds, somewhat resembling gigantic cranes—going through that remarkable dance which they indulge in occasionally. It was indeed an extraordinary sight.

"I wonder now what the niggers call those festive creatures?" Jack remarked absently.

"The barralga," she replied, rolling her r's. "Don't you notice the resemblance of the name to the cry of the bird?"

I could not help thinking of Max O'Rell's statement when talking of Friend Macdonald—"Show me people who roll their r's, and I'll show you a people with backbone." After all, Norah Mackenzie was highland Scotch by descent.

It impressed me not a little to see the thoughtful expression in the girl's eyes when only that which amused would have been visible to nine women out of ten. I had not given her credit for seeing beneath the surface of things. And she was evidently one of those who have a dislike to be taken seriously, for as her father and Jack rode on abreast, leading the way, she checked her horse until it was alongside mine and asked me, with the spirit of mischief still lurking in her eyes, how I had liked the chocolate drop she gave me that morning.

I turned and looked at her steadily.

"I can't say it tasted quite so sweet after the alternative you proposed. You'll play with fire until some day you get burned," I answered.

For now I was conscious of a strange feeling of resentment toward her. It was not pleasant to think that she should hold me so lightly and treat me as she might a child. I had till that morning almost regarded her as one, but there had been a dangerous glamour in those soft eyes when my arms had gone out to her as if by an irresistible impulse. Then I had ceased to look upon her as a child and began to regard her as something infinitely more dangerous.

She checked herself in an uneasy laugh, and although I gazed right ahead of me I could tell that she was favoring me with one of her inscrutable glances. She was beginning to exercise a subtle influence over me, and perhaps she divined it, for in another minute her mood had changed. Though she spoke as frankly as before, she did not again venture upon such dangerous ground.

As if by mutual consent we began talking about many things. It would be difficult for me now to say how it came about, but she had very soon learned from me the history of my checkered connection with the law; how I had become a duly qualified practitioner in England and ceased to be one when fortune came to me; how when on losing my money I had come out to South Australia and soon had qualified to practice there, but how I had found it impossible to take to the work again, for, the old nomadic spirit within me asserting itself, I was drawn into that bush which had always exercised such a powerful fascination for me. Norah Mackenzie listened, as I thought, with a pleased look on her face, but she made no comment. We were now abreast of Jack. The girl asked him if he also were a wanderer by choice and profession.

"Certainly," was the prompt reply. "I'm a rolling stone of the first water."

"You seem proud of it," remarked the girl.

"That's so," was the confident reply, "ever since a certain young lady told me—confidentially, of course—that she preferred rolling stones to the other sort, because if they didn't gather much moss they gained lots of polish."

"And what did you say to that?"

"Why, I rewarded her—on the spot," replied Jack, with the air of a man who had done his duty. "You see, as she was a sort of forty-second cousin, and rather good looking, one couldn't be ungrateful."

That night we camped on the edge of a pine forest, and to me it was almost as welcome a sight as that of the glorious old ocean when one's eyes have rested upon nothing for months, and perhaps years, but the interminable glaucous green of the eucalyptus till they have ached for a change. Change means rest to the senses that have run too long in one groove.

We had seen many tracks of blacks, and passed one or two deserted camps where those children of the bush had been within the last few weeks. But we took the bells off our horses when we turned them out and so were not troubled by any of these connoisseurs of horseflesh; probably they did not expect whites so far off the track. Norah Mackenzie produced her violin after supper and accompanied Jack, who at the request of the squatter gave us "Bonnie Mary of Argyle" with great feeling, and, on being pressed to sing again, chose that quaint, sweet yet passionate idyl "The Devout Lover" in which there is the real old world ring in both words and music. Then Jack and she sang together and, for the first time, perhaps, I was not a little envious of his accomplishments. It seemed to me her manner was much more friendly toward him than it had been.

Next day we passed through the pine country, and on crossing a little ironstone ridge we saw ahead of us a great, grassy, lightly timbered valley, surrounded by a blue range of hills whose sides exhibited an abrupt, precipitous front, which was scarred and broken into hundreds of little inlets and bold headlands. Detached from the cliff we could see great pillarlike rocks standing on end, streaked with snow white quartz and a dull, furtive red. This valley looked for all the world as if compassed by some rugged coast line. It was indeed an old sea cliff, against whose terraced heights old ocean had thundered through the long ages, piercing its sandy base with innumerable gullies and caves and leaving behind a wave worn rugged mountain side. And down this picturesque valley, dotted with giant fig trees, eucalypti and Moreton bay ash, ran a lovely, still succession of lagoonlike water holes, fringed by many beautiful specimens of the palm and marking the course of the creek. It was the squatter's promised land.

Nora produced her violin and accompanied Jack.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

River traffic is likely to be seriously interfered with this season because the usual reserve supply of water held in the upper lake regions has been allowed to flow out. This has been made necessary because of the rotting out of the three principal dams. A long dry season would hamper upper river navigation considerably, and it is possible that it would have to be entirely suspended.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The ATLANTIC MONTHLY

No American agency of public information and intellectual guidance has done higher service in this most momentous period of national transition and opening of a new world epoch than THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY. In its point of view and treatment of events of the first national importance, it has stepped into the vacant place of a political review of clear insight, high purpose, wide knowledge, and bold conviction. It is doing for America some part of the work the serious political reviews always have done for Britain, and which it is the often baffled aim of the "Deux Mondes" to do for France. The time has now come for wide public attention to the illuminating discussion of which it is the medium.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser, Nov. 29, 1898.

The announcements for 1899 are of a variety, interest, and value greater than ever before. Upon receipt of ten cents a sample copy of THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY will be sent, together with an illustrated prospectus for the coming year.

Subscriptions received direct or through any established subscription agency.

35 Cents a Copy $4.00 a Year

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.

4 Park Street, Boston

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

MILES IS CENSURED

MUCH CRITICISM OF THE GENERAL BY BEEF BOARD OF INQUIRY.

Erred in Failing to Notify the Secretary of War That the Food Was Unfit - No Chemicals Were Used—Allegations to That Effect Held Not Established by the Testimony Given—General Eagan Reproved for Too Extensive Buying of Untried Rations.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—By direction of the president, who approves the findings, Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn has made public the report and findings of the military court appointed to investigate the charges made by Major General Miles, commanding the army, that the beef supplied to the army during the war with Spain was unfit for the use of the troops. The most important features of the report are:

The findings that the general's allegations that the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals were not established; that his allegations concerning the canned fresh or canned roast beef were sustained as to its unsuitability for food as used on the transports and as a long continued field ration; censure of General Miles for "error" in failure to promptly notify the secretary of war when he first formed the opinion that the food was unfit; censure of the commissary general (then General Eagan) for the too extensive purchases of the canned beef as an untried ration.

Adverse to Further Proceedings.

That the allegations of General Miles that the refrigerated beef was supplied to the army was of the same quality as that supplied to the troops generally, and the recommendation is that no further proceedings be taken in the premises.

The conclusion of the court, adverse to further proceedings based upon the charges, is as follows:

"It has been developed in the course of the inquiry, as recited in this report that in some instances individuals failed to perform their full duty or to observe the proprieties which dignify a high military command, but the court is of the opinion that the mere statement in the official report of the facts developed meets the ends of discipline and that the interests of the service will be best subserved if further proceedings be not taken."

There is more or less criticism of General Miles in various parts of the report. Probably the most direct instance is the following:

General Miles' Action Unjustifiable.

"The court finds that against none of the officers commanding corps, divisions, brigades and regiments and their staff officers should a charge of guilt be brought.

"The court also finds that the major general commanding the army had no sufficient justification for alleging that the refrigerated beef was unwholesome or was unfit for issue to troops. It also finds that he committed an error in that having belief or knowledge as claimed that the food was unfit, that it caused sickness and distress, that some of it was supplied under the pretense of experiment, that other beef was embalmed, he did not immediately report such knowledge or belief to the secretary of war to the end that a proper remedy might be promptly applied."

The censure of Colonel Mann, inspector general on General Miles' staff, is based upon his failure to call attention to charges concerning the beef at Chickamauga.

Beef on the Hoof Impracticable.

The report declares that it would have been impracticable to land beef cattle on the hoof in Cuba, the remarks of the court on this point being as follows:

"The commanding general of the expedition characterized as 'absurd' such a proposition, and many of his commanding officers, whose opinions are given in the testimony, coincided with him in the impracticability or inexpediency of such a project. The court concurs in the opinion."

Summing up the reports of the investigations of the chemists employed by the court, the court says:

"The contents of all the cases, which consisted of boiled rather than roast beef, were found to be perfectly sweet with an odor of cooked meat. The beef in nearly all the cans appeared to have been softened by exposure to heat, but apparently without injurious effect as to its quality; apart from this the meat contents were found to be in a good state of preservation in every case. No trace of preservative acids were found in any of the cans."

HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

General Miles Silent as to His Intentions in the Matter.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Major General Miles, when asked whether he had any comment to make upon the report of the court of inquiry said: "I do not read it, but 'I have nothing to say upon the report, the decision reached, the manner of taking testimony or the conclusions.'

"Does that mean to say, that as far as you are concerned you will let the matter rest where the law?" asked the reporter.

"I have nothing to say."

STREET CAR DEAL OFF.

Failure of Negotiations to Purchase the Detroit Plant.

DETROIT, Mich., May 10.—Negotiations between the Detroit street railway commissioner and Tom L. Johnson for the purchase of the street railways of Detroit by the city have been declared off. The commissioners had submitted an ultimatum as to price and terms. Mr. Johnson's reply thereto was so unsatisfactory, from the commissioners' standpoint, that they will report to the common council a failure to reach an agreement with the railway representatives.

EXTRA SESSION PERHAPS.

Congress May Be Called Together Early in the Fall.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—There is a growing belief among prominent members of congress that the president will call congress to meet in extraordinary session this fall, probably in October. The questions which will confront the next congress for settlement, including as they do everything growing out of our cessations acquired as a result of the war with Spain and the general legislation including that relating to currency reform, the Nicaragua canal, and the merchant marine are of such importance that the president is said to regard it as necessary that congress should meet earlier than the session in December in order to get the work under way. The retirement of Speaker Reed will naturally entail considerable delay in committees in the house as it is customary to allow a new speaker four or five weeks to make up his committees and this furnishes an additional reason why congress should be convened before December. Of the several senators and members of congress who are going abroad this summer, the president has particularly inquired as to the length of their stay and has hinted that it was advisable that they should be back in the early fall, as necessity for an extra session might arise.

THE TRANSVAAL TROUBLE.

Chamberlain Makes a Plain Demand of President Kruger—Kruger's Reply.

LONDON, May 8.—The Outlook publishes a special dispatch from its Cape Town correspondent, in which it is stated that the British secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, has dispatched a firmly worded demand upon the Transvaal republic that it must observe its obligations to the queen, as the paramount power, by securing peace and order within the republic. This demand, the dispatch says, is supplementary to the demand for the cancellation of the dynamite concession and is taken to mean that the British government deems that the time has come to invite President Kruger to observe in the letter as well as the spirit of the London convention. It is not stated how far the demand takes the form of an ultimatum, or if a time is fixed within which the redress of the grievances of the outlander shall be made.

President Kruger's Reply.

CAPE TOWN, May 8.—The reply of President Kruger of the Transvaal republic to the demand from the British secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, for the cancellation of the dynamite concession is published here. President Kruger contends that the concession is bona fide and constitutes no breach of the London convention. The Transvaal, President Kruger insists, is entitled to its opinion as to what is for the best interests of the republic.

The amendment of the concession asked by the British government, the president adds, would be a breach of faith with regard to other parties.

MAJOR DIGGLES WOUNDED.

Was Leading a Reconnoitering Party of Minnesotans and Oregonians.

MANILA, May 10.—6:35 p. m.—A reconnoitering party from Major General Lawton's command and which consisted of two companies of the Minnesota regiment and two companies of the Oregon regiment, under command of Major Diggles of the Minnesota regiment, advanced to a point near San Miguel, which is about 12 miles north of Baliuag. There the Americans were met with a volley from a force of rebels behind a trench. Major Diggles was wounded in the head, and a private soldier was also wounded. Major Diggles and the private, together with 10 Filipino patients, were brought by special train to Manila. The Don Jose, the last of the missing steamers under the American flag which were detained by the insurgents since the beginning of the war, was found by the gunboat Manila at Batangas and has arrived here.

The next engagement of importance will probably be at Arayat, where the Filipinos are massing in great force. The forces under Generals Lawton and MacArthur will likely be consolidated before there is an attack on Arayat. It is expected that this will be the decisive and perhaps the deciding engagement of the campaign.

MATERIAL PROGRESS MADE

Big Combination of Iron and Steel Industries Nearing Completion.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The Tribune says: Representatives of the two big corporations, which rumor has associated with the proposed $200,000,000 combination of iron and steel industries, declare material progress has been made. The plan already exploited to a considerable degree is to absorb mines, mills, railroads and factories. The two representatives in question said the following incorporations, giving the capital stock of each, were to be included: The Carnegie companies $250,000,000, Federal Steel company $100,000,000, American Steel and Wire company $90,000,000, National Steel company $50,000,000, American Tin Plate company $50,000,000, Republic Steel company $50,000,000, American Steel Hoop company $30,000,000.

ADULTERATION OF FOOD.

Testimony Showing That Butchers Treat Meat With Chemicals.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The senatorial pure food investigating committee heard some startling testimony during the day in regard to the adulteration of food products, which may prolong its session considerably. Professor A. S. Mitchell, chief chemist of the Wisconsin dairy and food commission, was the principal witness and told of the practice among butchers of treating meat with chemical preservatives.

Dangerous preservatives, he also says, are freely used to keep milk and butter fresh.

CAPTURE BACOLOR

AMERICANS PREPARING TO ATTACK ANOTHER STRONGHOLD.

Rebel Force There Numbers Six Thousand, Well Armed and Intrenched. Our Troops Are Exhausted—Show the Effects of Rapid Advance Under Most Trying Circumstances—Companies Average but Fifty Men, All Having a Worn Appearance.

MANILA, May 8.—To clear the Filipinos out of Bacolor, about ten miles south of San Fernando, will be the next task of the Americans. The rebel general, Macabo, has a force of 6,000 men there, well armed and possessed of plenty of ammunition. His troops have never met American soldiers and they think, according to reports carried to San Fernando, that they "can lick the whole lot." Bacolor is well intrenched and thousands of natives are working like beavers digging trenches and carrying the dirt in baskets. The enemy uses his riflemen for fighting only, but compels the bolomen and Chinese and even the women to labor incessantly.

In the vicinity of Laguna de Bay the rebels are extremely active, but the lines of General Ovenshine and Colonel Wholly, who're commanding General King's brigade, have been materially strengthened and there is no danger in that direction.

It is rumored that Malini, president of the cabinet and minister of foreign affairs in the so-called Filipino government, who is a radical, is to be succeeded by Pateno, the framer of the Spanish treaty of 1896. This change is regarded as significant at the present juncture.

The entrance of the Americans into San Fernando was virtually unopposed. The Filipinos, who expected the advance to approach from the sea, had that side of the town strongly guarded, but there was only one line of trenches beyond San Tomas. Two battalions of the Fifty-first Iowa regiment, which swam the river north of the city, were smartly peppered while in the water, but the rebels disappeared as soon as the Americans reached the shore. In the meantime the hospital squad had walked across the bridge and the party supposing the Americans were there. They encountered no natives.

The Soldiers Enjoying Life.

The army is greatly enjoying life at San Fernando, which is the most picturesque and wealthy town the Americans have entered since the occupation of Manila. It is a large built of stone on the river close at hand and high hills almost surround it. Many sugar factories indicate a thriving industry to their respect and there are numerous fine residences. General MacArthur's permanent headquarters is established in the best house in town, which is richly decorated with frescoes and carved woods.

The troops are encamped around in the suburbs and are having fine times. They may be quartered there during the wet season. After Bacolor has been cleared water communication with Manila may be established.

The American troops are much exhausted by the campaign. The Iowa troops, which are comparatively fresh, immediately on the division average less that 50 men to a company and all have a weather-worn appearance.

UP SAN FERNANDO RIVER.

An Expedition That Failed to Connect With General MacArthur.

MANILA, May 9.—2:15 p. m.—The army's gunboats Laguna de Bay and Cavadonga, under command of Captain Grant, which started up the San Fernando river for Dragua on Sunday, was presumed to establish there a base of supplies for the troops engaged in the northern campaign, have returned. Major General MacArthur failed to connect with the expedition. The gunboats found rebels entrenched at Guagmoan and Gungua, on the water fronts of the towns. The vessels engaged in the works, shelling the occupants and driving them out. Landing parties from the boats entered both towns, capturing at Sonmoan a Spanish captain in uniform who was ostensibly a prisoner in the hands of the rebels and also a captive officer. Arriving at Gragua, the town and a small gunboat were found to be burning, and the natives were evacuating the place in consequence of the bombardment.

At Sonmoan, the landing party captured a number of Filipino flags and a quantity of arms, chiefly bolos and bows and arrows, besides a lot of band instruments which the men played as they marched back to the boats.

Captain Grant's expedition will probably return up the San Fernando river after having been reinforced and Grant has purchased light draft Spanish steamers.

END NOT FAR OFF.

Belief Again Expressed That the Philippine Affair Is Nearly Concluded.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the war in the Philippines is nearing a close is now openly predicted in and out of government circles. The fact that the contents of a cablegram from General Otis were given to the public yesterday was freely commented upon, and it is believed that the portions of the message suppressed relate to the probability of an early surrender of Aguinaldo's forces to the Americans. To strengthen this belief came the announcement of the selection of Rear Admiral Watson to succeed Admiral Dewey in command of the Asiatic squadron, and the issuing of orders to Admiral Watson to prepare to proceed to Manila at an early date. The Filipinos are making but a poor show of resistance now, and, it is believed, cannot much longer avoid the inevitable.

Mrs. W. C. Whitney Dead.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Mrs. William C. Whitney, wife of the former secretary of the navy, died at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, May 10.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 2 Northern, 68¼c; No. 3, 65¾c. To Arrive—No. 1 hard, 76c; No. 1 Northern, 72¾c; May, 72¾c; July, 73c.

Minneapolis Wheat.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 10.

WHEAT—In Store—No. 1 Northern, May, 72¾c; July, 71¾c; September, 69c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 72¾c; No. 1 Northern, 71¾c; No. 2 Northern, 69¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 10.

HOGS—Market 5@10c lower. Range of prices, $3.55@3.65.

CATTLE—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for beeves; $3.00@4.00 for cows, bulls and mixed; $3.10@4.50 for stockers and feeders; $3.75@3.85 for calves and yearlings.

Receipts: Hogs, 1,000; cattle, 1,400.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 10.

HOGS—Market 5@10c lower. Range of prices, $3.55@3.65.

CATTLE—Market for butcher cattle strong; stockers and feeders steady; common weaker.

Sales ranged at $4.00@4.75 for stockers; $3.00@5.00 for heifers; $4.00@4.70 for cows; $3.00@4.00 for oxen; $3.00@3.90 for calves; $3.75@3.40 for bulls.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.00@5.25 for sheep; $5.65@5.75 for mixed lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 28,000; cattle, 10,000; sheep, 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 10.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 71¾c; July, 72¾@73¼c; September, 71¾c.

CORN—May, 32¾c; July, 33½c; September, 33½c.

OATS—May, 23½c; July, 23¾@23½c; September, 20¾c.

PORK—May, $8.35; July, $8.50; September, $8.72.

POULTRY—Dressed, turkeys, 11@12c; chickens, 10@10c.

BUTTER—Creameries, 12@16½c; dairies, 12@16c.

EGGS—Fresh, 11½c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....60c
No. 1 northern.....58c
No. 2 northern.....56c

Stock Raisers' Convention.

The JOURNAL has received a letter from Mayor Johnson of Fargo calling attention to the project of holding an Inter State Stock Raisers' Convention in Fargo next the middle of July. It is expected that the Hon. James Wilson, secretary of the department of agriculture, will be present.

HOSTILE TO OUR MEAT.

Reichstag Committee Makes a Report Too Strong to Be Sanctioned.

BERLIN, May 9.—It is authoritatively stated that the committee of the reichstag to which was referred the meat inspection bill which was substantially agreed upon between the imperial cabinet and the United States ambassador at Berlin, Mr. Andrew D. White, has reported against the measure, and in consequence it is no hostile to American interests that the government will probably refuse to sanction it.

The most unfortunate circumstance as regards American interests in the matter of the meat inspection bill was the fact that the reports of the official declarations in the United States that embalmed and poisonous meats had been supplied to the soldiers in Cuba. Representatives of the German land owning interest londly declared that if the American meat poisonous meats to their own soldiers they would certainly send it to the Germans.

A bad result is that the bill as reported back provides for examination and inspection of American meats impossible to enforce without utterly destroying American trade with Germany.

Mr. Andrew D. White, has reported against the measure, and in consequence it is no hostile to American interests that the government will probably refuse to sanction it.

The most unfortunate circumstance as regards American interests in the matter of the meat inspection bill was the fact that the reports of the official declarations in the United States that embalmed and poisonous meats had been supplied to the soldiers in Cuba. Representatives of the German land owning interest londly declared that if the American meat poisonous meats to their own soldiers they would certainly send it to the Germans.

A bad result is that the bill as reported back provides for examination and inspection of American meats impossible to enforce without utterly destroying American trade with Germany.

Deere Model B Disk Harrows

Has two levers for adjustment and spring, spring pressure on the Gangs, thus admitting of the greatest flexibility, and allowing them to work on stony or rough and uneven ground independently, and conforming to the ground regardless of ridges. We have them in all sizes and in 16 or 20 inch discs.

You should see our fine line of buggies. It will arrive in a few days.

MERIT ALWAYS WINS.

LARSEN, CARPENTER & CO., LARSEN & CARPENTER,
Fosston or McIntosn. Crookston.

The Riverside Dairy

Offers to the people of Crookston the purest milk, the richest cream, and the best butter to be had in all Minnesota at the lowest prices compatible with conservative business management. Our milk routes lies right past your door, delivering twice each day. Call on our driver, or through telephone No. 12 for anything in this line. Don't eat your bread without butter so long as you can get Riverside at present prices.

E. D. CHILDS CO., Crookston.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

GEORGE Q. EDDINE, President. W. E. ANGLIM, Vice-President
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. ROMERSON, Asst. Cashier.

Capital Stock $75,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $25,000

Money to Loan on Farms. Interest paid on Time Deposits.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
George B. Erskine, A. A. Miller, Wm. Angus, H. Robinson, E. M. Walsh, L. Fontaine J. P. Foote, W. H. Crosby, J. W. Wheeler.

Prompt and Intelligent Attention given to all the Interests of our Customers.

SCANDIA-AMRERICAN BANK,

OF CROOKSTON, MINN.

Capital Stock $50,000. Surplus and Undivided Profits $13,000.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

INTEREST PAID ON TIME DEPOSITS.

C. HENDRICKSON.....PRESIDENT. H. STEENERSON.....VICE-PRESIDENT.
N. S. GERVAIS.....1st VICE-PRESIDENT. L. ELLINGTON.....CASHIER
A. P. HANSON, Asst. Cashier.

Read This The Best Yet

The Old Reliable

No Other Mutual Company can Duplicate this Offer.

HAIL AND YCLONE MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.,

OF AUSTIN, MINN.

Pays Cash for all Losses at Time of Adjustment. Rates LOW. Adjustments Prompt and Liberal.

TENTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

ASSETS

Certificates of Deposit	$18,000.00
Loans	26,131.60
Cash in National Banks	31,379.27
Accounts Receivable	727.92
Assessments on 1898 notes not yet received	7,228.08
Gross Assets	$83,466.87
	$83,466.87

LIABILITIES

Unpaid Losses	None
Accounts Payable	$ 678.64
Total Liabilities	$ 678.64
	678.64
Net Assets	$82,788.23

REFERENCES:—Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis; Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa; Scandia American Bank, Crookston, Minn.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL ON

GEO. C. WILD,
ODD FELLOWS' BLOCK. CROOKSTON, MINN.

OR A. P. TOUPIN, RED LAKE FALLS.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XXIII. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY MAY 18, 1899 NO 6

AN Historical Society ... R

Held at Hamline Sept. 4 to 9 Inclusive —Greatly Benefits all Avenues of Industrial Life.

PREMIUMS ARE VERY LIBERAL

County Exhibits a Specialty—Amusement Program Particularly Attractive.

The JOURNAL publishes herewith the announcement of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society with reference to the coming annual state Fair.

The Board of Managers of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society take pleasure in announcing that the great annual State Fair and Exposition will occur upon the grounds of the Society at Hamline, midway between the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, beginning on Monday, Sept. 4, and closing on Saturday, Sept. 9, 1899, thus embracing one full week and affording ample opportunity for exhibitors to display and visitors to inspect the various products.

UTILITY.

The great practical value of these annual exhibitions is beyond question. As object lessons upon the great and varied resources of the state, they are of inestimable value, not only to our own people, but to the thousands of visitors who come from other states to study the material wealth and progress of the commonwealth. Well managed fairs reach and benefit all avenues of industrial life. Their influence is felt in all directions. There is not a home, a farm, a factory or commercial house but what is benefited, directly or indirectly, and the better the Fair the more far-reaching are the beneficial results.]

GROUNDS, BUILDINGS AND TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES.

The grounds of the Society embracing 200 acres, are remarkably well adapted to the purpose of a great exposition, and in equipment, arrangement and convenience of access have no superior in the United States. The buildings are ample in size and of convenient arrangement. Ample, quick, and comfortable transportation facilities, to and from both of the Twin Cities, will be provided for all visitors. Exhibitors are reminded that each railroad reaching either of the Twin Cities has direct connection with the Minnesota Transfer from which point cars are switched to the fair grounds without loss of time. An experienced and careful master of transportation will be in attendance at all hours, and all exhibits can be re-loaded and re-shipped immediately upon the closing of the fair. There are commodious and convenient barns and an ample supply of pure water for all live stock on exhibition. The accommodations for speed and track horses are unsurpassed for safety and convenience, and are so pronounced by every horseman who has had the pleasure of visiting them. There are two race tracks; a mile track and a half-mile track. Both are of regulation pattern and in perfect condition. The mile track was rebuilt and re-surfaced two years ago: the half-mile track is new, having been finished this season.

LIBERAL PREMIUMS—COMPREHENSIVE EXHIBITS.

The premium list has been most liberally revised. Special attention will be given to the live stock exhibits. An effort will be made to secure the best possible types of all the breeds of each class of the domestic animals —horses, cattle, swine and poultry. It will be worth much to the farmers of the state to come to the fair and study these animals; see them judged by expert judges, and then learn their characteristics and qualities. Such object lessons have rare educational value and are in line with the good work being done by the farmer's institute corps and by the school of agriculture. There are increased premiums in the dairy department; the woman's department, and in both the agricultural and horticultural department. The main building will be made attractive with a profusion of miscellaneous exhibits and the machinery, honey forestry and mineral exhibits will each be given the careful attention merited by those important industries.

COUNTY EXHIBITS.

Special attention is called to the amounts $1,200 by the Society and $300 by the Commercial Club of St. Paul) offered for county exhibits. These exhibits give prominence to the products of the different localities. By this means each county can present to visitors the resources and attractions belonging to it in a manner imposing and impressive.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

A farmers' institute will be held each day in Institute Hall, under the management of Supt. O. C. Gregg, assisted by the best talent obtainable. Object lessons will be given by expert judges of live stock, in addition to the practical discussions of agricultural problems. The "tented village" so popular in other years, will be continued.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE AND EXPERIMENT STATION.

An essay way is provided for those in attendance to visit the University Experiment farm adjoining the fair grounds on the west. A gateman at the University Farm entrance will arrange for those who wish to re-enter the fair grounds after a visit of one or two hours. Part of a day can be most profitably spent inspecting the school of agriculture, the experiment station, the dairy school, and the other divisions of the work of the agricultural department of the state university. Many experiments of great practical value are in operation and many facts are being practically demonstrated. Parents and their sons and daughters interested in attending this most practical of our state institutions should not fail to inspect it. Officials will be ready to explain to state fair visitors all of its many valuable features.

FEDERATION OF WOMANS' CLUBS.

The State Federation of Womans' Clubs will maintain headquarters upon the grounds during the Fair, which will be in charge of committees appointed by the Federation. The rooms will be kept open for the use of women, whether members or not, and all are cordially invited to make the place headquarters while visiting the State Fair. Women from different parts of the great northwest can make appointments to meet each other here, where they will find a comfortable resting place. The management expects to arrange special exercises daily during the week at which topics of general interest will be introduced. All who are interested in any subject for the advancement of women's work are invited to attend and present same.

CONTRIBUTED PURSES.

By reference to the race program it will be seen that the business men of St. Paul have contributed a purse of $5,000 for a pacing race, and the business men of Minneapolis a like amount for a trotting race. These two generous contributions make it possible for the Board to announce by far the best programme ever witnessed at a western State Fair.

DAY AND NIGHT.

The grounds will be open continuously from Monday morning until Saturday night and there will be evening as well as day programmes. Buildings and grounds will be brilliantly illuminated exhibition features will be enlarged and the amusement programme strengthened. With that general and enthusiastic co-operation of the press and the people of the State Fair, the week of Sept. 4, 1899 will be made memorable in many ways.

BEMIDJI TOURNAMENT.

Crookston Band and Firemen's Running Team to Participate.

The Firemen's tournament to be held at Bemidji next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday promises to be a big event. The programme sent out include almost everything imaginable in the line of sports, both on land and water. No small part will be taken by the Crookston band and Firemen's running team. One fare for round trip on railroad, good for a week. Quite a number from Crookston will attend.

REBEKAHS WILL ENTERTAIN.

A Public Reading of Timothy's Quest—Music and Refreshments.

The Rebekah lodge, which is an auxiliary society of the Odd Fellows, is planning a unique and what promises to be a very successful and interesting entertainment which will be given at the lodge rooms on Friday evening, May 26. A special musical program is being arranged, and refreshments such as only the Rebekah ladies can prepare will be served. The feature, however, of the evening will be the reading of Timothy's Quest, one Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin's charming stories. A special arrangement of the text will be made and the different parts assigned to different readers. As one young lady said, the Rebekahs will furnish everything that is nice, interesting, entertaining and profitable.

PHILIPPINE SITUATION

Dr. Lyman Abbott of New York Writes to a Mass Meeting in Chicago.

MUST FULFILL OBLIGATIONS

Some Government Is Necessary—There Is no Intention to Subjugate Filipinos.

The following is one of the clearest and most logical statements with reference to the Philippine question that the JOURNAL has yet come across. It is from the pen of Dr. Lyman Abbott, of New York, editor of the New York Outlook, and was written to the Non-Partisan Mass Meeting that was held in Chicago some ten days ago to voice approval of the administration's policy in the Philippines.

I venture to submit the following propositions, which seem to me undisputable, and which, so far as I know, have never been seriously disputed by an anti-expansionist.

First—When Admiral Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Manilla, the only government in the Philippine archipelago, real or pretended, de jure or de facto, was the Spanish government.

Second—By the destruction of the Spanish fleet the power of that government to protect persons and property in the archipelago was destroyed.

Third—It is a well settled principle of international law, and a self-evident proposition of good morals as well, that when any nation destroys the power of an existing government, it is bound to furnish a government in its place—that is, to furnish protection to persons and property until and unless some other government competent to furnish such protection is organized.

Fourth—The United States could not have evaded this duty with honor, by sailing away from the harbor of Manilla after destroying the Spanish fleet, as the anti-expansionists then proposed; nor can it now evade this duty with honor by sailing away from Manilla in the faith that the Aguinaldo or Malolos government has the will and the ability to furnish protection to persons and property, for Fifth—There is no adequate evidence that it has the will, the proclamation officially certified to by General Otis calling for the extermination of all foreigners, without apprisement or compassion, does not indicate the existence of such a will. There is no indication that it has the power. It is composed of the Tagals, who are only a minority of the inhabitants of the island of Luzon, and a still smaller minority of the inhabitants of the archipelago. The government of the Tagals in the Philippines would not be self-government: it would be an oligarchy.

For these reasons it appears clear to me that the United States cannot escape the responsibilities of sovereignty in the Philippine archipelago until under its fostering care a government is recognized both able and willing to furnish that protection to the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for which governments are organized among men.

Let me add that it is my conviction, which events from day to day have only confirmed, that it is the purpose of the present administration to discharge these responsibilities and to fulfill the obligations which they involve. Nor do I see any reason to doubt the official declarations constantly repeated by the administration —I quote now from Secretary Long's address in Boston, May 1—disavowing "any purpose anywhere to subjugate or reduce these islands to vassalage or make these people slaves, or deprive them of any rights which are enjoyed by our own territories at home." Yours respectfully,

—Lyman Abbott.

Two More Residences.

Sampson's addition, like other parts of the city, is booming this spring. Mention has already been made in the JOURNAL of several new houses that are being erected over there and in addition to these it has been noted that S. Lusian is remodeling his residence on Johnson street and building an addition thereto 16x20 with 14 foot posts. On the opposite side of the street to Mr. Lusian, C. E. Lindberg is putting up a fine large private residence, the dimensions of which are 20x28 with 18 foot posts. Gus Johnson, the contractor, expects to have the house completed early in June.

FARMERS OWN STEAMER.

They Will Compete With J. J. Hill in Handling Grain on Red River.

There is hot competition in sight for the owners of steamers on the Red River of the North with headquarters in Grand Forks. For many years the Great Northern railway was the only company having a steamer on the river. The company constructed many flat houses up and down the river, and for years commanded the transportation of thousands of bushels of wheat, which the Northern Pacific were absolutely unable to lay a finger on. During the year 1882, Dr. Fawcett of Grand Forks, built a small steamer, which, after completion, was secured by the Northern Pacific people for the purpose of competing with the Great Northern. The steamer was afterwards sold, and the second time being bought by the present owners.

It has just been learned that the farmers, especially the Norwegians, both up and down the river, are very bitter against J. J. Hill, and during the past two months have held several mass meetings, at which the matter of securing some other means for the transportation of their grain was discussed. They finally agreed to put in $10 a piece. Anderson and Listed were to build the steamer, and they further agreed that this firm alone should be allowed to haul their grain. It is said that they can be capable of handling, and no one will be injured by the new state of affairs. There is good profit in the hauling of grain on the river, and the new enterprise will doubtless prove a very successful one.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Celebrates the Tenth Anniversary of its Founding.

The Epworth League, which is the young people's society of the Methodist church, held an anniversary service at the church last Sunday evening, it being just ten years on that day since the league was established. The church was very tastily decorated with white and red, the former the emblem of purity, the latter emblematic of the Christ life. In the choir loft there was a bank of beautiful flowers. Several hymns were sung by the choral club and quartets music was rendered by Mr. Carpenter, Mrs. Carey, Mrs. Wheeler and Mr. Wheeler. Miss Gilpatrick gave an interesting sketch of the history of the organization. Before the Epworth League was formed various of the young people's societies within the church. Now there is one organization with 10,500 chapters and a membership of about a million and a half. Miss Dewart read a paper on the "Spiritual Aim of the League" and Mr. Hanson gave a detailed account of the work done by the different departments, namely the spiritual, literary, social, finance, correspondence and mercy.

Mr. J. W. Wheeler gave an address on the League motto, "Look Up and Lift Up." The emblem of the society is a Maltese cross and on this is inscribed the motto.

Log Rolling at Halstad.

The Modern Woodmen, of this Northwestern part of the state will have an outing at Halstad on May 22. The river at this place will afford an excellent opportunity for log rolling and there is a beautiful spot near the river bank just suited for a large picnic.

Editor C. K. Semling, of the Halstad Reporter, was out last week in the towns along the Duluth line stirring up his brother Woodmen with a view to having all these towns represented at the coming meeting in Halstad.

Sunday Services.

Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Fisher, pastor of the Congregational church, will be away from the city attending the deelicatory services of the church at Beltrami. Accordingly the morning and evening preaching services will be omitted, but the Sunday school and both Endeavor services will be held as usual.

On the following Sunday morning, May 21, Mr. Fisher will give a Memorial Day address, and in the evening will preach on the subject, "What a Mighty Saviour!"

CONFIRMATION CLASS

At Norwegian Synod Church Last Sunday Fifteen Were Confirmed.

THEY ARE NOT SCHOOL LANDS.

Secretary Hitchcock Decides Question of Sections 16 and 36 in Favor of Indians.

The special services held at the Norwegian Synod church last Sunday are evidence of the great progress that is being made by this society. It was confirmation Sunday and Rev. O. Amdahlerd confirmed a class of fifteen, the largest that this church has ever had. The class was composed of these boys and girls who are between the ages of fourteen and the second time being bought by the present owners.

It has just been learned that the farmers, especially the Norwegians, both up and down the river, are very bitter against J. J. Hill, and during the past two months have held several mass meetings, at which the matter of securing some other means for the transportation of their grain was discussed. They finally agreed to put in $10 a piece. Anderson and Listed were to build the steamer, and they further agreed that this firm alone should be allowed to haul their grain. It is said that they can be capable of handling, and no one will be injured by the new state of affairs. There is good profit in the hauling of grain on the river, and the new enterprise will doubtless prove a very successful one.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Celebrates the Tenth Anniversary of its Founding.

The Epworth League, which is the young people's society of the Methodist church, held an anniversary service at the church last Sunday evening, it being just ten years on that day since the league was established. The church was very tastily decorated with white and red, the former the emblem of purity, the latter emblematic of the Christ life. In the choir loft there was a bank of beautiful flowers. Several hymns were sung by the choral club and quartets music was rendered by Mr. Carpenter, Mrs. Carey, Mrs. Wheeler and Mr. Wheeler. Miss Gilpatrick gave an interesting sketch of the history of the organization. Before the Epworth League was formed various of the young people's societies within the church. Now there is one organization with 10,500 chapters and a membership of about a million and a half. Miss Dewart read a paper on the "Spiritual Aim of the League" and Mr. Hanson gave a detailed account of the work done by the different departments, namely the spiritual, literary, social, finance, correspondence and mercy.

Mr. J. W. Wheeler gave an address on the League motto, "Look Up and Lift Up." The emblem of the society is a Maltese cross and on this is inscribed the motto.

Log Rolling at Halstad.

The Modern Woodmen, of this Northwestern part of the state will have an outing at Halstad on May 22. The river at this place will afford an excellent opportunity for log rolling and there is a beautiful spot near the river bank just suited for a large picnic.

Editor C. K. Semling, of the Halstad Reporter, was out last week in the towns along the Duluth line stirring up his brother Woodmen with a view to having all these towns represented at the coming meeting in Halstad.

Sunday Services.

Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Fisher, pastor of the Congregational church, will be away from the city attending the deelicatory services of the church at Beltrami. Accordingly the morning and evening preaching services will be omitted, but the Sunday school and both Endeavor services will be held as usual.

On the following Sunday morning, May 21, Mr. Fisher will give a Memorial Day address, and in the evening will preach on the subject, "What a Mighty Saviour!"

A SWELL AFFAIR.

The Ada Eastern Star Entertain a Crookston Party Right Royally.

The party of Crookstonites, composed of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brisley, Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rosenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Petersen, Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. W. S. Lyman and Mr. John Grimm, who went to Ada last Tuesday night to receive the Eastern Star degree, speak in words of the highest praise of their hosts. They were treated in a royal manner, nothing being omitted that could in any possible way add to their pleasure and enjoyment.

They left Crookston on the Great Northern train at 9 o'clock in the evening arriving at Ada one hour later. They were escorted at once to the lodge rooms where the work in giving them the Eastern Star degree was very cleverly done. Not long past midnight found them at the new palatial hotel over the doctors of which Lundlord Will Patterson and his wife preside. The long tables in the dining room were handsomely decorated with roses and carnations and four candelabra with eight lights a piece brilliantly lighted the apartment. The feast that was spread would have done credit to Delmonico's famous Cafe in New York. Course after course of most delicious viands was served. After the banquet the guests whiled away the hours till train time in playing whist. The members of the Ada Eastern Star and the hotel host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, are voted by the Crookston party as entertainers of the true blue.

RIVERSIDE PARK.

Here Wm. Munch Will Build a Cycle Path and a Handsome Residence.

One of the beauty spots of the city is Riverside Park, the property of Wm. Munch. Here where nature puts on her loveliest robes, in the midst of a profusion of green shrubbery and lofty, white standing thick foliaged trees, Mr. Munch will build one of the most handsome residences of the city.—$2+42, seventeen with a large basement. A bee supply house is now in course of erection. But the feature which will be particularly pleasing to the beauties of the city is the cycle path which it is proposed to construct around the outer edge of the park. This path will follow the ridge which runs around the entire park and is undoubtedly the remnant of an Indian trail. In three laps of the circle one will cover a mile. It is not as yet decided out of what material the cycle path will be constructed, but the park board is open to conviction. In the summer this will be the favorite riding ground for lovers of wheeling as the path will be well shaded.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS

Inspect Railway Conditions Along Halsted Line—Daily Service Probably the Result.

The incoming train from Moorhead last night brought to their city among other passengers, P. M. Ringdal, judge Ira B. Mills and General J. H. Becker, the members of the state railroad and warehouse commission. These men have made a personal examination of the railway conditions in the towns along the Halsted line. Many complaints were lodged with these commissioners to the effect that the accommodations and service of the railway are entirely inadequate. At this writing the commissioners cannot be consulted with and hence in regard to the matter and hence no decision has been arrived at, but it seems almost certain that they will order new stations to be built in the near future at Perley, Shelby and Nelleville, and a daily train to be run between Crookston and Moorhead. The members of the commission left this morning for Duluth, where they will inspect the grain elevators and the way wheat is handled at this point.

Farmers' Convention.

Colonel Liggett, Dean of the State Agricultural School at St. Anthony Park, while in the city last week not only visited and inspected the Crookston Experiment Farm but several of the farms near theeity which are owned by private persons. He expressed himself as well pleased with what the farmers are doing. He himself together with the whole farmers institute force of the state will be here to the farmers convention in June, which convention he says will be at least as enthusiastic and profitable as the one recently held at Fargo.

CROOKSTON COLLEGE.

A Monthly, Devoted to the Interests of Crookston's Institution.

The first issue of the Crookston College, a paper published by Professors Mohn and Sathre in the interests of their business college, has just come from the JOURNAL press room. There are two reasons why every one should read this paper. First, for the subject matter, which Professors Mohn and Sathre have been at great pains to prepare and which will be found interesting and instructive, and second, because of the beauty of the paper from a printers' standpoint. Don't fail to read it, and examine well the workmanship. You will find that it will pay you to attend this college and to give your printing to the JOURNAL.

The Pope has issued a bulletin declaring a universal jubilee in the year nineteen hundred.

AROUND THE COUNTY

Weekly Reports From The Journal's Corps of News Gatherers.

FISHER.

The McDonald brothers of Marsh were in town Tuesday.

Lew Freeman of Fargo called on his Fisher friends last Saturday.

Gunder Krostue has finished seeding nearly 800 acres of wheat.

Mrs. John Ross, who has been sick for some time, is slowly improving.

Miss Addie Marin spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Crookston.

Considerable stock is being picked up here by local and Grand Forks buyers.

The Odd Fellows are making quite extensive additions and repairs to their block.

H. Bain has completed his building contract with John Lave of Keywest and is at home again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Merrill have left for an extended visit throughout Illinois and the far east.

Mrs. H. B. Haney and Mrs. E. A. Sweet attended the District Conference last week in Crookston.

Seth Peterson and Donald Hamilton wheeled to Grand Forks and back Sunday, but report the roads in bad condition.

C. W. Webster, Jr., is smiling on his friends and passing the cigars. All on account of the arrival at his home of a brun new girl.

John Johnson came over from Crookston Tuesday to visit with his family and assist the Woodmen in initiating a few candidates into the mysteries of the order.

John Haggerty of Tyndal was in town Tuesday and reports 400 acres seeded. He also says there will be a considerable amount of wheat ground which cannot be put into wheat this year.

FERTILE.

Farmers are nearly through seeding.

Martin Flom and family moved to Erskine Monday.

M. I. Haugen was out to Wiuger Tuesday to look up a land deal.

The Good Templars are planning for an ice cream social next week.

C. R. Snyder left on Wednesday morning's train for Creighton, N. D.

A foundation is being put beneath the United Lutheran church in Fertile.

W. F. Peterson went to Crookston Wednesday of this week to do business.

W. E. Kelsey of Crookston was doing business on our streets Tuesday.

Nels Dackstad is erecting a new house on Lincoln avenue. It is nearly completed.

The diphtheria cases are about over with here and the schools reopened Monday.

Work in the brick yard has been delayed a good deal owing to the cold, rainy weather.

Mr. Danton of Buffalo, Minn., has been elected principal of schools for this place for next year.

H. L. Gaylord is in St. Paul this week, taking a law examination, in order to be admitted to the bar.

Opheim & Frich are building an addition on to the east side of their store, 12x22. It will be used for a warehouse.

O. Anderson, recently from Kenyon, Minn., who is harness maker for M. I. Haugen, expects his family here in about two weeks.

John Hage left Wednesday morning, May 17, for Grand Forks, N. D., to visit friends and help celebrate Norwegian Independence.

The remains of Martin Markinson of Woodside were brought here for interment Sunday. Hedlied suddenly out at Hannaford, North Dakota, where he had been buying wheat.

Norman Hanson is moving his old house and will soon erect a new one on the old site. The dimensions will be 30x32, with addition 18x18, 20 foot posts. There will be a basement beneath the whole of the house.

Dea. A. and Nels Nelson went to Grand Forks this (Wednesday) morning to attend an operation, to be performed on their sister, Mrs. E. Daly. We hope for her speedy recovery.

W. W. Eagle has recently moved his residence from Lincoln avenue to the south part of town and will build an addition on the north side. He will also have a porch, do some grading and give the house a new coat of paint. He is nicely located.

DUGDALE.

Otto Camp and W. C. Hartin went to Grove Park Sunday on business.

Dr. Loe, of Crookston, was called here Saturday to treat Mrs. John Jackson, who was quite seriously ill.

When Landlord W. C. Hartin, of the Dugdale hotel, went to get a pail of water on Saturday last he found the hotel pump frozen up.

A full-blooded English horse is the latest acquisition of W. C. Hartin who is now ready to trot a mile with anybody in the county.

A stranger of a prophetic turn of mind was here last week and predicted that we would have second inches of snow yet before summer weather set in.

Will Clips, an employee of the Northern Pacific railroad was taken quite ill on Monday and the section foreman was compelled to take him to Tilden, where friends took care of him.

John Ricke, who is one of the greatest wolf hunters in the county, had great luck on his last hunt. He and his wolf hound found a den with nine young wolves and one old wolf, about 35 miles north of this place.

It is rumored that John G. Farrell of Tilden has become weary of his bachelor life and is anxious to take unto himself an helpmeet. She must be a first class cook, an artist in manipulating the keys of an organ and have spent not more than a quarter of a century on this mundane sphere.

Anton Shuland, who has been section boss of the Great Northern railway at this point for four years will take a lay-off for a time and in company with his wife will leave Dugdale for a visit with friends elsewhere. Mrs. Shuland's sister, Anna Nordum, recently died of consumption.

Calvin Hartin was plowing on section 27 last Saturday and as the weeds and grass were very thick, he set fire to them. As the wind was very high the fire leaped over the plowing and swept on to Dugdale. The citizens turned out en masse and put the fire out before it reached the village.

James Carroll turned his calves loose the other day and they ran away and though he chased hard after them all day he was unable to capture them. He finally gave the thing up as a bad job and hired John Ricke to lasso them. John handles the rope with the skill of a Kansas cow boy.

O. H. Camp and wife, and Chas. Oehler and wife are planning to take in the World's Fair at Paris in 1900. From Paris they will go to Germany for a visit. They have engaged Herman Camp, who is well known here, and has had considerable business experience, to take care of their general store at Dugdale while they are away.

Mrs. Anna Workum from Pine county, who came here for her health and has been doctoring with physicians in Crookston and Grand Forks, died a little over a week ago and was buried at Red Lake Falls. The funeral was an unusually large one. The pallbearers were Frank Mathison, Herman Camp, Delia Mathison, Chas Oehler, Sam Mathison and Joseph Magnuson.

Three young men from this vicinity went over to Red Lake Falls the other day to have a good time. They partook quite freely of the spirituous stuff and the consequence being unable to get them to come back with him when he was ready to go, drove off and left them. The consequence was that they were forced to make an all night pedestrian tour across the country.

EUCLID.

Rev. McKenzie drove to Crookston on Tuesday.

Mrs. Dr. Chapin and daughter drove to Fertile on Wednesday.

Dr. Smith came up on a professional call and found his patient, Mrs. John Shultz, slowly improving.

Mrs. P. Stuhr, who has been visiting relatives in Red Lake Falls for the past week, returned today.

E. B. Ballou and daughter Lovene returned from Hutchinson, Minn., where Mr. Ballou was called, owing to the serious illness of his mother.

The city school will close Friday for the usual three months' vacation, and the teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, will return to their home at Bertha, Minn.

The Spring Months.

Are most likely to find your blood impure and lacking in the red corpuscles which enable it to carry nourishment to the nerves and other organs. Therefore you feel weak, tired and listless and are troubled with spring humors. Relief is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla which purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood.

Hood's Pills cure biliousness. Mailed for 25 cents by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Presbyterian General Assembly convenes in Minneapolis today. The total number of commissioners or delegates who will assembly there is about 650. They represent 877,000 communicants divided among more than 7,100 churches and owning property aggregating in value more than $75,000,000.

FARGO FIRE FESTIVAL.

Mayor Johnson was in Crookston in the interests of This Celebration.

Mayor Johnson of Fargo was in the city last Saturday endeavoring to arouse interest here in the Fire Festival which is to be held in Fargo on June 7, 8 and 9. The occasion is the sixth anniversary of the destructive fire which visited Fargo in 1893 and swept into ashes and smoke the best part of the city.

A rate of one fare to Fargo and return has been secured from the railroads and if a large enough number from Crookston signify their intention of going a special train will be run on one of the three days.

Fargo is making big preparations. On the first day will occur the parade of the secret societies and it is expected that this will be a gorgeous affair. Everything in the line of amusements will be furnished.

Alexandria Post-News: Gov. Lind was elected on an anti-railroad platform. During the campaign it was openly charged that he was being helped by generous contributions from the railroads. The money to carry on an expensive campaign came from somewhere and there were abundant indications that that somewhere was the railroads. Everyone was surprised when in his message he handled the railroad and freight question so gingerly. It is therefore significant that the best bill passed by the republican legislature, a bill muss vigorously opposed by the railroads, a bill greatly reducing the expense of litigation as to freight rates and the facilities offered or denied, was vetoed by the governor.

Willmar Tribune: If the scenes enacted during the last night of high licensed saloons in Willmar could be reproduced so that all the voters of Willmar could see and realize what occurred there would be no danger of any liquor licenses being permitted in the future. Every well developed specimen of strong drink in town attempted to satisfy itself and "fight" "skates" and paralyzed forms were numerous. A gentleman met a company of youngsters, apparently not over 17 years of age, on the sidewalk at 10 o'clock at night, brandishing whiskey bottles and blasphemously singing sacred songs. It was a carnival of the demon of strong drink such as it is hoped the village may be spared from in the future.

LATE MARKET REPORT.

Duluth Grain.

DULUTH, May 17.

WHEAT—Cash, No. 1 hard, 74½c; No. 1 Northern, 72½c; No 2 Northern, 69½c; No. 3, 64½c. To Arrive—No.1 hard, 74½c; No. 1 Northern, 72c. May, 71½c; July, 73½c.

Minneapolis Wheat.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 17.

WHEAT—In Store—No. 1 Northern, May, 69¾c; July, 70¾@70½c; September, 68¾c. On Track—No. 1 hard, 71½c; No. 1 Northern, 70½c; No. 2 Northern, 69¾c.

Sioux City Live Stock.

SIOUX CITY, IA., May 17.

HOGS—Market weak. Range of prices, $4.00@4.70.

CATTLE—Market slow, but steady. Sales ranged at $4.00@5.00 for beeves; $3.00@3.50 for cows; $3.75@4.50 for stockers and feeders; $3.75 @5.25 for yearlings.

Receipts: Hogs, 2,100; cattle, 1,200.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, May 17.

HOGS — The market is active and active. Quality fair to good. Range of prices, $4.00@4.70.

CATTLE—Butcher cattle strong and active. Not enough here to supply the demand

Sales ranged at $4.20@4.70 for steers; $3.85@4.00 for cows; $3.70@3.75 for heifers $4.00@5.50 for calves.

SHEEP—Good demand for good sheep and lambs.

Sales ranged at $5.75 for yearlings; $5.50 for lambs; $4.65 for ewes.

Receipts: Cattle, 200; calves,400; hogs, 2,000; sheep, 150.

Chicago Union Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, May 17.

HOGS—Market weak to 5c lower. Sales ranged at $3.70@3.95 for mixed and butchers; $3.85@4.00 for good heavy; $3.55@3.75 for rough heavy; $3.60@3.87½ for light.

CATTLE—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.25@5.20 for beeves; $3.70@4.70 for cows and heifers; $4.50@ 5.00 for Texas steers; $3.70@4.10 for stockers and feeders.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Sales ranged at $4.50@5.50 for sheep; $4.75@6.10 for lambs.

Receipts: Hogs, 37,000; cattle, 17 5 0, Sheep 15,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 17.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—May 70c; July 71¾c; September, 72¾c.

CORN—May, 37½c; July, 35¾c; September, 34½@34½c.

OATS—May 29½c; July, 26¾@26¾c; September, 30¾@31.

PORK—May, $8.15; July, $8.20@8.30½; September, $8.47½.

POULTRY—Turkeys, dressed, 11c; ducks, 8@9c; chickens, 10@10½.

BUTTER—Creameries, 13@16c; dairies, 10@10c.

EGGS—Fresh, 11¾c.

Crookston Market.

The following is the price of wheat quoted in the local market this morning:

No. 1 hard.....69c
No. 1 northern.....68c
No. 2 northern.....54c

—Albert Halvorsen went out Monday morning to look after his claim which is located in the vicinity of Remidjl.

South Crookston.

Perry Baudereau's cosy cottage is pending completion.

Rev. R. H. Buttey addressed the congregation at the Baptist church on Sunday last, his subject being "The Work of the Anti-saloon League."

The fifth ward Aldermen should take steps to have pounds established and a pound-master appointed for this part of the city to care for the stray cattle.

Sargent & Clark, contractors for the Carman school house, have refused a bonus of fifty dollars offered them by another contractor who desired to construct the building.

The work of fitting up the "Big Store" at Carman is progressing rapidly under the competent management of the proprietor, Mr. S. Bisgaard. When it is completed he will have one of the finest stores in the city.

Of the three boys who were hurt by the falling of the drying shed at the brick yard, George Bourgie has improved remarkably. Otto Arell has greatly improved, and only Sarpres Benoit, who was the one most seriously injured, is slightly better.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following are the real estate transfers for Polk county as furnished by Christianson & Strander, abstracters, for the week ending May 17, 1899:

Thomas Bassett & Andrew Melstrom to Andrew Pettersen, se¼, sec 15-150-47.....1500.00

Ole Lee, et al to Christine Lawson lots 23 and 24 Blk 8 North Mcintosh.....90.00

Olson A. Moen to Charles Hasse se¼ sw¼, nw¼ sw¼, sw¼ sw¼, sec 1-147-49.....2000.00

Lots 3 and 7 blk 12, Trafficand to East Grand Forks.....1000.00

Lars Wenaas to Zilpe Olson lot 22 blk 2 Lockhart & Harbough's original plat Fertile.....2000.00

Pembleton Armstrong to Second National Bank of Grand Forks, N. D., lots 1 and 2 and ne¼ nw¼, sec 4-152-49 1950.00

Andrew Erlgas to Ole O Stahn ne¼ se¼ and lots 1 and 2 sw¼ and lots 1 and 2 se¼ sw¼, sec 24-149-49.....91.00

Nathan P. Stone to George A. Ralph lots 23 and 24 blk 10 original Bottineau.....700.00

Frank Beasley to Josephine Kobetsky se¼ nw¼, ne¼ sw¼, and se¼ sw¼, sec 26-150-47.....800.00

Joseph Xtred to George Benda ne¼ se¼, sec 1-150-47.....1250.00

Bottineau & Cromwell to Almond Hoffman lots 1 and 2 and S E ¼ E part of w ½ sec 3-163-20.....1.00

Anton Kostka, to Benedict Kostka se¼ nw¼, sec 28-148-49.....800.00

St. P M & M Ry Co to Anton Kostka se¼ w¼ and se¼ sec 25-150-48.....640.00

Alfred Sunvary to G. J. Wellard ne¼ se¼ and the w ½ se¼ acres of the ne¼ sec 27-150-47.....1000.00

Lewis M Larson to Herman Overby lots 7 and 8 blk 1 Elmer Olmsted's Old L Lawson to Herman Overby part of lots 13, 14 and 15 blk 1 Elmer Olmsted's.....1000.00

Agreement to Lewis Edington lots 2, 3 and 4 blk 3 Elmer Olmsted's.....500.00

Edward Wheeler to Frank Cadwell part of lots 8, 9 and 10 blk 2 Cadwell's addition to Grand Forks.....1400.00

Mary B. Collins to Stephen Collins, se¼ se¼, sec 1 and ne¼ ne¼ sec 12-148-51.....1000.00

Fenelis Peltier to Ostive Peltier, swq sec 1-150-49.....1.00

Almond A. White to James Ellington, nw¼ of nw¼ sec 34-151-51.....160.00

Ellington to E. G. P.....160.00

Ellington to Peter A. Ebeck lot 12, block 16, South Crookston.....200.00

Ellington to Wm. Wilson Jacobs, lots 9 and 17, block 9, Jacobs' addition to Crookston.....1400.00

Ellington to Wm. Wilson Jacobs, lots 1 and 2, block 1, Cadwell's addition to Grand Forks.....1000.00

Mrs. Orel Ebert, et al to Louis Lee, lots 7 and 8 blk 1 Ebert's addition to Crookston.....175.00

H. Holte to Nels M. Johnson, lot 9, blk 1, Hartford Woodland addition to Crookston.....115.00

Ole L. Lawson to Lewis W. Larson, to be paid for the west end of block 1, Village of West Lawson.....

Andrew E. Sisreen to Ingeborg O. Sisreen lots 29, 30, 31, and sec 21-147-51.....2,000.00

P. M. & M. Ry Co. to C. M. Anderson ne¼ sec 16-147-50.....1.00

Edward Schiffman to John D. Cates, Jr., lots 1 and 2, block 1, Lake Park addition to East Grand Forks.....240.00

County Auditor to William A. Linetot lot 1 sec 2-150-47.....250.00

County Auditor to Ragna Erickson, lots 1 and 2, block 1 Erickson's addition.....25.25

Ole Lee to H L Hussen lot 26 block 7 Bottineau's addition.....170.00

Berwood Anderson to John B Anderson lots 1 and 2 block 1 Erskine.....300.00

John Lindberg to Andrew E. Sisreen lots 29, 30, 31 and sec 21-147-51.....2,000.00

Georg Schiffers to Josephine Wurtz lots 21 and 22 block 2 Dudgeon-Hill addition to Grand Forks.....

Bell Dewey to Mary Dewey lots 2 and 3 block 8 East Grand Forks.....800.00

Bell Dewey to Mary Dewey lots 1 and 4 block 8 East Grand Forks.....480.00

Julius Lee to A. P. Hill lot 18 block 16 First addition to Bellaire.....75.00

Crookston Improvement Co to C. E. Olson lot 14 block 11, lot 21 block 12 and lot 3 block 13 Simpson's Second land addition to Crookston, Minn.....1.00

Crookston Improvement Co to Nellie Masters 50x200 ft in sec. 9-147-49

Charles Carpenter to Nels Nelson lots 1 and 2 block 3 Fletcher & Bichert's addition to Crookston.....

Nels Nelson to Charles Carpenter all the land lying between said lots and the Lake Shore.....

Lulin May Thompson to Julius Wagner ne¼ sec 13-146-48.....2500.00

Lulin May Thompson to Julius Wagner sec 7-150-47.....

Julius Wagner to Annie Tessler lots 23 and 24 block 1 Bottineau's addition to Crookston.....

Annie Tessler to Ole L. Lawson lots 7 and 8 block 15 Jeromes addition to Grand Forks.....

Ole L. Lawson to Lewis W. Larson et al lots 12 block 4 Hodge's 1st addition to East Grand Forks.....

For Sale.

Tamarack fence posts, 6 and 8 cents.

VANCE & STONE.

ASLEEP IN THE TRENCHES.

A Soldier Tells in Verse his Experience in Trenches Near Manila.

From a copy of "Freedom," an American tri-weekly paper published in Manila, Philippine Islands, sent to I. U. Jennings by his son, who is among the United States forces there, the following verse is taken:

I lay in the trenches,
With a shirt-tail for my head,
With a canteen for a pillow,
And one blanket for my bed.

A stack of sand is near my head
Against which my carbine rests,
Waiting for a Filipino
"Boom!" booms you know the rest.

The monkeys chips about the trees,
The ants up my sleeve do crawl,
While the lizard out the rat,
Just a lively scrawl.

A fire breaks out upon the night,
A shake shakes up in terrible fright,
But no one moves at the shake,
Except bacon and beans, which I ate for spite.

A dear came yelping down the road,
As Tommy stepped out on his trumpet to blow;
"To arms," to arms was the call,
Come on fellows, let's start the ball.

I can see it all with half an eye,
As the battlefield I am.
Amidst the smoke and flames,
Amidst thine, "charge" the fight begun.

We surrounded the enemy,
And all the fire and din,
And as the smoke cleared round ourselves,
With a whiz and a time, blue.

We chased the insurgents down the road,
Not even stopping for which to load,
Like the crazy, their mades we moved,
Burning their shacks as onward we rode.

I slept an innocent General thrown, and through
And as I forward step, his sword to take,
"Boom" rose a cannon and I awake.
To my self I see my position.

HENRY H. BARTHMAN,
Troop L, 4th U. S. Cavalry.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn., postoffice for the week ending April 29, 1899:

Amundsand Jonn
Bergsken Lewis
Eide A
Fosterud L John
Gitnore Thos
Gundbon John
Johnson Samuel
Johnson Wm John
Lowen Oscar
McGarrity Jno
Nessett H
Russell C W
White Jas
Johnson Chas
Johnson Ellen
Johnson Edvin
Jones Wm
Lien A C
Lundquist L
Roberts W
Wehl J W
Wilson Jas
Wilson Mary Miss
Zurcher Jacob
Vanososon Sarah

Persons calling for the above say advertised.

ANDREW EIKEN,
Postmaster.

High School Commencement.

Supt. John Moore has about completed the program for the high school commencement exercises which will be held June 3. President Fraud A. Weld, of Moorhead Normal school will give an address on "The Holy Grail." In the line of music Miss Morrissey, teacher of vocal culture in the Moorhead Normal school, will sing two solos and Riggs' orchestra will furnish instrumental music.

Births.

LOW.

To Mr. and Mrs. Will Low on Sunday May 14, a girl.

PETERSON.

To Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Peterson on Monday May 15, a girl.

Weddings.

During the last three weeks permits to wed were granted by the clerk of Court Lommen to A. Z. Hanson and Miss Mary Olson, of Angus; Edward Blake, of Larimore, N. D., and Miss Anna Shradick, of East Grand Forks; Peter J. Anderson and Miss Hilda M. Larson, of Goodridge; Mart E. Willburg, of Ebro, Beltrami county, and Miss Carrie Scuvielo, of Lengby; Nels O. Nelson and Miss Susanna J. Olson, of Brandsvig; Wm. S. Hawes and Effie Whitney, of East Grand Forks.

Deaths.

KOELMEL.

At West Superior on Monday, May 15, Mrs. M. H. Puddeu, who was the sister of L. and Ed. Koelmel, of Crookston.

STANTON.

At Argyle on Saturday, May 13, Mrs. E. M. Stanton, wife of Edward Stanton, of that town. The disease which caused death was asthma. Mrs. Stanton left four children.

MARKINSON.

Martin Markinson, of Woodside, aged 31 years, on Friday, May 12, at Grand Forks, N. D. The cause of death was the rupture of a blood vessel. The remains, accompanied by N. K. and James Markinson of Hannaford, N. D., brothers of the deceased, were brought to Crookston and buried last Monday, the funeral services being in charge of Rev. Nickre, of Maple Bar.

South or East; Which?

When a train is accompanied it is always well to prepare in advance, in order to avoid little inconveniences which are often annoying. The two fast trains leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul daily via Wisconsin Central Lines for Milwaukee and Chicago make close connections with trains East and South. Being elegantly equipped with sleeping cars, parlor cars and day coaches, they are fully appreciated by the traveling public. Your nearest ticket agent will advise you or, if preferred, write to the undersigned for information and full particulars.

JAS. C. POND,
General Passenger Agent.
[16-tf] Milwaukee, Wis.

Well dressed men and women wear

Kellogg Johnson & Co's Shoes.

For Style Comfort and wear they lead

Ask for Them!

FISHER'S Rheumatism and Kidney Cure. A sure cure for rheumatism and kidney troubles. Those who drink it never have them well. It which is nearly always charged with rheumatism and all other ills afflicted with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Ask your grocer about the merits and quality of this remedy or all druggists or sent by mail by C. F. MENZEL, Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of one hundred dollars for each and every case of catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

[SEAL.] A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

NOTE—Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO. Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Final Proof.

Land office at Crookston, Minn.,
May 4th, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver at Crookston, Minn., on Crookston, Minn., on June 15, 1899 viz:

ZOTT CAPISTRANUS,

H. E. 4402 for the sw¼ sec 8, ne¼ ne¼ se¼ sec 7, nw¼ nw¼ sw¼ sec 9, tp 156 n, range 47 w.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph Capistran, Paul Wagner, Adolph Klinner, Mederic Lamberte all of Mentor, Minn.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register.

Mortgage Sale

First publication May 4th 1899
Last publication May 25th 1899

Notice of mortgage foreclosure by advertisement.

Default has been made in the condition of that certain mortgage, executed by Ole Lee, dated the fifth day of June, 1897, filed in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk county, Minnesota, on the 18th day of July 1897, at 10 o'clock a. m. and recorded in book "O" of mortgages on pages 296, 297, whereby said Ole Lee mortgaged to said mortgagee, the Andrew-Boland Company of London, England, mortgagee, the following described parcel of real estate, to-wit: All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situated in Crookston, Minn., and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lot number eight (8) in block number twenty-two (22) in Crookston, Minn., according to the recorded plat thereof, and the said mortgage was duly assigned by said mortgagee to Andrew Erlgas, by assignment dated the 5th day of July, 1897, and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds aforesaid on the 18th day of July, 1897, at 10 o'clock a. m. and recorded in book "O" of mortgages on page 297, whereby said Andrew Erlgas assigned said mortgage to the undersigned, by which assignment the undersigned became the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt thereby secured, and the amount claimed to be due and actually due and payable upon said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of four hundred and thirty-two dollars and sixty cents ($432.60).

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, the said premises will at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash in hand, by the sheriff of said Polk county or his deputy, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1899, at the front door of the court house, in the City of Crookston, in said county, (which is the place where the district court, sitting in said county, is held) proceed to sell the said premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with interest, taxes, if any, twenty-five (25) dollars attorney fee and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated, St. Cloud, Minn., April 28th, 1899.

THE ANDREW-BOLAND FIELDHOLD-LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY (Limited) of London, England.

Mortgagee.

GEO. H REYNOLDS,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
St. Cloud, Minn.

Order for Hearing Proof of Will.

State of Minnesota County of Polk, ss.

In probate court, special term May 2nd 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Ole Lee, deceased.

Whereas, An instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of Ole Lee late of Crookston, deceased, late of said County, has been delivered to this court.

And Whereas H. H. Barnes has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things, that said deceased died a resident of said County, Texas, on the 25th day of April, 1899, and that a part of the County of Polk and State of Minnesota and bearing property therein testate and that he is named as executor in said will and that said will and Texas may be admitted to probate in this court and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to him as executor.

It is ordered, That the proofs of said instrument be taken and heard before the Judge of this court at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston in said County on the 29th day of May A. D. 1899 at two o'clock in the afternoon, when all persons interested may appear for or against the allowance of said instrument.

And it is Further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once a week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Polk County Journal a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said County.

Dated Crookston, Minn. the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1899.

A. M. MILLER,
Judge of Probate.

Attorney for Petitioner. DLIE HAGEN.
16

Notice of Expiration of Time of Redemption.

To W. H. Miller:

You are hereby notified that on the 9th day of March, A. D. 1896 in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes for the year 1894 certain real estate was sold to the state and entered in the District Court in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, 1895, the same being the first Monday of said month, and that the time of redemption in said proceedings will expire one year from said 9th day of March, A. D. 1896, unless sooner redemption is made, and that the time for redemption from sale of said parcel of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the County Auditor.

Witness my hand and official seal this 9th day of May, A. D. 1899.

JOHN GLEASON,
County Auditor of Polk county, Minne-ota.
By N. A. HOFFARD,
Deputy.

[SEAL]

64

THE ROCKING CHAIR.

One rocking chair is a dancing yacht,
And, oh, but the waves run high!
I once was wrecked on this very spot,
But we swam, did Jack and I.
It's risky sport for a little girl,
But feel the spray, see the billows curl!
It's pitching rough, how the lamp does toss
And, dear, isn't Mowa a squall?
Afraid, sweetheart? Why, we're safe, of course!
We've got to the other wall.

It's a conch today, and we spun along
With you on the bow, with me.
The air is fine and the horses strong,
And plenty of things we'll see.
How the horses dance! They're full of fun!
But, whoa! I fear they're going to run!
And they can't be held! Oh, how they veer!
Now each is worst of the four!
Just see that hill that's before us there!
Ah, saved by the emergency door!

And what shall it be tonight, dear heart?
A train with its rumbling sound?
Now off it moves with a quiver swift!
It's a droning train we've found!
Just hear its clickety-clickety song
As it takes us two on the way along!
It's dark outside, except for the stars,
Our eyes are so dull as lead,
And now, as they've stopped the rumbling cars,
Does my lady change for bed!
—Pearson's Weekly.

She Helped Him.

Littlewood Phillips had been in love with Mildred Farrington for two years, ever since he first met her at the Hallowells' card party. He had no good reason to doubt that his love was returned, yet so fearful was he that he had misread her feelings, so much did he dread her refusal of his suit, that he had never hinted that she was more to him than any of the girls he met at the church sociables and card parties in Farrington. Innumerable chances for a declaration of love had offered themselves, for he was a regular culler at the Farrington mansion, but this youth was as devoid of spunk as a hare and was no nearer the goal of his desires today than he had been when Cupid first aimed his dart at him.

So matters stood when a snowfall that brought sleighing in its wake visited Newington, and Littlewood became conscious of the fact that he had actually asked Miss Farrington to take a ride with him. Of course he must perforce bring matters to a crisis now. He was afraid that Judge Farrington would be using his intentions, and it would be humiliating to have such a question come before he could refer him to the girl for an answer. No: beyond a doubt he must plant it enough courage to ask her to be his wife or else cease calling upon her, an alternative that was hideous enough to chill his heart.

The evening was soon at hand. A crescent moon shone in the east and the stars were cold and scintillating. He walked to the livery stable and asked for the cutter, and a few minutes later he was driving a handsome chestnut to the home where his thought spent most of the time. Miss Farrington kept him waiting a good half hour, but he reflected that it was the privilege of her glorious sex, and it only made him love her the more. If she had come out and placed her dainty foot upon his neck he would have been overcome with rapture. In fact, in his present state, which had also been his state for 24 months, Littlewood was not many removes from a calf.

It was cold waiting, so he got out and hitched his horse and paced in front of her house, his youthful sentinel until death—if need be. Not that there was any reason to think that his services would be required, but it pleased his self love to imagine himself dying for this lovely being of whom his tongue stood in such awe that it could scarcely loose itself in her presence.

At last she appears. The restive horse slants his ears at her and paws the ground in admiration of her beauty, for Mildred was as pretty as regular features, a fair skin and inviting eyes could make her.

Littlewood handed her into the sleigh, stepped in himself, tucked in the robes and chirruped to the horse. That intelligent animal did not ignore. A flash of mortification overspread the face of the would be amorous swain. A balky horse, and at the start! What chance would he have to deliver his precious message that was to make two hearts happy? He clicked again to the horse, but again the horse continued to stand still.

"You might address him, Mr. Phillips. That would help," said Mildred in her sweet voice.

"Oh, yes—I'm sure! I must have tied him. I mean I—er—I di—I think I did hitch—er"—

"There seems to have been a hitch somewhere," she answered.

He stepped out of the sleigh and looked over his shoulder at her in a startled way. Could she mean anything? Was this encouragement? Oh, no! It was too soon. (Too soon, and he had been in love two years!) He unfastened the horse and once more placed himself beside his loved one.

The frosty night seemed to have set a seal upon her lips for as they sped over the crunching snow and left the town behind them she was silent.

"I must have offended her. I've probably made a break of some kind," said Littlewood to himself. "How unfortunate! But I must tell her tonight. It is now or never. This attention is too marked to pass as a mere courtesy of the winter season. She knows I never took anybody but my mother sleigh riding before."

Then began a process of nerving himself to the avowal. He ground his knees together until the bones ached. His breathing was feverish.

"Mmm — Mildewed — I mean Mildred." And then he stopped. He had never called her Mildred before. He had never called her Millewood, either, but that was accidental, and he hoped that she had not noticed the slip.

"I have something of the greatest importance to say to you."

Did he imagine it or did she nestle closer to him? He must have been mistaken, and to show that he was quite sure he edged away from her as much as the somewhat narrow confines of the sleigh would allow.

"What do you wish to say, Mr. Phillips?"

"Mister" Phillips. Ah, then she was offended. To be sure she had always called him that, but after his last remark it must have an added significance.

"I—er—do you like sleigh riding?"

"Why, of course, or else I wouldn't have come."

Did she mean that as a slap at him? Was it only for the ride and not for his company that she had come? Oh, he could never make an avowal of love after that! He knew his place. This beautiful girl was not for a faint hearted cad like himself.

"Mmm—mm—no, to be sure not. I—er—thought that was why you came."

Mildred turned her angelblue eyes upon him. "I'm afraid I don't understand you."

That settled it. If she didn't understand him when he talked of nothing in particular, he must be very blind in his utterance, and he could never trust his tongue to carry such a heavy freight as a declaration of love. No, there was nothing to do but postpone it. After all, her house was the best place for it.

The horse sped on past moated meadows and through pine woods full of filtered moonlight, and Mildred drank in the beauty of the scenes and wished that it were decorous for women to propose.

The night was ravishing, the sleigh bells jingled harmoniously, the horse swept on with steady, rhythmic stride, and under the influence of sweet surroundings Mildred at last said pointedly, "Is it so that more people get engaged in winter than in summer?" She blushed as she spoke. It was unmaidenly, let he was such a dear genius. Now he would declare himself. But she did not know the capabilities for self repression of her two year admirer.

He said to himself: "What a slip, what a delightful slip! If I were unprejudiced, I would take advantage of it and propose, but I would bitterly reproach myself forever, whatever her answer was." So he said, in a matter of fact tone as he could master, when his heart was beating his ribs like a frightened curgling, "I really can't answer offhand, but I'll look it up for you."

"Do. Write a letter to the newspaper."

Her tones were as musical as ever, but Littlewood thought he detected a sarcastic ring in them, and he thanked his stars that he had not yielded to his natural desire to propose at such an inauspicious time.

What was that important thing you wanted to say?" asked Miss Farrington after several minutes of silence, save for the hoofs and the runners and the bells.

"Oh, it wasn't of any importance! I mean it will keep—I—er—I was thinking of something else."

"I think you have gone far enough," said she innocently, looking over his shoulder in the direction of home. Maybe the return would loosen his oubtrait hands.

His heart stopped beating and lay, a leaden thing, in his breast. Had he, oh, gone too far? What could he said? Oh, why had he come out with this lovely being, the mere sight of whom was enough to make any one cast all restraint to the winds and declare in thunderous tones that he loved her?

"I think that we'd better go back," he said, and turned so quickly that he almost tipped the sleigh. "Your mother will be anxious."

"Yes, when one is accountable to one's mother one does remember time. I suppose it is different when one is accountable to a—"

"Father?" he said Littlewood, asininely.

"No, that wasn't the word I wanted."

"A-a-nnt?"

Could Mildred love him if he gave many more such proofs of being an adject idiot?

"No—husband is what I want."

Littlewood's brain was in a whirl. He had been tempted once too often. This naive girl had innocently played into his hands, and now the Rubicon must be crossed, even if its angry waters engulfed him.

"Pardon me, Miss—er—Mildred"—he did not say Mildewed this time—"if I twist your words into another meaning, but if you—it—did—I—er—want a husband—do you think I would do?"

A head nestled on his shoulder, a little hand was in his, and when he passed the Farrington mansion neither he nor she knew it.—Charles Buttell Loomis in the Chicago Record.

Signs From Dreams.

"When men and women find themselves dreaming of their work, it's a pretty safe sign that they are run down," explained a well known physician to a reporter, "and they should begin to build up; otherwise serious consequences are likely to follow. The ordinary worker cannot stand it long if he or she has to work during her sleeping as well as her waking hours, for it is a case of barring the candle at both ends.

"The treatment I usually advise is a change of work and of food and a general building up by the use of tonics. Relax particular to avoid the use of stimulants or excitants in any form. A few days' recreation is also absolutely necessary, and a change of air is very beneficial in restoring things to a normal condition. People, as a rule, seldom dream of their work unless they are out of shape physically, and the moment they find that they are going through the forms of their work in their dreams it is the plainest kind of a sign that they are more tired out than they should be to have perfect health."—Washington Star.

NEWS CONDENSATIONS.

Thursday, May 11.

It has been decided to hold the Iowa meet of the L. A. W. July 27 and 28 at Ottumwa.

Hon. George Earle, first assistant postmaster general under Grant, is dead at Washington.

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange has been sold for $40,000, the highest sum ever paid.

The Westinghouse Electric company has received an order to equip a trolley line between Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

The French government is making inquiries as to American coal with a view to adopting it for the use of the French navy.

Shippers of live stock to the Chicago market have won their case against the railroads in the famous $2 per car terminal charge.

Friday, May 12.

A papal consistory will be held at the end of June for the nomination of 10 cardinals.

Notices have been posted at the South Chicago and Joliet mills of the Illinois Steel company announcing an increase in wages.

In the four-hour cycling contest at Roubaix, France, Charles W. Miller of Chicago won first prize. He covered 2,238 kilometres.

A bill has passed the Michigan senate practically shutting trusts out of Michigan and its friends claim votes enough in the house to pass it.

The United States cruiser New Orleans has sailed from New York for New Orleans. She will remain away from New York about a month.

Senor Mabini, who is the head of Aguinaldo's cabinet, says the insurgents are hopeful, and will continue fighting, relying upon European intervention.

Saturday, May 13.

The steel combine has been perfected.

A guard has left Paris to convey Dreyfus thither.

The great yarn mill combination is fast assuming definite shape.

American and English literary agents have formed a syndicate to control the Kipling output.

The assistant attorney general of the United States decides that "nuts" are not taxable under the war revenue law, but "colls" are.

A panic was created in the national museum in Washington by the discovery that two captured cannon received from Admiral Dewey were loaded.

Experts for several days have been telling the senate pure food committee of the prevalence of the use of "embalming fluids" and other adulterations.

General Greely, chief signal officer, has given the results of experiments with wireless telegraphy. He thinks the system cannot take the place of the cold one.

Monday, May 15.

Stove manufacturers of the country will form a combination.

Sir Henry Irving, the actor, is seriously ill with an affection of the throat.

Grain elevators and the Minneapolis and St. Louis stock yards at Lake Mills, Ia., were destroyed by fire.

The Chicago Great Western has purchased the Cannon Valley road from the Minneapolis and St. Louis.

A battle royal for the British Liberal leadership is on between Lord Rosebery and Sir William Vernon Harcourt.

The death of Roswell P. Flower had a demoralizing effect in Wall street, the Flower speculities going down tremendously.

The schooner Nelson, deeply laden with a cargo of coal, foundered in Lake Superior off Grand Marais and carried down all hands. So far as known only one man, Captain Hagliney, escaped from this, the first scarlet of the season. Nine were lost.

Tuesday, May 16.

Baltimore and Ohio railway reorganization is resumed, the issue of new securities having been authorized.

The interstate commerce commission has begun its investigation of the export grain tariff question.

The Order of Railway Conductors has changed its headquarters from Cedar Rapids to Des Moines.

Gregorio del Pilar, one of Aguinaldo's generals, wants to surrender, believing the rebel "government" has deserted him.

Blanco, the last captain general of Cuba, it is now stated, offered the Cubans independence if they would fight the Americans.

A special session of the New York legislature will be held to revise the Ford law taxing corporation franchises.

The appointment of a representative at The Hague has left that city because the Vatican was not invited to send a delegate to the disarmament congress.

Wednesday, May 17.

Forest fires are raging to the west and south of Iron Mountain, Mich.

Northern Pacific crop report shows a backward season, with seeding nearly finished.

A trust deed placing a first mortgage on all the plants of the Keystone flour trust has been filed at Duluth and West Superior.

The Pennsylvania supreme court has declared valid the $11,200,000 loan agreed to by a vote of the people at a recent election.

"Tod" Sloan, the jockey, is reported failing in health and on the verge of a breakdown. The prediction is made that he can ride few more races.

Company L, Twenty-fourth United States infantry, has sailed on the steamer Humboldt for Alaska, to be stationed at Dyea and Fort Wrangel.

Governor Sayres of Texas will call a meeting of governors and state attorneys general to formulate a general anti-trust law.

WHOOP!

BIG CELEBRATION at FARGO

JUNE 7,8,9,'99

A Lot of ...BANDS...

A Lot of ...PEOPLE...

Going to be There

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC R. R.

IS RIGHT IN IT WITH

ONE FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP

Call on the Northern Pacific Agent QUICK and find out all about it.

CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A.,
St. Paul, Minn.

HIGH-GRADE HAWTHORNE $22.50 NET.

SPECIFICATIONS. Name—Hawthorne. Crank—Nickel ornamental steel. Chain—3/32 inch best hardened steel and pitch. Sprocket—8 best steel teeth. Pedals—Rubber, 1/2 inch. Bearings—Hanger, adjustable, ball bearing. Hubs—Front, 3/4 inch, ball bearing, with cones, nickel band effect. Rear—Hunter 3 speed, ball bearing. Rims—Wood, 1 1/4 inch, 28 inch, are grooved to fit tire. Head—Of the best, with nickel adjustable. Pedals—Rubber, corrugated. Saddle—Hawthorne, with nickel steel rails. Handle Bars—Nickel steel. Stem—Nickel steel, adjustable. Fork—Nickel steel, with Nickson & Welch double truss. Tool bag and pump—Nickel plated, with clamps to attach to frame. Finish—Enamel, with nickel ornamentations. Wheel Base—63 inches. Weight—about 35 pounds.

15000 Sold in 1898

It's no good many wheel made. All modern improvements. Guaranteed for one year. If not found as represented, return at our expense and get your money. We have your interest at heart and want you to be satisfied. ASK US TO SEND YOU OUR FREE BICYCLE CATALOG

Send 10 cents for our 1899 1000 page catalogue. It tells everything used by mankind.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

Notice of Dissolution.

CROSSLTON, April 8, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Jerome Dahl and Rasmussen & Dahl, under the firm name of Rasmussen & Dahl, is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All bills due the firm and all bills payable by said firm will be collected and paid by A. M. Dahl, who will continue her business at the old stand, Robert street, Crookston, under the name of Dahl & Co.

JEROME DAHL,
H. RASMUSSON,
O. B. DAHL.

RUDOLPH T. RASMUSSON,
ANNIE M. DAHL.

5-21

Final Proof.

Land office at Crookston, Minn.
May, 1st, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver at their land office at Crookston, Minnesota, on June 26th, 1899, viz:

JOHN P. HARRISON.

H. E. No. 17,267 for the lot and south, east, s. 7, west, section 2, town 150, range 48 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

John H. Camp, Herman Camp, Charles Achler, John T. Parden, all of Dupuis, Minnesota.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Register

49

Notice For Bids.

Bids for building a wooden bridge across the Ellmuehbosh creek, in the town of Fairfax, will be received up to one o'clock p. m. Friday, June 2, at which time the town board will be at the town clerk's office at the residence of John Amundson, for the purpose of opening said bids. Plans and specifications can be seen by calling at the residence of the undersigned in the town of Fairfax. The board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

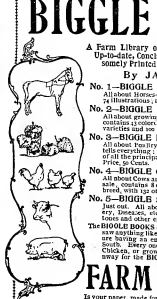
A. O. DANIELS,
Chairman of Board.

4 10

BIGGLE BOOKS

A Farm Library of unequalled Value—Practical, Up-to-date, Concise and Comprehensive—Handsomely Printed and Beautifully Illustrated.

By JACOB BIGGLE



No. 1—BIGGLE HORSE BOOK

All about Horses—a Common-Sense Treatise, with over 74 Illustrations, a standard work. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 2—BIGGLE BERRY BOOK

All about growing Small Fruits—read and learn how; contains 45 colored plates of Berries, and over 100 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 3—BIGGLE POULTRY BOOK

All about Poultry—the best Poultry Book in existence; tells everything; 50 colored plates from life—prize collections of all the principal breeds, and 200 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents.

No. 4—BIGGLE COW BOOK

All about Cows and the Dairy Business; having a great sale. Contains 8 colored life-like reproductions of each breed, with 150 other illustrations. Price, 50 Cents

No. 5—BIGGLE SWINE BOOK

Just out. All about Hogs—Breeding, Feeding, Butchery, Diseases, etc. Contains over 50 beautiful halftones and other engravings. Price, 50 Cents.

The BIGGLE BOOKS are unique, original, independent—never anything like them—no prudish, conceited. They are having six enormous sales. Find them in the South. Every one who keeps a Horse, Cow, Hog or Chicken, or grows Small Fruit, ought to send right away for the BIGGLE BOOKS. The

FARM JOURNAL

Is your peace, made for you and not a soldier. It is 25 years old. It is the great boiled-down Philadelphia monthly—quiet, clean, unpretentious. Farm and Household paper in the world—the biggest paper of its size in the United States of America—having over a million and a half regular readers.

Any ONE of the BIGGLE BOOKS, and the FARM JOURNAL 5 YEARS (reminder of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903) will be sent by mail to any address for A DOLL BILL.

Sample of FARM JOURNAL and circular describing BIGGLE BOOKS free.

WILMER ATKINSON,
CHAS. P. JENKINS. FARM JOURNAL PHILADELPHIA

YOU CAN USE IT 20 DAYS FREE

Up-to-date in every detail.

Art-to-Design No. 100 of our High Arm Sewing Machine with Ball Bearings for Light Running, Noiseless, Reversible Feed, Automatic Bobbin Winder, 10 years' Guarantee. Upon receipt of your order, if you are not entirely satisfied with the machine, after using it 20 days, return it to us and we will refund your money and pay freight both ways.

TAKE THE MACHINE HOME AND TRY IT FOR 20 DAYS

Examine it carefully—if not entirely satisfied in every respect, return it to us and we will refund your money and pay freight both ways. Remember you have a full year's guarantee, and that we sell only the highest grade machines. We have no cheap, inferior machines to offer you. Remember you do not pay a penny for the machine to try it 20 days. You have a year's guarantee, and that we sell only the highest grade machines. IT'S SPECIAL FEATURES are Ball Bearings, Noiseless, Reversible Feed, Automatic Bobbin Winder, Tension, Foot, Self Threading Shuttle, Needle, Vibrating Lifter, Automatic Stopper, Stitch Regulator, Thread Cutter, Improved Tension Release, Drop Feed, Handsome Finish, Highest Arm, Improved Head, Quick Lifter, Perfect Balance, Automatic Reverse Feed, Self Adjusting Treadle, Perfect Stitch, Lightest Running, Most Durable.

Send 15 cents for our 1000-page catalogue. It tells everything used by mankind.

Originators of The Catalogue Business.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., Michigan Ave., & Madison St., Chicago.

Polk County Journal,

BY N. S. GORDON.

1st Subscription $1.50 per year in advance

Entered at the postoffice at Crookston, Minn., as second-class matter.

Official Paper of the City of Crookston.

A National peace jubilee will be held at the nation's capital on May 23, 24, 25. We hope that the war in the Philippines will have ended before this celebration takes place.

ADMIRAL DEWEY will reach the United States within a few weeks. It is definitely decided that he will come by way of the Suez Canal and hence will land first at New York. He is undoubtedly coming home that the administration may consult him with reference to the Philippine question. His progress wherever he goes will be a triumphal procession.

AN effort is being made to have President McKinley visit Grand Forks on his western trip. What's the matter with Crookston getting the president? Is not this city entitled to such an honor inasmuch as here was formed the first McKinley club? We think that if Mr. McKinley passes through Grand Forks he could be be persuaded to stop at Crookston for a short time.

IT is given out now that Alger will seek the United States senatorship from Michigan, which position Senator McMillan now holds. McMillan, however, refuses to withdraw and a senatorial fight is likely to follow. Mr. Alger ought to have learned, as secretary of war, something about fighting, which knowledge he will doubtless put to good use in his coming campaign.

BRIGADIER GENERAL FUNSTON of Kansas who has performed such brave and gallant services on the firing line of our army that is making matters quite warm for Aguinaldo, is now talked of for a political position. He himself writing to a personal friend says, "There are mighty few offices that I would have and the one or two in the gift of the people of Kansas I have not the gall to ask for."

PEIRCE FALLS is erecting a new public library building and Alexandria is likely to do the same thing within a short time. This reminds us that Crookston has neither a public library nor a library building. This is a serious defect in the city's equipment and one that ought to be remedied. A library gives a certain tone and standing to a town that can not be gained in any other way. We think that if this matter were taken hold of in a vigorous manner that a library might be secured.

NON-PARTISAN Mass meetings are being held all the prominent cities of the South with a view to showing publicly to the administration that the people, or at least a large majority of them, desire to uphold the hands of the president in regard to what he is doing in the Philippines. It is generally felt that the government ought to be supported, regardless of party, until the present campaign in the islands is ended and here in Minnesota one of the objects that these gatherings have in view is to encourage and strengthen our boys of the 13th regiment who are gallantly fighting far away from home.

THE annual reunion of the Confederate Soldiers occurred in South Carolina last week. It was an enthusiastic meeting and though all references to some of the gallant deeds of the boys in grey were long and loudly applauded still no disloyal sentiment was expressed. With reference to President McKinley's utterance last fall that the time had come when the national government ought to assume the care of the graves of the Confederate dead, while they expressed their sincere appreciation of the president's kindliness they still thought the care of the Confederate dead's final resting was a sacred trust dear to the hearts of Southerns and that it would better be left with them.

TROUBLE is brewing in Cuba. Gen. Gomez, the head of the Cuban army has refused to act as the representative of that army in the distribution to the Cuban soldiers by the United States of $3,000,000. He alleges that a cabal of Cuban officers has been formed against him and that he wishes to rid himself of the whole matter and let General Brooke he free to act as the latter wishes. The Cuban soldiers, it seems, do not wish to surrender their arms when they receive Uncle Sam's cash. After all the treasure both in money and life that the Cubans have cost the Americans, it is indeed ungrateful on their part to cause the United States unnecessary trouble at this time when we are trying to arrange a plan to pay them $5,000,000. They must have some intention of fighting as else why should they wish to retain their arms. They must, however, give them up, even if force has to be used to make them do so.

THERE is some talk of a representation from Crookston going down to Minneapolis in July when Pres. McKinley is there. Mayor Stephens says that if the citizens wish to do this, he will do what he can to get a special excursion rate. The JOURNAL thinks that this is a good idea. If we can't get McKinley to come to us, they go and see him. If not every day that one is permitted to be even in the same town with a man as great as our president is.

YESTERDAY was the Norwegian Fourth of July, the anniversary of the day on which they gained their independence. It the year 1812 after the Napoleonic wars, at the treaty of Kiel Norway was separated from Denmark and given over to Sweden. The Norwegians objected to being treated like slaves and took up arms against Sweden. The war was waged for two years but on the 17th of May 1814 the present constitution of Norway was drawn up and accepted by Sweden. Although Norway constitutes one joint kingdom with Sweden in regard to succession, external policy and diplomacy, it is in all other respects an independent state having its own government, legislative machinery, finances, army and navy. There are, moreover, signs that the slight bond which now unites these two nations may be broken. The Norwegian's are a liberty loving people and will never rest satisfied till they are completely independent.

THE board of county commissioners at their last meeting appropriated $4253.18 to be paid to those citizens of Polk county who recently went to St. Paul to use their influence in securing the defeat of a measure which had it become law, would have cost Polk county, a large sum. This appropriation was simply to cover the expenses of those men who worked in the legislature in the interests of Polk county, and certainly the sum thus set aside would not do more than pay expenses. Certain citizens in the county, however, have taken exception to the action of the board, and a notice of appeal was filed with County Auditor Glenon last Saturday by County Attorney Holston in behalf of George Kronschnable, W. F. Peterson, M. L. Hanaru, Gustaf Peterson, T. H. Nesseth, K. J. Sundvig, J. S. Sundvig, John Wildroff, L. P. Christianson, Lewis Olsumand W. W. Engle. Onestrange feature of the objection is that the amounts appropriated to certain individuals were not appealed from. Now the fact is that all these men went down under the same authority and instructions and in response to the same request, and if it is illegal to give this money to some it certainly is illegal to give it to any. As far as we are ourselves concerned, if we were able to render any assistance to Polk county we are glad of it, and the people will always find us ready to do anything we can for their interests, whether or not they see fit through their representatives to offer to pay any expenses which we may have incurred. The legality of the action of the board is a matter for the court to decide, and the case will come up before Judge Watts next month.

Board of Education.

The school board met Tuesday morning and elected Miss Olive Hallock to the position in the public schools held this school year by Mr. Jessie Childs, who has been teaching the 8th grade. A classes of reference and particularly brilliant as a student. She was graduated from the Faribault high school in 1891 at the head of her class. Since then she has been teaching, and attending the State University of Minnesota from which institution she will be graduated this year.

Gave Fire Water to Red Men.

Elijah Abrams, Thos. Beckerley and Wm. Howard are in the Polk county jail serving a sentence of 60 days and they will also be poorer to the extent of $100 a piece. All this is in consequence of the fact that these men sold liquor to Indians. They were caught in the act, brought before the United States court at Duluth, plead guilty, were sentenced by the court and federal officers Warren and Tillman brought them to Crookston last Sunday.

Women's Literary Club.

The women literary club have elected the following officers: President, Mrs. A. A. Miller, first vice-president, Mrs. E. C. Spendley, second vice-president, Mrs. S. W. Vance, recording secretary, Mrs. S. Rosental, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wm. Watts, and treasurer, Mrs. A. T. Stewart. The club is arranged for a public entertainment which will be given in a week or wo.

—Gus Sandberg, who last summer bought the house on the northeast corner of 5th and Main streets is making some special improvements on it and expects to move in in a short time.

Elsewhere.

A. R. Erickson is the new game warden out at Benidji.

Work on the new saw mill at East Grand Forks is progressing.

The Roseau Plaindealer has moved its plant to Warroad, a port on the Lake of the Woods.

Bismarck, North Dakota. is to have a new military post. Four Companies will be stationed there.

Architect Strassburger's plans for the new school building at Red Lake Falls have been accepted.

Hans Burgess retires from the postmastership at Ada and Alf Anderson is likely to take his place.

Wings must be beginning to sprout down at Fergus Falls for they have not had a case in the police court there for two months.

Young stock to the number of 1200 were shipped last week from Red Lake Falls to Medina, N. D., where they will have the run of the plains this summer.

Owing to the passage of the anti-pass law by the last Wisconsin legislature policemen in that state now have to pay their fares on all street car lines.

Galicians to the number of 1,400 recently landed in Halifax, Nova Scotia. They were bound for Manitoba, North Dakota and Northern Minnesota.

It is reported that the Northern Pacific railroad will build a new air line from Morris, Manitoba, to Duluth, in order to shorten the distance to Duluth by 100 miles.

It has been planned that our new minister to Spain, Mr. Storer, and Spain, s new minister to Washington, Due d'Arcos, will each reach his destination on May 30.

The new three story sawmill, 170 feet long, that is being built at Thief River Falls is being pushed along rapidly. They now have 130 men at work on the building.

The village council at Deer River have cut expenses that they may be able to build a village hall. Hereafter order will be preserved without the assistance of the Marshal.

W. W. Stinson convicted of rifling registered mail, will receive his sentence at Fergus Falls May 20. Stinson is out on $6,000 bail, St. Paul friends having signed his bond.

The ladies of the Reading Room Society, of St. Cloud, and the pupils in the public schools have been looking after the matter of improving the appearance of the streets in that town.

It is now asserted on the best of authority that President McKinley will be in Minneapolis when the 13th Regiment returns from the Philippines, that is, probably some time in July.

Paul Pretz, a student in the University at Grand Forks, was the successful candidate in the recent examination at Fargo and he will, therefore represent North Dakota in the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Up at Larimore last week two partios, composed of twelve men each, sallied forth to see which could kill the more gophers in a given time. A supper given by the less fortunate contestants wound up the performance.

Wm Demann, one of the county commissioners of Red Lake County, narrowly escaped death by lightning last week. He was in his pasture during a storm and two cows within fifteen feet of him were struck by lightning and killed.

On May 17, Norway's independence day, the Norwegians of Chicago will hold a monster celebration. The only address in English will be made by Congressman Eddy who has more Norwegian constituents than any other member of congress.

Red Wing will have a truent officer to look after the wayward school children. To see the truant officer march into the school room with a wayward urchin, is said to have a wholesome influence upon those who have a tendency to skip school.

Of the old teachers in the Fertile schools Miss Austin is the only one who will remain another year. Prof. Russell will return to the university to complete his studies while Misses Granis and Cashman have accepted positions to teach in the Shakopee school.

A petition has been filed at the post office department in Washington for the establishing of a rural free delivery between Red Wing and Kenyon, Minn. An experiment in this matter is being conducted at Westminster, Md. and the extension of the system depends much upon how this experiment turns out.

John McTavish, of Pierce county, has won a suit for damages to the amount of $2,800 from the Great Northern railway. In the summer of 1895 Mr. McTavish was hemmed in by prairie fire, and was compelled to attempt to escape by rushing through the flames. He saved his life, but was badly burned. He claimed that the fire was caused by sparks from Great Northern engines, and that the company was liable by reason of negligence.

Notes From Exchanges.

Aitkin will have a patriotic demonstration to endorse the national administration next Sunday.

Cass Lake Independent: Of all the papers along the line which we have honor exchange list, the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, Crookston) is the fullest and most chatty and interesting. Quite a model is the JOURNAL.

Brooklyn Eagle (Democratic): The Democratic party got on the wrong moral side of the union question, of the emancipation question, of the reconstruction question, of the financial question, and now, as an organization, is getting on the wrong moral side of the expansion question.

Aitkin Age: The story is going the rounds that Representative Twomey is after Knute Nelson's seat in the Senate. And Jim is also a candidate for speaker of the house. Next we know he will be the hero of some patent medicine story. There seems to be no limit to Jim Twomey's ambitions.

Moorhead News: George N. Lamphere, editor of the news, on being frequently asked what cured him tells every inquirer that it is due to dieting —lean beef and fresh eggs. He has reduced so much beef that he feels like pawing the earth and bellowing like a steer; and so many eggs that he wants to cackle like a hen.

Climax Chronicle: The honorable mayor of Climax has caused the saloon keeper to have a light burning all night in their places of business. A good many of our people think that his reason for so doing is in case a stranger should come to town late at night he may be aware of the fact that Climax has saloons.

Duluth News Tribune: It is reported in Minneapolis that the Northern Pacific railway is about to survey a line from Anoka to Carlton, a distance of about 120 miles. The rumor says that this piece of road could be constructed for about $2,000,000 and that it would give the Northern Pacific the same facilities at the head of the lakes as the St. Paul & Duluth now enjoys and for which it asks the sum of $12,000,000.

McIntosh Times: Hans H. Johannson, of Lindsay, who is at present devoting the largest part of his time to promoting the interests of the Scandia Mutual Hail Insurance Company, of Polk county, of which he is president, has been spending the past few days doing missionary work in this city and vicinity and is well pleased with the success his company is having. He reports a membership up to date of something over two thousand.

Faribault Republican: The Filipino copperhead element in this country who are setting a backfire for the benefit of Aguinaldo parade the idea that he and the leaders arrayed with him represent an oppressed people who are fighting the battle of liberty against invasion. Admiral Dewey, who thoroughly understands the situation, says in a letter to the secretary of the navy that "the Aguinaldo government is a severe military despotism."

Farm Students Review: Good farming seems to be contagious as well as poor farming. One well find a neighborhood where the farmers are nearly all well-to-do, where the buildings are good and everything in order, while only a few miles away just opposite conditions prevail. The good a man does in trying to better his own condition has a stimulating influence on his neighbors and tends to elevate to better ways of living the whole community in which he lives.

St. Paul Dispatch: It was a cowardly and murderous act to explode a dynamite bomb under a South street car. The act is not less criminal in intent, because it resulted in no loss of life, for the malicious purpose to destroy property, even at the risk of destroying life, was at the bottom of it. The dozen persons in the car might have been all killed or so badly injured as to be made sufferers for life. That nobody was hurt is simply a piece of good fortune, an accident that would not likely occur again.

St. Peter Tribune: There was a class of bad men in the north during the civil war that had no love for the government or its soldiers. The old stock has either not died out or else left behind branches of the old tree that continue their hostility to the success of the Union army. These latter day sachems call themselves anti-expansionists, and their principal work is attempting to inoculate the volunteers in the U. S. army with treason against their government, even to the point of rebellion.

Hendrum News: At the special election held last Saturday to vote on the incorporation of the village, it was lost by a vote of 25 for incorporation, to 30 against—55 votes being cast. There was a strong sentiment worked up against the measure, and whether it is best or not time will tell, as we cannot all see things in the same light. The feeling among some people seemed to be that if we incorporated we would have saloons, while we think wrong, as not all in favor of incorporation are in favor of license by any means.

Cass Lake Times: Dr. Blakeslee of Benidji, who has been accused of questing, and now, as an organization, is getting on the wrong moral side of the expansion question.

Aitkin Age: The story is going the rounds that Representative Twomey is after Knute Nelson's seat in the Senate. And Jim is also a candidate for speaker of the house. Next we know he will be the hero of some patent medicine story. There seems to be no limit to Jim Twomey's ambitions.

Moorhead News: George N. Lamphere, editor of the news, on being frequently asked what cured him tells every inquirer that it is due to dieting —lean beef and fresh eggs. He has reduced so much beef that he feels like pawing the earth and bellowing like a steer; and so many eggs that he wants to cackle like a hen.

Climax Chronicle: The honorable mayor of Climax has caused the saloon keeper to have a light burning all night in their places of business. A good many of our people think that his reason for so doing is in case a stranger should come to town late at night he may be aware of the fact that Climax has saloons.

Duluth News Tribune: It is reported in Minneapolis that the Northern Pacific railway is about to survey a line from Anoka to Carlton, a distance of about 120 miles. The rumor says that this piece of road could be constructed for about $2,000,000 and that it would give the Northern Pacific the same facilities at the head of the lakes as the St. Paul & Duluth now enjoys and for which it asks the sum of $12,000,000.

McIntosh Times: Hans H. Johannson, of Lindsay, who is at present devoting the largest part of his time to promoting the interests of the Scandia Mutual Hail Insurance Company, of Polk county, of which he is president, has been spending the past few days doing missionary work in this city and vicinity and is well pleased with the success his company is having. He reports a membership up to date of something over two thousand.

Faribault Republican: The Filipino copperhead element in this country who are setting a backfire for the benefit of Aguinaldo parade the idea that he and the leaders arrayed with him represent an oppressed people who are fighting the battle of liberty against invasion. Admiral Dewey, who thoroughly understands the situation, says in a letter to the secretary of the navy that "the Aguinaldo government is a severe military despotism."

Farm Students Review: Good farming seems to be contagious as well as poor farming. One well find a neighborhood where the farmers are nearly all well-to-do, where the buildings are good and everything in order, while only a few miles away just opposite conditions prevail. The good a man does in trying to better his own condition has a stimulating influence on his neighbors and tends to elevate to better ways of living the whole community in which he lives.

St. Paul Dispatch: It was a cowardly and murderous act to explode a dynamite bomb under a South street car. The act is not less criminal in intent, because it resulted in no loss of life, for the malicious purpose to destroy property, even at the risk of destroying life, was at the bottom of it. The dozen persons in the car might have been all killed or so badly injured as to be made sufferers for life. That nobody was hurt is simply a piece of good fortune, an accident that would not likely occur again.

St. Peter Tribune: There was a class of bad men in the north during the civil war that had no love for the government or its soldiers. The old stock has either not died out or else left behind branches of the old tree that continue their hostility to the success of the Union army. These latter day sachems call themselves anti-expansionists, and their principal work is attempting to inoculate the volunteers in the U. S. army with treason against their government, even to the point of rebellion.

Hendrum News: At the special election held last Saturday to vote on the incorporation of the village, it was lost by a vote of 25 for incorporation, to 30 against—55 votes being cast. There was a strong sentiment worked up against the measure, and whether it is best or not time will tell, as we cannot all see things in the same light. The feeling among some people seemed to be that if we incorporated we would have saloons, while we think wrong, as not all in favor of incorporation are in favor of license by any means.

Cass Lake Independent: The crowning glory of this region is Cass Lake, a crystal inland sea with charming shores and an island within its expanse of such exceptional characteristics and charms to have gained for it no small reputation for romantic attractions. This is called Lake Island. It contains 1,800 acres of ground, has bold shores, is covered by a growth of beautiful hardwoods and magnificent pines. Lying in the heart of this island is another lake—lake within a lake—which has no visible inlet or outlet and which is supposed to be several feet above the lake without. This lake of 100 acres is the veritable home of the black bass and has been the scene of many exciting seances between these game fish and gentlemen of the rod and reel.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes the food more delicious and wholesome

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Tis Said....

And truly stated that talk is cheap. This rule has its exceptions. This little talk you are getting here costs money, hence we shall state facts only.

Don't send to Minneapolis or St. Paul for your spring supplies. A chance to figure on your bill is all we ask. We are much better prepared than ever to fill orders promptly, having a wholesale house at our command enables us to quote very close prices

Bring us your Butter and Eggs and get highest market price

We are headquarters for all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds.

Slocum's Grocery,

ROBERT STREET.

To Prospective Investors in New Buildings

When laying out plans for New Buildings do not neglect to have our architect include electric wiring in his specifications.

Call us up before letting your Contract.

We shall be pleased to give you the benefit of our experience in laying out wiring plans.

It Will Cost You Nothing

to use us as consulting engineers in that respect.

Should you want Us to Figure on your Wiring

We are prepared to do so. We do nothing but first-class concealed work, using the very best material to be had in the market.

Don't wait to consult us until it is too late.

Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Items of Local Interest—Personal Mention—Society Doings, Etc.

—R. H. Bain of Fisher was in the city this morning.

—If you want old papers call at the JOURNAL office.

—Old papers for sale at the JOURNAL office at very low rates.

—W. E. Kelsey went out to Fosston yesterday on business.

—The band is getting in readiness for its trip to Bemidji.

—Judge Montague went down to St. Paul on business last night.

—R. P. Whetstone, of Argyle, spent Monday night in Crookston.

—The new congregational church at Beltrami will be dedicated next Sunday.

—D. Morrison of Donaldson was made a Knight Templar last Monday night.

—Mossella, the tailor, went out to Fosston yesterday to take orders for suits of clothes.

—A full line of Furniture Hard Oil Couch and Varnishes at A. G. Andersen and prices to suit.

—Dr. Forest Buckley, L. E. Gossman and A. P. Klesch are the latest additions to the K. P. lodge.

—George Strawbridge, of St. Hilaire, spent yesterday in Crookston, returning home this morning.

—K. H. Rolleg left with his family last Tuesday morning for Erskine where they will spend the summer on their farm.

—Joseph Smith went out to Thief River Falls on Tuesday to look after the interests of the people in the line of insurance.

—Thos. Beutan, land attorney of the Great Northern railway, was in the city Tuesday.

—Miss Lottie Anglim has returned after an extended visit with friends in the Twin Cities.

—The Y. M. C. A. have purchased a new organ from M. Rolfstad, the main street music dealer.

—E. Southmayd, one of McIntosh's enterprising merchants, spent Tuesday night at the county seat.

—The Steam Laundry continues to make improvements. The latest is a new shirt, collar and cuff ironer.

—George Lelly was a passenger on the Duluth train yesterday morning. He expected to step off at Bemidji.

—Ed Stenersen went out to Thief River Falls yesterday to see about the renting of some houses which he has up there.

—Will Munch started yesterday morning for his claim out at Pine Lake, where he expects to remain some ten days.

—The gang saw at the mill broke about 4 p. m. yesterday and the mill was in consequence shut down for about two hours.

—Attorney H. W. Lee, of Thief River Falls, transacted legal business in the city Tuesday, returning home yesterday morning.

—J. A. Button, formerly a teacher in the high school at Grafton N. D. is in the city exchanging for in Steenerson and Rowe's law office.

—D. Shaw and Robt. McGinnin have been down from Thief River Falls looking over the saw mill and lumber yards at South Crookston.

—Thos. O'Neill, a prominent farmer in the town of Parnell had close to a hundred bushels of seed wheat stolen from his granary last Sunday night.

—Captain Decker and all soldiers in this vicinity who volunteered in the late war with Spain have been invited to take part in the exercises on Memorial Day.

—The JOURNAL has for sale at Mr. Fatrich mailing machine with eleven galleys. The machine is in good working order and is now being used in this office.

—The private car of Assistant Superintendent Gruber of the Great Northern was attached to the Duluth train this morning. Mr. Gruber was going out east as far as Cass Lake.

—Miss Maud Sargent, who has been in Denver, Colorado, during the past winter, is expected home next Monday morning. Her health has been very much improved by her stay in the south.

—R. L. Cherry, of Minneapolis, was in the city Tuesday night and spent a very pleasant time talking over college days with Mr. Jessie Childs. They were students together at Oberlin College, Ohio.

WANTED:—Teachers to attend Crookston College Summer School. It is cheap, thoroughly practical. Term opens June 12. and continues eight weeks. Address, Crookston College, Crookston Minn. 4-36

—The drummers at their meeting last Tuesday night decided to buy Prof. La Sore's gymnasium outfit. The Y. M. C. A. have withdrawn their application for the rooms in the basement of the city hall, so that the firemen are almost sure of getting these rooms for gymnasium purposes.

—J. S. Nichols was up from Fertile last Saturday.

—Go to A. G. Andersen for your Drugs and Medicine.

—A. H. Pitkin, of Euclid, was in the city last Sunday.

—K. D. Chase came up from Fairbault yesterday morning.

—Tonight the Knights of Pythias will initiate seven new members.

—Mrs. H. R. Campion of Angus, spent last night at the county seat.

—One of the attractions for tonight is a dance at the G. A. R. hall.

—B. J. Duntley has sold his residence in Jerome's addition to Joseph Smith.

—J. S. Sletten, of Mentor was doing business in Crookston last Monday.

—Rev. H. P. Fisher conducted the services at the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday afternoon.

—Miss Eliza Milne of Grand Forks was the guest, last Sunday, of her sister, Mrs. Harry Finch.

—Attorney E. J. Grover, of East Grand Forks, was doing some legal business in the city yesterday.

—Charley Lohn, court stenographer, spent the first part of this week at Fosston visiting with his brothers.

—That high bred bull that P. J. Carey recently bought from Colonel R. A. Wilkinson is one of the finest ever seen in this section.

—The Y. M. C. A. reading rooms in the McKinnon block are open evenings now. Young men of the city and strangers are cordially invited.

—J. S. Thompson, manager of the Valley Roller Mills, went out Monday morning to Cass Lake. Grand Forks will be his future place of business.

—Dr. A. A. Just who has been in Chicago for two months making a special study of the ear, nose and throat, will re-am to Crookston in about a week.

—Miss Armandine Page, who is teaching a three months school near Barnwell, spent Sunday in the city returning to her work Monday morning.

—Alexander D. Grant, who for the past three weeks has been editor of the Grand Forks Plaindealer, died yesterday afternoon, after an illness of only three days.

—Mrs. George Sebastian, at the death of her mother which occurred at Rockford, Minn., a short time ago, came into possession of an estate valued at over $10,000.

—The alumni of the Crookston high school, who formed an alumni association in the spring of 1897 will hold their first reunion, as usual, at the annual banquet. The date is not yet fixed.

Colonel Wilkinson recently sold 12 head of young cattle at $48 a piece. These animals he pastured and fed on his farm for about a year and made on the transaction a little over $300.

Miss Emma Cronkhite, who has been a student in the Crookston night school during the present school year, left Monday morning for Fosston, where a twenty-three miles out which village she will teach school.

—The suggestion made in the JOURNAL last week relation to the formation of a lawn tennis club is being taken up and there may be the racket men of the city, and the prospects are good for several tournaments here this summer.

—A festival was held in the Swedish Lutheran church over in Sampsone addition last Friday night. Late in the night, after the company had gone home, some uninvited guests forced an entrance into the church and purloined some of the viands that were left.

—In the United States land office Yesterday there were 13 homestead entries and two final proofs made, 160 acres of pine land in township 151, range 22, sold to A. D. Stephens for $325 and papers, filed in a land contest case, between Josiah Smith and Chas. Schmidth.

—The land contest cases of Pine Nelson vs. Walter Junkin that has been before the government land officials for several years has at last been settled for good by the Secretary of the Interior and Junkin, whose side of the case land attorney Nat Campbell has been looking after, comes out ahead.

—A. H. Smithers, former proprietor of the McIntosh Tribune, has been in the city this week. He called at the Journal office yesterday and gave out the information that on Monday last T. R. Brownlee, editor of the McIntosh Tribune, sold out to a Mr. McCrae from Smithers, Minn., the price being $500. Mr. McCrae is a newspaper man of some experience.

—John Barker, an employee in one of the logging camps out east in Beltrami county, had one of his eyes injured several weeks ago. It was found necessary to remove the organ that was hurt, in order that the man might not become blind and Drs. Morley and Smith of this city performed the delicate operation last Sunday.

—The Climax Chronicle is for sale or for rent.

—Rev. S. Carrie, of Euclid, held services at Mentor last Sunday.

—L. Soderberg, of Fosston, spent last Thursday night in Crookston.

—Bear in mind that A. G. Andersen deals only in pure and reliable goods.

—Mr. J. Wallace came down from Warren, Saturday, to consult Dr. O. J. Brown.

—Fred Tait, of Climax, has sold out his business interests there and will locate elsewhere.

—Miss Fred Hall, who has spent the winter in Illinois, has returned to her home in Crookston.

—N. S. Gordon has purchased from C. E. Sawyer the latter's two houses and landed property on South Broadway.

—Cashier Ellington, who was in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls last Friday says that the seeding was then well along.

—Fred Pelper, brother-in-law of Carl Bierbaul, leaves Crookston tonight for Peoria, Illinois, where he will work in a planing mill.

Mr. Snyder, who has been keeping a hotel in Climax, has been in Crookston looking over the field with a view to locating here.

—Jacob Andelet's new house that he is erecting on 6th street near the Riverside Hospital will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks.

There will be a big shooting tournament at Wadena on June 7 and 8. The Crookston Gun Club will be represented and expect to come out on the top of the heap.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Whaley and Misses Friedlmaier, Dewart and Downantz, drove out to Mr. Winnie's farm near Kiltson last Saturday to see how the spring work was progressing.

—M. O. Sortedahl and E. G. Stormoll who have been in the merchant business together at Red Lake Falls, have dissolved partnership. The business will in future be conducted by Mr. Sortedahl.

—D. Bunker, one of Mowercounty's prominent farmers is spending the day in Crookston. He leaves tomorrow for Grand Forks and Devil's Lake where he has some business interests to look after.

—C. M. Lowe, formerly of Crookston but now of Minneapolis, representative of the South Bend Chilled Plow Company and the Carriage Company of La Porte, Indiana, was in the city the best part of the week.

—There was a very pleasant gathering at the M. E. church last Saturday evening of those who were decorating the church and practicing music for the special Epworth League service to be given Sunday evening. After the work was done refreshments were served and a short time spent in social chat.

—Little Willie Elkhoff, the two-year-old son of Chris Elkhoff, wandered away from his home on yesterday morning. Diligent search for several hours failed to find him. He was finally located at the police station, where Chief Granger was delighting the little fellow with some of Ben Clement's best in the line of candy.

—Action has been brought by R. Sampson against Jos. Benoy for removing a building last Sunday, from certain lots, bought by one Anderson from Sampson, but not paid for. Benoy had purchased the house from Anderson and Sampson objected to the building being taken away before the land was paid for.

—The supervisors of the town of Fairfax are planning to build a wooden bridge across the Hinsdelosh creek in that town. Bids will be received up to June 2, at the town clerk's office at the residence of John Amundson. Contractors will find the regular form of notice for bids elsewhere in this paper.

—A. O. Daniels, one of the prominent farmers out east of town was at the county seat last Saturday and made the JOURNAL a pleasant call. He reported his seeding about half done and he thinks that the outlook is not so unfavorable after all. One year alone he came to the Valley in 1882 he seeded as late as June 2, and yet had a good crop. He purposes raising more stock in the past. Out on his farm at present time he is remodeling and fixing up his residence.

—Before Judge Hogen Tuesday there was a hearing of the witness in the estate of Knute Johnson Brekke, deceased. The settlement of this estate, which is situated in the western part of the county, has caused more litigation than that of any other estate in Polk county. The last will when first placed in the probate court was rejected. An appeal was taken to the district court, and Halvor Stenseraan who was appointed referee by the Judge sustained the probate court. An appeal was then taken to the supreme court where on technicalities part of the will was admitted. The estate is worth $20,000.

"The Mill Cannot Grind with Water That's Past."

This is what a fagged out, tearful little woman said in telling her cares and weaknesses. Her friend encouraged by telling of a relative who had just such troubles and was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hourrah—"I had dreaded menstruation, miserable for months. Neighbors told me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla; it cured me perfectly." Miss. FRED TERNER, Barre, Vt.

Erysipelas—" My little girl is now fat and healthy on account of Hood's Sarsaparilla curing her of erysipelas and eczema." Mrs. D. WHITAKER, Fort Chester, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—A full line of Stationery at Andersen's Drug Store.

—Colonel R. A. Wilkinson bought nine new teams of horses.

—Miss Rai Wilkinson is assisting Mrs. Hattie Stearns in the Kindergarten work.

—Commercial printing of all kinds done at the Journal office on the shortest notice.

Rev. Chas. P. Kite, of Brainerd, was greeting his old friends in Crookston last Tuesday night.

—The Crerolit Floor Paint sold by Andersen the Druggist is a genuine paint and dries in eight to ten hours.

—A. F. Campion, W. Lemmon and J. F. Montgomery, of Angus, were down to the Commandery meeting Monday night.

—Rev. G. Andersen sells the Heath & Milligan best Paint, the purest and best House Paint on the market. Call and get a color card.

—Captain Zarrweber, has been appointed aide-de-camp on General Searle, department Commander of the G. A. R. of Minnesota.

—Rev. F. W. Fraser left for Minneapolis last to attend the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which is in session at that city.

—P. M. Walsh proposes that at some time in the future his house on Ash street will be shaded for he is planting trees in front of them.

—Miss Jennie McKeecher, who has been at her home in Minneapolis for the past month, is back again teaching music to her large class of pupils.

—Geo. A. Ralph left Tuesday morning for the Rosseau county, where he will spend the next two weeks in doing some government surveying.

—Rev. Richard H. Battey, former pastor of the Congregational church in this city, and now connected with the Anti-Saloon league of the state, accepted Rev. Mr. Fisher's pulpit last Sunday morning.

—Geo. F. Marsh, foreman in the lumber yards in South Crookston, has rented one of N. S. Gordon's houses on South Broadway. Mr. Marsh's family will join here from Wisconsin in a short time.

—Miss Still and Miss Langford, who have charge of the school in Sampson's addition, are making elaborate preparations for some exercises which will be given on the last day of school, two weeks from tomorrow.

—A colored man, who was in the chief of police's office last Tuesday morning was a rather a sorry looking sight. Some companions had rolled him in the mud and he in consequence somewhat resembled a being who had been made of clay.

—C. G. Hoch wears the prettiest badge this week having won it by a score of 21. Conductor Withey holds the second badge. But these men were not the only ones who did good shooting, Will Bloom had a record of 18, W. E. Rowe of 20 and L. A. Lamont of 21.

—Hon. A. E. Rowson held services at Stephen last Sunday for Dr. Forbes, the presiding elder, who was compelled on account of illness to return home after the Cottier Conference held here last week. In the absence of Mr. Rowson Mr. Wheeler read a sermon.

—The barn work of the new German Lutheran St. Paul's church, is up and it is expected that the carpenter work on the building will be completed within two weeks. The dimensions are 38x42 and there will be a tower 65 feet high. Rev. J. Pfau is the pastor of the society which is erecting this edifice.

—According to the Grand Forks papers there was a lively tilt over there last week between a clerk and a business man and it all occured because the clerk was scattering some hand bills the object of which was to bring about the early closing of the stores. The matter came up before the justice of the peace and the result was that the city treasury was $10 the gainer.

Cold Hard Facts...

There are some more things that you should think about if you are a Bicycle Buyer

YOU shouldn't pay a cent for dignity. You shouldn't pay a cent for name. When it gets right down to cold facts all that you should pay for any Bicycle is quality, and on the heads of quality Victories will stand any criticism, any examination, any comparison, any test. You don't have to be an expert or a mechanical engineer to figure out that thirty-five dollars is plenty to pay for quality. But of course if you want to pay fifteen or twenty dollars for somebody's name or somebody's dignity—well, the money is yours, not ours. All we have to say about Victories is that they are Regal grade wheels, an honest wheel, a fine tried wheel, and in our opinion no wheel on earth is better constructed and no wheel for any name is worth any more. Today we show may different varieties of the wheel and you can have your pick, any size you want, any gear you want, any fittings you want and any guarantee you may reasonably ask, for thirty-five dollars—cash or time. Whether you are a man or woman, an experienced rider or a novice, whether you want a wheel for business or for pleasure or for both, you will find the Victory wheel all that we claim for it—an honest wheel, honestly made honestly advertised, and sold at as low at price, and as good as any wheel at any price, no matter what is claimed for the other or what cause it bears. Come in and look at the Victory. It is for you to say.

Hawkins & Olds.

—The band gave their weekly concert last Saturday evening.

—Dr. Watson, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city last Saturday night.

Some members of the Columbia Club enjoyed a hop at the club rooms last Saturday night.

—Miss Helen Montague began a summer term of school in the town of Keystone last Monday.

F. Lyeau, of Grand Forks, spent Sunday with his brother, Landlord Lyeau of Hotel Crookston.

—There was a hearing on claims in the estate of Wm. Erdmann last Monday before Judge Hogen.

—The Maccabees will have a dance at their hall in the Odd Fellows block on the evening of May 29.

—The Mountain Lake View, Cottonwood county, Minn., published by E. E. Lane, is for sale.

—J. F. Murray, of East Grand Forks, deceased, recommended Thos. Nesbit as his executor. There was a hearing on claims in this estate in the probate court last Monday.

—Oscar H. Olson came in from Fosston Monday afternoon. He left next morning for St. Hilaire to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, L. K. Kolstad, who died last Sunday.

—Commercial Hotel boarders who are employees at the saw mill—and there is quite a number of them—are accommodated at noon by the hotel bus which drives them to the hotel and back again to their work.

—Last Monday in probate court T. Nesbit was appointed administrator in the estate of P. Murray, of East Grand Forks and Julius Espe was given the same office in the estate of Bernt Erickson, of Crookston.

—A temporary boom has been built before the Great Northern railroad bridge to hold the logs that will be shipped to Winnipeg sawmills. It will be interesting to see these logs go over the dam, but the day on which the boom will be broken is not yet fixed.

—About midnight Monday the gang sawyer in the sawmill, by name Potvin, had one of the fingers of his left hand caught in the chain block and crushed. Dr. Dampier, who dressed the wound, found it necessary to amputate the finger. Potvin, however returned to work the same night.

—Ben Strawbridge, one of the editors and proprietors of the Cass Lake Times, came in on the afternoon train yesterday and will remain over till Friday morning. Ben is looking well and claims he has gained four pounds since he went out to that beautiful lake region, half way between Crookston and Duluth.

Stock Raisers Convention.

The JOURNAL is in receipt of a letter from Mayor Johnson of Fargo calling attention to the project of holding an Inter State Stock Raisers' Convention in Fargo about the middle of July. It is expected that the Hon. James Wilson, secretary of the department of agriculture, will be present.

Stewart Lumber Company

Our old friends and patrons will find us moved from the N. P. track to the W. E. Walker mill and yard. Don't forget this and to the new trade we wish to say that we can fill your order promptly, from a 2 by 4 to several thousand feet of lumber. We always keep the best of every thing and at right prices.

Remember we are the sole agent for Flint Plaster and we have everything in the building line.

6-32 STEWART LUMBER COMPANY.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

PHYSICIANS

A. A. Just M. D,
HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office in McKinnon Block. Crookston, Minn

ATTORNEYS

H. Steenerson,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
Office in Opera Block Crookston, Minn

Miller & Foote,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Offices, corner Broadway and Robert streets Crookston, Minn.

Christ's Church, Episcopal-
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Services every Sunday. Morning 10:00, evening, 8:00. Holy Communion the First Sunday of every Month. Rector you are welcome.
REV. H. M. GIBBS, D. D.
Rector.

TIME CARD
—OF—
TRAINS,
Crookston

NORTHERN PACIFIC

SOUTH BOUND.	Arr.	Dep't
No. 104 to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and East.	8.25 pm	8.35 pm
NORTH BOUND.
No. 103 to Grand Forks, Grafton and Winnipeg.	6.30 a m	6.50 a m

C. A. SHARKEY, Agt. Crookston, Minn. CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. A. St. Paul, Minn

THE GREAT NORTHERN

ARRIVE | Daily Except Sunday | LEAVE
6.50 am+Grand Forks, Fisk and Minneapolis.....7.00 am
8.05 pm Minn., St. Paul and points east.....8.05 pm
8.35 pm+Warren, Stephen and points west.....9.15 am
4.08 pm+St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls.....8.50 am
4.08 pm+Superior, Duluth and Superior.....9.00 am
5.45 pm+Cavalier, Hallock, Moorhead and Fargo.....1.30 am

+Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and departs Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays.

S. L. Collins,

LIVERY AND FEED STABLES

cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS

CANNOT BE MADE FOR

$1 per Dozen

And I am not turning out cheap work.

My work is all first-class, and my prices reasonable. You cannot get first-class goods for third-class prices.

P. E. LYNNE,
Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

THE

PHANTOM RICKSHAW.

—BY—

RUDYARD KIPLING.

[Copyright, 1888, by Rudyard Kipling.]

untered; either that I was mad or drunk or that Simla was haunted with devils. I reined in my impatient cob and turned round. The rickshaw had turned, too, and now stood immediately facing me, near the left railing of the Combermere bridge.

"Jack! Jack, darling!" There was no mistake about the words this time. They rang through my brain as if they had been shouted in my ear. "It's poor Mildura mi-nite, I'm sure. Please forgive me, Jack, and let's be friends again."

The rickshaw hood had fallen back, and inside, as I hope and pray daily for the death I dread by night, sat Mrs Keith-Wessington, handkerchief in hand and golden head bowed on her breast.

How long I stared motionless I do not know. Finally I was aroused by my syce taking the waler's bridle and asking whether I was ill. From the horrible to the commonplace is but a step. I tumbled off my horse and dashed, half fainting, into Pelitti's for a glass of cherry brandy. There two or three couples were gathered round the coffee tables discussing the gossip of the day. Their trivialities were more comforting to me just then than the consolation of religion could have been. I plunged into the midst of the conversation at once, chatted, laughed and posed with a face (when I caught a glimpse of it in a mirror) as white and drawn as that of a corpse. Three or four men noticed my condition, and, evidently settling it down to the results of overnight pegs, charitably endeavored to draw me apart from the rest of the lounger. But I refused to be led away. I wanted the company of my kind—as a child rushes into the midst of the dinner party after a fright in the dark. I must have talked for about ten minutes or so, though it seemed an eternity to me, when I heard Kitty's clear voice outside inquiring for me. In another minute she had entered the shop, prepared to roundly upbraid me for failing so signally in my duties. Something in my face stopped her.

"Why, Jack," she cried, "what have you been doing? What has happened? Are you ill?" Then driven into a direct lie, I said that the sun had been a little too much for me. It was close upon 5 o'clock of a cloudy April afternoon, and the sun had been hidden all day. I saw my mistake as soon as the words were out of my mouth, attempted to recover it, blundered hopelessly and told-weal Kitty in a regal rage out of doors amid the smiles of my acquaintances. I made some excuse (I have forgotten what) on the score of my feeling faint and cantered away to my hotel, leaving Kitty to finish the ride by herself.

In my room I sat down and tried calmly to reason out the matter. Here was I, Theobald Jack Pansey, a well educated Bengal civilian in the year of grace 1888, presumably sane, certainly healthy, driven in terror from my sweetheart's side by the apparition of a woman who had been dead and buried eight months. These were facts that I could not blink. Nothing was further from my thought than any memory of Mrs. Wessington when Kitty and I left Hamilton's shop. Nothing was more utterly commonplace than the stretch of mall opposite Pelitti's. It was broad daylight. The road was full of people, and yet here, look you, in defiance of every law of probability, in direct outrage of nature's ordinances, there had appeared to me a face from the grave.

Kitty's Arab had gone through the rickshaw; so that my first hope that some woman marvelously like Mrs. Wessington had hired the carriage and the coolies with their old livery was lost. Again and again I went round this treadmill of thought and again and again gave up baffled and in despair. The voice was as inexplicable as the apparition. I had originally some wild notion of confiding it all to Kitty; of begging her to marry me at once, and in her arms defying the ghostly occupant of the rickshaw. "After all," I argued, "the presence of the rickshaw is in itself enough to prove the existence of a spectral illusion. One may see ghosts of men and women, but surely never of coolies and carriages. The whole thing is absurd. Fancy the ghost of a bullman!"

Next morning I sent a penitent note to Kitty, imploring her to overlook my strange conduct of the previous afternoon. My divinity was still very wroth, and a personal apology was necessary. I explained with a flimsy form of night long pondering over a falsehood that I had been attacked with a sudden palpitation of the heart, the result of indigestion. This eminently practical solution had its effect, and Kitty and I rode out that afternoon with the shadow of my first lie dividing us.

Nothing would please her save a canter round Jakko. With my nerves still unstrung from the previous night I feebly protested against the notion, suggesting Observatory hill, Jutogh, the Boileauguge road—anything rather than the Jakko road. Kitty was angry and a little hurt. So I yielded from fear of provoking further misunderstanding, and we set out together toward Chota Simla. We walked a greater part of the way and, according to our custom, cantered from a mile or so before the convent to the stretch of level road by the Sanjowlie reservoir. The wretched horses appeared to my, and my negro beat quicker and quicker as we neared the crest of the ascent. My mind had been full of Mrs Wessington all the afternoon, and every inch of the Jakko road bore witness to our old time walks and talks. The bowlders were full of it, the pines sang it along overhead, the rain fell torrents giggled and chuckled unseen over this shameful story, and the wind in my ears chanted the iniquity aloud.

As a fitting climax, in the middle of the level men call the Ladies' mile the barrue was awaiting me. No other rickshaw was in sight. Only the four black and white Dampanies, the yellow panned carriage and the golden head of the woman within, all apparently just as I had left them eight months and one fortnight ago! For an instant I fancied that Kitty must see what I saw—we were so marvelously sympathetic in all things. Her next words undeceived me. "Not a soul in sight! Come along, Jack, and I'll race you to the reservoir buildings!" Her wiry little Arab was off like a bird, my waler following close behind, and in this order we dashed under cliffs. Half a minute brought us within 50 yards of the rickshaw. I pulled my waler and fell back a little. The rickshaw was directly in the middle of the road, and once more the Arab passed through it, my horse following. "Jack, Jack, dear! Please forgive me!" rang with a wail in my ears and, after an interval, "It's all a mistake, a hideous mistake!"

I spurred my horse like a mad person. Shame! When I turned my head at the reservoir works, the black and white horses were still waiting—patiently waiting—under the gray hillside, and the wind brought me a mocking echo of the words I had just heard. Kitty hastened me a good deal on my homeward journey throughout the remainder of the ride. I had been talking up till then wildly and at random. To save my life I could not speak afterward naturally and from Sanjowlie to the church wisely held my tongue.

